"Well, yonder stands a veteran ex-diplomatist and historian, who was many years in Paris. Note his tall form, his Romanesque profile and pose. You see I commence at American beginning, for his great-grandfather was a veritable aboriginal chieftain of the Mohawk tribe, near Albany. See, he yet shows the skull and high cheek-bones of the Indian. How courtly his bow, engendered of European atmospheres, to the lady he pauses before."

"And she—why, she seems a veritable shop window of jewels as she sits."

"The wife of a millionaire by inheritance, and of German ancestry. His grandfather explored Alaska as a furrier long before Behring straits became a crooked element of diplomatic combat. There are other 'races to right of them, races to left of them' all types of blood crossings in American residents. Perhaps every civilized country of the world is represented in the guests present. For instance, at the end of the room, by the crystal mirror, is an ex-mayor of this city whose paternal grandfather was of your country and the grandmother was once a hat weaver in Wales, whose maternal grandfather was a Hollander and the grandmother a French woman. He married the daughter of a lady who was Manx, and who married a Canadian."

"Fancy!" languidly responded Mr. Carson, "you positively reckon ancestry here by multiplication; we Britons only by the algebraic quantities of an 'X' among the Druids and the unknown quantity of a 'Y' among Normans."

"While this reception is somewhat remarkable for wealth, it is more notable for 'brains.' Brain power here, as in London, does not accumulate wealth, but here, as in London, wealth, in its hospitality, renders homage to the brains that guide pen and pencil. Yes, the brunette gentleman leaning on the chair lined with tapestry is a literary man, and not a millionaire. He is a journalist of skill and power; not so much at present a writer as a suggester to other writers. He plans a campaign to a reporter. He finds the latter in ammunition, shows him vantage ground, deploys his battalion of penworkers, and oversees their foraging. His hand is never removed from the lever of his journal, in all this he is aided by his wife, over whom he is fondly bending. That is she, the blonde in dimples, with arms and bust that sculptors sigh to place in marble. Near him is another Nestor in journalism—a grand combination of Echabod and Shylock—one who realizes the Mazeppa lines as to the patient search of him who treasures up the wrong."

The conversation was here interrupted by a tap on Carson's back from the fan of the first piquant beauty whom he had met on his entrance, and of whom he had been in search. "What an automaton in our society a Briton is," she began as gaily and as confidentially as if she had known him for ages. "I have been observing you. You have reminded me of images I saw in your Mme. Toussaud's exhibition, or in our own Eden Musee. Do you Britons ever show animation or exhibit a sentiment even, when talking it? Is every Briton 'used up' at—at, well, let us say, 30?" And she slightly blushed, as did he, for he had been only that moment impressed with the beauty of her eyes, and with the elastic stamp of enthusiasm upon her features. Enthusiasm and volubility in a woman were rare qualities to him.

He became conscious of positively feeling a new sensation. Instinctively his hand went to his pulse. It was actually beating fast, and for a moment this wearied scholar of the mundane was embarrassed. This feeling increased when he semi-awkwardly added:

"I am frightfully forgetful, don't you know, and I really cannot recall the name by which you were introduced."

She laughed reproachfully, but rallying repeated, "Dontcherknow; and, indeed, I don't know whether you are a forgetful person. But pardon me. It was not I who was introduced, for I 'fancy'—that is the proper English word, I think that you were introduced to me. My name was then mentioned as Vera Rosebery."

"I could not have heard it, or I never would have forgotten it—truth, flowers and fruit aptly conjured in a name that is evidently appropriate."

"Am I a conjurer to have suddenly awakened you from a state of social syncope to this one of trite compliments."

"Not trite, but heartfelt, surely," he responded, as his face for a moment lost its habitual stolidity.

(To be continued.)

That Hat Was Not Removed.

The "new woman" has invaded even the precincts of the courts. It was in the Superior Court, the time yesterday, and the solemn tones of the clerk had just ceased reverberating from swearing twelve good and true men to try the issues joined, and while the counsel for the plaintiff was standing ready to make his opening statement, that the voice of the judge evolved the stern order of the bailiff for "Hats off."

Back of the throng that crowded against the rail was a brown felt of alpine shape bobbing hither and thither, regardless of the stern command. The judge watched its movements for an instant, and then, in firm but decided tones, ordered the offending gear removed. Still it bobbed on, all heedless of the stern command. In stentorian tones came the order, "Remove that man from the room." The crowd in front of the rail parted, and there, back toward the door, was a diminutive female whose hear was surmounted by the offending tile.

The Judge looked for a moment at the offender, took in the fact that the new woman had invaded the precincts of justice, and a smile, which he did not attempt to conceal, spread over his features as he turned to the plaintiff's lawyer and said, "You may proceed."—Baltimore American.

THE NEW INCOME TAX

NO PROSPECT OF IT BEING DECLARED UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

Almost Every Single Tax Has Been Objected To by Those Who Would Stop the Wheels of Progress—The Republican Party Not Hard to Please.

It's a Just Measure.

From the legal point of view can it be seriously maintained that a thousand dollars exemption from the general property tax or a ten thousand dollar exemption from the inheritance tax is constitutional, but that a four thousand dollar exemption from the income tax is unconstitutional? If this provision in the income tax law is unconstitutional, then we must overturn hundreds of decisions in our State tribunals, and completely reverse the general tendency of fiscal development throughout the civilized world. We must say that uniformity means absolute uniformity, and declare unconstitutional hundreds of existing laws which aim merely at substantial uniformity. There is, therefore, very little prospect of the tax being declared unconstitutional on that ground. This brings us to the question whether the income tax is indeed a just measure. Some people say it is socialistic, and that the State has no right to confiscate earnings. This objection scarcely deserves a refutation. It entirely misconceives the relation of the individual to the State. The cry of Socialism has always been the last refuge of those who wish to clog the wheels of social progress or to prevent the abolition of long-continued abuses. The factory laws were in their time dubbed socialistic. Compulsory education and the postoffice system were called socialistic. There is scarcely a single tax which has ever been introduced, which has not somewhere or other met with the same objection. This is true no less of the new inheritance tax in some of our commonwealths and in England than of the new property tax in Holland and Prussia. But the argument nowhere carried any weight. In fact, if there is any Socialism, it would be far more obvious in the property tax, which exempts the earnings of the poorer classes, than of the income tax which reaches earnings from other sources than mere property. Yet we have become so accustomed to the property tax that the idea of its being socialistic seems ridiculous.—Prof. Seligman in the Forum.

Importers Kept Busy.

Under the above heading, the American Economist says: "A stroll through the wholesale dry-goods district of New York City will convince the most skeptical that wholesale houses, large and small, are taking advantage of this era of Gorman free trade to buy everything in their line anywhere but in the United States. * * * This looks to the casual observer like good times and prosperity, but when we consider that each one of these foreign boxes and bales throws a dampening shower on our own furnace fires, and that the prosperity is over the water and not here, the whole business assumes another aspect."

Does it? How do the people pay for these imported goods? There is but one way—by exchange. The fact that the American people are taking advantage of the opportunity to secure cheap goods shows that they are producing something to exchange for these foreign goods. They are at work making what they can produce most cheaply to exchange for what foreigners can produce most cheaply. This will give us far greater prosperity than we could attain by attempting to make those things which we cannot produce cheaply.

When we see a farmer purchasing large supplies of groceries, dry goods and furniture at a store, do we think it a sign that somebody else is prospering and that he is not? What is he doing but exchanging the products of his labor for the products of the labor of other people? He gets more for his labor by such an exchange than he could possibly get in any other way; and the cheaper goods are, and the more he can get for what he has to sell, the more prosperous will he be. It doesn't matter whether he exchanges with a near neighbor or a man on the opposite side of the world. The farmer gives as little and gets as much as possible in exchange. In so doing not only himself, but his town, county, State and country are the gainers. Anything that prevents him from selling or buying to the best possible advantage injures not only himself, but his town, county, State and country. This is so because the same statement holds true not only to every other farmer, but also to every laborer, mechanic, clerk or professional man. What is good for each and every individual in a group is good for the whole group. A tariff wall prevents each individual from getting as much as possible in exchange for what he has to sell, and therefore injures each individual and the whole country.

The American Economist is mistaken. Exchange is a blessing and not a curse. It is a good omen that business is booming in the wholesale dry-goods district of New York City, and that everybody is "taking advantage of this era of Gorman free trade." It is a pity that they have not a "Wilson free-trade" era to take advantage of, Wilson was willing to give our people even greater bargains than was Gorman.

Apples for Europe.

To fool the farmer, McKinley put a duty of 25 cents a bushel on apples, and another of 2 cents a pound on the same fruit when dried or evaporated. The original Wilson bill placed both these products on the free list. Whereupon the followers of McKinley complained bitterly. And so the Senate made apples, whether green or dried, dutiable at 20 per cent. ad valorem. This was not satisfactory to the advocates of high protection, and the change to an ad valorem rate has been pointed out as evidence that the farmer has been injured by the new tariff.

If the American owners of apple trees need to be protected against a "flood" of pauper apples from Europe or elsewhere, how did it come about that they were able to export and sell in Europe nearly 1,500,000 barrels of apples in the last six months? Our neighbor, the Tribune, shows that in the export season now almost closed there have been shipped to Europe 1,443,592 barrels. It is also shown by the official reports that 2,846,645 pounds of dried apples were exported in the year ending on June 30 last.

When the farmer is told that he needs a duty of 25 cents a bushel or one of 20 per cent. to protect him against the sale of foreign apples in this country, he should ask the advocates of McKinleyism to explain how it is possible to sell these American apples abroad, at good prices, in open competition with the pauper apples of the Old World, without the aid of any protective duty, and under the disadvantages imposed by ocean freight charges.—New York Times.

Why Wages Are Going Up.

Strikes for the restoration of wages to rates in force before the panic are reported in various industries, particularly in the woolen manufacture. In many cases wages have been voluntarily restored by employers, notably by that heartless enemy of labor, Mr. Frick. One large woolen house states, according to the Reporter, that it has restored all but 10 per cent. of the reduction made in wages during the past two years, and means promptly to restore the rest, inasmuch as the total production of their mills is contracted for in advance, and it is good business to guard against dissatisfaction on the part of the employes. Such things are the well-known incidents of improving business, but what of the great truth that wages cannot go up till the tariff goes up? We fear that the experiences of the present year will convince workers in protected industries that ex-Speaker Reed was right in admitting, under the prodding of Mr. Cockran, that high wages were ruled by the law of supply and demand, modified by the strength and wisdom of labor organizations, and not at all by the tariff.—New York Evening Post.

A Pertinent Question.

In one of the Letters from the People in yesterday's World a citizen asked a pertinent and pregnant question. It was inspired by the advice of corporation lawyers and plutocratic newspapers that the income tax law, if upheld by the court, be nullified by refusal to make returns. This is the question:

"If a millionaire may select a law to defy why may not a poor man?"

Why not, indeed! If a rich man may escape an income tax that cannot possibly burden him why may not a poor man escape customs or internal revenue taxes that are a burden to him? The rich tax-dodger pretends to regard the income tax as unjust and inquisitorial. This is the feeling of the smuggler towards the tariff, and of the moonshine distiller towards the whisky tax. If one may nullify the law because it is obnoxious to him why not the other?

There could be no more dangerous precedent made under our form of government than the one which the income tax nullifiers seek to set up.—New York World.

The Tariff Under Test.

It is unpleasant for the advocates of high duties to have to admit that American manufactures of woolens are being exported under low duties, but they ought to be consoled by the evidence this affords of increasing capacity among our manufacturers to compete with those of Europe. There is nothing to be gained by denying the facts or belittling their importance. If they do not amount to much, we shall know all about it before the time comes to act on the tariff again in Congress. This strikes us as the first clear symptom of the effect of the tariff in operation. It has previously been complicated by the business depression, which has prevented its having a fair trial. Politicians may be troubled by its success, but the disposition of the country will be tested by results. In the meantime, it is effort wasted to attempt to explain them away. The tariff is likely to speak for itself in the end. We are content to await the public verdict with regard to it under these conditions.—Boston Herald.

God writes the gospel not in the Bible alone, but on trees and flowers, and clouds, and stars.—Luther.

He who is the master of all opinions can never be the bigot of any.—W. R. Alger.

A TYPICAL TRUST.

The public and the stockholders are robbed that the "crowd on the inside" may wax wealthy.—Chicago Times-Herald.

MISER BOSWORTH.

Though Rich He Lives in Extreme Filth and Poverty.

Loren Bosworth, living near Willimantic, Conn., is notorious for his wealth, his miserliness and his cruelty to his domestic animals. He owns 4,000 acres of land besides a large fortune, yet he lives in a most filthy and disgusting way. Lately a New York reporter visited Bosworth. Bosworth was found living in an old barn, one side of which had fallen away. The ground floor was covered with rubbish. A pile of decaying calf hides lay back of two rickety old wagons, and a henroost occupied the back part of the place. Above was a small scaffold, on which was a small pile of hay, covered with dirty sheepskins. The beams around were decorated with the bleached skulls of cattle, butchered some time before. The scaffold was Loren Bosworth's bed chamber, and the pile of hay and dirty sheepskins his bed.

MISER LOREN BOSWORTH.

The old man lives on crackers, cheese and other dry food. In the corner of the field where the barn stands is a "set" kettle. In this the old man prepared a beef soup early in the winter. The soup froze, and now, when Bosworth wishes a delicacy, he chops out a chunk of frozen soup and thaws it out.

The history of the old man's prosecutions for cruelty to his animals is long. A short time ago he kept a colt in the home barn in a half-starved condition. It was so weak that it would often fall down in the stable, and could not get up without help. This angered Bosworth at the rare times when he wished to drive the colt to water. He fastened two straps to the sides of the stall, passed them beneath the colt so that it could neither fall nor lie down. Last summer the Board of Health broke into the house owned by Bosworth. A terrible stench had disturbed the whole village. In the cellar were found no less than fifty casks of beef, salted years before, in a filthy condition. Five sheep lay in a corner, having evidently been butchered long before.

A CURIOSITY.

The Exploding Bean Acts Strangely When Placed in Water.

The "jumping bean" is still fresh in the memory of the curiosity hunter. It seems that a worthy successor to it has been found in a little dry fruit growing in Java. The fruit is about 1½ inches long and cigar shaped, and explodes with a loud report if placed into water after floating for two or three minutes. It can be shown in an ordinary water tumbler. The force developed is sufficient to tear apart the two halves of the pericarp and to hurl one of them with the greater number of seeds quite forcibly into the air. The fruit grows on a tree of the species of Acanthaceas, probably of the justicia grandiflora, common in the Sunda islands and the peninsula of Malacca.

THE EXPLODING BEAN.

A Profitable Railway.

"The best paying railroad property in Florida runs between the station at Winter Park and a winter hotel," said Lewis T. Gumby, of Jacksonville, at La Normandie last night. "It is a narrow-gauge affair, whose rusty iron rails rest on squared pine logs laid in the sand, and its equipment consists of a single car, formerly in use upon a Northern street railway, and a pair of old mules. The entire outfit did not cost more than $500, and yet it makes an enormous percentage in carrying freight. From the holidays to April there is a continual stream of tourists coming and going from that hotel, and, of course, they carry baggage. All of it is transported over that little railroad, both upon arrival and departure, and for each piece and parcel a charge of 25 cents is made each way. Over 6,000 pieces were carried on it last year, counting both ways, so you can figure out what a valuable property it is."—Washington Star.

He Would Be Late.

The beadle in a rural district in Perthshire had become too feeble to perform his duties as minister's man and gravedigger, and had to get an assistant. The two did not agree well, but after a few months Sandy (the beadle) died, and Tammas had to perform the last service for his late partner. The minister strolled up to Tammas while he was giving the finishing touches to the grave and casually remarked: "Have you put Sandy weel down, Tammas?" "I hev that, sir," said Tammas, very decidedly; "Sandy may get up, but he'll be among the hindmost."

"Mamie and I have made a wager on the age of the prima donna we saw last week," said the young woman. "Are the stakes high?" "Yes, indeed. We bet a brand new theater hat."—Washington Star.

A poor man is saved one great grief: his daughter never marries a duke or a prince.

PIPER HEIDSIECK PLUG TOBACCO

Consumers of chewing tobacco who are willing to pay a little more than the price charged for the ordinary trade tobaccos, will find this brand superior to all others.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

DR. MOTT'S PENNYROYAL PILLS

The only safe, sure and reliable Female Pill ever offered to Ladies, especially recommended to married Ladies. Beware of pills put up in tin boxes as they are dangerous. Ask for DR. MOTT'S PENNYROYAL PILLS and take no other. Send for circular. Price $1.00 per box, 6 boxes for $5.00. DR. MOTT'S CHEMICAL CO., Cleveland, Ohio.

Fisher & Son, Auburn, Ind.

FITS!

Brace Up! Don't Lose Courage!!

Your disease is not incurable because your Physician has given you up, and you have not received any benefit from the medicine you have tried, is not any reason you cannot be cured. We can positively cure all kinds of Fits, Epileptic, Convulsion or Spasmodic. WE GUARANTEE A POSITIVE AND PERMANENT CURE IN ALL CASES. We have cured thousands, many cases of long standing, and given up by Doctors as incurable. In our "Allen's Fits Cure" you will find a medicine that has never failed to effect a speedy cure. We back our guarantee with an offer of $100 to any person we cannot cure. Highest Bank references furnished on application.

1 Qt. Bottle, $2.00. 2 Qt. $5.00.

ALLEN MEDICAL CO.,

Washington & Water Sts., BOSTON, MASS.

LADIES

Suffering from Retarded, Suppressed or Painful Menstruation and all irregularities of like nature, will find our FAMALE PILLS an infallible cure. They are entirely safe and can always be relied upon for speedy relief. We have yet to hear of a case where they have failed to produce the desired result. A box should be kept on hand at all times to provide for emergencies. Correspondence Confidential.

By mail, with full directions, securely sealed, $2.00 per box.

ALLEN MEDICAL CO.,

Washington & Water Sts., BOSTON, MASS.

Every Woman

Sometimes needs a reliable monthly regulating medicine.

Dr. PEAL'S PENNYROYAL PILLS,

Are prompt, safe and certain in result. The genuine (Dr. Peal's) never disappoint. Sent anywhere $1.00. Peal Medicine Co., Cleveland, O.

Sold by Fischler & Son., Auburn.

General or local Ladies or gents. Agents. $75 a week. Exclusive territory. The Rapid Dish Washer. Washes all the dishes for a family in one minute. Washes, rinses and dries them without touching the hands. You push the button, the machine does the rest. Bright, polished dishes, and cheerful wives. No matted fingers, mouldied handles or clinking Washes dishes, no mess. Cheap durable, warranted. Circulars free

W. P. HARRISON & CO., Gen'l Ag. 12, Columbus, O.

Sex-ine Pills

RESTORE LOST VIGOR

Before and After Using.

New discovery. Will brace you up in a week. Sold with a WRITTEN GUARANTEE to Cure Nervous Debility, Loss of Sexual Power in either sex, involuntary Emissions from any cause. If neglected, such troubles lead to consumption or insanity. $1.00 per box by mail, 6 boxes for $5.00. With every $5 order we give a written guarantee to cure or refund the money. Address PEAL MEDICINE CO., Cleveland, Ohio.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

5,000 ACRES CENTRAL MICHIGAN FARMS

Near Saginaw and Bay City. Soil clay loam, hardwood timber and free from swamps. Railway facilities; schools and markets adjacent. Price, $6 to $8 per acre, on easy payments. Satisfaction assured. Practical farmers and parents who wish to give their sons a start in life, can find No Better Land in Michigan. Maps and Circulars free. JACOB SCHWARTZ or WM. M. TENNANT, SAGINAW, E. S., MICH.

RESTORED MANHOOD.

DR. MOTT'S NERVERINE PILLS

BEFORE AND AFTER USING.

The great remedy for nervous prostration and all nervous diseases of the generative organs of either sex, such as Nervous Prostration, Failing or Lost Manhood, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Youthful Errors, Mental Worry, excessive use of Tobacco or Opium, which lead to Consumption and Insanity. With every $5 order we give a written guarantee to cure or refund the money. Sold at $1.00 per box, 6 boxes for $5.00. DR. MOTT'S CHEMICAL COMPANY, Cleveland, Ohio.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES. OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

O. A. SNOW & CO.

OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

SOME SEASONABLE
BARGAINS
GOING
AT COST.

Having decided to quit handling Ladies' and Childrens' Shoes and Slippers, we have determined to close out stock on hand at cost, thus affording you an opportunity to save from 50c. to 1.25 on every pair of shoes of this description.

DONT WAIT,
BUT COME
AT ONCE

As they are going out rapidly A word to the wise is sufficient. Want of space will not permit us to quote these extraordinary prices, but give us a call and we will convince you of the truth of this statement.

GLOBE
Cothing and Shoe Company
Gandy Block, North side of Square
AUBURN, IND.

This ad is wrong; it should relate
To you who wish to speculate.
That first-class goods we can supply,
At prices low,—and that's no lie (too).

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY, DIAMONDS
MUSICAL - - GOODS
Everything in our line.
D. A. HODGE, Jeweler.
KIBLINGER BUILDING.

SCHAAB & MURPHY
——Are in the market with a full line of——
Clothing, Furnishing Goods & Men's Shoes.
HATS The latest styles At 25 per cent less than ever before offered in Auburn.
An all-wool suit made to order for $12.00.
See us Before Buying.
SCHAAB & MURPHY.

THE AUBURN COURIER
OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY.
JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.
Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, post-office as second-class matter.
THURSDAY,.....APRIL 4, 1895.

GREAT BRITAIN and Venezuela are quarreling about some territory that each claims. It may lead to war, though Venezuela is too weak a power to make much of a fight against Great Britain.

SENATOR CALL, of Florida, is in favor of helping Cuba to get her freedom from Spain, and hopes she would in time join the United States.

LATER returns from Rhode Island show a republican plurality of 10,900. In Wisconsin however the democrats elected their candidate for Judge of the supreme court by about 4,000. At least that is indicated by the latest returns.

KANSAS and Colorado had storms of snow and sand Sunday, bad enough to stop the running of trains.

POTATO patches for the poor, is the latest form of charity. The plan was first started by Mr. Pingree, Mayor of Detroit, and now many cities have adopted it. The way they do, is to get wealthy citizens to donate the use of unoccupied land, such as town lots and farm fields near the town. This will be fitted up and planted to potatoes, and the crop given to the poor, or else the poor will be given the use of the land free.

OUR people will remember the time that George Gould and his party went through Auburn on the Wabash road on a hunting trip through the south. About 70 miles down the road, they ran over and killed a man named Jones. His widow sued for $10,000, but the road fought the case. They finally offered her $3,600 but she would not accept. Then Gould himself chipped in and gave her $1600 more out of his own pocket. So the case is settled.

Wednesday's Daily:

STAMP CONUNDRUM.

A postage stamp conundrum is going the rounds. A young lady entered a postoffice, handed a dollar bill and said she wanted twice as many twos as ones and the balance in threes. The clerk smilingly started to count the stamps, grew perplexed, commenced figuring, and figured until he got red in the face, when the young woman politely told she was in no hurry, that he could figure it out and she would call next day for the stamps. Now, who can figure out the problem, how many stamps were given the young lady by the clerk when she called next day?

THE TORRENS LAND LAW.

Illinois will probably adopt the "Torrens System" of land registration to take the place of our present system of making land transfers and recording deeds. It is believed to be simpler and safer. The entire record of title of each piece of property appears on one page of the official record. The government guarantees this title absolutely. By means of these two features the entire business of dealing in real estate is so simplified that any man can make sure that he is safe in purchasing a piece of property. He can go to the record and see for himself. Heneeds no abstract of title and no lawyer to explain it to him. And the title he finds there cannot be overturned by some unsuspected informality in some former transfer, or made valueless by an unknown blanket mortgage, or by any other of the evils incident to our land system. Even if it be found that some other person had a better title he cannot get the land, but the government pays him its value. This is provided for by payment made by each person who has land entered under the new system, and in every country where it has been tried it has been found that the government is ahead after paying for all mistakes made. This is the only known system by which a person can get an absolutely certain title to land.

INCOME TAX.

The supreme court, as was to be feared, has brought in a decision which while it does not utterly ruin the income tax law, strikes down some of its most valuable provisions. They decide that rents from lands, and the incomes from state, county and municipal bonds, are exempt. In other respects, by a tie vote, the act is left in force. This decision, throwing out the rents on land, is based on provision in the constitution that all direct taxes must be raised in the different states according to the number of people, and not according to wealth. The same reasons were given, as to the tax on incomes derived from bonds. The decision is variously received, largely owing to difference in political opinions. Those who believe in a protective tariff duty are opposed to an income tax, while those who do not believe in a protective tariff are not satisfied with the decision, as they fear it will compel us to return to a protective duty.

BUTLER.

Dan. Oberlin has had an attack of the pleurisy. He is convalescing.

Mrs. Emma Carl and family have moved here from Waterloo and occupy the Tucker property on the south side.

W. Brashaw, has purchased the remaining Johnson house on east Green street at a very low price, and will make it his future home.

Mrs. Rebecca Eddy has moved here from Edgerton. They occupy Mrs. Jinks house on east North street.

The band concert last week proved a financial success.

Last Sunday was another dull day. The new M. E. minister failed to make schedule time, and the pulpit was empty.

Fred. Oberlin, had the misfortune last week to have some miscreant burn a tenant house on his farm. The house was not very valuable but too valuable to have it wantonly destroyed for pure deviltry.

Butler has now a complete cabinet of new ministers, all middling old men, yet possessing plenty of vigor.

Mrs. J. A. Campbell and daughter, spent Sabbath with friends at Angola.

Our school continues to be badly broken up with the measles.

A number of new wheels are seen on our streets, among them are A. G. Jones and daughter, Mins, Prof. Coe and Marshal Maxwell.

CONCORD.

F. B. and Alice Draggoo drove over to Auburn Tuesday.

G. W. Morr returned to his home in Crystal City, Mich., last Monday.

Frank Hull buried an infant Saturday last.

Mrs. Sadie Woodcox and children, of Auburn Junction, visited relatives here last week.

Goings has bought the farm of the Wm. Monroe heirs and will shortly take possession.

Charlie Knight is here visiting his mother, Mrs. N. A. Hoffman.

The noticeable coach dog that has followed S. W. Draggoo's buggy the last 13 years, gave up the ghost Tuesday.

R. B. Clear, of Churubusco, was the guest of G. W. Draggoo's Sunday.

G. F. Reed left last week for his home near South Haven Michigan.

Wm. Chambers, of near Butler, was the guest of Jas. D. Johnson Monday.

Mrs. Alice Bishop and four children of Mt. Hope Kansas, is here visiting her relatives and friends. Mrs. Bishop will visit her two brothers in Eaton, Co., Mich., before her return home.

Wednesday last Mrs. F. Buchanan had a quilting and carpet rag sewing. The number of 30 sat down to a most sumptuous dinner.

Mr. Boyle is reported better.

Mrs. Rowe and Bertha Hennessey is on the sick list.

Mrs. Wayne Scott and master Frank, drove to St. Joe Monday.

WATERLOO.

Mrs. R. D. Tefft, Mrs. Ina McDowell and son, George, spent Sunday with the family of Mr. A. L. Faucett.

The invitation are out for the marriage of Miss Lillian M. Shoner, to Charlie H. Covert, of Toledo, O., on Tuesday evening, April 16, at the home of the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. George Shoner.

Edward Ettinger wife and little son have returned from Angola, where they have been visiting his parents.

The musical entertainment given by Miss Gertrude Haynes at the M. E. church, was not a financial success.

R. G. Daniels is visiting in Michigan with his brother.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Patterson, and children spent Tuesday in Ft. Wayne.

Mr. George Rhinesmith who went to South Bend to locate, has returned. He says rents are too high for him.

Mrs. Effie Seufreid of Toledo, O., who has been visiting her parents at Hotel Lock for some time, returned to her home last Friday.

Mrs. Emett Reffner of Auburn, was the guest of Mrs. Frank Daroy, last Tuesday.

Mr. J. J. Baxter and wife leave to-day for Fairmont Minnesota to make that their future home.

A. G. Stanley was shopping in Fort Wayne Tuesday.

F. P. Blair and daughter, Mary of Laporte came down to Waterloo on Saturday after master Harold, who had been spending his spring vacation at his grandpa's.

Miss Cora Lock has gone to Decatur to visit her brother Dell at Hotel Burt.

CORUNNA.

The grip is getting in its work in this section again.

F. A. Squires will move back on his farm, south of Auburn, in a few days.

Thomas Scott has died of typhoid fever. He was buried Monday at the Sixteen cemetery, funeral services by Rev. Geo. Edgar.

There was a runaway in town last Wednesday evening, in which Mrs Henry Kline was pretty badly hurt.

Dr. Snyder went to Rochester, N Y., last Tuesday, to see his brother, who is lying at the point of death.

Rev. F. J. Spekine is the new Methodist minister for Corunna. Rev. J. A. Sumwalt goes to Orland.

Andrew Cox has a wagon bed made of willow grown on his own farm. The side boards are 13½ inches wide. Who can beat that?

Mrs. Morgan Wilson died last Wednesday in her 73d year. Eld. Minnick conducted the funeral services last Saturday, the 6th, in the M. E. church, after which her remains were laid to rest in the cemetery south of town.

The party who contracted with Uncle Sam to carry the mail between Corunna and Fairfield Center for four years, beginning July 1, 1895, was in town last Wednesday looking for some one who is a bigger fool than himself to carry the mail in his stead.

GAS ADDITION.

Mrs. Charles Wyatt is sick with the grip.

Porter Depew has moved into his new home on the lot that he bought lately.

Mrs. M. B. Masters has had the grip but is improving slowly.

Mrs. James Owens, who has been quite sick, is improving slowly.

Mr. Hill's folks have all had the grip, but are getting along nicely.

H. W. Croy and wife called on H. A. Croy and family Sunday afternoon.

Tuesday's Daily.

J. S. HUGHES COMING.

J. S. Hughes will give a series of lectures, commencing Wedesday evening, April 17th and continuing for five consecutive nights, closing on Sunday evening. His subjects are of a different nature each evening, but his main theme will be the "White Star Conduct." This is the embodiment of Christian Sociology. Its foundation principle is: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, soul and mind, and thy neighbor as thyself—and one another even as I have loved you;" and its pledge: "Whatever destroys human life or degrades human character shall not be licensed in government, transported in commerce, nor fellowship in the Church, and to this declaration I do hereby pledge my conduct now and henceforth, God helping me."

The three great agencies that mold society are government, commerce and religion. They were ordained of God for its good and entrusted to us for their righteous conduct.

Everybody should bear this series of lectures in mind. It is important too that you come the first night, that the lecture may be thoroughly understood. No admission fee will be charged and no collection taken.

Eggs for Hatching.

I will sell eggs from my pen of pure bred Golden Buff Cochins, Doolittle Strain, at 50c. per setting of 13. Call or address, H. V. SINCLAIR.

Frank W. Stoops will sell the popular Pierce Bicycle made at Buffalo, N. Y If you want a good wheel call on him at Neff & Weeks' grocery and examine his samples. 15 17

THE BALL MUST ROLL and SATURDAY we give it a PUSH
That will send it to every conservative buyer of clothing in the county
WE LEAD!
WHY? Because we have an assortment that would do justice to a city of 10,000 inhabitants. We aim to carry everything you can possibly need in Men's Youths' and Childrens' furnishings. We want you to get
Other Peoples Prices.
We don't say we think we can save you money. But we say
WE KNOW WE CAN.
If you want a good suit of clothes for your boy for $1.00, we have it. If you want a man's good suit in any size from 34 to 42 we can sell you one for $4.00. Come and see what we can do for you Saturday. We have a few odd suits that we will sell at any price to make you satisfied.
G. H. Yesbera,
The Clothier and Furnisher

RUPTURE Of Men, Women and Children permanently cured in 30 days, without pain or slightest inconvenience by the Fidelity Method. Every case guaranteed. Patient need not pay a dollar until completely cured. The truss discarded forever. Over 8,000 cases cured in the last five years. Consultation free.
J. B. CASEBEER, M. D.
Their authorized physician in Indiana and who will visit Auburn in April. Correspondence Solicited, Address;
14 East Ohio Street, INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

List of Patents

Granted to Indiana Inventors this week. Reported by C. A. Snow & Co., solicitors of American and Foreign patents, Opp. U. S. Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

T. A. Edward Akass, Indianapolis, extension grill fret-work; D. E, Brentlinger, Gas City, measuring device; A. Harris, Indianapolis, hair straightener; F. A. Hethrington, Indianapolis, dough dividing machine; J. H. Hoober, Kentland, cultivator; W. Hubertz, Lafayette, tile ditching machine; J. C. Hunsinger, poultry crate; W. H. Jones, Liberty, wire fence; W. D. Kyle, Fort Wayne, multiplex stringed musical instrument; J. C. McCollough, Crawfordsville, straw stacker; H. W. Neal, Indianapolis, hydrocarbon gas machine; H. L. Renne, Hammond. car coupling; J. T. Smith, Kokomo, separator; G. Southard, Indianapolis, envelope; F. Stanley, Liberty, pneumatic strawstacker; W. Tucker, Indianapolis, knob lock; J. H. Welch, Fort Wayne, self measuring oil pump; F. G. Wiselogel, Indianapolis, drier.

House Burned.

A widow lady, Mrs. A. J. Smith, in South Jackson, lost her house and most of its contents by fire Saturday last. It was about half past 11 in the forenoon when Charlie Comesky saw flames showing at the house, and gave the alarm. He and others ran a quarter of a mile, but by the time they reached the house the family had discovered it. It had been burning within five feet of them and they did not know of it for a time. About half the household goods were saved. There was no insurance.

SOLD OUT.

Frank Groscop has sold his fine farm a mile west of town, and will soon move to Maryland. The purchaser is John M. Ketcham, of 460 Jefferson Avenue, Grand Rapids, Mich., who expects to move here and make this his home. He will probably come about May 1, as Mr. Groscop is to move out at that date. Mr. Ketcham is represented as a very desirable citizen, and as such we shall be pleased to have him settle down in our community. Mr. Groscop has also been a valuable citizen, and we are sorry to lose him. He He expects to locate somewhere on the shores of Chesapeake Bay. He will likely call on Guy Plumb at Easton, before deciding on a location.

David Hough, who resider near Ligonier died Tuesday. He was a prominent citizen and had served as sheriff of his county. He was the first man selected as postmaster there a year or so ago, but owing to the great amount of dissatisfaction he refused to accept.

If health be Wealth,
And you are poor (in health) take the new remedy, Vitaline and Nervetone, the "talk of Europe." Just introduced in the United States, cures every form of nervous trouble and nerve pain. Try it. It means life and strength renewed. The world does not contain its equal. It is sold by druggists. Wholesale by Walding, Kinnan & Marvin Co. Preparedby the Hall Medicine Company, Toledo, Ohio. For sale by Fischler & Son. 14-15

I. O. BUCHTEL, Homœopathic
Physician and Surgeon.
Special attention given to chronic and obscure cases and catarrhal diseases of the nose, throat and lungs; also to diseases peculiar to women and children.
Office and residence over Smith & Madden's marble works, Auburn, Ind. Office apart from residence and private. All calls attended to promptly, night or day.

Notice of Sale of Real Estate.

Notice is hereby given, that I, Harrison Enzor, executor of the will of Stephen K. Enzor, deceased, will offer for sale at public auction, to the highest bidder, on Saturday, May 11, 1895, at 10 o'clock, a. m., at the door of the court house in Auburn, Indiana, for the purpose of paying debts, the following described real estate, belonging to the estate of said decedent, to-wit:

The north half of the northeast quarter [¼] of the northeast quarter [¼] of section fourteen [14] and the north half [½] of the northwest quarter [¼] of the northwest quarter [¼] of section thirteen [13] all in township thirty-five [35] north, of range fourteen [14] east, in, DeKalb county, state of Indiana.

TERMS OF SALE:

One third cash, one-third in 6 months, and one-third in 12 months. Deferred payments to be evidenced by interest-bearing notes waiving relief and secured by mortgage upon the premises sold. HARRISON ENZOR, Executor.
Baxter & Brown, Attys.

PAID PROMPTLY.

AUBURN IND., April, 6, 1895.

Received of Walter C. Hartman, Agent for the Continental Insurance Company, Eighteen Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($1850.00) in full for loss and damage by fire which occurred March 22, '95, to property consisting of our factory building and contents. Our claim was promptly paid in full.

AUBURN FOUNDRY & MACH. WKS.
S. D Hanna, Treas.

For a Complete Base Ball Schedule.

Of all the games to be played by National Base Ball League for season of 1895, apply to A. J. Smith, G. P. & T. A., L. S. & M. S. R'y., Cleveland, O., enclosing two-cent postage stamp. This schedule contains the dates, names of contesting clubs, places for scoring total runs, hits, errors and pitchers' names, together with tables of standing of clubs and averages for last season. 15 17

Alfred Schoup, of Richland and son William were in town Tuesday, His father Wm. Schoup sr, is still in poor health but does not forget the COURIER even in his 76th year.

SPRING 1895. SUMMER.

Complete New A Cash Business,

BISHOP & LACKEY

Present their compliments to the ladies of DeKalb County an respectfully announce

A GRAND EASTER OPENING

APRIL 11, 12 13.

—OF A COMPLETE STOCK OF NEW—

MILLINERY.

Many New and Desirable Goods Secured Specially for this Sale.

By the way, it might save you money to inspect the largest line of

SPRING WRAPS,

CARPETS and CURTAINS

EVER SHOWN IN DeKALB COUNTY.

CASH SALES Only will be made bu advantage is with the lic, as the lowest possible margin consistent with qu is added to the original cost.

Bishop & Lacke

IF IT IS SO!

That you anticipate ge a new

EASTER HA

Then count on

COWAN SISTER as being best able to want, and fill it satisfact Come in and bri friends and you shall home while you see th

NEW FASHIONS

FOR

SPRING and SUMM

Cowan Sisters

R. SHULL'S

CASH SHOE STO

Is now located in the

KIBLINGER BUILDIN

where a

Large Line

OF

BOOTS AND SHOES

May be Found.

Wall Paper and Window Blinds

AT

OLDS BROS.'

BIG ASSORTMENT

and

LOWEST PRICES

Thursday's Daily.

John Crummins has his abstract office in the surveyor's office for the present.

The call for the democratic city caucus is out, and all who are interested should make a note of it.

Mrs. Griswold went to Hillsdale, Mich., yesterday where she will attend the golden wedding of her brother.

Both Farm and Garden seed in bulk at J. W. Platters, south of the jail. 12 15

Chas. Stafford is now clerking in Milo Garrett's store. Mr. G. is doing a good business and this demands more clerks.

George Palmer, a former Auburn boy, sends for the COURIER same as all the old DeKalb folks do. His home is at Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Will Champion is getting to be quite an expert in repairing bicycles. He is prepared to do all ordinary work. Call on him at Yesbera's jewelry store.

Miss Violet Barney, of St. Joe, passed through town to day on her way to Adrian where she is attending school. She was the guest of Ida Stafford between trains.

J. E. Pomery has put up a sign at the bottom of the stairway leading up to the rooms over G. H. Yesbera's Clothing store. He has opened up a law office and expects to do a general law business.

A letter from Miss C. E. Strickland at [illegible] T. brings her annual re-

Smoke the K. & B. ten-cent cigar.

Free sexual book to men, box 52, Toledo, O.

Buy chop feed, corn, oats and all kinds of seeds of J. W. Platter. 12-15

THE Eagle Manufacturing Co. at Auburn Junction are making all kinds of light and heavy casting.

YOU can have most any article of iron or brass manufactured at the Junction Foundry.

Sheriff Stroh went to Waterloo Thursday nibgt and brought Frank Derthick down and put him in jail. He stole a pair of boots from Will Kennedy. He left them sitting on the porch.

If you wish your piano tuned leave orders at the store of Brown, Culbertson & Boland. Mr. A. J. Rogers, who has charge of their piano and organ department, is a practical piano tuner and will guarantee you satisfaction at reasonable prices.

J. D. Myers & Myers & Kutzner are selling the Zimmermau Mfg. Co. carriages. See them before buying. 1t

S. A. Burrows of the Morgan & Beach hardware firm, of Fort Wayne, is in town looking up a Mr. Frederick whom they had sold a bicycle to. It seems he signed a contract and then sold the wheel before it was paid for.

Robert Culbertson and Phillip Fluke, will soon be the patriarchs of the town. Mr. Culbertson is 80 to-morrow and Mr. Fluke will be 79 in July. Both are pret[illegible] old boys and enjoy life

Monday's Daily

Taxpaying time closes April 15.

Sealed book to men free, box 52, Toledo, O.

AUBURN Summer Normal will begin July 8

Phil Ryan, of Ft. Wayne is in town today.

Neff & Weeks are having some papering done in their grocery.

Thomas Chandler moves fom Waterloo back to Kendallville this spring.

Miss Violet Robinson, of Washington, is the guest of Mrs Judge McClellan.

Miss Estella Tarney returned to Fort Wayne this morning where she is having her eyes treated.

Our farmer friends will find a full stock of Farm and Garden seed at J. W. Platter's feed store south of the jail. 12 5

D. A. Garwood is getting ready to put down a cement walk. He is also erecting a new wood house.

The parties held at Garrett Saturday supposed to be the Lake Shore robbers, were not the right fellows and were let go.

Lue Crure and Laura Baughman were married at the bride's home east of town, yesterday. They will reside on a farm north of town.

THERE WILL be at least three instructors in the Auburn Summer Normal and each will be a specialist in the branches he teaches.

Frank Groscop, will have a sale of his personal property next Tuesday, April 16.

AUBURN COURIER SUPPLEMENT.

APRIL 11, 1895.

SMOKE THE

DINCER

CIGAR.

MANUFACTURED BY

E. M. BISHOP,

AUBURN, INDIANA.

paper, "The First [illegible] G. S. McCord. After the close of the session, some time was spent in a social way, when the gentlemen began to arrive. Then followed a delightful lunch, which every one very much enjoyed. Through the kindness of Mrs. Wm. Sheffer, the editor and his wife were privileged to be present and enjoy a very pleasant time.

Friday's Daily.

See the news on inside pages.

NORMAL at Auburn.

Father Young was over from Garrett to day.

Frank Powers and B. F. Dawson, of Angola, were here to-day on some court matters.

Mrs. Callie Zimmerman returned today from Ft. Wayne, where she has been the guest of friends a few days.

Mrs. Mary Boyer went to Waterloo yesterday, and from there she and Mrs. J. S. Jackman go to Ft. Wayne to-day.

Miss Rose Blair, of Waterloo, and her nephew Master Harold Blair, of Laporte were visitors in the editor's family to-day.

Best place to by feed is south of the jail J. W. Platter has it. 12-15

[illegible] welcome and all reform and Christian societies are invited to send fraternal delegates.

Will Swarts returned last evening over the Lake Shore, from Cincinnatti where he has been for the past year, attending the Ohio Medical College, one of the oldest and best institutions in the west. He has completed his second year. Will has evidently been hard at work, at least his "think tank" shows it, for he is getting a little bald in spite of his youth. He showed us the college bulletin, in which he is down for a big lot of work each day. There were three hours of hospital clinics, six hours of didactic lectures, each day, except Sundays, three hours of laboratory each evening, except Sunday. Will appreciates his opportunities, and the fact that his parents have been able to send him to one of the best medical schools in the United States—the school at which his father graduated thirty-five years ago. Will graduated with high honors in our High School not long ago, and has been studying medicine ever since. We look to see him take a high rank in his profession.

[illegible] home as [illegible] eral pupils in music here.

Get "Gerbelle" flour.

Sheriff Stroh went out southwest of town a few miles Monday and brought in Bert Martin. He broke into Gardner's store at Fairfield Center, some time ago. He and another fellow were chopping wood and had a hut built in the woods where they staid.

Make a paste by wetting flour with water and binding on a corn a few nights in succession is said to be a sure cure. The discoverer of the above desires newspapers everywhere to copy for the good of humanity.

The samples of commencement programs at this office are far beyond anything ever used in Auburn. They are '95 styles.

The average householder does not consider sufficiently the quality of food purchased. The strongest and purest food obtainable is "Gerbelle" flour.

Archie McIntyre and wife very pleasantly entertained Col. Bain, Supt. Merica and family and Henry McIntyre and family at a 5 o'clock dinner last evening.

Foundry Meeting!

Quite a number of business men met at the court room last evening and talked up the matter of assisting the Auburn foundry to rebuild and start business again. G. A. Bishop was made chairman and W. B. Campbell secretary of the meeting, and then there was a request to see how much had already been subscribed. The secretary said the amount up to date footed up $2,135, while the amount desired is $3,000. Mr. Baxter on the part of the foundry, said they preferred to stay here, as this was their home and all their business interests were here. Mr. Hanna said the matter ought to be settled soon, as other propositions had been made and were only waiting till it was decided what Auburn would do. Will Kessler, John Zimmerman, John Hebel, A. N. Wilson, Will Schaab, I. M. Zent, G. A. Bishop, Then on motion, the chair and others took part in the discussion. appointed a committee of five to take full charge of the matter, get more subscriptions, confer with the Foundry owners, and settle the matter definitely. The committee are, Will Schaab G. A. Bishop Will Kessler, Albert Robbins and one more to be selected by the committee. It is expected the matter will be satisfactorily arranged in a day or so. It looks encouraging now, as we feel confident now that the foundry will stay. If it does, it will put up better buildings than before, and fit up to do more work and therefore employ more men. We hope to see all this accomplished.

[illegible] rles Eckhart has been confined to [illegible] ne for several days on account of [illegible]. But we are glad that we are [illegible] say he is recovering and hopes to [illegible] gain in a few days.

[illegible] llick, one of our Stafford friends, [illegible] to-day, settling taxes, and drop[illegible] gular yearly payment into the [illegible] Thanks.

[illegible] onestreet's little boy down in [illegible] nship was riding on an old [illegible] drill Saturday, and out of [illegible] nt his fingers in the cogs, and [illegible] nashed. Dr. Buchtel dressed [illegible] thinks they will get along.

[illegible] Willis and Miss Hill, of Water[illegible] led Bain's lecture.

[illegible] ers, waiting to buy properties [illegible] anging in price from $400 to [illegible] ne quick. Rickel & Sprott

[illegible] May and wife, Alma Hussel[illegible] th Fay and others from Ashley, [illegible] wn to the lecture last evening [illegible] ve, but then, of course, the en[illegible] ent well paid them for their ef[illegible]

[illegible] hicago Inter Ocean certainly has [illegible] st and upright correspondent at [illegible] o. Note what he said in Mon[illegible] ition concerning the Lake Shore [illegible]—Waterloo, Ind., April 7.—[illegible] Telegram.—The Lake Shore and [illegible] n Southern ticket office at Au[illegible] our miles south of this city, was [illegible] just after noon to-day by two [illegible] men, who secured $20,000 and [illegible]. [The facts appeared in the COURIER Saturday.]

[illegible] is the latest makeup in prose po[illegible] "I would flee from the city's rule [illegible] w—and go where the strawberry [illegible] on straw, and the gooseberry grows [illegible] goose; where the catnip tree is [illegible] ed by a cat, where she clutches for [illegible] ey the guileless and unsuspecting [illegible] the rattan bush at play. I will [illegible] at ease the saffron cow and the [illegible] t in her glee, as they leap in joy [illegible] bough to bough in the top of the [illegible] lip tree; and list while the partridge [illegible] s his drum and the wood chuck [illegible] ks his wood, and the dog devours [illegible] log-wood plum in the primitive soli[illegible]. Oh, let me drink from the moss [illegible] n pump that was hewed from a [illegible] pkin tree. Eat mush and milk from [illegible] ral stump, from folly and fashion [illegible]—new gathered mush from the [illegible] shroon vine, and milk from the milk[illegible] d sweet—with pineapple from the [illegible] e; pick dead beats from the beet. [illegible] l then to the whitewashed dairy I'll [illegible] n where the dairy-maid hastening [illegible] s, her ruddy and golden haired butter [illegible] churn from the milk of her butter[illegible] s; and I'll rise at morn with the earli[illegible] st bird, to the fragrant farm-yard [illegible] ss, and watch while the farmer turns [illegible] s herd of grass hoppers out to grass.

Col. Bain's lectures are always good, [illegible] d that of last evening was one of his [illegible] est. It was gratifying too, that on this [illegible] e third occasion of his appearing before an Auburn audience, the attendance was large. Our townspeople, and some from neighboring towns, listened to his words of eloquence with rapt attention, and were greatly surprised at the length of time that had passed when he brought his lecture to a close. As ever, he can change so suddenly from the pathetic to the humorous, and all so gracefully and naturally that the change, either way, always surprised his hearers and made his eloquence all the more pleasing. Few men have so great a command of language or such an abundance of ideas and richness of figure by which his ideas are so fitly clothed. There is but one Bain, and as we have heard him three times, will not be looking further for an equal. It should also be remembered that Miss Stella Merica, who treated us to an exquisite violin solo, surpassed even expectation. She has improved greatly since her last appearance, and she played well then. The piano accompaniment by Mrs. Garwood, was splendid, of course.

Wednesday's Daily.

Quite a sharp freeze again this morning, but a fair day.

LOOK HERE.

We have a little story to tell you about economy. Buy where you can get best values of goods for the money.

LOOK AT PRICES!

27 inch, double fold plaids and novelties 15c per yard.
36 inch ½ wool cashmere for 20c pr yd
36 inch all wool cashmere for 35c " "
36 " " " albatross " 35c " "
46 " " " serges " 50c " "
46 " " " henrietta, 60a75c " "
30 " canvas back duck suiting at 12½c per yard.
30 inch sateens, new line, 12½c per yd
30 inch plain and fancy percales, 10c per yard.

New ginghams, 5, 8, 10 and 12½c per yard.

L L sheeting muslins, 4c per yard.

The Bibb Carpet warp on spools. By using theis warp there is no cost for spooling. No waste by tangled skeins. Price 20 cents per pound.

Gents' white and fancy Percales and Dermet Shirts, Underwear, ½ Hose Suspenders, Overalls' Cottonade pants.

Neckties, New Styles, Latest Novelties

Larger Lines - Better Values,

LOWER PRICES.

M. JONES & SON

Wanted.

Good person to represent us.
QUAKER LIFE INSURANCE CO.
Elkhart, Ind.

To Rent: Rear business room in Kiblinger building, newly painted and papered W. C. Hartman.

ANOTHER FIRE.

This time one of our valuable factories, but the loss was paid in full by one of the strong fire insurance companies represented by WALTER C. HARTMAN. Give him your insurance.

Money to Loan.

By F. L. Welsheimer. Best Building and Loan Association represented in Auburn. Money to loan in large or small sums on good security.

WANTED TO BUY: Dwelling property in Auburn, ranging in price from $350 to $800. Answer quick we have customers waiting, Rickel & Sprott.

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for April.

The April number of Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly contains a beautifully illustrated article, replete with personal interest and of real practical value, entitled "How to Become a Prima Donna." This paper, written by W. de Wagstaffe, embodies actual talks with four of the reigning operatic stars of the present season—namely, Mmes Emma Eames, Lillian Nordica, Zelie de Lussan and Jessie Bartlett Davis. Other pictorial and literary features of this number are: a biographical sketch of Count Yamagata, the contemporary Japanese Von Molke, written expressly for Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly by Teiichi Yamagata, a near relatives of the great Field Marshal; a charming and seasonale account of legendry af "Easter Eggs." by Mrs. Leicester Addis; an authoritatiye account of "The Eisteddfod in Wales and in the United States," by ex-Postmaster General Thomas L. James; entertaining reminiscences of some "Eccentric Dinners," by Howard Paul; "The World Awheel," being a chapter on the evolution of the bicycle and la Reine Bicyclette, by Henry Tyrrell; "Homes in Japan," by George Donaldson; "New York Newsboys," by Kathleen Mathew; "The Natural History of Cockfightigg," by Earnest Ingersoll; and "Taxidermy as an Art with illustrations by W. H. Drake, written by Frank A. Chapman, of the American Museum of Natural History. There are also a number of good short stories and poems by distinctively popu- writers.

MR. WOOTON.

Mr. Wooton and his estimable family went to Kendallville to-day, on the noon train, and it is but justice to Auburn to say it was a general source of regret to our people. During his four years of labor here our people had learned to esteem him, as a man and a minister Few abler men, if any, have filled the M. E. pulpit here. He is educated and able, and we feel that our people are on a higher plane, for the well studied sermons he has preached in their hearing. And his neighbors all testify to his worth and to the pleasure they have had in their daily intercourse with his family. We bid Mr. and Mrs. Wooton and their children a regretful good-by, and hope their future may be pleasant. The people of Kendallville will find them most worthy.

Awarded
Highest Honors—World's Fair,
DR.
PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER
MOST PERFECT MADE.
A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.
40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

SPRING 1895. SUMMER.

Complete New A Cash Business,

BISHOP & LACKEY

Present their compliments to the ladies of DeKalb County an respectfully announce

A GRAND EASTER OPENING

APRIL 11, 12 13.

OF A COMPLETE STOCK OF NEW

MILLINERY.

Many New and Desirable Goods Secured Specially for this Sale.

By the way, it might save you money to inspect the largest line of

SPRING WRAPS,

CARPETS and CURTAINS

EVER SHOWN IN DEKALB COUNTY.

CASH SALES Only will be made but the advantage is with the public, as the lowest possible margin consistent with quality is added to the original cost.

Bishop & Lackey

IF IT IS SO!

That you anticipate getting a a new

EASTER HAT,

Then count on

COWAN SISTERS

as being best able to fill that want, and fill it satisfactorily.

Come in and bring your friends and you shall feel at home while you see the many

NEW FASHIONS

FOR

SPRING and SUMMER

Cowan Sisters.

R. SHULL'S

CASH SHOE STORE

Is now located in the

KIBLINGER BUILDIN

where a

Large Line

OF

BOOTS AND SHOES

May be Found.

Wall Paper and Window Blinds

AT

OLDS BROS.'

BIG ASSORTMENT

and

LOWEST PRICES

Thursday's Daily.

John Crummins has his abstract office in the surveyor's office for the present.

The call for the democratic city caucus is out, and all who are interested should make a note of it.

Mrs. Griswold went to Hillsdale, Mich., yesterday where she will attend the golden wedding of her brother.

Both Farm and Garden seed in bulk at J. W. Platters, south of the jail. 12 15

Chas. Stafford is now clerking in Milo Garrett's store. Mr. G. is doing a good business and this demands more clerks.

George Palmer, a former Auburn boy, sends for the COURIER same as all the old DeKalb folks do. His home is at Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Will Champion is getting to be quite an expert in repairing bicycles. He is prepared to do all ordinary work. Call on him at Yesbera's jewelry store.

Miss Violet Barney, of St. Joe, passed through town to day on her way to Adrian where she is attending school. She was the guest of Ida Stafford between trains.

J. E. Pomery has put up a sign at the bottom of the stairway leading up to the rooms over G. H. Yesbera's Clothing store. He has opened up a law office and expects to do a general law business.

A letter from Miss C. E. Strickland at Ocean Grove, N. J. brings her annual remittance to the COURIER. She says it begins to look like spring there now, though they have had a cold winter, the same as we have.

Wanted: Everybody to smoke Kessler & Bros. cigars.

Ben. Heist has signed to play ball with the Kenton, Ohio, club instead of with Findlay, as was supposed by many. It is said to be a strong team and he will get a good salary. We believe the season opens April 25. We think the club is now practicing so as to be in good shape when the real work begins. Ben will play third base and has the reputation of being a good player.

If you are crazy for something good in cigars try Kessler Bros. brands.

Over eight hundred individual communion cups had been ordered for the observance of the Lord's supper Wednesday, at the Northern Indiana conference at Logansport, but they were discarded by Bishop Warren and the customary congregational cups were used in their stead. This expression of the Bishop's views has created considerable comment in view of the widespread agitation for the individual cups.

All diseases of the air passages especially catarrah and chronic, Bronchitis, as well as first stages of consumption can be cured. I am treating these diseases with great success by the use of the latest and most improved medicines and instruments. Dr. W H. Nusbaum, Auburn, Ind. 42tf

A number of our citizens went to Columbia City this morning where they will attend the Baltz vs Martin case. It seems that Geo. Baltz of this place, traded his livery barn for a farm to a Mr. Martin of Fairfield township, and by some misunderstanding the case has been commenced. Among the number were Judge McClellan, Geo. and Mrs. Baltz, L. J. Miller, Barney Rainier and others whose names we could not get.

INSURANCE AGENCY:—People desiring good insurance should remember that Geo. Lanning has an office at the Davis Harware store, and works some of the very best companies in the country. Good farm risks taken. Call on him. 32tf

Editor Miner, of the Garrett Herald will give a Waterbury watch to the laziest man in the county, and a gold watch to the most popular lady. The gold watch is now on exhibition at Yesbera's jewelery store. An Auburn man and lady can just as well get these premiums for we certainly have a few lazy people and without a doubt have the most popular ladies. Cut the coupon out of the Herald and send it to the publishers, writing plainly the name of the persons whom you wish to vote for.

The Women's Missionary society of the M. E. church, held their regular monthly meeting yesterday afternoon at the residence of John Weaver. Each member had been given theprivilege of inviting two guests, the lady guests coming in the afternoon in time for the program. The meeting was called to order by the President, Mrs. M. B. Willis, and after the opening exercises and business were over with the following good program was given. Reading, "The Ministry of flowers" by Mrs. Mary Boyer; a paper, "The First Easter Tide," by Mrs. G. S. McCord. After the close of the session, some time was spent in a social way, when the gentlemen began to arrive. Then followed a delightful lunch, which every one very much enjoyed. Through the kindness of Mrs. Wm. Sheffer, the editor and his wife were privileged to be present and enjoy a very pleasant time.

Friday's Daily.

See the news on inside pages.

NORMAL at Auburn.

Father Young was over from Garrett to day.

Frank Powers and B. F. Dawson, of Angola, were here to-day on some court matters.

Mrs. Callie Zimmerman returned today from Ft. Wayne, where she has been the guest of friends a few days.

Mrs. Mary Boyer went to Waterloo yesterday, and from there she and Mrs. J. S. Jackman go to Ft. Wayne to-day.

Miss Rose Blair, of Waterloo, and her nephew Master Harold Blair. of Laporte were visitors in the editor's family to-day.

Best place to by feed is south of the jail J. W. Platter has it. 12-15

Smoke the K. & B. ten-cent cigar.

Free sexual book to men, box 52, Toledo, O.

Buy chop feed, corn, oats and all kinds of seeds of J. W. Platter. 12-15

THE Eagle Manufacturing Co. at Auburn Junction are making all kinds of light and heavy casting.

YOU can have most any article of iron or brass manufactured at the Junction Foundry.

Sheriff Stroh went to Waterloo Thursday nibgt and brought Frank Derthick down and put him in jail. He stole a pair of boots from Will Kennedy. He left them sitting on the porch.

If you wish your piano tuned leave orders at the store of Brown, Culbertson & Boland. Mr. A. J. Rogers, who has charge of their piano and organ department, is a practical piano tuner and will guarantee you satisfaction at reasonable prices.

J. D. Myers & Myers & Kutzner are selling the Zimmerman Mfg. Co. carriages. See them before buying. 1t

S. A. Burrows of the Morgan & Beach hardware firm, of Fort Wayne, is in town looking up a Mr. Frederick whom they had sold a bicycle to. It seems he signed a contract and then sold the wheel before it was paid for.

Robert Culbertson and Phillip Fluke, will soon be the patriarchs of the town. Mr. Culbertson is 80 to-morrow and Mr. Fluke will be 79 in July. Both are pretty well preserved old boys and enjoy life as well as the best of them.

The DeKalb County Medical Association met here yestereay alternoon in the office of Dr. Matheny and held a very interesting session. The subject discussed was "Infectious Diseases." Nearly all the physicians in town were present besides Dr. Darby of Waterloo, Drs. Shoemaker and Carpenter of Butler, Dr. Hines of St. Joe and Dr. Morr of Spencerville. They meet the first Thursday of each month.

Saturday's Daily:

Ab Kelley came down from Waterloo to-day. He had an interest in a sheriff's sale.

Sol Miller of near Columbia City was relieved of $131.50 Thursday night. No clue to the robbers.

HAND FOR RENT:—I have a two acre lot good for garden truck. Call on Fleming, at the greenhouse.

Diphtheria has been prevalent at the Feeble Minded Home at Fort Wayne, but is now reported as being under control.

James Criswell of the Hartford Steam Boiler Inspection Insurance Co. is in the city attending to business and is the guest of Dr. I. O. Buchtel and wife.

Henry Cobbler was brought from the jail this afternoon, before 'Squire Walborn, and was married to the girl. So that ends the case.

The first subscriber to the DAILY COURIER, who resides outside of Auburn, was Alvin Goodwin, son of L. S. Goodwin of Waterloo. He is at Pleasant Lake.

Mrs. Charlie Pommert is an expert in raising flowers, though we presume that Charlie himself will claim credit for the lovely ones in the window of his barber shop.

We have received an immense anniversary number of the Labanon Pioneer, dated March 28, 1895, at Labanon, the county seat of Boone Co. Ind. The paper is forty-four years old, and our friend B. F. McKey, the present publisher is the successor of a long line of able and enterprising publishers. There are many fine half-tone illustrations including a portrait of the good looking publisher himself.

"Coin's Financial School," the greatest book of the age, converting thousands of gold bugs into free silver men. For sale at the Glazier News Stand, 25 cents per copy.

Fort Wayne Journal:—Prof. J. P. Bonnell, of St. Joe, Ind., was at Kendallville yesterday making arrangements for a competitive examination to be made in that city at the direction of Congressman J. D. Leighty, to determine who is best fitted for the appointment of cadet at West Point, a position Mr. Leighty has at his disposal. Prof. Bonnell, Prof. Lieb, of Lagrange, and Prof. W. B. VanGorder, of Albion, will conduct the examination.

Free book to weak men, box 52, Toledo, O

Fort Wayne Journal:—The counties of Steuben, Lagrange, Noble and DeKalb will unite in a W. C. T. U. school of Methods at Waterloo, April 11 and 12. There will be local, county and state workers to assist in carrying out a carefully prepared program, under the direction of the state superintendent, Miss Mary Hadley, of Bloomingdale, Ind. Friends of the cause will find a hearty welcome and all reform and Christian societies are invited to send fraternal delegates.

Will Swarts returned last evening over the Lake Shore, from Cincinnatti where he has been for the past year, attending the Ohio Medical College, one of the oldest and best institutions in the west. He has completed his second year. Will has evidently been hard at work, at least his "think tank" shows it, for he is getting a little bald in spite of his youth. He showed us the college bulletin, in which he is down for a big lot of work each day. There were three hours of hospital clinics, six hours of didactic lectures, each day, except Sundays, three hours of laboratory each evening. except Sunday. Will appreciates his opportunities, and the fact that his parents have been able to send him to one of the best medical schools in the United States—the school at which his father graduated thirty-five years ago. Will graduated with high honors in our High School not long ago, and has been studying medicine ever since. We look to see him take a high rank in his profession.

Monday's Daily

Taxpaying time closes April 15.

Sealed book to men free, box 52, Toledo, O.

AUBURN Summer Normal will begin July 8

Phil Ryan, of Ft. Wayne is in town today.

Neff & Weeks are having some papering done in their grocery.

Thomas Chandler moves fom Waterloo back to Kendallville this spring.

Miss Violet Robinson, of Washington, is the guest of Mrs Judge McClellan.

Miss Estella Tarney returned to Fort Wayne this morning where she is having her eyes treated.

Our farmer friends will find a full stock of Farm and Garden seed at J. W. Platter's feed store south of the jail. 12 5

D. A. Garwood is getting ready to put down a cement walk. He is also erecting a new wood house.

The parties held at Garrett Saturday supposed to be the Lake Shore robbers, were not the right fellows and were let go.

Lue Crure and Laura Baughman were married at the bride's home east of town, yesterday. They will reside on a farm north of town.

THERE WILL be at least three instructors in the Auburn Summer Normal and each will be a specialist in the branches he teaches.

Frank Groscop, will have a sale of his personal property next Tuesday, April 16. Read the bills.

If the COURIER is unusually "dirty" to-day it should be excused, as we are "cleaning house" the first time in many years.

It will pay you to see Neff & Weeds' before you sell your produce.

We favor Judge McClellan for marshal. He was the first man to get out Sunday after the big shower and let the water have a chance to run off the street.

ROOMS TO RENT:—Inquire of Wm. McIntyre at his residence on west Seventh street. The rooms are over Physicians Drug store.

Mrs. Ella Rakestraw is now prepared to do fine sewing for ladies and children at her home on south Cedar street. Call on her when you need her services. 29

FOR SALE: A good house and barn in south part of town. Call at this office.

J. D. Myers & Myers & Kutzner have the exclusive sale of our line of Surreys, Phaetons, Buggies and Road Wagons for DeKalb county. Zimmerman Mfg. Co,

The St. Joe News reports the killing of the oldes horse in that section. It was thirty-two years old and the property of Mr. Hilterbrand of that place.

W. H. Kiblinger Co. have a few heating stoves they did not close out with the stock, that can be bought at rare bargains. Also some plow repairs.

Mort Olds, of the St. Joe News, accompanied by his estimable wife arrived in town on the 12:29 Lake Shore to day. They came up to attend the great Bain lecture.

K. and B. is one and Bill Head is another. Mfg. by Kessler Bros.

Ft. Wayne is again talking up the improbable matter of piping a water supply from the Lake at Hamilton which is 100 feet higher than the "Summit City."

Mrs. Mary Nusbaum gave a very pleasant tea party to the following young ladies Saturday afternoon. Lunch was served in several courses: Mary Baxter, Grace Weamer, Jessie Boland, Estella Merica, Mae Hamilton, and Clara Stafford.

Wednesday the contracts for building the new institution at Ayilla will be let. Sol. Shearer, will make a bid for the entire job and if he gets it, the Picker boys and Bumpus boys will do the brickwork. They will all go there Wednesday.

Tuesday's Daily.

Pretty Nell,
Great belle.
Manly Mel,
Very Swell.
Wedding bell,
In love they dwell.
Naught befell
Their love to quell.
The secret tell
Why so well.
Pretty Nell
Used "Gerbelle."

See Hoff for "Gerbelle."

Mart Marsh can tell more about the A. O. F. than any man in town.

The Lutheran church has a social Friday evening, and the M. E. church on Saturday evening.

Miss Maggie Snyder returned to her home at St. John's to-day. She has several pupils in music here.

Get "Gerbelle" flour.

Sheriff Stroh went out southwest of town a few miles Monday and brought in Bert Martin. He broke into Gardner's store at Fairfield Center, some time ago. He and another fellow were chopping wood and had a hut built in the woods where they staid.

Make a paste by wetting flour with water and binding on a corn a few nights in succession is said to be a sure cure. The dicoverer of the above desires newspapers everywhere to copy for the good of humanity.

The samples of commencement programs at this office are far beyond anything ever used in Auburn. They are '95 styles.

The average householder does not consider sufficiently the quality of food purchased. The strongest and purest food obtainable is "Gerbelle" flour.

Archie McIntyre and wife very pleasantly entertained Col. Bain, Supt. Merica and family and Henry McIntyre and family at a 5 o'clock dinner last evening.

Foundry Meeting!

Quite a number of business men met at the court room last evening and talked up the matter of assisting the Auburn foundry to rebuild and start business again. G. A. Bishop was made chairman and W. B. Campbell secretary of the meeting, and then there was a request to see how much had already been subscribed. The secretary said the amount up to date footed up $2,135, while the amount desired is $3,000. Mr. Baxter on the part of the foundry, said they preferred to stay here, as this was their home and all their business interests were here. Mr. Hanna said the matter ought to be settled soon, as other propositions had been made and were only waiting till it was decided what Auburn would do. Will Kessler, John Zimmerman, John Hebel, A. N. Wilson, Will Schaab, I. M. Zent, G. A. Bishop, Then on motion, the chair and others took part in the discussion. appointed a committee of five to take full charge of the matter, get more subscriptions, confer with the Foundry owners, and settle the matter definitely. The committee are, Will Schaab G. A. Bishop Will Kessler, Albert Robbins and one more to be selected by the committee. It is expected the matter will be satisfactorily arranged in a day or so. It looks encouraging now, as we feel confident now that the foundry will stay. If it does, it will put up better buildings than before, and fit up to do more work and therefore employ more men. We hope to see all this accomplished.

Charles Eckhart has been confined to his home for several days on account of sickness. But we are glad that we are able to say he is recovering and hopes to be out again in a few days.

M. Wallick, one of our Stafford friends, was here to-day, settling taxes, and dropped his regular yearly payment into the COURIER. Thanks.

John Stonestreet's little boy down in Butler township was riding on an old fashioned drill Saturday, and out of curiocity put his fingers in the cogs, and got them mashed. Dr. Buchtel dressed them and thinks they will get along.

Clyde Willis and Miss Hill, of Waterloo, attended Bain's lecture.

CUSTOMERS, waiting to buy properties in town ranging in price from $400 to $1,000 come quick. Rickel & Sprott

Wm. H. May and wife. Alma Husselman. Edith Fay and others from Ashley, drove down to the lecture last evening A big drive, but then, of course, the entertainment well paid them for their efforts.

The Chicago Inter Ocean certainly has an honest and upright correspondent at Waterloo. Note what he said in Monday's edition concerning the Lake Shore robbery:—Waterloo, Ind., April 7.—Special Telegram.—The Lake Shore and Michigan Southern ticket office at Auburn, four miles south of this city, was robbed just after noon to-day by two masked men, who secured $20,000 and escaped. [The facts appeared in the DAILY COURIER Saturday.]

Here is the latest makeup in prose poetry: "I would flee from the city's rule and law—and go where the strawberry grows on straw, and the gooseberry grows on a goose; where the catnip tree is climbed by a cat, where she clutches for her prey the guileless and unsuspecting rat on the rattan bush at play. I will catch at esse the saffron cow and the cowlet in her glee, as they leap in joy from bough to bough in the top of the cowslip tree; and list while the partridge drums his drum and the wood chuck chucks his wood, and the dog devours the dog-wood plum in the primitive solitude. Oh, let me drink from the moss grown pump that was hewed from a pumpkin tree. Eat mush and milk from a rural stump, from folly and fashion free—new gathered mush from the mushroon vine, and milk from the milkweed sweet—with pineapple from the pine; pick dead beats from the beet. And then to the whitewashed dairy I'll turn where the dairy-maid hastening hies, her ruddy and golden haired butter to churn from the milk of her butterflies; and I'll rise at morn with the earliest bird, to the fragrant farm-yard pass, and watch while the farmer turns his herd of grass hoppers out to grass.

Col. Bain's lectures are always good, and that of last evening was one of his best. It was gratifying too, that on this the third occasion of his appearing before an Auburn audience, the attendance was large. Our townspeople, and some from neighboring towns, listened to his words of eloquence with rapt attention, and were greatly surprised at the length of time that had passed when he brought his lecture to a close. As ever, he can change so suddenly from the pathetic to the humorous, and all so gracefully and naturally that the change, either way, always surprised his hearers and made his eloquence all the more pleasing. Few men have so great a command of language or such an abundance of ideas and richness of figure by which his ideas are so fitly clothed. There is but one Bain, and as we have heard him three times, will not be looking further for an equal. It should also be remembered that Miss Stella Merica, who treated us to an exquisite violin solo, surpassed even expectation. She has improved greatly since her last appearance, and she played well then. The piano accompaniment by Mrs. Garwood, was splendid, of course.

Wednesday's Daily.

Quite a sharp freeze again this morning, but a fair day.

LOOK HERE.

We have a little story to tell you about economy. Buy where you can get best values of goods for the money.

LOOK AT PRICES!

27 inch, double fold plaids and novelties 15c per yard.
36 inch ½ wool cashmere for 20c pr yd
36 inch all wool cashmere for 35c " "
36 " " " albatross " 35c " "
46 " " " serges " 50c " "
46 " " " henrietta, 60c75c " "
30 " canvas back duck suiting at 12½c per yard.
30 inch sateens, new line, 12½c per yd
30 inch plain and fancy percales, 10c per yard.

New ginghams, 5, 8, 10 and 12½c per yard.

L L sheeting muslins, 4c per yard.

The Bibb Carpet warp on spools. By using thais warp there is no cost for spooling. No waste by tangled skeins. Price 20 cents per pound.

Gents' white and fancy Percales and Dermet Shirts, Underwear, ½ Hose Suspenders, Overalls' Cottonade pants. Neckties, New Styles, Latest Novelties

Larger Lines - Better Values,

LOWER PRICES.

M. JONES & SON

Wanted.

Good person to represent us.
QUAKER LIFE INSURANCE Co,
Elkhart, Ind.

To Rent: Rear business room in Kiblinger building, newly painted and papered W. C. Hartman.

ANOTHER FIRE.

This time one of our valuable factories, but the loss was paid in full by one of the strong fire insurance companies represented by WALTER C. HARTMAN. Give him your insurance.

Money to Loan.

By F. L. Welsheimer. Best Building and Loan Association represented in Auburn. Money to loan in large or small sums on good security.

WANTED TO BUY: Dwelling property in Auburn, ranging in price from $350 to $800. Answer quick we have customers waiting, Rickel & Sprott.

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for April.

The April number of Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly contains a beautifully illustrated article, replete with personal interest and of real practical value, entitled "How to Become a Prima Donna." This paper, written by W. de Wagstaffe, embodies actual talks with four of the reigning operatic stars of the present season—namely, Mmes Emma Eames, Lillian Nordica, Zelie de Lussan and Jessie Bartlett Davis. Other pictorial and literary features of this number are: a biographical sketch of Count Yamagata, the contemporary Japanese Von Molke, written expressly for Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly by Teiichi Yamagata, a near relatives of the great Field Marshal; a charming and seasonale account of legendry af "Easter Eggs." by Mrs. Leicester Addis; an authoritative account of "The Eisteddfod in Wales and in the United States," by ex-Postmaster General Thomas L. James; entertaining reminiscences of some "Eccentric Dinners," by Howard Paul; "The World Awheel," being a chapter on the evolution of the bicycle and la Reine Bicyclette, by Henry Tyrrell; "Homes in Japan," by George Donaldson; "New York Newsboys," by Kathleen Mathew; "The Natural History of Cockfightigg," by Earnest Ingersoll; and "Taxidermy as an Art with illustrations by W. H. Drake, written by Frank A. Chapman, of the American Museum of Natural History. There are also a number of good short stories and poems by distinctively popu-writers.

MR. WOOTON.

Mr. Wooton and his estimable family went to Kendallville to-day, on the noon train, and it is but justice to Auburn to say it was a general source of regret to our people. During his four years of labor here our people had learned to esteem him, as a man and a minister Few abler men, if any, have filled the M. E. pulpit here. He is educated and able, and we feel that our people are on a higher plane, for the well studied sermons he has preached in their hearing. And his neighbors all testify to his worth and to the pleasure they have had in their daily intercourse with his family. We bid Mr. and Mrs. Wooton and their children a regretful good-by, and hope their future may be pleasant. The people of Kendallville will find them most worthy.

Awarded
Highest Honors—World's Fair,
DR.
PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER
MOST PERFECT MADE.
A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.
40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

JAMES A. BARNS, - - PUBLISHER.

A Rochester paper says that "the dives die hard." Well, they live that way.

Thus far the Congressional Record has not yielded to the women's edition craze.

The Chinese don't know how to make war or peace, but they are great at making tea and tracks.

The news that Worth, the man milliner, died in a fit recalls the fact that he used to make pretty good ones.

Worth, the Parisian man milliner, will be missed, but there are plenty of designing creatures still left over there.

An Aurora paper remarks that "the Chicago girls dress out of sight." Certainly; where do the Aurora girls dress?

Col. Breckinridge is lecturing on "The Problem of the Day." It is supposed to refer to dodging a $15,000 judgment.

The admission of free broomsticks into Canada ought to boom the cause of the "new woman" in the queen's dominion.

A Denver woman has started a weekly paper called the Kiss. If she is good-looking and young we are willing to exchange.

Considerable interest in this country has been manifested in determining the value of Mr. Lily Langtry as a theatrical advertisement.

Actor John Drew now parts his hair on one side. As he approaches the close of the third act, however, he generally parts it all over his head.

A dispatch from Paris says that the French match makers have gone out on a strike. This comes too late to save the Gould family, though.

Why try to perfect a submarine war boat? The crying need of the hour is for cruisers which can be kept from impromptu submarine operations.

The New York Herald says that "there is no danger of catching anything from kissing." But you can't make a divorce-court lawyer believe it.

A Virginia man has been sentenced to the penitentiary for life for stealing a few cents' worth of bacon. Why didn't they give him the limit of the law?

Press reformers met at Kansas City the other day, called each other names and went home still big with ideas. And the press is in as bad a way as ever.

It would be just like Spain to want to apply the Veragua relief fund of $1.69 upon any claim for indemnity Uncle Sam might make for the Allianca affair.

The perambulator is all right for the baby; but, after the baby stage of existence is passed, one cannot hope for success who depends upon others to push him ahead.

Patrick Sullivan, of Fall River, Mass., went to sleep the other night with three $20 gold pieces in his mouth. And it was impossible to apply the money on his funeral expenses.

Mrs. Peary is now raising a fund of $12,000 to fit out an expedition to rescue her husband. This is the third time he has been saved at public expense. Why not chain him the next time he reaches home?

The sinking of the Reina Regente, the big Spanish cruiser, off the coast of Morocco again calls attention to the fact that the modern man-of-war is most destructive to human life in times of profound peace.

The St. Louis Chronicle prints a picture of "D. Jose Fraguela, who gave Garza, the Cuban bandit, his first fatal wound." Of course Garza was killed eight or nine times afterward, but the chief credit falls to the man who started the series.

In a recent divorce case before Judge McAdam, of New York, it was shown that the defendant husband was out of work, while his wife was earning $22 a week. The court decided that under the circumstances the plaintiff ought to pay alimony if she secured a divorce. The "new woman" will take notice.

A Chicago young man who stole a jeweled gold watch and afterward confessed was in court to answer to a charge of larceny. "What did you do with the watch?" asked the court. "Gave it to a girl on the street." "What girl?" "I don't know—never saw her before." "What did she give you for it?" "Nothing." "What did she say?" "Thanks." And he was discharged because he smoked cigarettes.

General Horace Porter made the best speech of his life at the Parkhurst banquet. He said: "No man can make a good speech at midnight and I will not try." If all post-prandial talkers will adopt that as a principle after-dinner speaking in this country will attain a higher level than it now displays. No dinner party is in a condition to hear speeches at midnight, and no talker ought to try to speak after his audience is unable to appreciate speech.

A vigorous opposition to the Standard Oil monopoly has been established in New England. One large and several small refineries have an output of 250,000 gallons a week, which is about one-fourth of all used in the New England States. To drive out its competitors the Standard is selling oil at 1 cent a gallon in many villages where the rivalry is most active. Failing to buy out or drive out its competitors, the Standard is trying to starve them out. But they say that they will not starve, and that they will give away oil rather than surrender to the trust. If the trust succeeds in crushing its rivals it will charge higher prices for oil to recover its losses in selling it for a cent a gallon. It has never been defeated in any previous battle, and the progress of this will be watched with interest.

Vice should excite shame for its own sake, and not for the censure which it may incur from others. The virtue of him who is guarded from temptation only by the fear of the world and the probability of detection, is certainly fortified by feeble defences. And if such a one has the good fortune, through the various vicissitudes of his life, to preserve the blessing of a good conscience and the jewel of a good name, he may well consider that life is a series of miracles.

The Swedish journey of arctic exploration which is the latest proposed, is to be by balloon. The idea is to start from the northern coast of Spitzbergen and go right over the pole to some point in the neighborhood of Bering Strait. From the most northerly point in Spitzbergen, 80½ degrees, to the northern coast of Alaska, 71 degrees, is barely 2,000 miles, a distance that is short by comparison with many of the ocean voyages that have been made since the discovery of the New World. It is, however, a long journey for a balloon, and especially so when the route lies over a country hitherto unexplored and through temperatures which must be expected to be far below zero. Judging from the proposed arrangements, it would seem that the intense cold is the one thing most to be feared from the difficulty of maintaining a living temperature for the voyagers through the four days or more that must be occupied in the transit under the most favorable conditions. But the extreme cold would be endured only a portion of the time if the journey were undertaken in the season of midsummer warmth, and the travelers would have the advantage of sunlight all the way across. The scheme certainly seems to be the most feasible one yet offered for reaching the North Pole, and it is just possible the result will make ample amends for the trouble and risk.

There has been this winter a revival of the "chains of charity" idea, which a few years ago grew to be an intolerable nuisance. In its latest form it is combined with the "million stamp" myth—the notion that by collecting a million cancelled postage-stamps a cripple or aged person can in some mysterious way find a home in a hospital, or, as some forms of the myth have it, that a little Chinese girl can in some equally mysterious way be rescued from slavery by the million stamps. In the recent application of the chain the originator of the scheme writes letters asking each of two persons to send some cancelled stamps, and also to write two similar letters (No. 2 in the chain) to other friends; these to do each the same thing; and the chain to continue until it reaches No. 50. Applying the solution of the old problem of the nails in the horse's shoes, we find that if the chain were completed the number of letters written would be many billions. In practice, of course, many links fail, and many duplicates of the letter may be received by the same person. The idea is ingenious, no doubt; but in the long run it is wasteful, and finally becomes an affliction and a bore. The most serious objection to the "chain" idea, however, is that it encourages giving without personal knowledge about the object. This sort of giving is not charity; it is merely careless good nature. Fraud and imposition thrive upon it.

GRIZZLY WHIPPED BY A COW.

Bossy Roused to Terrible Rage in Defense of Her Offspring.

"Usually a cow does not stand much chance when she engages in a hand-to-hand conflict with a grizzly bear," said Michael Ayers, a Colorado stockman, to a writer for Dumb Animals, "but several years ago one of my cows killed one of these animals and came out of the struggle without a scratch. The cow had recently given birth to a calf. It being her first-born, the mother was exceedingly vicious, and it was unsafe for a stranger to approach her, as her horns were long and pointed. The cattle shed had a thatched roof, and was scooped out of the hillside a short distance from the house. One night a bear, having smelt the presence of a cow and calf, mounted the roof of the shed and proceeded to force an entrance by scratching through the thatch. The cow at the same time detected the presence of the bear and held herself in readiness to receive the intruder. The noise of a terrible struggle aroused me, and grabbing a lantern I rushed from the house, and opening the shed door found the cow in a frantic state, butting and tossing to and fro some large object, which evidently had lost all power of resistance. It turned out to be a good-sized grizzly, which had been run through and through the body by the courageous mother. The little calf was nestled in a corner, sleeping peacefully, and seemed unmindful of the maternal struggle. I suppose that as soon as the bear gained an entrance through the roof it was pinned to the ground by the cow's horns before it had time to do any damage."

Tides Caused by the Moon.

Prof. Ball, the astronomer royal of Ireland, calls attention to a curious fact in connection with tides. At present the moon is 240,000 miles away, but there was a time in the distant past when it was only about one-sixth part of this, or say about 40,000. If the moon at a distance of 240,000 miles gives us tides that average three feet the world over, they must have been 216 times higher, or at least 640 feet, at the time when it was only 40,000 miles away. Such a tide as the above would drown the Mississippi Valley from the Eads jetties to the mouth of the Bad Ax and would pile up water 300 feet in the streets of St. Louis.—St. Louis Republic.

Fannie—"Why do people always apply the name of 'she' to a city?" George—"I don't know. Why is it?" Fannie—"Because every city has outskirts."—Demorest Magazine.

He—"Say, old woman, what do you think of the splendid view?" She—"I am speechless." He—"Speechless Then we'll stay!"—Basler Nachrichten.

No woman truly loves a man unless she thinks he can sing.

Thro' the gloom and chill of winter
Breaks the sun,
Freeing every brook and river
Till they run
Merry, sparkling, on their way;
Frost and ice have had their day;
Birds and budding branches play;
Cold is done.

Echo hears the sweet bells ringing,
Far and near;
Children's voices blend in singing
Carols clear.
Gracious calm pervades the air,
All the earth seems glad and fair,
Flowery fragrance everywhere
Brings us cheer.

Sorrowing eyes begin to brighten—
Faith is born.
Hearts weighed down with sorrow lighten
Once forlorn.
"Risen," again the children sing;
"Risen," the glad bells seem to ring;
"Risen," e'en death has lost its sting—
Easter morn!
—Detroit Free Press.

EASTER CUSTOMS.

Easter week is a time of general rejoicing in Paris; everybody presents everyone else with a little present emblematical of an egg. French ingenuity exhausts itself in the manufacture of egg-shaped articles of all conceivable forms and materials. Go where you will, you see eggs and their nests. The shops are full of egg-shaped boxes, the receptacles of candy, jewelry or toys. Here you have chocolate eggs full of cream where the yelk should be, and again, ivory eggs within which is a scent bottle. Women are wheeling barrows on which are piled in separate heaps white and colored eggs. Some of the nests are beautiful works of art. Here is a stoat or weasel stealthily climbing up a tree to suck the eggs, while the parent bird is represented with her feathers ruffled in a threatening attitude, to drive away the intruder. Here, again, a cuckoo—a European cuckoo, our American bird is above such tricks—has turned out a little chaffinch egg which lies broken on the ground below, while she left her own for a foster parent to hatch. In former days eggs were exchanged as an avowal of sentiment, much as valentines have been in our own day and generation, writes J. Carter Beard in Demorest's, and were painted and gilded and set in gold, and ofttimes brought great prices. Eggs, hard-boiled and colored, were much used by boys to play ball with, and it is said the clergy did not disdain to indulge in the game. According to an old chronicler, it even formed a part of the church service. There are records of many curious Easter customs. In Russia, every female, even a princess, must submit to be kissed by the lowest boor who presents her with an egg; but in some parts of England a still more curious, and, if possible, more senseless, custom prevails. A chair, gayly decked with ribbons and artificial flowers, is placed in front of some inn or house of public resort, upon the seat of which is a raw egg. The chair is attended by a number of gayly dressed damsels, who seize upon any man passing, and, despite his kicking and struggles, seat him in the chair, from which he is not allowed to escape until he is kissed by all the attendant graces. On Easter day, on the western slope of the Alps, a hundred eggs are distributed over a level space covered with sand, and a young man and woman execute a dance of the country among the eggs. It is the unwritten law of the locality that if they succeed in completing the "branle" without breaking a single egg, they become affianced, with or without the consent of parents or guardians. Here in America we are learning to observe more habitually and affectionately the holidays of the Christian Church; the stern spirit of Puritanism, instead of prohibiting their observance altogether, now prefers to instil into their celebration a purer and more refined spirit, substituting for the coarse, rough, and sometimes profane customs of former times, those more fitted to express quiet and reverent remembrance of the import of such days, and to cherish charity and affection for all men.—Waverly Magazine.

The Truth of Our Own Immortality.

The Easter festival has come again and I thank God it has permitted me to again address you on this day. It is a day which to me, you, and to all mankind, should open a new kingdom for the following of God's commands and the discovery of God's truths. We do not believe any truth simply because it is so called; we believe it because we realize it is so. Thus each year this festival becomes a richer thing to us, and we realize more the truth of our own immortality. We must realize this immortality. Christ knew Himself, and in His personality, His immortality, He felt throbbing and beating out from His life that immortal, God-given gift which makes itself known in the cry, "Before Abraham was, I am." Christ's work was not a work of the past—it was a work which will ever be that of the present, of this century, year and day—of the omnipresent. "Now." That "Now" which binds us all, in which we are born, in which we shall die; which identifies me and you with this day and year, with this country, with the modern world, and with that spirit of Christian humanity which should unite us all. I thank God I am living to-day; that I am here in this dear old church, with all its associations; that I am here in this city, State, in America and finally in this great world. You are here with me, and from this broad life is an immediate life, and, with it, a Christian one, from whose good element is that divine influence which is permeating humanity. Immortality is nothing less than an admitted relation with the infiniteness of God. And this, our present life, spreads itself over vast regions of existence and comes that great now which embraces all of heroism, of good, of fellowship, of soulful union, and of life. Physical existence amounts to nothing. Now it is impossible for us worldlings to know the beauty, the restfulness of that divine and celestial now, which is the true immortality.—From Phillips Brooks' last Easter sermon.

Easter in Athens.

For some time before Easter, says Mr. Rodd, in his "Customs and Lore of Modern Greece," the city of Athens wears a picturesque aspect. This is due in great part to the number of shepherds who, with their flocks, have come down from the mountains, and are camped in every available open space, engaged in selling their lambs. There is no family so poor as not to break the long Lenten fast with an Easter lamb, the value of which is about a dollar, and a veritable massacre of the innocents is going on. It is late on Saturday night that the real Easter celebration takes place.

An immense crowd fills all the approaches to the cathedral, and such parts of the church as are not kept clear. Without, a raised platform has been erected, and decorated with evergreens. In the cathedral the royal princes, the ministers of state and the high functionaries of the kingdom assemble to attend the midnight service. As the hour of midnight approaches, the Metropolitan, with his assistants, preceded by the cross and banners, advance with lighted tapers. The various notabilities light their tapers from that of the archbishop, and so the sacred fire is communicated to the crowd.

As the midnight hour sounds, and Easter succeeds the last day of Lent, the Metropolitan, a blaze of silver and gold, with his tiara, the silver gospel, and the episcopal crozier, ascends the platform outside the church and proclaims to the assembled people the tidings, "Christ has risen!" In a moment all the bells are ringing far and near. Bands of music strike up, guns are discharged, rockets ascend, Bengal fires are lighted, and the sparkle of tapers spreads from house to house, and from street to street, till the whole city is alive with sound and flame. The clergy return to the church, and the Easter ritual continues, long and tedious.

Now the long fast is over, and the people, who for the last two or three days have tasted no food but bread and olives and a little black coffee, and who have many of them on Good Friday observed literally the rule to suffer no food to pass their lips between sunrise and sunset, are released from their probation, and feasting begins. Fires are kindled, over which early on Easter morning the lambs are roasted whole. The ceremony is over. Only the greeting, "Christ has risen!" and the answer, "He is risen indeed!" are in every mouth. During the afternoon of Easter Sunday there is another service for those who have not been able to attend the previous evening. At this second service the Gospel is read in several tongues, in evidence, presumably, of the catholicity of the only Orthodox faith.

In Some One's Pew.

A little pot of mignonette stood in the window of a crowded tenement. A poor woman bent over it and tenderly plucked a withered leaf from its fresh green crown. The sun shone gayly on the blue bay, and the woman stood watching the little glint of dancing water. She could just see between the houses.

She put a tiny sprig of the faded mignonette in her faded dress and took down her shabby bonnet. Then she walked as far as she could to get a good breath of fresh air. It was Easter morning. She passed a church door standing open, and heard a burst of music. So she wandered timidly in and sat humbly down in a quiet corner.

The altar was fair with flowers. The woman drew a deep breath of delight when she saw the lilies.

A man took hold of her arm. "You're in some one's pew," he said roughly.

The woman rose nervously. "I'm sorry," she stammered. "Where are the free seats?"

"There ain't no free seats in this church," sneered the man.

The woman hurried out. She put her thin hands upon the bunch of mignonette. The clergyman was announcing his text. She just heard it as she passed through the swinging doors:

"He was despised—rejected—a man of sorrow and acquainted with grief."

Father to the Man.

He was proud, he was happy, and with good reason. It was the happiness that comes of hard-earned success. His pockets bulged and he walked in the middle of the street that he might not be jostled. For it was Easter, and those bulging pockets represented the proceeds of a whole morning's egg-fighting. He had now hard-boiled eggs enough to ruin the digestive machinery of a regiment, but he was not content with his spoil. He had eggs purpled with cochineal, eggs yellowed with coffee, greened with tea, blued with huckleberry juice. He had even eggs that were perfect Easter dreams covered with decalcomanie pictures. And all of them had that little break on the small end that told of a harder egg encountered.

Down the street came his double. Just such pockets full of just such eggs.

They met. There was no need of a verbal challenge. No. 1 held his champion egg, a poem of sky-blue and crimson, firmly. No. 2 waved back his answer with his red, white and blue unbreakable.

Crack!

The small ends of the gay eggs clicked together. How much depended on the outcome.

But no crunch of weaker egg followed. The two gladiators eyed one another.

"What's yourn?"

"Chiney. What's yourn?"

"Boxwood."

And they parted, for though rivalry is the life of commerce, there is such a thing as ruinous competition.

How the Easter Lilies Came.

They grew beside the carven tomb—
Great gorgeous flowers of tropic gloom.
The sunset blaze seemed mirrored there
Within their petal's dainty flare—
Rare sangs de boeufs in floral bloom.

That morning—when pale Mary came—
The first sweet Easter Day—in shame
And sorrow for her Master's scorn;
Her tears—like pearls—how sadly born,
Washed white those regal flowers of flame.

* * * * * * * *

And so the Easter lilies came.
—Ladies' Home Journal.

He hath a poor spirit who is not planted above petty wrongs.—Feltham.

NOTES ON EDUCATION.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO PUPIL AND TEACHER.

Suggestions for the Cure of an Intolerable Schoolroom Nuisance—A Series of Readers in Primary Grades—How to Call Classes—Notes.

Whispering.

How can I prevent whispering? is a question often asked by young teachers. Perhaps the first step toward restricting the evil is to recognize the fact that it cannot be suppressed. People whisper to one another at church, teachers whisper at teachers' meetings. Why then should we expect children to have greater self-restraint? Another fact that should be considered is that whispering is not in itself an evil—is not a wrong act per se. It is only because of surrounding conditions that it is a source of annoyance. The aim then should be to keep the practice restricted within reasonable limits.

There are two kinds of noisy schools. There is the noise of confusion, and the noise of active work. There are two kinds of quiet schools. There is the quiet of passive inaction and the quiet of earnest study. To make the suppression or prevention of whispering an end in itself to be attained for its own sake is to expend energy unwisely

But what practical suggestions should a young teacher receive concerning this matter? First, the "ounce of prevention" is of the highest importance; for after the habit is once established, it is exceedingly difficult to break it up. Great care should be used to check the first offenses. Second, a plain, sensible talk to the pupils, setting forth the advantages of good order but not overstating the evils of whispering, will usually meet with a favorable response; such a talk should of course be followed by prompt reproof of the first, even the slightest, infraction. Third, some devices of management are helpful; a few are here noted:

In a mixed country school of all grades the seating of pupils should receive careful attention. As a rule, where there are double seats, it is best to have brothers and sisters sit together. It is not desirable to have a "boys' side" and a "girls' side," but the boys and girls should be distributed on both sides. Members of the same classes are more likely to whisper to one another than pupils who have not the common interests of studies. A girl in the Fourth Reader and her brother in the First Reader class will not feel much temptation to whisper to each other. There is, of course, a practical limit to the application of this device, determined by the height of the seats and desks. At any rate, the big girls and big boys who arrange themselves in groups on the back seats on the first day of school should not be allowed to crystallize into social coteries, but these groups should be disintegrated by the seating arrangements.

In a school in which the whispering habit has grown to be a nuisance, it may sometimes be broken up in this way: Re-seat the school, taking some pains to arrange the pupils in the way that will be distasteful to the greatest number. Then announce that another arrangement of seats will occur a week later, and all who refrain meanwhile from whispering will then be allowed the privilege of choosing their seats. If even a few—say half a dozen—refrain for a week, let them draw numbers by lot and choose in the order of numbers drawn. Hold out the same incentive for another week and the chances are that a large number will earn the privilege of choice.

The boy who whispers can sometimes be shamed into good behavior by a half minute's perfect silence on the part of the teacher during which time the attention of the whole school is fixed upon the offender.

Most teachers of experience have observed that the dull pupils breathe through their mouths, the more intelligent through their noses. The habit of moving the lips in "studying" induces the habit of breathing in the way that all half-witted people breathe, and in turn, this habit leads to the practice of whispering. Try to impress upon the children the fact that breathing through the nose, with lips closed is conducive to health, beauty and dignity.

Some teachers have suppressed whispering by a judicious use of a "whispering list" in which the names of the offenders are written on the board, but this method requires great discretion or it becomes a source of greater evils than those it seeks to cure.—Western Teacher.

A Series of Readers.

Shall it be one series of Readers? The writer believes both from his personal experience and his personal observation that every school board would find it wise to adopt more than one set of Readers, especially in the primary grades. The most rapid progress he has ever witnessed in the process of learning to read was made by children who had access to three series of Readers through the first three numbers of the series. The children were thrown largely on their own resources after the first difficulties had been overcome and from that point on reading became a pleasure. In fact, after having completed one first reader and part of another, difficulties seemed to vanish of themselves, for the children began to appreciate their own power to learn the word forms. But little attention was required from the teacher, a devoted mother, after one of the second readers had been completed, and no attention whatever was required after the children had read the third reader. In each case three readers of each grade, the first, the second and the third, were placed in the hands of the children, and no reader was perused twice by the children unless the work was done voluntarily. The progress was marvelous and the experiment both convincing and satisfactory.—Educational News.

Calling Classes.

Some use a bell. Some say, "turn; stand, pass." Some say, "one, two three." Some tap the pencil for each movement. These are all good; but is it necessary to call classes always this way? We say a class of one girl called out by this plan. The teacher used a bell. Ting. The class (one girl) turned. Ting. The class stood. Ting. The class passed to the recitation bench. Ting. The class (?) took her seat. How long, oh how long, will we find teachers (? doing such senseless things?

We hate to complain. We hate to put before teachers their faults. We are aware that there are many who never do such things. We had thought that none were left who do such work. But some visits in different parts of our State have surprised us and led us to write the foregoing.

We think it best, generally, to give the good rather than the bad. It is hoped that some one may be led, by reading this, to think about what he is doing. If he finds that he is doing things that he can give no reason for, it is hoped that he will stop.—Indiana School Journal.

Cornell and Foot-Ball.

The following is the resolution adopted by the faculty of Cornell University, on the question of foot-ball:

"The faculty deem it desirable to limit all intercollegiate foot-ball contests, so far as feasible, to college grounds, and it is of the opinion that no student who is markedly deficient in his university work shall be allowed to play on any team. It believes further that the number of absences from town should be reduced and reiterates its action of Oct. 5, 1894, namely: 'We do not regard any person as qualified to be a member of a university team who comes to the university without the intention of remaining at least one year, or who receives any remuneration or consideration of any kind for his services.'"

Delaware College, through its faculty, has decided that the foot-ball team of that institution shall enter no contests except with school teams, and it will probably add that no one shall be permitted to play in any contests whose class standing is not satisfactory to the professors.

When the rule was adopted it met with some objections, but to-day the students freely admit that the action of the faculty was not only proper but also important.

Resolutions.

I will require my pupils to give it their own words the substance of every reading lesson.

I will take only a little time for resolution one, but will spend most of the recitation in having the pupils read, remembering that "Children learn to do by doing."

I will teach every child in my school how to write a letter.

My pupils shall write a composition at least once a week.

Here's an anecdote: Over in England, a good many years ago, a maid was heard saying to herself: "I don't see how in the world Missus combs her hair every day. I comb mine only once a month and it most kills me."

Some teachers say: "I don't see how on earth children can write compositions every day or two. Mine write only once a term, and it most kills them."—C. D. Hill.

A Benefactor of Colleges.

Among those whose names should be honored for their generosity is Dr. Daniel K. Pearson, of Chicago, who has recently pledged $500,000 to Whitman College, in Washington State. This is but one of a long list of large gifts to colleges, the following being some of them: Beloit College, $100,000; Lake Forest College, $100,000; Knox College, $100,000; Chicago Theological Seminary, $50,000; Presbyterian Seminary, $50,000; Presbyterian Hospital, $60,000; Young Men's Christian Association, $30,000; Women's Board of Foreign Missions, $20,000; Yankton College, $50,000; and other deserving institutions to the extent of $400,000 more.

To Study Childhood.

An international congress on childhood will be held in Italy this spring. Among the questions to be discussed are the physical, moral and mental elevation of children, children's hospitals, the care of deaf, mute and blind children up to the time of their admission into an educational institution, care of poor and abandoned children, reformatories, and vagabondage in its relation to children.

Notes.

Stroudsburg Normal School is overcrowded. There are 402 pupils now on the rolls.

The Legislature of Michigan has passed a law disqualifying any person from voting who can neither read nor write.

The present Japanese minister to the United States is Shenichiro Kurino. He is a graduate of the Harvard Law School.

The faculty of Harvard University recently passed a resolution to the effect that in the opinion of the faculty intercollegiate football should be prohibited.

The high school principals of California receive salaries as follows: San Francisco, $3,000; Oakland, $2,700; Sacramento and Los Angeles, $2,500; Berkeley and Stockton, $2,400.

Over 40,000 women are attending the various colleges in America, yet it has been only twenty-five years since the first college in the land was opened to women. Oberlin College first allowed women.

The Detroit Board of Education has asked the Legislature to pass an act to enable them to establish a parental school. If there is a town in America that needs such a school it is Detroit, and her Board of Education should be the first to enroll, says one of our exchanges.

The women of Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Vermont, Colorado and Wyoming are permitted to vote on school questions, and in the last two States they can vote on all questions.

Brown University has officially adopted academic gowns for its graduate students and the members of the faculty. The hood for a doctor of divinity is brown, lined with white; that for a doctor of Laws is entirely brown. The exterior of all other hoods is black, and the interior brown, except, as noted, in the case of the D. D. hood.

He May Have Kept Chickens.

In Mr. Prothero's "Life of Dean Stanley" there occurs a little story which the Dean thought "very pretty." A lady was teaching a Sunday school class about Dives and Lazarus, and asked if it were not bad of Dives not to give the crumbs to Lazarus. The scholars agreed that it was wicked, all save one small girl, who ventured to suggest "Perhaps, ma'am, he kept chickens."

Financial care brought on the decay of Scott's brilliant mental powers. The decline was slow but steady.

Spring Medicine

Or, in other words, Hood's Sarsaparilla is a universal need. If good health is to be expected during the coming season the blood must be purified now. All the germs of disease must be destroyed and the bodily health built up. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only true blood purifier prominently in the public eye to-day. Therefore Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine to take in the spring. It will help wonderfully in cases of weakness, nervousness, and all diseases caused by impure blood. Remember,

"My little girl has always had a poor appetite. I have given her Hood's Sarsaparilla, and since I have given it to her she has had a good appetite and she looks well. I have been a great sufferer with headache and rheumatism. I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla. I am now well and have gained in strength. My husband was very sick and all run down. I decided to give him Hood's Sarsaparilla and he began to gain, and now he has got so he works every day." MRS. ANNIE DUNLAP, 385 E. 4th St., S. Boston, Mass.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Is the Only True Blood Purifier

Prominently in the Public Eye To-Day

The Ant-Lion.

In constructing its snare the ant-lion begins by pushing itself backwards in a circular direction so as to trace a shallow furrow varying from one to three inches in diameter. A succession of these furrows is formed one within the other until a funnel-shaped pit is at last constructed with very loose sides. The insect then incloses itself at the bottom of the trap in the sand, leaving its enormous jaws alone exposed and widely extended. Ants are distinguished for an insatiable curiosity, and should one spy the cavity when it is abroad on the outlook for food it would never hesitate to approach the edge. The treacherous sand gives way and the helpless thing goes rolling down into the jaws of the ant-lion.

THE Sultan of Turkey is sending out Mohammedan missionaries to Africa, at his own expense, to check the Christian advance in that continent.

NO SECRET

IN THIS WOMAN'S CASE.

Mrs. Campbell Wishes Her Letter Published so that the Truth May Be Known.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

Of the thousands of letters received from women all over the world by Mrs. Pinkham, not one is given to the public unless by the wish of the writer. Thus absolute confidence is established between Mrs. Pinkham and her army of patients; and she freely solicits a letter from any woman, rich or poor, who is in ill health or ailing.

In the case of Mary E. Campbell, of Albion, Noble Co., Ind., her suffering was so severe, her relief so suddenly realized, and her gratitude so great, that she wishes the circumstances published, in the hope that others may be benefited thereby. She says:—

"My physician told me I had dropsy and falling of the womb. My stomach and bowels were so bloated I could not get a full breath. My face and hands were bloated badly. I had that dreadful bearing-down pain, backache, palpitation of the heart, and nervousness.

"One of my physicians told me I had something growing in my stomach; and the medicine that I took gave me relief only for a short time. I thought I must die. I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it worked like a charm. After taking the first bottle I could walk across the street, now I am well. I advise all my friends to take it." —MARY E. CAMPBELL, Albion, Noble Co.

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Age.

KENNEDY'S MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

DONALD KENNEDY, OF ROXBURY, MASS.,

Has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures every kind of Humor, from the worst Scrofula down to a common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases (both thunder humor). He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston. Send postal card for book.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the right quantity is taken.

When the lungs are affected it causes shooting pains, like needles passing through them; the same with the Liver or Bowels. This is caused by the ducts being stopped, and always disappears in a week after taking it. Read the label.

If the stomach is foul or bilious it will cause squeamish feelings at first.

No change of diet ever necessary. Eat the best you can get, and enough of it. Dose, one tablespoonful in water at bedtime. Sold by all Druggists.

THE SALES LADY.

Often in the morning
There comes a feeling
Of weariness, indescribable;
Not exactly ill,
Nor fit to go to the store,
But too near well
To remain away.

One • Ripans • Tabule

Taken at night,
Before retiring,
Or just after dinner,
Has been known
To drive away that
Weariness—for months.
And, would you believe it?
There are THREE DOZEN
IN A BOX.

PATENTS. TRADE-MARKS.

Examination and Advice as to Patentability of Invention. Send for Inventors' Guide, or How to Get a Patent. PATRICK O'FARRELL, Washington, D. C.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

A Touch of Romance.

The first recorded instance of the forgery of a Bank of England note has a singular touch of romance about it. The forger was a linen draper at Stafford, named Vaughan, who, in the year 1758, employed several workmen to engrave different parts of a twenty pound note, and when a dozen had been printed off he deposited them with a young lady to whom he was engaged to be married as a proof of his wealth; but the imposition was discovered, and Vaughan was hanged.

Ask Aid,

If you are troubled with malaria, constipation, biliousness, kidney trouble or dyspepsia, of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and it will be speedily forthcoming. Nervousness, loss of appetite and sleep, and a loss of vigor, are also remedied by this restorative. Physicians of eminence indorse it, a valuable confirmation of the verdict of the people and the press. Take it regularly.

A Sneezing Corpse.

When Macready was a young man, classical drama in blank verse held the stage. One of these was "Æmilius, or the Fall of Rome."

Æmilius was played by an actor named Pops, and the exigencies of the play required him to be brought on the stage on a bier, supposedly dead. Flavius, acted by Macready, spoke an oration over the body.

Pope was an inveterate snuff-taker, and just before going on one night he borrowed a pinch from one of the stage attendants. He was accustomed to only a mild invigorant, but the borrowed tobacco was the fiery Welsh snuff. Pope was duly brought on the stage by the usual army of "supers" and Macready began:

"Thou last of the Romans, thy bleeding country calls thee in vain. Time and fortnne may do their worst. Since thou——"

Here, to Macready's astonishment, Pope's face began to work, and then came a sneeze from the dead Roman that shook the flies. Macready started as if shot, and the audience began to titter, but he went on:

"Since thou hast left us we are encompassed by enemies who——"

Here the corpse began to show animation, and then came a succession of sneezes. Boiling over with rage, and in a voice heard all over the house, Macready muttered:

"Drat your blood, sir, why don't you do sneezing off the stage?"

The audience shouted, and the scene ended by the corpse stalking off to find and kill the man who gave him the snuff.

Sheep Bells.

By putting bells upon the sheep much annoyance from dogs may be avoided. Have a bell to every fifth or sixth animal, and when they run there will be so much noise that the dogs will think best to retreat.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

Address, F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
Sold by Druggists, 75c.

ORANGES are grown in every continent in the world.

One Box Did the Business.

Harrison Thurston, of North Conway, N. H., writing under date of Nov. 21, 1893, to the Sterling Remedy Co., of Chicago, says that his brother was completely cured of smoking and chewing tobacco by using one box of No-to-bac, and is now recommending No-to-bac to tobacco users.

ONE cubic foot of pure gold weighs 1,203 pounds.

The face of humanity displays fewer pimples than formerly. Reason—Glenn's Sulphur Soap.

"Hill's Hair and Whisker Dye," Black or Brown, 50c.

EAT
FRIENDS OATS

ALWAYS THE BEST
Made Exclusively from
Superior KILN DRIED Selected
IOWA WHITE OATS
SOLD ONLY in 2 lb. pkgs.

NO GOOD
Kitchen complete without our ROTARY BISCUIT AND CAKE CUTTER.
Samples of Round or Square mailed for 15 cts., or the two for 25 cts.
AGENTS WANTED. They Sell AT SIGHT!
SIDWAY MFG. CO.,
32 to 40 South Jefferson St., CHICAGO, ILL.
(Please mention this paper.)

Mrs. Winslow's SOOTHING SYRUP for Children teething; softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

HUMOR OF THE WEEK

STORIES TOLD BY FUNNY MEN OF THE PRESS.

Odd, Curious and Laughable Phases of Human Nature Graphically Portrayed by Eminent Word Artists of Our Own Day—A Budget of Fun.

Sprinkles of Spice.

Mrs. Editur—This hat is a perfect poem. Editur—All the more reason I should decline to pay for it.—Brooklyn Life.

Renter—Is there water on the top floor of this house? House Agent—Yes, ma'am; when it rains.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Mrs. Watts—Don't you ever do anything at all? Weary Watkins—Oh, yes, mum. Sometimes I does time.—Indianapolis Journal.

Pipkin—I want money, and I want it bad. Potts—Then you'll have to get it from a counterfeiter.—Smith, Gray & Co.'s Monthly.

Teacher—Tommy, what was the name of the wife of Napoleon? Tommy—It—it—it wasn't Trilby, was it?—Cincinnati Tribune.

"I understand that Freddy is getting ready to be married." "What is he doing?" "Taking lessons at the cooking-school."—Judge.

She—If there's one thing I hate it's being photographed. He—Yes, dear, it must be hard for you to look pleasant. —Pall Mall Budget.

When the weather forecaster predicts a cold wave that doesn't come, it may be referred to as a signal failure. —Philadelphia Record.

"How did Mrs. Lovely happen to be dropped from the Woman's Rights Club?" "She spoke in praise of her husband."—Brooklyn Life.

"Anything new to be seen at the theaters now?" "Great Scott, no! The spring bonnets won't be out before Easter, man."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

We can't tell you, Constant Reader, what days are considered unlucky to be married on. Authorities differ; some say 365.—Philadelphia Record.

Father—So you wish to make my daughter your wife? Suitor—Well, it's the only way I can see of becoming your son-in-law.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

"Name twelve animals of the polar regions," said the professor, and the despairing student wrote: "Six seals and six polar bears."—Youth's Companion.

"Great Scott! I put through a terrible night!" "What was the trouble?" "I thought I'd borrowed $5 and woke and found it a dream."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

"Do you know the count actually addresses her in public as his treasure?" "Treasure? His English is a little off. He means investment."—Indianapolis Journal.

Hobson—I understand your daughter is taking great pains with her singing. The Poor Father—"Taking" is not the word; "giving" is more like it.—Philadelphia Record.

Mrs. Watts—So it was in the Chicago wheat market that you lost your all? Everett Wrest—Yes, mum, all save me honor—and an elegant thirst.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

Willie—Papa, Maud and James do not need a light in the parlor, do they? Papa—Why not? Willie—Because I thought you said love was blind.—Harvard Lampoon.

She—You were behind me at the play last night, weren't you? How did you enjoy it? He—I thought it was one of the prettiest ones you ever wore.—New York Herald.

"What is the meaning of this, Mary? This is the second time I have found a policeman in the kitchen." "Lor', mum! I'm so afraid of the cockroaches."—Pall Mall Budget

Oculist (presenting bill)—I think your sight has been improved. Patient (looking at bill)—I could have seen a thing as big as that before I ever saw you.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"No, George," said the mature but still lovely maiden to her youthful adorer, "I can never be anything more than a mother to you Your father spoke first."—Chicago Tribune.

"Where is the pretty girl you were making love to last summer?" "Oh, she's married long ago." "Jilted you, eh?" "No, worse than that; she married me."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Figg (to Fogg, who has married a widow)—"Wonder if you ever remind your wife of her first husband?" "I don't know about that; but she often reminds me of him."—Boston Transcript.

"What time does the last train leave?" asked the traveler. And the gatekeeper at the Boston depot gave him a haughty look, and replied: "When the road quits business."—Washington Star.

Mrs. Inquisitive—Your husband must be earning more than he used to. I see you have a new sealskin jacket. Mrs. Straightface—No, indeed. He's learned how to fix the gas meter.—Sound Boats' Bulletin.

Mrs. Twickham (entertaining Mrs. Bingo at dinner)—Have another olive, Mrs. Bingo. I do think they are such a luxury. Bobbie Bingo—You must like them, don't you? Mrs. Twickham—Yes, Bobbie, do. Why? Bobbie—Mother says you don't have many luxuries.—New York Herald.

Professor Steeleye—By simply holding a bright object before a person's eyes for five minutes I can hypnotize him, and make him do anything I wish. Bouttown—That's nothing. By holding a bright object before a restaurant waiter's eyes for three-quarters of a second, I can make him my slave —New York Weekly.

Fair Proposition.

Marshal Lefevre, created Duke of Danizic by Napoleon I. for his services in battle, was called upon one day by an old comrade who had not succeeded in the world. He seemed very envious of his friend's riches and beautiful house, and made unkind remarks about them to the marshal. "Well, now," said Lefevre, at last, "you shall have it all, but at cost price. We will go down into the garden; I will fire at you sixty times; and then, if you are not killed, everything shall be yours."

THE PONY EXPRESS.

Carrying the Mails Over the Plains in the Fifties.

"The first express ever run across the plains was started by a man named Butterfield in 1858," said Alexander Benham, of Montana, the manager of the first overland express. "It started at Little Rock, Ark., and followed a southern route through Kansas, New Mexico, Arizona, and then to Los Angeles, Cal. About two years later, in 1860, our company was formed for the purpose of carrying the mails to the Pacific coast. It was known as the Central Overland, California and Pike's Peak Express company. William H. Russell, Alexander Majors and a man named Wadell formed the company, and the contracts with the government for carrying mails were made out in their names. I was chosen manager, and had my office in Denver.

"The southern route run by Butterfield did not have as much prominence as ours, which for years was known as the 'pony express' route. It started in at St. Joseph, Mo., running through Nebraska to Fort Kearney, to Fort Laramie, Wy., thence to Denver, to Salt Lake City, to Placerville, Nev., and to Sacramento, Cal. The whole trip, extending half across the continent, was made in 17 days, when no accident befell, and accidents were not so numerous as some people have imagined. From St. Joseph to Denver the trip took seven days, and from Denver to Sacramento was a journey of ten days. That was, of course, by the regular stage route, and little time was lost in making it.

"To accommodate our business we had about 150 coaches, most of which were kept running all the time. To haul them we had 1,500 horses scattered along the route from St. Joseph to Sacramento. In addition we had 6,000 or 7,000 head of cattle, which were used in hauling heavy freight and transporting feed for the horses and provisions for our men. You can see that the business was not by any means a small one and it continued to grow as long as there was any use for such means of transportation. This was until the completion of the Union Pacific railway to California in 1870. Then overland traffic and mail service could be managed to better purpose by the railroad, and our pony express went out of existence. But up to that time from the day that the route was first opened in 1860 its business had steadily increased. Even the building of the railroad assisted us, for our line was the best adapted for carrying to Western stations employes and provisions."

A Curious Beetle.

A small beetle called sitaris, instead of leaving its egg as a mere grub in the ordinary fashion, and subsequently changing into the adult condition, is hatched in some bee's nest and possesses six legs and two long antennæ. It attaches itself to a drone bee, and when the drones sally forth with the queen it passes to the latter.

When the queen lays her eggs it springs upon one and becomes inclosed with it in the wax cell wherein the egg has been laid. There it first devours the egg and then transforms itself into a grub and feeds on the honey which had been provided for the young bee, and is ready to hand in the same cell. Finally, it undergoes another metamorphosis, and reacquiring legs, etc., emerges as a perfect beetle.

Prevention Vs. Cure.

Most people are quick to see the need of medical aid when disease has fastened itself upon them, or when they are prostrated by some epidemic. It is not everyone, however, who realizes the importance of keeping the body in such a state of health that it will be able at all times to resist the attacks of disease. It is when the system is weakened by overwork or worry, causing loss of appetite, etc., when it is greatly debilitated, or "all run down," that the danger of serious sickness and heavy doctor's bills is to be feared. On the other hand, if perfect health can be maintained, the blood kept pure, and the circulation good, the appetite normal and the spirits cheerful, there will be no occasion to fear the grip, pneumonia, diphtheria or any similar ailment. As a means of keeping the body in just this condition of health no better agent has yet been found than that great blood purifier and strength builder, Hood's Sarsaparilla. While it is true that "Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures" it is equally true that Hood's Sarsaparilla prevents sickness, and this truth is of supreme importance to all. Mrs. C. C. Roles, of Wauregan, Conn., writing to the proprietors of Hood's Sarsaparilla, stated the case most concisely when she said: "We don't wait until we are sick, but take Hood's Sarsaparilla to prevent sickness." Certainly, prevention is far better than cure.

Slang of the Cheap Restaurant.

A stranger entered a cheap restaurant in Boston one day and on ordering dropped eggs on toast was astonished to hear the waiter yell to the cook: "Adam and Eve on a raft!" Then as the order was changed to scrambled eggs, he cried out quickly, "Shipwreck that order."—Boston Budget.

Like an open book, our faces tell the tale of health or disease. Hollow cheeks and sunken eyes, listless steps and languorous looks tell of wasting debilitating disease some place in the body. It may be one place or another, the cause is generally traceable to a common source—impure blood, and impure blood starts in the digestive organs.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery purifies the blood, stimulates digestive action, searches out disease-germs wherever they exist and puts the whole body into a vigorous, strong and healthy condition. It builds up solid, useful flesh, rubs out wrinkles, brightens the eyes and makes life really worth living.

FOUR KINGDOMS

Agents, male and female, everywhere for a quick selling article. Protected by the U. S. Gov't. Particulars free. J. R. Hunter & Co., Arcade, Cinc'l, O.

You want the Best

Royal Baking Powder never disappoints; never makes sour, soggy, or husky food; never spoils good materials; never leaves lumps of alkali in the biscuit or cake; while all these things do happen with the best of cooks who cling to the old-fashioned methods, or who use other baking powders.

If you want the best food, ROYAL Baking Powder is indispensable.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 WALL ST., NEW-YORK.

A Horse on Mark Twain.

Mark Twain tells thus the story of his first great London banquet, at which, by the way, there were eight or nine hundred guests. He admits that not having been used to that kind of dinner, he felt somewhat lonesome. The lord mayor, or somebody, read out a list of the chief guests before he began to eat. When he came to prominent names the other guests would applaud. "I found the man next to me rather a good talker. Just as we got up an interesting subject there was a tremendous clapping of hands. I had hardly every heard such applause before. I straightened up and set to clapping with the rest, and I noticed a good many people round about me fix their attention on me, and some of them laughed in a friendly and encouraging way. I moved about in my chair and clapped louder than ever. 'Who is it?' I asked the gentleman on my right. 'Samuel Clemens, better known in England as Mark Twain,' he replied. I stopped clapping. The life seemed to go out of me. I never was in such a fix in all my days."

Moonlight to Order.

A new arrangement of the electric light is now being tried in the German army. From the captive balloons kept always in readiness for military work is suspended an electric arc lamp of some 5,000 candle power. As soon as night begins to fall, the current, carried by an insulated wire, is turned on, and the light is reflected downward. In this way a large open space is illuminated, without lamp posts, and the evolutions of a body of troops can take place without impediment by night.

ONE of the lay delegates to the colored M. E. conference at Fayette, Mo., took with him to the place of meeting a crate with three chickens in it.

Beecham's pills are for biliousness, sick headache, dizziness, dyspepsia, bad taste in the mouth, heartburn, torpid liver, foul breath, sallow skin, coated tongue, pimples loss of appetite, etc., when caused by constipation; and constipation is the most frequent cause of all of them.

One of the most important things for everybody to learn is that constipation causes more than half the sickness in the world, especially of women; and it can all be prevented. Go by the book, free at your druggist's, or write B. F. Allen Co., 365 Canal St., New York. Pills, 10¢ and 25¢ a box.

Annual sales more than 6,000,000 boxes.

DIRECTIONS for using CREAM BALM.—Apply a particle of the Balm well up into the nostrils. After a moment draw strong breath through the nose. Use three times a day, after meals preferred, and before retiring.

CATARRH

ELY'S CREAM BALM Opens and cleanses the Nasal Passages, Allays Pain and Inflammation, Heals the Sores, Protects the Membrane from Colds, Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. The Balm is quickly absorbed and gives relief at once.

A particle is applied into each nostril and is agreeable. Price 50 cents, at druggists or by mail.
ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren Street, New York.

A Lightning Artist.

"Lightning sketches" have long been familiar performances at public entertainments. As to more artistic work it is recorded that Sir Edwin Landseer once painted a picture within an hour, says the Blackburn Times. One night recently T. B. Hardy, the marine painter, performed a much more remarkable feat before a large company of brother artists, literary men, and members of the dramatic profession. He had before him on an easel a piece of paper measuring about three feet by four. It was already stretched and framed. On this he drew with charcoal "The Pool," below London bridge, showing the tov in the background and barges, ships, and steamers coming up the river on the floodtide. Aerial and wave effects were obtained by rapid rubbing with the hand or cloth. The whole picture was completed in ten minutes and yet so good was it that many of the company were eager to buy, and eventually it was sold for twenty guineas. The money was given to a masonic charity.

Tools of the Pyramid-Builders.

A two years' study at Gizeh has convinced Mr. Flinders Petrie that the Egyptian stoneworkers of 4,000 years ago had a surprising acquaintance with what had been considered modern tools. Among the many tools used by the pyramid-builders were both solid and tubular drills and straight and circular saws. The drills, like those of to-day, were set with jewels (probably corundum, as the diamond was very scarce,) and even lathe tools had such cutting edges. So remarkable was the quality of the tubular drills and the skill of the workmen that the cutting marks in hard granite give no indication of wear of the tool, while a cut of a tenth of an inch was made in the hardest rock at each revolution, and a hole through both the hardest and softest material was bored perfectly smooth and uniform throughout. Of the material and method of making the tools nothing is known.—London Exchange.

Good Stock.

A farmer who does not believe in thoroughbred stock should be consistent, and refuse to accept improved machinery, tile drainage, the silo, the separator and creamery, and all the other things which have aided in making agriculture a better occupation than it was

THE EVOLUTION

Of medicinal agents is gradually relegating the old-time herbs, pills, draughts and vegetable extracts to the rear and bringing into general use the pleasant and effective liquid laxative, Syrup of Figs. To get the true remedy see that it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only. For sale by all leading druggists.

A NEW telegraphic invention will convey 2,000 words a minute over the wires.

Not So Convenient.

Physicians indorse Ripans Tabules by prescribing the remedies they contain, but in form not so convenient, inexpensive and accurate as in Ripans Tabules.

FIRST impressions are lasting. The first impression of what you have to sell is gained through advertisement.

Piso's Cure is the medicine to break up children's Coughs and Colds.—MRS. M. G. BLUNT, Sprague, Wash., March 8, '94.

EVERY year 2,200 vessels are lost at sea.

Other remedies may
ST. JACOBS OIL
Will cure Sprains, Bruises, and a Backache

HAVE YOU FIVE OR MORE COWS?

If so a "Baby" Cream Separator will earn its cost for you every year. Why continue an inferior system another year at so great a loss? Dairying is now the only profitable feature of Agriculture. Properly conducted it always pays well, and must pay you. You need a Separator, and you need the BEST,—the "Baby." All styles and capacities. Prices, $75. upward. Send for new 1895 Catalogue.

THE DE LAVAL SEPARATOR CO.,
Branch Offices: ELGIN, ILL. General Offices: 74 CORTLANDT ST., NEW YORK.

"He that Works Easily Works Successfully." 'Tis Very Easy to Clean House With

SAPOLIO

BEST IN THE WORLD.

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH. For durability and for cheapness this preparation is truly unrivalled.

THE RISING SUN STOVE POLISH in cakes for general blacking of a stove.

THE SUN PASTE POLISH for a quick after-dinner shine, applied and polished with a cloth.

Morse Bros., Props., Canton, Mass., U. S. A.

W. L. DOUGLAS $3 SHOE IS THE BEST. FIT FOR A KING.

$5. CORDOVAN, FRENCH & ENAMELLED CALF.
$4.$3.50 FINE CALF & KANGAROO.
$3.50 POLICE, 3 SOLES.
$2.50 $2. WORKINGMEN'S EXTRA FINE.
$2. $1.75 BOYS' SCHOOL SHOES.
LADIES.
$3. $2.75 $2. $1.75 BEST DONGOLA.
SEND FOR CATALOGUE. W. L. DOUGLAS, BROCKTON, MASS.

Over One Million People wear the W. L. Douglas $3 & $4 Shoes
All our shoes are equally satisfactory
They give the best value for the money. They equal custom shoes in style and fit. Their wearing qualities are unsurpassed. The prices are uniform,—stamped on sole. From 31 to $3 saved over other makes. If your dealer cannot supply you we can.

HIGHEST AWARD WORLD'S FAIR.

IMPERIAL GRANUM

FOOD BEST SUITED TO ALL WEAK CONDITIONS OF DIGESTIVE ORGANS FOR Dyspeptic, Delicate, Infirm and AGED PERSONS

THE SAFEST FOOD IN THE SICK ROOM FOR INVALIDS AND CONVALESCENTS.

PURE DELICIOUS NOURISHING

FOOD

NURSING MOTHERS, INFANTS, CHILDREN

THE IMPERIAL GRANUM IS SOLD BY DRUGGISTS.

JOHN CARLE & SONS, NEW YORK.

You will ride a Bicycle

Of course you will ride. All the world will—fashion, pleasure, business—men, women, children. It takes a while sometimes for the world to recognize its privileges; but when it does it adapts itself promptly. Therefore, you who are in the world will ride a bicycle—a bicycle if you desire the best the world produces; a Hartford, the next best, if anything short of a Columbia will content you.

COLUMBIA

Columbias, $100; Hartfords, $80 $60; for boys and girls, $50.

POPE MFG. CO., Hartford, Conn.
Boston, New York, Chicago, San Francisco, Providence, Buffalo.

A Catalogue—comprehensive, beautiful—at any agency free, or by mail for two 2-cent stamps. The book tells of all the new Columbias and Hartfords

TEXAS
— VIA — Wabash Line

Do you know that the farmer has more opportunities for making money in TEXAS than almost any State in this great country? Interest yourself in the subject and see how true this is.

REMEMBER, THE WABASH

Is the Great Steel Rail Highway to all points West and Southwest. For Rates, routes, maps, and general information, call upon or address the nearest Agent of the Wabash System, or write to

R. G. BUTLER, D. P. A., Detroit, Mich.
F. H. TRISTRAM, C. P. A., Pittsburg, Pa.
P. E. DONBAUGH, P. & T. A., Toledo, Ohio.
R. G. THOMPSON, P. & T. A., Fort Wayne, Ind.
J. HALDERMAN, M. P. A., 201 Clark St., Chicago, Ill.
J. M. McCONNELL, P. & T. A., Lafayette, Ind.
G. D. MAXFIELD, D. P. A., Indianapolis, Ind.
C. S. CRANE, G. P. & T. A., St. Louis, Mo.

TAPE-WORM Expelled with head Sure Cure within 2 hours. No inconvenience. One dose (price $2) guaranteed sufficient. GUARANI REMEDY CO., Dolgeville, N. Y.

F. W. H. U. - - - - - No. 15—95

When Writing to Advertisers, say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

USUAL PRICE, $15.00 AERMOTOR Price $7.50

The AERMOTOR ANTI-FREEZING THREE-WAY FORCE PUMP has a windmill shut-off at the above price. Few castings to break, has a very large air chamber, has a very large spout opening, and can be furnished by any dealer this side of the Rocky Mountains agent for them. It is always better to go to an Aermotor agent for anything you may want which he handles. Of course, it is better to go to an Aermotor agent for the reason he is an Aermotor agent. It is doubtful if As a rule he is a first-class, live, reliable, wide-awake fellow; that is times fellow. We furnish also a SPECIAL In our entire list of thousands of agents, you can find one slow, stupid, behind-the-AERMOTOR FORCE PUMP AT $4.50, BETTER THAN USUALLY SOLD AT $8 OR $10. Send for our Pump Catalogue. Buy nothing but an Aermotor Pump, and do not pay more than Aermotor prices for it. We protect the public. We furnish it good goods at low prices. We have established twenty branch houses in order that it may get goods cheaply and promptly. You consult your own interests by insisting on not only Aermotor prices but Aermotor goods at Aermotor prices. Be sure and see our offer next week of a $40 Feed Cutter at $18. AERMOTOR CO., Chicago.

LYON'S WONDERS

A SPECIFIC For all DERANGEMENTS of the STOMACH. PRICE $1.00

Manf by THE LYON MEDICINE CO. INDIANAPOLIS IND.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

"I CAN SWEAR BY IT."

Webb Robinson, a Gallant Fireman, Adds His Testimony.

INDIANAPOLIS,
August 1, 1894.

To the Lyon Medicine Co.:

GENTLEMEN—I tried many remedies for a complication of stomach troubles, but found nothing to do me any good until I tried LYON'S SEVEN WONDERS. I can swear by that remedy as being all it is claimed to be, and cheerfully recommend it to sufferers from stomach and kidney troubles.

WEBB ROBINSON,

Engine Company No. 5,
West Sixth Street.

Insist on ARM AND HAMMER SODA in packages

BEWARE of imitation trade marks and labels.

Costs no more than inferior package soda—never spoils the flour, keeps soft, and is universally acknowledged purest in the world.

Made only by CHURCH & CO., New York.
Sold by grocers everywhere.
Write for Arm and Hammer Book of valuable Recipes—FREE.

Spring Curry Comb

Clock Spring Blade. Soft as a Brush. Fits every Curve. The Only Perfect Comb. Used by U. S. Army and by Barnum and Forepaugh Circuses, and Leading Horsemen of the World. Ask your Dealer for It. Sample mailed post paid 25 cents. See our name on the handle. SPRING CURRY COMB CO., 104 Lafayette St., South Bend, Indiana

OUR GREAT APRIL SALE

ROOT & COMPANY FT. WAYNE

Will be an attraction to the ladies of this city and vicinity of unusual Merit and Magnitude.

The Dantiest Patterns In Silks.

More positively than ever has our large Silk Department become Headquarters for the best bargains in Seasonable Silks. New fancy Silks for Waists will create a very great sensation.

50c. 60c. 75c. 88c. and $100.

White and Evening Crystal and Gros de Londres Silks, New Black Satin Brocades, New Black Satin for Skirts, New Evening Crepes, Charming Shades and Very Cheap.

Black Crepons

For the great April Sale, all in stock; Black Broadcloths for Capes; Black Serges and Fancies, All-Wool and Silk and Wool.

Colored Dress Fabrics.

Elegant lines of the Charming New Crepons in all Colors, Light Weight and Wool Novelties.

35c. 40c. 50c. 60c. 75c and $1.00.

Our New Spring Underwear.

The demand has now set in with a vim, White and Ecru, Silk Cotton Lisle—Long Sleeves, Short Sleeves, No Sleeves, Union Suits.

Our Carpet Department

Shows its complete lines of New Carpeting---Wiltons, Axminsters, Moquettes, Body and Tapestry Brussels, Ingrains.

Drapery and Upholstery Goods

In the greatest variety; and at lower prices than have been known. This is the month to get good selections.

MAIL ORDERS CAREFULLY EXECUTED.

ROOT & COMPANY.

WE HAVE NO AGENTS but ship from our factory at wholesale prices. Ship anywhere for examination; pay freight both ways if not satisfactory. 100 styles of Carriages. 20 styles of Harness. Send 4 cts. for 112 page catalogue. ELKHART CARRIAGE AND HARNESS MFG. CO., W. B. Pratt, Sec'y, Elkhart, Ind.

No. 12014 $35.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

All Free.

Those who have used Dr. King's New Discovery know its value, and those who have not, have now the opportunity to try it, free. Call on the advertised druggist and get a trial bottle free. Send your name and address to H. E. Bucklen & Co., Chicago, and get a sample box of Dr. King's New Life Pill free, as well as a copy of Guide to Health and Household Instructor, free. All of which is guaranteed to do you good and cost you nothing. Robbins & McCord's drugstore. 4

Rheumatism Cured in a Day.—Mysti Cure" for Rheumatism and Neuralgia radically cures in 1 to 3 days. Its action upon the system is remarkable and mysterious. It removes at once the cause and the disease immediately disappears. The first dose greatly benefits, 75 cts Sold by Robbins & McCord, druggists, Auburn. 41tf

PILES! PILES! PILES!

Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment will cure Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles when all other Ointments have failed. It absorbs the tumors allays the itching at once, acts as a poultice, gives instant relief. Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment is prepared only for Piles and itching of the private parts, and nothing else. Every box is warranted. Sold by druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of price, 50c, and $1.00 per box. WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Prop's, Cleveland, O. Sold on a guarantee by Matheny & Gerke.

Dr. H. R. Fish, of Gravais Mills, Mo., a practicing physician of many years experience, writes: De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve has no equal for indolent sores, scalds and burns. It stops pain instantly heals a burn quickly and leaves no scar.

BUCKLEN'S ARNICA SALVE.—The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Robbins & McCord. tf

De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve cures scalds, burns, indolent sores and never fails to cure piles.

T. F. Anthony, ex-postmaster of Promise City, Iowa, says: "I bought one bottle of 'Mystic Cure' for Rheumatism and two doses of it did me more good than all the medicine I ever took." Sold by Robbins & McCord, druggists, Auburn. 41tf

La Grippe is here again with all of its old time vigor. One Minute Cough Cure is a reliable remedy. It cures and cures quickly.

Relief in One Day.

South American Nervine relieves the worst cases of nervous prostrations nervousness and nervous dyspepsia in a single day. No such relief and blessing has ever come to the invalids of this country. Its powers to cure the stomach are wonderful in the extreme. It always cures; it cannot fail. It radically cures all weakness of the stomach and never disappoints. Its effects are marvelous and surprising.—It gladdens the hearts of the suffering and brings immediate relief. It is a luxury to take and always safe. Trial bottles 15 cents. Sold by Robbins & McCord druggist Auburn Ind. 50tf

Rebecca Wilkinson, of Brownsvalley, Ind., says: I have been in a distressed condition for three years from Nervousness Weakness of the Stomach, Dyspepsia and Indigestion until my health was gone. I had been doctoring constantly with no relief. I bought one bottle of South American Nervine, which did me more good than any $50 worth of doctoring I ever did in my life. I would advise every weakly person to use this valuable and lovely remedy; a few bottles of it has cured me completely. I consider it the greatest medicine in the world." Warranted the most wonderful stomach and nerve cure ever known. Trial bottles 15 cents. Sold by Robbins and McCord druggists, Auburn Ind. 34tf

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder
Awarded Gold Medal Midwinter Fair, San Francisco.

W. T. Stafford, Station Agent of Leeper, Clarion Co. Pa., writes; I can recommend One Minute Cough Cure as the best I ever used. It gave instant relief and a quick cure.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

To-morrow—Which To morrow?

Why do you delay? You are likely to be worse to-morrow than to-day, for there is be no standing still of nature or of sickness when fastened on the system. A chronic headache, dull pain at the base of the brain, frequent darting pains through the body or steady backache, pain or burning sensation in stomach after meals, specks before the eyes, frequent dizziness, heart palpitation, loss of memory, difficulty in fixing mind on your work, listlessness, lack of usual ambition, worn out, all run down feeling, sleeplessness—which is it? No matter which, but yor feel the warning nature sends over the nerve telegraph system of your body when repairs are needed on the line.

Delay to heed the message increases the damage to be repaired. Dr. Wheeler Nerve Vitalizer repairs, restrengthens and restores lost nerve force. It is so made that it cannot fail to help any and all nerve diseases-and nineteenths of diseases are or are attended by nerve troubles. Dr. E. Greenamyer, East Palestine, Ohio, says that Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer has been remarkably effective in cases which have come under his observation. It can be relied upon to be always effective as represented to restore lost or weakened nerve force and bring back full healthful vigor." Sold by Davenport. 14-17

For Sale by Fischler & Son, Auburn, Ind.

English Spavin Liniment removes all hard, soft or calloused lumps and blemishes from horses, blood spavins, curbs, splints, sweeney, ring-bone, stifles, sprains, all swollen throats, coughs, etc. Save $50 by use of one bottle. Warranted the most wonderful blemish cure ever known. Sold by Robbins and McCord druggists Auburn. 34tf

Our patrons will find De Witt's Little Early Risers a safe and reliable remedy for constipation, dyspepsia and liver complaints.

DO not be deceived.

The following brands of White Lead are still made by the "Old Dutch" process of slow corrosion. They are standard, and always

Strictly Pure White Lead

The recommendation of

"Anchor,"	"Collier,"
"Eckstein,"	"Shipman,"
"Armstrong & McKelvy,"	"Southern,"
"Beymer-Bauman,"	"Red Seal,"
"Davis-Chambers,"	"Fahnestock,"

to you by your merchant is an evidence of his reliability, as he can sell you cheap ready-mixed paints and bogus White Lead and make a larger profit. Many short-sighted dealers do so.

FOR COLORS.—National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors, a one-pound can to a 25-pound keg of Lead and mix your own paints. Saves time and annoyance in matching shades, and insures the best paint that it is possible to put on wood.

Send us a postal card and get our book on paints and color-card, free; it will probably save you a good many dollars.

NATIONAL LEAD CO.
Chicago Branch,
State and Fifteenth Streets, Chicago.

For sale by John L. Davis, Auburn, In

Read it in the Paper.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison, of Bolan, Worth Co., Iowa, who had been troubled with rhuematism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own: "It cured me right up" He also says: A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rhuematism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad that he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me, he procured a bottle of it and it cured them in a week. 50 cent bottles for sale by Robbins & McCord. 14 17

Cures permanently.

Our better halves say they could not keep house without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is used in more than half the homes in Leeds. Sim Bros., Leeds, Iowa. This shows the esteem in which that remedy is held where it has been sold for years and is well known. Mothers have learned that there is nothing so good for colds, croup and whooping cough, that it cures these ailments quickly and permanently, and that it is pleasant and safe for children to take. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Robbins & McCord. 14-17

No Better Liniment Made.

I reccommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm for the rheumatism, lame back, sprains and swellings. There is no better liniment made. I have sold over 100 bottles of it this year and all were pleased who used it. J. F. Pierson, druggist, South Chicago, Ill. It is for sale by Robbins and McCord. 14 17

$500 Will be Given

For any case of rheumatism which cannot be cured by Dr. Drummond's Lightning remedy. The proprietors do not hide this offer, but print it in bold type on all their circulars wrappers, printed matter, and through the columns of newspapers everywhere. It will work wonders—one treatment curing any ordinary case. The full supply of two large bottles will be sent to any address by express on receipt of $5, together with special directions for use. Agents wanted. 14-15

For Bilious Colic.

It will be an agreeable surprise to persons subject to attacks of bilious colic to learn that prompt relief may be had by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Colera and Diarrhœa Remedy. In many instances the attack may be prevented by taking this remedy as soon as the first symptoms of the disease appear. 25 and 50 cents bottles for sale by Robbins & McCord 14-17

Somebody's Darling

Is, at this moment suffering with rheumatism or gout, or some one of the many kindred diseases, but will be speedily cured by using Infallible Scotch Cure, just introduced in the United States. It is the great Scotch remedy, and is proving itself infallible here, as in Europe, Try it and be cured. It never fails. Ask your druggist for it, and accept no substitute. Prepared only by the Hall Medicine Co, Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Fischler & Son. 14 15

DR. WILLIAMS' KIDNEY PILLS

A remedy that has no equal in diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs, Have you neglected your kidneys? Have you overworked your nervous system and caused trouble with your kidneys and liver? Have you pains in the loins, side, back, loins and bladder? Have you a flabby appearance of the face, especially under the eyes? Too frequent desire to pass urine? No matter what the cause, we know Dr. Williams' Kidney Pills will cure you. Imparts newlife to the diseased organs, tones up the whole system and makes a new man of you. Mailed onreceipt of price, $1 00 per box.
WILLIAMS M'F'G CO., Props., Cleveland, O.
old by FISCHLER & SON, Auburn. 1y30

Relief in Six Hours.

Distressing Kidney and Bladder diseases relieved in six hours by the "New Great South American Kidney Cure." This new remedy is a great surprise on account of its exceeding promptness in relieving pain in the bladder, kidneys, back and every part of the urinary passages in male or female. It relieves retention of water and pain in passing it almost immediately. If you want quick relief and cure this is your remedy. Sold by Robbins and McCord druggists Auburn Ind. 34tf

Sick headache, constipation and indigestion are quickly cured by De Will's Little Early Risers, the famous little pills.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

J. A. Richardson, of Jefferson City, Mo. Chief Enrolling force 38th general assembly of Missouri, writes: I wish to testify to the merits of One Minute Cough Cure. When other so-called cures failed, I obtained almost instant relief and a speedy cure ov the use of One Minute Cough cure.

B. H. Bowman, Pub. Enquirer: at Bremen, Ind., writes; Last week our little girl baby the only one we have was taken sick with croup. After two Doctors failed to give relief and life was hanging on a mere thread we tried One Minute Cough Cure and its life was saved.

A Traveling Man.

Mr. B. C. Wolfe, of Washington, Mo., writes that after taking Drummond's Lightning remedy for rheumatism for one week, the pain had almost left him entirely. He slept better, had no more night sweats, and appetite was good. He also wrote that he would not take $100 for what the remedy had done for him. There is no waiting weeks and months to get satisfaction. The remedy attacks the disease at once. Send $5 to the Drummond Med cine Co, 48 Maiden Lane New York, and the full month's treatment of two large bottles will be sent to you by return express. Agents wanted. 14-15

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Judge of the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administratrix of the estate of Samuel E. Cramer, deceased, late of said county

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

JANE A. CRAMER, Administratrix.

March 23, 1895.

Notice of Sale of Real Estate.

Notice is hereby given, that I, Harrison Enzor, executor of the estate of Stephen K. Enzor, deceased, will offer for sale at public auction, to the highest bidder, on Saturday, May 11, 1895, at 10 o'clock, a. m., at the door of the court house in Auburn, Indiana, for the purpose of paying debts, the following described real estate, belonging to the estate of said decedent, to-wit:

The north half of the northeast quarter [¼] of the northeast quarter [¼] of section fourteen [14] and the north half [½] of the northwest quarter [¼] of the northwest quarter [¼] of section thirteen [13] all in township thirty-four [34] north of range fourteen [14] east, in DeKalb county, state of Indiana.

TERMS OF SALE:

One-third cash, one-third in 9 months, and one-third in 12 months. Deferred payments to be evidenced by interest-bearing notes waiving relief and secured by mortgage upon the premises sold. HARRISON ENZOR, Executor.
Baxter & Brown, Attys.

L. S. & M. S. R. R.

TIME TABLE—In Effect Nov. 18, 1894.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

Stations—	Mail.	Exp'ss	Fre'gt
Fort Wayne,... p	11 45 am	4 45 pm	8 40 am
New Era.....	12 14 pm	5 14	7 27
Auburn Junc.....	12 25	5 25	7 56
Auburn.....	12 29	5 29	8 37
Waterloo.....	12 41	5 41	9 24
Summit.....	12 52	5 52	9 45
Steubenville.....	12 56	5 56	.....
Pleasant Lake...	1 03	6 03	10 12
Angola.....	1 13	6 14	10 30
Jackson.....	3 25	8 35	4 30

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

Stations—	Freight	Exp'ss	Mail
Jackson.....dp	6 55 am	11 20 am	6 30 pm
Angola	12 25 pm	2 21 pm	8 51
Pleasant Lake.....	1 03	2 32	9 01
Steubenville.....	.....	2 40	9 07
Summit.....	1 25	2 44	9 11
Waterloo	2 30	3 00	9 24
Auburn.....	3 00	3 11	9 35
Auburn Junc....	3 14	3 14	9 38
New Era	4 05	3 24	9 50
Fort Wayne	5 25	3 55	10 25

For rates on tickets or freight to all points, call on or address E. T. DeLAPP, Agent at Auburn

Free Pills.

Send your address to H. E. Bucklen & Co., Chicago, and get a free sample box of Dr. King's New Life pills. A trial will convince you of their merits. These pills are easy in action and are particularly effective in the cure of constipation and sick headache. For Malaria and liver troubles they have been proved invaluable. They are guaranteed to be perfectly free from every deleterious substance and to be purely vegetable. They do not weaken by their action, but by giving tone to stomach and bowels greatly invigorate the system. Regular size 25c. per box. Sold at Robbins & McCord drug store. 4

BE A MAN

Ajax Tablets

have cured thousands and will cure you if you are suffering from Loss of Vigor, Impotence, Sterility, Seminal Weakness or any of the other effects of Self-Abuse or excesses of early life. We give positive Written Guarantee to effect a cure in each case or to refund money in case of failure. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Sent prepaid upon receipt of price. Send for free circular. Address

AJAX REMEDY CO.,
79 Dearborn Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

For sale in Auburn by F. E. Davenport, Druggist.

The Greatest Offer Yet Made!

Last season THE HUB delighted thousands of buyers all over the United States with its" Head-to-Foot" Boy's Outfit at $5.00 consisting of Coat, Cap, Shoes and only one pair of pants.

We'll do better yet this season!

The Hub's "Head-to-Foot" Boy's Outfit for the full season contains as follows:

One Double Breasted Coat,
One Stanley Cap to Match,
One Pair of First Class Shoes and Two Pairs of Knee Pants, and still the price will remain the same, $5.

Remember, the cloth is all wool, the workmanship and trimmings first-class, everything strictly guaranteed—and your money back should you want it.

Send for samples of cloth, or better yet, let us send you one of the Head-to-Foot Outfits all charges prepaid for $5.75 or C. O. D. with privilege of examination before payment, provided $1.00 on account is sent with the order.

THE HUB,
The Largest Clothing Store in the World.
N. W. Cor. State and Jackson Sts.,
CHICAGO, ILL.
References: Any Bank or Wholesale Firm in Chicago.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

COURT.

Thursday's Daily:

This morning Peggy Armstrong was called into court and had his trial. It resulted in a fine of $25. We think this was letting him off pretty easy, if we take into consideration the number of such attempts he has made. We learn however, that the matter was fully investigated and it was found that both parties had been to blame. In fact, it was a regular saloon brawl, and it was also shown that the slashing was done with a printers "rule" rather an innocent looking affair in general, but a pretty effective weapon in the hands of a man at once angry and drunk. The rule is nearly sharp and could no doubt be made to cut a gash very readily. At least Peggy insisted he did the cutting in that way. Prosecutor Butler and his deputy P. D. West, prosecuted the case and J. F. Shuman defended. In addition to the fine, there are costs, making the total up to at least $75. The Fort Wayne case is now being argued before the judge and will probably be finished to-night. Isaac Hague, as administrator of the estate of the late H. J. Shafer made a report again to-day, to be approved by the judge. Quite a number of our attorneys are over at Columbia City to try the case between Baltz and Martin, as noticed elsewhere.

Friday's Daily:

The jury went out last evening to consider the case on trial, that of Mossman vs Randall and Pape. This morning they reached a verdict in favor of the defendants. Potts the young man hauled up for stealing watch chains and other jewelery at Waterloo has pleaded guilty and had his sentence suspended. It appears he originally belonged to Edgerton but has for a time been working as a barber in Angola. Recently he was at Waterloo, and got drunk. A friend of his named Davis, a student of the Angola Normal, went with Potts into Maxson's store to get a ring mended. Maxson's son John was at work and took the ring and went to mend it. Davis stepped outside and waited and Potts took a button hook, reached over and opened the falling door of the showcase and hooked out some claims for ladies' watches, and then hooked into a watch. In some way, the button hook hit something and made a loud click which attracted young Maxson's attention. He turned his head enough to see one of his watches hauled up and slipped into Potts' pocket. He said nothing but finished the ring. Davis came inside, got the ring and paid for it, and the two started to go out, when young Maxson laid his hand on Potts' shoulder and told him he could not go till he gave up the watch, for he saw him take it. The thief at once gave back the watch but Maxson had not seen him take the chains.

He soon missed them and started out to find the two men. Marshal Fisher was on hand to help, and they followed the men toward the station, as they were going back to Angola on the evening train. The men saw they were watched and Potts tried to get rid of the chains. He threw one away at the school grounds and two more at Gen. Blair's but the marshal picked up all of them. Potts then went into the water closet at the station and would have got rid of the two remaining chains but the marshal was too quick for him. He was arrested and later, sent over here. People think Davis was in the job with him, but there was no proof. Frank Derthick of Waterloo, is up again. He stole a pair of rubber boots. He plead guilty and the judge is studying over it. Court will be in session to-morrow and on some one day next week. The jury has gone home.

Saturday's Daily:

Attorneys this afternoon argued a motion for a new trial in the Monitor Co. case. But Judge Penfield overruled the motion and took the matter under advisement till the first of next term as he wished to investigate it more fully. This delay would also give attorneys more time. Mrs. Meese, of Garrett, asked to have C. B. Jones removed as administrator of her husband's estate and herself appointed. This was done after some discussion by her attorneys, Baxter and Myers and Mr. Gengler, and we believe Mr. Rose on the other side.

A Little too Strong!

Thursday's Daily.

In our statement yesterday, in regard to the Auburn Foundry & Machine Works, we made it stronger than the facts would justify. While there was a full talk about the chance of removal to Ft. Wayne, there was no definite offer or promise. Mr. Randall stated that he could get the bonus at Ft. Wayne easily and so secure the plant spoken of down there. Yet it was not decided to do so. So it will be seen that our article, while in substance true had not gone to the extent we supposed, and Mr Hanna and the other managers did not intend it should go out to the public in that form

Albert Robbins, Pres. J. C. Henry V. P.

FARMERS BANK.

Capital Stock.—
—$45,000.00.

—UNDER STATE SUPERVISION.—

Transacts a general banking business. Interest paid on time deposits by agreement. Collections receive careful attention. Business solicited.

A. C. ROBBINS, Cashier.

PROBATE CAUSE NO. 4038.

State of Indiana, } ss:
DeKalb County }

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, May Term, 1895. Henry Wartenslaben, Louisa Fitzpatrick and M. J. Fitzpatrick, husband of Louisa Fitzpatrick, non-residents of the state of Indiana, and Woman's Home Mission Society, incorporated under the laws of the state of Illinois; Woman's Baptist Foreign Missionary Society of the West, incorporated under the laws of the state of Illinois, foreign corporations, are hereby notified that Orrin C. Clark, as executor of the estate of Henry Wartenslaben, deceased, has filed in the Circuit Court of DeKalb county, Indiana, a petition making them defendants thereto, and prayeth therein for an order and decree of said Court authorizing the sale of certain real estate belonging to the estate of said decedent and in said petition described, to make assets for the payment of the debts and liabilities of said estate; and that said petition, so filed and which is now pending, is set for hearing in said Circuit Court at the court house in Auburn, Indiana, on the 20th day of May, 1895.

Witness, the Clerk and Seal of said Court, this 27th day of March 1895.

[SEAL.] DANIEL D. MOODY,
Clerk DeKalb Circuit Court.
Baxter & Brown, Attorneys.

Notice to Non-Residents.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county, ss:

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, May term, 1895, Mary E. Potter is hereby notified that an action has been commenced against her in said court, by James A. Potter for divorce, and that the same will be heard and determined on the 20th day of May, 1895, being the first juridical day of the next term of said court, which commences May 20, 1895.

Witness, the clerk of said court this 26th day of March, 1895. DANIEL D. MOODY, Clerk.
Hartman & Hartman, attorneys for plaintiff.

Palpitation of the Heart

Shortness of Breath, Swelling of Legs and Feet.

"For about four years I was troubled with palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath and swelling of the legs and feet. At times I would faint. I was treated by the best physicians in Savannah, Ga., with no relief. I then tried various Springs without benefit. Finally, I tried also his Nerve and Liver Pills. After beginning to take them I felt better! I continued taking them and I am now in better health than for many years. Since my recovery I have gained fifty pounds in weight. I hope this statement may be of value to some poor sufferer."

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure

E. B. SUTTON, Ways Station, Ga.

Dr. Miles Heart Cure is sold on a positive guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. All druggists sell it at $1, 6 bottles for $5, or it will be sent, prepaid, on receipt of price by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

•HORSEMEN•

SAVE YOUR STOCK BY USING THE CELEBRATED

Morris' English Stable Powder
For Loss of Appetite, Constipation, Rough Hair, Hide Bound, and all Diseases of the Blood.
Price, 25c. per package.

Morris' English Stable Liniment
Cures Lameness, Cuts, Bruises, Scratches, Galls, Sweeney, Spavins, Splint, Curb, etc.
Price, 50c. per bottle.

Morris' English Worm Powder
Warranted to cure any case of Worms in Horses, Cattle, Sheep or Dogs, also Pin Worms in Colts.
Price, 50c. per box.

Craft's Distemper and Cough Cure
A Specific for Distemper, Coughs, Colds, Heaves, Pink Eye, and all Catarrhal diseases of horses.
Price, 50c. $1.00 per bottle.

Wells' Hoosier Poultry Powder
Makes Hens Lay, cures Cholera, Gapes and Roup, and keeps poultry healthy.
Price, 25c. per package.

Every remedy guaranteed satisfactory or money refunded. Our new book, "The Horse: His Diseases and Treatment," mailed free.
Wells Medicine Co., Lafayette, Ind.

For Sale by, Fischle & Son., Auburn.

COLLARS AND CUFFS that are waterproof. Never wilt and not effected by moisture. Clean, neat and durable. When soiled simply wipe off with a wet cloth. The genuine are made by covering a linen collar or cuff on both sides with "celluloid" and as they are the only waterproof goods made with such an interlining, it follows that they are the only collars and cuffs that will stand the wear and give satisfaction. Every piece is stamped as follows:

TRADE CELLULOID MARK.

If anything else is offered you it is an imitation. Refuse any but the genuine, and if your dealer does not have what you want send direct to us, enclosing amount and stating size and whether a stand-up or turned-down collar is wanted. Collars 25c. each. Cuffs 50c. pair.

The Celluloid Company,
427-429 Broadway, New York.

AUBURN COURIER SUPPLEMENT.

APRIL 11, 1895.

SMOKE THE

DINCER CIGAR.

MANUFACTURED BY

E. M. BISHOP,

AUBURN, INDIANA.

KUTZNER & MYERS

HEADQUARTERS

For Buggies, Surreys, Phaetons and Road Wagons, Harness and Buggy Poles. Come and get our Prices before buying elsewhere.

Livery and Sale Stable!

FARMERS' FEED BARN.

Imported Cleveland Bay Stallion,

LORD RAYNALD Will make the spring and fall season of 1895 at Kutzner & Myers' Livery and Sale Stable.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Recorder's Office

VOLUME XXV. AUBURN, DE KALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY. APRIL 18. 1895. NUMBER 16

SAY : :

HOW MUCH DO YOU OWE?

Who holds your mortgage? How much interest are you paying? Do you owe a building loan association anything? If you do, how much interest are you paying them? Unless you are better posted than the majority of people who have such loans, you cannot tell. You think you are paying 6 per cent. Do you know (of course not) that you are paying at least 12 per cent. If you think not, just figure it out yourself. Now then, are you not paying 6 per cent interest and 6 per cent premium? Certainly. Well now don't you know that premium and interest are the same thing—its all interest. Can you afford to pay 12 per cent interest to a loan association when even your banks only charge 8 per cent and you think they are charging too much, and when do you expect to have your loan canceled or paid off in full? You have been told 72 or 78 months. Now then, we undertake to say that it will take you 100 months, if you will call on us we will show you so you will be satisfied that we are right. Now then, we are prepared to loan you money on monthly installment plan for 8 per cent, we charge you no membership fee and you do not have to make three or more payments in advance so that if on account of insufficient security or bad title your loan is rejected you will not lose one cent. You pay nothing unless your loan is granted. We are making farm loans at from 3 to 5 per cent with privilege of partial payments.

ANOTHER THING!

There is scarcely a day but what there is some traveling agent for some building loan association in Auburn soliciting business, selling stock upon which they charge you a membership fee of from 50 cents to $1.00 per share, which amount goes to the agent and you never get back this money thrown away. If you will call on us we will take your application for all the stock you want in the BEST (we can prove it) building loan association in the state the INDIANA MUTUAL OF INDIANAPOLIS, and charge you No MEMBERSHIP FEE AT ALL. This is certainly fair. If you have any investment stock in any association just write them a letter and ask them the withdrawal value of same, their reply will probably open your eyes. What would you say if you would deposit $8.00 per month in your bank for one year and wanted to withdraw the same and they would offer to pay you only about $80? The bank would only have to do this in one case to be compelled to retire from business. Now you pay ten dollars membership fee and 8 dollars for 12 months making 108 dollars, you lose the 10 dollars membership fee and 10 cents per share each month for expenses, making 12 dollars, or a total of 22 dollars loss upon which you would receive 6 per cent interest for average time on 96 dollars, making 2 dollars and 88 cts. from 22 dollars would leave you a loser of 19 dollars and 12 cents. In our association your stock is worth all you have paid in, with its interest added, so that upon withdrawal you do not get less than you paid. We want the people of Auburn to become familiar with this matter, and would like to have any that are interested to call and talk with us, we can give you some pointers.

We are still in the Real Estate, Insurance and R. R. Ticket business.

RICKEL & SPROTT

AUBURN, INDIANA.

Friday's Daily:

BOARD OF TRADE.

Had the citizens and business men of Auburn persisted and organized a board of trade, a year or more ago when the subject was agitated, and made a permanent organization after the plan adopted by several cities, or in other words, modeled the same after a Building & Loan Association, so that the various amounts subscribed should be paid monthly, or quarterly, we would now have the full amount raised for our foundry and it would have worked no hardship on any individual.

As an illustration suppose we get the following subscriptions to be paid monthly or quarterly. See the amount of cash we soon have on hand.

25	subscribe	$2 00	per month	$ 600
100	"	1.00	" "	1200
200	"	.50	" "	1200
200	"	.25	" "	600

We would have the snug sum of $3600 in a year's time, and but few would miss the small sums given. But what an incalculable amount of good it would do as each year rolled by to know that we had the ready cash to induce factories to locate here. And every time we needed money for that purpose we would not need to go a committee to drain to and see what they could raise, but call a meeting of each shareholder and let them say what shall be done with the money already in the hands of its officers or in the bank.

Each year as the town increases in the number of its inhabitants this association could be made to grow with the town, increase its income, increase its membership as well as increase its usefullness. And as the years roll by and the money accumulates and the enthusiasm of our business men oozes out the tips of their fingers, if no factories could be got at any price, the money could be used to a good purpose.

We might pay off either our county or village debt!

CITIZEN.

CHARLEY HART

The Murderer of the Good Children Hung.

Charles Hart was hung shortly after midnight, Thursday, in the state prison, of Ohio, for the murder of Elsie and Ashley Good, children seven and nine years old respectively, in Paulding county on November 4, 1894.

The children were gathering nuts in the woods, and Hart, who was only eighteen years old, joined them.

According to his own confession he killed the boy and then ravished the girl, afterward killing her and burned their bodies in a log heap, having first dismembered them to conceal their identity.

Though Hart had previously confessed the crime, he declared on the scaffold that he was not guilty and met death bravely. His neck was broken by the fall.

Nearly Drowned.

Ona Hanes, a 12-year old girl come near being drowned yesterday. She was walking across the "foot log" south of the band sawmill and slipped and fell in. The water was deep and she sank out of sight. Three little boys, Harry Sheehan, Hubert Hartman and Frank Brandon were playing near by and saw her fall in and go out of sight. They ran to her rescue, when one of them, Harry Sheehan caught her clothes as she came up the first time. They got her to the shore, and she was finally helped to her home. At first, on being taken from the water, he strangled and gasped a good deal, and thought she was so cold, she would freeze. She was in pretty bad shape. The little boys showed a coolness and nerve very remarkable for lads so young, and deserve great praise, especially little Harry Sheehan who pulled her out.

BUGGIES!

Have you called at the KIBLINGER BUGGY REPOSITORY, South of the Court House?

If not, you should do so at once, and see the fine line of

BUGGIES,
SURREYS,
PHAETONS
and ROAD WAGONS

Ever placed on exhibition in Auburn. Our prices correspond to suit the times, and all work

GUARANTEED to be the BEST

that the money will buy.

McDOWELL & CARTER.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

UNITED HOSPITAL AND DISPENSARY, Boston, Mass.

ALLEN C. SMITH, Pres.,

The Centaur Company, 77 Murray Street, New York City.

Saturday's Daily:

The Jones Matter

Last Thursday Mrs. Jones, wife of Charles H. G. Jones, walked into her husband's store and at once began to do business. She informed her husband that she had "come to take her place" and that he could get along without his young lady clerk and she proceeded at once to dispose of her. It took her but a moment to dispose of the clerk and she then turned her attention to her husband and informed him that she had "come to stay," that hereafter she would assist him to do business, and at once went behind the counter and commenced selling goods. Charlie mildly persuaded her to go home and let her and his business alone, but she informed him that she had deliberately marked out her course and decided what she would do and that was, to stay in the store and assist him in running it whether he desired her to do so or not and defied him to put her out, and informed him if he got assistance to put her out she would come back again, and she defied him or the law to thwart her intentions. She staid all day Thursday and on Friday morning she returned, held the fort all day, and this morning "the cat came back." She is still in possession. Yesterday Jones filed a complaint against her in the circuit court and had her cited to appear before his honor Judge Penfield to show cause why she should not be enjoined from interfering with her husband's business. The hearing is set for Monday morning at 8:30 a. m. When the sheriff served the notice on her she defied him and tore the notice in a hundred pieces. She says she will stay there in spite of the sheriff or anybody else and that she will ruin her husband. She asks him to pay her the modest sum of $10,000, at least three times what he is worth. It is just seven years ago yesterday that Charlie brought her here a bride and his troubles commenced that day and have continued every day since and it looks as though the climax had been almost reached. They have not lived together for about six years, and for about two years have not met. Jones has supported her all that time, and she has done no work. She claims that on account of the ill treatment she has received, her nerves and nervous system are shattered and that she is unable to do anything. Her actions for the last few days however appear to indicate that she has plenty of nerve. There is much interest and curiosity exhibited among the citizens as to how the matter will end. At this writing she holds the fort.

MONDAY.

This morning at about half past seven Mrs. Jones made her appearance at his store, and found the door locked. After looking through the glass door to see if any one was inside she seated herself on the door step and remained there undisturbed until half past eight when she discovered Mr. Jones and his attorney approaching the court house, where Judge Penfield was in waiting to hear the injunction case pending between the parties. She immediately went to the court house, and the Judge announced that he was ready to hear the case. Mr. Jones appeared by his attorney and Mrs. Jones appeared in person. The matter was submitted to the court upon the verified complaint and statement of the defendent and the Judge made the following order.

"That the defendent be, and she hereby is restrained from entering the plaintiff's store room, situate on the south third of lot number sixty-six in the original plat of the Town of Auburn Indiana and from in any way interfering with said business in said store etc."

Thereupon the defendent said to the judge that she would at once return to the store and go in and stay there until a satisfactory settlement was made with her. The court informed her that she could not do that, that she must obey the law and the orders of the court, and that if she violated the order, it would be his duty to send her to jail. She answered that, that was just what she wanted, that they might send her to jail and as soon as her time was out she would go back to the store again. The court informed her that if she persisted in violating the order her time would never be out. The court then ordered her to counsel with some of her friends, or an attorney. She looked about and asked "Where have I any friends?" The judge continuing, told her she should seek redress through the court, and when the matter was properly brought before him he would adjust the matter in a proper way.

Mrs Jones then went back to the store and took her seat upon the step as before, in a few minutes afterwards Mr. Jones and Mr. Lanning went to the store, unlocked the door and started in. Mrs Jones at once attempted to get in. Mr. Jones stood in the door and told her she could not get in whereupon she threw herself against him He braced himself, by placing one hand on the jam of the door and took hold of one of the bars of iron, fastened on the window on the other side to protect the glass. She forced him back until the bar of iron gave away and she went in with him. The violation of the order of the Judge was brought to his attention and he made the following further order. "It is ordered by the Judge of the DeKalb Circuit Court at chambers: That an attachment shall be forthwith issued by the clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, directed to the sheriff of said county for said defendant, who shall have defendant in said court on the 1st day of the May term to show cause, if any she have, why she should not be punished for contempt.

Thereupon the clerk issued an attachment for the defendent and placed it in the hands of sheriff Stroh. He called upon the defendant in the store and after reading the same to her, requested her to go with him, which she refused to do, and informed him that he must take her by force. The sheriff then took hold of her arm and lead her over to jail, where she will probably remain until she cools off, and agrees to obey the law.

And here this unfortunate matter rests. The most charitable construction we have heard put on her actions, is, that possibly she is losing her mind. If she is sane, she has a very bad disposition, and the course she has taken, alienated many friends, who till now have sympathised with her. It should be added, that among her grievances, as she states them, she alludes to the reduction on her allowance. Mr. Jones has, ever since their separation made her a weekly allowance for her support. She says that recently he cut the allowance down from $6.00 a week, to $5,00. At the court room she said she would keep away from the store if he would put the allowance back to $6.00. The whole matter may be in court next term, and perhaps a divorce will be the result.

Saturday's Daily.

HIS PENSION.

THE WIDOW APPLIES FOR IT, AND LEARNS HE IS DRAWING IT HIMSELF.

A queer pension case has come to the surface here in Auburn. Harrison W. Jones, was, many years ago, a well known citizen of Auburn. His wife is still an honored citizen, is a sister to Mrs. Kline Mrs. James McClellan, and Jacob Somers. But previous to their marriage, Jones had been in the Mexican War. But in 1865, thirty years ago, he took it into his head to go to the gold mines of Pike's Peak, S. J. Brandon was to go with him, but Mrs. Brandon was taken sick, and he could not go. Jones went however, but has never returned.

He went into the mines and that year moved about from one place to another. Wash Link, who had also gone to that then wild country saw him at Denver. From that point he wrote back that he would soon start for St. Louis and from there home. This was the last heard of him with any certainty. But about the time he would have started home, a stage was attacked by Indians, and word came back that Jones was probably among the killed. This was in the fall of 1865, and the result has been accepted for all these long years.

The supposed widow reared her children and supported them, and they reach an honored maturity. They are John W Jones, Isac Jones, Mrs. Lavey of North Manchester, and Mrs. DeWitt of this place. A few years ago Mrs. Jones concluded to apply for a pension, as the widdow of a Mexican war soldier. A man in Washington was put at the work, but as it did not progress to suit her, she recently gave it to D. Y. Husselman of this place, who is doing a good deal of pension work. Mr. Husselman got it started in good shape, but after a little he failed to receive satisfactory answers from the pension authorities, and wondered what was the matter. He sent them some pretty sharp letters, but without result.

Recently a special pension examiner, located at Laporte, named Pitman, came on here, and looked the matter up. He interviewed Mr. Husselman and a number of others, and now for the first time Mr. Husselman found what caused the silence or evasive answers from the Pension Department. A man named Jones and living in Chicago, was already, drawing what appeared to be the very pension Mrs. Jones was seeking. In both, the description was "Harrison W. Jones, born in Union county, Pa., enlisted at Ft Wayne, Ind., Aug. 28, 1847, in troop "G" U. S. Dragoons, at Jefferson Barracks, Mo. Discharged at close of enlistment at Jefferson Barracks, July 19, 1848."

The result of Pitman's visit to Auburn, has been to show that almost without doubt, the Jones at Chicago, is the long lost Jones, who thirty years ago was given up for dead. Last evening, Isaac Jones went to Chicago to see whether he has a father, or whether he is "an orphan." The result is looked for with some anxiety, by the family and the friends here.

WE HAVE NO AGENTS

but ship from our factory at wholesale prices. Ship anywhere for examination; pay freight both ways if not satisfactory. 100 styles of Carriages. 80 styles of Harness. Send 4 cts. for 112 page catalogue.

ELKHART CARRIAGE AND HARNESS MFG. CO.,

No. 7193 $35. W. S. Pratt, Sec'y, Elkhart, Ind.

WE wish to remind you that

SPRING, GLORIOUS SPRING

Is at hand.

And with it comes house cleaning and the "thousand and one" new articles you will be wanting for your home. We would call your attention to our

CARPET DEPARTMENT

Filled with choice

CARPETS AND CURTAINS

This is the year to buy Carpets. They are prettier, heavier and cheaper by far than ever before. Our line of

LACE CURTAINS

is way beyond what you would expect in a town the size of Auburn. We have a complete line of

SILK TAPESTRY and CHENILLE PORTIERS which cannot help but interest you. Look over our assortment of

CARPET SWEEPERS

SCHAAB & BROTHER

BROWN, CULBERTSON & BOLAND

The leading Hardware and Agricultura Implement Firm in DeKalb Co.

SELLS

Eckhart Buggies,
Turnbull Wagons,
Oliver and Bryan Plows,
Bement Disc and Spring-tooth Harrows,
Bryan Spading Harrows,
Ohio, Albion and New Western Cultivators,
McCormick, Champion and Deering, Binders and Mowers.
Stoves, Tinware, Paints
OILS, Glass, etc., etc.

Come and See

North Side Public Square.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

JAMES A. BARNS, - - PUBLISHER.

AROUND THE WORLD.

INTELLIGENCE FROM ALL PARTS OF THE GLOBE.

News from Foreign Shores—Domestic Happenings—Personal Pointers—Labor Notes—Political Occurrences—Fires, Accidents, Crimes, Etc.

CRUSHING DEFEAT.

Capture of Gen. Maceo Fatal to Cuban Cause.

Havana special: Maceo is captured and Cuba's last hope is gone. Crombet has been killed. Without these two leaders all is chaos in the insurgent ranks and liberty's most ardent friends admit that the Cuban cause is lost.

The Spanish authorities are posting bulletins and the loyalists in Havana are celebrating the ending of the revolution. Without Crombet and Maceo there can be no real war. The Cuban army and the Spanish soldiers met at Palmarito. The rebel forces numbered 2,000 men, while that of the Spaniards was 3,000. A desperate battle followed, and, according to official reports, lasted two hours, at the end of which time the rebels retreated. They were pursued by the Spanish troops and Maceo was captured. His secretary was also taken and all the personal and private papers of Gen. Maceo were confiscated.

The battle was hard fought and the insurgents fought desperately against odds. The Spanish soldiers resisted with remarkable courage the onslaught of the rebels. In the battle, a hand-to-hand conflict occurred, in which a number of Cuban officers, one of whom was a Colonel, were killed. Maceo was a leader of the rebel forces with Gomez during the former revolution. Though but a youth he achieved considerable distinction.

Austria Shaken by an Earthquake.

Venice special: Violent shocks of earthquake were experienced throughout Southern Austria Tuesday night, the manifestations beginning at midnight. At Laibach, thirty-five miles northeast of Trieste, twenty-one shocks were felt between midnight and 7:30 o'clock in the morning. All churches, public buildings and business houses and residences in the town were damaged. Several persons were killed by falling walls, etc., and a large number of persons were more or less seriously injured. At Velden ten shocks were felt, and at Trieste four. Shocks were also felt at Abbasezzia, Arco, Gorizia, Cellir and other places, in all of which buildings were damaged. The direction of the disturbances were from southeast to northwest. Slight vibrations were also felt in this city. Communication between Liabach and Trieste is suspended. In many of the districts between the two towns, as well as in the sections visited by the shocks, the people are camping out in the fields.

In Ashes.

The Hotel Raymond at Pasadena, ten miles from Los Angeles Cal., was totally destroyed by fire. Not a stick of the famous resort is left. The hotel was crowded with tourists, but they all escaped with their lives, although wardrobes and other property were entirely consumed. The cause of the fire is not known. The Raymond was one of the most famous health resorts in the United States. It was a very large structure, built entirely of wood, and was located on a hill, commanding a magnificent view of the San Gabriel Valley.

Washed Ashore.

Valparaiso (Ind.) special: Wreckage from the Chicora is coming to shore on the shore of Lake Michigan, at the north end of this county. A great deal of furniture and boxes of merchandise from the ill-fated vessel have been found. The beach is literally covered with bottles of medicine marked "Chicago and Rockford, Ill." I. Tillotson, a business man, picked up a finger ring in the rubbish that had a large seal with the letter "B" on it. Constant watch is being kept for the bodies.

Treaty of Peace Signed.

The London Times' correspondent in Shanghai says: "Li Hung Chang's son-in-law telegraphs that the treaty of peace was signed in Shimonoseki Tuesday last, and that the terms are: First, the independence of Corea; second, Japanese retention of the conquered places; third, Japanese retention of territory east of the Liao river; fourth, permanent cession of Formosa; fifth, indemnity of $100,000,000; sixth, an offensive and defensive alliance between China and Japan."

Fatal Runaway.

While Rev. and Mrs. J. P. McQueen and children, who reside at Flat Rock, south of Shelbyville, Ind., were driving along the pike, their horse became frightened and ran away, upsetting their rig, and the occupants were thrown against a barbed-wire fence, cutting the mother and a 13-year-old son in a fatal manner. Mrs. McQueen's infant, which was in her armes at the time of the accident, was found dangling from the fence and uninjured.

Hurled to Death.

M. Muzzy was killed by a special train on the C., H. and D. Railway at Connersville, Ind. He was about 60 years old and very deaf. He had been to the depot, and was going back home via the railroad bridge. He was walking along the ties with his head down, when the locomotive struck him, and he was hurled 30 feet into the stream below. Nearly every bone in his body was broken.

Shot a Tramp.

James Riley, a tramp, was shot and killed by Special Officer Stacey, of the Pennsylvania Company, at Canton, Ohio. Riley was running away from the officer. Stacey was arrested on a charge of manslaughter and gave a bond of $3,000.

Killed by Lightning.

A son of John Lynn was killed by lightning near Sturgis, Ky. The boy's brother was on the same horse, but strange to say he was not killed, but is somewhat injured. They had just started to work. The horse which they were riding was also instantly killed.

Crushed in a Rolling Mill.

Wm. C. Fuller, an employe at the rolling mill, at Brazil, Ind., was crushed to death while at work, by being struck with a heavy crane.

Peace Dawns.

Official advices received at the Japanese legation at Washington from Japan indicate that an understanding has been reached between the Japanese and Chinese plenipotentiaries and that the news of the definite conclusion of peace may be expected at any time. The exact terms of the peace cannot as yet be ascertained, but it is understood that in response to the urgent and repeated requests of the Chinese plenipotentiaries for an abatement of the demands originally made by them, the Japanese plenipotentiaries have granted some concessions.

Brief as the foregoing official message is, it marks the close of the Japanese-Chinese war, barring the possibility, of course, of some unexpected hitch at the last moment. The announcement of the exact terms of peace is yet to come, but from what is known of the negotiations thus far the general nature of the peace is evident.

QUITE SLOW.

Is the Progress of Business Toward Recovery.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Progress toward better business continues, but it is slow and meets many obstacles. In speculative aspects and in wholesale demand for goods, the week shows improvement. Money markets are undisturbed and a little more active. But among the chief obstacles is the anxiety of operatives to secure better wages, even while many manufacturing works are running without profit and others at the risk of loss. In a number of establishments better wages have been conceded, thus increasing the purchasing power of the people, but strikes have largely overbalanced settlements. Several of importance having thrown about 12,000 workers out of employment the past week. Retail trade has improved on the whole since March, but the distribution to individual customers still lags behind purchases of jobbers and such demand for products as springs from building and other investments looking into the future. Crop prospects will greatly affect the course of trade for some months, and the government report has little influence to discourage. For consumers, the worst feature is the rapid advance in meats. For the first time in a long period, prices of commodities average a shade higher than a year ago, and in Great Britian also, owing to different causes, a slight advance occurred in March. On both sides of the ocean the lowest level ever known may naturally be followed by some rise.

JAPAN-CHINA.

Speculation in Washington Over the Peace Negotiations.

Washington special: The cable reports that seven of the eight terms of peace between China and Japan are agreed on, occasions speculation here as to the exact terms on which Japan insists. The Japanese legation has received no cables in many days, and officials say they have no information of the eight conditions. No doubt five of the most essential conditions are those given in the dispatches at the outset of the negotiations, viz: A new Japanese-China treaty conceding to Japan extra territorial courts in China, but denying the latter country extra territorial courts in Japan; the independence of Corea; and indemnity of about $200,000,000; the occupation of Port; Arthur and Wei Hai Wei, and the cession of the island of Formosa. These five terms are now fully confirmed by later developments of the conference. Three additional onces have now been added and these relate to trade matters. Which one of these eight terms of peace is the cause of delay is not known here.

HART HANGED.

The Paulding County, Ohio, Butchery Is Avenged.

Charles Hart was hanged in the annex of the Ohio Penitentiary at 12:09 a. m. Friday, for the murder of little Ashley and Elsie Good, in Paulding County, Nov. 4, 1894. Hart was an ignorant lad of 18 years. Although he made a confession after the arrest, he made a statement on the gallows: "I am not guilty of this charge." He was baptized in the Methodist faith before his execution. He died without a struggle, being pronounced dead in 13¼ minutes. Hart, after killing Ashley Good, ravished little Elsie and then cut her throat. He then mutilated both bodies with a corn cutter and tried to burn them on a pile of brush.

Confusion at Pekin.

Vancouver (B. C.) special: The following mail advices have been received by the steamer Empress of Japan, which has arrived at Vancouver: All is confusion in the city of Pekin and threatens to culminate in a panic. Scores of cowardly officers, fearing the appearance of the Japanese army, are asking for leave to visit sick and aged parents. The government has refused them all. Two American ladies were walking on Legation street in Pekin, when they were assaulted by soldiers, while a native guard posted on the street for police protection, looked on and grinned. The ladies' garments were badly torn, but they managed to free themselves and ran into a house of the Russian legation close by. The soldiers who assaulted the ladies were afterwards beaten to death by the angry husbands of the women. The Pekin authorities have allowed the two ladies assaulted to have a guard of Russian soldiers to guard them in their walk.

Indiana Fish Law Stands.

Indianapolis special: Attorney-General Ketcham has sent an opinion to the Secretary of State in regard to the fish law which was passed by the Senate but defeated in the House by a vote of 56 to 6. In some way the bill was enrolled and signed by the presiding officers of the two bodies and then approved by the Governor. As the journal of the House shows the defeat of the bill the Secretary of State wanted advice as to printing it in the acts. The Attorney-General holds, virtually, that the law is operative by referring the Secretary to the recent decision of the Supreme Court in which that body refused to consider anything but the enrolled act, saying that the signatures of the presiding officers were the guarantee of the regularity of the passage. The law will appear in the acts, notwithstanding its defeat by the House.

One Day to Accept.

London special: A Central News dispatch from Shanghai says: A telegram from Peking says that Japan has presented her ultimatum, giving China one day in which to accept or refuse it. Japan has reduced the sum demanded for indemnity by 1,000,000 yen. The Government is divided as to the acceptance of the Japanese proposals. The peace party is willing to accept the terms, but the Honan party is holding out. The position is critical. It is understood that China has informed Russia that she will not accept Japan's terms, and looks to the European powers to save her.

Mines Closed Down.

Brazil (Ind.) special: A number of mines have been closed down in this district recently, and it is throught by many who are in a position to know, that a strike is being talked of by the miners, and in all probability the mines will be closed down for an indefinite period, throwing thousands of men out of employment. The miners are dissatisfied with the present scale of wages paid, and the operators claim that the demand for coal this season has been the smallest for many years and they cannot afford to increase the miners' wages.

Rehearing Denied.

The Indiana Supreme Court has refused to grant a rehearing in the fee and salary case. Sometime ago the court held the law invalid as to treasurers, sheriffs and recorders, because the law failed to fix the salaries of these three officers in the county of Shelby. The court's decision is an answer to a petition filed by Attorney General Ketcham, asking the court to restore the bill as originally engrossed and which was without error, thus making the entire law constitutional.

Ignored Her.

The Columbian line steamer, Allianca, Capt. Crossman, has arrived at New York from Colon. Capt. Crossman reports that on the homeward voyage, he passed within five miles of the Cuban coast. The officer on the bridge sighted the same barkentine-rigged Spanish gunboat that fired at the Allianca on her previous voyage. This gunboat was close under the Cuban coast, heading westward. She paid no attention to the Allianca, which steamed along on her usual course.

Oil Excitement.

Pittsburgh special: The oil excitement here begins to resemble in a mild way the halcyon days of the Pittsburgh exchange. The Standard has advanced its prices 8 cents to $1.35, making an advance of 26 cents in the last three days. Many options opened on the exchange at $1.45 bid and advanced to $1.47½ on the first sale. It then went up to $1.49¼ and then broke to $1.45. The monthly pipe-line report, issued Thursday, was bullish. It showed an increase in acceptance and decrease in stocks. Speculation is hindered by the fact that there are only 531 certificates for 1,000 barrels each now outstanding on all the exchanges. It is probable that the excitement may extend to Buckeye oil and it may be quoted on the exchanges again.

Political Murder.

Senator W. P. Goebel shot and instantly killed Mr. John L. Sanford, cashier of the Farmers' and Traders' bank, of Covington, Ky. Goebel is under arrest. The two men had been political and business enemies for years. Goebel was coming out of the First National bank when he met Sanford, who drew a revolver and fired, the bullet striking Goebel in the shoulder. The latter pulled his pistol and shot three times in quick succession, all three taking effect and causing almost instant death. Goebel then gave himself up. Both men are prominent citizens of Covington. Goebel is a lawyer and at present State Senator from Kenton County. He is one of the best known politicians in the State.

Russia Kicks.

It is stated on excellent authority that Russia has determined to make diplomatic opposition to the annexation by Japan of any portion of the Asiatic continent. The Russian army and navy in the far east are being reinforced with the view of supporting this decision. The Russian government has also resolved not to interfere in Armenia, in order to have a free hand in the far east.

Confirm the Massacres

London special: Three refugees from Sassoun have arrived in this city, where they are the guests of the Anglo-Armenian Committee. They were eyewitnesses of the massacre by the Turks and Kurds, and their evidence confirms the reports of the atrocities. The child of one of them was cut to pieces before his eyes. They themselves had narrow escapes.

Eyes Burned Out.

Chas. Scheinstein, a molder at the Warren Pipe Foundry, Phillipsburg, N. J., met with a terrible death. While assisting to pour a ton of molten iron in a mold the chain holding the ladle broke, and Scheinstein was jerked into a pit, with the liquid metal on top of him. His eyes were burned out and his legs and hands were almost severed from his body.

Died from Immersion.

At Oakland, Md., Jacob Messer, a young man lying at the point of death, was persuaded by the Dunkards to submit to being immersed. He was carried to a stream on a cold day last week and ducked three times into the water. Three days later he died and the State's attorney proposes to institute proceedings against the perpetrators of the outrage.

British Steamer Seized.

The London Times publishes a dispatch from its correspondent at Shanghai saying that a Japanese man-of-war has seized the British steamer Yik-Sang outside Yaku, having on board 220,000 cartridges shipped at Shanghai by a respectable firm as "bamboo and steel." The owners of the Yik-Sang, it is added, accepted the shipment in good faith.

All Repealed.

At a meeting of the new Chicago Common Council the alleged "boodle" ordinances, the Ogden Gas, Cosmopolitan Electric and Commercial heat, light and power, were repealed by virtue of the large Republican majority, the vote being 45 to 18. Mayor Swift will approve the repealing ordinances.

Russia to Cultivate Tea.

Consul General Karel at St. Petersburg reports to the State Department that the Russian Government is making strong efforts to extend the cultivation of tea in the Empire. Representatives have been sent to the East Indies to study the methods in vogue there and bring experienced workmen to Russia.

Frightened to Death.

Mrs. Eugene S. Aldrich and her daughter were driving across the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway track at Waterloo, Ind., when their horse shied, but did not run. The young lady jumped and was unhurt. Her mother remained in the carriage and was frightened to death.

Two Robbers Get Away with $16,000.

The mail and express wagon which connects with the Midland Terminal railroad at Grassey, was boarded about two miles from Cripple Creek, Col., by two men, who overpowered the driver, Robert Smith, secured an express package containing $16,000 and escaped.

The Army of the Potomac.

The executive committee of the Society of the Army of the Potomac has arranged to hold the annual meeting and reunion at New London, Conn., on June 18 and 19. Gen. John Gibbon, U. S. A., will be the orator, and H. C. Brennan of New York, the poet.

THE MARKETS.

Chicago—Cattle, common to prime $3.75 to $6.50; hogs, shipping grades $3 to $5.50; sheep, fair to choice, $2.50 to $5; wheat, No. 2 red, 54c to 55c; corn, No. 2, 45c to 46c; oats, No. 2, 29c to 30c; rye, No. 2, 56c to 58c; butter, choice creamery, 20c to 20½c; eggs, fresh, 11½c to 12½c; potatoes, car lots, per bushel, 75c to 85c; broom corn, per lb, common growth to fine brush, 4c to 6½c.

Indianapolis—Cattle, shipping, $3 to $6.25; hogs, choice light, $3 to $5; sheep, common to prime, $2 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2 red, 55c to 55½c; corn, No. 1 white, 46c to 46½c; oats, No. 2 white, 33c to 34c.

St. Louis—Cattle, $3 to $6.50; hogs, $4 to $5.25; wheat, No. 2 red, 54c to 55c; corn, No. 2, 43c to 43½c; oats, No. 2, 30c to 31c; rye, No. 2, 57c to 58c.

Cincinnati—Cattle, $3.50 to $6.25; hogs, $3 to $5.50; sheep, $2.50 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2, 55c to 56c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 47c to 48c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 31½c to 32½c; rye, No. 2, 58c to 60c.

Detroit—Cattle, $2.50 to $6.25; hogs, $4 to $5; sheep, $2 to $4.75; wheat, No. 1 white, 59c to 60c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 46c to 46½c; oats, No. 2 white, 35c to 36c.

Toledo—Wheat, No. 2 red, 56c to 57c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 46c to 46½c; oats, No. 2 white, 31c to 32c; rye, No. 2, 54c to 56c.

Buffalo—Cattle, $2.50 to $6.50; hogs, $3 to $5.75; sheep, $3 to $5.25; wheat, No. 2 red, 60c to 60½c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 49c to 50c; oats, No. 2 white, 35c to 36c.

Milwaukee—Wheat, No. 2 spring, 57c to 58c; corn, No. 3, 48c to 48½c; oats, No. 2 white, 32c to 33c; barley, No. 2, 52c to 53c; rye, No. 1, 55c to 57c; pork, mess, $12 to $12.50.

New York—Cattle, $3 to $6.75; hogs, $4 to $5.50; sheep, $3 to $5.25; wheat, No. 2 red, 62c to 63c; corn, No. 2, 51c to 52c; oats, white Western, 37c to 41c; butter, creamery, 14c to 22c; eggs, Western, 13c to 13½c.

THREATENED BY LAW

BIG MEAT COMBINE GUILTY OF RESTRAINT.

Every Member May, on Conviction, Be Sent to Prison and Their Stocks May Be Seized—Record of the Monopoly in Its Fight with Producers.

Federal Statute Fits the Case.

Every person who shall monopolize, or attempt to monopolize, or combine or conspire with any other person or persons, to monopolize any part of the trade or commerce among the several States, or with foreign nations, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by both said punishments, in the discretion of the court.

If ever the provisions of a penal statute fitted the crime against which it was aimed, the above sections of "An act to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies" reaches the great meat combine, which has its headquarters in Chicago.

In the methods by which it has already raised the retail price of beef 30 per cent., with a prospect of further increase, the beef combine, in the opinion of a New York paper, has placed itself easily within the grasp of United States law and justice. Every member of such a combine may be sent to jail and compelled to pay a fine, and, furthermore, the cattle and dressed beef used in pursuance of the conspiracy may be seized and confiscated by the Federal authorities. It remains to be seen whether justice is as swift and sure as the wrong is great.

P. D. Armour & Co., Swift Bros. and Nelson Morris are the head and front of the combine, and the New York house of Schwarzschild & Sulzberger is by many said to belong to it. Its manipulations in past years have so aroused public sentiment throughout the West that State Legislatures have in many cases responded to a popular demand for relief.

The combine manipulates at both ends. It makes prices low to producers and high to consumers. Its members constitute the principal purchasing element in the three great primary markets of the country—

THE CHICAGO STOCKYARDS.

Chicago, Kansas City and South Omaha. Before the beginning of each day's business their agents meet and fix the price for the different classes of stock. The first offer which the seller gets he almost invariably rejects, for he realizes that it is far below what it should be, but when he seeks the other buyers he is met with the same offer. At last, realizing that to hold his stock costs heavily, he sells at the combine's own terms.

There formerly was a very considerable rival purchasing element at these markets in the shippers, and when the combine would attempt to unduly depress the market, the shippers would step in and purchase, thus forcing the combine to pay the market price, if it got any stock. But the shippers have been worsted, and most of those who were not ruined by the constant fighting have gone out of the shipping business. The combine had the advantage of not only being able to make the shippers pay high prices at their buying markets, but accept low prices at their selling markets, no matter where those selling markets were.

PHILIP D. ARMOUR.
(One of Chicago's meat magnates accused of forcing up the price of meat.)

In the smaller cities of the central and far West, the combine has driven the small local butchers out of business.

One method of the combine to rob the consumer is adopted in years following partial failures of the corn crop. This is the method, if any, which is being pursued now. All that the combine's representatives say as to corn being the only basis for first-class beef is true, and the shortage in the supply of this necessary food is the one condition necessary to a cornering scheme.

It is a suggestive fact that last fall when it was known that the corn crop was a partial failure, there was no especial advance in the price of cattle. There was some advance, it is true, but not enough to attract attention. The enemies of the combine say it was very careful that there should be no advance at that time, for its agents were even then searching out the sources of future supplies of corn-fed beeves, and contracting for them.

Through the winter the combine, it is charged, labored indefatigably, and although it knew that there was a shortage in the supply of good cattle, it made little attempt to advance prices to dealers. It was waiting, it is charged, until it had the market effectually cornered, before it showed its hand.

It is a suggestive fact that while the price of cattle on the hoof has advanced very slightly within two weeks the price of meat to the consumer has jumped up nearly 30 per cent. If the advance to the final consumer were legitimate it would have simply kept pace with the advance in the price of cattle on the hoof. This fact exposes the claims put forth by the combine and also gives some idea of its enormous profit of late.

To the rich the advance in prices will come as no particular hardship, but to the thousands of laboring people, to whom meat is a necessity, the advance proves a grievous burden.

Texas authorities indicted John D. Rockefeller and other officials of the Standard Oil Company for conspiring to destroy opposition and increase the price of their commodity. Beef is much more a necessity of life to the poor than oil is, and the robbery is much more patent and more deeply felt in the work of the meat combine. Repressive measures and the punishment of the parties to the conspiracy are called for by hundreds of thousands of victims, and an attempt will be made to get the Federal authorities to act.

J. W. SCOTT IS DEAD.

Owner of the Chicago "Times-Herald" Passes Away of Apoplexy.

James W. Scott, proprietor of the Chicago Times-Herald and Evening Post, died suddenly of apoplexy Sunday afternoon in his apartments at the Holland House in New York. Mrs. Scott and her young niece, Grace Hatch, were with him when he died. Mr. and Mrs. Scott and the little girl went to New York on Friday. Mr. Scott was in usual health, apparently, all day Saturday. He awoke Sunday morning and complained of a sharp pain in his side. Gustave Bauman, proprietor of the hotel, sent for his family physician. The physician diagnosed the pain as a symptom of renal calculus, and administered morphine hypodermically. Mrs. Scott became worried four hours later on hearing the patient's breathing grow heavy and stertorous. When the physician reached Mr. Scott's bedside he saw the symptoms had changed. Realizing and suspecting that apoplexy had supervened, he sent for stimulants and went to his office to procure some remedies, but when he returned Mr. Scott had breathed his last.

Mr. Scott had not been in good health for a year or more, although in appearance he was robust. The responsibilities of business had weighed heavily upon him. The consolidation of the Times and Herald and the negotiations resulting in the purchase of a controlling interest in both properties had engrossed his attention for some months and prevented him from taking proper rest. When all his plans had been brought to a successful conclusion and he was apparently in a position at last to enjoy the fruits of his labors he was stricken down. His death occurred in the first days of a vacation that he felt he had earned and which he was admonished he imperatively required.

Mr. Scott's relations with his business associates and rivals were always friendly. He originated the Chicago Publishers' Association, which insured friendly co-operation in the decision of business questions of common interest, and the association owed the largest part of its successful operation to his fostering care. Among those who came into contact with him in a business way he left only friends. He had an exceedingly large acquaintance among working newspaper men in all parts of the country, and there is hardly anybody whose loss will be more deplored by them than his will be.

James W. Scott was born to the work in which he made his name. His grandfather was a newspaper man, as was his own father; so when 1849 brought a son to the household of D. Wilmott Scott at Wadsworth, Wis., he was christened James W. and dedicated to newspaper work. When he was only a few years old his father moved to Galena, Ill., and it was here that young Scott got most of his schooling. It was in the job office attached to his father's paper that James W. Scott first learned to handle type.

JAMES MONROE.

The Author of the Famous Doctrine that Bears His Name.

In view of the frequency with which the Monroe doctrine is quoted in relation to our attitude toward Great Britain over Nicaragua and Veneznela, it is pertinent to quote the words of President James Monroe in enunciating this policy of the United States. First, however, it is well to state the conditions that made the declaration of Monroe pertinent and necessary.

In 1810 Chili declared its independence of Spain, and was followed by Paraguay in 1811, Colombia, then including Venezuela, in 1819, and Mexico and Peru in 1821. The following year Brazil revolted from Portuguese domination. Other south and central American States had declared their independence of European control, and it was the covert attempt to re-establish it that called from President Monroe his famous doctrine, which was contained in his annual message to the Eighteenth Congress, Dec. 2, 1823:

"We owe it to candor and to the amicable relations existing between the United States and the allied powers, to declare that we should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety. With the existing colonies or dependencies of any European power we have not interfered, and shall not interfere, but with the Governments which have declared their independence and maintained it, and whose independence we have, on great consideration and just principles, acknowledged, we could not view an interposition for oppressing them, or controlling in any other manner, their destiny, by any European power, in any other light than as a manifestation of an unfriendly disposition toward the United States."

JAMES MONROE.

FARM TOOLS NOT FREE

TAXED AT A RATE ABOVE OTHER ARTICLES OF THEIR CLASS.

Shrewd Compromise Which the Manufacturers Effected—England Cannot Now Compete with America in Woolen Manufacture.

It's a Delusion.

In the Iron Age there is mention of large exports of agricultural implements and machinery by the Walter A. Wood Mowing and Reaping Machine Company, of Hoosick Falls, N. Y. The steamship Douro, at New York, is being freighted with 150 carloads of mowers, rakes, reapers, harvesters and binders, tedders, etc., for Odessa, Russia. The same company is loading 500 tons of similar goods on another steamer for Kiev, Russia, via Riga; and the steamer Alesia is taking on board over 500 tons of agricultural implements for Algiers and Tunis. It might be judged from this trade incident that American manufacturers of agricultural tools and machinery are pretty well able to hold their own in the markets of the world against all foreign competitors; and some of them are frank enough to admit that no duty is necessary for their protection. But whenever any attempt is made to remove or reduce the duty on these goods a most vigorous protest is drawn from the manufacturers. It has been proven many times, and has been openly admitted by some of the manufacturers, that they ship their goods to foreign countries, pay all expenses and duties, and sell them at or below the prices charged in this country. It is a matter of record in the printed testimony submitted to the Senate Committee on Finance last summer that American implement manufacturers have been selling their goods in Canada for years, paying the duty of 35 per cent. imposed by that country, and still charging no more than the prices asked in the United States.

In 1894 the exports of agricultural implements and machinery amounted in value to $4,765,793; and in 1893 the total was $5,191,223. More than a million dollars worth of these articles is sent annually to the Argentine Republic, largely for use in the great wheat fields of that country; and in nearly every land on the face of the globe American mowers, reapers and binders and smaller implements will be found. Canada took last year $172,451 worth, and $242,630 worth in 1893, despite a duty nearly as high as that imposed by this Government. There is no record, however, of the importation into the United States of any articles of this class.

Before the Wilson bill passed the House of Representatives agricultural implements and machinery were placed upon the free list in order to give to American farmers the privilege of purchasing these appliances at the same prices paid abroad. Immediately the manufacturers, by concerted action, deluged the Senate Finance Committee with protests against the removal of the old duty of 45 per cent. imposed on all unspecified manufacturers of metal. With a shrewdness that probably escaped the attention of all but those directly interested, the manufacturers effected a compromise by adding to the free list paragraph a proviso that when such articles are imported from a country which lays an import duty on like articles imported from the United States they shall be subject to the duties existing prior to the passage of the present law. Canada, the only country recognized as a competitor of the United States in the agricultural implement trade, imposes a duty of 35 per cent. on farm tools and machinery; so the effect of the conditional free list paragraph is to give to the American manufacturers the old McKinley duty of 45 per cent. Had there been no specific mention of agricultural implements and machinery in the new tariff law these articles would have been dutiable at only 35 per cent., the new rate on miscellaneous manufactures.

The vast wheat growing territory along our Northwestern border line is the section most affected by this duty; for the farmers are unable to avail themselves of the lower-priced Canadian implements, while they can see the American goods shipped across the line to the adjoining Canadian wheat fields and sold at lower prices than are charged in this country. The free agricultural implements of the German tariff law are a delusion. Practically they are dutiable at a rate that is nearly 30 per cent. above the duty on articles of the class in which they belong.—Philadelphia Record.

Can't Compete with America.

The new tariff is reversing the old situation. The English are now complaining that they cannot compete with the cheap woolens made in this country. A cable to the Associated Press from London says:

"A lockout of employes among the Leicester operatives is imminent. The trouble is due to a reduction of wages claimed to be made necessary by the influx of American goods, which are flooding England. The British manufacturers claim that their trade will be gone entirely unless the payment of lower wages enables them to meet the American competition."

It is American "pauper wages" that is now disturbing the amenities of trade. While the American manufacturer was forbidden to procure his wool supply from any part of the old world, untaxed, he was shut out of Europe. He is now breaking into the markets of the old world in various places. British manufacturers are making the competition of American woolens the justification for a cut of the wages of their operatives. The same report may be expected from Germany, as the American Consul at Stuttgart finds that American carpets are being introduced there. Mr. Blaine said American operatives in cotton mills were paid less in proportion to work done than English operatives in the same line. Their weekly wages are a little more than those of the English, but, as Mr. Blaine said, "(this is more than made up by their greater efficiency and longer hours of labor."

The same is doubtless true in woolen mills. The removal of the tariff wall puts the American on an equality with the foreigner in the privileges of procuring his raw material on the most favorable terms, and the consequence is seen in the invasion of England and Germany by American woolens and carpets, and the threatened lockout of Leicester operatives, the English proprietors claiming that they cannot compete with America and pay their old wage rate.

The free wool clause of the tariff law, the most radical feature in it, is receiving a prompt and remarkable vindication.—Herald, Quincy, Ill.

Two Charges Against High Tariffs.

High-tariff duties have been a curse to most manufacturers as well as to all consumers. They have increased the cost of raw materials to all kinds of manufacturers. To offset this handicap higher duties have been placed upon manufactured products. These have practically given our manufacturers a monopoly of our markets and have encouraged and fostered the formation of trusts and combines to extort from the American people all that the tariff would permit. The fact that our manufacturers, except in certain industries, have had no real competition for many years has retarded invention and greatly checked progress. It costs money and effort to experiment with new machines and devices, and most manufacturers will make such experiments only when necessity compels them to do so. The high tariff has removed this necessity, and has therefore retarded the development of our manufacturing industries. This evil of high tariffs has been recognized by some of our prominent manufacturers—notably those in the glass and woolen industries.

A still more serious charge against McKinleyism is that it has enabled manufacturers capable of competing with all comers to sell at protected prices in our markets, and at free-trade prices in foreign markets. This method of doing business has become so fashionable that exporters expect special prices for export, and some of them boast to their customers that there is no manufactured American article that is not sold cheaper for export than to the home trade. This difference usually varies from 5 to 20 per cent., but sometimes reaches 50 per cent., as in the case of some kinds of cartridges and ammunition sold by the Cartridge Trust. The lower duties of the Wilson bill have compelled some trusts and manufacturers to lessen this discrimination, but the tariff reductions were not radical enough to stop this disgraceful business except in the case of agricultural implements, which are now free from most countries. The manufacturers of these implements have become so accustomed to giving reduced prices for export that they will probably continue for a while to give extra discounts of 5 or 8 per cent. to the export trade. They cannot, as heretofore, give large extra discounts, because the implements will then be reimported. In time they will become convinced that an American is just as good as a foreign cusomer, and will treat both alike.—Byron W. Holt.

Prosperous Factories.

It ought to add greatly to the cheerfulness of the country to see that the New York Tribune is disposed to take a highly hopeful view of the condition and prospects of manufacturing industries which, as some supposed, would surely fall into a condition of complete decay if any measure of tariff reform were adopted.

Far from being of this opinion, the Tribune asserts with emphasis that Fall River manufacturers are prospering in a gratifying way. It says that sales are unusually large, that there is less than a week's production on hand and that the demand for wide fabrics is too great to be met for some weeks to come.

In addition to all these evidences of prosperity under the revised tariff, it declares that at Fall River "within the last two weeks more than half a dozen corporations have paid quarterly dividends ranging from 1½ to 2 per cent., and none of them are reported as going behind."

In support of these auspicious facts we have on the same day a telegram from Lawrence that in the woolen mills at Haverhill, Andover, North Andover and Franklin Falls wages which were cut last year have been restored by the manufacturers without waiting for a demand—this in fulfillment of a promise that the restoration should be made as soon as business became prosperous enough to warrant it.

Clearly the croaking prophecies of the warlocks of calamity are out of date at last.—New York World.

A Dead Issue.

"Protection of the McKinley sort," says the New York Times, is not a living issue in American politics to-day. It was put to sleep, in the prize-ring phrase, in 1890 and 1892. No sane politician would dare to propose its resuscitation." But the Times' neighbor, the Tribune, the leading Republican organ of the East; is proposing to revive it—a proposition, however, which can be viewed with entire complacency by the free traders as an indication of that madness of protectionists which would precede destruction.

Speaking of the coming Presidential campaign, the Cincinnati Tribune (Rep.) says: "The Republicans must adhere firmly to the principles of protection, but at the same time it must be thoroughly understood that the notion of high, prohibitive protection has served its purpose."

Watch the sky for what are called "mars' tails." These appearing after clear weather show the track of the wind in the sky. A rosy sunset predicts fair weather. A red sky in the morning foretells bad weather. A gray sky in the morning means fine weather. If the first streaks of light at dawn are seen above a bank of clouds look out for wind; if they are close to or on the horizon the weather will be fair. In general, soft, delicate colors in the sky, with indefinite forms of clouds, mean fair weather; gaudy, unusual colors and hard-edged clouds mean rain, and probably wind.

Two years' time will be needed in which to complete the decoration of the new Congressional library at Washington, and the work will be in the hands of a commission headed by John La Farge.

We hate our own sins most when we see them walking around in the shoes of somebody else.

VENGEANCE BY VERA ROSEBERY.

A Story of a Briton in American Society. Written for This Paper by A. Oakey Hall.

CHAPTER II.—Continued.

She instantly with a new blush changed the subject, and added, "Tell me if I have what you call an American accent. Do you know—pardon me, I should have said dontcherknow—when I was in London two years ago everybody challenged my American accent. Now, here we do not challenge your British accent, but pass it by."

"Is it noticeable, then?"

"Now let me be British—'Rawther.'"

He felt the hit to be clever and smiled—showing a fine set of white Saxon teeth—then good-humoredly said, 'Please give me some more examples.'"

"Well, in general, if we Americans speak from the nose at times, especially during blizzards, you seem to possess a grill in your throats which broils language drawlingly. I could travel, were I a French or German woman, all over England did I know only two words—'fancy' and 'quite so.' You say 'cultsha' for cult-ure. Your letter 'a' becomes as broad as our rivers, and instead of being 'sure' of a thing you are 'sher of it.' But why accumulate instances? Accent, after all, is a mere internal game of give and take."

Carson, with all his imperturbability, could at this juncture have brained the "dude" who at this moment came and claimed Miss Vera for a "dawnse." He, too, was on accent bent, but it was a poor imitation of a Curzon street drawl. Miss Vera Roseberry also looked annoyed, and as she was borne away like a Zenobia at the wheels of conqueror, the Briton again felt the strange and new sensation of having been socially magnetized—he the "used-up," blase tourist of the world. He watched her in the adjoining room, evidently dancing mechanically, and clearly absorbed in her thoughts. His own absorption followed as he took leave, and it did not desert him when he reached his rooms and encountered Mivins, who was also in evening dress.

When the invitation came for the latter, under the supposition that he was a nobleman in disguise, he took counsel at once of his master, who, relishing the contretemps, advised him to accept, and coached him in the role he was to play. He was simply to deny the imputation, and to insist upon the great honor done him, to marvel at the condescension, and be natural. "If I indulge in the extravagance of a body servant, why should he not minister to my fun?"

CHAPTER III.

Months had elapsed since their landing, and Mivins had found in a member of the detective staff of the city police one with whom, during a visit of the latter to London, he had become "chummy." This was one of the shrewdest of his class, and who had passed an ordinary lifetime as a modern Fouche. He was familiarly known as Golden Tim—a soubriquet as well understood at Scotland Yard as at the Mulberry street police headquarters. Under his guidance Mivins had "seen the sights" of Manhattan to their realistic maximum.

One can estimate, therefore, the surprise with which Golden Tim on the evening of Mrs. Merton's reception saw Mivins the center of an eager group of guests who were evidentially differential to him. Well they might be, for the hostess with many smirks and smiles and implied innuendoes, had bruited it around that there was the eccentric nobleman—a veritable "Lord Bateman of high degree," who was incognito exploring the States and looking out for a wife while concealing his identity. Of course Golden Tim was thus far ignorant of the cause and of the romantic relations of Mivins and his little public.

Equal surprise came upon the latter person when a mirror in front of him revealed the features of the detective. Presently they met.

"Not a word as to my identity," was about the hushed and whispered salutation of each.

"Identity, indeed," quoth the body servant, "I have lost mine. The conversation of the hostess and of nearly all the people here seems that of Queer street. But as you ask why I am here, how is it you are?"

"I am only professionally known to Mrs. Merton. I attend many receptions and weddings, and my face becomes known to many guests without their guessing my vocation. Know that not only ground swells and not a few of the swell mob obtain forced entrance to these entertainments; whereat it is a wise host who knows all his guests but the bona fide guests that I am employed to watch."

"To watch?"

"There are light fingers in the fashionable as in the adventure world. Many a wedding present disappears. Many an ornament falls to—well, let me say—the floor, and is never found by its owner. Besides, I am advised to watch, this evening, one particular chap."

"Who is he?"

"Never you mind yet; but I'll tell you before long. But what has been done to you that you are losing identity?"

Before Mivins could speak the question was practically answered by another group settling around him, led by the ubiquitous Mrs. Leo Hunter.

"Was your lordship—I beg pardon"—there was a little blush here as if apologizing for undue eagerness—"were you wearied of listening to compliments," she said. "Here are several who wish introductions to you and who have heard of your prowess in the park."

Introductions followed, and she confidentially whispered to the detective: "So you, too, are on the scent." And she rolled her eyes significantly in the direction of Mivins.

The former, not understanding, or rather misunderstanding, her reference, whispered in response: "I feel sure he is not what he represents himself to be." But the detective was referring to the baronet, on whom the suspicions of the Mulberry street officials had already fallen. Her eyes twinkled in triumph as she answered in one of her mysterious whispers: "Of course he is not, but what can his rank be?"

"No rank at all, I fear. He may be an impostor."

"Impostor- Impossible!" and her face lengthened.

"But I must attend to him now, as the supper crush is beginning," and Golden Tim made his way toward the frantic hungry crowd in the adjoining room, followed by the bewildered Mrs. Leo Hunter.

Presently three persons emerged from the supper room—two of whom, a man and a woman, were evidently in a state of excitement. The other was the detective, cool as an icicle on Chamouni.

"What means this impertinence?" said the man.

"This is my accepted husband," added the lady to the detective. "What do you mean by this behavior?"

She was an imperious and well preserved matron—a widow of family and fortune.

"A short time ago you were wearing in your hair, madame, an ornament composed of an opal surrounded by diamonds."

She put her hand to her coiffure. It was gone.

The man turned pale.

"Did you pick it up? I have dropped it."

The detective, with a quick, yet quiet movement, ran his hand into the man's breast pocket and pulled out the ornament, while the false baronet aimed an ineffectual blow at his assailant.

"See what they are doing to Sir Frederick Murray," cried a lady, coming toward them. At this some groups rushed toward where the three were standing. The detective, in a low voice, said, as he slightly touched the wig, "Bob Sutton, you are dead to rights. Come out quietly and avoid a scene."

But the lady had diverted attention by fainting.

She was at least saved from a wretched existence on the other side of the water, such as several American heiresses have known who blundered into wedlock.

Mrs. Merton instantly became a Niobe, so far as "tears, idle tears" were concerned, and like many women puzzled in any emergency, turned for blame upon the nearest person, who happened to be Mivins. "If I have heard rightly, in my astounded frame of mind, the baronet is no baronet, and a thief. Pray, then, are you also a false lord?"

Such of the guests who had not already sought the shawling room gathered around her and looked Maltese daggers at the retreating supposititious nobleman. "Poor deluded dear!" became the substantial chorus of the group, to which was added recitative reading, thus: "Such impositions are to be expected when we admit the scum of Europe freely to our shores."

CHAPTER IV.

When Mivins reached the apartments he related his adventures to Carson, whose imperturbability and carelessness for emotion relaxed into peals of laughter, saying: "I discovered some time ago that the baronet was 'bogus'—to use some slang I learned in Wall street—and I trust the incident may become a social lesson to American hostesses on the lookout for titled foreigners."

His courtesy-lordship as a younger son had, when in London, received scant attention from British matrons and daughters who ranked in the list of eligibles; and he had been too indolent, and, perhaps, too selfish to care for marrying money where it abounded outside of "eligibles." In truth, he was fastidious—a quality which is the progenitor of ennui, that itself is the parent of cynicism. But he had studied women throughout his travels—those of heartless Paris, of flippant Italy, of the voluptuous Orient, of domestic Germany and of heedless Sweden. But now for the first time he had been moved to a delight in feminine companionship by Vera Rosebery. Of the social swims in which she disported he had come to make a point of taking close cognizance. Nor had she now become, as she had heretofore been, indifferent to swainship. She was a half orphan residing with her mother. The father, once an admiral, had left them a fortune that he himself had inherited. Vera had enjoyed every possible advantage. Her childhood had been trained in the Manhattanville Convent of the Sacred Heart. Her forte was in language, of which she spoke several. She was mistress of the harp. An excellent memory, wide range of reading, cultured habits of thought, impromptu wit, fondness for repartee and ready command of speech, with much residence in Europe, had made of her a brilliant conversationalist. Her old governess had named her Miss Crichton, after the "Admirable" Scot. But she threw around her beauty, her grace, and her accomplishments a cold reserve that held at a distance the attentions of men that paralyzed what society had begun to term "dudes." Perhaps it was the sang froid of Carson that first attracted her attention to him so that he became a guest of her mother's house, and bore with infinite patience her persistent raillery. His amusing indifference to life, the mystery hanging about him, and the eccentricity of a banking clerk keeping a body servant became additional incidents of attention. Neither was admittedly to each other in love with the other; yet each confessedly cared for association with the other. Such a combination in friendship, however, often brings around the best union of head and heart. Was it not written in one of the ephemera of the first Lord Lytton that sexual association invariably led to that state of heart and head which found perfect happiness in the companionship of two persons of different sexes, and gave comparative misery during their mutual absence. Misery only mollified by the hope of fresh companionship—a state to which Lord Lytton gave the name of love.

When her mother once hinted at such a word, and deprecated her "throwing herself away upon a clerk or secretary of whom nobody knew anything," Vera heartily laughed; yet when she retired to her apartments, her mirror, if it had a tongue, could have prated other thoughtful demeanor there, and of her quietude, as if a catechism of a certain kind was being applied by the "Me" to the "Myself."

When once the banker-employer slightly rallied Carson upon his attentions to the lady, Carson also laughed, but also grew thoughtful and taciturn.

She had often endeavored to turn his conversation upon English matters and social associations in British cities and ruralties, yet entirely without definite clews as to whom he might be. His very avoidance of his past, except as to his travels and adventures, more and more increased the mystery, and aroused her interest. She could, of course, like many of her sex, have aired her curiosity in questions, or have intruded herself upon his secretiveness by many an adroit reference. But she was "an angel who feared to tread," however much others might be tempted to "rush in."

"The Dead Heart" is of late a current phrase. That Carson possessed a dead heart was the general impression among his acquaintances. Yet in his day, or rather heydey, he had been popular among women; yet had never been entangled. There was an indescribable magnetism about him which at first fascinated and then deepened its attraction. When he chose to talk, it was upon other people's topics and not his own. This method interests listeners and banishes self-consciousness. Of such a kind was the conversation of Macaulay. Of such a kind is not the talk of Ruskin. The adroit conversationalist having limpid reservoirs to tap knows how to draw silvery flows of language.

But is "dead heart" a truthful phrase? A heart's emotion may be congealed by sorrow or made apathetic by ingratitude; but to every such heart there can come the healing touch of some circumstance.

Carson's heart had long been apathetic under a stratum of selfishness. It had been at times congealed by disappointments. Vera's heart had never been congealed, but a want of any fairy touch from an event had held it in a state of syncope. Carson's apparent indifference had given her heart a quicker beat. Her unwonted companionship had thawed his habitual iciness of emotion. When a skater whisks toward thin ice there is often a hapless fascination to him in the placard "dangerous;" and so a man in love, yet fully realizing the precariousness, or, perhaps, impolicy of his suit, will nevertheless tempt himself with hopes and companionship. Carson, one night, fell asleep murmuring, "What a grand duchess Vera would make if—if," but the contingency was so entirely distant that when he fell asleep the smile at such a folly remained upon his face.

In a few months his opportunities for social enjoyment were enhanced by the receipt of some unexpected balance from the confidential solicitors of the family, who of course knew and kept all of his secrets. Vera's birthday intervened, and she received from him one souvenier of a tasteful writing case of original design—his own—and of unique comfort in use. Vera had rallied him kindly but firmly on his extravagance, but he parried it pleasantly.

A friend of Vera, seeing it in her boudoir, remarked upon it: "Do you know there is gossip about you two? Cave amorom, as my college brother quotes it."

Vera answered: "If there were anything in the gossip my will power would be strong enough to put that or anything else of the kind wholly out of my life."

"Yes," rejoined the feminine friend, "but remember the lines, 'He comes too near who comes to be denied,' and such a denial might encourage. But possibly it is a case of la reme quis amuse."

"It is not only folly in a worldly sense, but I could never tolerate his insouciance, confessed weariness of existence and abominable sang froid that is often the shield of cowardice."

In due time the day arrived for the trial of the fallen baronet, and Mivins, who happened to have witnessed the extraordinary legerdemain of the theft, was to be the witness. The court room was crowded and the corridors of the building thronged by unsuccessful applicants for seats. Society that had worshipped even the shadow of a supposed baronet was now eager to exult at his downfall. While technically he might be guilty of theft, practically society wished him convicted for this humbugging of society. That popularly considered was his crime.

Among the audience was Carson. The whole affair struck him as if it were a theatrical entertainment. He missed the quietude of London's central criminal court, and the white wigs and flowing gowns of lawyers. He admired the red cravat of the presiding judge who was clad in such a morning dress as he would have worn at a weding. He was amused at the questions addressed to the jurors before they were sworn. He marvelled at the cameradeship that seemed to exist all around. The impertinence of some of the questions addressed to the witnesses who sat at their ease instead of standing at great discomfort as in an English court. And he was puzzled by the cross-firing of words between counsel, and the confusions of "We object!" "Please note an exception," and by the free and easy way in which the recorder was hectored by counsel and by the deprecatory air of the judge, who under no circumstances wished to offend a man who might be a voter when the judge came up for re-election. But most of all Carson trembled for Mivins when he became a witness, and he admired most the celerity with which testimony was given and taken down in writing by the official stenographer, so different from the slow and delayed manner of taking long hand notes that was in vogue at London trials. And greatly to his surprise the baronet was allowed to tell his own story from the witness chair, when in England his mouth would have to be sealed.

The name of Mivins created what the reporters wrote down as "a sensation." The story of his saving a life in Central Park, and of the curious mistake made at the reception regarding his rank, had been duly chronicled by the press, and had made him as much of an interest as the ci devant Baronet himself. The prosecuting lawyer had generously admitted the ownership of the jewel so as to save the mortification of the appearance of the young lady who had been the dupe of the accused, so Mivins seemed to have, as actors phrase it, "all the fat of the part."

His cross-examination began, and among the questions was this one: "In whose employ are you?" Mistily the words "swear to the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth" came to him, and he faltered as his eyes caught those of his master, and as he noted the flush upon his cheek. His hesitancy prompted the prosecuting lawyer to object. "It is the practice," thought Carson, "in America for counsel to object to everything and take chances." A wrangle ensued, during which some of the jurors patronized an old woman who was sauntering about the court room offering "apples and wa'nuts" in pantomime. At the end of the wrangle his honor said he should "reserve his ruling to a later stage." This came so late that much to the eventual delight of the witness, judge and counsel forgot all about the subject matter of the wrangle. His master took great interest in the addresses of the counsel. They [illegible] more about matters outside of than those which were inside of the testimony. At times counsel seemingly addressed auditors as actors often improvise asides. Carson was especially pleased with the fairness of the recorder toward the jurors, whom he told they had sole charge of the facts, while he commented only on the law applicable to those. He detected the superior fairness of such a course to that of many judges of his own country, who at least intimated even if they do not declare, their opinion as to what kind of a verdict the jurors should give. But Carson's commiseration for the "baronetish Bob Sutton" was much weakened when he was told that months, and perhaps a year, might elapse when the sentence he heard pronounced could be carried into effect because of the multiplicity of appeals that was his right, with the sentence meanwhile suspended in operation.

(To be continued.)

Hither and Yon.

"Hither and yon," inveighed against as a Yankee importation, is simply a form of "hither and yont," a good classical Scotch expression, and a most useful one, signifying "here and there and everywhere," or "all over the place." It is thus defined in Jamieson:

"Hither and yont, topsy turvy, in a state of disorder. S. yont signifies beyond: hither and yon, A. Bor., here and there. 'Noo that they're hither and yont frae ane anither it behooves a' that wish them weel to tak tent that a breach is no opened that canna be biggit up.' (Sir A. Wylie, ii. 20.) This, I observe, is an A.-S. phrase, hider and yeond, huc atque illuc, hither and thither. (Bed. v. 13.)"

Skeat does not give it, but Halliwell, who deals with English provincial dialects, gives "Hither and yon, here and there."—Notes and Queries.

An actress appearing in Johnstown, Pa., was referred to by the local press as a favorite in that city. The paper remarked: "She appeared here just before the flood." The actress has erased Johnstown from her map.—Dramatic Mirror.

WHAT WOMEN WEAR.

STYLES FOR THOSE WHO WANT TO LOOK PRETTY.

Dresses to Be Low-Necked and Sleeves to Be Short with a Tendency Toward Puffs That Reach the Elbow—Blouse Effect in the New Bodice.

The Season's Styles.

New York correspondence:

PUTTING a suggestion of blouse effect into the new or made-over bodice is the surest way to make it seem freshly stylish, for nearly all new bodice models have this as a conspicuous feature. It is seen even in tailor-made dresses, where it is accomplished by the presence of drooping straps that are draped over the shoulders and down the front of the bodice. If the dress is to be called new, the simplest way to effect it is to have something drooping in the bodice's front. A hanging bit of drapery set in and flanked on the sides by dangling straps of passementerie is, perhaps, as easy a way as any. Another favored trick is to have a boxpleat down the front, the bodice being bloused at each side of the front and tight fitting in the back. This effect is so much worn that it is seen in many varieties. One of them is shown in the first, small picture, the pleat being smaller than those usually made. Cream-white corded silk is used for this garment, and it is trimmed with a fichu of the same, forming a round collar in back, with sashes on the shoulders and then coming to the waist in front to fasten with rhinestone buttons. This fichu is edged with cream guipure.

It is still as desirable to have something approaching newness in the sleeves of the new bodice, as it was in mid-winter. It is noticeable that the universal tendency is toward puffs that reach the elbow. The shoulder strap unelaborated is never seen, but elaborated shoulder straps serve as a foundation for softly falling clouds of draped material that, except on close examination, look like puff sleeves. It's a new and very pretty sleeve in the next illustration, and one that will make an excellent setting for a handsome arm. For the rest, the blouse is alike back and front, being made of pale rose pink bengaline and banded with black lace insertion. The draped sleeves are edged with lace and looped up with pink satin bows, and the same ribbon gives collar and belt, which are ornamented by sprays and bunches of flowers. A fitted lining of pink silk hooks at the side.

SLEEVES DESERVING OF SHAPELY ARMS.

Twelve months ago there was much strenuous asserting that furs would be worn into and during the summer; now it is claimed that the fluffy boa is to be a stylish July and August accessory. Indeed, utility is claimed for it, since summer dresses are to be low in the neck. This fact leads to all sorts of pretty conceits being offered in the ever-becoming ruff effect. The boa of feathers is no longer elaborate or new enough, and the latest sort is a wreath of flowers bunched with soft falls of lace or chiffon. The wreath is just big enough to encircle the neck, and a fall of lace or chiffon is arranged at its joining under the chin. If the belle have too short a neck to indulge in this pretty design, she may let the flowers stop at either side of her chin, and from these points let the lace drop. The rest of the collar is completed by a connecting band of chiffon. The girl whose neck is just a little scraggy will at once realize the advantage of this arrangement, for the falls of lace come over "those horrid bones," and the connecting bit of chiffon can be of an ivory tint that will hardly show and that will only add needed plumpness to the throat.

There is no accessory devised as yet to make acceptable for any but handsome shoulders the style of sleeves shown in the next illustration. It is, perhaps their being so exacting that makes the style so slow in its progress toward favor, for slow it is, though the cut has thorough novelty to recommend it. Besides that, it is seen as yet only on unquestionably correct gowns. The baggy vest of white crepe de chine is further proof of this garment's newness, and the combination of jacket and blouse effects is very unusual. The jacket forms a circular basque in back that is considerably shorter than the fronts, and the edges all around are finished with jet galloon, the fronts having pendant fringes. Silver gray satin duchesse was the material as sketched, and the gown was planned for the celebration of a silver wedding.

OTHERS THAT ARE EXACTING.

It is admissible to elaborate a bodice by setting a wide ruffle of chiffon over each shoulder, and the chiffon need not match the rest of the bodice in color, or, apparently, have anything in common with it. It is quite the thing to accomplish jauntiness by the introduction of some bit of startling color. Frequently long straps of ribbon heavily spangled are laid over the shoulders at the sleeve seam, the ribbon dangling to the front and the back, seemingly staying in place just by mere luck. The straps may extend to a level with the bust line, or to a point below the waist. Heavy lace of all kinds is applied on all gowns, even tailormades. Lace medallions can now be bought by the piece, like spangles, and so can single vandyke points and scallops. Meantime, the richest lace is sacrificed to the scissors, and the best proof of its worth—the beautiful regular net—is cut away. The figures are then applied on hats, bodices, capes, skirts and parasols.

Round bodices are now seen cut just below the hips, and the edges are wired to stand out free from the skirt. A little while ago unless the edge of the bodice fitted snugly to the hips the unfortunate maker was a hopeless misfitter. The bodice of the fourth sketch is not of this sort, because it has that other stamp of newness, a slightly full front, the remainder fitting tightly. Coming over the skirt, it is ornamented front and back by a large rosette of bluet satin ribbon, the dress stuff being bluet cheviot. A deep yoked collar of ecru lace falls prettily over shoulders, back and front, and the sleeves have drooping untrimmed puffs. This is really the most popular sleeve at present, a great soft puff that reaches well below the elbow on the outer side of the arm and that is not nearly so long on the inside being the desired shape. Some are the size of great pumpkins, and sometimes they look a little like them, too.

PUFFED STYLISHLY.

Unless one can elaborate a gown a great deal, it is better to keep to entire simplicity. In the midst of all the current gorgeousness, a gown made of soft fine cloth with a bodice fitting closely, save for the little baggy place in front, its skirt cut just right and a pair of huge sleeves, will give an effect that is likely to make the richer neighbor miserable, in spite of her elaborations. But highly wrought effects have their place and are tastefully managed on the final pictured gown, which is composed of rich ivory-white satin brocaded with old gold for the wide godet skirt, and of old gold velours for puff sleeves and bodice. The latter has a pleated vest of ivory-white mousseline de soie ornamented with a big bow of white satin and two rhinestone buckles. The points of the bodice are embroidered with gold and a bertha of filmy tulle lace completes the garniture. In such elaborate gowns as this a dressy effect is sometimes attained by having skirt and sleeves to match, and the remainder of the bodice need not be of a material that even harmonizes. Velvet skirts are so completely out of vogue, however, that it has not been selected for such combinations for some time past.

AGAIN, THE ARMS SHOULD BE PRETTY.

With summer reached, the bodice will shift in large measure to shirt waists. These are now made to order for women at swell men's furnishing places, and such garments have a faultless set about the collar and cuffs that explains the price, even though the material be the simplest cheviot. Except in very dressy shirt waists, buttons are set down the front covered by a boxpleat, because women have discovered that with their bangs to keep parted, nails to manicure and side combs to keep in place, life is too short to try and attend to studs. Indeed, a collar button is bad enough.

Copyright, 1895.

Alexander Pope was mercilessly nicknamed by his contemporaries because, in his writings, he lampooned all his enemies with no little vigor. He was called the Wasp of Twickenham, the Bard of Twickenham, an Empty Flask, a Little Nightingale, Poet Pug, Paper Sparing Pope, Portentous Cub, and many other insulting names.

The primrose is yellow, because, as the scientists say, it alters the vibrations of white light from 37,640 in an inch to 44,000 in an inch, and the number in a second of time from 458,000,000,000,000 to 535,000,000,000,000, but nobody understands how or why.

DEVIL HOUSE.

A Grewsome Mansion on Which a Curse Is Said to Rest.

Near New London, Conn., is a Quaker settlement which has been in existence many years. An old house is situated there which is popularly supposed to have a curse laid on it and is therefore called Devil House. During the present century at least 100 people have died in the mansion, either from meeting with some accident or as the result of melancholia and madness. How many have died since the house has possessed its evil reputation, it is impossible to say.

The house was built before 1710. In 1780 it came into the possession of the Green family and to them legend ascribes the beginning of the curse. Seth Green used to ill-treat his wife Hattie and she, dying, prayed that sorrow and death should come to all those that leased or bought the house. Since then the house has changed hands every few years and the occupancy of each tenant has been marked by death.

One of the most dramatic episodes in the history of the house was the illness of Betsy Chapman in 1803. She had lived a wicked life, and being taken sick summoned the Quakers to come and pray for her. They prayed, but she shrieked and screamed that the devil was after her soul, and begged that more vehement petitions to heaven be made. Betsy recovered from this illness, but she lived only a few months afterward, when she met her death by falling down a well.

THE DEVIL HOUSE.

It does not seem to matter whether the occupants of Devil House believe in the curse or not, sooner or later death claims its victims. However strong or robust the members of a family may be, they have but to move into the grewsome house and one or more fall into melancholia, or by some strange accident soon come to the end of their lives.

ENGLISH CO-OPERATIVE STORES

Enormous Profits Made by Stockholders—Protests of Other Traders.

Here are some official figures of an institution which plays an astonishingly prominent part in the social economy not only of the metropolis, says a writer in the New York World, but of all Great Britain and of several of its colonies, and of the official establishment of India as well. I refer to the "Army and Navy Co-operative Society," at which you may purchase practically everything at cost—but for cash strictly—from 10 to 20 per cent. below the ruling figures at any regular shop. Its customers are by no means confined to the services, for practically any one who has a friend in either the army or navy can obtain a ticket entitling him or her to the benefits of "the stores." I have heard astonishing reports of the profits to the original purchasers of shares. An investment then of $5,000 is to-day worth $175,000, I am told, exclusive of the handsome yearly dividends. From the official report for the past year it appears that the sales amounted to about $14,500,000 and the miscellaneous revenue to $65,000. The gross profits amounted to $1,750,000, and the net profit to $638,810, which, added to the amount brought forward from last year, gave a total of $843,305. The directors recommended a dividend of 5 per cent. for the six months ending Jan. 31 last, and a bonus of £1 10s per share. As the par value of a share is £1 this means that the fortunate holder, if he got in on the ground floor, is paid a yearly dividend of 155 per cent. The enormous business as indicated above has seriously affected shopkeepers of all sorts, and there are meetings among them every once in a while to protest and even to demand governmental interpositon.

WORLD'S BIGGEST DOG.

Called on the President to Exhibit His Hugeness.

Among President Cleveland's visitors at Washington, the other day, says an exchange, was the Great Dane Champion Major McKinley, probably the largest dog in the world, who stopped off on his way to the New York dog show. Major McKinley is from South Bend, Ind. He stands 37 inches high, weighs 205 pounds and measures 7 feet 6 inches from the tip of his nose to the end of his tail. He has won first prizes in every show he has been exhibited.

MAJOR M'KINLEY.

Always a Carver.

Carving is one of the most ancient of occupations. Carvings were well executed during the period of man's early occupation of the caves of Europe, and most persons who have familiarized themselves with archaeological research know the figure of fish or seal engraved on the canine teeth of large carnivora, and the bear, reindeer, musk ox, horse, mammoth and other animals carved on reindeer-horn implements or on plates of ivory, the figures of the animals being at times cut fully in the round, and found in the lowest strata of the caves, under many feet of cave earth and stalagma, and associated with the bones of a quaternary and, at times, an arctic fauna. The similarity of much this cave work with much of the Eskimo production of the present day has given rise to innumerable theories concerning a common origin for both people.

PIPER HEIDSIECK PLUG TOBACCO
CHAMPAGNE FLAVOR

Consumers of chewing tobacco who are willing to pay a little more than the price charged for the ordinary trade tobaccos, will find this brand superior to all others.
BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

DR. MOTT'S PENNYROYAL PILLS

The only safe, sure and reliable Female Pill ever offered to Ladies, especially recommended to married Ladies. Beware of pills put up in tin boxes as they are dangerous. Ask for DR. MOTT'S PENNYROYAL PILLS and take no other. Send for circular. Price $1.00 per box, 6 boxes for $5.00.
DR. MOTT'S CHEMICAL CO., - Cleveland, Ohio.
Fisher & Son, Auburn, Ind.

FITS!
Brace Up! Don't Lose Courage!!
Your disease is not incurable because your Physician has given you up, and you have not received any benefit from the medicine you have tried, is not any reason you cannot be cured. We can positively cure all kinds of Fits, Epileptic, Convulsion or Spasmodic. WE GUARANTEE A POSITIVE AND PERMANENT CURE IN ALL CASES. We have cured thousands, many cases of long standing, and given up by Doctors as incurable. In our "Allen's Fits Cure" you will find a medicine that has never failed to effect a speedy cure. We back our guarantee with an offer of $100 to any person we cannot cure. Highest Bank references furnished on application.
1 Qt. Bottle, $3.00. 2 Qt. $5.00.
ALLEN MEDICAL CO.,
Washington & Water Sts., BOSTON, MASS.

LADIES
Suffering from Retarded, Suppressed or Painful Menstruation and all irregularities of like nature, will find our FAMALE PILLS an infallible cure. They are entirely safe and can always be relied upon for speedy relief. We have yet to hear of a case where they have failed to produce the desired result. A box should be kept on hand at all times to provide for emergencies. Correspondence Confidential.
By mail, with full directions, securely sealed, $2.00 per box.
ALLEN MEDICAL CO.,
Washington & Water Sts., BOSTON, MASS.

Every Woman
Sometimes needs a reliable monthly regulating medicine.
Dr. PEAL'S PENNYROYAL PILLS,
Are prompt, safe and certain in result. The genuine (Dr. Peal's) never disappoint. Sent anywhere $1.00. Peal Medicine Co., Cleveland, O.
Sold by Fischler & Son., Auburn.

General or local Agents. $75 a week. Exclusive territory. The Rapid Dish Washer. Washes all the dishes for a family in one minute. Washes, rinses and dries them without wetting the hands. You push the button, the machine does the rest. Bright, polished dishes, and cheerful wives. No scalded fingers, mussled hands or clothing. No broken dishes, no muss. Cheap durable, warranted. Circulars free.
W. P. HARRISON & CO., Clerk Ex. 12, Columbus, O.

Sex-ine Pills
RESTORE LOST VIGOR

Before and After Using.
New discovery. Will brace you up in a week. Sold with a WRITTEN GUARANTEE to Cure Nervous Debility, Loss of Sexual Power in either sex, involuntary Emissions from any cause. If neglected, such troubles lead to consumption or insanity. $1.00 per box by mail, 6 boxes for $5.00. With every $5 order we give a written guarantee to cure or refund the money. Address PEAL MEDICINE CO., Cleveland, Ohio.
Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

5,000 ACRES CENTRAL MICHIGAN FARMS
Near Saginaw and Bay City. Soil clay loam, hardwood timber and free from swamps. Railway facilities; schools and markets adjacent. Price, $5 to $8 per acre, on easy payments. Satisfaction assured. Practical farmers and parents who wish to give their sons a start in life, can find No Better Land in Michigan. Maps and Circulars free. JACOB SCHWARTZ or WM. M. TENNANT, SAGINAW, E. S., MICH.

RESTORED MANHOOD.
DR. MOTT'S NERVERINE PILLS

BEFORE AND AFTER USING.
The great remedy for nervous prostration and all nervous diseases of the generative organs of either sex, such as Nervous Prostration, Failing or Lost Manhood, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Youthful Errors, Mental Worry, excessive use of Tobacco or Opium, which lead to Consumption and Insanity. With every $5 order we give a written guarantee to cure or refund the money. Sold at $1.00 per box, 6 boxes for $5.00. DR. MOTT'S CHEMICAL COMPANY, Cleveland, Ohio.
Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

PATENTS
Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES. OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.
Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.
A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,
C. A. SNOW & CO.
OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

SOME SEASONABLE BARGAINS GOING AT COST.

Having decided to quit handling Ladies' and Childrens' Shoes and Slippers, we have determined to close out stock on hand at cost, thus affording you an opportunity to save from 50c. to 1.25 on every pair of shoes of this description.

DONT WAIT, BUT COME AT ONCE

As they are going out rapidly. A word to the wise is sufficient. Want of space will not permit us to quote these extraordinary prices, but give us a call and we will convince you of the truth of this statement.

GLOBE

Cothing and Shoe Company

Gandy Block, North side of Square
AUBURN, IND.

SCHAAB & MURPHY

——Are in the market with a full line of——

Clothing, Furnishing Goods & Men's Shoes.

HATS The latest styles At 25 per cent less than ever before offered in Auburn.

An all-wool suit made to order for $12.00.

See us Before Buying.

SCHAAB & MURPHY.

STILL WE LEAD With a nice line of Watches, Clocks, Jewelry Silverware, Spectacles, Gold Pins, Musical Instruments, etc. All kinds of Machine Needles Best Oil,

SPECIAL and PERSONAL attention givien to REPAIRING by Mr. Yesbera.

BICYCLES promptly Repaired by W. C. Champion.

SEWING MACHINES put in first-class order by R. A. York.

First goods and first-class workmen you will find at

F. J. YESBERA'S

Jewelry Store, Auburn, Ind.

THE AUBURN COURIER

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY.

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, post-office as second-class matter.

THURSDAY,.....APRIL 18, 1895.

CARLE BROWN, Coxey's second in command has been bound over to at Massillon, Ohio on a charge of criminal libel.

NEW YORK CITY has just had an enumeration taken by her police, as is done every year or two. The result shows, a population of 1,888,780.

ICE on Lake Michigan is keeping Chicago vessels in the harbor.

CHINA and Japan have made peace.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAD has given in his income to the proper officers, under the income tax law. He believes it will eventually be held good and he has put in even his salary. The salary of $50 000 a year less the $4,000 exempt under the law leaves $46,000 on which to pay tax. This at 2 per cent. the rate fixed would make his tax $920.

How to Grasp a Fortune.

May not be easy, but a renewal of health and strength may be had by taking Vitaline and Nervetone, the new remedy and certain specific for all nervous complaints, nervous depression, lassitude, loss of nerve and brain power, palpitation, headache, toothache, neuralgia, etc. The last three named cured in an hour's time. It will never disappoint. Avoid dangerous substitutes and imitations. Prepared only by the Hall Medicine Company, Toledo, Ohio. Ask your druggist, or it and take no other. 16 17

$15 A DAY is fair wages for a boy. I made this working for W. M. WOODWORTH, Kokomo, Ind. Anyone with ordinary ability can do the same; a deaf and dumb person can sell the goods as it does not require any talking.

Everybody Buys. The samples, worth $1.00 will be sent with instructions, for 25 cents. Better send now best opportunity of your life to make money.

A Notable Sale of Trotters.

At Fort Wayne, Indiana, on Wednesday and Thursday, April 24 and 25, the greatest lot of highly bred horses ever put up at public auction in Indiana will be sold by W. B. Bash and E. M. Powers, of Fort Wayne, at the Fort Wayne Driving Park.

Mr. Powers will sell his entire stud including the great young sire, Wayne Wilkes, 2:16, sire of Nidia, 2:13¼, and five other 2:30 performers. He will also sell all his brood mares and a large number of fast and welbred colts by Wayne Wilkes.

Mr. Power's recent removal to Kansas City makes this step imperative, and every animal he owns will be offered without reserve.

The consignment of Mr. W. B. Bash will comprise about thirty head, mostly the get of Strathmore 408. Among the lot will be Deronda, 2:27½ a full sister and brother, Strathso, 2:13; a Strathmore filly out of American Girl 2:20½, and others equally well-bred.

There will be a number of high class roadsters and business horses among the offering.

A credit of nine months will be extended to responsible persons, giving note with good freehold security. 16 17

AUBURN CITY TICKET.

Our people, at the democratic city caucus last Thursday evening, nominated G. A. Mader for marshal, and renominated Charlie Jones for treasurer, and Milo Husselman for clerk. S D. Hanna was nominated for trustee in the 5th ward, and L. J. Miller in the 2nd. The town board decides there will be no candidate put up in the 4th.

We hear only good words for every man on the ticket. They are among our best citizens and no democrat can afford to vote against them. If we cannot get together on such men, how will we ever get together? We had plenty of good timber from which to select a marshal, and our people chose Mr. Mader, This does not disparage the merits of the other candidates. Mr. Metcalf, all concede is a numer one man, but many of the voters did not know him. Mr. Picker, all concede, has been a hard worker in the party and needed the place, but we heard some say, his health was too uncertain, and while that fact gained much sympathy, it no doubt lost him votes, as all know a marshal has need at times of all his strength and endurance. Charles Resch is an excellent man, industrious and hard working, and a good manager. He would have been a splendid officer. But the caucus said, "Mader," and the people generally are suited. As to the clerk and treasurer, Mr. Husselman has done excellently the past year, and should be triumphantly re-elected. Mr. Jones has held his important office for five years, and in all that time could have shown the last penny in his accounts at a moment's notice. He should have his old-time majority. As to the candidates for council, S. D. Hanna is a well known and active business man, a member of the Auburn Foundry & Machine Works Campany. He would be an excellent councilman L. J. Miller needs no introduction. He is eminently fitted for the place by a long official and business experience. In the 3d. ward, the one in dispute, Mr. McNabb is a safe and active, pushing business man, who has for some years been interested in two of our meat markets, He should be elected. Now democrats and citizens generally, we ought to drop our differences and see that these excellent men are properly supported. We agree with a remark made by a leading. and one of the most intelligent republicans in town, that "it is good men we want and need to conduct our town's affairs."

Geo. Newcomer, of Smithfield, was here last week, and reports he had just missed a good shovel and a mattock, and feels certain he knows who got them. The best thing they can do is to bring them back and avoid trouble.

LIES TRAVEL.

THEY GO BY TELEGRAPH WHILE TRUTH GOES AFOOT.

Here is another example of the above, much-to-be lamented condition in society. About a week ago, Mrs. Jacob Walborn went down to Wabash, to see her daughter, Mrs. Levi T. Rice, Miss Alda Apple, daughter of George Apple went with her as she was going to stay and work for Mrs. Rice. Soon after they left, word came here, that the wife of a Mr. Rice, a photographer, had gone off with another man. At once it was circulated that it was Mrs. Levi Rice, and that Mrs. Walborn had hurriedly gone down to see about it. The facts were, Mrs. Walborn knew nothing of the matter, till she got down there. Then it was known, that a brother of Mr. Rice, living at North Manchester was the unfortunate man. His name is Arthur V. Rice and he too is a photographer. It appears that he had assisting him, a man by the name of Potts, and that his wife became infatuated with Potts, and finally ran away, with him. They went first to Peru where they staid a few days, then to Indianapolis, and finally located in Anderson for a short time. Here they parted, and we have not learned what became of either. This is the truth, in brief, of all the rumors afloat, and we publish it all and in detail in the DAILY, so our people can be set right. Those who best know Levi Rice and his wife, would not, of course, believe any rumors of this kind. But there are always some who will pick up any such matter and spread it. Now, let the exact details be known, and a worthy family relieved of the annoyance.

MORE ABOUT GAS.

We have been handed the following letter from McDougall, the gas expert and lay it before our readers, as all matters relating to this should be given.

John H. Pyle,

AUBURN, IND.,

DEAR SIR: Yours of the 6th to hand. expect to be through here very shortly, possibly this week, will then on my way to Chicago call and see you. Meantime you had better write me stating where I can find you and at same time please state the amount you agree to pay me for investigating your property. I stated a sum in one of my letters which I would charge for my services. You will please look up that letter and insert the sum in your reply. If there is oil, gas or mineral there I can find them.

Awaiting your reply,

Yours truly,

H. McDOUGALL.

P. S. My charge for the investigation does not include railroad fare and board while there. Railroad fare will be extra.

MORE STEALING,

LAKE SHORE DEPOT AND FREIGHT HOUSE, WHITE WAVE FACTORY AND OTHERS ENTERED.

Also Eggs Stolen from the Freight House at the Junction.

Thieves and burglars are still plying their chosen vocation. Last evening they undertook to clean out the West Side. They broke into the Lake Shore passenger station again, this time opening the west window, and getting directly into the office. They got no money. They then went through the freight office a little ways north. There they forced in the outside door, and then the door inside, and found themselves in the office, proper. But again, they got nothing. Just east of this at the old bottling works, is the headquarters of the White Wave Washing, Powder Co. They went went through this, too, but as far as could be found, they got nothing unless it may be a package or two of the White Wave Powder. They got in here by breaking in two windows. They went to James McDowell's residence, a short distance away, and were trying to get in, when the hired girl was awakened, and not knowing what caused the noise, called to "Jim," and asked him what was the matter. This frightened the burglars and they left. At the Junction they went into the B. & O. freight house and took several dozen eggs. It appears that a gang of about ten or twelve were near the Junction and had been for some time. This morning Sheriff Stroh went down there and scared them and most of them went east but two came back and went north on the Lake Shore track. A man was also held up in the dining car at Garrett this morning, but the tramps are accused of this. Two fellows were alone, and before the marshal could be gotten they had escaped.

Sheriff Stroh was over to Garrett and found one man whose name was given as Henry in a wood pile at one of the brick yards. He is held at Garrett and two others are held at Avilla supposed to be the right fellows who held up the man a Garrett.

On The Elbe.

Peter Conrad and wife, of Pierceton, o'd friends of the COURIER folks, have an interesting memento of the ill-fated ocean steamer, Elbe, that was sunk in the North Sea in December. It is a letter from their son who is studying music in Berlin. He mailed it just before the Elbe sailed, and after the ship went down, it was recovered among a lot of similar matter that floated ashore or was picked up at sea, several days later. The postage stamps were soaked off, but the writing was still legible. They will hold this letter all their lives and rejoice that the son himself was not on the Elbe.

DO YOU WEAR PANTS?

Do you wear Tailor Made Pants?
Do you want to wear Tailor Made Pants?
Would you wear Tailor Made Pants
If you could get them at the same price of ready made pants?

If you do, read this ad.

We are slaughtering pants.

We have a line of $6, $6.50, $7, $7.50, $8 and $8.50, Pants that will cost you only

$5.00 a pair, Tailor Made $5.00

Come before the patterns are all picked over. Elegant things in imported English Worsted, Scotches. Cheviots, and Cassimeres. An all wool, clay worsted suit for $25.00. Perfect fit guaranteed.

G. H. Yesbera,
THE POPULAR CLOTHIER.

RUPTURE

Of Men, Women and Children permanently cured in 30 days, without pain or slightest inconvenience by the Fidelity Method. Every case guaranteed. Patient need not pay a dollar until completely cured The truss discarded. Over 8,000 cases cured in the last five years. consultation free.

J. B. CASEBEER, M. D.

Their authorized physician in Indiana and who will visit Auburn in April. Correspondence Solicited, Address;

14 East Ohio Street, INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

MEN WANTED

To take orders. Instruction and outfit free. Salary or commission as preferred. Splendid chance for reliable men. Experience not necessary. Write for terms and full particulars. The R. G. CHASE COMPANY, Nurserymen. Geneva, N. Y.

First National Bank

AUBURN, INDIANA.

Capital and Surplus, $60,000.00.

Certificates of deposits issued, drawing interest 4 per cent per annum, if left six months. County and town orders bought. Money to loan.

C. A. O. McCLELLAN, President.
CHAS. McCLELLAN, Cashier.

SUMMIT.

Warren Boyer and wife, of Hamilton, were the guests of John Salander and wife last Sunday.

Mrs. B. F. High started last Monday to Cadillac, Michigan, to see her daughter, Mrs. Lydia Pardee.

Thad. Thomas and wife, of Hamilton, and Wm. Zurbrugg and wife, were the guests of Mrs. P. H. Grambling Sunday.

Barney Zimmerman from near Butler visited his mother, Mrs. Catherine Zimmerman, Sunday.

Mrs. Joseph Rohm is slowly improving.

Geo. Simons and S. Furgeson of Hudson, were in town Saturday.

H. D. Snowberger and wife, went to Angola Saturday.

Mrs. Frank Forney and Mrs. Sarah Heckathorn went to Angola Friday.

S. S. Forney is dealing in fish again this spring.

Chester Barker and wife visited her parents, Wash Betts, near Hudson Sunday.

Geo. May's youngest girl has scarlet fever.

Forty friends of Mrs Emeline Smith surprised her on Monday. Mrs. Richard Freed took her to Waterloo, and when she returned her home was occupied by a merry crowd. There was a splendid supper and many valuable and useful presents.

ASHLEY.

Easter services by the League last Saturday evening brought out a large crowd. The little folks show a great interest in such work. The door receipts were about $20.

Ashley has a $10,000 hotel under progress besides one business building and eight dwelling houses.

Ashley will have a church furniture factory, the machinery is on the ground.

John May who has been attending school here for the past two years has accepted a position as clerk with Hoover, the hardware man.

Wm. H. May and wife, J. S. Shaw and wife, Miss Annie Hussleman, and Miss Edith Fay, who drove to Auburn last week to attend the lectures of Col. Geo. Bain, say they are well paid for their trip.

Our schools will continue two months yet making nine months school this year. We have a full school and progressing nicely.

Mr. Spake of the Times office, has resigned his position to accept a position in the Dispatch office with Editor Campbell of Auburn. Mr. Spake has many friends here who regret to see him go.

Dr. Spooner will move his family from Fern to this place soon.

Manager Gary moves his family from Macon, Mo., this week. He expects to make this his future home.

GAS ADDITION.

improving.

J. B. Roberts is clerking in Snell's grocery.

A Mrs. White is putting up a fine residence on the south side of North street at the first crossing as you go east from the bridge. She is Mrs. Issac Jones' mother, and moves here from North Manchester.

F. Jones and wife spent Easter Sunday with Mrs. Jones' parents in the country.

Geo Bowman and wife, of Waterloo, were guests of Th mas Brown and fam ly, Sun

Frank Harris and wife of Columbia City have been visiting Mrs. Henry Harris a few days.

Mr. Imhoff, of Waterloo, is visiting his son at this place.

Mr. Scott has moved into the Porter Depew property.

Mrs Price and daughter, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Soules a few days last week.

Old People.

Old people who require medicine to regulate the bowels and kidneys wil find the true remedy in Electric Bitters This medicine does not stimulate and contains no whisky nor other intoxicant, but acts as a tonic and alterative. It acts mildly on the stomach and bowels, adding strength and giving tone to the organs, thereby aiding nature in the performance of the functions. Electric Bitters is an excellent appetizer and aids digestion. Old people find it just exactly what they need. Price fifty cents per bottle at Robbins & McCord's drug store. 5

The Upholsterer.

C. R Botsford has opened a place of business in Mrs. Ward's building on North Main St. He comes with the highest testimonials for first class work, and it is an opportunity the people of Auburn should take advantage of, to have their furniture made over, good as new, and in modern style.

NATIONAL EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION MEETING.

Denver, Colo., July 5 to 12, 1895.

For this occasion the Wabash Railroad has made a rate of one fare for the round trip to Denver plus $2 00, added for membership fee.

For full particulars in regard to this meeting, time of trains, rate, route, etc. call upon or write to any representative of the Wabash R. R., or connection lines, or C. S. Crane, Gen'l Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Wabash R. R., St. Louis. Mo.

For a Complete Base Ball Schednle.

Of all the games to be played by National Base Ball League for season of 1895, apply to A. J. Smith, G. P. & T. A. L. S. & M. S. R'y., Cleveland, O., enclosing two-cent postage stamp. This schedule contains the dates, names of contesting clubs, places for scoring total runs, hits, errors and pitchers' names, together with tables of standing of clubs and averages for last season. 15 17

THE recent decision on the income tax will cut down treasury receipts neary 40 millions and give a good excuse for the incoming congress to put on higher tariff duties. The wealthier new are already laying their plans ro capture congress, and with the known friendliness of the new republican members. They are likely to get all they ask.

I. O. BUCHTEL, Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon.

Special attention given to chronic and obscure cases and catarrhal diseases of the nose, throa and lungs; also to diseases peculiar to women and children.

Office and residence over Smith & Madden's marble works, Auburn, Ind. Office apart from residence and private. All calls attended to promptly, night or day.

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE.

Notice is hereby given that I, Wm. Seeley Administrater of the estate of John Nichols deceased, will offer for sale at public auction, to the highest bidder on,

Saturday, May 11, 1895,

at the late residence of the decedent in New ville township, DeKalb, Indiana, the following described personal property, belonging to the estate of said decedent, to wit:

2 head of work horses, 1 cow 7 years old, 1 yearling steer, 1 calf 3 months old, 1 brood sow and 8 pigs, 10 head of shoats, 31 head of sheep, 1 Road wagon 1 farm wagon, 1 set double harness 1 plow, 1 drag, 1 wheel cultivator, 1 sulkly hay rake, 1 corn plow, 1 hay rake, 1 swelled body sleigh, 1 mowing machine, 1 fanning mill, house hold goods, log chains, double trees and whiffletrees, buggy fills and buggy pole, neck-yoke, hay in the barn, potatoes, 1 parlor stove and other articles.

TERMS OF SALE.

For all amounts not exceeding five dollars cash in hand. For amounts of five dollars and upwards, a credit of nine (9) months will be given.

Note, bearing six per cent interest after maturity, with approved security, and waiving Valuation and Appraisement Laws, will be required.

WILLIAM SEELEY, Administrator.

Baxter and Brown Attorneys.

Notice of Sale of Real Estate.

Notice is hereby given, that I Harrison Enzor, executor of the will of Stephen K. Enzor, deceased, will offer for sale at public auction, to the highest bidder, on Saturday, May 11, 1895, at 10 o'clock, a. m., at the door of the court house in Auburn, Indiana, for the purpose of paying debts, the following described real estate, belonging to the estate of said decedent, to wit:

The north half of the northeast quarter [¼] of the northeast quarter [¼] of section fourteen [14] and the north half [½] of the northwest quarter [¼] of the northwest quarter [¼] of section thirteen [13] all in township thirty-five [35] north, of range fourteen [14] east, in DeKalb county, state of Indiana.

TERMS OF SALE:

One-third cash, one-third in 9 months, and one-third in 12 months. Deferred payments to be evidenced by interest-bearing notes waiving relief and secured by mortgage upon the premises sold. HARRISON ENZOR, Executor.

Baxter & Brown, Attys.

ELECTION NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that an election will be held in the Incorporated town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana on

Monday, May 6, 1895

for the purpose of electing,

One Marshal,
One Clerk,
One Treasurer,
each for the term of one (1) year;
One Trustee in second (2) ward,
One Trustee in fifth (5) ward,
each for the term of two (2) years.

That the Polling places for such election will be at the following places to-wit;

North precinct at the residence of Caleb Neal,
Middle precinct at the office of Jacob Walborn,
South precinct at the residence of Mr. Hanes known as the Engle property.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of said town this 16th day of April 1895.

MILO D. HUSSELMAN, Town Clerk.

PROBATE CAUSE NO. 4038.

State of Indiana, } ss:
DeKalb County }

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, May Term, 1895. Henry Wartenslaben, Louisa Fitzpatrick and M. J. Fitzpatrick, husband of Louisa Fitzpatrick, non-residents of the state of Indiana, and Woman's Home Mission Society, incorporated under the laws of the state of Illinois; Woman's Baptist Foreign Missionary Society of the West, incorporated under the laws of the state of Illinois, foreign corporations, are hereby notified that Oran C. Clark, as executor of the will of Adelbert Wartenslaben, deceased, has filed in the Circuit Court of DeKalb county, Indiana, a petition making them defendants thereto, and praying therein for an order and decree of said Court authorizing the sale of certain real estate belonging to the estate of said decedent and in said petition described, to make assets for the payment of the debts and liabilities of said estate; and that said petition, so filed and which is now pending, is set for hearing in said Circuit Court at the court house in Auburn, Indiana, on the 10th day of June, '89.

Witness, the Clerk and Seal of said Court, this 27th day of March 1895.

[SEAL.] DANIEL D. MOODY, Clerk DeKalb Circuit Court.

Baxter & Brown, Attorneys.

FOR SALE: One full blooded Jersey Bull calf. Call on A. G. Lodewick.

SPRING 1895. SUMMER.

Complete New — A Cash Business,

BISHOP & LACKEY

Present their compliments to the ladies of DeKalb County an respectfully announce

That they will continue their

GRAND MILLINERY SALE

This week

We have bought alarge Manufacturer's Sample Line of

LADIES' WRAPS,

And are selling them at wholesale prices.

We show the largeet line of

CARPETS and CURTAINS

In DeKalb county, at Lowest Prices

CASH SALES Only will be made but the advantage is with the public, as the lowest possible margin consistent with quality is added to the original cost.

Bishop & Lackey.

R. SHULL'S

CASH SHOE STORE

Is now located in the

KIBLINGER BUILDIN

where a

Large Line

OF

BOOTS AND SHOES

May be Found.

NOW IS YOUR

To call upon us and see our new line of Gold and Silver-ware, hand painted and fancy China, Banquet and Piano Lamps, Elegant Onyx Stands and Musical Instruments.

D. A. HODGE, Jeweler.

KIBLINGER BUILDING.

FINE REPAIRING NEW HOME SEWING MACHINES

SPECIAL

6 QUART FLAIRING TIN PAIL

FOR 5 CENTS.

Don't fail to get one at

OLDS BROS,'

The Cheapest Place in Town to Buy Goods.

Thursday's Daily.

Hoff sells "Gerbelle."

Wanted: Everybody to smoke Kessler & Bros. cigars.

The COURIER is prepared to furnish the latest and prettiest commencement programs. Call and look at the samples.

Hon. W. H. Madden was in town today and squared up for his COURIER, and the same for several neighbors and all way ahead.

Mrs. Dr. Siver of Ft. Wayne is in the city, a guest of her parents Judge and Mrs. McClellan. Her two children accompany her.

Alfred Schoup, of Richland and son William were in town Tuesday, His father Wm. Schoup sr, is still in poor health but does not forget the COURIER even in his 76th year.

G. I. Patterson has been appointed guardian of Wm Schoup, jr. to care for his interests in the estate of his father, the late Thos. W. Scott who was buried at the "Sixteen" school house April 8.

Mrs. Dell Quince, of Ft. Wanye, was in the city yesterday and to-day goes to South Bend, as a representative to the district meeting of the Maccabees. Miss Myra Seydel, of this place, goes with her to represent this lodge.

David Hough, who resider near Ligonier died Tuesday. He was a prominent citizen and had served as sheriff of his county. He was the first man selected as postmaster there a year or so ago, but owing to the great amount of dissatisfaction he refused to accept.

If you are crazy for something good in cigars try Kessler Bros. brands.

All diseases of the air passages especially catarrah and chronic, Bronchitis, as well as first stages of consumption can be cured. I am treating these diseases with great success by the use of the latest and most improved medicines and instruments. Dr. W H. Nusbaum, Auburn, Ind. 42tf

INSURANCE AGENCY:—People desiring good insurance should remember that Geo. Lanning has an office at the Davis Harware store, and works some of the very best companies in the country. Good farm risks taken. Call on him. 32tf

A letter to Mrs. Barns from a sister-in-law, Mrs. R. D. Lamson. at Hastings, Nebraska, speaks of the rain a few days ago, as the first good rain they had there in three years, and they are again hoping for a wheat crop. Here if it fails to rain in the summer for five weeks we think we are killed. After all, there are few places more favored than Indiana. Look at our crop results for the past fifteen years.

J. J. Baxter, of Waterloo goes to Fairmount, Minn., starting to-day. His wife accompanies him, and they may locate there. She has two sisters, Miss Lucinda Daniels, well known in Auburn, as a teacher, and another Mrs. McHench formerly, Nellie Daniels, and a brother, James Daniels, whose wife was formerly. Miss Ida Blair, of Waterloo. If he remains there DeKalb will lose one of its best citizens.

Elmer Miller received a telegram this morning that his brother, Byron Miller at Angola had died suddenly last night It is supposed some heart trouble was the cause as he has had neuralgia of the heart a good deal. Mr. Miller went up there on the noon train. It is a sad blow to him, as he has no other relatives in this part of the country.

Friday's Daily.

If you wish your piano tuned leave orders at the store of Brown, Culbertson & Boland. Mr. A. J. Rogers, who has charge of their piano and organ department, is a practical piano tuner and will guarantee you satisfaction at reasonable prices.

Mrs. Edward Roby has written the militia members of Ft. Wayne that she would present them with medals, during their fair which is in a few weeks. So their companies of Co. K. may expect her herebout that time.

Harry Gibson, a colored convict in the northern Indiana prison, fatally stabbed Edward King, a fellow convict, at a late hour Thursday afternoon. The two convicts quarreled over a dollar which King alleged was due him from Gibson. Both men were long term convicts.

Work on the Foundry began at once, when it was decided to rebuild. The first donation came in the shape of four loads of stone, hauled by Cal. Husselman. Then followed the brick, which came from John Groscup's yard. And the work will go right on.

The Star of Bethlehem, as it is called, came into prominence again yesterday as it then for the first time, occupied the same place in the heavens that it did at the day of the Crucifixion. At least so it is said by those who have given the subject study. It might be well, even to-night, for our people to watch it.

Miss Ella Catterly, of Columbia City came down yesterday and went over to Waterloo where she contested for the Demorest medal last evening. She returned to Auburn to day and is the guest of her sister, Mrs. F. W. Hart. We have also been informed that she won the gold medal.

FEE AND SALARY DECISION.

Decision by supreme court of this state, that the fee and salary law of '91 cannot be healed, and is invalid because it left out three officers in Shelby county. Treasurers are particularly affected by this decision. The Court holds that they cannot take salary under the invalid act. Nor can they under the old fee law of 1879, as that was repealed The only way to get any pay they are entitled to, over and above what they already have, lies with the legislature, as the county commissioners cannot pay it And the legislation does not meet for two years.

Monday's Daily

Smoke the K. & B. ten-cent cigar.

Sealed book to men free, box 52, Toledo, O.

AUBURN Summer Normal will begin July 8.

Herb Rice is clerking in Jonh Kruger's store.

The S. H. G. will meet with Mrs. Trout next Saturday afternoon.

Miss Estella Tarney returned Saturd y evening from Fort Wayne. She is being treated there for eye trouble.

Quin Altenburg spent Sunday in town the guest of his sister Mrs. John Zimmerman. He is a salesman on the road.

The churches yesterday, were generally decorated with flowers and services were of a character suitable for Easter.

Little Miss Elsie McCrory returned to her home to-day after spending some time with her grendpa, C. C. Shaffer.

John Kruger and wife left to-day for Angola where they will spend a week the guests of relatives.

Mr and Mrs Samuel Miller, of Stafford, old friends of the COURIER called up to square accounts to-day.

THERE WILL be at least three instructors in the Auburn Summer Normal and each will be a specialist in the branches he teaches.

It will pay you to see Neff & Weeds' before you sell your produce.

ROOMS TO RENT:—Inquire of Wm. McIntyre at his residence on west Seventh street. The rooms are over Physicians Drugstore.

FOR SALE: A good house and barn in south part of town. Call at this office.

J. D. Myers & Myers & Kutzner have the exclusive sale of our line of Surreys, Phaetons, Buggies and Road Wagons for DeKalb county. Zimmerman Mfg. Co,

W. H Kiblinger Co. have a few heating stoves they did not close out with the stock, that can be bought at rare bargains. Also some plow repairs.

K. and B. is one and Bill Head is another. Mfg. by Kessler Bros.

Will Nickey left Saturday evening for Princeton, Ind., where he will have charge of the A. B. Nickey & Son's saw mill. It has been moved there from Blakesley.

E. W. Hoffman V. S., of Bryan, Ohio is here having been called to the bedside of his sister Mrs, Chas. Wyatt. She has been quite low for some time.

The front rooms on the second floor of the Kiblinger Block have been newly painted and papered and are to rent for offices purposes. W. C. Hartman.

Mr. Platter, south of the jail is the first dealer to sell seeds in bulk, though others are now taking the same plan. This is a great saving on seeds that take a great quantity like peas.

The Easter Market given by the ladies of the M. E. church Saturday was a pronounced success. The attendance was larger than on any previous occasion and the receipts also amounting in all to $75 00.

Mrs. A. S Leas, now a resident of Bryan, Ohio, has been here a few days, a guest of Mrs. Annis Leas, Mrs. Cowan and other friends. Her stepdaughter Mrs. Nannie Wooster whose home is at Ann Arbor, is here with her. Both have many friends in Auburn.

Frank Rose, wife and children were over from Garrett Sunday and spent the day at his father's. By the way Frank drives a rig of his own having purchased last week an Eckhart buggy from Brown Culbertson & Boland.

Wm. Swartz, Waterloo, was here Saturday. He reports measles up that way. He brings word that his brother Frank, now at Eldon, Iowa was severely hurt in December and is not yet fully recovered. He was helping to repair a car when another car was switched up against it and he was thrown off.

At the Presbyterian church Sunday morning there were twelve accessions to the membership. They are: Mr. and Mrs. Milo Calkin, Mrs. Ed. Ross, Miles Baxter, Mrs. James Pearse, Elsie and Gertie Caruth, Willie and Anna Cuppy, Mr. and Mrs. Files and Miss Myrtle Righthouse. At the last meeting also, the church extended a unanimous call to Mr. Colvin, to become the permanent pastor. The congregation all feel that he has been eminently successful in his work.

Tuesday's Dall y.

Get "Gerbelle" flour.

See the news on inside pages.

Free sexual book to men, box 52, Toledo, O.

J J. Burnier was over from Garrett today.

WANTED TO RENT—a 7 or 8 room house. Centrally located. Enquire of Chas. Eckhart.

THE Eagle Manufacturing Co. at Auburn Junction are making all kinds of light and heavy casting.

Free—Friday and Saturday at Hoff's hot biscuits.

NORMAL at Auburn.

OIL sold at Pittsburg at $1.80 a barrel April, 11, the highest figure since 1877.

George Henderson went to Columbia City this morning.

John W. Baxter went up to Angola last evening. He is attending to matters in court there.

GIRL WANTED—to work in private family of three. Work light, employment steady to right one. Apply at this office.

Call at Hoff's Friday or Saturday and sample the hot biscuits made from "Gerbelle" and given away.

YOU can have most any article of iron or brass manufactured at the Junction Foundry.

John P. Crimmins has a notice of his abstract and notary business in this issue of the COURIER.

Joe Link came over from Waterloo this morning. He and John Keeran are running a Bankrupt store there.

Albert Robbins went to Chicago this morning to meet the family of Robert McDougall, who are returning to Auburn.

JAMES W. SCOTT, owner of the Chicago Times Herald died suddenly, Sunday in the city of New York.

FOUND: Last Saturday, a sum of money. Any one describing same, may have it by calling at the Family Grocery and paying for this notice.

J. D. Myers & Myers & Kutzner are selling the Zimmermau Mfg. Co. carriages. See them before buying. 1t

John and Issaac Jones went up to Chicago, Sunday and spent the day with their father.

LAND FOR RENT:—I have a two acre lot good for garden truck. Call on Fleming, at the greenhouse.

Tax-paying closed Monday, but of course there will be more or less of it done all the week, as often happens. One thing or another will prevent many from reaching here by the day set.

Book free despondent men, box 52, Toledo, O.

"Coin's Financial School," the greatest book of the age, converting thousands of gold bugs into free silver men. For sale at the Glazier News Stand, 25 cents per copy.

William Myers and Alpha D. Pence were joined in marriag Thursday, April 11, 1895, by Rev. W. L. Meese at his rooms in West McIntyre addition. They were both from near New Era.

CUSTOMERS, waiting to buy properties in town ranging in price from $400 to $1,000 come quick. Rickel & Sprott

G. W. Coats, of Stafford, attended the bridge sale here to-day, in the interest of the King Bridge Co. The matter will be decided to-morrow.

Marrage license was issued to-day to Delbert N. Myers and Mary E. Carper. We congratulate them for it is a sign of good luck to be the first name on the new record book.

Frank Holman, formerly of Cedar Creek, moves this spring from Grand Rapids to Saginaw E Side, Mich. Mrs. Holman has just recovered from a four months attack of rheumatism. Frank himself is well, and says he is selling lots of "Jolly Tar Plug."

Now is your time to buy a good second hand binder. Brown, Culbertson & Boland have several that they will sell very cheap.

L. E. Campbell, brother of W.B. Campbell of the Dispatch was in town Sunday He is on his way to Buffalo. He is a dealer in heavy draft horses. When he works on a salary he makes $250 per month and when on commission does still better.

The Butler Herald was a little hasty last week, in its headlines and item to the effect that the Auburn Foundry and Machine Works had located there. When the Herald went to press, the foundry was at work on the new building here. They had merely rented the Butler foundery in order to do some work till the new building here is ready to occupy.

Forest Link, the eighteen year old son of Holmes Link, was buried to-day. The funeral was at the house this morning and interment in Evergreen cemetery. He with three others in the family have been having the measles. The young man's death was caused by typhoid fever. Rev. W. L. Meese officiated.

Died.

Helen, daughter of W. B. and Sarah Tarney Campbell, April 16, 1895, at the tender age of one year, six months and thirteen days.

October 3, 1893, the now sorely stricken parents rejoiced in the birth of the little one now taken away. All her brief life, she has been as a sunbeam bringing light and happiness into each little circle where she chanced to be. She was a child of more than ordinary sweetness and promise. Even at her tender age, there was an unfolding, as of a sweet flower that was destined to bloom into beauty and bring its own fragrance and gladness to its full portion of earth Now, the stricken parents mourn the all too early fading, and sorrowing friends unite to extend that sympathy, which though full, must ever fail to restore. Little Helen, to-morrow, will be laid to her rest in beautiful Woodlawn. Let the wild flowers nod her a welcome, for we cannot have her here. Let the sweet song birds trill their softest melodies and the gentle winds of spring breathe fragrance on the little mound that marks her resting place.

There will a short service at the home, at 2 p. m. by Rev. F. C. Colvin.

Surprised.

As the L. O. T. M. lodge, the ladies' auxiliary to the Maccabees, was closed last night about twenty-five of the Sir Knight's came in on to them and gave them a complete surprise. Each man brought a box well filled with enough good things for two, and ice cream, etc., was served which altogether proved a very good luncheon. The evening was then passed in conversation and short addresses by some of the Knights. The Maccabees are quite a successful lodge, and furnish its members with cheap insurance. The men who want to carry $1,000, $3,000 or $5,000 policies may be accommodated in this order. Their assessments are graded and a young man goes in at about 40 cents a thousand, and pays that until his death. Of course older persons have to pay in more money. The L O. L. M. also has insurance connected with it and is in a flourishing condition.

Tuesday's Daily.

GOLD WATCH & $3.

DANIEL SWIHART WEST OF THE JUNOTION IS ROBBED.

He caught the fellow but he begged Off.

About two o'clock yesterday afternoon the farm residence of Daniel Swihart was robbed, as noted briefly in yesterday's daily. Mrs. Swihart was absent at Mrs. Holmes Link,s whose son had died. Mr. Swihart was east of the house, painting some newly sawed limbs on his apple trees, and his son was near by, plowing. The dog at the house, gave the alarm, and knowing that something was wrong Mr. Swihart called to the boy to come with him, and ran to the house. The doors at the east were locked and Mr. Swihart ran around to the west side, where they were not locked, and where he also kept a loaded shot-gun in the wood house. He took down the gun, and started to enter the house, when, he met the thief in the narrow space between the two buildings. Mr. Swihart was about to raise the gun to shoot, and had it at half-cock, when the man begged piteously not to shoot, claiming he was only there to get a drink of water. Believing the fellow, and not knowing he had stolen anything, Mr. Swihart lowered his gun, and let the fellow go. But he soon discovered that Mrs Swihart's gold watch had been taken as well as $3 in cash, and the bureau drawers had been opened. He at once started for Garrett, as the thief had gone that way. At Garrett he learned that a man had just been trying to sell a gold watch, as he claimed it was his sister's. This was risky, to say the least, as Mrs. Swihart's name was in it. Mr. Swihart then hunted up the marshal and tried to get him to go and help find the fellow and arrest him. But the marshal refused, said he had not time, and that the thief could not probably be found any way. Swihart offered to go along and identify the man. But it was no use. The marshal would not budge an inch. So Mr. Swihart had to give it up. The conduct of the marshal is strange and will require some explanation to make it satisfactory. With a dozen or so of burglaries and no one arrested, it begins to look as if the guardians of the law had buried the hatchet, and each citizen should provide himself with a shot-gun and take care of himself.

The Presbytery.

Last evening there was a good audience to listen to the sermon of the retiring Moderator, Rev. C. S. West, of Lima, His subject was the improvement of the African race, especially their descendants located in the United States. He believes they are particularly adapted to receive good impressions. It was a very excellent discourse, and was well received. Following this came calling the roll of churches, so as to see how many were represented by pastors or elders. The following are the names as far as ascertained now, the ministers being first, and following, the names of the elders representing that church:

Goshen, Elder M. Mercer.

LaGrange, Rev. T. E. Hughes, Elder E. G. White, M. D.

Ft. Wayne, Westminster, Rev. J. L. Leeper, Elder F. W. Antrup.

Ft. Wayne, Third, Rev. J. W. Boggs, D. D., Elder J. D. Chambers, M. D.

Ft. Wayne, Bethany, Rev. Geo. E. Davis, Elder E. VanTilberg.

Huntington, Rev. H. L. Nave, Elder Wm. V. Lyon, M. D.

Bluffton, Rev. J. H. Hawle, Elder Geo E. Gardner.

Elkhart, Rev. H. B. Townsend, Elder Aaron Work.

Lima, Rev. M. M. Lawson, Rev. C. S. West.

Ossian, Rev. E. Craven, Elder John Hatfield.

Decatur, Rev. Horton, Elder L. Hart.

Kendallville, Rev. G. A. McIntosh.

Columbia City, Rev. O. S. Thornberry.

Pierceton, Rev. J. A. Ramsey, Elder H. Fenton.

Packerton, Elder I. N. Lucas.

Albion, Rev. S. L. Shirley, Elder J. W. Hays, M. D.

Warsaw, Rev. B. M. Nyce, Elder S. W. Chirman.

The following are visitors from abroad: Rev. E. W. McDowel, from Mosu. Turkey, who will at 3 o'clock this afternoon describe mission work among the Nestorians, Kurds and Armenians. Mr. C. M. Thomas, of South Bend, spoke of Sunday school work throughout the state. Rev. Dr. Johnson. of South Bend. former pastor of this church, is also present.

This morning a number of other ministers arrived. Then came the regular business, including the examination of young ministers. Mr. Colvin and another, were rigidly examined in the different lines followed on such occasions, and each gave the outlines of a sermon. This evening Mr. Colvin is to be ordained and installed as pastor of the church here. This, we believe ends the work of the session, which has been a busy one. The following are the officers elected:

Rev. S. T. Shirley, Moderator; Rev. M. M. Lawson, Stated clerk; Rev. Geo. E. Davis, Temporary clerk; Rev. Geo. A. Macintosh, Treasurer.

Friday and Saturday of this week, F. A. Hoff will serve hot coffee and biscuits made from the fancy patent flour "Gerbelle."

THE GERMAM BABTIST BRETHREN Will hold their annual meeting at Decatur, Ill., the latter part of May. Everything has been arranged, and work on the buildings will begin in a few days. The Wabash R. R. is the only line running trains direct to the grounds.

B. E. Smith, trimmer at the Kiblinger factory, passed around the cigars Sunday. The reason assigned was "Married, you see." We understand he goes to housekeeping in a week or two.

LOOK HERE.

We have a little story to tell you about economy. Buy where you can get best values of goods for the money.

LOOK AT PRICES!

27 inch, double fold plaids and novelties 15c. per yard.
36 inch ½ wool cashmere for 20c pr yd
36 inch all wool cashmere for 35c " "
36 " " " albatross " 35c " "
46 " " " serges " 50c " "
46 " " " henrietta, 60c 75c " "
30 " canvas back duck suiting at 12½c per yard.
30 inch sateens, new line, 12½c per yd
30 inch plain and fancy percales, 10c per yard.

New ginghams, 5, 8, 10 and 12½c per yard.

L L sheeting muslins, 4c per yard.

The Bibb Carpet warp on spools. By using theis warp there is no cost for spooling. No waste by tangled skeins. Price 20 cents per pound.

Gents' white and fancy Percales and Dermet Shirts, Underwear, ½ Hose Suspenders, Overalls' Cottonade pants. Neckties, New Styles, Latest Novelties

Larger Lines - Better Values,

LOWER PRICES.

M. JONES & SON

Wanted.

Good person to represent us.

QUAKER LIFE INSURANCE CO,

Elkhart, Ind.

To Rent: Rear business room in Kiblinger building, newly painted and papered W. C. Hartman.

ANOTHER FIRE.

This time one of our valuable factories, but the loss was paid in full by one of the strong fire insurance companies represented by WALTER C. HARTMAN. Give him your insurance.

Money to Loan.

By F. L. Welsheimer. Best Building and Loan Association represented in Auburn. Money to loan in large or small sums on good security.

WANTED TO BUY: Dwelling property in Auburn, ranging in price from $350 to $800. Answer quick we have customers waiting, Rickel & Sprott.

Eggs for Hatching.

I will sell eggs from my pen of pure bred Golden Buff Cochins, Doolittle Strain, at 50c. per setting of 13. Call or address, H. V. SINCLAIR.

ABSTRACTS TITLE

To all lands in DeKalb County, Indiana, at reasonable rates. I have the only set of Abstract Books in the County. Also Mortgages, Deeds and Notary Public Work of all kinds promptly attended to. Inquire at Auditor or Surveyor's office, Auburn, or leave orders at Postoffice, Garrett,

J. P. Crimmins.
Abstractor and Notary Public.

The Postage Stamp.

J. R. Steves and others have been at work on this, and we furnish two more answers for to-day:

2	1 cent stamps	2c
4	2 cent stamps	8c
30	3 cent stamps	90c
Total		$1.00

or

5	1 cent stamps	5c
10	2 cent stamps	20c
25	3 cent stamps	75c
Total		$1.00

Here is another answer:

8 1-cent stamps	$ .08
16 2-cent stamps	.32
20 3-cent stamps	.60
Total	1.00

Rebuild.

The Auburn Foundry & Machine chine Works stays. The people of Auburn and vacunity have raised in money, stone and labor $2,350, and the company accepts this as a bonus to assist them to rebuild and fit up anew. They will begin to rebuild at once. This means immediate work for hands on the building, and the employment, in time, of the men who were thrown out of work by the fire. Good enough.

"Gerbelle" flour makes 20 per cent more bread to the barrel, and 100 per cent better bread.

CORUNNA,

Arch Mercer has purchased new well drilling machinery, and is putting down his first well on his father's property.

The Easter entertainment at the Disciple church Sunday night was a grand succes.

Charley Cremean, who has been in the south all winter, returned home last Tuesday.

Jessie Rudolph and Maud Raber spent Easter Sunday with friends in Kendallville.

A free show was billed for last Friday night at the city opera house, and of course the hall was filled almost to over flowing account of free admission. But the next night there was a door fee, and as you may imagine elbow room was at a discount.

If you never saw, or heard of a "Spring toothed" Mower, just go to Ed. Gushwa and ask him about it. He can explain the whole "shootin' match" to you, for he is the only one in town who can put one together and start it to mowing.

Brown, Culbertson & Boland have several good second hand binders at prices ranging from $15 to $50. Call and see them.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

JAMES A. BARNS, - - PUBLISHER.

After all it must be acknowledged that ex-Senator Fair took the best way out of it.

On second thought John Bull has concluded not to rinse out the mouth of the Orinoco.

Ex-Mayor Grace is to be Tammany's new leader. Does the tiger now vote for Grace before meat?

In allowing John L. Sullivan to go to waste we believe Keeley is overlooking a first-class advertisement.

The Boston Herald says that "the late President McCosh of Princeton could walk fifty miles a day." But he never did it.

The New York Commercial Advertiser says that suicides in that town average seven a day. This is a remarkably good record, everything being considered.

It is reported that a popular singer named Yam is to marry Editor Wacks, of St. Paul. She will not improve her name much, but she appears to be stuck on Wacks.

A New York paper prints a long editorial on "Is Lying Ever Justifiable?" We don't know; but the New York papers ought to give the practice up on general principles.

If American editors keep on extolling the fighting qualities of the Venezuelans, the first thing we know those fellows will take it as an admission that they could lick us.

It is said that Spain has established a spy system in this country at a cost of $40,000 a month. Perhaps her detectives may be able to find out just why the Allianca was fired upon.

It is queer that Philadelphia should go to the trouble of adopting a municipal flag. Ordinarily a nicely chiseled granite slab offers all that is necessary for identification in such cases.

The chance of two finger prints being alike is not 1 in 64,000,000,000. This accounts for the variety of patterns with which little Freddie decorates the walls after he has been eating molasses.

The military governor of Madrid, General Campos, has issued a notice that he will shoot any editor who criticises the Spanish army or navy. We cannot help but feel that Campos would find the shooting much better over here just now.

E. C. Coffin, a telegraph operator, who was on the verge of suicide because of his extreme poverty, has just inherited $10,000,000 from a Brazilian uncle of whom he had never heard. This is a material proof of the fact that there's hope beyond the grave.

M. Jules Roche recently declared in the French Chamber that Germany can place an army of 550,000 effectives in the field while France can count on only 406,000. As Germany is decidedly the more populous country, the member deserves credit for telling an unwelcome but valuable truth.

A New York dime museum performer known as Prince Albene has sued a young woman for $50,000 damages for breach of promise to marry. In his petition he says he "cemented the glad promise by watering the roses that bloomed in her cheeks by a fond and loving kiss." But $50,000 is a pretty stiff bill for cement.

The practice of burning old and dry grass in unoccupied lands, in order that a younger and more tender growth may give pasture to cattle, is disastrous to the general welfare. It is not alone the grass that burns, and sometimes adjoining pine forests, but the humus in the sandy soil is burnt out, and the future wealth and resources of the State are destroyed.

Statistics give the mileage of all the railways on the globe at the end of 1892 at 406,416 miles, or one mile to every 3,516 inhabitants. Puerto Rico is the State containing the shortest length of railway, numbering eleven miles, and the United States have by far the greatest—174,784 miles. Next, but a long way behind, comes Germany, with 27,455 miles; then France, with 24,018 miles. The United Kingdom is fourth, with 20,325 miles, and Russia fifth, with 19,656 miles.

The fact that the ranks of the world's famous musicians are thinning fast is again recalled by the death of Rubinstein, following not far behind the deaths of Gounod and Tschaikowski. During his lifetime Rubinstein enjoyed a distinction in kind not unlike that of Liszt. Like Liszt, he was one of the greatest piano players the world has ever seen, and after the death of the former he was, at least in the popular opinion, the very greatest. The amazing enthusiasm he created upon his visit to America many years ago attested to this. His later and more permanent fame will rest upon his work as a composer, and in that regard he will stand—for a time, at least—as a man of eminent talent, if not of genius, a skillful master of orchestral resources and a writer of music which rarely fails to charm and is almost never barren of ideas. Brilliancy is the effect he gives first and most of the time. What he lacked was the strong force, the vitality and fire, the emotional bent and the depth which marked the greater exemplars of his art. Picturesque as was the figure he presented among his contemporaries, there will be an interesting and pathetic chapter of history to write when the story of his life is told. The early triumphs, the later unhappiness and the stormy course of life filled with passionate likes and dislikes mark the career which seems to be typical of great artists, particularly when the artists are musicians.

A little anecdote about Sarah Bernhardt may throw some light on the matter of stage kissing, or at least demonstrate that there are kisses and kisses on the stage as well as off. This emotional actress was recently performing in a new play, and at the close of the last act she had to rush upon the stage, kneel down by the side of her dead lover, who had been shot by a villain, and passionately kiss his forehead. It is said that French noblemen, poets, authors, and artists wrote to her, offering to serve as the corpse; and she, not wishing to offend any one, had a fresh person every night. The news of the scheme got abroad, to the vast advantage of the box office.

Pie or death. That is the ultimatum of the Boston boys. We expected no less of them. We felt that these descendants of the makers of the revolution would never relinquish without a struggle the right to solace themselves with pie, the only thing made in New England that is fit to eat. As everybody knows, the row that brought on the first war with England, and our glorious independence, was begun by the boys of Boston. These boys threw stones at the British soldiers in the streets of Boston and a soldier kicked a boy; then a man kicked that soldier, and that led to the Boston massacre, and that again to the battle of Bunker Hill. Now the Boston boys are at it again. Some sanitary fellows have suppressed pie as a part of the school lunch, and the boys revolt and declare for the principles of Plymouth Rock and pie. Death to all sanitary authorities! and three cheers for Pie!

An interview was printed a few days ago with a Japanese gentleman in Tacoma in which he was made to say that if it had not been for the war with China his government would have seized the Sandwich Islands. Well, suppose it had made the attempt what would have happened? Of course this government could not have tolerated anything of the kind. A ringing protest would have been sent at once to the Japanese government, warning it to keep hands off. If it had not paid attention to the warning then the President would have called Congress together. Every available vessel in the navy would have been sent to the islands. Meanwhile the regular army would have ben increased to 50,000 men with further reinforcements of Pacific coast volunteers. They would have gone to Hawaii and stopped the business. If it so happened that our fleet and our troops proved insufficient at first they would have been increased. They would have taken possession of Hawaii and the Japs who were not killed would have been captured and sent back to Japan and Japan would have paid the expenses. And Europe would not have interfered. While the Japanese have something over 12,000 people in the islands this country has the prior lien upon them. If we do not take them ourselves neither shall we allow any one else to take them. It is fortunate therefore for the Japs, if such were their purpose, that they are in war with China, because they are thrashing the Celestials. If they had been in war with Uncle Sam it would have been most unfortunate for them, for they would have been the thrashees.

VIGILANTE METHODS.

Relentless Pursuit of Bad Men in Far Western America.

The vigilants have a thorough system of their own of private inquiry and espionage as well, says Chambers' Journal. Many a thief has mentally wondered, with much unnecessary profanity, how it was known that he had appropriated some neighbor's calf, colt or horse. Each district has its own committee. This committee does not work outside its district save in special cases. Committees assist each other when required to do so. In heavy cases committees will join each together. In such an event from 500 to 1,000 men can be centered at any given spot on very short notice. When action is needed every member must attend the rendezvous, absolute incapacity from illness being the only excuse admitted. The members are bound to secrecy and to help and assist each other in all cases of emergency—to an extreme limit. The obligation is a stringent one. No one is admitted as a member unless he is well reported on by the other members. An executive committee is formed of picked men only, who do all the preliminary work, do it skillfully and thoroughly, and do not state the result of their labors until on the eve of carrying out their plans.

As an illustration of how thorough the vigilantes are in their methods I may give the following: Two "road agents" in Montana had killed without any provocation two passengers on a stage coach in open daylight. The agents, well mounted, started at once to leave the country. Three vigilantes followed them. Day after day the vigilantes followed the trail, but failed to overtake the road agents, who, well knowing the character of the sleuth hounds on their track, were forcing their tired horses toward the South. The latter at last gave out; the agents stole two fresh ones from a stable and renewed their flight through Idaho, down into Utah, and across to Nevada—the hunters behind them tracking day by day and hour by hour. At last the vigilantes overtook their men, and two ringing shots from Winchester rifles ended that chapter. A local paper afterward stated that "The bodies of two men, each shot through the heart, were found yesterday on the roadside. They had a considerable sum of gold on their persons, but no papers to identify them by. It is supposed that this was vigilante work, as robbery evidently was not an object—their pockets having been undisturbed."

A Pleasant Prospect.

Nodd—My wife went shopping to-day and didn't spend a cent.

Todd—Well, wait till to-morrow, when she has seen what my wife bought.—New York World.

Fraulein Mabel (to her young man)—But now you must ask papa for his consent. Young man (very shy)—Oh, certainly! Your—papa—has—I hope—a—telephone—at—his—office?—Ueber Land und Meer.

My landlady's daughter has a wheel,
And down the street she flies;
Meanwhile the dear old girl herself
Gives us pneumatic pies.
—Cincinnati Tribune.

OPEN TO THE WORLD.

THE RESULT OF JAPANESE CONQUEST OF CHINA.

The Immense Empire to Be Thrown Open to Foreign Commerce and Her 400,000,000 Inhabitants to Compete with European Labor.

Conditions of Peace.

The Japanese minister at Washington confirms the reports from Tokyo that his Government has made the opening of China to foreign commerce and immigration one of the conditions of peace, which will make the country the most attractive spot on earth for investment and speculation during the next fifteen or twenty years. The interior of China, and, as a matter of fact, the entire empire, except the treaty ports, is 2,000 years behind the age, judged by comparison with France or Great Britain or the United States, but with its marvelous soil and 400,000,000 of a naturally ingenious and industrious population it is capable of almost any degree of development. Its advantages over Japan in this respect are very great, and the latter country has shown what progress a people can make when they accept modern ideas and methods.

The conditions of peace include the free admission of machinery to all parts of China and the establishment of factories by foreigners under the protection of the Government. This has hitherto been prohibited outside the treaty ports, and there is practically no machinery in China. The abolition of the "linkin tax," as it is called, is also insisted upon. This is a local duty or tax that may be assessed upon foreigners or foreign goods by any province or municipality to such an amount and as frequently as the local authorities desire. It is in effect a blackmail upon foreign trade and has been the cause of a great deal of trouble and constant complaint. Another condition is the granting of free concessions, charters and privileges to Japanese and other foreigners for the construction of railways after the manner of civilized nations. There is only one short railway in China, and that belongs to the Government.

It is understood at the Japanese Legation at Washington that all of these conditions have been accepted by the Chinese envoys, and that the only point at issue now is the cession by China of the peninsula known as the Regent's Sword, at the point of which stands the citadel of Port Arthur. Therefore it may be assumed as certain that the wall which has kept foreigners out of China is to be thrown down within the next few months.

The motive of Japan in exacting from China the conditions described is the subject of much discussion, but it is generally assumed that it was done in compliance with the suggestions of the European nations which desire to extend their markets. It is also a question of serious discussion among diplomatists whether it is a wise policy to encourage the industrial development of China by educating the masses of the people in mechanical pursuits and the use of labor-saving machinery.

The extraordinary capacity of the Chinese in all forms of fabrication, their great ingenuity and facility of imitation, their ability to labor fourteen and sixteen hours a day on a few handfuls of rice, and their willingness to work for wages that would not pay for the tobacco consumed by an American mechanic, will make them dangerous competitors in all lines of manufactures, particularly in the production of silks, cottons and other fabrics. If they should enter generally into the manufacture of textiles with cotton of their own cultivation they would effectually close the mills of Manchester, which have already been seriously crippled by the development of the industry in India, where the increase of spindles during the last ten years has been greater than in any other part of the world.

China is now the largest market for British and American cottons. We send to that country very little else except petroleum. Our exports last year (1894) were valued at $5,858,488, of which $2,884,220 were cotton cloths and $2,438,636 petroleum. Our imports from China amounted to $17,135,028, of which $3,163,684 were silks, $7,397,253 tea, $807,635 matting and about $1,000,000 worth of furs and skins. Our exports to Japan were valued at $3,986,815, of which $2,226,247 was petroleum. Our imports from Japan amounted to $19,426,522, of which over $10,000,000 were silks, and $5,500,000 tea.

The Chinese market for manufactured goods will never be much greater. The wants of the people are few, and it will be generations before they are educated to the need of luxuries. Therefore the demand for foreign merchandise will in no wise compensate for the competition they will offer. The opening of the country to manufactures will occasion a temporary market for machinery, tools, railway construction material and supplies and improved agricultural implements, but the Chinese are such clever imitators that they will soon be able to supply themselves.

SHE IS ABLE AND CULTURED.

Lucie Faure, Daughter of the French President, Soon to Wed.

Mlle. Lucie Faure, whose engagement to Paul Deschanel, a member of the Chamber of Deputies, is announced, is one of the most brilliant Parisian society leaders. As daughter of the President of France, she plays an important part in the social functions given at the Elysee, where a hospitality, with a princely show not equaled since the days of MacMahon, is extended. Miss Faure is a lady of great natural ability, cultivated, fond of poetry, somewhat of a philosopher and an author. A little book of hers, dealing with an excursion into Algeria, has been favorably commented on and holds forth the promise of more pretentious labors.

MLLE. FAURE. M. DESCHANEL.

Her betrothed is the author of several political and literary works, and at present is connected with one of the leading Parisian journals. He has held several important political positions and was decorated by the Sultan of Turkey. He is one of the leading orators in France today. In 1891 he visited this country to study our commercial and economic systems.

RUSSIAN BEAR GROWLS.

May Interfere with Japan's Scheme of Squeezing China.

The St. Petersburg Novoe Vremya says that if Great Britain has approved the territorial demands of Japan in regard to Manchuria and Corea, Russia will consider herself relieved of the obligations of common action and will oppose Japan on land and on the sea.

Referring to this a Washington correspondent says: The unmistakable threat against Japan held out by Russia in the short notice in its semi-official organ, the Novoe Vremya, has caused much surprise in diplomatic circles here. It was supposed that Russia had a good understanding with Japan as to the terms of peace to be held out to China; that there was an entire agreement upon the propositions touching Corean independence, the acquisition by Japan of Formosa and Port Arthur and the exaction of an indemnity. As to Great Britain, which now appears to be reproached with failing to maintain a stiff front against Japanese demands where they involved the acquisition of territory, it has all along been understood that she was the one power that was disposed to resist aggressions, and was only prevented from actual interference through inability to secure the co-operation of Russia in such a movement. The Russo-Japanese agreement was understood to include the concession to Russia of a right of way through Corea for the Siberian railroad to afford a winter terminus, and it is suggested that the change in her attitude may be accounted for by the possible failure of this part of the program by the Japanese undertaking to guarantee the absolute independence of Corea, thus preventing the acquisition of the needful territory for the right of way and the terminal facility.

An authoritative statement of the terms of peace being negotiated between Japan and China has been secured from official sources. The statement is made in order to clear up much misapprehension arising from speculation as to the terms of peace. They are five in number, as follows:

1. Independence of Corea.
2. Permanent cession of the island of Formosa to Japan.
3. Indemnity of 300,000,000 taels (Chinese coin worth $1.33).
4. Permanent occupation of Port Arthur and the immediate contiguous territory.
5. A new Japan-China treaty opening the interior of China to commerce.

THE SOUTHERN DEAD

To Be Honored by a Monument in Oakwoods Cemetery, Chicago.

Union and Confederate veterans will unite Memorial day in the dedication of the monument to the unknown dead of the Southern armies in Oakwoods cemetery, Chicago. All the South will be there in spirit, and the 7,000 graves will be strewn with arbutus blossoms from the mountains of Kentucky and Tennessee, tiger lilies from Georgia, roses and moss from Florida. And the shaft of the monument will rise from a bed of flowers gathered by daughters, wives and sisters of those who fought and fell on Southern soil in the woods and fields for which they died. Gen. John C. Underwood, who went to Georgia to secure the flowers, has sent word that his mission has been successful. They will be sent to Chicago in refrigerator cars.

While the veil is being lifted from the monument generals of the Union and Confederate armies will stand by, shoulder to shoulder. From the Southern side will be Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, Gen. John B. Gordon, Gen. W. W. Cabell and others, and from the Federal ranks will be Gen. Schofield, Gen. Flagler, Gen. Lawler, Gen. Palmer and others. Hundreds of Confederates will be present, and Grand Army posts will participate in the dedicatory exercises and afterward will assist the Confederates in strewing flowers over the graves of their dead comrades. Surrounding the monument will be four cannons, which were appropriated by a special act of Congress. They have not yet been placed in position, but will be before Decoration day. They were captured from the Federals at Chickamauga and were afterward used with great effect by the Confederates in the battles of Missionary Ridge, Dalton, Resaca, Kenesaw Mountain, Peach Tree Creek, Atlanta and Franklin, and were captured still later by the Union men at Nashville.

CONFEDERATE MONUMENT.

When the veil falls an imposing monument forty feet high with pedestal of Tennessee marble and statue of bronze will be seen. The figure will be recognized by every old Confederate as that of a typical Southern infantryman. In tattered clothes, badly worn shoes, with stockings drawn over the trousers, he stands with folded arms, having no musket, and looks down as if in sorrow on the field where many of his comrades sleep. The face of the monument will show a bronze seal of the Confederacy enlarged, with the inscription:

Erected to the Memory of 6,000 Southern Soldiers, Here Buried, Who Died in Camp Douglas Prison, 1862-65.

The words "Confederate Dead" are on the base in large letters. On the eastern face is a bronze panel representing "a call to arms." The return of the soldier to his home is pictured on the west face. On the south side the soldier's last sleep is illustrated.

Personal Notes.

Mrs. Cressingham is the champion of the sugar beet bill in the Colorado Legislature. She has already worked the bill through the House.

Mrs. Christie Washington, colored, has just died at Somerville, N. J., leaving her son an orphan. She was 116 years old and the orphan son is 89.

Minister Baker sends up an appeal from Nicaragua for a calendar, as there is not one in the City of Managua. He needs a calendar to keep time on the revolutions.

Russell Sage stands up manfully for the Monroe doctrine, for the reason that Mr. Sage is a genuine American, and for the further reason that it doesn't cost anything to stand up.

Joshua H. Stover, of Staunton, Va., has been sentenced to the penitentiary for life for stealing three and a half pounds of bacon worth 37½ cents. Stover is a white man, a carpenter, and a confirmed thief.

Wade Hampton declares that women and horses are "just alike, and require the same treatment. There's only one way to get along with them: Use your strongest curbs on the fast ones and lash the slow ones like the devil."

INDIANA INCIDENTS.

SOBER OR STARTLING, FAITHFULLY RECORDED.

An Interesting Summary of the More Important Doings of Our Neighbors—Weddings and Deaths—Crimes, Casualties and General News Notes.

Condensed State News.

ANOTHER large tin-plate factory is to be located at Frankton.

ABOUT 200 gas wells will be drilled in Madison County this summer.

CHARLES TAYLOR had his hand cut off in a planing machine at Jeffersonville.

THE Oakland Ledger says a libel suit is worth $1,000 a year to a paper in the way of notoriety.

SILAS F. AULLS of Fort Wayne, ran a sliver of iron in his foot and died in great agony with lockjaw.

STEPHEN GREGORY, a farmer east of Brooklyn, was found insane wandering over the streets at Brooklyn.

LOGANSPORT Masons will build a $60,000 temple which will include a handsome opera house and assembly hall.

DOGS chewed up twenty-four sheep out of a flock of twenty-eight belonging to J. F. Young, a Shelby Township ruralist.

THOMAS HURT, a prominent Miami county farmer, committed suicide by hanging himself in the barn with a log chain.

DAVID BEPLER'S 5-year-old son, near Shelbyville, fell on a pair of scissors, the point penetrating his brain. He will die

THE oldest horse in the State belongs to John Drake of Inwood. She is 41 years of age. Drake has owned her for thirty-eight years.

LOGANSPORT newspaper men will entertain the Northern Indiana Press Association that meets in that city in June, in a royal manner.

PROF. T. O. MOTT, of Richmond, superintendent of the Wayne County Schools, has been elected to the superintendency of the Madison, Ind., schools for next year.

THOMAS BOND, aged 13, was shooting at a mark in Logansport. One of the bullets found a soft lodging place in the anatomy of young Dwight Powell. He will recover.

AT Fort Wayne, on Wednesday and Thursday, April 24, and 25, the greatest lot of highly bred horses ever put up at public auction in Indiana will be sold at the Fort Wayne Driving Park.

MR. D. A. COULTER, cashier of the Farmers' Bank, of Frankfort, has contracted with an Indianapolis firm for a ten-thousand-dollar mausoleum, to be erected on his lot at Greenlawn Cemetery.

JOHN ALBOMSON, fifty years old, while hauling tile to his farm new Farmland, his team ran away and the loaded wagon passed over his body, breaking his back and otherwise injuring him. He cannot recover.

"BUCK" STANLEY, of Logansport, Ind., is conducting a temperance campaign in Boonville. The meetings have fairly begun and over two hundred have signed the total abstanence pledge. A good citizens' club will be organized.

THE dead body of Mrs. Otto Ellwanger was found lying on the floor of her room at Cedar Lake. A heavy rolling pin with which the crime had been committed was lying beside her. Suspicion points to her husband who is missing.

DR. THOS. B. REDDING of New Castle, widely know in methodist circles, fell into a cistern, and was downed. He was 64 years of age and had attained considerable prominence as a scientist. Was formerly a newspaper man and later a lawyer.

HENRY FAHRENHEIM of Laporte, a house painter, went home drunk. He abused his wife and finally choked her. Her screams awakened her father, Jacob Ott, who resides in the adjoining house. He rushed in and seeing Fahrenheim was armed with a hammer he dealt him a terrible blow with his fist. Fahrenheim revived but began spitting blood and died in an hour. Ott gave himself up.

JOHN REED, a young man of Union City was killed by an electric light wire. Just how the accident happened will probably always remain a mystery, but it is supposed that he took hold of the cable which holds the street lamp, forming a short circuit. His screams attracted attention of people passing on the street, who say his body was thrown a distance of fifteen feet. The accident happened only a few yards from his home.

PATENTS have been granted Indiana inventors as follows: F. P. Baifey, F. Berner, jr., and W. L. Lightford Indianapolis, stamp affixing machine; J. S. Cameron, Evansville, gage for flouring rolls, etc., (two patents); M. Duncan, South Bend, toilet powder bag; H. M. Haldeman Indianapolis, ball cock valve; W. A. Holly, South Bend, hand weeder; G. J. Hotchkiss, Evansville, trap door for use in mines; J. W. Hough, Marion, oil and gas separator; C. M. Kiler, Indianapolis, station indicator; A. Kimber, Indianapolis, mail bag catcher; W. L. Lightford, Indianapolis, stamp affixing machine; J. J. Moore, Thorntown, traction engine cab; same, spark arrester; W. Powell, Roachdale, fence post; F. W. Robinson, Richmond, straw stacker; L. T. Wilcox, South Bend, oil stove (re-issue); J. R. Wiley, Petersburg, combined harrow and roller.

WHEN the appraisers took an inventory of the property of Mrs. Hannah Rolf, who died some days ago at Terre Haute, they found that the old woman, who for years had labored with her husband on a garden truck farm near the city and who appeared to be on the verge of abject poverty, was in fact worth $40,000 in her own name. They found in her room $1,300 in cash and notes, together with mortgages which they appraised at $24,000. The remainder of her property consisted of real estate. There was also a certificate of deposit of $4,000 in the Beach Bank which failed in August, 1883. She made a will just before she died and bequeathed to her husband one-third of her estate. The remainder was given to her sister who lives in Germany. The husband was thought to be insane and was placed in charge of a guardian by the court. He is believed to be worth $25,000 or $30,000 in his own right.

John Reed, an inspector in the employ of the Citizens' Street Railroad Company, Indianapolis, was caught between a car and one of the poles that sustain the electric wire, and was crushed so that he died a short time later. Reed was 34 years old and leaves a wife and child.

THE American starch works plant in Columbus is in ashes and the loss is $250,000. Lewis Wade, colored, was caught in the wreck and his body still remains in the smoking ruins. In the elevator was 75,000 bushels of corn which is entirely lost, also $40,000 worth of manufactured starch. 'Twas an anti-trust concern and will not be rebuilt.

BALL BROTHERS, fruit jar manufacturers of Muncie, have begun the shipment of jars and they will continue to load and ship twenty cars per day until the stock of several hundred carloads is exhausted. Work has begun on a new continuous tank for factory No. 2 and this will make their third tank. When this is completed the force will be increased 300 hands or to nearly one thousand. This firm, composed of Frank, Edward and George Ball, all young men, were first to build a glass factory in the Indiana gas belt.

AT Fort Wayne, Josie Nebram, a 4-year-old child, saw her kitten jump into an open cistern, and to rescue it jumped in after it and was drowned. She was not found for an hour af—

OUR BUDGET OF FUN.

HUMOROUS SAYINGS AND DOINGS HERE AND THERE.

Jokes and Jokelets that Are Supposed to Have Been Recently Born—Sayings and Doings that Are Odd, Curious and Laughable—The Week's Humor.

Let Us All Laugh.

"Does this roof leak always?" Agent—"Oh, no, ma'am; only when it rains."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

"Yes," said the tree, "I suppose I'm ready, so far as my trunk goes; but I've decided not to leave until spring."—Life.

Miss Old—"I would never get married if I had to ask the man." Miss Peart—"Maybe you wouldn't then."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Belle—"Was George very much cast down after he spoke to your father?" Nell—"Yes; three flights of stairs."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

"Can this person's word be depended upon?" "Heaven's, yes! You can bank on it that he'll never tell the truth."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Butler—"I may be poor, but there was a time when I rode in a carriage." Cook—"Yes, and your mother pushed it."—Pall Mall Budget.

"What the new woman wants to learn," says the Manayunk philosopher, "is to buy a larger shoe and a smaller hat."—Philadelphia Record.

Lady (artist)—"Have you noticed the new art movement in show bills?" Philistine—"Yes, but if that is art, I am a fool." Lady—"It is art."—Truth.

Burglar (just acquitted, to his counsel)—"I will shortly call and see you at your office, sir." "Very good; but in the daytime, please."—Blumenlese.

"Here is Col. Jinks. He wants you to explain the financial question to him." "Certainly, Colonel. Can you lend me $10?"—Atlanta Constitution.

Hiland—"My horse is the most intelligent animal I know." Harket—"Go on!" Hiland—"He's away up in gee."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

May—"I wonder what the men do at the club?" Pamela—"From what Jack says, I guess they play with the kitty most of the time."—Harlem Life.

Spoons—"And will my ducky trust me in everything when we are married?" She—"Everything, Algy, provided you don't ask for a night key."—Scribner's.

Mrs. Poore—"Jabez, why do they say hush money?" Mr. Poore—"I don't know, Marindy, unless it is that money talks."—New York Morning Journal.

Alberta—"I believe you call yourself an advanced woman, dear?" Alethea—"Yes, love." Alberta (sweetly)—"Then you may tip the waiter, dear."—Judge.

"Scaggs is getting fat," said Willoughby. "He's developed a double chin." "Well, he needed it," said Parsons. "His original chin was overworked."—Harper's Bazar.

Aunt Rosa—"Well, Juanito, what would you like to be when you are grown up?" Juanito (whose parents are very strict)—"I'd like to be an orphan."—El Dia.

Mrs. Mealer—"I am sorry to say, the tea is all exhausted." Crusty boarder—"I am not surprised. It has been very weak for some time."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Woman at the door—"Are you a tramp?" Waggles—"No, madim; I'm de pet model ov de Noo York cumick artis's, an' somehow I has lost me way."—Syracuse Post.

Maud—And Mr. Meanitall really said that I was better looking than ever? Marie (wickedly)—No, dear. He simply said you were looking better.—Life.

"What, you are going to ask your employer for his daughter's hand? Suppose he should kick you out?" "Oh, I have already secured another place."—Fliegende Blatter.

"Mrs. Talker is a very obedient woman." "All I ever noticed about her is that she is an awful gossip." "That's why. What you tell her goes."—New York Morning Journal.

Pertly—There's one thing which I have to say in favor of the wind when it whistles. Dullhead—What's that? Pertly—It never whistles popular airs.—Boston Home Journal.

He (encouragingly)—I'm sure of one thing, my angel, you and I will never quarrel as that couple are doing. She (with decision)—Indeed we won't. If you ever speak to me as he did to her, I'll call the police.—New York Weekly.

Mrs. Strongmind—If women would only stand shoulder to shoulder, they would soon win the suffrage. Dr. Guffy—But, madam, that is something they can't do with the present style in sleeves.—Tid-Bits.

Jack—Madge has beautiful hair, hasn't she? Nell—Yes; she gets that from her mother. Jack—I didn't know her mother had hair of that color. Nell—Oh, yes! She has all kinds in her store.—Philadelphia Record.

Bjones (very parsimoniously)—It is a great comfort to me to reflect that time is money. Browne—Why? "Whenever I want to be particularly liberal to my friends I go out and spend some time with them."—Truth.

Friend of the defendant—When the Judge asked you where you were born, why didn't you tell him at once that you are a native of Chicago? Defendant—I would have been a fool to criminate myself, wouldn't I?—Boston Transcript.

Weary Walker—Say, mister, gimme a dime. Dignified wayfarer—Give you a dime! I think you are more in need of manners than money. Weary Walker—Well, I struck yer fer what I thought ye had the most uv.—Harper's Bazar.

Famous Dead.

The Edinburgh Pen and Pencil Club, which is composed of men of letters, artists, and museums to the number of 100, has taken up the work of affixing memorial tablets to the houses in Edinburgh in which eminent men were either born or lived. They will first honor Scott, Burns, Adam Smith, and David Hume. No man will be commemorated in the future till he has been dead twenty years.

Hard on the Average Girl.

The average girl knows no duty that is stronger than that of returning calls and presents to her friends.—Atchison Globe.

A WAR ECHO.

EVERY HONORABLE VETERAN DESERVES HIS PENSION.

And the Lone Limb Is Not the Only Reason for a Government Reward Either.

(From Journal, Lewiston, Me.)

Samuel R. Jordan has just given the Journal an account of his life, which in view of his extremely hard lot for the past few years will be read with interest.

"I am 48 years old and have always lived in New Portland. I enlisted in the army in 1862 as a private in Company A, Twenty-eighth Maine Volunteers. My army experience injured my health to some extent, although I worked at blacksmithing some part of the time, when suddenly, several years ago, I was prostrated with what able physicians pronounced Locomotor Ataxia. At first I could get around somewhat yet the disease progressed quite rapidly until I had hardly any feeling in my legs and feet, they felt like sticks of wood and I grew so much worse that I could not move for three years without help, as my neighbors and friends could testify. I employed several physicians in my vicinity, and elsewhere, and they all told me that medicines would not help me, that they could do nothing to effect a cure and that in time I should become entirely helpless. I became discouraged. I was a great care to my wife and friends. Shortly after I met an old army comrade, Mr. All. Parlin, a resident of Madison, Maine, and he incidentally mentioned how he had tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for a severe case of rheumatism and a spinal and malarial trouble, that he had suffered with consequent of his army life, and had been greatly benefited by their use. By his earnest recommendation I was induced to try the pills. After taking them for a time I began to feel prickly sensations in my legs and a return of strength so I could move them a little. After a few weeks I began to feel a marked improvement in my condition. I soon was enabled to walk around a little with the help of crutches. After taking for some time I can now walk without crutches, my general health is much improved and I have regained my old-time vigor. I can walk about and enjoy life once more, for which I feel very thankful, and this happy result is due to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are not a patent medicine in the sense that name implies. They were first compounded as a prescription and used as such in general practice by an eminent physician. So great was their efficacy that it was deemed wise to place them within the reach of all. They are now manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., and are sold in boxes (never in loose form by the dozen or hundred, and the public are cautioned against numerous imitations sold in this shape) at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company.

ONE OF THEM IN A BAD FIX

The Startling Sight which Met a Bon Vivant's Gaze Next Morning.

Here is a story which, according to the New York Sun, was a favorite in the repertory of a famous Cincinnatian:

"On one occasion," he was wont to say, "a friend of mine had been on a terrific spree which had been occupying his nights right along for two weeks or more. He managed somehow to be on deck during business hours, but when night came he was down in the hold and everywhere else. One morning he awoke heavy-headed, half-dressed and lying crosswise the bed. When he had gone to sleep or how he did not remember. There was the odor of stale beer and wine and tobacco smoke in the room, and bottles and cigar butts were scattered all over. By a great effort he got to his feet, and for an instant his head felt as if it would fall off and burst into a million pieces. He cast his eyes around the room. As they fell upon the feet of the bed they encountered a grim and grinning monkey sitting on the rail. There was no known reason why a monkey should be there, but there it sat and grinned. He watched it intently as he slipped over toward a table where lay a loaded revolver. He was very, very rocky, but he had grip enough to hold the gun, and with a sudden movement he had it trained on the simian. He was a famous shot, but the monkey never wavered. It simply sat there winking and grinning. My friend held the pistol down on it for a second, steadily.

"'Now,' he said nervously, 'if you are a real monkey, you are in a h— of a fix—then he hesitated for a moment—'but if you are not,' he went on, 'then I'm in a h— of a fix.'

"He banged away, and it was ten days before he was himself again."

Turning the Tables.

A tale is told of the manner in which Daniel O'Connell turned the tables on the London Times.

The Times had declared that it would never allow the Irish agitator's name to go into its columns, and, therefore, when he rose to speak in the House of Commons, the Times reporters threw down their pencils, folded their arms, and learned back at ease.

On which up rose a friend of the orator and called the attention of the Speaker to the fact that there were strangers in the gallery. Instantly the rule of the House prevailed, and out the reporters were hustled. Consequently the Times has no report of Parliament the next day.

A little later a representative of the paper called on Mr. O'Connell, and, eating humble pie, said the Times would like to report his speech at a certain meeting.

With great cordiality Mr. O'Connell agreed to allow the report, invited the reporter to ride with him in his carriage to his place of speaking, had a convenient place allotted to him there and table and ink brought for his convenience, and proceeded to deliver an eloquent oration in Irish!

Couldn't Be "It" for Both.

The eldest of three little chaps was sternly reproved by his mother for his bad behavior. "You are the eldest, Cyrus," she said, "and you ought to be an example to Homer and Jack." "Well, I'll be an example for Homer," said Cyrus, "but I won't be an example for both of 'em. Homer's got to be it for Jack."—Boston Transcript.

Nickel Armor-Plate.

Nickel steel armor-plates made by Krupp on a new system were successfully tested at Meppen. The plates were about five and one-half inches thick, and showed a resistance equal to plates of nine and one-third inches made by the old process.

It is said that moths will not attack green fabrics. Arsenic is used in dyeing green, and the moths are wise enough to shun that deadly drug.

"MAMMA, see how cold that poor chestnut man looks! Do give me 5 cents so he can earn something."

That Tired Feeling

Is a certain indication of impure and impoverished blood. If your blood could always be rich and pure, full of the red corpuscles upon which its vitality depends, you would never be weak, or

Nervous! Boils, pimples, scrofula, salt rheum, would never trouble you. But our mode of living, shut in all winter in poorly ventilated homes and shops, depletes the blood, and there is loss of appetite and weakness. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the standard remedy for this condition. It purifies, vitalizes, and enriches the blood, overcomes that tired feeling, builds up the nerves, and gives perfect health. Read this:

"Our daughter, Blanche, when four years of age, had a humor break out on her hands and face, which our physician pronounced eczema. If the cold air reached her face or hands they would swell up, look almost purple, and headed blisters would form and break, Discharging a watery fluid, and the burning and itching would drive her nearly wild. Unless we incased her little hands she would tear patches of skin from her face and hands. We tried many doctors and many remedies, and at last gave the case up as hopeless. But our daughter Cora tried Hood's Sarsaparilla, to cure a scrofulous lump near the left breast which caused her much pain, and after taking 4 bottles it disappeared. Blanche, who is now eleven, had spent seven years of suffering, so I concluded to give her Hood's Sarsaparilla. She took 5 bottles, and her face is smooth and soft as a baby's, the color of a rose petal. Her hands are soft and white, where four months ago they were blue and red and calloused nearly like leather. I cannot express my gratitude by pen or mouth. It seems a miracle, and our friends are surprised." MRS. ANNA L. CLARK, 401 E. 4th St., Duluth, Minn.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Is the Only True Blood Purifier

Prominently in the Public Eye To-Day

Beecham's pills are for biliousness, sick headache, dizziness, dyspepsia, bad taste in the mouth, heartburn, torpid liver, foul breath, sallow skin, coated tongue, pimples loss of appetite, etc., when caused by constipation; and constipation is the most frequent cause of all of them.

One of the most important things for everybody to learn is that constipation causes more than half the sickness in the world, especially of women; and it can all be prevented. Go by the book, free at your druggist's, or write B. F. Allen Co., 365 Canal St., New York. Pills, 10¢ and 25¢ a box.

Annual sales more than 6,000,000 boxes.

Ely's Cream Balm

Cleanses the Nasal Passages, Allays Pain and Inflammation, Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. Heals the Sores.

Apply Balm into each nostril. ELY BROS., 56 Warren St., N. Y.

The Aermotor all Steel Feed Cutter Worth

$40 FOR $10

We will furnish this feed cutter, one only to one person not later than July 1, 1895, for $10.00 cash, and addresses of ten neighbors and acquaintances of the number known personally by him to be responsible and influential men in their localities who need and are likely to buy something in our line this year. After July 1, money and ten addresses will be returned to sender and no attention will be paid to inquiries or letters concerning this offer. It is literally now or never. The feed cutter is delivered f. o. b. Chicago. If shipped from branch houses back freight will follow.

This all steel frame and new which we put out at $20.00, we justly consider we ever made. 26-inch very superior $15.00 last year, but now sell only at $20.00, is one of the most popular machines we ever made. AERMOTOR CO. Chicago.

She is rather good looking,
But lacks sense!
She dissolves

A • Ripans • Tabule

On her tongue
Instead of
Swallowing it whole.
It does its work
Either way,
But the last is the way intended,
Nevertheless.

LINENE

Raphael, Angelo, Rubens, Vandyke

The "LINENE REVERSIBLE" are the Best and Most Economical Collars and Cuffs worn; they are made of fine cloth, both sides finished alike, and, being reversible, one collar is equal to two of any other kind. They fit well, wear well and look well. A box of Ten Collars or Five Pairs of Cuffs for Twenty-five Cents. A Sample Collar and Pair of Cuffs by mail for Six Cents. Name style and size. Address

REVERSIBLE COLLAR COMPANY,
77 FRANKLIN ST., NEW YORK. 27 KILBY ST., BOSTON.

PENSION JOHN W. MORRIS, Washington, D. C. Successfully Prosecutes Claims. Late Principal Examiner U. S. Pension Bureau. 3 yrs in last war, 15 adjudicating claims, atty since.

KIDER'S PASTILLES Relief in Cases of ASTHMA. Sent by mail. Stowell & Co., Charlestown, Mass.

CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

THE Nickel Plate road can offer to the Sons of the American Revolution reduced rates to their convention at Boston, Mass. Remember we operate through sleeping cars direct to Boston.

A PARISIAN claims to have invented a paper which is incombustible.

AFTER six years' suffering, I was cured by Piso's Cure.—MARY THOMSON, 29½ Ohio Ave., Allegheny, Pa., March 19, '94.

Chinese Forgers.

Every one was tolerably confident that collectors possessing ordinary knowledge would be proof against the deceptions, owing to the incapacity of the Chinese of the present era to make anything comparable within close limits to justify famous examples of old ware dating from the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries.

But the Chinese are now noted for their imitations of old wares, and no such confidence can be any longer felt; the imitators have developed a degree of skill that brings their work very close to the fine old standards. Even the incomparable blue and white porcelains of old have modern rivals, so good that amateurs have been deceived by them, and, I suppose, many are destined to be so deceived.—Lippincott's.

OVER seventeen thousand silk goods are known to dealers.

WHY?

QUESTIONS WOMEN ASK

Here Answered with Good Sound Reason.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

Why do people say that Lydia E. Pinkham's treatment, especially her Vegetable Compound, effects cures beyond the physician's skill?

Because of the fact that a woman best understands a woman's ills. What man ever suffered a single pang like unto woman? Man works from theory only.

Why do tens of thousands of women write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., telling their most secret thoughts?

Because they know that their letters go straight to the hands of a woman, are opened, read, and answered by a woman, who as a woman has made woman's ills a life study, and because she never fails them, and cures cases which the doctor cannot.

The lady who asks that the following letter be published, gives concisely the uniform expression of gratitude contained in thousands of other letters in Mrs. Pinkham's possession.

"For eight years I suffered with neuralgia of the womb, backache, severe pains all through my body, and kidney trouble. None of the doctors did me any good. I took twelve bottles of your Vegetable Compound, and cannot thank you enough for the relief I found.

"I am now well cured of all those pains. I should advise every woman to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound who has any female trouble. I had a friend who was to go under an operation. I advised her first to try the Compound. She did, and is now so much better and stronger she has given up all thoughts of the operation."—MRS. M. WILDE, 2137 Park St., Tioga, Pa.

EAT
FRIENDS OATS

ALWAYS THE BEST
Made Exclusively from
Superior KILN DRIED Selected
IOWA WHITE OATS
SOLD ONLY in 2 lb. pkgs.

GRANDFATHER'S NEW START.

He Goes to Chicago to Make a Fortune and Is Robbed of His All.

He came to Chicago ten days ago to make his fortune in the good old way. His entire capital was $35 in worn bills wrapped up in an old wallet. Unlike the fortune-seeker of the story, however, he did not bring with him the blessing and the tearful good wishes of his white-haired mother. For his mother had been dead these fifty years. Nor did he bring with him from the old home farm two strong arms and the courage which comes of a clear eye and a healthy life in the fresh country air. Seventy-one years of hard work have whitened his hair and beard, bent his tall figure, and taken the elasticity out of his muscles They have been seventy-one years of failure. The little farm at Ritchie, Ill., was first mortgaged and then sold under the hammer. One by one his three stalwart sons died and the only married daughter had all she could do to feed her little ones after her husband fell a victim to pneumonia last fall. Three years ago the "old woman," as he calls her, though the phrase comes reverently from his lips, bade him good-by for the last time.

He was left alone in the world, with no friends, no trade, no money, and no means of getting any. But this old fellow had hope. He had been to Chicago once and he knew it was a great and a rich city. He knew men came here poor and made great fortunes. So he gathered together all his slender resources, raised $35, and took the train with a childlike and beautiful confidence that he would succeed. When he bade the folks good-by down at Ritchie he told them he couldn't hang around where there was no work for him to do. He would soon get estalished in Chicago and then he would send for the daughter and her children. So, reversing the usual natural order of things, grandfather came to the city to make a fortune for the family.

IN THE POLICE STATION.

He is without a cent now, and for three days he has occupied a cell at the Harrison Street Police Station. But it is not the old and vulgar story of the countryman who goes out to see the tiger and is taken in. This old man stopped at a cheap hotel, as became his condition, and then started out to look up an investement for his $35, his feebleness, and his boyish courage. In State street, south of Harrison, he was held up and robbed—without any preliminaries or confidence game about it—brutally and boldly robbed. The police arrested the man who got his money. They took the old man in, too, as a witness.—Chicago Tribune.

A USEFUL DEVICE

To Register the Number of Feet Logs Contain.

The accompanying illustration represents an improved device for measuring, registering and adding a series of measurements and may be used for measuring lumber and for similar work. The device has been patented by George Krueger, of Johnstown, Pa. A card or tape line attached to the knob, to be seen at the side of the instrument, is connected to control a wheel which connects with a number of graduated gear wheels, which in turn control a registering device. To operate the mechanism the cord or measuring line is drawn out over the surface to be measured. The length of the line drawn out is recorded by the system of gear wheels on the several dials on the surface of the instrument. These dials are graduated to indicate measurements from zero to 100 feet board measure (viz., one foot wide to one foot thick). Each dial can be made to record the sum of the measurements of boards of the same length, the unit of length being marked on each dial. Thus one dial may be used for 18 feet lengths, another for 16 feet lengths, and so on. A knob is arranged on the top of the instrument to move along a scale graduated to indicate lengths of 18 feet, 16 feet, etc., and when the knob stands at, for instance, 18 feet, all measurements taken will be indicated on dial 18. The device will also record the total length in feet of all measurements, this being registered on the outer and on the central dials. The central dial registers from zero to 1,000 feet and the great dial up to 25,000 feet. The inventor claims for his patent perfect accuracy, and a gain over similar devices in simplicity, durability and general convenience of manipulation.

FOR MEASURING LUMBER.

The Trade of Kuching.

The trade is in the hands of Chinamen who, dressed in white or blue cotton, with short linen drawers, sometimes naked to the waist, or with pigtails twisted around their heads, survey with listless indolence the customer who enters their shop. In the streets the Chinaman is in the majority. He unloads the ship's cargoes, rushes along between the shafts of small, heavily-laden carts; he carries long poles of bamboo on his shoulders, from which dangle at either end trays laden with saucers full of rice, fish, vegetables, and cups of boiling tea.

The lime trees on the roadside throw light and dancing shadows on the passerby; and the chequered patterns of leaves quiver on the earth as on the backgrounds of Chinese pictures. Occasionally a Malay chief comes by, with an escort of boatmen. He walks slowly, leaning on a long staff mounted in gold, bears himself with the dignity of an aristocrat conscious of his superiority. An enormous white turban, embroidered with gold thread, indicates that he is one of the faithful who has made a pilgrimage to Mecca. He wears a flowing tunic of green silk over a vest of pink brocade. His sandals are fastened by leather straps attached to large gold knots wedged in between his toes. He wears neither sword nor kris, in obedience to the laws of Sarawak, which deprive its citizens of these weapons when they take their walks abroad. This precaution was very necessary some years ago, when Malays were subject to running amuck. The Dyaks have never been attacked in this manner. They have occasionally been known to commit suicide as an escape from evil fortune, but they do not avenge themselves on their kind. These people seldom visit Kuching.

MANIAPOTO THE MAORI.

A New Zealand Warrior Who Died of Old Age, Not of His Name.

Rewi Maniapoto, whose death was reported on Saturday, was almost the last of the great chiefs of the Maoris, says the Westminster Gazette. He was born in 1807, and was a warrior and leader in council among the Ngatimaniapotos from his youth. His earliest years were passed amid savage scenes of intertribal strife, ambuscades, fierce hand-to-hand battles, massacres and cannibal orgies. Hougi, chief of the great northern tribe of Ngapuhi, visited London, was petted by Exeter Hall, patronized by George IV., presented with a suit of armor and a gilt crown and loaded with gifts. At Botany Bay, on his way back, he converted these into guns and powder, and, on landing at the Bay of Islands, proclaimed himself the Napoleon of New Zealand, entered on a career of slaughter and rapine, and swept the country south of Auckland with fire and sword. His victorious march was stayed by the Waikatos and Ngatimaniapotos and the tide of conquest rolled back northward. It was in these and subsequent intertribal wars that Rewi won his reputation as a fighting chief.

When Sir George Grey, as Governor of New Zealand, declared war against the Waikatos in 1863, Rewi became one of the leading Maori generals. For two years the struggle raged with varying success against 10,000 British troops, supported by a powerful squadron, but step by step, and contesting every inch of ground, the Maoris were pressed back to Orakan, where Rewi made a last heroic stand with 300 or 400 followers, the remnant of his tribe. He was besieged by 1,500 British troops for three days, during which the garrison was without water and subsisted on raw potatoes and maize. At length, after repeated assaults had been repulsed, the flying sap broke into the trenches and a storm of canister and musketry swept the works. General Cameron, with a soldier's chivalrous admiration of the spirit and bravery of the enemy, offered terms of capitulation. Then a slight, wiry figure, with a closely tattooed face and fiery, gleaming eyes, leaped on the breastwork and flung back this stern defiance: "Ka whawhai matau, tomo, ake, ake, ake!" "We will fight on forever and ever and ever!" The stronghold was carried with a rush, but Rewi and a few others escaped.

Realizing the hopelessness of the struggle, he successfully exerted his influence to bring about a peace, and since that time he has been a consistent and loyal ally of the Europeans and a promoter of every movement for the welfare of his countrymen. To the last his affection for Sir George Grey was simple and touching. A few months ago, when he felt that his end was nigh, he expressed a desire that they should rest side by side in one grave, and only a few months before his death a handsome monument, made in Aukland to the order of Sir George Grey, was erected with much ceremony near the old chief's home at Kihikihi. It bears the fellowing inscription: "In memory of Rewi Maniapoto, the last great chief of the Ngatimaniapoto, Ngatirankawa and Waikato."

Blanket Grows Whiskers.

William H. Forbes, of Spencer Corners, Fulton County, is the possessor of a very old horse blanket, which differs from its fellows in that it has a well defined coat of hair in various stages of development, alive and growing, says the Albany Times-Union. While possibly of a finer and silkier texture, it is an excellent reproduction of a horse's coat, which the blanket formerly covered.

Mr. Forbes first discovered this peculiarity in October last, when taking it down from the peg in the barn, where it had hung undisturbed during the summer. He was naturally greatly astonished to discover two patches of growing hair, one on either side, where it had been exposed to the light and air. The hair is of bright bay color, and is now fully an inch in length. Probably the most peculiar feature of the affair, however, is the fact that the hair has spread from the two patches until it has entirely covered the blanket with a fine growth, varying in shade and color. It has not only been subjected to a critical inspection by several reputable men, but has undergone a microscopic test by two prominent physicians, of whom Dr. Henry C. Finch, of Brodalbin, makes affidavit before Judge Gardner "that the hair now growing on the blanket is true hair and that the roots of the same are alive and in process of development."

Excited His Curiosity.

The New York Girl—Lord Dumley, did you ever hear the joke about the museum-keeper who had two skulls of St. Paul, one when he was a boy and the other when he was a man?

The Englishman—No, what is it?—Life.

No Objection Whatever.

"Dear me," said Mr. Meekins; "it seems so absurd for men to be constantly talking about their wives having the last word."

"You don't?"

"Not a bit. I always feel thankful when she gets to it."—Washington Star.

Sailing by Rail.

On the London, Dover and Chatham Railroad, in England, they use a handcar which is propelled by means of a sail when the wind blows.—Exchange.

Royal Baking Powder

Highest of all in leavening strength
—Latest U. S. Government Food Report.
Absolutely Pure

An Opera Bouffe Burglar.

Either this burglar had wheels in his brain or an affecting trust in human nature in his heart. He started to rob a house in Brooklyn, but was disturbed and fled, leaving behind him his hat, coat, and shoes. The next morning early the householder was informed that a caller was waiting for him at the front door who refused to give his name. It turned out to be a small boy, neatly dressed, who observed with great composure:

"My brother has sent me for his clothes. He left 'em here last night."

"What is your brother's name?" demanded the intended victim.

"His name's Molony, and he say to give you his compliments and tell you he had to leave in a hurry."

The cool audacity of this modest demand so delighted the man who had not been robbed by accident that he got the clothes and sent them back to Mr. Molony, with apologies for having disturbed him in the pursuit of his profession.—New York Press.

"Old Ironsides" Falling to Ruin.

The Constitution was assigned a place with the old ships ranged in a line called Rotten Row. And there she still lies, the only one left of that venerable group of naval pensioners. In a few years more nothing will be left of the "Constitution" but a memory and a name. There is something very pathetic about the old hulk, moored by the wharf of the navy-yard, entirely alone. A roof has been built over her to fit her for a receiving-ship but it sadly disfigures her appearance. She cannot last long without repairs repeated from time to time. And yet, as a matter of patriotism, she ought to be repaired and preserved, as nearly as possible, as she formerly looked. It would cost only a few thousand dollars. Do not the people of the United States, who owe so much of the national glory to her, owe it to themselves now to keep up the old ship?—St. Nicholas.

GERM THEORY OF DISEASE.

The Position It Occupies and Attention It Is Receiving from Scientific Men.

The germ theory of the origin of disease is a subject which is at present attracting the attention of scientific men in all parts of the world. The chief importance of the germ theory, however, is not that it shows the origin of disease but that it points out the best means to be employed to effect a cure. The germs of disease, from whatever source they come, are lodged and developed in the blood. The blood, of course, by circulating to every part of the body, is sure to scatter disease throughout the system whenever it is impure, the weakest and most susceptible parts being the first to suffer. It is because of scrofulous taints in the blood, for instance, that the skin becomes covered with eruptions. It is lactic acid in the blood which causes rheumatism, and it is because the blood does not supply proper nourishment to the nerves that people suffer with nervousness. The cure for all these diseases, and of many others, can only be effected by purifying the blood, and absolutely destroying all germs of disease. No intelligent person can doubt that Hood's Sarsaparilla has actually and permanently cured many thousands of cases of scrofula, rheumatism, nervousness, dyspepsia and other troubles, and, as its proprietors claim, it is all because this medicine purifies the blood. As a matter of fact, Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only reliable blood purifier that is before the public to-day, and persons afflicted with impure blood or any of the great variety of ailments which it causes, will be most certain to find relief and cure in Hood's Sarsaparilla because it possesses this peculiar power to purify, enrich and vitalize the blood, and destroy the germs of disease.

BE pure, but not stern; have moral excellencies, but don't bristle with them.

BEFORE purchasing your tickets, first ascertain the rate via the Nickel Plate road.

The Machine Was Used to It.

The stranger at the hotel approached the typewriter girl stationed in the reading-room and said, with some embarrassment:

"I want to send a letter to a man in Milwaukee, and I haven't time to sit down and write it. It wouldn't take you more than two or three minutes to click it off from my dictation, would it?"

"No, sir."

"An' that's what you're here for, isn't it?"

"Yes, sir.

"The—the man I want to write to has played me a scurvy trick in a business transaction, and I want to use some pretty strong language. I don't know whether—whether you would—"

"I guess the machine can stand it," said the typewriter girl, with a yawn. "Fire away."—Chicago Tribune.

Seeking a Foreign Clime

In search of pleasure or business, should be preceded by the purchase of nature's great invigorator, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the best and most genial medicinal safeguard in existence. Mariners, miners, commercial travelers, tourists, and all who travel by land or sea speak of it in the highest terms. Malaria, biliousness, constipation, indigestion, rheumatism, nervousness and kidney trouble are remedied by it.

The Lady Bird and the Orange Pest.

Recent reports from Southern California show that the black scale, a pest that seriously threatened the orange and olive groves, is being rapidly exterminated by the black Australian ladybird or beetle. Thousands of these beetles have been liberated, and wherever they have been introduced the scale has practically disappeared.

A COLONY of medusae has been compared to a collection of muslin sunbonnets floating right side up in the water.

How's This!

We offer One Hundred Dollars reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

We the undersigned have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by their firm.

WEST & TRUAX, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.
WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

MONTENEGSO has its name from the color of its mountains. The word means "black mountain."

You Think It Is Something Else.

The "why" of the bad feeling is what puzzles you. It is easy to imagine so many causes, when the real one is indigestion. You think it's something else. The cure is Ripans Tabules. A single tabule gives relief. Ask the druggist.

THERE are over 300 orders of nobility in the various States of Germany.

LOW RATES.
Quick time.
Through Sleeping Cars
Chicago, Buffalo,
New York, and Boston.
Unexcelled Dining Cars.
Why should you not
Patronize the
Nickel Plate road?

IT is the idle people of the earth who make most of the trouble.

The Door of Life.

The fear of pain and the dangers of parturition fill many a woman's breast with dismay. There is no reason why childbirth should be fraught with danger and distress. It is a natural function, and should be performed in a natural way without undue suffering. Nature never intended that women should be tortured in this way.

Taken during gestation Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription robs childbirth of its dangers to both mother and child, by preparing the system for delivery, thereby shortening labor, lessening pain and abbreviating the period of confinement.

For twenty years folks all over the world have cured rheumatism, neuralgia, and all other pains and aches by using St. Jacobs Oil. There must be something in it, for you couldn't fool all the people for so many years.

"Cleanliness Is Nae Pride, Dirt's Nae Honesty." Common Sense Dictates the Use of

SAPOLIO

Blood Diseases

such as Scrofula and Anæmia, Skin Eruptions and Pale or Sallow Complexions, are speedily cured by the Cream of Cod-liver Oil. No other remedy so quickly and effectively enriches and purifies the blood and gives nourishment to the whole system. It is pleasant to take and easy on the stomach.

Scott's Emulsion

TRADE MARK.

Thin, Emaciated Persons and all suffering from Wasting Diseases are restored to health by Scott's Emulsion.

Be sure you get the bottle with our trade-mark on it. Refuse cheap substitutes!

Send for pamphlet on Scott's Emulsion. FREE.

Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All druggists. 50 cents and $1.

BEST IN THE WORLD.

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH. For durability and for cheapness this preparation is truly unrivalled.

THE RISING SUN STOVE POLISH is cakes for general blacking of a stove.

THE SUN PASTE POLISH for a quick after-dinner shine, applied and polished with a cloth.

Morse Bros., Props., Canton, Mass., U. S. A.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

WALTER BAKER & CO.

The Largest Manufacturers of
PURE, HIGH GRADE
COCOAS AND CHOCOLATES
On this Continent, have received
HIGHEST AWARDS
from the great
Industrial and Food EXPOSITIONS
In Europe and America.

Unlike the Dutch Process, no Alkalies or other Chemicals or Dyes are used in any of their preparations. Their delicious BREAKFAST COCOA is absolutely pure and soluble, and costs less than one cent a cup.

SOLD BY GROCERS EVERYWHERE.

WALTER BAKER & CO. DORCHESTER, MASS.

NO GOOD Kitchen complete without our ROTARY BISCUIT AND CAKE CUTTER. Samples of Round or Square mailed for 15 cts., or the two for 25 cts. AGENTS WANTED. They Sell AT SIGHT!

SIDWAY MFG. CO.,
32 to 40 South Jefferson St., CHICAGO, ILL.
(Please mention this paper.)

TEXAS — VIA — Wabash Line

Do you know that the farmer has more opportunities for making money in TEXAS than almost any State in this great country? Interest yourself in the subject and see how true this is.

REMEMBER, THE WABASH

Is the Great Steel Rail Highway to all points West and Southwest. For Rates, routes, maps, and general information, call upon or address the nearest Agent of the Wabash System, or write to

R. G. BUTLER, D. P. A., Detroit, Mich.
F. H. TRISTRAM, C. P. A., Pittsburg, Pa.
P. E. DOMBAUGH, P. & T. A., Toledo, Ohio.
R. G. THOMPSON, P. & T. A., Fort Wayne, Ind.
J. HALDERMAN, M. P. A., 301 Clark St., Chicago, Ill.
A. H. McCONNELL, P. & T. A., Lafayette, Ind.
G. S. MAXFIELD, D. P. A., Indianapolis, Ind.
C. S. CRANE, G. P. & T. A., St. Louis, Mo.

W. L. DOUGLAS $3 SHOE IS THE BEST. FIT FOR A KING.

$5. CORDOVAN, FRENCH & ENAMELLED CALF.
$4.$3.50 FINE CALF & KANGAROO.
$3.50 POLICE, 3 SOLES.
$2.50 $2. WORKINGMEN'S. EXTRA FINE.
$2. $1.75 BOYS' SCHOOL SHOES.
LADIES.
$3. $2.50 $2. $1.75 BEST DONGOLA.
SEND FOR CATALOGUE.
W. L. DOUGLAS, BROCKTON, MASS.

Over One Million People wear the W. L. Douglas $3 & $4 Shoes
All our shoes are equally satisfactory. They give the best value for the money. They equal custom shoes in style and fit. Their wearing qualities are unsurpassed. The prices are uniform,—stamped on sole. From $1 to $3 saved over other makes. If your dealer cannot supply you we can.

LEWIS' 98 % LYE Powdered and Perfumed. (PATENTED.) The strongest and purest Lye made. Unlike other Lye, it being a fine powder and packed in a can with removable lid, the contents are always ready for use. Will make the best perfumed Hard Soap in 20 minutes without boiling. It is the best for cleansing waste-pipes, disinfecting sinks, closets, washing bottles, pails, trees, etc. PENNA. SALT MF'G CO., Gen. Agts., Phila., Pa.

EVERY HOME-SEEKER Should READ the pamphlet recently published by the Passenger Department of the Illinois Central Railroad, entitled "Southern Home-Seeker's Guide for 1895." It contains over 50 excellent letters from Northern farmers now located in the South, and other authentic and valuable information. For a free copy address the undersigned at Manchester, Iowa. J. F. MERRY, Assistant Gen'l Passenger Agt.

Mrs. Winslow's SOOTHING SYRUP for Children teething; softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

When Writing to Advertisers, say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

LYON'S 7 WONDERS

A SPECIFIC For all DERANGEMENTS of the STOMACH. PRICE $1.00

Manf'd by THE LYON MEDICINE CO. INDIANAPOLIS IND.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

"I CAN SWEAR BY IT."

Webb Robinson, a Gallant Fireman, Adds His Testimony.

INDIANAPOLIS,
August 1, 1894.

To the Lyon Medicine Co.:

GENTLEMEN—I tried many remedies for a complication of stomach troubles, but found nothing to do me any good until I tried LYON'S SEVEN WONDERS. I can swear by that remedy as being all it is claimed to be, and cheerfully recommend it to sufferers from stomach and kidney troubles.

WEBB ROBINSON,
Engine Company No. 5,
West Sixth Street.

PURE

ARM AND HAMMER

BEWARE of imitation trade marks and labels.

is the whole story about

ARM AND HAMMER SODA

in packages. Costs no more than other package soda—never spoils flour—universally acknowledged purest in the world.

Made only by CHURCH & CO., New York. Sold by grocers everywhere.

Write for Arm and Hammer Book of valuable Recipes—FREE.

OUR GREAT APRIL SALE

ROOT & COMPANY FT. WAYNE

Will be an attraction to the ladies of this city and vicinity of unusual Merit and Magnitude.

The Dantiest Patterns In Silks.

More positively than ever has our large Silk Department become Headquarters for the best bargains in Seasonable Silks. New fancy Silks for Waists will create a very great sensation.

50c. 60c. 75c. 88c. and $100.

White and Evening Crystal and Gros de Londres Silks, New Black Satin Brocades, New Black Satin for Skirts, New Evening Crepes, Charming Shades and Very Cheap.

Black Crepons

For the great April Sale, all in stock; Black Broadcloths for Capes; Black Serges and Fancies, All-Wool and Silk and Wool.

Colored Dress Fabrics.

Elegant lines of the Charming New Crepons in all Colors, Light Weight and Wool Novelties.

35c. 40c. 50c. 60c. 75c and $1.00.

Our New Spring Underwear.

The demand has now set in with a vim, White and Ecru, Silk Cotton Lisle—Long Sleeves, Short Sleeves, No Sleeves, Union Suits.

Our Carpet Department

Shows its complete lines of New Carpeting---Wiltons, Axminsters, Moquettes, Body and Tapestry Brussels, Ingrains.

Drapery and Upholstery Goods

In the greatest variety; and at lower prices than have been known This is the month to get good selections.

MAIL ORDERS CAREFULLY EXECUTED.

ROOT & COMPANY.

NATIONAL DETECTIVE BUREAU

96½ E. Market St., Rooms 12, 13, 14 and 15

This Bureau investigates murders, conspiracies, blackmailing, burglaries, thefts, frauds and all kinds of legal evidence in divorce and other family matters, etc. Only experienced and trustworthy detectives employed. Reliable references furnished you from Indianapolis, 273 State in the Union or any part of Europe. The Superintendent of this Bureau was formerly State Detective Officer for the State of New Jersey, also Chief Detective of the N. Y. O. & W. Railway, Late Superintendent World's Secret Detective Service of New York City, and also was Chief of Police in New Jersey, and connected with the Midland Railway Police and Detective Department of England. We have reliable operators located in all parts of the world, and can furnish reliable men on short notice. For further particulars, address

CHAS. AINGE, Supt. National Detective Bureau,
INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

DEPARTMENT A.

Rheumatism Cured in a Day.—"Myst Cure" for Rheumatism and Neuralgia radically cures in 1 to 3 days. Its action upon the system is remarkable and mysterious. It removes at once the cause and the disease immediately disappears. The first dose greatly benefits, 75 cts Sold by Robbins & McCord, druggists, Auburn. 41tf

PILES! PILES! PILES!

Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment will cure Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles when all other Ointments have failed. It absorbs the tumors allays the itching at once, acts as a poultice, gives instant relief. Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment is prepared only for Piles and itching of the private parts, and nothing else. Every box is warranted. Sold by druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of price, 50c. and $1.00 per box. WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Prop's, Cleveland, O. Sold on a guarantee by Matheny & Gerke.

Dr. H. R Fish, of Gravais Mills, Mo., a practicing physician of many years experience, writes: De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve has no equal for indolent sores, scalds and burns. It stops pain instantly heals a burn quickly and leaves no scar.

BUCKLEN'S ARNICA SALVE.—The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Robbins & McCord. tf

De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve cures scalds, burns, indolent sores and never fails to cure piles.

T. F. Anthony, ex-postmaster of Promise City, Iowa, says: "I bought one bottle of 'Mystic Cure' for Rheumatism and two doses of it did me more good than all the medicine I ever took." Sold by Robbins & McCord, druggists, Auburn. 41tf

La Grippe is here again with all of its old time vigor. One Minute Cough Cure is a reliable remedy. It cures and cures quickly.

Relief in One Day.

South American Nervine relieves the worst cases of nervous prostrations nervousness and nervous dyspepsia in a single day. No such relief and blessing has ever come to the invalids of this country. Its powers to cure the stomach are wonderful in the extreme. It always cures; it cannot fail. It radically cures all weakness of the stomach and never disappoints. Its effects are marvelous and surprising.—It gladdens the hearts of the suffering and brings immediate relief. It is a luxury to take and always safe. Trial bottles 15 cents. Sold by Robbins & McCord druggist Auburn Ind. 50tf

Rebecca Wilkinson, of Brownsvalley, Ind., says: I have been in a distressed condition for three years from Nervousness Weakness of the Stomach, Dyspepsia and Indigestion until my health was gone. I had been doctoring constantly with no relief. I bought one bottle of South American Nervine, which did me more good than any $50 worth of doctoring I ever did in my life. I would advise every weakly person to use this valuable and lovely remedy; a few bottles of it has cured me completely. I consider it the greatest medicine in the world." Warranted the most wonderful stomach and nerve cure ever known. Trial bottles 15 cents. Sold by Robbins and McCord druggist, Auburn Ind. 34 tf

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder
Awarded Gold Medal Midwinter Fair, San Francisco.

W. T. Stafford, Station Agent of Leeper, Clarion Co. Pa., writes; I can recommend One Minute Cough Cure as the best I ever used. It gave instant relief and a quick cure.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

To-morrow—Which To morrow?

Why do you delay? You are likely to be worse to morrow than to-day, for there is be no standing still of nature or of sickness when fastened on the system. A chronic headache, dull pain at the base of the brain, frequent darting pains through the body or steady backache, pain or burning sensation in stomach after meals, specks before the eyes, frequent dizziness, heart palpitation, loss of memory, difficulty in fixing mind on your work, listlessness, lack of usual ambition, worn out, all run down feeling, sleeplessness—which is it? No matter which, but yor feel the warning nature sends over the nerve telegraph system of your body when repairs are needed on the line.

Delay to heed the message increases the damage to be repaired. Dr. Wheeler Nerve Vitalizer repairs, restrengthens and restores lost nerve force. It is so made that it cannot fail to help any and all nerve diseases—and ninetenths of diseases are or are attended by nerve troubles. Dr. E. Greenamyer, East Palestine, Ohio, says that Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer has been remarkably effective in cases which have come under his observation. It can be relied upon to be always effective as represented to restore lost or weakened nerve force and bring back full healthful vigor." Sold by Davenport. 14-17

FRONT AND BACK VIEW
AMERICAN SILVER TRUSS

MANUFACTURED AT
290 Main St., BUFFALO, N. Y.

For Sale by Fischler & Son, Auburn, Ind.

English Spavin Liniment removes all hard, soft or calloused lumps and blemishes from horses, blood spavins, curbs, splints, sweeney, ring-bone, stifles, sprains, all swollen throats, coughs, etc. Save $50 by use of one bottle. Warranted the most wonderful blemish cure ever known. Sold by Robbins and McCord druggists Auburn. 34tf

Our patrons will find De Witt's Little Early Risers a safe and reliable remedy for constipation, dyspepsia and liver complaints.

DO not be deceived.

The following brands of White Lead are still made by the "Old Dutch" process of slow corrosion. They are standard, and always

Strictly Pure White Lead

The recommendation of

"Anchor," "Collier,"
"Eckstein," "Shipman,"
"Armstrong & McKelvy," "Southern,"
"Beymer-Bauman," "Red Seal,"
"Davis-Chambers," "Fahnestock,"

to you by your merchant is an evidence of his reliability, as he can sell you cheap ready-mixed paints and bogus White Lead and make a larger profit. Many short-sighted dealers do so.

FOR COLORS.—National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors, a one-pound can to a 25-pound keg of Lead and mix your own shades, and insures the best paint that it is possible to put on wood.

Send us a postal card and get our book on paints and color-card, free; it will probably save you a good many dollars.

NATIONAL LEAD CO.
Chicago Branch,
State and Fifteenth Streets, Chicago.

For sale by John L. Davis, Auburn, Ind

Read it in the Paper.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison, of Bolan, Worth Co., Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a promineni German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own: "It cured me right up" He also says: A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad that he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me, he procured a bottle of it and it cured them in a week. 50 cent bottles for sale by Robbins & McCord. 14 17

Cures permanently.

Our better halves say they could not keep house without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is used in more than half the homes in Leeds. Sim Bros., Leeds, Iowa. This shows the esteem in which that remedy is held where it has been sold for years and is well known. Mothers have learned that there is nothing so good for colds, croup and whooping cough, that it cures these ailments quickly and permanently, and that it is pleasant and safe for children to take. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Robbins & McCord. 14-17

No Better Liniment Made.

I reccommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm for the rheumatism, lame back, sprains and swellings. There is no better liniment made. I have sold over 100 bottles of it this year and all were pleased who used it. J. F Pierson, druggist, South Chicago, Ill. It is for sale by Robbins and McCord. 14 17

For Bilious Colic.

It will be an agreeable surprise to persons subject to attacks of bilious colic to learn that prompt relief may be had by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Colera and Diarrhœa Remedy. In many instances the attack may be prevented by taking this remedy as soon as the first symptoms of the disease appear. 25 and 50 cents bottles for sale by Robbins & McCord 14-17

DR. WILLIAMS' KIDNEY PILLS

A remedy that has no equal in diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs, Have you neglected your kidneys? Have you overworked your nervous system and caused trouble with your kidneys and liver? Have you pains in the loins, side, back, loins and bladder? Have you a flabby appearance of the face, especially under the eyes? Too frequent desire to pass urine? No matter what the cause, we know Dr. Williams' Kidney Pills will cure you. Imparts newlife to the diseased organs, tones up the whole system and makes a new man of you. Mailed onreceipt of price, $1 00 per box.
WILLIAMS M'FG CO., Props., Cleveland, O.
Sold by FISCHLER & SON, Auburn. 1y30

Relief in Six Hours.

Distressing Kidney and Bladder diseases relieved in six hours by the "New Great South American Kidney Cure." This new remedy is a great surprise on account of its exceeding promptness in relieving pain in the bladder, kidneys, back and every part of the urinary passages in male or female. It relieves retention of water and pain in passing it almost immediately. If you want quick relief and cure this is your remedy. Sold by Robbins and McCord druggists Auburn Ind. 34tf

Sick headache, constipation and indigestion are quickly cured by De Will's Little Early Risers, the famous little pills.

J. A. Richardson, of Jefferson City, Mo. Chief Enrolling force 38th general assembly of Missouri, writes: I wish to testify to the merits of One Minute Cough Cure. When other so-called cures failed, I obtained almost instant relief and a speedy cure by the use of One Minute Cough cure.

B. H. Bowman; Pub. Enquirer; at Bremen, Ind., writes: Last week our little girl baby the only one we have was taken sick with croup. After two Doctors failed to give relief and life was hanging on a mere thread we tried One Minute Cough Cure and its life was saved.

It Never Fails.

Harris & Buquo, Erin, Tenn., manufacturers of the celebrated Erin Lime, have in their employ, in the various departments of their business several hundred men. The firm write to the Drummond Medicine Co., 48 Maiden Lane, New York, in great praise of Drummond's Lightning Remedy for rheumatism, and they say they have cured four cases with it, and that it has not failed in a single instance. The remedy always gives satisfaction. Send $5 to the Drummond Medicine Co., and they will send to your address two large bottles a month's treatment, by return express. Agents wanted. 39-40

Your Lame Back.

And the painful torture in joints and muscles is nothing but rheumatism. Nothing but rheumatism kills people. Nothing like Drummond's Lightning Remedy for speedy relief and quick cure. Accept nothing in its place, for nothing else will do the work. The full month's treatment of two large bottles sent to any address by express on receipt of $5. Drummond Medicine Co., 48 Maiden Lane, New York. Agents wanted. 39 40

Pitcher's Castoria.
Children Cry for

NOW—THE TIME TO MAKE MONEY.

Last month I cleared, after paying all expenses, $175 46: the month before, $149.93, and have at the same time attended to my regular business I believe anyone, anywhere, can do as well, as I have not a particularly good location and no experience. When you have an article that every family wants, it is very easy selling it. It seems strange that a good, cheap Dish Washer was never before placed on the market. With the Climax, which sells at $5, you can wash and dry the dishes for a family in two minutes, without putting the hands in water; as soon as people see the Washer work, they want one, and that is why so much money can be made so quickly. For full particulars, address the Climax Mfg. Co., Columbus, Ohio. I feel convinced that any lady or gentleman, in any location, can make from $5 to $10 a day, as every family will very soon have a Dish Washer. Try it, and publish your experience for the benefit of others.

L. S. & M. S. R. R.

TIME TABLE--In Effect Nov. 18, 1894.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

Stations—	Mail.	Exp'ss	Fre'gt.
Fort Wayne, ... p	11 45 am	4 45 pm	6 40 am
New Era.....	12 14 pm	5 14	7 27
Auburn Junc.....	12 25	5 25	7 48
Auburn.....	12 29	5 29	8 37
Waterloo.....	12 41	5 41	9 24
Summit.....	12 52	5 52	9 45
Steubenville.....	12 56	5 56	.....
Pleasant Lake...	1 03	6 03	10-12
Angola.....	1 13	6 14	10 50
Jackson.....	3 25	8 35	4 30

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

Stations—	Freight	Exp'ss	Mail
Jackson.....dp	6 55 am	11 20 am	6 30 pm
Angola.....	12 25 pm	2 21 pm	8 51
Pleasant Lake....	1 03	2 32	9 01
Steubenville.....	.....	2 40	9 07
Summit.....	1 25	2 44	9 11
Waterloo	2 30	3 00	9 24
Auburn.....	3 00	3 11	9 35
Auburn Junc...	3 14	3 14	9 38
New Era	4 05	3 24	9 50
Fort Wayne	5 25	3 55	10 20

For rates on tickets or freight to all points, call on or address E. T. DeLAPP, Agent at Auburn

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of John Nichols deceased late of said County.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

WILLIAM SEELEY, Administrator.

April 15, 1895.
Baxter & Brown Attorney's

Children Cry for
Pitcher's Castoria.

Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phœbe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her, and she says it saved her life. Mr Thomas Eggers, 139 Florida St., San. Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching consumption. He tried without result, everything else, then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medecine in coughs and colds. Free trial bottles at Robbins & McCord's drugstore. Regular size 50c. and $1. 5

BE A MAN

Ajax Tablets

have cured thousands and will cure you if you are suffering from Loss of Vigor, Impotence, Sterility, Seminal Weakness or any of the other effects of Self-Abuse or excesses of early life. We give positive Written Guarantee to effect a cure in each case or to refund money in case of failure. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Sent prepaid upon receipt of price. Send for free circular. Address

AJAX REMEDY CO.,
79 Dearborn Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

For sale in Auburn by F. E. Davenport, Druggist.

THE HUB'S BOYS
HEAD-TO-FOOT OUTFITS

PRODUCE

THIS AND PREVENT THIS

THESE HEAD-TO-FOOT OUTFITS

Consist of One COAT, Two Pairs of PANTS, One CAP to Match and a Pair of Shoes.

And the price of the whole outfit is Only $5.00

If on receipt you do not consider them the greatest bargain you ever bought for $5.00 you can send back the outfit and we expressly agree to return your money.

Send for samples of the cloth and full description of the outfit, also for our new spring catalogue—all sent free on application.

THE HUB, Fine Tailoring, CHICAGO, ILL.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, April 8, 1895.

It looks now as though the administration had won a very creditable diplomatic victory from Great Britain in that little affair of Nicaragua, and that Great Britian had greatly modified that bluff about bombarding Nicaragua's seaports. Nothing official has been given out about the diplomatic correspondance on this matter within the last few days, but there are good reasons for stating that Ambassador Bayard has been most positively assured by the Brittish government that nothing will be done in its dealings with Nicaragua that can be properly construed into a violation of the Monroe doctrine. This assurance was naturally very gratifying to President Cleveland and the other members of the administration. It was saying in a round about way that Great Britian never really meant to carry out that bombarding threat, and it was also in a way a recognition of the Monroe Doctrine. That this assurance from Great Britian was the result of the courageous position taken by the administration as to the maintenance of the Monroe doctrine is certain. And nothing was lost by the knowledge on the part of Great Britain that the United States had a sufficient naval force in the South Atlantic to back up the position assumed.

The arrival of the new Spanish minister is anxiously awaited in Washington, as it is believed that he will have several important communications to make to this government. The Alliance incident is still open, and the belief is growing that Spain is trying to play a double game in connection therewith, notwithstanding its promise to make it satisfactory as soon as it was in possession of the neccessary information. As the new Spanish minister is to spend a week or ten days in Cuba before coming to Washington he will be expected to acquire all the needed information and if his government then still delays making a satisfactory settlement he may find himself very disagreably surprised soon after his arrival. And his surprise is not likely to be displeasing to the Cuban revolutionists.

Postmaster General Wilson dropped into his new duties as naturally as though he had been dealing with postal affairs all his life, and he is the same urbane gentlemen in dealing with his numerous callers that he always was during his extended Congressional career. He has long ago proved himself well protected against that insidious disease known to ordinary folk as the "big head"; therefore no one is surprised to find him just as accessible now as when he was a member of Congress.

The projectors of the new silver party profess to have encouraging reports from number of States, but their professions are largely discounted by their claims as to the States of Pennsylvania and Connecticut. The only claim these people make that is backed by common sense and hard facts, is that a large majority of the voters of the country are bimetallists. That claim is unnecessary because it is known by everybody, but that doesn't mean that all the bimetallists are ready to drop their party affiliations and unite in an assistant republican party, which is about all the new silver party is.

The decision of the Supreme Court in the income tax cases is disappointing to everybody, and probably to nobody more than to members of the court. The constitutionality of the law stands, not by an affirmative decision, but because the eight justices sitting were evenly divided. Incomes from rents, muncipal and State bonds are exempted from the tax. But what most disappointed the members of the court was the stealing of a copy of the decision in advance of its being officially made. It was sold to the correspondent of a Chicago paper and telegraphed to that city. The decision will make lots of worry and litigation for the government, but Secretary Carlisle is very positive that it will not make necessary the calling of an extra session of Congress, although the exceptions will probably reduce the receipts from the income tax at least one half. But even if not a nickel was received from that source by the Treasury, Secretary Carlisle says there will be money enough and to spare to carry the government until the regular session of Congress without any embarrassment.

A Chicago democrat of the sort that cannot be discouraged is Mr. William P. Wood, at present in Washington. He says: "The democratic party suffered a bad defeat the other day, but we will pull ourselves together in time for the big battle next year. I have no doubt whatever that Illinois will cast her electoral vote for the democracy, providing, of course, that our candidate is made of the right sort of stuff. Business is booming at a great pace. Everywhere I have been in the last few weeks I found trade improving. I look for a general revival of business this summer, and that is all the democratic party needs. With good times next year democratic success is assured."

Wealth Does Not Bring Happiness,

Unless you have been relieved of the ague, gout, rheumatism, neuralgia, etc., and the nature of eczema, glandular swellings, scrofula and all diseases of the blood, using infallible Scotch Cure, the great remedy was introduced in America by the Hall Medicine Company, Toledo, Ohio. For sale by druggists. Accept no substitute. Infallible Scotch Remedies cures. 10 17

INCOME TAX.

The supreme court, as was to be feared, has brought in a decision which while it does not utterly ruin the income tax law, strikes down some of its most valuable provisions. They decide that rents from lands, and the incomes from state, county and municipal bonds, are exempt. In other respects, by a tie vote, the act is left in force. This decision, throwing

Albert Robbins, Pres. J. C. Henry V. P.

FARMERS BANK.

Capital Stock,--
--$45,000.00.

—UNDER STATE SUPERVISION.—

Transacts a general banking business. Interest paid on time deposits by agreement. Collections receive careful attention. Business solicited.

A. C. ROBBINS, Cashier.

Tired, Weak, Nervous Could Not Sleep.

Prof. L. D. Edwards, of Preston, Idaho, says: "I was all run down, weak, nervous and irritable through overwork. I suffered from brain fatigue, mental depression, etc. I became so weak and nervous that I could not sleep. I would arise tired, discouraged and blue. I began taking and now everything is changed I sleep soundly, I feel bright, active and ambitious. I can do more in one day now than I used to do in a week. For this great good I give Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine the sole credit.

Dr. Miles' Nervine

It Cures."

Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold on a positive guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. All druggists sell it at $1, 6 bottles for $5, or it will be sent, prepaid, on receipt of price by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

•HORSEMEN•

SAVE YOUR STOCK BY USING THE CELEBRATED

Morris' English Stable Powder—For Loss of Appetite, Constipation, Rough Hair, Hide Bound, and all Diseases of the Blood. Price, 25c. per package.

Morris' English Stable Liniment—Cures Lameness, Cuts, Bruises, Scratches, Galls, Sweeney, Spavins, Splint, Curb, etc. Price, 50c. per bottle.

Morris' English Worm Powder—Warranted to cure any case of Worms in Horses, Cattle, Sheep or Dogs, also Pin Worms in Colts. Price, 50c. per box.

Craft's Distemper and Cough Cure—A Specific for Distemper, Coughs, Colds, Heaves, Pink Eye, and all Catarrhal diseases of horses. Price, 50c. $1.00 per bottle.

Wells' Hoosier Poultry Powder—Makes Hens Lay, cures Cholera, Gapes and Roup, and keeps poultry healthy. Price, 25c. per package.

Every remedy guaranteed satisfactory or money refunded. Our new book, "The Horse: His Diseases and Treatment," mailed free.
Wells Medicine Co., Lafayette, Ind.

For Sale by, Fischle & Son., Auburn.

After THREE MONTHS of Daily Wear

This Collar

Is Still in Good Condition.

That's because it's the "CELLULOID" Collar. Its original cost was 25 cts and it cost the wearer nothing afterwards to keep it clean. When soiled simply wipe off with sponge or wet cloth.

These collars and cuffs are waterproof, and are the only waterproof goods made with an interlining of linen; therefore the only ones that can last and give absolute satisfaction. Every piece of the genuine is stamped as follows:

TRADE CELLULOID MARK.

Refuse anything that is not so marked, and if your dealer has not got the right kind send direct to us enclosing amount, and we will mail you a sample postpaid. Collars 25 cts. each. Cuffs 50 cts. pair. Give size, and state whether stand-up or turned-down collar is wanted.

THE CELLULOID COMPANY
427-29 Broadway, NEW YORK.

JAPANESE MANHOOD

Treatment quickly and forever cures Emissions, Drains, Impotency, Varicocele, Self-Abuse and all resulting evils. No C. O. D. or quack schemes. Sealed Sexual Book Free if you mention this paper and describe your case. Address Japan Medical Company, Toledo, O.

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Recorder's Office

VOLUME XXV. AUBURN, DE KALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY. APRIL 25. 1895. NUMBER 17

SAY : :

HOW MUCH DO YOU OWE?

Who holds your mortgage? How much interest are you paying? Do you owe a building loan association anything? If you do, how much interest are you paying them? Unless you are better posted than the majority of people who have such loans, you cannot tell. You think you are paying 6 per cent. Do you know (of course not) that you are paying at least 12 per cent. If you think not, just figure it out yourself. Now then, are you not paying 6 per cent interest and 6 per cent premium? Certainly. Well now don't you know that premium and interest are the same thing—its all interest. Can you afford to pay 12 per cent interest to a loan association when even your banks only charge 8 per cent and you think they are charging too much, and when do you expect to have your loan canceled or paid off in full? You have been told 72 or 78 months. Now then, we undertake to say that it will take you 100 months, if you will call on us we will show you so you will be satisfied that we are right. Now then, we are prepared to loan you money on monthly installment plan for 8 per cent, we charge you no membership fee and you do not have to make three or more payments in advance so that if on account of insufficient security or bad title your loan is rejected you will not lose one cent. You pay nothing unless your loan is granted. We are making farm loans at from 3 to 5 per cent with privilege of partial payments.

ANOTHER THING!

There is scarcely a day but what there is some traveling agent for some building loan association in Auburn soliciting business, selling stock upon which they charge you a membership fee of from 50 cents to $1.00 per share, which amount goes to the agent and you never get back this money thrown away. If you will call on us we will take your application for all the stock you want in the BEST (we can prove it) building loan association in the state the INDIANA MUTUAL OF INDIANAPOLIS, and charge you No MEMBERSHIP FEE AT ALL. This is certainly fair. If you have any investment stock in any association just write them a letter and ask them the withdrawal value of same, their reply will probably open your eyes. What would you say if you would deposit $8.00 per month in your bank for one year and wanted to withdraw the same and they would offer to pay you only about $80? The bank would only have to do this in one case to be compelled to retire from business. Now you pay ten dollars membership fee and 8 dollars for 12 months making 108 dollars, you lose the 10 dollars membership fee and 10 cents per share each month for expenses, making 12 dollars, or a total of 22 dollars loss upon which you would receive 6 per cent interest for average time on 96 dollars, making 2 dollars and 88 cts. from 22 dollars would leave you a loser of 19 dollars and 12 cents. In our association your stock is worth alll you have paid in, with its interest added, so that upon withdrawal you do not get less than you paid. We want the people of Auburn to become familiar with this matter, and would like to have any that are interested to call and talk with us, we can give you some pointers.

We are still in the Real Estate, Insurance and R. R. Ticket business.

RICKEL & SPROTT

AUBURN, INDIANA.

Wednesday's Daily.

Myers-Carper.

Delbert Myers and Mary Carper were married at 8:30 last evening. Rev. F. W. Hart officiating. The cermony was performed in the presence of only a few friends. Mr. Myers has just nicely furnished rooms in the Mrs Jones' property on North Jackson street, and the happy couple were joined in the bonds of holy matrimony at their own home.

Mr. Myers is a member of the firm of Kutzner & Myers, who run a livery, feed and sale stable and also handle the Zimmerman buggies. He is an industrious young man and has been quite success ful in his business career. Miss Carper is from Jackson township and is a highly respected lady. The COURIER extends congratulations.

To-morrow—Which To morrow?

Why do you delay? You are likely to be worse to morrow than to-day, for there is be no standing still of nature or of sickness when fastened on the system. A chronic headache, dull pain at the base of the brain, frequent darting pains through the body or steady backache, pain or burning sensation in stomach after meals, specks before the eyes, frequent dizziness, heart palpitation, loss of memory, difficulty in fixing mind on your work, listlessness, lack of usual ambition, worn out, all run down feeling, sleeplessness—which is it? No matter which, but yor feel the warning nature sends over the nerve telegraph system of your body when repairs are needed on the line.

Delay to heed the message increases the damage to be repaired. Dr. Wheeler Nerve Vitalizer repairs, restrengthens and restores lost nerve force. It is so made that it cannot fail to help any and all nerve diseases—and nineteenths of diseases are or are attended by nerve troubles. Dr. E. Greenamyer, East Palestine, Ohio, says that Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer has been remarkably effective in cases which have come under his observation. It can be relied upon to be always effective as represented to restore lost or weakened nerve force and bring back full healthful vigor." Sold by Dav enport. 14-17

WRONG MAN.

We published recently, the allowance made by the commissioners at their regular session in March. Among the items of "poor allowances, was one of $60 to Wm Buss. This item it seems caused some comment, up in the country this side of Ashley, as Mr. Wm, Buss, a well-to-farmer resides there, and some unthinking ones, made remarks about his receiving money from the county. This has been a source of some annoyance to him, and we think it but fair to state that he is not the Wm. Buss spoken of. Neither is the right Wm. Buss receiving charity, but wages. The Wm. Buss to whom this allowance was made is a young man who works at the poor farm, and is no way related to the Wm. Buss in Fairfield.

BRIDGE BIDS.

The commissioners met again this morning, and looked carefully over the bids of the nineteen companies, finally deciding in favor of the Massilon Bridge company. Their bid for the 176 foot bridge near St. Joe, was $4,138.94. For the two 50-foot bridges their bid was for both together, $1,349,30. So the strife is over.

After concluding this work they made an order, that the sheriff take Frank Derthick to the poor farm, and consign him to Supt August Bartels for the ninety days covered by the sen'ence of the court. So he will have some work to keep him from mischief awhile.

C. E MEETING.

The Christian Endeavor meeting of the M. P. church and their Ministerial Institute will be held at the Butler Center church, April 29 and 30, and May 1 and 2. The C. E. meeting will be May 1 and 2, the first of the week being taken by the ministerial institute. There is a very full program for both meetings. O. L Widney, St. Joe, is president. Programs may be had of him or of Rev. W. W Lineberry, of that place.

BUGGIES!

Have you called at the KIBLINGER BUGGY REPOSITORY, South of the Court House?

If not, you should do so at once, and see the fine line of

BUGGIES,
SURREYS,
PHAETONS
and ROAD WAGONS

Ever placed on exhibition in Auburn. Our prices correspond to suit the times, and all work

GUARANTEED to be the BEST

that the money will buy.

McDowell & Carter.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

THIRTY years' observation of Castoria with the patronage of millions of persons, permit us to speak of it without guessing. It is unquestionably the best remedy for Infants and Children the world has ever known. It is harmless. Children like it. It gives them health. It will save their lives. In it Mothers have something which is absolutely safe and practically perfect as a child's medicine.

Castoria destroys Worms.
Castoria allays Feverishness.
Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd.
Castoria cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic.
Castoria relieves Teething Troubles.
Castoria cures Constipation and Flatulency.

Castoria neutralizes the effects of carbonic acid gas or poisonous air.
Castoria does not contain morphine, opium, or other narcotic property.
Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep.
Castoria is put up in one-size bottles only. It is not sold in bulk.
Don't allow any one to sell you anything else on the plea or promise that it is "just as good" and "will answer every purpose."
See that you get C-A-S-T-O-R-I-A.

The fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher is on every wrapper.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

NEWS

TOO MUCH SENSATIONAL TRUCK IN THE DAILIES.

How do we know, and how can we know, how much of the sensational reports found with big headlines in the big dailies, is correct?

Every day, we see them loaded with "terrible crimes," "deadly cyclones," "northwest blizzards," and pretty nearly every day some noted train robber is captured and killed, or another of the "Dalton Gang" is brought to justice. Trains are "held up" about once a week, and blood curdling tragedies without number weary the soul by their variety of atrocious features.

An event recently occured near here that may serve to show how uncertain these reports are, even in respectable papers. A few days ago, the DAILY COURIER gave a plain but correct account of an attempt robbery on a train at Garrett. The train was not 'held up," and in fact no attempt was made to interfere with the train. But a passenger on the train, suddenly found himself face to face with a rough looking stranger, who ordered him to give up his money. He got rid of the would-be robber, however and there the matter ended. As soon as the engines could be changed, the train went on as it usually does, on time. This little episode was telegraphed to Chicago, and next day the big dailies dealt it out to their readers as "another train robbery." "B. & O. train up" etc.

The Inter Ocean had a sensational article with flaming heads, 'Bandits Defeated," "Fierce Fight at Garrett with Masked Robbers" After two more display heads, the dispatch followed. It was dated at Garrett, and for all we know, may have been sent by a Garrett man. It read, "Sixteen Masked bandits made a daring attemp before daybreak this morning, to hold up the N. Y. express train on the B. & O. road at this point, and only the stubborn resistance of the train crew, reinforced by the passengers prevented this bold raid being successful. While the trainmen were changing engines the robbers who had been riding in freight cars boarded the train and entering the day coaches and sleepers ordered the passengers to throw up their hands. The cries of the women and children brought the train crew to the scene."

It continues: "Many of the passengers were but partly dressed, and others clad only in their night raiment, became involved in the fierce fight, which was waged for more than half an hour. The lamps in cars were extinguished, and by the flickering light of lanterns the fight went on until, overpowered by superior numbers, the bandits retreated. The cries of the men and the screams of the women and children added confusion and terror to the sensational affray. The shrieking of the locomotive brought assistance, and Sheriff Stroh and a large posse started in pursuit of the bandits

Twelve of the men followed the railroad track and boarding a frieght train overpowered the crew and rode into Ohio, making their escape, but their capture, it is believed, will be brought about within the next twenty-four hours. Three of the robbers were taken from a west-bound train at Avilla, while a fourth man was captured a short distance from this city. The captured men are lodged in the county jail and a close watch is being maintained, the officials are being apprehensive that an attemp will be made to rescue them. Several passengers received slight injuries. The express car carried a large shipment of coin."

SLOW TRAVEL.

HOW THE OLD-TIMERS USED TO GET ABOUT THE COUNTRY.

The Steuben Republican recently had some remarks about the expense of our members of the state assembly in the matter of mileage. It should be also remarked that the state pays members 20 cents a mile, while they get their passes for nothing. And even if they did not get free passes, the charge is only 3 cents a mile on all the railroads. But here is the rest of the article:

The discussion which has been going on regarding the excessive mileage paid to members of the legislature, recalls the difficulties under which those who went to the state capital from this vicinity in the earlier days experienced. Hon. A. W. Hendry went from Angola to Indianapolis in the winter 1852-3 as a member of the legislature. To get there he first went to Coldwater, from which place he went to a point east of Toledo. There he took a train over the Mad River railroad for Cincinnati. On reaching that city he took a boat and went down to the town of Madison. At that place he secured a tickek over the Madison and Indianapolis to the capital of the state, which city he reached after a journey of several days. He returned to Angola at the end of the memorable session of 1854 by the same route over which he went.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder
Awarded Gold Medal Midwinter Fair, San Francisco.

WE HAVE NO AGENTS but ship from our factory at wholesale prices. Ship anywhere for examination; pay freight both ways if not satisfactory. 100 styles of Carriages. 90 styles of Harness. Send 4 cts. for 112 page catalogue. ELKHART CARRIAGE & HARNESS MFG. CO., W. B. Pratt, Sec'y, Elkhart, Ind.

WAR LETTER.

A REMINDER OF THE DAYS THAT FRIED THE BOYS IN THE FIELD.

A Grateful Country Will not forget their Struggles and Sufferings. We will keep their Memory Green and make their old age comfortable and honored.

Our older people, and especially old soldiers and their relatives, have a vivid recollection of the army correspondence in the old war days, when young men, and married men, were at "the front." Mail facilities, even in time of peace, were not as good then as now, and the whole postoffice department had scarcely been brought to a business condition. And what little system we had at the breaking out of the war, soon became greatly relaxed as the service in part of the states became difficult in the confusion of a separated Union and a disorganized business north and south. Yet all possible leniency was allowed, both to soldiers in the field, and to their friends at home, and the department was ready at any time to wink at violations of the rules, provided that the letters either way could be made to reach their destination. Our people, also remember the many letters from relatives in the south, who depending on Uncle Sam's good nature, sent their letters home from any point, no matter whether it had a stamp or not, or whether there was a postmaster or a postoffice within a hundred miles. The letters came and went, and when the camp contained no stamps, or the "boys" had no money, it was all the same. Often these letters from the field reached home without a stamp and the persons receiving it, paid what was due. And often, too, in addition to the very plain absence of the stamp, there was a brief note, or bit of homespun poetry on one end of the outside of the envelope and in the soldier's handwriting, humorously asking Uncle Sam's "postoffice fellers" to "put her right through" etc., frankly admitting he had no money, but bolstering up his credit by telling how many "months due" he had for his services. All these things came up afresh by finding among some old papers recently one of these very letters, from a friend in the 88th Indiana. It was a small letter, but on the outside, some postmaster had written on it, "Due 3 cents," and the last one, the one who delivered it, had "done likewise," below the other, "Due 3 cents" and then footed it up "6" which the recipient gladly paid to get the letter. Besides the above notices there was written across the end, in the soldier's handwriting, this, then common, bit of poetry:

"Soldier's letter, and nary red,
Lots of hardtack in place of bread.
Mr. Postmaster, shove this through,
I've nary stamp, but 6 months due."

What postmaster could resist such an appeal as this? Not one. As we said before, the letters came. They got here some way, if not this week, then the next or the next, and so on.

This especial one was dated at "Goldsboro, North Carolina, March 28. 1865" and the ink though pale, is still very plain. We quote a part of the letter.

"I am almost ashamed to write you. I received your letter, but had no time to answer till we started on this campaign which was a long and tedious one". (It was Sherman's "great march to the sea" Ed.) "But we have landed once more, safe and sound, after marching 500 miles and fought two battles, the last one, (It was Bentonville, Ed.) was the hardest. The number killed and wounded was 40 in our regiment. Among the killed was Lieut, Seeley of Wolf Lake. He was a brave and good officer and was well liked by all who knew him. He did belong to this company, (B.) but was commanding Co. I. of this regiment.

"The 19th inst. I thought the prospect of living long was rather dull, the way the shot and shell come whizzing past me. But I was lucky enough to come through with a whole hide. We charged the Rebs three times and drove them from their line of works in the first two charges. The third charge, the Second Bigade gave way on our left and we were obliged to fall back, when the Rebs charged us on the right and we had to leave our line works. We left the of works in good order, one company at a time. But we were badly scattered running through the woods We rallied after running a mile, and held our position, and then skirmished with them two days after that. They then "skinned out" as the boys call it. We came to this place, the 23rd of this month. We are in camp about two miles from town and on the bank of the river. It is very warm and pleasant. We have middling good quarters up, plenty to eat and drink and wear. It looks like rain. I must close. Your friend, H. H. YOUNG

Co. B. 88th Ind.

Knights of the Maccabees

The State Commander writes us from Lincoln, Neb., as follows: "After trying other medicines for what seemed to be a very obstinate cough in our two children we tried Dr. King's New Discovery and at the end of two days the cough entirely left them. We will not be without it hereafter, as our experience proves that it cures where all other remedies fail."—signed F. W. Stevens, State Com.—Why not give this great medicine a trial, as it is guaranteed and trial bottles are free at Robbins & McCord's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.00. 6

Beginning to remind us of

GOOD OLD TIMES

Again. Business better than it has ever been, even in the great hustle of '92. We are striving to make it even better. With

INCREASED FACILITIES,
LARGER STOCK,
LOWER PRICES,

we are bound to succeed. Each day we aim to improve one or the other of our Many Departments.

This week it is in our Clothing, Ladies' Wrap and Carpet Departments..

Brim Full

of choice new goods at

Spot Cash Prices.

More of those elegant Five Dollar Black Capes which have attracted more attention than any other garment this season.

New Hats

In all the latest shapes and shades.

New Summer Neckwear.

in Flowing ends, DeJoinvilles, Silks and Lawns. These are a few of the many attractions on which we can save you money.

SCHAAB & BROTHER

BROWN, CULBERTSON & BOLAND

The leading Hardware and Agricultural Implement Firm in DeKalb Co.

SELLS

Eckhart Buggies,
Turnbull Wagons,
Oliver and Bryan Plows,
Bement Disc and Spring-tooth Harrows,
Bryan Spading Harrows,
Ohio, Albion and New Western Cultivators,
McCormick, Champion and Deering, Binders and Mowers.
Stoves, Tinware, Paints
OILS, Glass, etc., etc.

Come and See

North Side Public Square.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

JAMES A. BARNS, - - PUBLISHER.

DOINGS OF THE DAY.

SUMMARY OF THE NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Eventful Happenings in Every Known Hemisphere—Fires, Accidents, Crimes, Politics, Religion, Commerce and Crops, Sandwiched with Minor Affairs.

PATENT OFFICE

Fire Started in the Interior Department at Washington.—A Number Injured.

Fire broke out in the laboratory of the patent office end of the interior department, Washington. A watchman named Hawkins and Miss Nevins, in charge of the departmental telephone exchange, were injured. Mr. Flint, a chief of division in the office, was also burned. It is stated that the fire was caused by the igniting of 500 pounds of ether, which was being poured out of its receptacle. The room where the explosion took place is in the extreme Southwest basement corner, at the junction of Nineth and F street, one of the busiest parts of Washington. Great clouds of smoke poured out of the windows of the room and there was a hasty exodus of clerks from the building, many of whom put greater celerity into their movements through remembrance of the great fire in the same building nearley twenty years ago. The flames were soon under control. The correct list of persons injured is as follows: Albert Flint, in charge of the room, badly burned about the legs, head, and face; C. M. Parkinson, a watchman, hands and arms badly scorched; a clerk named Carter, extent of injuries unknown.

A New Paper for Chicago.

Springfield (Ill.) special: Application was made to Secretary of State Hinrichsen for the incorporation of the Chicago Daily Enquirer. The paper is to be democratic in politics and will be guided by the party conventions in its attitude on the currency question. The capital stock will be $1,000,000. It expected that the United Press report will be secured. The following gentlemen signed the application for the incorporation of the Enquirer: Frank Wenter, S. P. McConnel, John P. Hopkins, Alexander J. Jones, Charles S. Thornton, Delos P. Phelps, Willis J. Abbot, William Prentiss, Frank Gaulter, W. B. Brinton, Clayton E. Crafts, Jesse D. Sherwood, Robert E. Burke, William H. Snyder, Edward T. Noonan, and R. E. Spangler. Both silver and anti-silver men are among those back of the paper.

A Serious Collision.

East-bound Baltimore and Ohio passenger train No 8 collided with north-bound freight No. 29, on the main track right in the village of Fredericktown, Ohio. The two engines collided with such force as to wedge themselves together and to derail and badly damage eight freight cars and a postal car. Engineer Michael McDonagh and Fireman W. W. Whaden, both of Newark, Ohio, are seriously injured, and Postal Clerk Gregg of Wheeling, W. Va., is also in a critical condition. Engineer Courson, of the freight train, also had one arm slightly injured. Though the passengers were badly shaken up none were injured.

A Terrible Accident.

Tom Talmage, one of the best known agricultural men in Eastern Indiana, was fatally hurt while harrowing a field on his farm near Anderson. The horses ran away, and by some peculiar move he, in trying to catch them, fell, and the harrow which turned up in the air, came down on him. One of the long iron teeth ran into the center of his back three inches, and was as quickly torn out by the horses. It left a frightful gash, and it is just a matter of time until he dies. He received several other injuries.

Struck Oil.

The discovery of oil in Pike Township, five miles south of Canton, Ohio, has occasioned much excitement in that city. James Welsh, who is doing the prospecting, secured leases for seven thousand acres nearley a year ago, and there is little left. Welsh is a Wood County operator, having extensive interests near Bowling Green. Oil was struck at a depth of 950 feet when five gallons were bailed out. Drilling was continued through the Berea grit, and the indications of a good find brighten.

Decapitated.

Louis H. Ley, a prominent Lake Shore and Michigan Southern official at Elkhart, Ind., was instantly killed by being run over by a mogul engine in the roundhouse. He was partly under the engine, looking for a defect in its machinery, when somebody started the engine, and it ran across his shoulders, severing his head from his body. He was a prominent Knight Templar, was 60 years of age, and leaves a wife and daughter in good circumstances.

Death of James M. Hoyt.

James M. Hoyt died at Cleveland, Ohio, aged 81 years. He was at one time one of the leading lawyers of Ohio. For several years prior to 1870 he was president of the Baptist Home Mission Society of America. He was the father of Rev. Wayland Hoyt, of Minneapolis, Colgate Hoyt, of New York, and James H. Hoyt, of Cleveland, one of the candidates for Governor of Ohio.

Dynamited a House.

An attempt was made to blow up a vacan tenement house on Wittenberg College Campus, Springfield, Ohio. Two charges of dynamite were used, and the house was badly damaged. Students are suspected of doing the mischief.

A Search for the Chicora.

St. Joseph (Mich.) special: Captain Rosell Bowner, the Chicago diver, has arrived and will began searching for the Chicora. He believes the hull lies off Saugatuck and that he will find the bodies of the crew in it.

Will Return His Money.

Fred Sauer of Zanesville, Ohio, went to Germany some time ago and was arrested, imprisoned and fined for having left Germany without performing his military duty. On returning home he filed his complaint with the authorities and has just received notice that the German Government will refund the fine and costs.

Senator Wilson Dead.

Ex-United States Senator Wilson died at his home in Fairfield, Iowa, after a lingering illness.

Trade Review.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: "In every speculative department business is growing, but this is really the least satisfactory feature of the situation. Cotton, oil, and wheat climb above the export price, so that the marketing of products abroad must be checked and money is absorbed which ought to be employed in productive industry and in distribution of products to consumers. Everybody knows that oil has not risen 200 per cent. because it is intrinsically more valuable nor is wheat actually worth more than it was two or three weeks ago, but the expansive and uplifting force has unfortunately taken to speculation rather that to production, and so we have higher prices in all speculative markets without a larger demand for consumption."

BROKEN.

Is Supposed to Be the Strike of the Coal Miners in Pennsylvania.

Indianapolis special: President McBride of the American Federation of Labor and miders' organization, says that the starting of five mines on the Wheeling division of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad at the 60 cent rate probably means that the miners' strike in Pennsylvania is broken. The agreement under which miners in Indiana are working will expire soon. It is understood that the wages of each State will be fixed irrespective of any inter-state agreement. Indiana miners believe they will suffer on account of the inability of the miners in the Pittsburgh district to stand out for 69 cents, the price that was to have been paid under inter-state agreement by which the general strike was settled last June. It is understood that if work is resumed in the Pittsburgh district at the 60 cent rate, Indiana operators will demand the difference of 9 cents in their favor. If the Pittsburgh operators win their fight with the miners it is also believed by many of the interested ones that the Indiana mines will be shut down May 1. President McBride said that in this event it is hard to predict what the miners would do.

NEW DETAILS

Of the Peace Treaty Between China and Japan.

Yokohama special: The Nichinichi publishes the terms of the treaty of peace concluded between China and Japan. The new details furnished are that the indemnity is payable in seven years, with interest at 5 per cent., but if the amount, 200,000,000 taels, is paid to Japan in three years, no interest will be demanded. Japan is also entitled under the treaty to the most favored nation treatment and has a right to navigate the Chung Kiang, Soo Chow and Hong Kong rivers, to import goods of certain classes and machinery free of duty and to establish factories. A new treaty of commerce is to be concluded, to be based on the existing treaties with foreign powers. China is to comply with the customs laws of Japan, and, finally, part of the expenses of the occupation of Wei Hai Wei, Port Arthur, etc., by the Japanese are to be borne by China.

Russia Objects.

St. Petersburg special: The strong protests of the Russian press against the Japanese annexing the Liao Tung Peninsula are fully indorsed by the Russian Government. Much irritation is expressed at the reported change of Great Britain in favor of Japan as being calculated to paralyze for a time a common agreement between the powers which is essential to the exercise of pressure upon Japan. It is semi-officially stated that there is no truth in the story which was put in circulation from Washington, that Russia is fully aware of and gives secret, but hearty approval of the conditions of peace exacted from Chiana by Japan. It is further stated that the story was probably circulated in order to mislead China. Russia, according to the semi-official utterances, does not approve of the treaty of Shimonoseki, and acting under agreement with the powers, will protect her interests even if England holds aloof.

Death in a Box.

A mysterious attempt to blow up Will Marquette, a tailor of Chattanooga, Tenn., with an infernal machine was made recently. Marquette received a package by mail postmarked Chattanooga. He unwrapped it, and found a backgammon box with a sliding cover. The cover fitted close, and fastened to the other side of it was a piece of sandpaper. Inside the box and touching the sand-paper was a match, around which was wound a short fuse ending in a cap, which was set in a five-ounce package of dynamite, enough to have blown the house to pieces. Marquette, instead of sliding the lid back, pried off the bottom of the box with a knife. Post-office Inspectors are at work on the case.

Fire at Philadelphia.

Fire broke out in Wilson's cracker bakery, on Front street, above Race, Philadelphia, and in a short time spread to Dreydoppel's soap factory and Snowden's chair factory. The big bakery building was totally destoryed and the occupants of the dwelling houses were got out with difficulty by the firemen, but as far as known no one was injured. The rear portion of Dreydoppel's soap factory was completely gutted, but here the firemen succeeded in confining the flames. Three firemen were buried under falling walls but they were quickly dug out and hurried to the hospital so that it was impossible to learn at the scene how badly they were hurt.

Guatemala Must Explain.

There was much complaint during the past year of the abuse of American citizens in Guatemala. In some cases, like that of Henry J. Stibbs, officers of American vessels were seized in Guatemalan ports and forced into the military service. In others American workman peacefully engaged in their labors, were imprisoned and maltreated and others still were subjected to the indignity of lashing upon the bare backs. The Department of State has called for explanations from the Guatemalan government and directed investigations through our consular officers upon which to base demands for indemnity.

The Lamp Exploded.

While T. W. Barnes, a blind musician at Dayton, Ohio, was setting at the supper table a coal oil lamp exploded and showered flames of oil over the occupants at the table. In the effort to extinguish the flames that enveloped her blind husband, Mrs. Barnes's clothing also took fire, and their three-year-old daughter, enveloped in flames, also ran wildly about the rooms. Neighbors attracted to the scene put out the flames. Mrs. Barnes and her husband are both seriously burned, the former fatally, it is thought. The clothing of the little girl was burned to a crisp, and she cannot survive.

Unusual Step.

It is stated on seemingly good authority that Masonic orders in Indiana are to take an important step in the promotion of the temperance cause, by making the use of intoxicants at public receptions, a violation of the laws of the order, punishable by severe penalties. The initial step has been taken by Grand Commander Stick, whose public utterances in denunciation of the custom have caused a great sensation. Indiana is credited with being the first State in the Union whose Masonic bodies are agitating the adoption of stringent temperance laws.

A Wreck in the South.

The south bound fast mail on the Northeastern railroad, ran into a washout four miles below Florence, S. C., and was completely wrecked. The tender, mail, baggage, first class car and three sleepers went down. There were few passengers on the train, none of whom were killed. The Rev. Thomas Dickson, jr., the noted New York preacher and orator, and Robert Petteway, the baggagemaster, of Wilmington, N. C., received the worst injuries, neither serious. The two rear sleepers took fire from the gas lamps and were burned.

Fire at Bryan, Ohio.

A half block of buildings were destroyed by fire at Bryan, Ohio. Three large buildings belonging to A. Keninger, of Toledo, occupied by J. L. Low, produce dealer; T.L. Urey, agricultural implements; Shawley Bros., painters, and Dillman & Gardner, storage of furniture, were destroyed, together with the large livery barn of Arnold & Son. The residence of Judge Long was also partially destroyed.

A Bad Accident.

A horrible accident attended the opening day of the base-ball season at Cincinnati. On one of the densely crowded open summer electric cars passing up Vine street on its way to the grounds, an elderly man stood on the foot rail of the side of the car. When the car reached the canal bridge he was so far out that his body struck the iron work of the bridge. His ribs were broken, his skull crushed, and he fell dead on the street.

Is Wales Coming?

London special: Nothing is known here of the report in circulation in the United States that the Prince of Wales will visit the United States in the autumn in order to be present at the races for the American cup. Inquiries have been made among those who are close to the Prince, and all those who have been questioned on the subject disclaim any knowledge of any such intentions upon the part of the heir apparent.

A British Ship Fired On.

Key West (Fla.) special: It has been reported here by the master of the British schooner Gertrude, which arrived from Nassau, that a British smack, which plies regularly between Long Key and Nassau, was fired upon by a Spanish gunboat, and two of her seamen killed, and that the schooner was taken to Santiago de Cuba by the gunboat. Great excitement exists at Nassau over the affair.

A Rear End Collision.

North-bound passenger train No. 207, on the Ironton branch of the C., H. & D. Railway, was badly wrecked two miles south of Wellston, Ohio, by a freight train following running into the rear end. One coach was completely demolished, seriously injuring a lady passenger and slightly injuring three traveling salesmen. The engine of the freight train was badly demolished.

Outlaws captured.

A special from Woodward, Okla., says that George Waddel and John Hill, two horse thieves, who overpowered the jail guards and escaped several weeks ago, were surrounded by a sheriff's posse in a house four miles west of there. After a battle in which over fifty shots were fired and Hill received a bullet in the face, the desperadoes surrendered and are now in jail at Woodward.

Her Words Came True.

Mrs. Berryman, of Kattawa, Ky., 70 years old, drew a pistol on the Marshal when he went to arrest her six-years-old nephew for annoying Henry Cobb. The Marshal arrested the aged woman. She told him she had heart trouble, and would die if placed in jail. She was placed in a cell, and as the door was locked threw up her hands and dropped dead.

Horribly Burned.

A son and daughter of Jacob Fraley, of Tiffin, Ohio, aged respectively 4 and 6 years, were very seriously, if not fatally, injured while playing with dynamite cartridges which had been thrown out by the side of the track, and which the children picked up. The little ones were terribly burned about the hands and legs.

Crew Lost.

Port Townsend (Wash.) special: The schooner Behring Sea, from Tacoma, has been found thirty-five miles west of Cape Flattery, bottom up. The crew of ten persons is supposed to have been drowned. The vessel was making her maiden voyage to the Halibut banks, and was deemed an unseaworthy craft.

Breckinridge to Defeat Blackburn.

It is announced that W. C. P. Breckinridge will become a candidate for the United States Senate from Kentucky, and thus get even with Senator Blackburn, who helped to defeat him in his memorable fight for renomination to Congress.

Pitched Battle in the Nation.

Guthrie (O. T.) special: Couriers who have just arrived here from Tishomingo, the capital of the Chickasaw nation, report that a battle is raging between Governor Mosely and 200 insurgents. Six people have been killed and eight wounded.

A Cyclone in Alabama.

A disastrous cyclone from the northwest passed across Washington County, Alabama. All the houses and fences in its path were swept clean. Fortunately so far no deaths or serious injuries have been reported.

Found His Dead Body.

G. V. L. Mellinger, a real estate agent and broker, of Canton, Ohio, aged 47, a leader in business and social circles, was killed by the accidental discharge of a gun. His body was found by the roadside.

Suicide at Akron.

At Akron, Ohio., Thomas C. Kenyon, who was connected for many years with the Whitman & Barnes company, committed suicide by hanging in his door yard. Business troubles was probably the cause.

Reforms Demanded.

The great powers of Europe through their envoys have planned reforms to be urged immediately upon Turkey. Armenian outrages have been too glaring to permit continuance of the old regime.

Tortured to Death.

Hannah Darby, aged 84, who lived alone at Converse, Ind., was found dead with her eyes burned out, and her body badly burned. The supposition is that she was tortured for her money.

THE MARKETS.

Chicago—Cattle, common to prime, $3.75 to $6.25; hogs, shipping grades, $3 to $5.25; sheep, fair to choice, $2.50 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2 red, 57c to 58c; corn, No. 2, 45c to 46c; oats, No. 2, 28c to 29c; rye, No. 2, 65c to 66c; butter, choice creamery, 20c to 21c; eggs, fresh, 11c to 12c; potatoes, car lots, per bushel, 75c to 85c; broom corn, per lb, common growth to fine brush, 4c to 7c.

Indianapolis—Cattle, shipping, $3 to $6.25; hogs, choice light, $3 to $5.25; sheep, common to prime, $2 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2 red, 57c to 58c; corn, No. 1 white, 45c to 46c; oats, No. 2 white, 33c to 34c.

St. Louis—Cattle, $3 to $6; hogs, $4 to $5; wheat, No. 2 red, 58c to 59c; corn, No. 2, 43c to 44c; oats, No. 2, 30c to 30½c; rye, No. 2, 56c to 60c.

Cincinnati—Cattle, $3.50 to $6; hogs, $3 to $5.50; sheep, $2.50 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2, 63c to 63½c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 46c to 47c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 31½c to 32½c; rye, No. 2, 69c to 71c.

Detroit—Cattle, $2.50 to $6; hogs, $4 to $5; sheep, $2 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2 red, 60c to 61c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 45c to 46c; oats, No. 2 white, 34c to 35c.

Toledo—Wheat, No. 2 red, 60c to 61c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 46c to 47c; oats, No. 2 white, 33c to 33½c; rye, No. 2, 58c to 60c.

Buffalo—Cattle, $2.50 to $6.25; hogs, $3 to $5.50; sheep, $3 to $5; wheat, No. 1 hard, 68½c to 69½c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 50c to 51c; oats, No. 2 white, 35c to 36c.

Milwaukee—Wheat, No. 2 spring, 60c to 61c; corn, No. 3, 47c to 48c; oats, No. 2 white, 32c to 33c; barley, No. 2, 52c to 53c; rye, No. 1, 60c to 62c; pork, mess, $12 to $12.50.

New York—Cattle, $3 to $6.25; hogs, $4 to $5.75; sheep, $3 to $5.25; wheat, No. 2 red, 65c to 66c; corn, No. 2, 51c to 52c; oats, white Western, 33c to 41c; butter, creamery, 14c to 21c; eggs, Western, 12½c to 13½c.

PEACE IN THE EAST.

ORIENTAL NEWS CONFIRMED OFFICIALLY.

Diplomatic Advices Received at Washington Make It Certain that the Negotiations Between China and Japan Have Ended Happily.

Terms Agreed Upon.

Official confirmation of the report of the signing of the treaty of peace between the plenipotentiaries of Japan and China has been received by Secretary Gresham. It came from Minister Dun at Tokio, was very brief and merely stated that a treaty of peace had been finally concluded. The minister's cablegram gave no information respecting the conditions on which the terms of the agreement between the powers had been arrived at. The Chinese Legation also received advices from Japan announcing the signature of terms of peace between China and Japan.

It is understood in Washington that the terms agreed upon are in conformity with those already published, saving the amount of the indemnity, which was subsequently reduced, probably to an amount estimated to be sufficient to cover all of Japan's war expenses. It is doubted, though, whether it has been brought down as low as $100,000,000 in gold. In respect of the territory which Japan is to possess it is understood in Washington that aside from Formosa, which is absolutely ceded, the rest will be subject only to temporary occupation, probably until all of the indemnity has been paid. This would leave Japan in temporary possession of the entire Laotung peninsula from Port Arthur, at the southern extremity, clear up to Mookden, the capital of Manchuria, on the north, and from the Liao river, on which New Chang is situated, on the west to the Corean border on the east. This amounts to about 3,000 square miles and is populated by about 2,000,000 people.

The report of a condition that there should be an alliance offensive and defensive between Japan and China is not credited in Japanese circles, where it is not believed to have been even suggested. On the other hand, some of the diplomatic body are inclined to believe that the alliance has really been made with an earnest purpose to execute it. They see in it the realization of the prophecy of an eminent scholar recently made that these two nations would eventually combine against occidental methods and commerce, and their watchword would be "The orient for the orientals."

Li Hung Chang is said to be convinced of the wisdom of such a combination, believing that by a close alliance with Japan, China would secure in return practical control of the commerce of the greatest trading people of the East. Such a consummation as this would mean the destruction of European commercial interests in the orient and it may be that strong opposition will soon develop on the part of some of the powers to this feature of the agreement.

It is to be noted that this agreement is not final in all respects, but is simply a preliminary agreement, indicating on broad lines the ultimate terms of a definite treaty of peace which may not be perfected for months to come.

TO FOUND A STATE.

Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin Would Contribute to Its Territory.

It is seriously proposed to create a new State by taking a part of the three States of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan, which will be known as the State of "Superior," or "the mineral State." This idea is a modification of the new State plan so often repeated, and its creator is Captain Alex. McDougall, the inventor of the whaleback. Captain McDougall would cut out a territory bounded on the north by Canada, on the west by the Mississippi river, on the south by a line drawn from the Mississippi river along the southern boundary of the northern tier of Wisconsin counties and terminating at the extreme tip of the upper peninsula. Of course, the eastern boundary line would lie in the lakes, but that is immaterial to the plan.

What is aimed at particularly is to place the three great iron ranges, the Vermillion, the Mesaba and the Gogebic, in one State, so that the interests of none of them could be injured by conflicting legislation and all might be treated from the same basis. Should the new State, which would be the forty-fifth of the Union, be considered at all, it would have the additional advantage, the captain thinks, of solving the difficulties of long standing between Duluth and Superior, for, both cities being in the same State, their interests would be in the main almost identical. At least there would be no State line to vex and complicate their relations.

A West Superior correspondent, in writing of the matter, says Duluth and the northern part of Minnesota have no interests in common with the rest of the State. Wisconsin, it can truthfully be said, bears the same relation toward Superior and the northern portion of the State, and as for the upper peninsula, it is not, either from a commercial or geographical point of view, a part of the State of Michigan. The new State would be one of the richest in wealth in the Union; it would have more than 500 miles of water front and contain "the head of the lakes" harbor, which is the gateway for the trade and commerce of the entire northwestern country. "Superior," or "the mineral State," would at once become one of the greatest States of the Union, it is firmly believed by its advocates.

Agitation of the subject will begin immediately throughout the three commonwealths involved and the representatives in the several Legislatures who come from the territory immediately involved will, after their adhesion is secured, begin making political combinations in order to effect their purpose.

G. A. R. DEPARTMENTS REPORT.

They Show a Net Loss of About 3,500 Members in 1894.

The national headquarters of the Grand Army of the Republic in Rockford, Ill., has received reports from forty-one departments, all except those of Arkansas, Kentucky, Oklahoma and Utah. They show the following figures:

Members in good standing June 30, 1894	365,442
Gain by muster in	6,906
Transfers	2,548
Reinstatements	21,624
Total	387,066
Loss by death	3,418
Honorable discharges	721
Transfers	2,738
Suspensions	16,280
Dishonorable discharges	67
Delinquent reports	1,902
Number remaining in good standing Dec. 31, 1894	361,940
Net loss	3,502

Samuel Woodworth, the author of the "Old Oaken Bucket" and other poems, was called the American Goldsmith, on account of a resemblance in character to the author of the "Deserted Village."

Carnivous animals seldom produce more than two young at a birth.

CLEVELAND ANSWERED.

Chairman Harvey of the Bimetallic League Replies to the President.

W. H. Harvey, chairman of the executive committee of the Bimetallic League, has prepared a reply to the President's letter to the Chicago committee of business men. It says in part:

"In reply to your letter addressed to the committee of business men of this city, we wish to say that the committee that waited on you, and the persons who attached their names to the invitation did not represent the majority of business men and citizens in this city who take a deep interest in the welfare of the republic. They represented that class that owns money and securities payable in fixed incomes. We respectfully submit that your letter does not present the true merits of the controversy. You call the attention of the farmers and the wage earners to the fact that the rising prices, while enabling them to sell their products and labor at higher prices, will also cause them to pay equally more for what they may purchase, but you neglect to say that your statement is not applicable to debts. With prices coming down regularly and steadily since the demonetization of silver, our merchants, manufacturers and people generally have been doing business on a falling market, so that the time intervening between their purchase of their merchandise or raw material and placing it months after on the market, removing the margin they would have had otherwise. This shrinkage in values added to the ordinary risk and expense in business, has led to the ever-increasing volume of debt—to the money lending period—until it has increased all told, public and private, to about forty billions of dollars, or about two-thirds the total value of all the property in the United States. Money, and those debts payable in money have been steadily increasing in exchangeable value with the property of the people. Taxes have increased as expressed in dollars and have doubled and quadrupled as measured in the property people surrender with which to pay it since 1873. We have constantly pointed the people to the ever-increasing exchangeable value of the creditors' dollar, and to the reason why it was increased, but the influences of these creditors have dominated your administration and you insist on such currency as they have established as a sound currency. We respectfully submit that it was the intention of the founders of this Government that it was safer that all people should do the thinking for it than that any one class should do it for them. We but express your own opinion as President of the people when we say that all people should have an opportunity to investigate and intelligently pass upon this question."

TALK FREE SILVER.

Advocates of Unlimited Coinage Present Their Views.

The Denver open air meeting addressed Tuesday afternoon by the silver champions was the largest ever assembled in that city. Congressman Sibley was the first speaker, and plunged deeply into the subject at the very beginning. He advised the debasement of partisanship and the elevation of patriotism. Frantic appeals have been made to educate the people in regard to "sound money," but he thought there were so many people who needed education in that way that the goldites had a hopeless task and one that was daily becoming more so. The speaker told many amusing stories illustrating the points made, but the burden of the entire speech was that it was necessary to unite if hope was to be entertained for the ultimate redemption of silver.

"Shake off party spells," he said, "and unite under the free silver banner, not as Republicans, not as Democrats, nor yet as Populists, but as free-born American citizens."

General Warner was the next introduced. "We are face to face," he said, "with the question what is to be our money—how is it to be supplied?"

He undertook to show how the money question is the dominant one in politics to-day. "The line of battle is drawn, monometallism on one side and bimetallism on the other. He proceeded to analyze the chances of the restoration of silver within party lines and attempted to show its impossibility. He warned his hearers against putting their trust in an international conference. "As well," he said, "for our protection friends to propose an international conference on the tariff. America must and will take care of itself."

Both speakers were frequently interrupted with bursts of applause.

HAVOC ALONG THE MERRIMAC.

New England Rivers Overflow and Spread Destruction.

The most terrible flood since that of 1869 has inundated the valleys of Connecticut and the reports that have begun to come in show that it has been particularly disastrous. More than fifty families in Concord alone are practically homeless. The waters that have overflowed the banks of the Merrimac are eddying through their homes and they have been abandoned. A score of buildings have been washed away and carried down the river on the flood. More than 300 persons were taken from upper floor windows in boats and carried to the uplands. Along the line of the Concord and Montreal Railroad enormous damage has been done by the washing away of tracks and rolling stock.

Twenty-five houses in the village of Huntonville have been washed away and the Merrimac at that point is six miles wide and sixty feet deep. Much stock has been drowned. The Granite Railroad Company has lost all its tracks and rolling stock. The twin bridges at Boscawen are gone and at Seawall's Falls the water is thirty feet deep.

Haverhill, Mass., which is on the banks of the Merrimac, has suffered severely from the flood, the foundations of at least twenty of the largest business blocks having been washed out and the whole business section of the city being inundated. Many of the shoe factories are closed and fully 10,000 operators are out of work. At Nashua, N. H., the water is twelve feet deep over the dam and all business is suspended. The railroads are all tied up and telegraph and telephone service is suspended; the river, running through the center of the city, is twenty five feet above high water mark. Every bridge over the river at Manchester is under water and several have gone out. Millions of feet of logs are piled up against those still in place.

Not a spindle or loom is working along the whole length of the Merrimac river from its source in northern New Hampshire to Newburyport, Mass.

Losing the Temper.

Losing the temper takes all the sweet, pure feeling out of life. You may get up in the morning with a clean heart, full of song, and start out as happy as a bird, and the moment you are crossed and you give way to your temper, the clean feeling vanishes and a load as heavy as lead is roned upon the heart, and you go through the rest of the day feeling like a culprit. And any one who has experienced this feeling knows that it cannot be shaken off but must be prayed off.

The eggs of the crocodile are scarcely larger than those of the goose.

BIG DEARTH OF BEEF.

RISE IN PRICE OF MEAT DUE TO NATURAL CAUSES.

Packers Deny that a Combination Has Been Formed to Corner the Product—Long Drought Has Proved Destructive on Ranges in the West.

Eighteen months from the present time, when the frisky calf of to-day is ready for the slaughter house and the packing industry or an exhibit on a butcher's marble slab, there will be a fall in the present high price of beef, whether purchased on the hoof or at retail. This assertion is borne out not only by the assertions of the interested packers of Chicago, Omaha, St. Louis and Kansas City, but by the statistics prepared quarterly by the Government concerning the shipping, receiving and killing of cattle in the four American cities which control the delivery of beef dressed or on the hoof to the remainder of the country and Europe. The statement that a combine among the four principal packers of the West has caused the increased prices is indignantly denied by them.

Clay Robinson & Co., from the Union Stock Yards of Chicago, have issued a circular referring to the cattle scarcity, in which they estimate the shortage at 40 per cent. for the whole country in comparison with 1894. The same estimate is made by Cal Favorite, of Armour & Co., and is partially sustained by the figures of the Government given out in January of this year. These figures show the number of cattle in the United States, being a comparison of January, 1895, with January, 1894. In beef cattle the decrease in the whole number in the country was 2,243,953, or 6 per cent.

Large Decrease Shown.

The Government cattle report includes all classes and grades, while the estimate of the Chicago packers as to the decrease is in reference only to cattle fit for immediate sale. By the Government report it is shown that the decrease in cattle in Nebraska has been 18 per cent. since 1894, 16 per cent. since 1893, and 18 per cent. since 1892. In Wyoming the decrease is 9 per cent. since 1894 and 29 per cent. as compared with 1892. In Texas a decrease of 7 per cent. since 1894, 5 per cent. since 1893, and 12 per cent since 1892. Montana has lost 4 per cent. since 1893, 5 per cent. since 1892. The State gained 2 per cent. in comparison with 1894. Iowa's loss is 6 per cent. since 1894, 5 per cent. since 1893 and 6 per cent. since 1892. Colorado has lost 6 per cent. in comparison with 1894 and gained 12 as compared with 1893.

If the coming scarcity of cattle had not been foreshadowed by the January Government report data of a similar nature would not be lacking now. For the week ending March 30 the decrease in the receipts of cattle at the Chicago stock yards in comparison with the same week in 1894 was 8,583 head. Since Jan. 1 there have been received at the stock yards 572,857 head, a decrease of 119,068 for the same period in 1894. Shipments during the same period of time decreased 51,080 head and the actual slaughter 66,970 head. The figures are official. On April 11 the estimated shortage in the receipts of cattle at the Union Stock Yards since Jan. 1 in comparison with the receipts for the same period in 1894 was 270,000 head. The shortage in pounds of dressed beef for the same period was estimated to be 175,000,000 pounds, or an average of 2,000,000 pounds decrease a day. On the same day the receipts of cattle at the yards were 9,500 head less than on the same day in 1894.

No Combine Among Packers.

Cal Favorite, speaking for Armour & Co., said: "The Big Four is a mythical organization. I do not know that it exists. If you view the situation in the light of an actual shortage of marketable cattle existing—40 per cent. less than a year ago in the whole country—it is not difficult to explain why there is a scarcity in beef and higher prices. It is simply impossible for us to get choice cattle in any quantity."

P. D. Armour said: "The Western ranges have been denuded of cattle, and I believe it will take four or five years to have a reduction in the prevailing beef prices. The scarcity of cattle, in my opinion, will continue for that length of time. I do not see how it is to be avoided. Months and years will be required to restore to the barren ranges the cattle which once kept the supply ahead of the demand. The situation is the logical end of a series of disasters on the cattle ranges and destruction of crops needed for feeding purposes."

Comparative tables were secured showing the figures of the receipts, shipments and killings in the Chicago, South Omaha, Kansas City and East St. Louis markets for the three months ending March 30, 1895, with the same periods in 1894. These are the tables:

CHICAGO.

	1895.	1894.	1893.
Receipts	574,052	692,125	763,338
Shipments	188,430	241,084	240,419
Killing	385,622	451,043	527,919

KANSAS CITY.

	1895.	1894.
Receipts	328,379	376,745
Shipments	132,629	189,387
Killing	195,750	187,358

The increase in the killing at Kansas City of 1895 over that of 1894 is explained by the statement that Swift & Co. and Nelson Morris are diverting, for the present, business to that point and East St. Louis and increasing their output.

SOUTH OMAHA.

	1895.	1894.
Receipts	123,753	181,966
Shipments	55,617	58,408
Killing	68,136	123,647

EAST ST. LOUIS.

Receipts	168,772	140,897
Shipments	50,245	54,627
Killing	118,527	86,276

FOUR CITIES COMBINED.

Receipts	1,194,956	1,391,717
Shipments	426,921	543,501
Killing	768,035	848,218

The Size of Them.

Arizona is almost exactly twice the size of Missouri.

Asia is the largest continent, 16,000,000 square miles.

Anan, 106,000 square miles, is about the size of Idaho.

Corea is exactly the size of Kansas, 82,000 square miles.

Pennsylvania is almost three-fourths the size of Missouri.

Missouri is almost three times the size of West Virginia.

Portuguese Guinea is a little larger than New Hampshire.

Macedonia proper was near the size of the State of Illinois.

Brazil has one province larger than any three of our States.

Tasmania has 26,000 square miles, a little smaller than Maine.

The Roman province of Gaul was a little smaller than Texas.

Labrador is about the size of Missouri, 70,000 square miles.

INDIANA INCIDENTS.

SOBER OR STARTLING, FAITHFULLY RECORDED.

An Interesting Summary of the More Important Doings of Our Neighbors—Weddings and Deaths—Crimes, Casualties and General News Notes.

Condensed State News.

MIAMI COUNTY'S talking about buying the toll roads.

THE six coal mines at Carbon are in operation again. Strike off.

ELWOOD gas company will lay an entire new system, costing $50,000.

THE Blount Plow Works, Evansville, are shipping plows to Madras, India.

THREE towns in Miami County are named Chili, Ebenezer and Gilead.

JACOB LUTHER'S barn near Brazil was burned by incendiaries. Loss $5,000.

MRS. SNARE, near Loogootee, accidentally fell in a barrel of water and was drowned.

RICHARD HART, a Panhandle brakeman, was crushed to death by a switch engine at Richmond.

J. E. WOLFE, editor of the Terre Haute Journal, was found dead in a bath tub. Heart disease.

GEORGE W. KIGAR, in Warren County, was almost instantly killed in an accident at his saw-mill.

HENRY BERNING, an Allen County farmer, was fatally injured in a runaway near Fort Wayne.

OSCAR HAM, laborer, fell from a wagon at Lebanon, and was impaled on an iron rod, fatally injuring him.

ADDISON ALBERTSON, a farmer near Muncie, fell under a wagon loaded with tiling, and was instantly killed.

HAGERSTOWN will lay two miles of cement pavement this summer and is considering a plan for water works.

THE McBeths will put in a new lamp chimney factory at Elwood, the land companies donating 130 lots as a bonus.

GLANDERS has broken out among horses in the southern part of Shelby County and a number have had to be killed.

CLIFF CAMPLIN, aged 18 years, while riding a bicycle on Main Street, Richmond, was struck by a motor car and instantly killed.

A CHILD of the late widow Spoonmoore, of Star City, fell from the hotel porch, a distance of fourteen feet, and suffered injuries which proved fatal.

THE third gas company has just been organized at Farmland with James K. P. Gray, president; B. L. Wilson, secretary; A. W. Conyers, treasurer.

THE farmers of Wayne and Henry counties, near Dalton, are making an attempt to head off robbers and thieves. Bloodhounds will be purchased by popular subscription.

JOHN SMITH of Kokomo, went insane, and, after burning his clothing and furniture, tried to kill his wife and children, but the prompt arrival of the police prevented the tragedy.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES MARSEE, Petersburg, have been married fourteen years and have twelve children. Seven of them have been born within the last four years—twins twice, triplets once.

SCOTT STIVERS, insane, Liberty, imagined God had ordered him to torture himself, and he gouged 150 wounds into his body with a knife. It took several people to overpower him. May die.

A GANG of Muncie youngsters rolled a big keg of beer into the middle of a field, recently, and drank until the somniferous liquid laid them all out around the object of their bacchanalian worship.

CHARLEY JACOBS, a thirteen-year-old orphan employed at the McFarlan carriage works, in Connersville, fell twenty feet off a bridge at the factory, sustaining internal injuries, which may result fatally.

THE Broadway Lloyds Fire Insurance Company of New York, and the Council Bluffs Fire Insurance Company, of Iowa, have been blacklisted by the State Auditor, who claims that they have not complied with the laws of Indiana.

AT Circleville, near Kokomo, where the Nicholson temperance fever is at its height, a bold, daring spirit opened a saloon one day last week. It shut down at the end of three days, the only receipts being 15 cents, which a traveling man gave for a drink of whisky.

JOHN MOSS died at his home in Richmond, aged 65, the result of a kick received on the head from his horse, the calk of the shoe piercing through to the brain. Until recently, when he removed to Richmond, Mr. Mosswas formerly one of Union county's influential citizens.

DEPARTMENT Commander Shiveley, of the G. A. R., has made known the following appointments made by him: Senior aid-de-camp, Henry C. Tinney, of Lafayette; department inspector, Joseph Gill, of Washington; judge advocate, B. F. Williams, of Wabash; chief mustering officer, A. F. Spaulding, of Wabash; colorbearer, C. M. Sailers, of Wabash.

STATE GEOLOGIST BLATCHLEY, after

VENGEANCE BY VERA ROSEBERY.

A Story of a Briton in American Society. Written for This Paper by A. Oakey Hall.

CHAPTER V.

But summer vacation to the courts soon ensued, and what time Wall street went into grasshopperish speculation, and Fifth avenue uncurtained its windows, and mirrors shrank behind Hollands, and when citizens rushed from the chattering of street sparrows to the biting buzz of rural mosquitoes, Carson took his fortnight holiday. Did he select for its celebration that Vichy of America, the Saratoga Springs, because Vera and her mother were to be at the same caravansary where he could also take rooms? But Carson, as the unrevealed brother of a duke, while democratic in many of his methods, was a Tory, and loved conservative ways. Saratoga had ancestral and traditional fame like his own family. Among its century of pilgrims from the ranks of fashion or of invalidism, all the Presidents, all the statesmen, leaders of society from all the metropolitan centers, and from farms and plantations as well, had made the resort famous. "Age had not withered it, nor custom staled its infinite variety." The odor of its pines and firs, the mellowed air of its mountains, the dazzle of its hotel life, the romance of its lakes and parks, the bangles of its schemers or time killers, and the charm of yearly reunions yet, and perhaps will for centuries to come, win yearly worshippers, who alternate praise in the Saratogo temples with their hammock-swinging in the wildernesses or their loitering at the sea side.

Carson arrived a few days before Vera and her mother came over from the coziness of cottage life where Indian Holyoke adjoins towns of English nomenclature that reminded him of the Berkshire hills that he had last beheld from the northern heights of London, where Whittington heard the prophecy of Bow bells. Carson soon learned the traditional program of Saratoga life. The 9 o'clock arising, and the bath of native waters, the saunter to the springs, and the first imbibing of the tonic waters, the matutinal gossip of the piazza, the compounding of plans for the coming hours, the grill of spring chickens for breakfast, the reading of the morning papers yet damp from city presses, the linger over luncheon, the drive to the lake or the realization there of the old song, "Oh, Lightly May the Boat Row That My Young Laddie's In," the sumptuous dinner, where the "six hundred" charge upon menus that equally delight guests from all latitudes, the watching of twilight shadows, the evening flirtation, the feast of vesper music, the ball, the novel, and the embraces of Morpheus—the only god of mythology that every human agrees to worship.

One morning when the omelette aux fine herbes proved unusually tempting, and the butter on the rolls uncommonly appetizing with its yellow sweetness, he found places reserved beside his own place for Miss Vera and her mother. Then they had arrived. What magic in cards shuffled over the ink-stand of a prosaic hotel clerk. The heart of this blase Englishman actually beat a breakfast tattoo. He insensibly hummed a Tennysonian "She is coming; She is coming." How gladly he saw the slight flush on Vera's chek as he arose to thrust aside the officious waiter at the back of her chair who was hungering for a silver coin while Carson was hungering for a tone of her voice.

The usual talk about mutual movements ensued. They had not arrived at the intimacy of even formal correspondence. Were the delights of a "my darling," or "my precious," and of a "yours, with fondness"—addresses and superscriptions dear to the eyes of generations from the time of Heloise to this time of Saratoga loverdom—never to join in correspondence the names of Charles and Vera? Yet, for all her incipient flush of the cheek, he found her, not cold, exactly, but under strict bounds of etiquette, with a mother as strictly on guard as the almost immovable horse guard by the archway of the Whitehall street in London that he loved in youth to haunt. Her raillery was again busy. Had the sight of so many celebrities at Saratoga fired his abmition yet? Had any purpose of life yet interested him? Was Saratoga life worth living? Had the waters quickened his blood or given him an incentive? Had he met with a paragon of a flirt, etc.?

"No," he gallantly answered, while he merely went through the pantomime of a slight shiver. "There be none of beauty's daughters with a magic voice like thine."

"Please don't quote. I hate quotations. I once took vengeance on a man who edited a book of poetical quotations."

"And pray what was the form of vengeance?"

"I learned a great lot of his own selections and fired them off at him like paper torpedoes or Chinese crackers, and made him wince and wince again. But how did you like our Fourth of July celebration? Did it make your heart sink to remember that at Saratoga came the first rebuff to you Britishers when Lord North was trying to coerce the Irish?"

"Take pity on me, Miss Vera. We shall never agree on English politics."

"Shall we, or do we, ever agree upon anything? You are as far below my enthusiasm as—as"—she faltered a moment for a figure like a bashful collegian in a cotillon.

He gaily interrupted, "As you are above my want of heart."

"How happy an idea; as if so purposeless a gentleman should confess to that lack."

He sighed.

"Are you choking with a mushroom, Mr. Carson, or was that a groan at my audacity? I beg pardon, perhaps I wound your amour propre, if you carry such a thing about you."

And so her raillery proceeded, until he metally asked himself: "Would she be so cruel unless it was an intention of kindness, or showed an ounce of interest?"

Soon bevies of guests began to stream out, and many, recognizing the belle of three seasons, paused to greet her, and to give fresh cause for Carson's admiration of the woman who could, like a juggler, keep several balls of conversation spinning at one time.

"She often speaks of taking vengeance. It is her pet phrase," he thought to himself when alone with his Partagas on the smoking piazza. "What vengeance would she inflict on me were I ass enough to propose under our present circumstances? Vera's vengeance!"—and he repeated the phrase as if in it there was a tender sound. Yet why not? The vengeance of Venus herself was often sweet, and the arrows of her son often gave delicious pains.

He saw nothing more of her that day until dinner time. There are a score of les petits soins de la vie—a phrase very imperfectly to be translated—in the life of every woman that demand instant attention. There was wardrobe to be looked after. Porters had played football with the luggage wherein the tenderest lace and the most exquisite dresses reposed. There were cards and letters to be overlooked and notes to be written. But at dinner he was vexed to see seated between mother and herself a stranger, who was certainly distinguished looking. He had escorted Vera with graceful skill through the knots of plunging waiters in the mammoth dining room, and with great ease of manner had attended to the etiquette of seating and the proper opening of serviette. He possessed a finely modulated voice, and not yet over-braided, so to speak, with affected tones. Was this to be a rival? was the phrase he swallowed with his first spoonful of Mexican gumbo soup. The thought seemed to flavor it with a soupcon of cayenne. Vera seemed to take especial interest in what he said, for he took especial interest in selecting his topics, which ran through the gamut of the day's events, and touched epigrammatically all the news and the current gossip. All this gave occasion for her best comment and repartee, to which Carson listened with delight and admiration, yet with a certain pang of that selfish disappointment which is the first ushering in of jealousy. Moreover, while Vera addressed some observation now and again to him it was with a far-away look on commonplaces. And no introduction took place. Before dessert really began to be served he made a remark half-begging to be excused and half-apologetic at having to miss the benediction, as it were, of the menu; but not before he had heard her lightly say, in echo of some remark from the distinguished stranger: "Oh, mother knows that if I ever wed it must be with a hero."

"Ah," he thought, as on the piazza he sat down to listen to the band then playing a sensuous waltz of the ancient and almost forgotten Gungl. "What hope is there that I should ever become a hero?"

"Ah, Carson, saw you at dinner, and envied you, dear bhoy—so near to the divine Vera and her cousin, the Governor of that Western State, and one of the most rising statesmen among the Rockies." This was the salutation of Wallace Berry, the buck of all the Saratoga piazzas, as he sauntered up where the one addressed was seated. Mr. Berry was in immaculate evening dress. It was the effect of his fifth toilet in twelve hours.

"Take a chair," said Carson. "And so that gentleman was a statesman?"

"I can't sit down, dear bhoy, for I am not wearing my sitting down trousers. And he was her cousin. Owns no end of silver mines, and is expected next year to buy a Senatorship from his Legislature."

"A lover, mayhap?"

"Naw," drawled Mr. Berry. "He don't come from Utah, dontyerknow, more's the ill-luck for him, because he has a wife. There she is now by the window, near the group of youngsters in execrable coats and vilely wrinkled white ties."

"Oh, married," rejoined Carson, with a sigh of relief.

"But that wouldn't stop another wedding if he wasn't sweet on number one, because really in his State divorces are as easy as putting my horse over four bars. Otherwise, dontyerknow, he might marry his cousin. By the way, people say you are getting sweet on the girl yourself. Tidy settlement you could get. But, au revoir, I see the girls looking around for me. See you later, as my old law preceptor, Sam Tilden, used to say."

By one part of the buck's vaporing, Carson felt relief. Next came a revulsion as he remembered the words, "but only a hero."

CHAPTER VI.

The advancing night was balmy and inviting of strolls, so he descended into the street to walk in the direction of the Hilton Park. He had not passed many turnings before a bright flame shot from the second story of one of a row of brick houses near by that were divided into apartment flats. Very quickly burned the window frames, and the flames already began to lick at the copings above. Listlessly he turned toward the conflagration that seemed to threaten dangerous destruction. He was not long in joining the gathering crowd that was already welcoming escaping inmates and anxiously expecting the arrival of firemen with apparatus. Some of the terrified tenants were bemoaning the loss of valuables left behind. Several of these rushed through the blinding smoke in search of property, but one who wore the cap of a nurse suddenly cried out in a pitiful shriek, "the child—the child?" At this juncture the firemen arrived to whom she began hysterically to narrate how, in her fright, she had forgotten her charge, and where it had been left. A dozen men now sprang toward the door, and, among them, a gentleman in evening dress. As they rushed inwards, sudden volumes of smoke poured from the hallway outwards, and the impulsive rescuers were forced to come running back to the pavement. All but the gentleman in evening dress.

"He will be suffocated," cried one. "He will be burned," vociferated another. While above the din of working engines and the placing of ladders and the shouts of lookers on, louder and louder came the shriek of "the child—the child! and its mother is at the ball!"

At this moment shouts and din seemed to cease, for at a window out of which came almost solid bursts of smoke, the blackness of which was curiously tinged with reflection of flame, and all forming a background to the man in evening dress, with a white handkerchief tied oddly over his face, as he was holding a baby.

Amid the momentary hush at the weird-like sight came his commanding voice: "Hold your coats, some of you! At least let us save the child."

Before the latter part of his cool words was entirely spoken cheer upon cheer arose below at his undoubted presence of mind and sang froid, while a dozen men had stripped off their coats, and, standing elbow to elbow, had formed a species of bag below. Then the cheers ceased, and a new hush of expectancy was felt. "What would he do? Could he throw the babe safely, or was it going toward certain death?" were questions that every fireman and on-looker mentally asked themselves.

Still newer hush and fresher expectancy from below, as he was next seen to sit on the window sill, and, steadying his left hand against the shutter, made the motion of a toss with the other hand.

Double hush and triple expectancy from the crowd below, when, with the strength of an athlete, the quickness of a swordsman and the precision of a bowler at ball play, the figure from out of the blackness all around him parted with the infant.

A white parcel now descended, amid the deepest hush of all, and then fell with result of perfected aim into the center of the extemporized receptacle. The child for an instant bounded upward, but on its second and minimum fall was skillfully caught in the arms of one of the stalwart firemen in the rescuing group.

But the brave man? Was he to perish? He was presently seen at the next window, having reached it by a masterful and flylike crawl on a coping under both windows.

"Ladders! Ladders!" was the new cry. These had already been prepared, but as the longest touched the walls beneath where the unknown man in evening dress stood, it proved too short, while, as that conviction was forced upon the firemen, flames began to pour on the top rounds out of the window below the place where the fire beleaguered hero stood, seemingly yet undaunted.

A visible wave of horror seemed then to pass over the throngs. The most experienced fireman appeared to be at a puzzling loss of plan. But cheers again arose as the threatened man—still with the handkerchief over his face—was beheld moving over yet another coping—grasping the sills with tenacious clutch—occasionally hidden by the dense smoke that became denser when streams of water blunted the force of the fire behind him.

What was his aim? What his purpose? What his destination? Sooner or later he must fall into the vortex of flame behind him or on the pavement below.

"He is making for the water pipe," cried the chief engineer.

"He has grasped it already," added a foreman of an engine.

"What coolness!" thought all, as like a sailor descending a rope hand over hand he managed to reach the side bar of a ladder raised against the pipe; and amid cheers that could have been heard far into the village he reached the ground.

Reached it only to be surrounded by a cheering mob who sought to take him by the hand, and who fought so confusedly that in the semi-melee he, through some dexterity, had disappeared as unknown as he had at first emerged on his self-imposed task of mercy.

But the crowd found his hat and picked up a cambric handkerchief. The hat contained no card. The kerchief had nothing of identification, except two finger holes that had made peep apertures for his eyes. Evidently he knew how to fight fire.

The local papers on the next morning narrated the romantic incidents of his deed through columns of commending description. One paper headed its account "An Unknown Hero," another paper put forth this headline: "Modest Savior of a Babe." All gazettes exhausted rhetorical praise for the unknown in his coolness, athletism and modest bravery.

Miss Vera and her party came into the breakfast room earlier than usual. Contrary to divers sermons she had many times delivered against the plebeian practice of newspaper reading at restaurant service and thereby preventing digestion waiting upon appetite, she was now paying more attention to the morning journal than to her savory omelette. Her face was glowing with honest enthusiasm as she perused the thrilling account of the fire and of the almost miraculous rescue. Her running comments were of a sympathetic and eulogistic character.

As Carson leisurely sauntered toward his seat at the table and nonchalantly wished everybody a good morning in the very midst of her enthusiasm he was greeted with an "Of course, you heard about the fire of last evening?"

He looked positively unconcerned, and she continued: "But I beg your pardon, such minor affairs don't interest one of your cold blood."

"Oh, yes; my dear Miss Vera, I heard of it. My man Mivins was there and told me something about it."

"Of course he then saw the brave rescue?"

"Rescue? Fancy! Was there a rescue?" he asked, as he became apparently absorbed in his cup of cafe au lait.

"Was there a rescue indeed?" she scornfully demanded, and with positively the intonation of almost contemptuous indignation: "Why, look down the table! Everybody is reading the newspaper account. Here it is; almost a tale, that Wilkie Collins might have penned."

"Oh, fancy!" he almost drawled, "I shall read it by and by on the piazza with great delight, since you commend it."

"You provoking man. I shall tell it to you myself."

"Shall be charmed to hear you, I'm sure."

And he, with all who listened to her rich voice, was charmed, for she condensed the reporter's version into sentences crisp and piquant as an Addisonian article. When she came to the dramatic point of the tossing of the child downward, she turned toward her mother and exclaimed: "What a hero! I really believe I could accept such a man for a husband."

"Fancy," he said, still stirring his cafe, "perhaps this unknown hero was an acrobat or a circus chap—one of the fellows, don't you know, who saw the air with trapezes."

Miss Vera, crumbling her newspaper in her hand, arose in manifest indignation, and as she proceeded to quit the table, added: "I declare I could take some vengeance upon you for such habitual stolidity in the face of such bravery."

Before she could quit her place—pausing to adjust her Shetland shawl—a gentleman passing out abruptly stopped to look intently at Carson; then exclaimed: "It must be! It is! Are you not the gentleman who last night was the hero of the rescue? Yes," and again he was seized by the hand—"I saw you plainly, for I was there under the very water-spout that you descended, and I obtained a full view of your face!"

The features of Carson thus so abruptly appealed to, became instantly flushed with surprise; and his manner as he still stood in the intended act of bowing out Miss Vera at once told her how accurate was the identification. Her face whitened; she became nervous, almost hysterical; and, forgetting all etiquette or maidenly reserve, she grasped both of his hands, shook them heartily, and said: "You modest hero. How wretchedly I have misjudged you!"

He bent toward her and whispered: "And you have said you could marry such a man. Will you? Or for my boldness will you take vengeance?"

Before an hour had passed his name was on every tongue in Saratoga. Photographers hunted him in his bed-room lair. Autograph seekers chased him from every side. Reporters gave him no peace nor freedom. And at every mineral spring his health was drank by young and old.

When at nightfall he was compelled to journey back to New York he was cheered at the station and his departure really made triumphal. All of which the reporters and press agents duly narrated; and sent by wire into remotest hamlets, but they did not obtain a copy of his note that Mivins duly placed in the hands of Miss Vera's maid, and that in substance ran:

"Au revoir, and let me beg pardon for my boldness if it has offended. But if not, may I resume my privilege of seeing you soon?"

When he arrived at his apartments another newspaper surprise awaited him in this paragraph:

"By the shipwreck of the yacht Petronella during the terrible simoon in the Indian Ocean its owner, the Duke of Pemberton, and his two sons, who accompanied him, were drowned; and only some of the crew——"

He read no further. He dropped, dazed, on the seat as he involuntarily exlaimed:

"And I am the heir!"

Vera duly took her "vengeance." It descended on the heads of as many suitors as Penelope had, and in time it also descended on the head of the new duke by her consent to become not only a Mrs. Carson, but to add another American duchess to the British peerage. New York society declared, with the usual bitterness, that the title, and not the man, had won a bride. But all who witness their increasing happiness at their castle home dismiss the libel at once, and admit that if revenge is sweet there is often as sweet a "vengeance."

(The End.)

[Copyright. All Rights Reserved.]

THE HOSPITAL CORPS.

DISTINCT ORGANIZATION FROM LINE OF THE ARMY.

During Peace or War Men Are Constantly Drilled, in Order to Render Aid to Wounded Soldiers—Interesting Account of This Military Branch.

Work of the Corps.

No branch of the military service of the United States has a more important part to fill than the Hospital Corps, whether this part is filled in garrison during the time of peace or during active service upon the battlefield, in bivouac or on the march.

The Hospital Corps is a distinct organization from the line of the army, consisting of men whose duties are limited entirely to sanitary work. Its members are selected because of their conspicuous adaptability to the peculiar duties of the corps, from men serving in the line or by enlistment direct into the corps. Those who are transferred from the line to the corps are instructed in their duties at the post they are ordered to join; those who enlist for the first time are sent to one of the two schools of instruction for the corps, located at Washington Barracks and Fort Riley, Kan., where they are fully instructed, and then sent to duty at some military station. They must be brave and active, strong and gentle, and possessed of presence of mind and inventive faculty sufficient to meet the varying emergencies of succor to the injured.

The non-commissioned officers are known as hospital stewards, and they wear a sergeant's cheveron of emerald green, piped with white, and bearing an arc of one similar bar across the top, the whole inclosing a red cross. The uniform is similar to that worn by the enlisted men of the line, except that the trousers are of dark blue cloth, bearing an emerald green stripe, piped with white, down the outer seam of each leg. The privates wear a white brassard, bearing a red cross, on the left arm, above the elbow; the cap ornament is a white metal Geneva cross. This Geneva cross is the sign of neutrality which, under the articles of the Geneva convention, gives some immunity to the work of the hospital corps in the field.

The privates become non-commissioned officers by passing a satisfactory examination in pharmacy and the other duties of the corps. The stewards are the druggists or apothecaries of the army, and they must be skilled drug clerks, for all medicines are compounded by them. They receive, in addition to their house, clothing and rations, the monthly pay of $50. The privates receive $18 a month in addition to their clothing, lodging and food.

In Time of Peace.

In time of peace the duties of the hospital corps consist in caring for the men in garrison who are ill in hospital, and each post has one or more stewards and two or more privates, according to the size of the command.

In time of active hostilities the duties of the hospital corps are important and arduous, and at such times the corps is present with the troops in the proportion of 2 per cent. of the aggregate strength of the command—a proportion which experience has shown to best supply the needs of the wounded. During such times the men of the hospital corps are assisted in the care and removal of the wounded by four men from each company, termed "company bearers," who have been instructed in the first aid to the wounded and in the transport of the disabled. These men, under the supervision of a medical officer, render first aid on the line of battle, and assist the wounded to the rear to the first dressing station, located just beyond rifle range, where the temporary dressings are replaced or readjusted. Those cases which demand immediate operative action are designated by a colored badge, which is attached to the clothing, and as soon as these cases reach the dressing station they are attended to first.

The wounded, having received attention at the dressing station, are then put into ambulances and removed to the rear to the field hospitals or permanent ones. As a limited amount of material, with which to make the wounded on the line of battle comfortable until they are removed, can be carried by each hospital corps member, many makeshifts are resorted to, and he who can best make use of such, or devise them, is the best man. If a man's leg is broken by a bullet the proper splints are not at hand, so a rifle is used. This is firmly bound alongside the leg, and the patient is thus carried to the dressing station with less agony. A small stone or bullet pressed down upon a wounded artery by means of a pad of cloth, which is held in place by a bandage firmly twisted by means of a bayonet or a tent peg, is a temporary means of preventing a man from bleeding to death until he reaches the dressing station, where his case, marked with a colored badge, will receive attention at once. Numerous other cases might be cited. It is in the care of just such cases that the worth of a member of the hospital corps is shown. Another important duty at the front is the careful examination of the field after an engagement to see if any wounded men remain uncared for, or to ascertain if any men supposed to be dead show signs of life. At night these searchers are assisted by a large electric search light.

In carrying disabled men from the front to the dressing station many makeshift litters are used, such as camp cots, window shutters, doors, ladders, etc., properly padded. A blanket makes an excellent litter by spreading it upon the ground and rolling up a rifle in each side until there remains a space of twenty inches. An overcoat buttoned up, with the rifle run through the sleeves, makes a good litter, and two rifles with the leather slings crossed are often used to carry a wounded man upon.

Constant Drills Necessary.

Constant drills are necessary. Visitors to Fort Thomas last summer were often alarmed to see half a dozen men lying upon the drill ground and two or three men working over each. These visitors were relieved when told that this was the drill of the hospital corps in caring for men wounded upon the field of battle. Large crowds would frequently gather and observe with much interest the excellent drill the men gave under the charge of the post surgeons. At one place would be seen two men binding a rifle to two-handed seat made by two men; lifting a patient to place him upon a litter; carrying a loaded litter up or down stairs, and, finally, loading an ambulance or in the use of the travois, which consists of a frame having shafts, two side poles and two crossbars, upon which a litter may be rested and partly suspended.

When in use a horse or mule is attached to the shafts and pulls the vehicle, the poles of which drag on the ground. One pole is slightly shorter than the other, in order that in passing obstacles the shock may be received successively by each, and the motion be equally distributed. The hospital or "red cross" ambulance, as it is termed in the army, on account of its having a red cross (the Geneva cross) painted on each side, is admirably adapted for the transport of disabled men. It is a four-wheeled vehicle, and is drawn by two horses. It provides transportation for eight men sitting or two recumbent on litters, or four sitting and one recumbent. It is fitted with removable seats, which, when not used as such, are hung two against each side, thus answering the purpose of cushions. Beneath the driver's seat is a box for the medical and surgical chests, and under the body are two water tanks. To the average person who may witness a drill of the hospital corps the work performed by the men may seem easy, but such is not the case. It is no doubt the perfect way in which the duties are performed that gives this false impression, for practice has made them perfect. In the small matter of picking up a wounded man and placing him upon a litter much practice is necessary in order that the wounded man may be given as little pain as possible. To the injured man the slightest movement may cause excruciating pain.

The chief aim, then, in carrying him, whether by litter, over the back, upon a seat of two hands or by ambulance, is to do so with gentleness and care, and to accomplish these results constant instructions and frequent drills are necessary.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

CARRYING A LOADED LITTER UPSTAIRS.

LOADING AMBULANCE.

THE PATIENT LIFTED.

PATIENT ACROSS BACK.

THE TRAVOIS.

TWO-HANDED SEAT.

Day and Night.

The exact time at which darkness gives place to dawn has been legally determined in Philadelphia. A young woman was knocked down by a locomotive while walking over a crossing at half past 6 o'clock in the morning and seriously injured. The engine did not display a light, nor did it signal with whistle or bell. The company, when sued for damages, claimed that it was not negligent, because at that hour dawn was breaking and no light was needed, and the entire case rested on whether or not it was daylight when the accident occurred. The sun rose on the day of the accident at 6:54 o'clock. Several astronomers and other experts testified that half an hour before sunrise it is as dark as at any time of night. From that time until sunrise light comes so slowly that the point of half light is reached only seven minutes before sunrise. During the last seven minutes before dawn light comes very rapidly until the full day breaks. The plaintiff's lawyer claimed, therefore, that at the time of the accident, twenty-four minutes before sunrise, it was pitch dark. The jury rendered a verdict of $20,000 in her favor.

Whistler's Advice.

Once Rossetti asked Whistler how he liked a sketch he had made for a picture. "It has good points," was the answer; "go ahead with it." A few weeks later he was asked about the picture. "Doing famously," said Rossetti; "I've ordered a stunning frame for it." Some time later Mr. Whistler saw the canvas, framed, but still virgin of paint-brush or paint. "You've done nothing to it," said Mr. Whistler. "No," replied Rossetti, "but I've written a sonnet on the subject, if you would care to hear it." When the recitation was over, Mr. Whistler said: "Rossetti, take out the canvas and put the sonnet in the frame."

PIPER HEIDSIECK PLUG TOBACCO
CHAMPAGNE FLAVOR

Consumers of chewing tobacco who are willing to pay a little more than the price charged for the ordinary trade tobaccos, will find this brand superior to all others.
BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

DR. MOTT'S PENNYROYAL PILLS

The only safe, sure and reliable Female Pill ever offered to Ladies, especially recommended to married Ladies. Beware of pills put up in tin boxes as they are dangerous. Ask for DR. MOTT'S PENNYROYAL PILLS and take no other. Send for circular. Price $1.00 per box, 6 boxes for $5.00.
DR. MOTT'S CHEMICAL CO., Cleveland, Ohio.
Fisher & Son, Auburn. Ind.

FITS!
Brace Up! Don't Lose Courage!!
Your disease is not incurable because your Physician has given you up, and you have not received any benefit from the medicine you have tried, is not any reason you cannot be cured. We can positively cure all kinds of Fits, Epileptic, Convulsion or Spasmodic. WE GUARANTEE A POSITIVE AND PERMANENT CURE IN ALL CASES. We have cured thousands, many cases of long standing, and given up by Doctors as incurable. In our "Allen's Fits Cure" you will find a medicine that has never failed to effect a speedy cure. We back our guarantee with an offer of $100 to any person we cannot cure. Highest Bank references furnished on application.
1 Qt. Bottle, $3.00. 2 Qt. $5.00.
ALLEN MEDICAL CO.,
Washington & Water Sts., BOSTON, MASS.

LADIES
Suffering from Retarded, Suppressed or Painful Menstruation and all irregularities of like nature, will find our FAMALE PILLS an infallible cure. They are entirely safe and can always be relied upon for speedy relief. We have yet to hear of a case where they have failed to produce the desired result. A box should be kept on hand at all times to provide for emergencies. Correspondence Confidential.
By mail, with full directions, securely sealed, $2.00 per box.
ALLEN MEDICAL CO.,
Washington & Water Sts., BOSTON, MASS.

Every Woman
Sometimes needs a reliable monthly regulating medicine.
Dr. PEAL'S PENNYROYAL PILLS,
Are prompt, safe and certain in result. The genuine (Dr. Peal's) never disappoint. Sent anywhere $1.00. Peal Medicine Co., Cleveland, O.
Sold by Fischler & Son., Auburn.

General or local Agents. $75 a week. Exclusive territory. The Rapid Dish Washer. Washes all the dishes for a family in one minute. Washes, rinses and dries them without wetting the hands. You push the button, the machine does the rest. Bright, polished dishes, and cheerful wives. No scalded fingers, mottled hands or clothing No broken dishes, no mess. Cheap durable, warranted. Circulars free
W. P. HARRISON & CO., Cort St. 12, Columbus, O

Sex-ine Pills

RESTORE LOST VIGOR
Before and After Using.
New discovery. Will brace you up in a week. Sold with a WRITTEN GUARANTEE to Cure Nervous Debility, Loss of Sexual Power in either sex, Involuntary Emissions from any cause. If neglected, such troubles lead to consumption or insanity. $1.00 per box by mail, 6 boxes for $5.00. With every $5 order we give a written guarantee to cure or refund the money. Address PEAL MEDICINE CO., Cleveland, Ohio.
Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

5,000 ACRES CENTRAL MICHIGAN FARMS
Near Saginaw and Bay City. Soil clay loam, hardwood timber and free from swamps. Railway facilities; schools and markets adjacent. Price, $6 to $8 per acre, on easy payments. Satisfaction assured. Practical farmers and parents who wish to give their sons a start in life, can find No Better Land in Michigan. Maps and Circulars free. JACOB SCHWARTZ or WM. M. TENNANT, SAGINAW, E. S., MICH.

RESTORED MANHOOD.
DR. MOTT'S NERVERINE PILLS

BEFORE AND AFTER USING.
The great remedy for nervous prostration and all nervous diseases of the generative organs of either sex, such as Nervous Prostration, Failing or Lost Manhood, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Youthful Errors, Mental Worry, excessive use of Tobacco or Opium, which lead to Consumption and Insanity. With every $5 order we give a written guarantee to cure or refund the money. Sold at $1.00 per box, 6 boxes for $5.00. DR. MOTT'S CHEMICAL COMPANY, Cleveland, Ohio.
Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

PATENTS
Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES.
OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.
Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.
A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,
C. A. SNOW & CO.
OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

SOME SEASONABLE
BARGAINS
GOING
AT COST.

Having decided to quit handling Ladies' and Childrens' Shoes and Slippers, we have determined to close out stock on hand at cost, thus affording you an opportunity to save from 50c. to 1.25 on every pair of shoes of this description.

DONT WAIT,
BUT COME
AT ONCE

As they are going out rapidly A word to the wise is sufficient. Want of space will not permit us to quote these extraordinary prices, but give us a call and we will convince you of the truth of this statement.

GLOBE
Cothing and Shoe Company
Gandy Block, North side of Square
AUBURN, IND.

STILL WE LEAD With a nice line of Watches, Clocks, Jewelry Silverware, Spectacles, Gold Pins, Musical Instruments, etc. All kinds of Machine Needles Best Oil,

SPECIAL and PERSONAL attention given to REPAIRING by Mr. Yesbera.

BICYCLES promptly Repaired by W. C. Champion.

SEWING MACHINES put in first-class order by R. A. York

First goods and first-class workmen you will find at

F. J. YESBERA'S
Jewelry Store, Auburn Ind

R. SHULL'S
CASH SHOE STORE
Is now located in the
KIBLINGER BUILDING
where a
Large Line
OF
BOOTS AND SHOES
May be Found.

THE AUBURN COURIER

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY.

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, post-office as second-class matter.

THURSDAY,.....APRIL 25, 1895.

NEW YORK CITY has a debt of its own of 100 millions. Chicago has 18 millions.

BRICK POMEROY, once a noted publisher and author has lost all his property in various speculations.

BRECKENRIDGE, of fragrant memory will run for the U. S. Senate, to spite Blackburn who helped to defeat him for congress.

THE state attorney-general decide that county treasurers cannot draw salary till the new salary act goes into effict some time this summer.

WOOD BENSON, who ran the first locomotive ever used in this country, the "John Bull," is still living at 80. He is in the workhouse on Blackwell's Island, near New York City.

THE TIMES-HERALD has been sold again, as the owner, James. W. Scott, died. H. H. Kohlsaat gets it, and it will no longer be a democratic paper, but be independent, though favoring "protection."

THE GOULDS, refuse to pay taxes on property to the authorities of New York City. They live outside, in the suburbs, and claim that they pay their taxes there. Like so many wealty men, they find it pays to get out of paying tax anywhere.

MRS PARNELL, mother of the late Charles Stewart Parnell, the Irish leader, was knocked down and robbed last week at her home at Bordentown, N. J. She is 80, and is a daughter of Com. Stewart a famous U. S. naval commander of the war of 1812.

CHURCH in SanFracisco, was found to contain the body of a murdered girl in the library on the day before Easter, and on Easter morning another was found in the belfry. It is the church where Rev. I. H. Kallock preached, at the time he murdered the editor of the Chroncile, some years ago. Kallock afterwards committed suicide.

A Notable Sale of Trotters.

At Fort Wayne, Indiana, on Wednesday and Thursday, April 24 and 25, the greatest lot of highly bred horses ever put up at public auction in Indiana will be sold by W. B. Bash and E. M. Powers, of Fort Wayne, at the Fort Wayne Driving Park.

Mr. Powers will sell his entire stud including the great young sire, Wayne Wilkes, 2:16, sire of Nidia, 2:13¼, and five other 2:30 performers. He will also sell all his brood mares and a large number of fast and welbred colts by Wayne Wilkes.

Mr. Power's recent removal to Kansas City makes this step imperative, and every animal he owns will be offered without reserve.

The consignment of Mr. W. B. Bash will comprise about thirty head, mostly the get of Strathmore 408. Among the lot will be Deronda, 2:27½ a full sister and brother, Strathso, 2:13; a Strathmore filly out of American Girl. 2:20½, and others equally well-bred.

There will be a number of high class roadsters and business horses among the offering.

A credit of nine months will be extended to responsible persons, giving note with good freehold security. 16-17

W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, proprietor of Demorest's Magazine, died a few days ago.

CHINA and Japan having kissed and made up the two nations might now, tell what they have been fighting about. But the result is all in favor of Japan. she comes out of the fight ahead in every way. She gets 100 millions in money and holds the important town and forts of Port Arthur, on the mainland, till the money is all paid. She also gets the island of Formosa, which is a very valuable accession.

U. S. OFFICERS have arrested a man and a woman at Chicago, for making bogus postage stamps. They have found the whole outfit of tools and a big lot of stamps that were ready for the market.

CLEANSE THE BLOOD.

Purify the System of Catarrhal Impurities and Cure is Certain.

Spring time is most favorable to the cure of Chronic Catarrh. Hundreds of letters are being received, testifying to extraordinary cures.

Wm. Mandel of Sleepy Eye, Minn., writes: "I have been troubled with chronic catarrh for thirty-five years and had tried nearly every catarrh cure known, until by accident I was advised by a friend to give Pe ru-na a trial. In one week from the time I took the first dose I began to feel like a new man. I kept on using it for some time and I am entirely cured. I have no symptoms of chronic catarrh whatever. I am 74 years of age and am sure Pe-ru-na is the best medicine I ever used and would not be without it in the house for anything."

The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company of Columbus, Ohio, are offering free, post-paid, two medical books, one on Catarrh and Catarrhal diseases, the other on Spring medicines and Spring diseases. These books contain the very latest and and most reliable information on these important subjecst.

For free book on sanser address Dr Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

CALL FOR COUNTY ORDERS.

All orders dated previous to Oct. 31, 1893 and up to No. 1856, series M., are called. Interest on same will stop April 27, 1895,

17-18 D. W. FAIR, Treasurer.

GETS $100,00 (

AN AUBURN MAN GETS A FORTUNE FROM ENGLAND.

Friday R. A. Christian received a letter from an attorney in England, bringing word that he had a fallen heir to a fortune, in the old country. His aunt Ann Longbotham in Yorkshire, England, had died, and in her will he receives £20,000 or $100,000. We rejoice at Mr. Christian's good fortune. He has been a citizen of Auburn now for about a year, and has made friends on all sides by his correct and gentlemanly ways in business and by his social qualities. Our people have shown their appreciation in various ways. He has been for some time president of the Athletic Club, of the Bicycle club, and was voted the gold headed cane at the recent band fair. He has been in America but three years, but has made his way to success from the first. When he came to Auburn, it was as general Superintendent of the "Prudential Life Insurance Company," and has been engaged in that work ever since. Now, of course, he will at once retire from this, and return to England and secure his legacy. He went to Fort Wayne Saturday to resign from the Insurance Company, and on Saturday of this week starts for England.

BUTLER.

Our scourge of measles has nearly subsided.

Jerry Barber is repairing and improving the old Maze place on East North street. Its old-time acquaintances will hardly recognize it.

I. C. Fralich of Chicago, spent a few days here, last week.

M. F. Campbell, who recently had an operation performed at Hope Hospital in Ft. Wayne, removing a tumor from his neck, is improving.

Rev. Mr. Disbro and family, consisting of his wife, two grown daughters and a son, have settled in their new quarters. We hope for him a period of great usefulness among our people. So far, he has attracted large audiences. He is pastor of the M. E. church.

Orla I. Campbell has severed his connection with the Wabash. He is now in Montana.

Butler wheelmen to the number twenty-six, pushed out of town Sunday morning, in single file, bound for Waterloo The procession was lead by Robert Leffin, a recently converted devotee to this delightful and invigorating exercise. The sight was a grand one and people crowded out in numbers to see it.

The rain Sunday, was an acceptable blessing. Green fields evidence the appearance of spring.

H. N. Coffinberry of Garrett, and Mr. McClain of Peru, spent Sunday with friends.

CORUNNA,

Mrs. Wm. Murphy is visiting her parents in Findlay, Ohio.

Our hardware merchant is still reaching out further for trade. He captured a customer or two who live in Auburn.

W. H. Kuhn, of Auburn, paid ye scribe a short visit last week.

Mrs. Henry Quince and her daughter, Mrs. Charley Mercer, are in Ohio in response to a telegram that Mrs. Q.'s mother was dangerously ill.

Mrs. Dr. Snyder is sick with the measles.

Rev. Spekine organized an Epworth League at the M. E. church, last Monday evening.

Mrs. Dr. Bowen, who has been down for several weeks with typhoid fever, is convalescing.

Misses Jessie Rudolph, Caddie Collier and Laura Graham, and Master Frank Weimer, all passed successfully the township examination. Frank is only thirteen years of age, and is said to be the youngest who has ever passed in the county.

The members of the M. E. church surprised Rev. and Mrs. Sumwalt last Tuesday evening, by coming in on them unexpectedly, and bringing a donation of handsome presents and a good supply of the necessities of life.

WATERLOO.
LAST WEEK.

The W. C. T. U. state convention was held in Waterton, April 10 11-12 and was exceedingly interesting. Mrs. Mary Hadley, state superintendent, was present, also Mrs. Beck, Mrs. Kish, of Warsaw, Mrs. Jones, of Garrett, Bowers of Kendallville, Miss McConnell, of Angola, Miss Keeran, of Auburn, besides many more whose names or where from your correspondent did not learn.

Mrs. Juliette Dickinson, of this place, attended the Ladies' Missionary convention at Goshen, as delegate.

The store room in the building recently purchased by the Odd Fellows, is at present occupied by a firm with a stock of tin ware, hosiery and other articles.

Mrs. Kish, of Warsaw, preached in the Presbyterian church, Sunday morning, to a good audience, on "Intemperance, Its Evils, etc." She was listened to with close attention, and very many were moved to tears, and they were not all ladies, either.

Sunday evening Mrs. Kish occupied the Methodist church. She spoke, as before, to an interested audience. Mrs. Kish has been engaged in this work twenty-three years, has had a varied experience, and so much has come under her own observation that she has a large store to draw from. The lady made many friends while here.

The measles has been for some time and is now prevailing in Waterloo. Getz, the tinner, is laid up with it, and many children and not a few adults. Between boils, rheumatism, fevers, grippe and measles, every one took their turn with something this winter and spring.

THE TIME HAS ARRIVED

When you must of a necessity change your under clothing as well as your outer garments, and while you are making the change, listen while we talk about

Spring and Summer Underwear

We have it and want to make a good deal of noise about our Grey Mixture French Balbriggans at $1 a suit. Tan Australian Lamb's Wool at $2.75. Our Glastenbury Silk finish Health Underwear at $4 a suit is up to the standard. Come to us for anything in this line.

G. H. Yesbera.
The Nobby Gents' Furnisher.

RUPTURE
ured. The truss discardeer. consultation free.

Of Men, Women and Children permanently cured in 30 days, without pain or slightest inconvenience by the Fidelity Method. Every case guaranteed. Patient need not pay a dollar until completely Over 8,000 cases cured in the last five years.

J. B. CASEBEER, M. D.
Their authorized physician in Indiana and who will visit Auburn in April. Correspondence Solicited, Address
14 East Ohio Street, INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

A prospect of another dry goods store in a very few weeks.

Monday and Tuesday evenings a lecture was given in the U. B. church, an exposure made of the tricks of the so-called spiritualists. On the second evening a seance was held.

Mr. Frank Long, of Los Angeles, has been in town for a few days. He is wide awake, has improved in many ways in the years of his absence, and his father has reason to be proud of his tall, fine-looking and well-appearing son. Your correspondent had a very pleasant call from the gentleman.

Mrs. Gill and also the firm of Luce & DeLong had an Easter exhibition of millinery Friday and Saturday, 12th and 13th, that even surpassed that of just two weeks ago. Both are doing well.

Mrs. Winslow was at Auburn Thursday, the eleventh.

Rev. Erlanger, pastor of the M. E. church, preached last Sunday his Easter sermon prepared for that day, but he kindly gave up the pulpit at that time to Mrs. Kish. The new minister has created a very favorable impression generally. He is a very pleasant speaker and we trust his work here may bring forth much fruit for the harvest.

WATERLOO.

Elmer Stamets moved his family to Wolcottville, Ind., this week.

Mrs. Frank Tuttle visited friends in town a few days.

Darwin Sonle has moved into his new home this spring.

Lucile Lock, of Decatur, came home with her aut Cora for a short visit with her grandparents.

Lottie Zwilling is having a week's vacation.

Hez. Leas, Mrs. Dan. Leas and Mrs. Marion Bemenderfer went to Indianapolis Tuesday to attend the Eastern Star.

Will Dickinson, wife and son, Fred, spent Sunday with S. Z. Dickinson's family.

Allie Young, of Angola, is the guest of Waterloo friends.

Will Patterson's residence was entered by burglars Monday night. They got $4 in money but nothing more.

THE LADIES' HOME JOURNAL.

Albert Lynch, whose work is becoming so much more generally known to Americans through his drawings in Scribner's Magazine and his cover designs for The Ladies' Home Journal, is a Peruvian by berth, but of English parentage. He is only thirty-three years of age, and of extremely retiring disposition. He is unmarried and lives in Paris. The young artist commands the highest prices for his work, his smallest water-color paintings readily selling for $600 to $900 each. In 1893 he received the Salon's first prize for his beautiful panel of "Spring," showing a single figure. This picture won the admiration of the French art critics and the public to such an unusual degree that the painting was sold for a fabulous sum to a private Paris buyer. Recently The Ladies' Home Journal acquired all publication rights to this painting, and it will serve as one of the cover designs for that magazine. The next issue of the Journal will also have a design by Lynch, portraying his conception of a woman's ideal costume. A succession of other cover designs by Lynch will follow these two.

Rev. F. W. Hart, of the Baptist church, has moved into H. E. Coe's property on South Van Buren street.

BIG DAMAGES.

CHARLES HENTHORNE GETS $30,000 FOR THE LOSS OF BOTH LEGS.

He was Maimed in the B. & O. Wreck In Jackson Township, Sunday, Oct, 16, 1892.

Our people will remember the wrecking of two freights on the B. & O., east of Auburn on Sunday, Oct. 16, 1892, a full account of which was given in the WEELLY COURIER of the 20th. The trains met in a dense fog, in the morning, and the engines were crushed together in such a way that one man, the head brakeman, who happened to be in the cab, was crushed between the engine and the tender. He could not be got out, and to save his life, Dr. Thompson, of Garrett, sawed off both legs to set him free. He was taken out, but the mangled limbs remained wedged in between the broken wood and iron for several hours after. His name was Henthorne and he was taken to Garrett and the limbs properly amputated and dressed, and strange to say he recovered. But all who saw him in that terrible condition, fast in the wreck, with both legs crushed, and the almost certainty of a horrible death staring him in the face, will recall his wonderful nerve and coolness, as he dictated a hopeful letter to his wife. His endurance was wonderful, and he deserved all our sympathy. We just learn that his case against the road has gone in his favor. We copy the following which we find in the Avilla News:

One of the heaviest verdicts ever rendered against a railroad company for personal injuries was that just given to Charles Henthorne against the B. & O., by a jury in the United States court at Cleveland. Mr. Henthorne sued for $100,000 and received $30,000. It will be recalled that Henthorne was horribly mangled in a wreck just east of Auburn a few years ago. The late John Harrison, formerly of Avilla, was engineer of the train that failed to obey orders, and Harrison was blamed for the wreck. After the collision Henthorne was pinned between the tender and engine and before he was removed both legs were cut off below the knee. He was burned and scalded by fire and steam, his left arm was held fast, broken and crushed and the hand almost servered from his arm. At the trial Brakeman Henthorne established the fact that Harrison was intoxicated at the time of the wreck, and that the railroad company was needlessly slow in getting its wreck train to the scene, leaving Henthorne pinioned between the engine and tender as before stated. Harrison, it will be remembered committed suicide in Iowa a year or two ago by taking morphine.

Getting Better.

An exchange says: Marshall Field, the head of the big Chicago dry goods firm, said after a tour in the South, that business was improving all along the line. "A very-marked improving in our trade has set in," said Mr. Field, "and we have reason to believe that it will continue to improve. The new tariff is all right. Business is better because there is an increased demand for goods, reduced in values by the new tariff schedules. The manufacturers will not suffer. They have sufficent protection under the new law."

To Rent: Rear business room in Kiblinger building, newly painted and papered W. C. Hartman.

I. O. BUCHTEL, Homoeopathic
Physician and Surgeon.

Special attention given to chronic and obscure cases and catarrhal diseases of the nose, throat and lungs; also to diseases peculiar to women and children.

Office and residence over Smith & Madden's marble works, Auburn, Ind. Office apart from residence and private. All calls attended to promptly, night or day.

Albert Robbins, Pres. J. C. Henry, V. P.

FARMERS BANK.

Capital Stock.--
--$45,000.00.

—UNDER STATE SUPERVISION.—

Transacts a general banking business. Interest paid on time deposits by agreement. Collections receive careful attention. Business solicited.

A. C. ROBBINS, Cashier.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE

To all lands in DeKalb County, Indiana, at reasonable rates. I have the only set of Abstract Books in the County. Also Mortgages, Deeds and Notary Public Work of all kinds promptly attended to.

Inquire at Auditor or Surveyor's office, Auburn, or leave orders at Postoffice, Garrett.

J. P. Crimmins.
Abstractor and Notary Public.

MEN WANTED

To take orders. Instruction and outfit free. Salary or commission as preferred. Splendid chance for reliable men. Experience not necessary. Write for terms and full particulars.

The R. G. CHASE COMPANY, Nurserymen. Geneva, N. Y.

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE.

Notice is hereby given, that I, Wm. Seeley Administrator of the estate of John Nichols deceased, will offer for sale at public auction, to the highest bidder on,

Saturday, May 11, 1895,

at the late residence of the decedent in Newville township, DeKalb, Indiana, the following described personal property, belonging to the estate of said decedent, to-wit:

2 head of work horses, 1 cow 7 years old, 1 yearling steer, 1 calf 3 months old, 1 brood sow and 8 pigs, 19 head of shoats, 31 head of sheep, 1 Road wagon 1 farm wagon, 1 set double harness 1 plow, 1 drag, 1 wheel cultivator, 1 sulky hay rake, 1 corn plow, 1 hay rake, 1 swelled body sleigh, 1 mowing machine, 1 fanning mill, house hold goods, log chains, double trees and whiffl trees, buggy fills and buggy pole, neck-yoke, hay in the barn, potatoes, 1 parlor stove and other articles.

TERMS OF SALE.

For all amounts not exceeding five dollars cash in hand. For amounts of five dollars and upwards, a credit of nine (9) months will be given.

Note, bearing six per cent interest after maturity, with approved security, and waiving Valuation and Appraisement Laws, will be required.

WILLIAM SEELEY. Administrator.

Baxter and Brown Attorneys.

PROBATE CAUSE NO. 4038.

State of Indiana, DeKalb County } ss:

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, May Term. 1895. Henry Wartenslaben, Louisa Fitzpatrick and M. J. Fitzpatrick, husband of Louisa Fitzpatrick, non-residents of the state of Indiana, and Woman's Home Mission Society, incorporated under the laws of the state of Illinois; Woman's Baptist Foreign Missionary Society of the West, incorporated under the laws of the state of Illinois, foreign corporations, are hereby notified that Orin C. Clark, as executor of the will of Adelbert Wartenslaben, deceased, has filed in the Circuit Court of DeKalb county, Indiana, a petition making them defendants thereto, and prayetherein for an order and decree of said Court anthorizing the sale of certain real estate belonging to the estate of said decedent and in said petition described, to make assets for the payment of the debts and liabilities of said estate; and that said petition, so filed and which is now pendine, is set for hearing in said Circuit Court at the court house in Auburn, Indiana, on the 10th day of June, 1895.

Witness, the Clerk and Seal of said Court, this 27th day of March 1895.

[SEAL.] DANIEL D. MOODY, Clerk DeKalb Circuit Court.

Baxter & Brown, Attorneys.

The front rooms on the second floor of the Kiblinger Block have been newly painted and papered and are to rent for offices purposes. W. C. Hartman.

SPRING 1895. SUMMER.

Complete New — A Cash — Business,

BISHOP & LACKEY

Present their compliments to the ladies of DeKalb County an respectfully announce

That they will continue their

GRAND MILLINERY SALE

This week

We have bought a large Manufacturer's Sample Line of

LADIES' WRAPS,

And are selling them at wholesale prices.

We show the largeet line of

CARPETS and CURTAINS

In DeKalb county, at Lowest Prices

CASH SALES Only will be made but the advantage is with the public, as the lowest possible margin consistent with quality is added to the original cost.

Bishop & Lackey.

You leave it to YOURSELF

To Purchase the

BEST GOODS

That are offered for the

LEAST MONEY

And to do this you should come to

Cowan Sisters'

and see the

New— SUMMER GOODS Just in

NOW IS YOUR

To call upon us and see our new line of Gold and Silver-ware, hand painted and fancy China, Banquet and Piano Lamps, Elegant Onyx Stands and Musical Instruments.

D. A. HODGE, Jeweler.

KIBLINGER BUILDING.

FINE REPAIRING NEW HOME SEWING MACHINE

FLOWER POTS and JARDINIERS

We have just received some new Flower Pots and Jardiniers at prices

FROM 5C. UP

Don't you want something of this kind???

OLDS BROS.

.....North of Court House.....

Wednesday's Daily.

Wanted: Everybody to smoke Kessler & Bros. cigars.

The COURIER is prepared to furnish the latest and prettiest commencement programs. Call and look at the samples.

If you are crazy for something good in cigars try Kessler Bros. brands:

A Columbia City man has a snake skin that measures 6 ft. and 10 inches in length and 12 inches wide, with 9 rattles. What brand of whiskey do they use over there, anyway?

The Edgerton Earth of April 19 contained obituary notices of both the Austins, father and son, the latter being the editor of the paper. It is seldom that such a case is heard of.

Clerk Moody has a new book of marriage licenses, and our young people can now be accommodated to the extent of several thousands. Dell Myers was first. Who will be next.

The bastile now has four men in its hospitable bounds, Frank Derthick, Peggy Armstrong, Martin and Andrews, who stole the watch. Mrs. Jones stays in the rooms with the sheriff's family, and is not particularly confined, except at night.

All diseases of the air passages especially catarrah and chronic, Bronchitis, as well as first stages of consumption can be cured. I am treating these diseases with great success by the use of the latest and most improved medicines and instruments. Dr. W H. Nusbaum, Auburn, Ind. 42tf

Columbia City Commercial: Stenographer Henderson has to take the evidence in the case of Lewis Wright, deceased vs Chas. Pope as fast as it is read The case is one that was tried before before and then sent to the supreme court but was returned to be tried here and the attorneys are reading it to the jury.

Miss Grace Weamer has been suffering for some time from a felon. It has left her finger in such a condition that it was necessary to have the doctor take the nail off. This she intended having done to-day but last evening accidentally struck the finger against a chair and knocked it off. Saved the doctor bill was all.

INSURANCE AGENCY:—People desiring good insurance should remember that Geo. Lanning has an office at the Davis Harware store, and works some of the very best companies in the country. Good farm risks taken. Call on him. 32tf

If you wish your piano tuned leave orders at the store of Brown, Culbertson & Boland. Mr. A. J. Rogers, who has charge of their piano and organ department, is a practical piano tuner and will guarantee you satisfaction at reasonable prices.

For a Complete Base Ball Schednle.

Of all the games to be played by National Base Ball League for season of 1895, apply to A. J. Smith, G. P. & T. A. L. S & M. S. R'y., Cleveland, O., enclosing two-cent postage stamp. This schedule contains the dates, names of contesting clubs, places for scoring total runs, hits, errors and pitchers' names, together with tables of standing of clubs and averages for last season. 15-17

List of Patents.

Granted to Indiana Inventors this week. Reported by C. A. Snow & Co., Solicitors of American and Foreign Pattents, Opp. U. S. Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

F. P. Bailey, Indianapolis, Stamp-affixing machine. J. S. Cameron, Evansville, Gage for flouring-rolls, &c. M. Ducan, South Bend. Toilet powder bag H. M. Haldeman, Indianapolis, Ball-cock valve. W. A. Holly, South Bend, Hand-weeder, G. J. Hotchkiss, Evansville, Trap door for use in mines. J. W. Hough, Marion, Oil and gas separator. C. M. Kiler Indianapolis, Mail-bag catcher. W. L. Lightford. Indianapolis, Stamp-affixing machine. J. J. Moore, Thorntown, Traction-engine cab W. Powell, Roachdale, Fence-post. F. W. Robinson, Richmond, Straw-stacker. L T. Wilcox, South Bend, Oil-Stove.

Squander, and friends flock 'round you,
They leave when your money's gone;
Drink, and the world drinks with you,
See snakes, and you see 'em alone.
Kansas City Journal.

A VALUABLE FIND.

After years of study ahd labor there has at last been discovered a sure and never-failing remedy. It has been tested on patients who have despaired of ever being cured, and the results have been in every case, wonderful. Groff's Rheumatic Cure is unequaled as a positive remedy in all cases of Chronic and Acute Inflammatory Rheumatism, Gout, Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia, especially Ovarian Neuralgia, Dysmenorrhœa and all kindred affections. It is also a valuable Blood Purifier, being especially useful in Eczema, Psoriasis, Scrofula, all Glandular Enlargements and diseases of the Liver and Kidneys. It is absolutely free from all narcotics. Severe attacks are relieved in from one to three days. and a positive cure effected in from five to eighteen days. For sale by Druggists. Manufactured and sold by THE GROFF MEDICINE CO., Chicago, Ill. 17 tf

S. S. INSTITUTE.

The 65th Sunday School Institute of Richland township will be held at Maple Grove U. B. church, Saturday, April 27. A good program is arranged, and can be had by writing the president, H. M. Fretz at Sedan, or F. L. Britton, secretary, or M. J. Thomas, at Corunna.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

Monday's Daily.

Smoke the K. & B. ten-cent cigar.

Sealed book to men free, box 53, Toledo, O.

AUBURN Summer Normal will begin July 8.

THERE WILL be at least three instructors in the Auburn Summer Normal and each will be a specialist in the branches he teaches.

Write Box 53, Toledo, O., free book to men

ROOMS TO RENT:—Inquire of Wm. McIntyre at his residence on west Seventh street. The rooms are over Physicians Drugstore.

FOR SALE: A good house and barn in south part of town. Call at this office.

W. H. Kiblinger Co. have a few heating stoves, they did not close out with the stock, that can be bought at rare bargains. Also some plow repairs.

K. and B. is one and Bill Head is another. Mfg. by Kessler Bros.

See the news on inside pages.

Mrs S. J. Locke, of Waterloo, was in Auburn to-day.

Free sexual book to men, box 53, Toledo, O.

THE Eagle Manufacturing Co. at Auburn Junction are making all kinds of light and heavy casting.

NORMAL at Auburn.

Madden Bros., our popular marble dealers, are taking out some large monuments now, nearly every day.

Mrs. F. T. Zimmerman and daughter Georgia returned to-day from Angola where they spent Sunday with friends.

YOU can have most any article of iron or brass manufactured at the Junction Foundry.

Mrs. J. D. Leighty came up from St Joe to-day. She went down to Fort Wayne on the 3:10 train.

John Koons and family have moved here from Waterloo, and are at home in Mrs. Baird's property on south Van-Buren street. Our people will welcome them, as they are good citizens.

John Leasure and his wife, Dr. Lida Leasure, will come down from Angola to-morrow afternoon to attend the L. L. C. annual, at which she delivers a lecture. They will be guests of Dr. Vesta M. Swarts, who was Mrs. Leasure's preceptress in the study of medicine.

Our local campaign is not a very important one. Yet it has some of the earmarks of a regular campaign. As S. D. Hanna has been 3 years trustee in the Presbyterian church, the story that he is a rabid catholic will come to him in the nature of a surprise. Oh, yes, this is a campaign after all.

Friday's Daily:

C. P. Houser left to-day to resume his work "in the field," the writing of veterans' biographies, on which he has been engaged for some time. He goes to Delphi for a day or two, and expects to reach his home at Indianapolis Saturday evening.

The Butler Herald copies verbatim, but without credit, about half of an article written for and published in the COURIER, in which Auburn citizens are urged to form a board of trade. Justice compels us to admit, however, that the "Auburn" in our article is changed to "Butler" in theirs.

Fort Wayne capitalists are talking of running an electric line to Churubusco Blue Lake is quite a summer resort and is well stocked with fish.

One of James W. Sheffer's best tick customers was somewhat surprised at an early hour this morning upon calling for one of his genuine Jersey soup bones to see him measure off 3¾ yards of Clinton Andrew Potter's best three T sausage. The mistake was later explained by the arrival of a 14-lb aplicant for initiation into the A. O. F., at his house last night In honor of the initiation, James is wearing a bran new pair of linen pants and an 18x20 smile. Both mother and baby are doing well.

A recent trip into Allen county revealed some new phases of literature. Several farms had the well known "no hunting" notices posted up, and two at least read like this:

NO HUNTING ALOUD ON THESE PREMISES

From this, we infer they would not object to air guns or smokeless powder. Where is their county superintendent of the public schools? But what they lack over there in good spelling they make up in good gravel roads. In this regard we could learn of them.

Work on the Auburn Foundry building is going on at a lively rate. Fred Funk and George Steving are putting down the stone foundation and John Picker and Holly Lawrence are repairing the walls and as soon as the foundations are completed will commence work on the new walls. The molding room will be 60x80 feet and the old brick building will be used for the machine shops which will include all the machinery. An addition will also be built on the north of the old building which will be used for an office. The buildings when completed will be among the best in town and less apt to catch fire as they will be made up of brick and iron, with steel roofing.

Ashley Times:—Charles Austin, editor and proprietor of the Edgerton Earth, succumbed Tuesday morning to the power of that fatal disease, consumption, of which he has been confined to his bed for several months. Bro. Austin was a hustling young newspaper man, and his paper, the Earth was one of the brightest and most newsy papers of northwestern Ohio. He had a bright future before him as a newspaper man, and in his death we lose a valued and promising member and brother. This is the third of the Austin family to die of the same disease within the last month—father and two sons.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder
World's Fair Highest Medal and Diploma.

Thursday's Daily.

FOUND: Last Saturday, a sum of money. Any one describing same, may have it by calling at the Family Grocery and paying for this notice.

Those who are to bring us wood on subscription can deliver it to us at any time now.

Book free despondent men, box 53, Toledo, O

"Coin's Financial School," the greatest book of the age, converting thousands of gold bugs into free silver men. For sale at the Glazier News Stand, 25 cents per copy.

CUSTOMERS, waiting to buy properties in town ranging in price from $400 to $1,000 come quick. Rickel & Sprott

Dr. Sheffer, of St. Joe, was here to-day, It was a meeting of the pension board we believe.

Mrs. Blanche DeLong and Miss Ida Stafford are spending a week with friends in St. Joe.

Free book to weak men, box 53, Toledo, O

Now is your time to buy a good second hand binder. Brown, Culbertson & Boland have several that they will sell very cheap.

Mrs. Daisy Starr of Fort Wayne, is spending a few days with Mrs. J. W Baxter. She and Mrs. Baxter went up to Waterloo to-day to call on friends.

Herman Kessler's little child has been very sick for some time. Dr. Buchtel performed an operation on it to day, that it is hoped will give the little sufferer relief and health.

R. McDougall and family are back from the west and for the present are stopping with Al. Robbins. They will reside in the Mrs. M. Houston property.

It will interest our church people to hear that among the twenty-two persons who united with the First Presbyterian church at Fort Wayne last Sunday, were Pearl Kelley and Hattie Dills, both students at the Westminister Seminary. All were young people except one.

Geo. Lanning is now assisting Charlie Jones in the store, and will be there for a few weeks, probably. Those who have business with him, will find him there instead of Mr. Husselman's office, where he has been for a time.

The fishing season seems to be so quiet that even the fish har has become modest. No fish over five feet long has been reported so far and it was found in the creek instead of traveling like the fish har's favorite game, across the fields on a bicycle.

THE GERMAN BAPITST BRETHREN Will hold their annual meeting at Decatur, Ill., the latter part of May. Everything has been arranged, and work on the buildings will begin in a few days. The Wabash R. R. is the only line running trains direct to the grounds.

Wm. Seeley has been appointed administrator of the estate of the late John Nichols, of Newville township. He has had a great deal of experience in this kind of business, and has always been careful and painstaking, Mr. Nichols was a brother of Mrs. Swineford and Mrs. Forkner.

Mrs. Julia E. Hodge and her daughter Julia, returned this afternoon on the south bound Lake Shore train. Miss Julia will remain over Sunday, and then return to her studies at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. Mrs. Hodge has been staying with her there for several weeks.

One of the latest postage fads, among the girls at least, is the use of two one-cent stamps instead of one two-center. One of the stamps is put on the proper place, the upper right hand corner of the face, and the other is put where the flaps of the envelope cross on the back when sealed. It gives the government the right number of cents, but the postmaster has to work harder to get both stamps canceled.

John B. Ketchman, who has bough the Frank Groscup place west of town, was here to day in company with his brother-in-law, J. E. Dillgard, who hyes between here and Waterloo. Mr. Ketcham's household goods are on the way, and he will soon be located in his new home. We believe he will be a valuable citizen. He is well pleased with Auburn.

Churubusco Truth:—WANTED; A friend; one who will recognize me when I am compelled to wear patched pants; who will take my hand as I am sliding down hill instead of giving me a kick to hasten my decent; who will lend me a dollar without two dollars security; who will come to me when I'm sick, who will pull off his coat and fight for me when the odds are two to one against me; one who will talk of me behind my back as he talks to my face.

Monday's Daily

Will Coffinberry and Miss Emma Curie, of Garrett, were here Sunday.

A device has been patented at Columbus, Ind., by which stream whistles are to be sounded by electricity. From any given point all the steam whistles in the United States can be sounded simultaneously. The object is for sounding the whistles on correct time.

S. B. McLain, of Peru, spent Sunday here, guests of J. A. McIntyre and wife. They are Mrs. M's parents. Mr. McLain is a passenger engineer on the Wabash and runs through this place.

Tuesday's Daily.

Give the county commissioners credit for saving $2,346 on the bridge letting. They did this by refusing all bids at the first letting, for this time they get the bridges that much cheaper.

Rev. J. A. Krum, who has been in Kansas and Oklahoma a year and a half, has returned. He traveled a circuit there. He staid at John Pyle's over Sunday.

Four car loads of material for the new hoop factory at the Junction arrived yesterday. The woodwork for the building lisal framed and ready to put up.

Wm. Tresce, of Cedarville, was here over Sunday, visiting the family of his brother-in-law, L. Spitler.

Saturday's Daily:

Daniel Blacher, of Sedan, made the COURIER a nice call to-day. He is one o our best posted readers.

Mrs. Baird went up to Angola on the 12:29 Lake Shore to-day where she will spend a few days with friends.

Charlie McDonald, of the Ligonier Banner, came in this morning. We suppose he has some business matter here to call him to Auburn.

The latest puzzle we have seen is the one about buying the lead pencils. A man sends his boy out to buy twenty pencils for 20 cents. Some were to cost 4 cents apiece, some 2 for a cent, and some 4 for a cent How many of each kind does he get.

Angola Herald:—John W. Baxter, Esq., of Auburn, has been in attendance at court here this week. He is one of the prosecuting attorneys in the Northam-Heudry suit; which will probably be heard in this term.

Several of our exchanges are still copying that blood curdling train robbery at Garrett. Did they stop and figure up the possibility of a score of men fighting half an hour in a car, and no one hurt. The papers over this way had a correct account of the attempt to rob one man, and even that failed. But this does not seem to have been copied or even noticed.

Many DeKalb folks will remember D. S. Segner, a young man who was brought up at Waterloo, and afterwards went into the employ of the railroads as a telegraph operator. We have just received a letter from him. He has for some years been agent at Sherrodsville, Ohio. Now he has just been given the entire charge at Somerdale, in Tuscarawas county. This is a station of the Wheeling & Lake Erie road, and he has charge of the agency and yards, and what is more to the point, gets $70 a month. Oh yes, the DeKalb boy manages to winter through, and we are glad to hear good news from them.

New Uniforms.

Capt. A. L. Kuhlman received blanks to-day to take the measurments for new uniforms for the Auburn Rifles. So on next Friday evening the measurements will be taken and ere long our militiamen will came out wearing the new clothing. The company has made a remarkable record in the past and the future promises to equal it.

BURGLARS

Some time Sunday, Alva Brandon's house was entered, and some valuables taken. He and his wife had gone to Robert Reed's, leaving home about 10 a. m. On returning about 5 p. m. they discovered some one had been in the house. The door was locked just as they had left it, but the beds were thrown about as if they had been in search for money. Mrs. Brandon's pocket book with about $1 cash was missing and a valuable revolver belonging to Mr. Brandon, was also taken. The thief had evidently a notion to return some day, as he plugged the hole in the window frame, into which the window lock pushed to lock the window. This would leave it so he could raise the window and get in when he wanted to. There is no clue, unless it may be a letter that the thief evidently tore up. A part was found some distance away, and a part near the house, while the envelope was in the yard. The address was torn out of the envelope, but the letter could be pieced together again. It was on a letter head of the Ross-Sapples paving company of Saginaw, E. S. Mich., but was mailed at Temple, where the company had a mill. It was sent to the Boody House, Toledo, to a name like "Jakey Dewitt," as near as we could make out, for it was badly written, and signed "Harry." Mr. Brandon will keep this letter, and it may some time be of value. The thief evidently had keys that would let him in at the door.

LIST OF PATENTS

Granted to Indiana inventors this week. Reported to C. A. Snow & Co., Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents, opp. U. S. Patent Office, Washington, D. C.:

M. B. Boudinot, Vincennes, wagon; F. C. Cleaver, Terre Haute, plug valve; T. W. Cooper, Big Cabin. extensible scaffold; P. G. Decker, Anderson, means for separating gas and water or gas and oil; A. R. Hoy, Indianapolis, valve lock; W. A. Scott, Evansville, gig-saddle; C. N. Teeter, Muncie, railway velocipede; M. Wanner, Yorktown, process of and apparatus for refrigeration; J. J. Wood, Fort Wayne, electric switch.

CHICAGO will have a new democratic paper to take the place of the Times-Herald. It will be called "The Inquirer" and will follow the party on the money question, no matter whether it be free silver or not.

The following persons have been licensed to marry: Charles Grill and Mary Houk, George J. Yendreley and Rose Girardot, Frank Burns and Katharine Stoudecker, Almis Fry and Clara Ball.

Awarded
Highest Honors—World's Fair,
DR.
PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER
MOST PERFECT MADE.
A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.
40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

LOOK HERE.

We have a little story to tell you about economy. Buy where you can get best values of goods for the money.

LOOK AT PRICES!

27 inch, double fold plaids and novelties 15c. per yard.
36 inch ½ wool cashmere for 20c pr yd
36 inch all wool cashmere for 35c " "
36 " " " albatross " 35c " "
46 " " " serges " 50c " "
46 " " " henrietts, 60a75c " "
30 " canvas back duck suiting at 12½c per yard.
30 inch sateens, new line, 12½c per yd
30 inch plain and fancy percales, 10c per yard.
New ginghams, 5, 8, 10 and 12½c per yard.
L L sheeting muslins, 4c per yard.
The Bibb Carpet warp on spools. By using theis warp there is no cost for spooling. No waste by tangled skeins. Price 20 cents per pound.
Gents' white and fancy Percales and Dermet Shirts, Underwear, ½ Hose Suspenders, Overalls' Cottonade pants.
Neckties, New Styles, Latest Novelties

Larger Lines - Better Values,
LOWER PRICES.

M. JONES & SON

Wanted.
Good person to represent us.
QUAKER LIFE INSURANCE CO,
Elkhart, Ind.

How to Grasp a Fortune.
May not be easy, but a renewal of health and strength may be had by taking Vitaline and Nervetone, the new remedy and certain specific for all nervous complaints, nervous depression, lassitude, loss of nerve and brain power, palpitation, headache, toothache, neuralgia, etc. The last three named cured in an hour's time. It will never disappoint. Avoid dangerous substitutes and imitations. Prepared only by the Hall Medicine Company, Toledo, Ohio. Ask your druggist, or it and take no other. 16 17

Money to Loan.
By F. L. Welsheimer. Best Building and Loan Association represented in Auburn. Money to loan in large or small sums on good security.

WANTED TO BUY: Dwelling property in Auburn, ranging in price from $350 to $800. Answer quick we have customers waiting. Rickel & Sprott.

Eggs for Hatching.
I will sell eggs from my pen of pure bred Golden Buff Cochins, Doolittle Strain, at 50c. per setting of 13. Call or address, H. V. SINCLAIR.

Brown, Culbertson & Boland have several good second hand binders at prices ranging from $15 to $50. Call and see them.

Notice of Sale of Real Estate.

Notice is hereby given, that I, Harrison Enzor, executor of the will of Stephen K. Enzor, deceased, will offer for sale at public auction, to the highest bidder, on Saturday, May 11, 1895, at 10 o'clock, a. m., at the door of the court house in Auburn, Indiana, for the purpose of paying debts, the following described real estate, belonging to the estate of said decedent to-wit:

The north half of the northeast quarter [¼] of the northeast quarter [¼] of section fourteen [14] and the north half [½] of the northwest quarter [¼] of the northwest quarter [¼] of section thirteen [13] all in township thirty-five [35] north, of range fourteen [14] east, in DeKalb county, state of Indiana.

TERMS OF SALE:

One-third cash, one-third in 9 months, and one-third in 12 months. Deferred payments to be evidenced by interest-bearing notes waiving relief and secured by mortgage upon the premises sold. HARRISON ENZOR, Executor.
Baxter & Brown, Attys.

Notice to Non-Residents.

State of Indiana, DeKalb County
In the Circuit Court, May Term, 1895

William H. McIntyre Administrator of the estate of William H. Kiblinger deceased vs Horace G. Kircher Nettie Kircher. } Notice

The plaintiff in the above cause having filed his complaint therein together with an affidavit that the defendants are not residents of the State of Indiana, and the cause of action alleged in the complaint is founded upon a contract in relation to real estate in this State, to-wit: to enforce a lien thereon by foreclosure of a mortgage and the appointment of a receiver.

Now therefore, the said defendants are hereby notified that unless they be and appear on the 23rd day of next (May) term of the DeKalb Circuit Court, to be held on the 3rd Monday of May A. D., 1895, at the Court House in Auburn, in said County and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in their absence.

In Witness whereof, I hereunto set my hand and affix the seal of said Court this 20th day of April 1895.

DANIEL D. MOODY, Clerk.
C. A. O. McClellan. Atty. for plf.

Notice of Final Settlement of Estate.

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested in the estate of Lewis Olinger, deceased, to appear in the DeKalb Circuit Court, held at Auburn, Indiana, on the 20th day of May, 1895, and show cause, if any, why my final settlement acounts with the estate of said decedent should not be approved; and said heirs and all others interested are notified to then and there make proof of heirship or claim and receive their distributive shares.

Witness my name this 24th day of April, 1895.
MARION F. FRANKS Executor
Baxter & Brown, Atty's.

Notice to Non-Residents

STATE OF INDIANA, DEKALB COUNTY, SS:
In the DeKalb Circuit Court, May term, 1895.

Cora Skutt is hereby notified that an action has been commenced against her in said Court, for divorce, by Oscar M. Skutt, and that the same will be heard and determined on the 17th day of June, 1895, being of the next term of said court, which commences May 20, 1895.

Witness, The Clerk of said Court this 23d day of April, 1895. DANIEL D. MOODY, Clerk.
W. H. Leas, Attorney.

Homeseekers' Excursion,

On April 30 the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad will sell 30-day Excursion Tickets to points in Virginia on the Harper's Ferry & Valley Branch south of and including Winchester, at rate of one fare for the round trip. Excursion Tickets will also be sold to points in the South and Southwest at a very low rates, good for return 20 days from date of sale.

For futher information, call on or address any B. & O. Ticket Agent, S. P. Kretzer, Land and Immigration Agent, Philadelphia, Pa., or L. S. Allen, Ass't Gen'l Pass'r Agent, Chicago, Ill.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder
World's Fair Highest Award.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

JAMES A. BARNS, - - PUBLISHER.

The new woman generally objects to being called an old one.

A "separable piano" is announced. A separable piano player would be better.

There is talk of making China a republic. Its first Presidential candidate will run on the laundry ticket.

Amelie Rives Chanler is at work on a poem of passion. She also has an attack of rheumatism. It is hard to tell which is the more excruciating.

After all the Harvard faculty is cute. By issuing an edict against foot-ball it prevents the Harvard students from getting so many thrashings from Yale.

Sixteen hundred Osage Indians have $8,000,000 to their credit in the United States Treasury, and interest amounting to $400,000 is paid them every year.

A New York contemporary "cannot understand how Henry Irving manages to retain his hold on the English theater-going public." It is something of a Miss-Terry.

A separable piano is the latest invention. What mankind wants is a piano that can be separated from the muscular young woman who plays "Sweet Marie" with all four feet.

If this entire country were as populous as Rhode Island its inhabitants would number 945,766,300. Yet Rhode Island is by no means crowded, and is growing at a respectable rate.

Apparently the Spaniards will have to make the fight of their lives in order to hang on to Cuba. The heavy re-enforcements they are sending to the island proves that they know this.

Li Hung Chang's cousin says that dignitary's yellow jacket is a joke. If he ever runs against the business end of the native American yellow jacket he'll appreciate the point sooner than the joke.

Christian scientists are protesting against physiology being taught in the public schools on the ground that there is no such thing as a material body. Now will they kindly explain why they eat and drink?

Lord Wolseley's book on Napoleon is confined to the last disastrous years in the active career of the Emperor, 1812-15. The author claims that Napoleon failed in the mission he set for himself and that he was even beaten at his own special game of war. More would be expected from Wolseley's book if the stupidest matter ever written about the American civil war were not from his pen.

The progress of newspapers in the South is one of the remarkable things in the history of the country since the war. In all of the leading cities of that section there are now quite as good papers as in Northern cities of corresponding size, and the number of papers in the smaller towns has been largely increased. There are 27 dailies and 280 weeklies in Georgia, 26 dailies and 228 weeklies in Kentucky, 20 dailies and 222 weeklies in Tennessee, and 52 dailies and 562 weeklies in Texas—all well-conducted and liberally patronized.

Actress Marie Burroughs seems to be making an earnest effort to introduce to public attention the "new divorce." She is to be commended for her frankness, at least. She gave out a statement to the press in which she says that she and her husband, Mr. Massen, agree perfectly; that she admires him sincerely; that she has great respect for him, likes him and wants his friendship. But she also wants a divorce. Miss Burroughs apparently holds that it would be highly absurd for a wife to "respect, admire and like" her own husband, and as she entertains these sentiments toward Mr. Massen she sees no other alternative than to ask for a legal separation. And perhaps this is best, after all. Otherwise those two young people might actually fall in love with each other and then the deuce would be to pay.

An opinion of considerable importance to the newspapers of the country has been handed down by Judge Endlich, of the Common Pleas Court of Berks County, Pa. The case was that of Deborah Shelly against John P. Dampman, proprietor of the Reading (Pa.) Herald. The newspaper was sustained by the judge in every point. The judge decided that in the publication of the article complained of the defendant was clearly within his rights as a journalist, and it having been shown that reasonable care and caution was exercised, he cannot be held accountable for an honest mistake. The principal rulings were as follows: An account of a criminal proceeding is matter proper for public information, and is a privileged communication. A mistake in a privileged communication, if it be a necessary part of the report of the occurrence and such a matter of detail as would usually be inserted in such a report, partakes of the privilege, though it may, in point of fact, be untrue. The presumption of malice where an incorrect statement has been made in a privileged communication, though the statement may reflect upon an individual, is rebutted by the fact that reasonable care was exercised in verifying the statement, and that there was reasonable and probable cause for believing it to be true. A newspaper publisher is not to be held to any stricter accountability in the conduct of his business than other persons engaged in business enterprises. The question of whether or not a communication is privileged is a question for the court and not for the jury. It is an absolute impossibility for newspapers in our day to do the work which the times and the people expect and demand, and at the same time to verify to a certainty every item and explore for possible falsity in what seems true. Certainly nothing more should be exacted from them in that line than is required from other individuals.

If the Emperor of Germany had signalized the beginning of his reign by treating Bismarck as well as he is now treating that distinguished personage, it would have been much better for him in every respect.

Only two circumstances tend to throw discredit on the published statement that Spain will send 100,000 troops to Cuba. One is that Spain hasn't the troops, the other that if she had them they are needed nearer home.

Since 1823 the Cubans have made five efforts to throw off the autocratic grip of Spain. The last insurrection lasted from 1868 to 1876, and Spain was compelled to send over 145,000 troops to suppress it. The official dispatches from Havana at that time, like those of to-day, represented that the rebellion was of no consequence.

The police of New York City are engaged in taking a census, and the returns will be tabulated by electric machines, which register the facts and figures by means of perforated cards, no writing being necessary. An annual census is now a part of the police work in a number of cities, and while the expense is small the information obtained is of great importance.

PERFECT SYMMETRY.

Why Italian Women Have Such Beautiful Forms.

The only women who have a truly regal pose are the Italian women whom financial stringency forces to carry great loads of wood from buildings in the process of erection or enormous heaps of clothing from the sweaters. As the human arm is not long enough to clasp the bundles they have to carry they have learned to utilize their heads for the work, and have thus acquired a carriage which no other class of women possesses. For one cannot balance twelve pounds of unsewed waistcoats upon the apex of the body unless the body is in absolute equilibrium, the neck and shoulders, the waist, hips and legs all in their correct positions.

THE ATTRACTIVE TYPE—RARELY SEEN.

On gala occasions, when kind-hearted builders allow the carrying away of old lumber in large quantities, the women frequently stagger along under eighty or ninety pounds of fire wood. Of course the heavy weights are not health-giving. The top of the head, though it may be hard and tough, is not adapted to bearing the burdens of a camel. The intense heat generated by heavy loads of woolen goods to be made up for the tailors is extremely unhealthy. The shape of the head is noticeably altered if the load bearing begins early in life. The top of the head is distinctly flatter than the normal type.

For the benefit of those women who would like to obtain the good results of such exercise, without its evil ones, the doctor recommends walking with about two pounds resting upon the head. The weight should be in such a shape that it will fall off unless the head is held correctly.

A Bit of Scandal.

This is a bit of genuine scandal. Everybody likes scandal. It is always such a comfort to find one's self a little better than one's neighbor. This bit of scandal is true, too. There is a young man now living in Chicago who used to live in Washington. He was engaged to a Washington girl, but rumors concerning her reached him out in Chicago. They said, these rumors, that she had gone out to supper after the theater, and looking on the wine when it was red, had become just a little boisterous.

Her immaculate fiance came to Washington. He did not say a word to her of the rumors which had filled his soul with horror, but he took her to the theater, and to supper afterward.

The widow Cliquot was the third party at the supper, and the girl, like every other woman on earth, likes champagne. Her sweetheart urged her to drink, assuring her it would do her no harm whatever. She drank. In fact, she conjugated the verb to drink in more than one tense. She became unmistakably intoxicated.

Then the gallant young man slipped her engagement ring off, bundled her into a carriage and took her home. She hasn't seen him since. Of course, he couldn't think of marrying that sort of a girl, you know.

It is things like that that keep one's belief in the innate chivalry of the modern gentleman from dying. We understand the man considers it a tremendous joke and you may be able to see where the laugh comes in. We are not.

Gloves in India.

In India it is only in the cold weather or in Presidency towns, where even the high hat may be sometimes seen, that gloves are tolerated in the daytime. For men to wear them in any other circumstances, except of course at a dance, would be a gross effeminacy. Even English ladies dispense with gloves during the hot weather, and accustom themselves to ride and drive without them. One reason for this unusual disregard of home fashions is the fact that leather gloves will not keep in the Indian climate. Ladies have to get their white dress gloves tinned in boxes like sardines, one pair at a time.

The women who attend six receptions a week must remember that there is no money that can buy a new liver.

HAS A POOR MEMORY

M'KINLEY NOW CONVENIENTLY FORGETS MANY THINGS.

Author of the High-Tariff Law Had the Honor of Helping to Provide for the Country the Panic of 1893—Other Evil Heritages.

Gov. McKinley's Fallacies.

In his speech at Hartford, Conn., Governor McKinley distorted well-known facts in his usual manner, but to an unusual extent. Pointing to the circumstances that in 1894, under the new tariff law, internal revenue receipts were $155,000,000, while customs receipts were but $131,000,000, he drew the moral that taxes are now laid more on our own people than formerly and less upon the imported goods of foreign countries. He omitted to call attention to the fact shown in recent official report that both internal and tariff taxes per capita were lighter in 1894 than under the McKinley tariff law. In 1890 and 1891 the per capita internal tax was $2.28; in 1892, $2.35, and in 1893, $2.41, whereas in 1894 the burden upon the people per capita for internal taxes was but $2.15. The Democratic law has accordingly benefited the people even in the species of tax which the Governor cites as a Democratic instrument of oppression.

As respects tariff taxes, the relief per capita was much greater. The burden of tariff taxes per capita in 1892, under the McKinley tariff, was $2.66, and in 1893 it was $2.97, while in 1894, under the Democratic tariff, it was but $1.90 per capita, showing that the people have been appreciably relieved of their burdens.

In another part of his speech Governor McKinley makes the astonishing and wholly untruthful statement that the Harrison administration in March, 1893, turned over to the Cleveland administration a surplus of $124,000,000. The fact is that there was no surplus of available cash turned over, apart from the gold reserve, and that was being so much diminished that Secretary Foster gave orders for the preparation of plates from which to print bonds to be sold for gold. What the Harrison administration really left to its successor was bankruptcy, caused by the unwise repeal of the revenue tax on sugar and the extravagant dependent pension act and other like reckless legislation. Besides this evil heritage Mr. McKinley had the honor of helping to provide for the country the panic of 1893, which was caused chiefly by the Sherman silver act, passed through the House under Mr. McKinley's leadership. He forgets these things conveniently now and promises the country a re-enactment of the McKinley tariff if his party succeeds in 1896. But the people have better memories.—Baltimore Sun.

Reed Is for Economy.

Ex-Speaker and to-be-Speaker Reed is not so much disposed as he once was to sneer at economy in Government expenditures. He says "it is sincerely to be hoped that any effort made by the next Congress to keep down the appropriations may have the support of public sentiment and popular forbearance." But how does he propose to keep them down? By asking the grabbers to please not to grab, the jobbers not to job, and the log-rollers not to log roll. He remarks: "If each portion of this country should be reasonable in its demands, the total also would be reasonable." That's as clear as a sum in simple arithmetic, but who is to determine what is reasonable? who is to hit the unreasonable snouts a rap and make them back away from the trough? Mr. Reed does not say. Yet nothing can be more certain than that the hungry mob in the next Congress will trample on their nominal leaders, just as they did in the last Congress, unless some clear and resolute plan to hold them in check can be devised. With his great prestige and power as a Speaker, Mr. Reed will have a great opportunity to make the next House an economical House—either by changes in the rules or in the organization, or by his personal control, or by extending party discipline to the appropriations. In this respect, and in directing currency legislation, he has his political marring or making in his own hands, and it will be interesting to see if he has in him the stuff of a true leader.—New York Post.

The Increase of Wages.

The increase of workmen's wages in the woolen mills of the State may be traced more directly to the lowering of the tariff than is often usual in similar instances. We are not among those who believe that the tariff, whether high or low in its rates, affects wages to the extent that politicians are in the habit of claiming. Its operation is much more upon the cost of living. But in this case the taking off the duty upon wool has enabled woolen goods to be manufactured at greater advantage, and has thus created an increased market for them. This has had its effect in inducing a greater call for labor, and under it the law of supply and demand has come in to operate, sending up the price of labor, as it inevitably does in all such cases.—Boston Herald.

The Tide Has Turned.

The several advances of wages which have been noted in the dispatches within the past few days are in the nature of the one swallow which does not make a summer. We build no extensive conclusions as to the state of trade on them, but they undoubtedly justify opinions as to the direction things are taking. The advance of wages in the coke trade, headed by the largest of all the concerns, indicates the belief on the part of some of the most successful operators that there is to be a marked improvement in the iron business that will enable the men who are carrying it on to pay higher prices for their fuel. We take it that Mr. Moses Stevens and Mr. Thomas Dolan would not have raised wages without a definite impression that they would be able to sell goods at figures that would justify this; in fact, as wages are generally fixed, we conclude that an increase implies that an improvement in business has already occurred. Several concerns of less note, both in textiles and metals, have advanced wages, and in other enterprises the men and the companies came together some time ago on rates lower than the men had asked but higher than the companies had named. Wages were pretty promptly cut two years ago when the depression came on, and their advance here and there gives evidence that in places the tide has already turned.—Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin.

Even in Their Home Markets.

The Iron Age publishes the following in its weekly review of the iron and steel industry:

"An incident occurred this week which shows that we are beginning to step on the heels of even the Germans, who have been the most aggressive sellers in recent years. An order came into this market for 1,000 tons of barrel hoops. An American mill bid as low as any German works and would have obtained the order if there were not a duty of about $7 per ton on hoops in Germany. In other words, with equal rates of freights and short credits we can meet them successfully in neutral markets."

The Germans, we understand, are able to underbid the English on such orders, and now this report shows that American manufacturers of hoops would have undersold the Germans in their home market if the German tariff duty had not barred the way. Is the duty on hoop iron in our present tariff (30 per cent.) too low? The Iron Age also says:

"What our present low prices mean is shown by the fact that wire is being shipped from Pittsburg for the manufacture of wood screws in a large plant in England."

That is to say, American manufacturers, even under the handicap of railway charges from Pittsburg and ocean freight rates, are underselling the English wiremakers in their home markets, and also the Germans and Belgians in that market. We understand that the American manufacturers of screws have for a long time been able to procure at American mills the wire which is their raw material at a cost no higher than the cost of foreign wire to screw manufacturers abroad.

But while we are underselling foreign producers of wire in their home market, our tariff imposes a duty of from $8.96 to $16.80 per ton on wire rods, a duty of $28 per ton on wire, and a very high duty on screws. Are these some of the duties which the followers of McKinley desire to increase?—New York Times.

Short on Details.

The esteemed McKinley organs are not especially dwelling on the big sale of New England woolens just held in Bradford, England. They are willing to admit as a generality that times are picking up, but as for going into the trivial details they have no stomach for such tuppenny business.

ON GUARD.

Grover Cleveland, officer of the guard, protects the business interests of the nation against the menace of an extra session.—Chicago Times-Herald.

NOTES ON EDUCATION.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO PUPIL AND TEACHER.

Instructor Should Be Thoroughly Equipped Before Entering Upon the Work of the Class Room—How to Keep the Children Occupied.

Thorough Preparation.

No one need expect to make a complete success of teaching without thorough preparation. This does not mean that you must be a paragon of knowledge before you enter upon the work of the class room. That would be extremely difficult and if you thought you "knew it all" you would doubtless be a very uncomfortable person to work with and a most unpopular one in your class-room.

It is a trite but very true saying that we all learn something new, or see something in a new light, every day.

But however well equipped you may be with knowledge of facts and things, you must be prepared to give them to your pupils in a form that they can assimilate—to present each subject in a light that will enable them to see through and through it. You may assign a lesson on any subject, to a class, have them learn it, hear them recite it, find that they know all that the text-book says on the subject and send them to their seats satisfied with the work of the class. But you have not taught them anything. They may remember a few of the most striking or interesting facts of the lesson, but the most of it will probably be gone next week.

To give a class a lesson on any subject you must first prepare the lesson yourself. Go over the ground covered by the text-book used, then bring to bear on the subject everything you know that relates to it; and the more you know the better the lesson you can give to your class.

Then, when the class is called let the pupils tell you what they know, then you tell them what you know.

Discuss the subject with them. Don't do all the talking yourself or the lesson will degenerate into a lecture and the pupils will lose interest.

Haven't you time for all this? You have forged your own chains. So long as teachers submit to having so many classes placed in their charge that they cannot do their work properly, just so long will the learning and recitation routine constitute the "work of education" done in our schools—a work that might be done just as well in the homes of the pupils. The only difference would be in the absence of the emulation that arises almost inevitably where there are a number working together, and the envy and ill-feeling and spite it always engenders. Or the work of "making them learn their lessons" might devolve upon the parents, who probably prefer sending them to a teacher, who "is paid" to do it for them and who is supposed to have some magic receipt whereby sixty children can be coaxed, driven, persuaded or "trained" to do the same things, think the same thoughts, and sit in the same positions at the same time for five hours a day. But perhaps you say you have not time out of school to hunt up supplementary information on each day's work. Of course you have not. There is where the need of preparation comes in. You must have a stock of knowledge to begin with, the larger the better, but some there must be.

You will find in every subject that the more you know the better you can teach even the most elementary parts of it.

As you go through the year's work, you will see where you need more knowledge—where your weak points are—and you can study up on those points and the next year do better work in the same line. You will find your ideas of things in general are expanding and you will keep on working and broadening your horizon.

There is, of course, no limit to your advancement and you may perhaps think "thorough preparation" a misnomer, for what you would at first have thought the complete mastery of a subject will seem by and by but the most meager croppings on the edge of the field of knowledge.—Educational News.

Occupations for Primary Room.

Each recitation or class exercise where the child comes in direct contact with the teacher should be followed by some occupation which is the direct outgrowth of that lesson; an opportunity to give expression to the thought gained in the class. Too many teachers are satisfied if this thought is expressed in written language, and often the children spend more time in writing than is really good for them.

The child, like the adult, needs to objectify his thought; much of his thinking needs more than the oral or written form to make it complete. In the primary school we may give to the child this opportunity for expression through drawing upon the blackboard, modelling in clay, constructing with blocks and splints, cutting forms from paper, using number by measuring and comparing, and outlining forms with sticks or lentils.

Another phase of desk occupation is that which is done in preparation for the class exercise; an important element in this part of the work is immediate use; the feeling on his part that the piece of work in hand is being done because it is to help in the lesson farther on, adds an element of interest which soon rises to enthusiasm, if properly directed by the teacher.

Suppose the class is studying crystallization; for such study sugar, salt and alum will be observed and measured; for this, small boxes of definite size will be needed. If the children make these boxes themselves there is an added interest because of the responsibility placed upon each child in making ready for the lesson.

For these boxes he will need a lead pencil, foot rule, pair of scissors, manilla paper (medium weight), and a few drops of mucilage or paste.

Directions for box holding a cubic inch: Draw and cut a three-inch square; one inch from each corner make a point; connect each point to one on opposite edge with a line. Fold each side toward the center, on this line; crease well. On each side cut through the line to point where two lines cross; lay the corner squares and paste. Shallow boxes previously made by the children will serve for paste cups. A toothpick answers for the brush.

Four or six [illegible] squares may be drawn and cut by the children, and then folded into envelopes; these will be found useful in preserving material which they use in observation lessons in science.

The telling of stories from history and choice literature has come to be an important part of the work in every good primary school; but this story-telling falls short of its purpose if we fail to give the child an opportunity to tell it back to us. One of his best means of expression for the story work is the blackboard drawing. This gives him a chance to do and dare such as he could not feel if he were to attempt expression with a pencil or through speech even. His pictures may look crude and meaningless to the casual observer, but the sympathetic teacher is able to interpret each stroke of his crayon. To vary this drawing, give each child the privilege of picturing a story of his own choosing. Note the excellent oral language work that is sure to come as each one explains to his schoolmates what his picture stands for.

Children love to work; their enthusiasm and intellect are easily aroused, and it must be some fault of ours when we are obliged to hire or punish in order to keep them legitimately occupied.—Primary Education.

Short Steps in the Schoolroom.

Our aim in school work should be the brightest; we should always present the highest ideal to the pupils; never praise for inferior work; better results can be produced by a little done well, than by a lot crammed in that cannot be digested. Take writing, for instance, in how many schools whole pages and half are written quite regardless of the head line. Now if children were only allowed to write on one line, at the most, two days, take care to make each word as like the original as possible we would have better writers. In reading also, some teachers allow their pupils to read whole pages hurriedly through, without any regard to the sound of the letters; or, the contrary, if two or three sentences were read intelligently and clearly, due respect being paid to the vowel sounds and stops, and drawing from the pupils their ideas on the subject read about, we would have more intelligent readers. The same may be said of all branches. How many music teachers rush a pupil through a piece of music simply to have it said that the pupil played such a piece in public before the pupil could even technically understand it, setting aside the emotional and poetical aspect of the piece. This most assuredly is an age of "rush" and cram, and the sooner we learn the better not to hurry, but to be particular over the small things and not stop short of aiming at the highest. Our Savior said, "Be ye perfect even as your Father which is in Heaven is perfect." Now, most of us have said beginning a new year, "I am determined to lead a new life this year;" and before a week or a day, or maybe an hour was past had backslidden. If we would not take such long views ahead, but live each minute and second in His sight we should most probably not have to regret so many failures. Aim at perfection, but take short steps and see they are as like the Master's as possible.—Ex.

Going to School.

Among the crowding cares of the farmer's wife, the needs of the little schoolgirl cannot be forgotten. While the rough spring weather keeps her from the long walk to the school-house, her wardrobe may be put in order; gingham dresses resleeved, new aprons made—several of them neatly trimmed with soft crocheted twine braid or unbleached lace—and various things attended to which may add to the comfort and pleasure of the small maiden.

Provide a snug jacket or cape for windy chill mornings, and rubber shoes for muddy walking. A 10-cent straw hat with crown lowered and trimmed with a pinked and pleated ruche of red or blue, edge bound with the same and strings outside to tie down the wide brim, makes a nicer head covering than a sunbonnet. Don't forget the neat, clean ruffle or collar for the neck of her frock, and plenty of pocket handkerchiefs. She may hem a dozen muslin ones during the cold, stormy days. Give the young student a pretty bag crocheted of brown or white twine, lined with red or blue calico; also a small tin dinner pail, with lunch hygienically prepared, no indigestible pastry nor rich cake. Give her, too, a kiss when she goes, and when she comes home at night. Don't have a number of disagreeable tasks waiting for her. Let her run and play or make doll's dresses as she chooses. Make home more attractive to her than school. And above all send her early to bed.—Gussie M. Waterman in Farm and Home.

A Device to Promote Reading.

A school superintendent was asked how he managed to advance his pupils in all their studies so much more rapidly than his predecessor had done. His reply is worthy of special note: "I make it a point to bring them along as rapidly as possible in reading. In the primary grades I give more time to this exercise than is customary in other schools, and I persuade or entice the pupils of the higher grades to read books, newspapers and magazines, anything wholesome that will give them practice, and at the same time instruct them. Every day we spend from fifteen to twenty minutes asking and answering questions about what we have read. To exite curiosity, we post the most important caption lines from the columns of the newspapers. The next morning nearly every one of the older scholars is prepared to give particulars on the subject of the previous day's bulletins. If I can get our scholars to read it is easy to induce them to study; by as much as they become more expert in reading, so much is the labor of pursuing their other studies reduced, and their enjoyment heightened."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

A Little Exaggerated.

The witty George Canning, illustrating the Hibernian tendency, when excited, to hurry beyond the limits of good sense, tells this anecdote:

An Irish divine, preaching against the vice of swearing, and denouncing its prevalence in a certain town, said in the height of declamation:

"Even the little children that can neither speak nor walk run about the streets blaspheming."

The flesh of the boa constrictor is eaten by the aborigines of Brazil.

HUMOR OF THE WEEK

STORIES TOLD BY FUNNY MEN OF THE PRESS.

Odd, Curious and Laughable Phases of Human Nature Graphically Portrayed by Eminent Word Artists of Our Own Day—A Budget of Fun.

Sprinkles of Spice.

Mrs. Gadzley—"Do you suffer much from toothache." Mrs. Blazzer—"No—that is, not unless my husband has it."—Roxbury Gazette.

"So the insolent fellow refused to pay his rent." "He did not say so in words, but he intimated it." "How so?" "He kicked me downstairs."—Le Figaro.

Bryce—"Algernon Fitz Sappy is one of those fellows who has more money than brains, isn't he?" Knowso—"Yes, and he is poor, too."—Life's Calendar.

Mrs. Nuwed—"Our landlord thinks of nothing but the rent." Nuwed—"You wrong him, my dear. I'm sure he never thinks of the rent in the roof."—Judge.

"Mrs. Trout, why do you look so down in the gills?" "Trout, my dear, I can't help worrying when I remember that it's most fly time again."—New York Recorder.

Blobbs—"Do you think the average man is as stupid before he marries as he is afterwards?" Cynicus—"Certainly, or he wouldn't get married."—Philadelphia Record.

With joy I greets you, gentle spring;
You bids us smile ag'in—
No wood ter saw, no snow ter sweep,
No coal ter carry in.
—Washington Star.

"Chollie is a changed man. He sent $10 to the mission in China last week." "He must be changed indeed, or he could never make $10 go as far as that!"—Harper's Bazar.

"It's her disposition to make light of serious things," he said mournfully. "Yes," replied Cholly Luvlorn. "She even burns the poetry I write about her."—Washington Star.

Lipper—"I wonder why it is that Miss Primper always takes such good care of her complexion?" Chipper—"She's so conscientious; it isn't her own, you know."—Cincinnati Tribune.

"Our first impressions most readily slip our memories," said the teacher. "Oh, I know why!" shouted Johnny. "Well, why?" "Our first impressions are slippers."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"And this—this is elocution!" sighed the poet, as the recitationist finished his pet poem. "Yes, what did you think it was?" "Execution," returned the poet, with a moan.—Harper's Bazar.

Cholly Uppers—"Fwed, can you spare me a small bills for a ten?" Freddie Heeled—"Suah, deah boy." Cholly—"Thanks, weally, I'll hand you the ten to-morrow."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Mrs. Rash—"How do you manage to get your cook up so early?" Mrs. Dash—"Well, I hunted up a young and good-looking milkman and hired him to come at 5 o'clock."—Louisville Courier Journal.

"What is the matter with that man?" asked the inquisitive small girl in the theater. "The man sitting in the front row?" "Yes'm. The one whose hair is too small for him."—Washington Star.

Author—"What's the matter with the dialect in that story? Isn't it plain enough?" Magazine editor—"Yes; that's the trouble. Anybody can read it without a glossary."—Somerville Journal.

Impatient tourists (to small boy fishing in the lake)—"You told us the boat always left here at 4, and we have waited now till past 5." Boy—"Oh, it doesn't begin to run till May."—Fliegende Blatter.

"Experience is the best teacher," remarked Plodding Pete. "Yes," replied Meandering Mike; "but my personal observation is that it's a mighty poor way ter study law."—Washington Star.

Wife (to unhappy husband)—"I wouldn't worry, John; it doesn't do any good to borrow trouble." Husband—"Borrow trouble? Great Caesar, my dear, I ain't borrowing trouble; I have it to lend."—Colorado Sun.

Old Bache—"That's a handsome pair of slippers you're wearing, Harry." Harry—"They ought to be; I'm sure they cost enough. My wife made them, and then coaxed out of me the price of a sealskin jacket."—Tid-Bits.

Stern Parent—"You tell me that you love my daughter and wish to marry her. But how do you expect to live on eight hundred a year?" Loving Swain—"Oh, come, now, your income must be more than that!"—Boston Transcript.

Clara—"How under the sun did Edith happen to marry Mr. Awkward?" Dora—"He was the bane of her life at every ball she attended, and I presume she married him to keep him from wanting to dance with her."—New York Weekly.

Judge (to prisoner)—"Have you anything more to say?" Prisoner—"No, my lord; only I would ask you to be quick, please, as it is near the dinner hour, and if I am to go to prison I should like to get there in time for the soup."—Francais Illustre.

She—"Every one in town says we are going to be married." He—"Well, it's true, isn't it?" She (sobbingly)—"It can't be, Frederick. You must be deceiving me. If it were true every one in town would say we are not going to be married."—Truth.

"But he is so much younger than his wife." "I know that, but then he will be much older ten years from now." "As for that matter, won't she also be much older?" "My dear sir, she is a woman. Just you wait ten years and see."—Boston Transcript.

The Dighton "Writing Rock."

At Dighton, Mass., lying well out in the tidewater of Taunton River, is a rock of great antiquarian interest. It is a granite bowlder about 11 feet long and 5 feet in greatest height, and is known throughout New England as the "Dighton writing rock." One side of the bowlder is almost perfectly smooth, as though worn by glacial action. On the flat surface, in clear-cut outlines, are dozens of characters, hieroglyphics and pictures chiseled by some prehistoric engraver. The archaeologists have never been able to decipher these characters, but they are of undoubted antiquity.—St. Louis Republic.

Spring Cleaning

Is such a trial that men say "Let the house take care of itself." But the conscientious wife feels bound to risk health and strength in this annual struggle with dust and dirt. The consequence of her feverish anxiety over extra work is depletion of the blood, the source of all life and strength, manifested in that weak, tired, nervous condition too prevalent at this season and very dangerous if allowed to continue. What every man and woman needs in the spring is Hood's Sarsaparilla. It keeps the blood vitalized and enriched, and thus sustains the nerves and all the bodily functions.

"I take Hood's Sarsaparilla every spring, and it is the only medicine I use through the year. It enables me to do my house cleaning and farm work all through the summer. It helped me very much for palpitation of the heart. I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the medicine for everyone, and all who take it will never be without it. I have also used Hood's Pills, and they are the best I ever tried." MRS. F. H. ANDREWS, S. Woodstock, Ct.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Is the Only True Blood Purifier

Prominently in the Public Eye To-Day

Sacred Island in Abyssinia.

Lake Zouay, in Abyssinia, and near the southern frontier of that country, had not been visited for three or four hundred years by the Abyssinian authorities, and the people who live on an island in the midst of the lake had remained without any communication with the exterior world. Emperor Menelik has recently paid a visit to that lake, where is situated the Island of Debra-Sina, in the churches of which most valuable Ethopian manuscripts had been hidden by Abyssinian monarchs at the time of the invasion of their country by the Egyptian and Soudan Moslems. The island is held as sacred ground, and Menelik's chaplain was the only man to proceed there on that occasion; he visited the churches, looked at the ancient manuscripts, and brought some of them to the Emperor, who ordered them to be religiously returned to the chief of the island.

"HELP!"

A WOMAN'S DESPAIRING CRY.

It is Heard. A Prominent Actress Escapes Great Danger.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

How startling is a woman's cry for help!

"What can I do? Where shall I go?" She knows not. This cry goes out today from every city, town, and hamlet in this country.

It comes from women who are suffering tortures of body and mind from some form of female complaint. Many, through natural modesty, do not consult physicians, for many dread their examinations. They know not where to seek for help.

This alarming condition of things is simply wrong. The peculiar ailments of women are curable, and in most cases very speedily. Lydia E. Pinkham's genius and liberality have given to every woman a sure and consistent means of relief.

No woman should suffer when she can obtain free advice. She can state her case fully to Mrs. Pinkham, woman to woman, without reserve, and the answer will come from one of her own sex. Be one of the vast army of women who write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., and preserve your health. "Only a woman can understand a woman's ills."

A prominent actress, in a letter to Mrs. Pinkham, says:—

". . . You cannot imagine the fearful condition I was in when I first wrote to you. I was simply of no use to myself or any one else. I had worked hard, and my nervous system was shattered from womb trouble and traveling constantly. I ran the gauntlet of doctors' theories, till my health and money were rapidly vanishing. . . . I'm all right now, and am gaining flesh daily. I follow your advice faithfully in everything. Thank you ten thousand times for what your knowledge and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have done for me."

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Age.

KENNEDY'S MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

DONALD KENNEDY, OF ROXBURY, MASS.,

Has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures every kind of Humor, from the worst Scrofula down to a common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases (both thunder humor). He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston. Send postal card for book.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the right quantity is taken.

When the lungs are affected it causes shooting pains, like needles passing through them; the same with the Liver or Bowels. This is caused by the ducts being stopped, and always disappears in a week after taking it. Read the label.

If the stomach is foul or bilious it will cause squeamish feelings at first.

No change of diet ever necessary. Eat the best you can get, and enough of it. Dose, one tablespoonful in water at bedtime. Sold by all Druggists.

Mrs. Winslow's SOOTHING SYRUP for Children teething; softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

EAT FRIENDS' OATS. ALWAYS THE BEST.

ONLY A TRICK OF THE TRADE.

An Employment Agency's Clever Scheme for Drumming Up Trade.

Like every other vocation of men and women, the employment agent possesses a device that is peculiar to his particular calling that is worthy of enrollment among the numerous "tricks of trade," and, although it smacks of deceit, it no doubt serves its purpose well. The manner of operating is thus described by the Rochester Herald: A woman of "good address" is engaged by the proprietor of the employment agency to answer advertisements for female help. Each morning when the day's business is begun the proprietor closely scans the want columns of the papers, selecting therefrom such advertisements as he or she may be able to fill from the list of girls on the application book. A list is made out and given to the before-mentioned woman of "good address," who immediately starts out to "secure the situations." Upon application to the lady of the house who has advertised for a "girl" this woman of good address tells the mistress that she has read the advertisement in the morning paper and would like to get the place. Then follows the usual catechism applicable to such cases, and the lady finds to her great delight that she has at last discovered just the girl for whom she has been looking, oh, so long. There isn't anything she can't do, and the lady has really racked her brain to think of things, too. She can make lovely bread, cook any dish imaginable, does not object to "helping out" on washday, has no "gentleman company," does not want the parlor three nights a week and will not go home Sundays, and, above all, she has such "good address."

A bargain is struck on the spot; the new girl will come to-morrow and the wages are reasonable. The lady hurries down town and orders her advertisement out of the paper, turns away a dozen or more likely looking girls who apply for the place during the day, and finally at night she goes to bed and falls asleep without a care upon her mind, something she has not done since the last girl gave her "warning." But, oh, what a difference in the morning! When 9 o'clock comes, instead of the lovely woman of "good address" who was hired the day before, the hour brings two, maybe three, very indifferent specimens of the genus hired girl, who exclaim in chorus that they "have come to get that job."

"Why, I don't want any help," exclaims the lady of the house. "I've engaged a girl," and she makes a motion to close the door in the face of the unwelcome callers.

"Oh, yes; we know," returns the chorus, "but Miss—can't come. She's sick, and she told us to come and get the place because you wanted a girl. So we've come."

The "girls" are dismissed with but little ceremony; yet not until the lady has learned that they came from No.——street, where an employment agency is known to be, and after comparing notes with a few friends who have had a similar experience the lady resolves to beware in future of the "woman of good address."

Artists and Exhibitions in France.

In France there is an unwritten but immutable law that a painting shall not be exhibited without the artist's consent, no matter what the wishes of the owner may be. And now a literary and artistic congress in session at Milan, Italy, has decided that the right of reproduction does not pass to the buyer of the picture.

Like a Machine,

Which kept in order runs smoothly and regularly, so the bowels keep up their action if measures are taken to keep them in good working order. This infers, of course, that they are out of order. The surest recourse then is to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a laxative mild but effective, which is also a remedy for dyspepsia, malaria, rheumatism, nervousness and kidney trouble.

If a merchant advertises judiciously he increases his sales. An increase of sales generally results in an increase of profits, so why not let the advertising bills come out of the latter? If the profits find their way into the merchant's pocket before he pays the bill, it is literally paid out of his pocket, but if the profits resulting from the advertisement are equivalent or in excess of the bill, the merchant is (metaphorically) nothing out of pocket.—Dry Goods Bulletin.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

REPOSE is the mother of activity.

WE have not been without Piso's Cure for Consumption for 20 years.—LIZZIE FERHEL, Camp St., Harrisburg, Pa., May 4, 1894.

LOW RATES.
Quick time.
Through Sleeping Cars
Chicago, Buffalo,
New York, and Boston.
Unexcelled Dining Cars.
Why should you not
Patronize the
Nickel Plate road?

WOMEN AND HOME

WE ALL know and equally despise that ever-present horror, the woman with a memory so keen that it glosses over the good that we may have at some time in our lives accomplished and brings out like the scintillating points of a first-water diamond just those very things that we would be so happy to forget.

There are men, too, with these disagreeably active memories, as many a politician has learned to his cost. If he remains a quiet, every-day citizen, his record appears clean, his character blameless, and his integrity unimpeachable, but just let that poor deluded masculine think of running for office and things will be dragged forth from the dim past that he himself had practically forgotten. They may have occurred when he was a mere boy and he is now a man verging on the threescore and ten line. The great lapse of time between makes no difference to the man of vindictive memory, and his victim finds out to his sorrow that a man to enter public life has a thorny path ahead of him.

As with men so with women. Take my lady with the social bee in her bonnet. Her husband is wealthy, she and he are possessed of all the evidences of refinement. She is a charming hostess, and thoroughly well-skilled in the art of refined badinage that has won for her the reputation of being a wit as well as a beauty. She is getting on famously, her frocks are described in the society journals, her entertainments praised and her movements noted. She feels that she is on the crest of the social wave until one day she meets a friend—oh, misapplied term—who jocosely reminds her of something she had tried to convince herself was forgotten. It may be quite unimportant in itself, but she knows that it will never be repeated as it actually existed, and from that moment the woman with the good memory becomes the ghost at every feast, the shadow that dims the sunlight of her success.

Now why need people busy themselves dragging up a lot of things that do not concern them in the least? Unless they wish to acknowledge themselves social blackmailers, of what good is their superior knowledge? The pleasant people are those with excellent forgeteries, not those of such marvelous mental mirrors that they can call up at a minute's notice an exact copy of something that occurred dozens of years ago.

It is a good scheme to cultivate the art of letting the unpleasant things of life slip out of one's mind, allowing only the praiseworthy and the good to remain. Think no evil and existence will be ever so much more serene than if you are continually busy digging in the rag bag of the past hoping to unearth some treasure that can be used to the discomfiture of a fellow-being.

Woman's Duty.

Social reformers for hundreds of years have been telling us that all labor is honorable; that the rich man's son is not disgraced by toiling with his hands. Woman is beginning to recognize that there is no sex in work, and to demand that she be allowed by society to do her share. There is plenty for her to do, and she should be paid for it just as a man is paid for his work. There are many women who are obliged to earn their own livelihood, and there are others who would be happy to do so if they could find something to do that would not be considered unwomanly. To such the question of how to do this is a matter of the deepest importance. To them the question of woman's work is not a question of philanthropy, but one of self-preservation. Let us hope that the day is not far distant when there will be no more women who are obliged to sell their souls for their daily bread, when every woman who wants to work will be able to do so in her own home or in some other place that will be as free from contamination as her own home, and when she will be paid for her work in the same way and at the same rate as a man would be for the same work.

at Free Trade Prices.

you can afford to pay. We ou are sure to be pleased by

Carter,

T HOUSE.

In a small house where pennies count and life's problem seems difficult to solve, with an ailing woman to do the housework of the family, and no room for a girl, the most economical thing to do is to hire the washing and ironing done out of the house. When you come to count the pay and board for service of a girl who must always be looked for, it amounts to a great deal, but when you pay $1.50 a week for the laundering of the clothes and have it done out of the house the worst of the work is done, and no worry to you and no great cost. Even if you have to pay 50 cents more to get a woman to come and do the sweeping and scrubbing once a week you come off winner.

Divided Skirts for Fair Bicyclists.

When Lady, When Woman.

We may safely decide that in the mere discrimination of sex one may always use the word woman with much greater propriety and elegance, writes Sarah Orne Jewett in a discussion as to when the words "lady" and "woman" should be used, in the Ladies' Home Journal. Spokeswoman, forewoman, saleswoman are certainly better words in themselves than their counterparts of spokeslady or what one hears still oftener, saleslady. Woman is certainly the proper term in such cases; the personal distinction should be made secondary. We should rather hear any one say: "A lady who has been spokeswoman at the club," or "a lady who was saleswoman at Messrs. So-and-so's," than a "spokeslady" or "a saleslady." But we must never forget that since common usage bestows the title of lady by courtesy upon women, while one should not use it carelessly one should not deny its use in an arrogant way.

No Sin to Look Pretty.

A physician who ought to know says that a tub bath every day will ruin a woman's nerves if continued for a year. We will not dispute his say, but, individually, will run the risk of having to advertise for those essentially feminine possessions in the lost and found column, as so far we feel all right, and if our nerves are lost so much the better, for every woman can get along much better without them, anyway.

If there are those with whom a tub bath does not agree the sponge is an equivalent that can be recommended. Make cleanliness a religion. It leads to health and enhances physical beauty. Regard your body as the tenement of a beautiful soul and make it as decorative as possible. There is no sin in trying to look your best, but there is a lot of good, hard common sense in it, and the first step in that direction is through the medium of thorough tidiness and an intimate acquaintance with the purifying qualities of soap and water.

A Woman's Bravery.

Lulu Reichards, a young married lady who is station agent and telegraph operator at Kimberly, on the North Pacific railroad near Duluth, overheard four men on the depot platform planning to wreck and rob the east-bound passenger express, recently. She immediately arose and sent warning to her husband who is agent at Aitkin, the next station west. When attacked by the robbers the plucky little woman shot one and put the others to flight. This item is referred to legislators who would make a law prohibiting married women from teaching in the public schools.

Good Lip Salve.

For a lip salve dissolve a lump of white sugar in a teaspoonful of rose water. Let it stand at the back of the stove to simmer slowly. Add two tablespoonfuls of nice olive oil and a piece of spermaceti the seize of a walnut. Add a mere drop of cochineal coloring matter to turn it pink. When the whole is melted to an ointment turn it into a little porcelain box kept for the purpose. It should be small enough to hold only a few tablespoonfuls.

French women are born cooks.

Scale fish by dipping in boiling water a moment first.

Keep meat sweet by placing out of doors over night.

Put a tablespoonful of brandy in pumpkin pies to take away the raw taste.

If you can't cut a pie through with a wholesome sweep of the knife you'll die an old maid.

The dish in which any salad is to be served should be rubbed first with a clove of raw onion.

Let an upper pie crust with milk before setting it in the oven, and it will brown quickly and richly.

If one of the family is late to dinner, instead of set his food in the oven to dry and thus put in a covered dish and set a boiling pot or in a pan of hot water on the back of the stove.

Calves' liver may be made so very delicate a dish that it is a great misnomer to cook it in a coarse way. When it is fried in bacon fat, as it ordinarily is, it simply absorbs the rankest part of the bacon and becomes grease-sodden. Calves' liver, served with bacon, should always be broiled.

The latest excitement in Paris society is the pursuit of cooking as an accomplishment. Cooking soirees are frequent, and it goes without saying that the art attains greater excellence among the French belles than it ever has when countenanced by English or American dames of high degree.

Bisque of mutton makes a good, substantial soup for a home dinner. Provide for this soup three pounds of the neck of mutton, two quarts of water, one quart of milk, half a cupful of rice, a cupful of stewed tomatoes, two slices of carrot, an onion, three teaspoonfuls of salt, half a teaspoonful of pepper, a tablespoonful of flour and a tablespoonful of butter. See that the meat is perfectly clean and free from fat.

Always Something.

A story, which, if not true, is well invented, illustrates the sound principle—"There is aye a something." A Scotch mother was questioned as to her daughter's approaching marriage by one who asked if it were a good marriage.

"Just delightful, charming—everything we could wish!" she answered. "True, there's one little thing—the lassie just canna endure the man; she hates him. But there maun aye be a something."

Doctor Boyd, who repeats this story in his latest book, "St. Andrews and Elsewhere," says that he once heard a great lady, to whom some one had spoken of the loveliness of the scenes amid which she lived, say with a sorrowful voice:

"It's not life; it's vegetation."

The wicked old Duke of Queensberry was possessed by morbid longings for that which could not be. He had a splendid mansion, located in beautiful grounds, on the left bank of the Thames. But to one who congratulated him on the fact, he exclaimed, "Oh, that wearisome river! Always running on, and never will run away!"

ROYAL BAKING POWDER is the purest and strongest baking powder made. It has received the highest award at the U. S. Gov't official investigation, and at all the Great International Expositions and World's Fairs wherever exhibited in competition with others.

It makes the finest, lightest, sweetest, most wholesome bread, cake and pastry. More economical than any other leavening agent.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 WALL ST., NEW-YORK.

Threatened With Extinction.

Unless strict measures are taken in the immediate future the native fauna of Victoria, Australia, will soon become extinct. The reiterated complaint to the Customs Department is that of "wanton destruction." Such unique specimens as the platypus and the lyre bird are already very rare, and, if the present state of things continues, their total disappearance will be a matter of but a few years. The police have frequently reported the fact of lyre birds having been shot in the ranges, and also the sale of the tails, but, through inability to prove the actual killing of the birds, they have not succeeded in having the offenders puhished. The Royal Acclimatization Society has now addressed the Minister of Trade and Customs on the subject, and points out that in one shop alone in Melbourne twenty lyre birds' tails have have been displayed for sale at one time, and that as the hens lay as a rule only one egg each in the season, the present rate of destruction must soon extinguish the species. It is further mentioned that the bird has an inveterate enemy in the fox, and, that sixteen tails were recently found near a fox's lair in the ranges. Protection should certainly be afforded to the lyre bird and the platypus, and even the kangaroo, unless he also to become extinct.—Melbourne Argus.

Celery Salad.

Cut up celery into small pieces till there is a pint. Put in a cool place and serve with a boiled dressing made as follows: One tablespoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls salad oil, two tablespoonfuls mustard, three eggs, one cup milk, one cup of vinegar. Mix the salt, sugar, and mustard together. Add to them the eggs well beaten, then the vinegar and, after stirring well, the milk; cook in a double boiler for twenty minutes or thick as boiled custard. This dressing, if bottled, will keep for a week or more in a cold place, and will many times take the place of the expensive and tedious mayonnaise.

UNWISE POSTPONEMENT.

Neglecting a Duty Which Ought to Be Done Now.

On general principles there is no more foolish method of taking life easy than by deferring an obvious duty. Especially foolish is the person who postpones the work of cleansing his blood. There are many reasons why this work should be done in the spring. This is the cleansing season, and the blood needs cleansing before all things else. That tired feeling is due to a vitiated condition of the vital fluid. The pimples and other eruptions which appear are indications that the blood has become loaded with impurities which should be expelled at once. In no other way can health be maintained. Now there is but one true blood purifier prominently in the public eye to-day, and that is Hood's Sarsaparilla. By taking a few bottles of this great blood cleansing medicine the bodily health can be built up so that when the warm weather comes the system will be able to resist the debilitating effects of the heated season. Those who start with good health in the spring, given them by a thorough cleansing of the blood by Hood's Sarsaparilla, will be likely to pass through the summer without serious illness, and when the autumn comes they will find that they are supplied with strength which they had never known at that season before. The work of cleansing the blood in the spring is one of the most important duties of the season, because pure blood means good health, and good health is essential both to happiness and to the highest usefulness in the world.

IT is the most momentous question a woman is ever called upon to decide—whether the faults of the man she loves are beyond remedy and will drag her down, or whether she is competent to be his earthly redeemer, and lift him to her own level.

THE Nickel Plate road can offer to the Sons of the American Revolution reduced rates to their convention at Boston, Mass. Remember we operate through sleeping cars direct to Boston.

SOME of the restaurants in Germany serve food on paper plates.

Quantity Not Locality.

"Don't you think Mr. Twiddles is very absent-minded?" said a young woman.

"No," replied Miss Pepperton. "He displays admirable caution. What little he has he always brings with him."

THE EVOLUTION

Of medicinal agents is gradually relegating the old-time herbs, pills, draughts and vegetable extracts to the rear and bringing into general use the pleasant and effective liquid laxative, Syrup of Figs. To get the true remedy see that it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only. For sale by all leading druggists.

ACCORDING to careful estimates, three hours of close study wear out the body more than a whole day of hard physical exertion.

TWO THOUSAND patents have been taken out in this country on the manufacture of paper alone.

NATIONAL EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION MEETING.

Denver, Colo., July 5 to 12, 1895.

For this occasion the Wabash Railroad has made a rate of one fare for the round trip to Denver plus $2.00, added for membership fee.

For full particulars in regard to this meeting, time of trains, rates, route, etc., call upon or write to any representative of the Wabash R. R., or connecting lines, or

C. S. CRANE,
Gen'l Pass. & Tkt. Agt.,
Wabash R. R.,
St. Louis, Mo.

WHY does the new moon remind one of a giddy girl? Because she's too young to show much reflection.

Cold winds roughen and chap the skin. Glenn's Sulphur Soap softens and reunites it.

"Hill's Hair and Whisker Dye," Black or Brown, 50c.

ONE of the latest inventions is an electric rocking-chair.

Every Cause but the Right One.

Your headache: You lay it to every cause but the true one—indigestion. So few people know what indigestion really is. Hardly know they have it. The cure is Ripans Tabules. A single one gives relief. Ask your druggist.

MANY blind persons are now taking to typewriting.

BEFORE purchasing your tickets, first ascertain the rate via the Nickel Plate road.

What an ordinary man eats and the way he eats it would be enough to give dyspepsia to an ostrich—unless the ostrich were wise enough to assist his digestion from time to time with an efficient combination of vegetable extracts. Such a preparation is Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They are the pills par excellence for those who sometimes eat the wrong things and too much. They stimulate action in all of the digestive organs. They stop sour stomach, windy belchings, heartburn, flatulence and cure constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache and kindred derangements.

Once used they are always in favor.

I was afflicted with catarrh last autumn. During the month of October I could neither taste nor smell and could hear but little. Ely's Cream Balm cured it.—Marcus Geo. Shautz, Rahway, N. J.

CATARRH

ELY'S CREAM BALM Opens and cleanses the Nasal Passages, Allays Pain and Inflammation, Heals the Sores, Protects the Membrane from Colds. Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. The Balm is quickly absorbed and gives relief at once.

A particle is applied into each nostril and is agreeable. Price 50 cents, at druggists or by mail.

ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren Street, New York.

PATENTS. TRADE-MARKS.

Examination and Advice as to Patentability of Invention. Send for Inventors' Guide, or How to Get a Patent. PATRICK O'FARRELL, Washington, D. C.

TAPE-WORM Expelled with head Sure Cure within 2 hours. No inconvenience. One dose (price $2) guaranteed sufficient. GUARANI REMEDY CO., Dolgeville, N. Y.

PATENTS Thomas P. Simpson, Washington, D. C. No att'y fee until Patent obtained. Write for Inventor's Guide.

BEST IN THE WORLD.

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH. For durability and for cheapness this preparation is truly unrivalled.

THE RISING SUN STOVE POLISH in cakes for general blacking of a stove.

THE SUN PASTE POLISH for a quick after-dinner shine, applied and polished with a cloth.

Morse Bros., Props., Canton, Mass., U.S.A.

McELREES WINE OF CARDUI.

For Female Diseases.

Beecham's pills are for biliousness, sick headache, dizziness, dyspepsia, bad taste in the mouth, heartburn, torpid liver, foul breath, sallow skin, coated tongue, pimples loss of appetite, etc., when caused by constipation; and constipation is the most frequent cause of all of them.

One of the most important things for everybody to learn is that constipation causes more than half the sickness in the world, especially of women; and it can all be prevented. Go by the book, free at your druggist's, or write B. F. Allen Co., 365 Canal St., New York. Pills, 10¢ and 25¢ a box.

Annual sales more than 6,000,000 boxes.

NO COOD Kitchen complete without our ROTARY BISCUIT AND CAKE CUTTER. Samples of Round or Square mailed for 15 cts., or the two for 25 cts. AGENTS WANTED. They Sell AT SIGHT!

SIDWAY MFG. CO., 32 to 40 South Jefferson St., CHICAGO, ILL. (Please mention this paper.)

STEEL TANKS

We furnish steel tanks with covers, all galvanized after completion, in nests of ten, 8 to 12 feet high and 30 to 36 inches in diameter, at 2½c. per gallon. They do not rust, shrink, leak, give taste to water, nor allow foreign substances to get in. They can be put in garret or barn and thus are protected from freezing. They take no setting up, are cheaper than wood. Tank substructures of all sizes made to order. Send for price list and designs for substructure and ornamental water supply. AERMOTOR CO. CHICAGO.

2½ CTS PER GAL.

Did you ever stop to think how completely the Aermotor Co. made the modern windmill business? How it has monopolized this entire line of manufacture because of its ideas, inventions, designs, qualities and prices, or forced others to be literal and servile imitators? Witness the steel wheel, the back geared pumper, the high geared power mill, the steel towers, fixed and tilting, the galvanizing of work after completion, the grinder centrifugal feed, the improved irrigating and other pumps, the all steel pole saw—one of the most popular things we ever put out—the steel storage and stock tanks. Everything we have touched we have bettered and cheapened. It is the thing we have delighted in and it has paid. We have established a score of branch houses, so as to have all these goods near those who want them. The Aermotor Co. has but one more ambition. It wants to build and fill one more new building. It has 3 acres of land at its present location unoccupied by buildings. It expects to commence in June to cover that 3 acres with a single building, 7 stories high. This will give it 14 more acres of floor space. Then when the public demand requires more goods than can be produced with this added space, it will refuse to extend further, or make any effort. It will have done its share to supply that demand. It will then turn away all comers. UNTIL THAT TIME IT EXPECTS TO CONTINUE TO SUPPLY THE WORLD WITH THE GREATER PART OF ITS WIND WHEELS, TOWERS, GRINDERS, FEED CUTTERS, PUMPS, STEEL FRAME BUZZ SAWS, STEEL STORAGE AND STOCK TANKS, STEEL SUBSTRUCTURES, ETC., ETC., GALVANIZED AFTER COMPLETION. IT WILL CONTINUE TO DEAL MOST LIBERALLY WITH THE PUBLIC, FURNISH REPAIRS AT A LOW PRICE, AND BE THE GREAT MODEL SQUARE-DEALING WIND POWER AND WATER SUPPLY HOUSE OF THE WORLD. AERMOTOR CO., CHICAGO.

W. L. DOUGLAS $3 SHOE IS THE BEST. FIT FOR A KING.

$3. CORDOVAN, FRENCH & ENAMELLED CALF.
$4, $3.50 FINE CALF & KANGAROO
$3.50 POLICE, 3 SOLES.
$2.50 $2. WORKINGMEN'S. EXTRA FINE.
$2, $1.75 BOYS' SCHOOL SHOES.
LADIES. $3, $2.50 $2, $1.75 BEST DONGOLA.

SEND FOR CATALOGUE. W. L. DOUGLAS, BROCKTON, MASS.

Over One Million People wear the W. L. Douglas $3 & $4 Shoes

All our shoes are equally satisfactory. They give the best value for the money. They equal custom shoes in style and fit. Their wearing qualities are unsurpassed. The prices are uniform,—stamped on sole. From $1 to $3 saved over other makes. If your dealer cannot supply you we can.

NORA.—I wonder what Ripans Tabules are? I see them advertised everywhere.

DORA.—Well, I can tell you. They are a household necessity.

F. W. N. U. - - - - No. 17—95

When Writing to Advertisers, say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

FOR ALL THE ILLS THAT PAIN CAN BRING .....

ST. JACOBS OIL

..... AS CURE IS KING; Alike with ACHES in Everything.

"IF AT FIRST YOU DON'T SUCCEED, TRY

SAPOLIO

LYON'S 7 WONDERS

A SPECIFIC For all DERANGEMENTS of the STOMACH. PRICE $1.00

Manf by THE LYON MEDICINE CO. INDIANAPOLIS IND.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

"I CAN SWEAR BY IT."

Webb Robinson, a Gallant Fireman, Adds His Testimony.

INDIANAPOLIS, August 1, 1894.

To the Lyon Medicine Co.:

GENTLEMEN—I tried many remedies for a complication of stomach troubles, but found nothing to do me any good until I tried LYON'S SEVEN WONDERS. I can swear by that remedy as being all it is claimed to be, and cheerfully recommend it to sufferers from stomach and kidney troubles.

WEBB ROBINSON,
Engine Company No. 5,
West Sixth Street.

Insist on ARM AND HAMMER SODA in packages

ARM AND HAMMER

BEWARE of imitation trade marks and labels.

Costs no more than inferior package soda—never spoils the flour, keeps soft, and is universally acknowledged purest in the world.

Write for Arm and Hammer Book of 97 table Receipts—FREE.

Sold by Grocers every where.

Made only by CHURCH & CO., New York.

OUR GREAT APRIL SALE

ROOT & COMPANY FT. WAYNE

Will be an attraction to the ladies of this city and vicinity of unusua Merit and Magnitude.

The Dantiest Patterns In Silks.

More positively than ever has our large Silk Department become Headquarters for the best bargains in Seasonable Silks. New fancy Silks for Waists will create a very great sensation.

50c. 60c. 75c. 88c. and $100.

White and Evening Crystal and Gros de Londres Silks, New Black Satin Brocades, New Black Satin for Skirts, New Evening Crepes, Charming Shades and Very Cheap.

Black Crepons

For the great April Sale, all in stock; Black Broadcloths for Capes; Black Serges and Fancies, All-Wool and Silk and Wool.

Colored Dress Fabrics.

Elegant lines of the Charming New Crepons in all Colors, Light Weight and Wool Novelties.

35c. 40c. 50c. 60c. 75c and $1.00

Our New Spring Underwear.

The demand has now set in with a vim, White and Ecru, Silk Cotton Lisle—Long Sleeves, Short Sleeves, No Sleeves, Union Suits.

Our Carpet Department

Shows its complete lines of New Carpeting---Wiltons, Axminsters, Moquettes, Body and Tapestry Brussels, Ingrains.

Drapery and Upholstery Goods

In the greatest variety; and at lower prices than have been known. This is the month to get good selections.

MAIL ORDERS CAREFULLY EXECUTED.

ROOT & COMPANY.

TOWER'S SURFACE CULTIVATOR

IS THE PIONEER OF ITS CLASS, And is now perfected

Can not be equalled for Corn, Potatoes, Cabbages and Tobacco Culture.

IT IS A PERFECT ERADICATOR OF Morning Glories, Cockleburrs, Dock, Grass and other noxious Weeds.

EQUALLY AS EFFICIENT IN WET AS IN DRY SEASONS.

All the Agricultural Experiment Stations in the country have decided in favor of surface culture, and all of them who have tested it have decided in favor of the Tower Hoe Cultivator for that purpose.

Manufactured by

J. D. TOWER & BRO., MENDOTA, ILL.

Rheumatism Cured in a Day.—"Myst Cure" for Rheumatism and Neuralgia radically cures in 1 to 3 days. Its action upon the system is remarkable and mysterious. It removes at once the cause and the disease immediately disappears. The first dose greatly benefits. 75 cts Sold by Robbins & McCord, druggists, Auburn. 41tf

PILES! PILES! PILES!

Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment will cure Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles when all other Ointments have failed. It absorbs the tumors allays the itching at once, acts as a poultice, gives instant relief. Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment is prepared only for Piles and itching of the private parts, and nothing else. Every box is warranted. Sold by druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of price, 50c. and $1.00 per box. WILLIAMS MFG. CO. Prop's, Cleveland, O. Sold on a guarantee by Mathers & Gerke.

Dr. H. R Fish, of Gravais Mills, Mo., a practicing physician of many years experience, writes: De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve has no equal for indolent sores, scalds and burns. It stops pain instantly heals a burn quickly and leaves no scar.

BUCKLEN'S ARNICA SALVE.—The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Robbins & McCord. tf

De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve cures scalds, burns, indolent sores and never fails to cure piles.

T. F. Anthony, ex-postmaster of Promise City, Iowa, says: "I bought one bottle of 'Mystic Cure' for Rheumatism and two doses of it did me more good than all the medicine I ever took." Sold by Robbins & McCord, druggists, Auburn. 41tf

La Grippe is here again with all of its old time vigor. One Minute Cough Cure is a reliable remedy. It cures and cures quickly.

Relief in One Day.

South American Nervine relieves the worst cases of nervous prostrations nervousness and nervous dyspepsia in a single day. No such relief and blessing has ever come to the invalids of this country. Its powers to cure the stomach are wonderful in the extreme. It always cures; it cannot fail. It radically cures all weakness of the stomach and never disappoints. Its effects are marvelous and surprising.—It gladdens the hearts of the suffering and brings immediate relief. It is a luxury to take and always safe. Trial bottles 15 cents. Sold by Robbins & McCord druggist Auburn Ind. 50tf

Rebecca Wilkinson, of Brownsvalley, Ind., says: I have been in a distressed condition for three years from Nervousness Weakness of the Stomach, Dyspepsia and Indigestion until my health was gone. I had been doctoring constantly with no relief. I bought one bottle of South American Nervine, which did me more good than any $50 worth of doctoring I ever did in my life. I would advise every weakly person to use this valuable and lovely remedy; a few bottles of it has cured me completely. I consider it the greatest medicine in the world." Warranted the most wonderful stomach and nerve cure ever known. Trial bottles 15 cents Sold by Robbins and McCord druggist, Auburn Ind. 34tf

W. T. Stafford, Station Agent of Leeper, Clarion Co. Pa., writes; I can recommend One Minute Cough Cure as the best I ever used. It gave instant relief and a quick cure.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

L. S. & M. S R. R.

TIME TABLE—In Effect Nov. 18, 1894.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

Stations—	Mail.	Exp'ss	Fre'gt
Fort Wayne,.... p	11 45 am	4 45 pm	6 40 am
New Era.....	12 14 pm	5 14	7 27
Auburn Junc.....	12 25	5 25	7 38
Auburn.....	12 29	5 29	8 37
Waterloo.....	12 41	5 41	9 24
Summit.....	12 52	52	9 45
Steubenville.....	12 56	5 56	.....
Pleasant Lake..	1 03	6 03	10 12
Angola.....	1 13	6 14	10 50
Jackson.....	3 25	8 35	4 30

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

Stations—	Freight	Exp'ss	Mail
Jackson..... dp	6 55 am	11 20 am	6 30 am
Angola.....	12 25 pm	2 21 pm	8 51
Pleasant Lake.....	1 03	2 32	9 01
Steubenville.....	.....	2 40	9 07
Summit.....	1 25	2 44	9 11
Waterloo	2 30	3 09	9 34
Auburn.....	3 00	3 11	9 35
Auburn Junc...	3 14	3 14	9 38
New Era..... ..	4 05	3 34	9 50
Fort Wayne	5 25	3 55	10 25

For rates on tickets or freight to all points call on or address E. T. DeLAPP, Agent at Auburn

FRONT AND BACK VIEW

AMERICAN SILVER TRUSS

LIGHT COOL Easy to Wear No pressure on Hips or Back. No understraps. Never moves.

Retains Severest Hernia with Comfort.

MANUFACTURED AT 290 Main St., BUFFALO, N. Y.

For Sale by Fischler & Son, Auburn, Ind.

English Spavin Liniment removes all hard, soft or callonsed lumps and blemishes from horses, blood spavins curbs, splints, sweeney, ring-bone stifles, sprains, all swollen throats coughs, etc. Save $50 by use of one bottle. Warranted the most wonderful blemish cure ever known. Sold by Robbins and McCord druggists Auburn. 34tf

Our patrons will find De Witt's Little Early Risers a safe and reliable remedy for constipation, dyspepsia and liver complaints.

$15 A DAY is fair wages for a boy. I made this working for W. M. WOODWORTH, Kokomo, Ind. Anyone with ordinary ability can do the same; a deaf and dumb person can sell the goods as it does not require any talking. The samples, worth $1.00 will be sent with instructions, for 20 cents. Better send now best opportunity of your life to make money

Everybody Buys.

THE best investment in real estate is to keep buildings well painted. Paint protects the house and saves repairs. You sometimes want to sell—many a good house has remained unsold for want of paint. The rule should be, though, "the best paint or none." That means

Strictly Pure White Lead

You cannot afford to use cheap paints. To be sure of getting Strictly Pure White Lead, look at the brand; any of these are safe:

"Anchor," "Collier," "Eckstein," "Shipman," "Armstrong & McKelvy," "Southern," "Dayton-Bauman," "Red Seal," "Davis-Chambers," "Fahnestock."

FOR COLORS.—National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors.

These colors are sold in one-pound cans, each can being sufficient to tint 25 pounds of strictly Pure White Lead the desired shade; they are in no sense ready-mixed paints, but a combination of perfectly pure colors in the handiest form to tint Strictly Pure White Lead.

A good many thousand dollars have been saved property-owners by having our book on painting and color-card. Send us a postal card and get both free.

NATIONAL LEAD CO.
Chicago Branch,
State and Fifteenth Streets, Chicago.

For sale by John L Davis, Auburn, Ind

Read it in the Paper.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison, of Bolan, Worth Co., Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own: "It cured me right up." He also says: A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad that he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me, he procured a bottle of it and it cured them in a week. 50 cent bottles for sale by Robbins & McCord. 14-17

Cures permanently.

Our better halves say they could not keep house without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is used in more than half the homes in Leeds. Sim Bros., Leeds, Iowa. This shows the esteem in which that remedy is held where it has been sold for years and is well known. Mothers have learned that there is nothing so good for colds, croup and whooping cough, that it cures these ailments quickly and permanently, and that it is pleasant and safe for children to take 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Robbins & McCord. 14-17

No Better Liniment Made.

I recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm for the rheumatism, lame back, sprains and swellings. There is no better liniment made. I have sold over 100 bottles of it this year and all were pleased who used it. J. F Pierson, druggist, South Chicago, Ill. It is for sale by Robbins and McCord. 14 17

For Bilious Colic.

It will be an agreeable surprise to persons subject to attacks of bilious colic to learn that prompt relief may be had by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Colera and Diarrhœa Remedy. In many instances the attack may be prevented by taking this remedy as soon as the first symptoms of the disease appear. 25 and 50 cents bottles for sale by Robbins & McCord 14-17

DR. WILLIAMS' KIDNEY PILLS

A remedy that has no equal in diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs. Have you neglected your kidneys? Have you overworked your nervous system and caused trouble with your kidneys and liver? Have you pains in the loins, side, back, loins and bladder? Have you a flabby appearance of the face, especially under the eyes? Too frequent desire to pass urine? No matter what the cause, we know Dr. Williams' Kidney Pills will cure you. Imparts new life to the diseased organs, tones up the whole system and makes a new man of you. Mailed on receipt of price, $1.00 per box.
WILLIAMS M'F'G CO., Props., Cleveland, O.
Sold by FISCHLER & SON, Auburn. 1y

Relief in Six Hours.

Distressing Kidney and Bladder diseases relieved in six hours by the "New Great South American Kidney Cure." This new remedy is a great surprise on account of its exceeding promptness in relieving pain in the bladder, kidneys back and every part of the urinary passages in male or female. It relieves retention of water and pain in passing it almost immediately. If you want quick relief and cure this is your remedy. Sold by Robbins and McCord druggists Auburn Ind. 34tf

Sick headache, constapation and indigestion are quickly cured by De Witt's Little Early Risers, the famous little pills.

J. A. Richardson, of Jefferson City, Mo. Chief Enrolling force 36th general assembly of Missouri, writes: I wish to testify to the merits of One Minute Cough Cure. When other so-called cures failed, I obtained almost instant relief and a speedy cure by the use of One Minute Cough cure.

B. H. Bowman; Pub. Enquirer: at Bremen, Ind., writes: Last week our little girl baby the only one we have was taken sick with croup. After two Doctors failed to give relief and life was hanging on a mere thread we tried One Minute Cough Cure and its life was saved.

It Never Fails.

Harris & Buquo, Erin, Tenn., manufacturers of the celebrated Erin Lime, have in their employ, in the various departments of their business several hundred men. The firm write to the Drummond Medicine Co., 48 Maiden Lane, New York, in great praise of Drummond's Lightning Remedy for rheumatism, and they say they have cured four cases with it, and that it has not failed in a single instance. The remedy always gives satisfaction. Send $5 to the Drummond Medicine Co., and they will send to your address two large bottles a month's treatment, by return express. Agents wanted. 39-40

Your Lame Back.

And the painful torture in joints and muscles is nothing but rheumatism. Nothing but rheumatism kills people. Nothing like Drummond's Lightning Remedy for speedy relief and quick cure. Accept nothing in its place, for nothing else will do the work The full month's treatment of two large bottles sent to any address by express on receipt of $5. Drummond Medicine Co., 48 Maiden Lane, New York. Agents wanted. 39-40

Pitcher's Castoria. Children Cry for

WE GOT THE RAIN!

"'Scuttous like," said the tree toad,
"I've twittered for rain all day;
And I got up soon,
And hollered till noon;
But the sun hit blazed away.
Till I jest clumb down in a crawfish hole,
Weary at heart and sick at soul,

"Dozed away for an hour,
And I tackled the thing again;
And I sung, and sung,
Till I knowed my lung
Was jest about to give in;
And then, thinks I, ef it don't rain now,
There's nothin' in singin' anyhow.

"Once in a while some farmer
Would come a drivin' past;
And he'd hear me cry,
And stop and sigh,
Till I jest laid back at last,
And I hollered rain till I thought my throat
Would bust wide open at ever' note.

"But I fetched her! O, I fetched her!
'Cause a little while ago,
As I kind o' set,
With one eye shet,
And a singin, soft and low,
A voice drapped down on my fevered brain,
Saying, 'Ef you'll jest hush, I'll rain.'"

—James Whitcomb Riley.

DeKalb Man Again.

HE GOES WEST AND GROWS UP WITH THE COUNTRY.

All our people will remember J. C. Jackson, so long a resident of Sedan, and who still makes regular business trips to this part of the country. Immediately after Cleveland became president March 5, '93, Mr. Jackson applied for the postoffice, at Howard, Elk County, Kansas, for his son, James A. Jackson. They have lived at Howard, which is a thriving county seat, ever since they went west. To day we received a copy of the "Elk Co., Citizen" published at Howard, in which we read the following:

As we predicted last week the appointment of James A. Jackson to the position of postmaster at Howard has been confirmed by the United States senate, and as soon as the usual preliminaries in regard to the bond are complied with he will take possession of the office. This ends one of the hottest fights ever made for a postoffice in Kansas. Judge A. M. Jackson made two trips to Washington in the interest of Henry Bruce, and it is reported that Judge Jerry McCue, of Independence made a trip to the capital in support of the same gentleman. The interests of James A Jackson were looked after by his faher, Mr. J C. Jackson, whose acquaintance with many prominent statesmen at Washington is of long standing. He took with him to Washington a petition signed by over 400 patrons of the Howard postoffice, and letters from 46 business firms of the city, asking that his son be appointed postmaster. A prominent official said it was one of the best endorsements ever sent up from the state. The people of Howard will never have occasion to regret the appointment of Mr Jackson. He is a young man of the highest qualifications, and while his opponents were honorable gentlemen and qualified for the position they were seeking, Mr. Jackson is the peer of any of them and will make a worthy successor to our present postmaster.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

[illegible] it is better of most of those who [illegible] owed the scene of the accident. Ulmer [illegible] been in the service of the Empire [illegible] mpany almost from its beginning. He [illegible] as aged twenty-two years. One of the [illegible] range things concerning him and his [illegible] ork was that his folks have been very [illegible] nxious to have him engage in some[illegible] ing less hazardous, but as he owed a [illegible] w dollars on his team he decided last [illegible] ight to make one more trip and then [illegible] und work which if less remunerative [illegible] ould at least be safer. The trip of this [illegible] orning was his last.

All that could be found of Ulmer's re[illegible] ains were a few bits of clothing and [illegible] agments of bleeding flesh which were

MRS. OSCAR LOCKWOOD.

Mrs. Oscar Lockwood of Jackson township who has for a number of months been a victim of that dread disease consumption died Sunday evening. Her funeral will be held at the house Tuesday at 1 o'clock conducted by Rev. W. L. Meese and interment will be in Woodlawn cemetery Mr. Lockwood is also lying at the point of death with consumption and may be dead before another issue of the paper.

MRS. SCHOUP.

Mrs. Wm. Schoup who lived near Haynes corner died Saturday evening. She was quite old and had been a sufferer for some time. The funeral was conducted at Union Chapel Monday by Rev. J. D. Brosy. The interment took place in the cemetery at the church. She was born in Stark, Co., Ohio, Sept. 12, 1823 aged 71 years, 7 month and 8 days.

ELECTION NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that an election will be held in the incorporated town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana on

Monday, May 6, 1895

for the purpose of electing,
One Marshal,
One Clerk,
One Treasurer,
each for the term of one (1) year;
One Trustee in second (2) ward,
One Trustee in fifth (5) ward,
each for the term of two (2) years.
That the Polling places for such election will be at the following places to-wit;
North precinct at the residence of Caleb Neal
Middle precinct at the office of Jacob Walborn,
South precinct at the residence of Mr. Hanes known as the Eagle property.
In witness whereof I have hersunto set my hand and affixed the seal of said town this 16th day of April 1895.
MILO D. HUSSELMAN, Town Clerk.

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of John Nichols deceased late of said County.
Said estate is supposed to be solvent,
WILLIAM SEELEY Administrator.
April 15, 1895.
Baxter & Brown Attorney's

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Wednesday's Daily:

The Old, Old, Days.

[Communicated.]

ED. COURIER: After reading J. A. Campbell's reminiscences in a recent COURIER It bought perhaps some pioneer stories from the River district might be read with interest. Sixty years ago this March, and towards the latter part of the month, Cornelius and Solomon Woodcox who had been living on the Maumee River just above Defiance for a year or two, came across the, then unbroken wilderness striking the St. Joe river at the point now known as Orangeville, They continued on down the river one mile and encamped on what is now known as the Walters farm. There they located, Cornelius on the south side of the river and Solomon on the north side the river being the boundary between their farms. They returned to Defiance and spent that summer and winter 1835 6 November, 5th., 1835, the elder brother married Mary Saylor. In the spring of 1836 the latter part of March or fore part of April they moved to their home on the St. Joe. Starting from Defiance on horseback, with all their household goods tied up in bundles the better to carry them. After leaving what is known by old settlers as the Curtice farm 10 miles down the Maumee from Antwerp, they struck out across the, then wilderness, keeping on an old Indian trail until somewhere near where Hicksville O., now stands. At that point they left the trail and took to the woods "as it were" with nothing to guide except a pocket compass. So well were their circulations made that they arrived at nine o'clock in the night at Henry Robertson's cabin on the place adjoining their own. There they were made welcome, and remained there a few days until they could build a cabin of their own which was completed in three days by the help of the brothers Solomon and Henry Robertson

And very well I remember that cabin in the woods close to the banks of the St. Joe river, its length was 18 feet, width 14 feet and if we remember 7 or 8 feet high The floor was of puncheon, split from hackberry and basswood from ten to twenty inches wide. Where they were too rough they were made smooth and to nearly a uniform thickness, and then spiked down with wooded pins, with the use of an old ¾ inch auger to bore the holes. For a cook stove, we had a big chimney that nearly took up one end, built of stone and mud for the first few feet, then of split sticks and mud on the outside of the cabin. For a door, two puncheons were again spiken on the arms with wooden pins, with a wooden latch on the inside which I have heard Father say, was whittled out with an old fashioned Barlow pocket knife. It had the regulation chink and mud to fill up the cracks between the logs. One window graced the one side, but instead of glass, greased paper let in the light for the first year, and then a six light 8x10 sash and glass was obtained second handed. For a beadstead, four basswood round posts, with sides of same material only split in halves and spiked on with wooden pins for a spring bottom. Basswood bark was interwoven lengthwise and crosswise, which soon formed a convenient bed. For a mattress, the wife had a bed tick which she had made with her own hands from flax raised the year before. The bedding they had brought with them to fill the tick, wild grass was secured from some of the low land. For a table, holes were bored into the logs and pins of three feet long were driven in, then the puncheon came into place again, one of the right length and width being secured they were securely fastened by the wooden pins. Chairs were made out of the puncheon with legs of the required length. For cupboard and pantry, some more pins were driven into the logs and wide clapboards used for shelves. Then some calico, white muslin or linen, was made to do duty as doors. An old modern clock was set up on a clapboard shelf and told them the time of day and night for over 50 years. The old clock is yet in the family of the writer, but has for some years refused to do its duty but will be preserved for what it has done,

***

It May Do as Much for You.

Mr. Fred Miller, of Irving, Ill, writes that he had a severe kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back, and also that his bladder was affected. He tried many so called kidney cures but without any good result. About a year ago he began the use of Electric Bitters and found relief at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to the cure of all kidney and liver troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price only 50 cents for large bottles at Robbins & McCord's drug store. 6

Wealth Does Not Bring Happiness,

Unless you have been relieved of the ague, gout, rheumatism, neuralgia, etc., and the nature of eczema, glandular swellings, scrofula and all diseases of the blood, using infallible Scotch Cure, the great remedy was introduced in America by the Hall Medicine Company, Toledo, Ohio. For sale by druggists. Accept no substitute. Infallible Scotch Remedies cures. 16 17

ANOTHER FIRE.

This time one of our valuable factories, but the loss was paid in full by one of the strong fire insurance companies represented by WALTER C. HARTMAN. Give him your insurance.

DAN RICE, the veteran showman, is still living in a quiet old age, at 71.

THE 28TH TRIENNIAL CONCLAVE KNIGHTS TEMPLAR

will be held in Boston, Mass, August 26th to 30th, 1895. For this occasion the Wabash Railroad will sell tickets from all stations to Boston at one fare for the round trip. Map of route and guide to Boston will be mailed on application to C. S. Crane Gen'l Pass'r and Ticket Agent St. Louis, Mo. 17 2m

The United Society of Christian Endeavor

and the National Young People's Christian Union will hold their Fourteenth International Convention at Boston, July 10 to 14, 1895. The Wabash Railroad has reduced the rate to one first-class fare for the round trip from all stations to Boston for this occasion. For maps of route and guide to Boston write to C. S. Crane Gen'l Pass'r and Ticket Agent, St. Louis, Mo. 17 2m

HEART DISEASE!

Fluttering, No Appetite, Could Not Sleep, Wind on Stomach.

"For a long time I had a terrible pain at my heart, which fluttered almost incessantly. I had no appetite and could not sleep. I would be compelled to sit up in bed and belch gas from my stomach until I thought that every minute would be my last. There was a feeling of oppression about my heart, and I was afraid to draw a full breath. I could not sweep a room without resting. My husband induced me to try and am happy to say it has cured me. I now have a splendid appetite and sleep well. Its effect was truly marvelous."

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure

MRS. HARRY E. STARR, Pottsville, Pa.

Dr. Miles Heart Cure is sold on a positive guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. All druggists sell it at $1, 6 bottles for $5, or it will be sent, prepaid, on receipt of price by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

HORSEMEN

SAVE YOUR STOCK BY USING THE CELEBRATED

Morris' English Stable Powder
For Loss of Appetite, Constipation, Rough Hair, Hide Bound, and all Diseases of the Blood.
Price, 25c. per package.

Morris' English Stable Liniment
Cures Lameness, Cuts, Bruises, Scratches, Galls, Sweeney, Spavins, Splint, Curb, etc.
Price, 50c. per bottle.

Morris' English Worm Powder
Warranted to cure any case of Worms in Horses, Cattle, Sheep or Dogs, also Pin Worms in Colts.
Price, 50c. per box.

Craft's Distemper and Cough Cure
A Specific for Distemper, Coughs, Colds, Heaves, Pink Eye, and all Catarrhal diseases of horses.
Price, 50c. $1.00 per bottle.

Wells' Hoosier Poultry Powder
Makes Hens Lay, cures Cholera, Gapes and Roup, and keeps poultry healthy.
Price, 25c. per package.

Every remedy guaranteed satisfactory or money refunded. Our new book, "The Horse: His Diseases and Treatment," mailed free.
Wells Medicine Co., Lafayette, Ind.

For Sale by, Fischle & Son., Auburn.

THE HUB'S BOYS' HEAD-TO-FOOT OUTFITS

PRODUCE

THIS AND PREVENT THIS

THESE HEAD-TO-FOOT OUTFITS

Consist of One COAT, Two Pairs of PANTS, One CAP to Match and a Pair of Shoes.

And the price of the whole outfit is Only $5.00

If on receipt you do not consider them the greatest bargain you ever bought for $5.00 you can send back the outfit and we expressly agree to return your money.

Send for samples of the cloth and full description of the outfit, also for our new spring catalogue—all sent free on application.

THE HUB, The World's Largest Clothing House, CHICAGO, ILL.

THE AUBURN COURIER.

VOLUME XXV. AUBURN, DE KALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY. MAY 2. 1895. NUMBER 18

SAY : :

HOW MUCH DO YOU OWE?

Who holds your mortgage? How much interest are you paying? Do you owe a building loan association anything? If you do, how much interest are you paying them? Unless you are better posted than the majority of people who have such loans, you cannot tell. You think you are paying 6 per cent. Do you know (of course not) that you are paying at least 12 per cent. If you think not, just figure it out yourself. Now then, are you not paying 6 per cent interest and 6 per cent premium? Certainly. Well now don't you know that premium and interest are the same thing—its all interest. Can you afford to pay 12 per cent interest to a loan association when even your banks only charge 8 per cent and you think they are charging too much, and when do you expect to have your loan canceled or paid off in full? You have been told 72 or 78 months. Now then, we undertake to say that it will take you 100 months, if you will call on us we will show you so you will be satisfied that we are right. Now then, we are prepared to loan you money on monthly installment plan for 8 per cent, we charge you no membership fee and you do not have to make three or more payments in advance so that if on account of insufficient security or bad title your loan is rejected you will not lose one cent. You pay nothing unless your loan is granted. We are making farm loans at from 3 to 5 per cent with privilege of partial payments.

ANOTHER THING!

There is scarcely a day but what there is some traveling agent for some building loan association in Auburn soliciting business, selling stock upon which they charge you a membership fee of from 50 cents to $1.00 per share, which amount goes to the agent and you never get back this money thrown away. If you will call on us we will take your application for all the stock you want in the BEST (we can prove it) building loan association in the state the INDIANA MUTUAL OF INDIANAPOLIS, and charge you No MEMBERSHIP FEE AT ALL. This is certainly fair. If you have any investment stock in any association just write them a letter and ask them the withdrawal value of same, their reply will probably open your eyes. What would you say if you would deposit $8.00 per month in your bank for one year and wanted to withdraw the same and they would offer to pay you only about $80? The bank would only have to do this in one case to be compelled to retire from business. Now you pay ten dollars membership fee and 8 dollars for 12 months making 108 dollars, you lose the 10 dollars membership fee and 10 cents per share each month for expenses, making 12 dollars, or a total of 22 dollars loss upon which you would receive 6 per cent interest for average time on 96 dollars, making 2 dollars and 88 cts. from 22 dollars would leave you a loser of 19 dollars and 12 cents. In our association your stock is worth alll you have paid in, with its interest added, so that upon withdrawal you do not get less than you paid. We want the people of Auburn to become familiar with this matter, and would like to have any that are interested to call and talk with us, we can give you some pointers.

We are still in the Real Estate, Insurance and R. R. Ticket business.

RICKEL & SPROTT

AUBURN, INDIANA.

U. S. MONEY.

QUESTIONS OF TO-DAY, WERE LEADING TOPICS A CENTURY AGO.

The money questions we are now so earnestly discussing are not entirely new though many in this generation are studying them for the first time. And believing a brief account of these will be both interesting and profitable, we propose to give it to our readers in a few short installments, such as will neither weary them nor be a burden to our columns. But about the close of the Revolutionary war, in fact, before the final period, the paper money issued by the temporary government, to carry on the war had become worthless. This is what we now call "continentinal currency" a few bills of which are held yet by some of our older families, as relics, or curiosities. As this money became useless, there was an urgent necessity for some sort of currency to take its place, for if we had no money we could not trade abroa and even in our own country the people could deal only in "barter," that is, a farmer would have to trade a bushel of potatoes for its value in goods. And this was practiced a great deal. In North Carolina, whisky was used as a standard of value; in Virginia, it was tobacco, while in most states, a load of products would have to be shipped abroad in order to pay for the ship's return load of foreign goods or products For it took but a year or two to carry out of the country what little specie we had. In 1785 the congress, attempted to provide for a safe and abundant currency, but no United States money was actually coined until 1793. The coined money in circulation was chiefly English and Spanish, with a smaller amount of French and German coins. Of the English coins there were the ninepence, four-pence ha' pennies, bits and half bits. pence and half pence, gold guineas, etc. Of other foreign coins there were silver pistareens and picayunes, the gold Joe, the moidore, pistole, etc. Several of the states had made coins of their own. but the quantity was so small, that but little effect was had in business. The Spanish silver dollar, was common, and so was the English silver shilling. But the shilling had various values in various localities and states. In New York it took 10 of them to equal a Spanish dollar; in the New England states it took 6; in North Carolina, 10, and so on, thus giving rise to the old "state currency" values. To make matters worse, there was the large debt of most of the states, and the "federal debt" made by the temporary congressional government to carry on the war. This debt was about 170 millions, a big debt for those days. The several states, being largely independent among themselves, had undertaken to pay, each its part, of this debt. But not a fifth had been paid. People quit paying taxes and so the states quit paying anything on this National debt. So that at one time in 1782 there was not a single good dollar in the general treasury. Such wealthy patroits as Robert Morris had to furnish the money used in the last years of the war. So it was seen we must have a better financial system, and this compelled us to organize a new and stronger government, which we did under the new constitution.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist church at Rives Junction she was brought down with pneumonia succeding lagrippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interuption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial ottles free at Robbins & McCord's drugstore. Regular size 50c. and $1.00. 1

The Rush
STILL CONTINUES.

The people know when they get a good thing. It's the talk of the town, the South Side Buggy Repository, where they are selling Buggies, Phaetons, Surreys and Road Wagons at Free Trade Prices.

What you want is the Best at a price you can afford to pay. We have All Styles at the Right Prices. You are sure to be pleased by calling on

McDowell AND Carter,

SOUTH OF COURT HOUSE.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher is on every wrapper.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

THOMSON TRIAL.

THE DEFENDANT GETS ONE YEAR AND A FINE OF $200. DISFRANCHISED FOR TWO YEARS.

The case of state vs Chas, F. Thomson came up on Monday at Angola. It had been sent there on change of venue from this county, as noted in the DAILY COURIER at the time, in which we gave in full the reason for making the change. This case has caused a great deal of interest in this county, where Thomson has lived all his life, and where his people and connections are of the best standing. That he has committed this crime, there were many who would not believe. And yet the other offenses for which he was called to account several years ago, were fresh in their minds. His case was a peculiar one. He did not steal or do any of the things brought against him at different times, because he had to, but apparently because he had a taste for such things. His people were well-to-day, and could have, and did as far as we know, furnish him all he needed. He was at one time a promising young man and was taken into the best society. He finally married into an honorable family, his wife being an estimable lady. It was thought this last stop would, and had turned him to a better life. But it seems his old tastes returned:

The charge against him, was that on last December, he paid his hired hand, one, Kessler, $30 on his wages. At the time Thomson's wife was absent from home and Thomson and Kessler were keeping house alone.

Kessler took the money and put it in his trunk, locked it, then went away to visit his uncle in the neighborhood and agreed to be back by 4 o'clock, leaving Thompson there alone. About that time he returned and found that his money and silver watch had been taken, and things disturbed generally in the house. Thomson in the same time had gone to Ashley, leaving no one in the house. A few minutes after Kessler returned Thomson returned also, Thomson claimed that his revolver and $10 in money had also been taken. In a couple of weeks afterwards Thomson went to Fort Wayne, and brought back a bicycle and ladies gold watch, hunting case key winder claiming that he had purchased it at a pawnshop and gave it his wife as a New Year's present. This directed suspicion towards Thomson, and a man was sent to Fort Wayne who succeeded in finding Kessler's stolen watch in the pawnbroker's shop, the proprietor claiming that he traded a ladies' gold watch for it, similar to the one that Thompson had given his wife. He said the man from whom he received it was a tall man about six feet high with a large mustach, and drab complexion, but he would not say that Thomson was the man. Thomson claims that he bought the gold watch he gave his wife from the same man on the same day the Kessler watch was traded there and gave the man $15 for it. But the pawnbrooker could not remember any such sale by him. The state relied wholly upon circumstantial evidence to establish the guilt of the defendant and it was a very hotly contested case on both sides. The aged father of the accused has always claimed that his son was innocent and in every case has stood by him faithfully, sparing neither time nor money to get him out of difficulty. Now when the case had gone against them, and the prospect of his son going to the penitentiary came up suddenly when the verdict was announced, he broke down and wept. Judge McClellan and C. M. Phillips represented the state and Frank S. Roby, John Shuman and W. W. Wyrick represented the defendent. A motion of a new trial will be made and the case will probably go to the supreme court.

Careless Shooting.

Those boys who do so much shooting on the flats of the creek bottom, should quit it at once, for it is a dangerous practice. If they continue, they should be arrested and severely punished, for it is not the first time they have come near killing some one. Saturday morning, when Mr. Shull was delivering milk at W. H. McIntosh's, as Mrs. M. was getting the milk, they heard a shot on the creek bottom, and then the sound of a bullet striking F. J. Yesbera's house, across the block to the north. As their attention was drawn to this, Mrs, Yesbera came out at the door on that side, and close to where the bullet had struck. They at once realized how near Mrs. Yesbera came to being killed, and as Mr. Shull owns the flat land, he stopped and went down there to see who was doing it. But he did not find them. If boys insist on reducing our population with their guns, we want a committee appointed to select such victims as we can spare. We are not ready to spare our musical people.

J. A. Richardson, of Jefferson City, Mo. Chief Enrolling force 38th general assembly of Missouri. writes: I wish to testify to the merits of One Minute Cough Cure. When other so-called cures failed, I obtained almost instant relief and a speedy cure by the use of One Minute Cough cure.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

Saturday's Daily.

BLOWN TO ATOMS

NITROGLYCERINE EXPLOSION AT BLUFFTON. ONE MAN AND TEAM KILLED.

Shock felt in Towns for Fifty Miles Around, Including Auburn.

The following account of this terrible affair, we we take from the Ft. Wayne Journal, of this morning. It is a dispatch from Bluffton and is probably correct in all its details. We might here state that the shock was plainly noticed in Auburn. We believe Mrs. Dr. Nuebaum, Mrs. John Robbins and Mrs. John Lochner were among the ones who felt the shock and noticed the rattling of the windows. They spoke about it at the time, but of course did not know what it was. The following is the Dispatch:

"At 9 o'clock this morning a terriffic explosion startled every citizen in town. One of the court house windows fell to the ground with a crash, while the shaking and jarring of the houses indicated that some powerful explosive had been set off. The sound came from the nitro-glycerine factory, east of the city, and within ten minutes a hundred vehicles of all kinds, from bicycles to drays, were on the road to Powell's ford loaded down with those who were curious to see what had happened. Their curiosity was soon satisfied.

At the crossing of the ford on the side of the river, a huge hole sixty feet across and extending down to the bed rock twelve feet, yawned in terrible significance as an evidence of what had happened. Bits of harness here and there, parts of bleeding horse flesh, uprooted trees and broken fences showed that one of the Empire's Glycerine wagons had blown up and that driver and team had been sent sky high by the explosion. Back of the explosion was the terrible fact that some human being had been ushered into instant eternity, but as the glycerine company had three or four drivers, there was some question to identify the unfortunate employe.

William Ulmer, son of John Ulmer, south of the city, is without doubt the victim of the casualty. This morning he left the factory at about 7:30 o'clock with 720 quarts of nitro-glycerine for the Montpelier fields, and an hour later when distant little over a mile from the works the explosion occurred. The road leading through the woods is not in the best of condition and that length of time would be required to cover the distance. Emerging from the woods is a rough, stony track that leads across the ford to the river road, and then into town. Ulmer evidently followed this track until he came within ten or twelve feet of the water's edge when the explosion occurred, either by leaking glycerine or by the wagon upsetting against the roots of an oak tree that overhung the road. The latter theory is the more accepted and it is belief of most of those who viewed the scene of the accident. Ulmer has been in the service of the Empire company almost from its beginning. He was aged twenty-two years. One of the strange things concerning him and his work was that his folks have been very anxious to have him engage in something less hazardous, but as he owed a few dollars on his team he decided last night to make one more trip and then find work which if less remunerative would at least be safer. The trip of this morning was his last.

All that could be found of Ulmer's remains were a few bits of clothing and fragments of bleeding flesh which were collected and taken to Coroner McBride's shop. Part of one horse was found a hundred feet from the scence of explosion, while another part fell on the river bank an equal dist ance away.

About two hundred feet from where the explosion occurred, a gypsy family of ten or twelve were encamped. None of them were hurt. though they were thrown to the ground. They could see nothing of the explosion except a huge cloud of dust and dirt from the immense hole made by the nitro-glycerine. A glimpse either of the driver, horses or wagon was impossible, as tons of dirt were hurled upward, hiding them from view.

It hardly seems possible to those unacquainted with the terrible explosive power of nitro-glycerine that so much damage could be done by 720 quarts of the fluid. The hole where the explosion occurred is sixty feet across the top, thirty-five feet at the bottom and extends fifteen feet through stone and gravel to the bed rock. Four or five mammouth oaks stood near the river bank. These were badly uprooted and broken into pieces, while a smaller one was hurled a distance of five hundred feet. Window panes in various parts of the city are reported broken, and every farm house within a radius of two miles is without window glass. Fences and trees were blown down, in fact the shock did incredible damage. Marion, Portland, Muncie, Hartford City, Decatur, Fort Wayne, Huntington, Warren, Ossian and Montpelier felt the jar, and messages came asking the cause, for until the explosion was noised about the citizens of northern Indiana attributed the shock to an earthquake.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder
Awarded Gold Medal Midwinter Fair, San Francisco.

Beginning to remind us of

GOOD OLD TIMES

Again. Business better than it has ever been, even in the great hustle of '92. We are striving to make it even better. With

INCREASED FACILITIES, LARGER STOCK, LOWER PRICES,

we are bound to succeed. Each day we aim to improve one or the other of our

Many Departments.

This week it is in our Clothing, Ladies' Wrap and Carpet Departments..

Brim Full

of choice new goods at

Spot Cash Prices.

More of those elegant Five Dollar Black Capes which have attracted more attention than any other garment this season.

New Hats

In all the latest shapes and shades.

New Summer Neckwear.

in Flowing ends, DeJoinvilles, Silks and Lawns. These are a few of the many attractions on which we can save you money.

SCHAAB & BROTHER

BROWN, CULBERTSON & BOLAND

The leading Hardware and Agricultural Implement Firm in DeKalb Co.

SELLS

Eckhart Buggies,
Turnbull Wagons,
Oliver and Bryan Plows,
Bement Disc and Spring-tooth Harrows,
Bryan Spading Harrows,
Ohio, Albion and New Western Cultivators,
McCormick, Champion and Deering, Binders and Mowers.
Stoves, Tinware, Paints
OILS, Glass, etc., etc.

Come and See

North Side Public Square.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

JAMES A. BARNS, - - PUBLISHER.

AROUND THE WORLD.

INTELLIGENCE FROM ALL PARTS OF THE GLOBE.

News from Foreign Shores—Domestic Happenings—Personal Pointers—Labor Notes—Political Occurrences—Fires, Accidents, Crimes, Etc.

UNEXPECTED.

Were the Orders that United States Naval Vessels Should Go to Nicaragua.

Some sudden and unexpected orders were issued to United States naval vessels late Tuesday afternoon, and caused a sensation for the time, until the purpose of the orders were explained. The Alert, which has been stationed for a month or more at Panama, watching the progress of the revolutionary movement in Colombia, was ordered to proceed at once to San Juan Del Sur, the nearest cable port to Corinto. The Raleigh is now on her way from Kingston, Jamaica, to Key West, and is expected to arrive at the latter place at any moment, and will find waiting her orders to sail at once to Greytown, the eastern terminus of the proposed Nicaragua canal. The Montgomery, now at Mobile, will follow the Raleigh on May 7, with the Nicaraguan canal commission aboard. The Monterey, having sailed from Acapulco direct for Panama, is not expected to touch in Corinto, and as she is now beyond the reach of orders by wire she will probably be allowed to relieve the Alert on guard at Panama, whence she can be ordered back to Nicaragua if the occasion arises in the future. Secretary Herbert explained the meaning of these orders. He said that the movement of the ships had absolutely nothing to do with the present occupation of Corinto by the British, that being a matter to be settled between the Nicaraguans and British. The real purpose of the orders was to guard the American interests in Nicaragua against the consequences of possible revolution which may result from the disturbed condition of the country.

A Car Tragedy.

The dead body of Frederick Boebel, a stone mason of Mansfield, Ohio, member of the contracting firm of Daum & Boebel, was found lying beside the Pennsylvania track, near Spring Mills, a few miles west of Mansfield, by a fireman and an engineer taking a locomotive to Crestline. The body bore four bullet wounds, and the victim had been pounded with a piece of railroad iron. His pockets had been rifled, and his watched was gone. Boebel had been in Indiana on a business trip, and en route home stopped at the stone quarries at Leesville, O. He evidently missed the train at Crestline, and boarded a box car in which were a number of tramps, who assaulted, murdered, and robbed him, and then threw his body from the car, as the soles of his shoes were bloody, evidencing a terrible struggle in the car. Boebel was 45, and leaves a widow and four children.

Bank Robber Foiled.

A stranger walked into the Iowa Trust and Savings bank at Dubuque, Iowa, and walking up to the counter window behind which the funds for the day's use was piled, struck the window with a small hammer that he carried with the evident intention of grabbing the funds and escaping before the employes had recovered from their surprise. Teller Maurice Brown was standing near, and as the window broke he took in the situation at once, and grabbing a revolver shot the man, the ball taking effect in the head. The robber is seriously, but not dangerously wounded, and is now under arrest.

Burned Alive.

L. R. Tressel, a coal dealer and one of the most prominent citizens of Canton, Ohio, after partaking of supper, took a lantern and went to the barn to look after his horse. He went into the hay mow, and in the uncertain light, fell through the hay chute. He was caught fast and his lantern set the hay afire. The barn was partially burned, and Tressel's lifeless body was taken out by the Fire Department.

Crop Reports.

The May crop reports state that the former promise of winter wheat has been further lessened during the last month. In States of principal production, east of the Rocky Mountains, the condition is 82.1, or 1.1 per cent. below the average. This condition indicates a total winter wheat harvest of 344,000,000 bushels. Present indications point to a decided decrease in the spring wheat area.

Gas Explosion.

A special from Elyria, O., says: The G. A. R. hall was wrecked by an explosion of gas. Janitor M. A. Elder went into the hall and detected the smell of gas. He struck a match and opened the door of the water closet when the explosion occurred. Partitions were blown out and windows shivered. Mr. Elder was seriously if not fatally burned about the face and hands.

A Babe's Terrible Death.

The home of Frank Orians, five miles south of Carey, Ohio, was the scene of an accident recently. His four-year-old son, Charlie, was playing in the barnyard and undertook to climb upon a log rack. His weight overbalanced it, and before he could get out of the way the rack fell upon him, crushing his skull and killing him almost instantly.

Down to the Bottom.

The steam barge Sadie Shephard foundered about five miles from the entrance of the river at Toledo, Ohio, and it is thought that all on board were lost, with the exception of Engineer Albert Hamilton, who was picked up by the tug Roy in an unconscious condition.

Kicked to Death.

Mrs. James Warner, of Taylorsville, Ind., was kicked to death in a runaway accident, caused by a collision between a bicycle and the buggy in which she was driving. The bicycle rider was not injured.

Field Fires Raging in Michigan.

Allegan (Mich.) special: Thousand of dollars worth of timber and immense blackberry fields have been destroyed by forest fires, which are raging west of here. Two square miles of territory has been burned over.

Struck it Rich.

The richest gold strike during the past two years has been made in the Anderson property, near Lewiston, Wyo. The vein is 20 feet wide, part of which will run nearly $10,000 per ton.

A TRAMP'S CRIME.

A Lady at Ingalls, Indiana, Is Assaulted and Shockingly Mutilated.

Anderson (Ind.) special: One of the most hideous crimes in the history of the country was committed at Ingalls, south of this city. Mrs. Isaac L. Humes, 50 years of age, was out in her garden, and stepped into a deserted house. She was grabbed by a ruffian and assaulted, after which he took a razor from his pocket and cut her throat, and otherwise horribly mutilated her. There were not less than 25 gashes over the body and face. He then carried her to the opening into the cellar. It was full of water. He threw her into this, and she came to. He fled, and she managed to get out. She dragged herself into the yard and there became unconscious. She was found in this condition and taken to her home, where physicians were called, and they tubed the windpipe, which was severed. She was finally brought to long enough to hisper out the story. She described the man as a low, heavy-set tramp, and a man answering to the description was found getting away from Fortville. He was placed under arrest by the mob and carried back to the house. The general impression was that he was the murderer, and preparations had already been made for the lynching bee by the indignant citizens and farmers who had congregated. He was almost wild when dragged into her room. She was restored to consciousness and glanced at him. She shook her head and said: "No, it is not him." He was finally released and messages were sent in all direction to hold all tramps. She cannot under any circumstances live. The entire community is in arms, and ropes are displayed with pride. All she has to do is to recognize the man and he will be hanged from a tree in front of the house.

RESERVOIR BURSTS.

Several French Villages Suddenly Flooded—Many Lives Lost.

Epinal (France) special: An enormous reservoir near here burst, inundating many villages in the district and drowning numbers of people. Enormous damage has been done in the surrounding country. The railways in all directions are interrupted, and a large number of villages are entirely flooded. In some places the force of the torrent let loose by the break in the dyke was so great that entire houses were swept away, and large trees were torn up by the roots. In a single commune, that of Egney, seven kilometers from the scene of disaster proper, twenty-three persons were drowned. At Nomexy eight bodies have been found. Wherever the water flowed it destroyed everything in its path. The village of Bouzey, with its many pisciculture establishments, has disappeared. The steep, vertical banks of the canal de l' Est burst and emptied a reach of water eleven kilometers long into the Aviere Valley, which then flowed to Nomexy, where it flowed into the river Moselle.

At Darnieulles all the houses were destroyed and few were spared at Aux Forges. Hundreds of families have been rendered homeless. The burst reservoir, which supplies the canal, is situated at Bouzey, and was formed by a dyke 500 meters long. It consists of a wall of masonry twenty meters high and twenty meters thick at its base.

ROBBED HIM.

Three Tramps Hold Up the Agent at Dunfee, Ind.

Dunfee, a small station a few miles west of Fort Wayne, Ind., on the Nickel Plate road, was the scene of one of the most daring robberies ever perpetrated in Northern Indiana

About 1 o'clock Thursday morning O. S. Smith, the night operator, put out signals for a freight train which was due in a few minutes, and had just returned to work at his instrument, when three masked men entered the office, with drawn revolvers, and the leader ordered Smith to telegraph orders giving the freight train the right of way, so that no stop would be made at the station. He was evidently conversant with the workings of the instrument, as when the message was finished he ordered the operator to "break," under penalty of having his head blown off. They then turned their attention to ransacking the office, securing about $5 or $6 from the drawer. They then went through the operator's pockets, securing a gold watch and chain and some small change.

Lima Skaken by an Explosion.

There occurred an explosion at Lima, Ohio, which shook every building in the city. Large brick blocks trembled like reeds in the wind and many buildings do not now boast an unbroken pane of glass. The explosion was traced to the factory of the Ohio and Indiana Torpedo company. Workmen were making a run in the agitator when they saw it had caught fire. Realizing that it was useless to attempt to extinguish the blaze, they left their work and ran for their lives. There were in all fourteen men at work in the factory. A hole large enough to hold a small house was made beneath the factory by the force of the explosion. The shock was felt at Ada, Dunkirk, Delphos, Van Wert and other towns in the neighborhood of Lima. Two years ago in the same spot a similar, but fatal explosion took place.

Demons at Work.

Two attempts were made the other night to wreck the Big Four train known as the "Court-house Flyer," near Benton Harbor, Mich. The first attempt was made five miles south of Benton Habor, where the train struck a dummy car which had been placed on the track. The car was demolished and the front end of the engine damaged. Two miles farther, while moving at a slow rate, the train stock a pile of ties and was delayed two hours. This last accident occurred at what is known as the Sodus curve, the most dangerous part of the road, and had the train been running at its regular speed a fearful accident would have been the result, with possibly a great loss of life. There is no clew to the perpetrators.

Attempted Murder and Suicide.

Lon Hupp, a bartender in Orrville, Ohio, had a little trouble with Frank Clark, a cigar maker, of Washington, D. C., as to who was next in a barber shop. Hupp, with Daniel Brenneman and Daniel Arnold met Clark on Main street, when Brenneman crushed Clark's skull with a club. Clark is still living, but his recovery is believed to be impossible. An officer went to Brenneman's home and placed him under arrest for assault with intent to kill. Brenneman stepped into a bedroom and sent a bullet into his brain and died in less than an hour. He was married, and leaves a wife and nine children. Arnold is in jail.

Unknown Man Killed.

An unknown tramp was run down and killed by a local freight in the Big Four yards at Dayton, Ohio. There was nothing on the man's person to indicate his name or home or friends other than a postal card directed to William Blanco, Jr., Columbus, the signature of which was unintelligible. He was about 25 years old, five feet eight inches in height, and weighed about 165 pounds. He was smooth faced and wore a dark coat and vest and salt and pepper pants, derby hat and congress shoes. He had India ink markings on one arm descriptive of a woman and on the other the initials C. B. M., 1880.

For Cuban Rebels.

The New York Morning Journal says: The American schooner Gracie T, manned secretly by Cuban revolutionists, slid out from her berth at Pier 43, East River, in the darkness of the night of April 6. The lateness of the hour and the stealthiness with which the passengers got aboard prevented detection. The fact that the stanch little craft carried 150 men and a store of supplies was not known until now. The Gracie T landed safely a few miles from Santiago de Cuba, where 70,000 rifles and a full supply of ammunition were concealed.

Arrested for Murder.

Terre Haute (Ind.) special: Officers from this city went to Alexandria, Ind., and arrested Wm. Disbennett, for the murder of an unknown man, whose body was found in an alley in this city on April 21st, 1890. The dead man was sand-bagged and robbed of his money. The murder remained a mystery until about a week ago, when a man who was with Disbennett when the crime was committed made a confession. Disbennett has served a term in the Michigan prison since he did the killing. The dead man was never positively identified.

Father and Babes Perish.

The Fincel Block, storerooms and tenement houses, were destroyed by fire at Frankfort, Ky., and James Yeager, his two children, a boy aged 5 and a girl 9 years, perished in the flames. Several familes occupied flats in the building, and the escape of the others was miraculous, as the fire burst from every part of the buildings at once, and almost completely cut off all escape. Yeager was an old man and crippled, and it is supposed was stifled by the smoke and lost his way out. The firemen heard the cries of his children and attempted to rescue them, but were stifled by the flames. The property, consisting of five storerooms, is a total loss. The fire is thought to have been incendiary.

A Body from the Chicora.

St. Joseph (Mich.) special: The body found at New Buffalo, may yet be identified as Robert McClure, engineer of the Chicora. Upon the arrival of William McClure he was shown the keys and other belongings taken from the body. The keys correspond with those used by him. His brother had a chest like his and they are exactly alike. His knife is also identified. McClure and Agent Whitsler will go and have the body exhumed.

Spain Will Protest.

Madrid special: At a conference between the premier, Canovas del Castillo, and the Minister of the Colonies, Senor Castellanos, the reception accorded in New York to Carlos M. de Cespedes, son of the first president of the Cuban provisional republic, was discussed, and it was decided to call the attention of the United States, as a friendly nation, to the work of the separatists within the United States.

More Dynamite.

Near Grass Creek, Ind., the big barn of Emanuel Rans was set fire by an unknown person and completely destroyed. Seven horses were cremated. The granary near by, in which seven pounds of dynamite was stored, also caught. The explosion which resulted demolished all the buildings on the premises and dangerously wounded Rans and his wife.

Saw Her Daughter Burned.

Eva Ashely, the sixteen-years-old daughter of Robert Ashley of Kokomo, Ind., was fatally burned recently. While at the stove preparing a mixture of turpentine and lard for her sick mother the mixture took fire, igniting her clothing. No one was in the house but the helpless mother, who saw her daughter burned to death.

Frank Huffman Caught.

Word has been received that Frank Huffman, the train robber and desperado, who has operated in Central Missouri for the past five years, had been captured at Collins, Mo. He was recently surrounded and shot in a swamp in Hickory County, but escaped. There is a reward of $300 hanging over his head.

Burned to Death.

Henry Hodnon, living near Tipton, Ind., met with a frightful death. He was alone in the house and his clothing caught fire from a stove. He was quite aged and unable to help himself. He was burned so badly that the flesh dropped from the bones of his arms and lower limbs. He died in one hour.

President McBride Exonerated.

Indianapolis special: The executive committee of the American Federation of Labor finished its work here and adjourned. A motion was adopted exonerating President McBride on the charges of bribery in the settlement of the miners' and Hocking Valley Railroad strikes.

Ten Men Drowned.

At Burham's warf, Middlesex County, Va., during a storm on the Rappahannock, ten men were drowned. When the storm broke a number of canoes sought safety under the lee of a vessel. The vessel dragged anchor, the canoes cut loose, and the occupants were drowned.

May Be Another Revolution.

Consul General Wilder of Hawaii, and United States Secret Service Agent Harris have been warned of a conspiracy at San Francisco for the overthrow of the Hawaiian government by another revolution. Evidence has been gathered against those implicated in the plot.

Dual With Pistols.

At Elkhorn gully, W. Va., Marshal Smith was fired upon by a colored desperado named Andrew Dillon. Smith in return fired four balls into Dillon, killing him instantly. Smith was shot in the neck but is not seriously injured.

Six Men Killed.

By the collapsing of an ampitheatre which surrounded a cock-pit at the village of Huitla, Mexico, six men have been killed and several wounded. The arena was crowded and the deaths were principally from suffocation.

Horrible Death.

Mack Griffin, aged 32 years, the engineer of the Cedar Springs Milling company at Cedar Springs, Mich., was caught in the machinery and his life practically pounded out. He leaves a widow and two children.

Hail Storm.

A severe rain and hail storm, which passed over Mississippi and Arkansas, did great damage to crops and destroyed much farm property.

THE MARKETS.

Chicago—Cattle, common to prime $3.75 to $6.25; hogs, shipping grades, $3 to $5.25; sheep, fair to choice, $2.50 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2 red, 56c to 62c; corn, No. 2, 48c to 49c; oats, No. 2, 29c to 30c; rye, No. 2, 65c to 67c; butter, choice creamery, 20c to 20½c; eggs, fresh, 12c to 13c; potatoes, car lots, per bushel, 75c to 90c; broom corn, per lb, common growth to fine brush, 4c to 7c.

Indianapolis—Cattle, shipping, $3 to $6.25; hogs, choice light, $3 to $5.25; sheep, common to prime, $2 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2 red, 57c to 58c; corn, No. 1 white, 45c to 46c; oats, No. 2 white, 33c to 34c.

St. Louis—Cattle, $3 to $5.75; hogs, $4 to $5; wheat, No. 2 red, 60c to 61c; corn, No. 2, 45c to 46c; oats, No. 2, 30c to 31c; rye, No. 2, 61c to 63c.

Cincinnati—Cattle, $3.50 to $6; hogs, $3 to $5.50; sheep, $2.50 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2, 66c to 66½c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 47c to 48c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 31½ to 32½c; rye, No. 2, 74c to 76c.

Detroit—Cattle, $2.50 to $6; hogs, $4 to $5; sheep, $2 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2 red, 63c to 63½c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 47c to 47½c; oats, No. 2 white, 34c to 35c.

Toledo—Wheat, No. 2 red, 63c to 64c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 48c to 49c; oats, No. 2 white, 33c to 34c; rye, No. 2, 65c to 68c.

Buffalo—Cattle, $2.50 to $6.25; hogs, $3 to $5.50; sheep, $3 to $5; wheat, No. 2 hard, 70c to 71c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 52c to 52½c; oats, No. 2 white, 36c to 36½c.

Milwaukee—Wheat, No. 2 spring, 62c to 62½c; corn, No. 3, 48c to 48½c; oats, No. 2 white, 32c to 33c; barley, No. 2, 52c to 54c; rye, No. 1, 65c to 67c; pork, mess, $12 to $12.50.

New York—Cattle, $3 to $6.25; hogs, $4 to $5.75; sheep, $3 to $5.25; wheat, No. 2 red, 67c to 68c; corn, No. 2, 53c to 54c; oats, white Western, 33c to 41c; butter, creamery, 14c to 21c; eggs, Western, 13c to 14c.

TROOPS ARE LANDED.

BRITISH SOLDIERS IN POSSESSION OF CORINTO.

Serious Complications Are Likely to Grow Out of the Affair—Corinto Is Declared a Closed Port—City Practically Deserted.

Nicaragua's Sharp Move.

The occupation of Corinto by English forces was peaceably accomplished and, according to late Nicaragua advices, the British flag is floating over the public buildings in the town. Twelve boat loads of marines and blue jackets, numbering between 350 and 400 men, left the ships. They met no resistance whatever on landing, and took peaceful possession of the town, making their headquarters at the barracks. Proclamations announcing the occupation were posted at the corners of the streets.

The town is deserted, three-fourths of the population having withdrawn to the interior. The local officials locked all the public buildings, and took the keys with them. All was quiet, the marines and blue jackets returned to their ships, leaving behind a guard of about fifty men. Later on some excitement was visible.

In concluding his communication to the commander of the port, Rear Admiral Stephenson wrote as follows:

"In the event of its being your intention to offer resistance to my occupying the town, I give you this timely notice to remove all women and children to a place of safety, well away from the town, as I intend my ships to open fire on the principal buildings."

Nicaragua's reply to the ultimatum of Great Britain is in substance as follows:

"The Government of Nicaragua regrets its inability to comply with your wishes. There cannot be a doubt that justice bids it refuse to comply with the ultimatum, and it considers the proposed method of carrying the ultimatum into effect as contrary to sound principles and the rights of persons. In virtue of this the Government solemnly protests against the military occupation of the port of Corinto, against all acts of jurisdiction which you or any of your subordinates may exercise in Nicaraguan territory, and against any violent means that may be used to force Nicaragua to comply with the ultimatum as being contrary to the sovereignty of the republic and highly offensive to its dignity and independence. The Government persists in proposing arbitration or any other means recognized by the laws of nations for the settlement of the questions in dispute."

The reply means that the Government of Nicaragua declines to accept any responsibility for consequences which may follow the occupation of Corinto. The President has ordered that no Pacific mail steamers shall call at Corinto. The Nicaraguan Government is sending out a circular note to the European and other nations justifying its conduct during the present incident.

Uncle Sam to Secure Delay.

It is said that the Central American republics, Guatemala, San Salvador and Costa Rica, strongly urged Nicaragua to pay the $75,000 indemnity to Great Britain. President Yglesias even went so far as to offer to contribute one-fifth of the amount, but popular sentiment in Nicaragua was so set against England that the administration decided not to yield, and the only response received by President Yglesias to his offer was a copy of Nicaragua's answer to Admiral Stephenson's ultimatum.

The United States attempted to adjust the pending dispute between Great Britain and Nicaragua. Ambassador Bayard, acting under instructions from Washington, represented to the British foreign office that Nicaragua, if given two weeks' additional time from the expiration of the three days fixed in the ultimatum, would meet Great Britain's demand for the payment of £15,000 indemnity for the expulsion of Proconsul Hatch. Lord Kimberly acceded to this, and, as it was presumed that the State Department at Washington was acting for Nicaragua, it was thought that the incident would be closed without any further complications. But, as Nicaragua refused at the last moment to acquiesce in this arrangement, the original plan of occupying Corinto was carried out. It is now believed here that Nicaragua secured the intermediation of the United States for the sole purpose of delay.

HOUSE-CLEANING TIME.

The Spring Poet Muses on Things Now Uppermost in Our Minds.

FATHER, dear father, come home with me now,
For ma has some carpets to beat;
She's got all the furniture out in the road,
From the front porch clear down to the street.

The stove must come down and be put in the shed,
And the yard must be cleared of dry grass,
For it's time to clean house and the devil's to pay,
And the front window needs a new glass.
Father, dear father, come home with me now,
And bring some bologna and cheese,
It's most twelve o'clock and there is nothing to eat,
I'm so hungry I'm weak in my knees.
All the dinner we'll have will be scraps and such
And we'll have to eat standing up, too,
For the table and chairs are out in the yard;
Oh, I wish spring house cleaning was through!
Father, dear father, come home with me now,
For ma is as mad as a Turk;
She says you're a lazy old thing,
And that she proposes to put you to work:
There's painting to do, and paper to hang,
And windows and casings to scrub,
For it's house cleaning time, and you've got to come home,
And revel in suds and cold grub.

HOMAGE TO GRANT.

Impressive Memorial Exercises Held at Galena, Illinois.

Galena, Ill., paid homage to the memory of her great soldier-citizen, Grant, on the anniversary of his birth. The city was in gala attire. Flags floated from all public buildings and every private house and business block was decked in flags and bunting. The exercises of the day began at 2 o'clock, when a special train arrived from Chicago bearing H. D. Estabrook, of Omaha, orator of the day; H. H. Kohlsaat, Thomas Nast, Melville E. Stone and others. A parade formed at the Illinois Central station and moved to Turner Hall. The column was headed by Dr. B. F. Fowler, the grand marshal, with forty mounted aides, and members of the Grand Army of the Republic, Union Veteran Legion, Co. M, Illinois National Guard, and civic organizations were in line.

BIG CORNER IN WHEAT.

Chicago Packer Said to Have Secured All Available Stocks.

Wheat made another long stride upward in Chicago Saturday, the July option closing at 64⅛ cents, which is 1¾ cents higher than it closed Friday night. Numerous causes for the day's advance were given, the most prominent of which was the hitch in the Japan-China peace. The Post prints a story that P. D. Armour has practically cornered the market, controlling all available wheat. It is said that William H. Wallace, who is reported to control all the available stock of contract grade of wheat in New York, is closely connected with the latter on the deal. Armour's holdings are said to be enormous and his control of the stock is said to be the real cause of the late advance in prices.

The features in corn were the covering by Phillips in the pit and the big cash sales, 350,000 bushels at least. In oats there was simply changing with the May, rather weak considering the surroundings. Provisions were helped slightly by wheat. The trade was not large.

There was not much excitement accompanying the advance, but it took evident straining to repress it. The usual statistical news of the day was bearish and the weather was favorable for the growing crop, but everything had to yield to the confidence of the bulls in what they considered the smallness of the country resources. The week's clearances from both coasts amounted to 700,000 bushels less than on the week before. The Minneapolis and Duluth receipts aggregated 334 carloads, compared with 137 a year ago, and the total at the primary Western markets was 277,000 bushels as against 170,000 bushels on the corresponding day of the year before. The Atlantic port clearances of wheat and flour for twenty-four hours were equal to 373,000 bushels. Those figures were all in favor of the bears, but were utterly disregarded in the trading, which latter was ruled as already indicated by a scarcity of wheat believed in by the bulls. The bears refused to seek information beyond what they could see, and they refused to seek information beyond what was given on the blackboard regarding the details of 68,000,000 bushels in the visible supply.

A SOLDIER FORTY-EIGHT YEARS.

Gen. McCook Retires from the Service of Uncle Sam.

After a long and honorable career as a soldier, extending over a period of forty-eight years, Maj. Gen. Alexander McD. McCook has retired from the service of Uncle Sam. He is the last survivor of a gallant family which gave a father and every son to the military service in defense of the country and of whom four laid down their lives on the battle field.

Gen. McCook entered the United States Military Academy in 1847 and was graduated from there. He was appointed lieutenant in the Third Infantry in 1852. At the outbreak of the late war he became colonel of the First Ohio Volunteers and breveted major for bravery at the first battle of Bull Run. He received the rank of colonel for his gallantry at the battle of Shiloh. In 1862 he became major general of volunteers and was later transferred to the command of the Twentieth Corps, Army of the Cumberland, where he distinguished himself in several important battles. For gallant and meritorious services during the war he was breveted major general.

MAJ. GEN. M'COOK.

In 1867 Gen. McCook was appointed lieutenant colonel of the Twenty-sixth Infantry and two years later was transferred to the Tenth Infantry. In 1875 he was appointed aide-de-camp to Gen. Sherman and was promoted to be colonel of the Sixth Infantry in 1880. He was appointed brigadier general in 1890 and assigned to the command of the Department of Arizona. He was promoted to be major general Nov. 9, 1894.

The Comic Side of The News

Will the czar and the mikado permit the Chinese emperor to sit on the fence and see them go by?

Now it is Texas that has had hail stones as large as goose eggs. Isn't it nearly time to tackle some other kind of egg?

The economical young man is beginning to "clean" his last summer's straw hat and make it look worse than it did a year ago.

An Iowa farmer has been swindled out of $1,200 by sharpers. Let us hope that he has saved enough to subscribe for his home paper.

The poets of land are fighting shy of the financial question, probably because they have had such limited experience with the subject.

The chief opponents of Canada's annexation to this country are the men who used to feel at home here, but would not feel that way now.

The Missouri Pacific officials were warned about an attack of train robbers the other day. The modern train robber has his advance agent, it appears.

The Wagner season is on in St. Louis and a Chicago paper says there hasn't been so much noise in the old town since the interstate brass band contest of 1871.

Let us hope that although Commander Ballington Booth, of the Salvation army, has renounced Queen Victoria, he will still keep a watchful eye on her boy, Albert Edward.

A polite stranger chatted pleasantly with the cashier of a New Jersey bank the other day and a confederate stole over $20,000. The cashier now refuses to believe that talk is cheap.

The girls of the University of Michigan will graduate in calico gowns in order to be able to subscribe more liberally to the gymnasium fund. There's a new-woman idea that is likely to make the new man do some hard thinking.

No parental care ever falls to the lot of a single member of the insect tribe. In general, the eggs of an insect are destined to be hatched long after the parents are dead.

Haste makes waste maybe; yet somehow you seldom see an ex-hustler in the almshouse.

NEWS OF OUR STATE.

A WEEK AMONG THE HUSTLING HOOSIERS.

What Our Neighbors Are Doing—Matters of General and Local Interest—Marriages and Deaths—Accidents and Crimes—Pointers About Our Own People.

Minor State News.

CROFORDSVILLE has a new universalist church.

VALPARAISO is troubled with lumber thieves.

ELKHART will build five miles of cement sidewalk.

LIGHTNING did considerable damage in Crawfordsville.

BEDFORD quarries shipped 564 carloads of stone last week.

THE bones of a mastodon have been dug up near Alexandria.

OVER 200 female bicyclists at Terre Haute have donned bloomers.

GOSHEN is about to establish a fish and game protective association.

JOHN R. MOORE'S saloon at Madison was lifted into oblivion by dynamite.

ROBERT RENICK, 78, one of Greencastle's most prominent residents, is dead.

WM. WALKER, Jeffersonville, has been acquitted of killing Eugene Hogue.

NATURAL gas blew out the front of A. C. Pearson's dry goods store, Sheridan.

MRS. HENRY BROWN, found dead in her Crawfordsville home, and foul play is feared.

SNIPE shooting is reported good in the neighborhood of Nigger Neg, Parke county.

THE government, it is said, is to stock Wayne county streams with 500,000 pike and perch.

J. E. WOLFE, editor of the Terre Haute Journal, was found dead in a bath tub. Heart disease.

IMMENSE flow of water was struck 110 feet down at Danville. Will be used for water works.

BODY of an unknown man, about 55 years of age, was found hanging to a tree near Farmersburg.

THE 200 Muncie Employes of the Findlay Rolling Mill Company have filed suits to collect about $6,000 due them in wages.

WABASH road has paid Mrs. George Jones, Wabash, $5,200 for the killing of her husband by Geo. Gould's special train, last October.

A PIECE of watch case has been ploughed up in Laporte county 120 rods from the spot where a man named Fletcher was blown up by dynamite eight years ago.

MRS. E. CROSS of Knightsville, was fatally kicked by a horse. Mrs. Cross was leading their family horse from the stable, when it suddenly kicked, striking her in the face.

JAMES HARDING, farmer near Nashville, Brown County, was found dead with both feet and one hand burned off. Supposed he was overcome by heat while fighting forest fires.

EDNA BROWN was walking a trestle near Delphi, the other day, when a Vandalia train approached. She saved herself by swinging from the ties while the train passed over her.

ANSWERING an inquiry Attorney General Ketchum has written that the Indiana fish law which prohibits fishing in lakes between April 1 and June 15 says nothing about streams, so people can fish in streams or rivers.

IN the $20,000 damage suit of Andrew Kreuzer against the Pennsylvania railroad company, at Noblesville, the jury has awarded him $4,000. The plaintiff is but 8 years of age and the accident happened in Indianapolis.

NEAR Ekin, Tipton County, workmen who were boring for gas were astonished to see the drill sink while in hard rock 300 feet below the surface. It was removed and a constant stream of water fifty feet high burst loose with a roar that could be heard a mile.

JOHN SHUTTRUNPF, a Cass County shoemaker, mourned his first wife as missing, eighteen years ago. Eight years ago he married again and, the other day, his first wife made her appearance. Shuttrunpf hustled around and got a divorce after eight years of illegal wedded bliss.

AN enraged turkey gobbler tore the nose and part of the upper lip off and destroyed an eye of a small child belonging to George R. Cutter of English. The babe was in the yard, dressed in a red gown, which enraged the bird. Drs. Brent and Hazlewood hope to restore the nose and lip by stiching, but the eye is torn from the socket.

PATENTS have been granted Indiana inventors as follows: L. E. Boyd, Marion, pitman rod for organs; G. Habig, Columbus, cheese safe; E. C. Johnson, Hammond, thermometer case; A. H. Kennedy, Rockport, ball bat; A. J. Signor, Elkhart, electrical igniting device for gas engines; W. R. Teeguarden, Indianapolis, draft attachment for plows or cultivators.

A PARDON for Isaac Goodman is being sought for by his friends, and the movement has as its leaders Judge Ellison and Warden French. Isaac Goodman was the leader of the famous Goodman gang of robbers that was rounded up at Summitville two years ago, and in which Dick Goodman, the junior, was shot two times in return for two shots through Captain Coburn's side. The gang was sentenced for terms ranging from four to nine years. The old man is 80 years old, and is in the hospital sinking rapidly.

THE executive committee of the Presbyterian missions, which has in charge the establishment of the assembly and summer school which was to have been located near Bass lake, has decided that the location will be changed, as the people of Stark county have failed to furnish the money with which to build the road to Bass lake. A committee was appointed to visit Rome City, Lake Maxinkuckee and Turkey Lake, and it is probable that one of these places will be selected. It is intended to open the assembly the 1st of August.

MUNCIE has a number of women who are daft on the dress-reform movement, and they will start a bloomer club, all members of which shall possess and wear, upon certain days in each week, a bloomer costume.

THE excitement in the Marion oil field is reaching fever heat. One of the best leases ever executed in the Indiana field was executed recently by which the Standard Oil Company obtains control of 440 acres near the town of Van Buren. It gives the extraordinary royalty of one fifth, the common run being one eighth. Nearly all the territory in that neighborhood has been leased, the Standard holding the majority.

WHILE cleaning away the ashes of a hay stack near Anderson, Wm. McCord found the charred remains of a man, thought to be a tramp.

DURING a general fight at Alexandria in which Arthur Schneider and Noel Cherott were the ringleaders, Policeman Harry Painter arrived and tried to arrest the two men. The mob set on him and his mace was taken from him. He drew his revolver and fired into the crowd. Schneider was killed outright and Cherott was seriously wounded. Painter escaped from the crowd and gave himself up. The mob followed to the jail and threatened to lynch him. The excitement became so intense that Painter was taken to Anderson for safe keeping.

NIAGARA FALLS EXCURSION!

Thursday, August 8, 1895.

—VIA THE—

Lake Erie & Western R. R.

"Natural Gas Route."

On Thursday, August 8, 1895, the Lake Erie & Western R.R. will run their popular annual excursion to Cleveland, Chautauqua Lake, Buffalo and Niagara Falls at following very low rates, viz.:

Peoria	$7 50	Fort Wayne	$5 00
Bloomington	7 00	Muncie	5 00
LaFayette	6 00	Connersville	5 00
Michigan City	6 00	Rushville	5 00
Indianapolis	5 00	New Castle	5 00
Tipton	5 00	Cambridge City	5 00
Lima	4 00	Fremont	4 00

Sandusky, $4 00.

With corresponding reductions from intermediate points.

In addition to the above, the purchasers of these tickets will be given privilege of special excursion side trips to Lewiston-on-the-Lake, including a steamboat ride on Lake Ontario, 25 cents. To Toronto and return by Lake from Lewiston $1.00; to Thousand Islands, $5.00. Tickets for the above side trips can be had when purchasing Niagara Falls ticket, or at any time on train.

Besides the above privileges with that of spending Sunday at the Falls, we will furnish all those who desire a side trip from Brockton direct to Chautauqua Lake and return FREE OF CHARGE.

Tickets of admission to places of special interest at or near Niagara Falls, but outside the reservation, including toll over the International Bridge to the Canadian side, elevators to the water's edge at Whirlpool Rapids on the Canadian side, will be offered on train at a reduction from prices charged after reaching the Falls.

Do not miss this opportunity to spend Sunday at Niagara Falls. The excursion train will arrive at Niagara Falls 7.00 A. M. Friday, August 9, 1895, and will leave the Falls returning Sunday morning, August 11, at 6 o'clock, stopping at Cleveland Sunday afternoon, giving an opportunity to visit the magnificent monument of the late President Garfield, and many other interesting points.

Tickets will be good, however, to return on regular trains leaving the Falls Saturday, August 10, for those not desiring to remain over. Tickets will also be good returning on all regular trains up to and including Tuesday, August 13, 1895. SECURE YOUR TICKETS, ALSO CHAIR AND SLEEPING CAR ACCOMMODATIONS, early. Those desiring can secure accommodations in these cars while at the Falls. For further information call on any agent Lake Erie & Western R. R. or address.

C. F DALY, Gen. Pass Agent, Indianapolis Ind.

HORSEMEN

SAVE YOUR STOCK BY USING THE CELEBRATED

Morris' English Stable Powder
For Loss of Appetite, Constipation, Rough Hair Hide Bound, and all Diseases of the Blood. Price, 25c. per package.

Morris' English Stable Liniment
Cures Lameness, Cuts, Bruises, Scratches, Galls, Sweeney, Spavins, Splint, Curb, etc. Price, 50c. per bottle.

Morris' English Worm Powder
Warranted to cure any case of Worms in Horses, Cattle, Sheep or Dogs, also Pin Worms in Colts. Price, 50c. per box.

Craft's Distemper and Cough Cure
A Specific for Distemper, Coughs, Colds, Heaves, Pink Eye, and all Catarrhal diseases of horses. Price, 50c. $1.00 per bottle.

Wells' Hoosier Poultry Powder
Makes Hens Lay, cures Cholera, Gapes and Roup, and keeps poultry healthy. Price, 25c. per package.

Every remedy guaranteed satisfactory or money refunded. Our new book, "The Horse: His Diseases and Treatment," mailed free.
Wells Medicine Co., Lafayette, Ind.

BE A MAN

Ajax Tablets

have cured thousands and will cure you if you are suffering from Loss of Vigor, Impotence, Sterility, Seminal Weakness or any of the other effects of Self-Abuse or excesses of early life. We give positive Written Guarantee to effect a cure in each case or to refund money in case of failure. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Sent prepaid upon receipt of price. Send for free circular. Address

AJAX REMEDY CO.,
79 Dearborn Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

TOWER'S SURFACE.... CULTIVATOR

IS THE PIONEER OF ITS CLASS,

And as now perfected

*Can not be

HILDA

By Charlotte M. Braeme.

CHAPTER I.

The time was the close of a bright, warm day in June; the place a little parlor in the most picturesque cottage to be found on the estate of Brynmar; the scene a strange one, the first that lived in the memory of Lady Hutton's ward, and the one that influenced her whole life.

It was a strange scene. The parlor was bare and poorly furnished; no carpet, no pictures, no books, nothing that told of comfort; stern, dread poverty was shown in the few articles of furniture; in a small chair near the center of the room sat a lady magnificently dressed, costly velvets and rich silks swept the cottage floor. She was in the very prime of life, a tall, stately, well-formed figure, a clear-cut, calm, patrician face, bearing the impress of many troubles. No one ever called Lady Hutton beautiful, but in the exquisite refinement of every feature, in the expression of the clear eyes, and the smiles that at rare intervals lighted her face, there was a charm deeper than that of vivid coloring or perfect form. Her dark-brown hair was plainly braided, her dress, in its simple elegance, was perfection. She looked what she was, a thorough English gentlewoman, calm, elegant and refined. If any storms of passion had ever crossed her quiet face, there was no trace of it now; if scorn, or hate, or love had ever dwelt in that quiet heart, they were all dead. She seemed as one who looks out upon the world, yet takes little interest in it.

Far different from the calm, passionless lady, was the beautiful woman who half knelt, half crouched upon the floor, and covered with hot, bitter tears, the white soft fingers of a little child. A waving mass of rich golden brown hair fell over her shoulders in splendid confusion and disorder; the face, though deathly pale and stained with tears, was a most beautiful one. There was a supple grace in every line of her figure, a dignity even in her self-abasement, yet Magdalen Hurst was but a simple villager, owing none of her rare beauty to noble birth or high descent. She had no thought of her beauty. If ever woman's face looked as though her heart were broken, Magdalen Hurst's looked so now. Passionately, wistfully, she kissed the child's hands and buried her face on the little head—kissed her as though she hungered and craved for love—kissed her with all the warmth of affection and the passion of despair.

"My little Hilda," she cried, "look at me; let me carry your sweet face in my heart; look at me, darling."

The little one raised her wondering eyes to the white wistful face, and there was a strong resemblance between mother and child. Both had the same beautiful violet eyes, the mother's hair was golden brown, but the child's pretty curls were of pure pale gold; the same delicate, charming features, the same white brown and arched red lips. The two gazed at each other, the mother with difficulty refraining from tears, the child wondering what all this sorrow meant.

"I am half sorry I came," said Lady Hutton. "You will unfit yourself for your journey, Magdalen."

"I could not have left without seeing her," said the woman, pleadingly. "Oh, Lady Hutton, can you not tell what it is to have your heart torn in two, as mine is? I must give up my husband or my child. He is in sorrow, in exile, and in want. She will have a home and a mother. I must go to him; he needs me most; yet death itself would be less bitter than leaving my child."

"Still," said Lady Hutton, "as you cannot have both, I think you are acting wisely. Hilda will have everything to make her happy with me."

"I know that, my lady," sobbed the woman. "I know it, or I would not leave her. I do not fear for her, but my heart aches for my little child. I shall feel the clasp of her arms round my neck, I shall feel her warm, soft lips on my face, I shall hear her voice and listen for her footsteps. My life will be empty and dark without her."

"Choose for yourself," said Lady Hutton, quietly. "If you wish to alter our arrangements, there is time to do so."

"Do not torture me, my lady," cried the poor mother. "You know I must go to him. In lives such as yours there comes no sorrow such as mine. Can you not understand what it is to look your last, perhaps, in life upon your own child?"

A quiver, as of sharp pain, crossed the lady's calm face for one instant.

"I can understand it," she replied, gently; "and that is why I have brought Hilda here. Believe me, Magdalen, I shall act by her as though she were my own."

The woman made no reply. With every moment that passed her face seemed to grow whiter and her sorrow deeper; she clasped the child in her arms as though nothing but death could part them.

"My own child!" she murmured; "my own little child! I nursed her, loved her, cared for her. I would have shielded her with my life, and I am looking at her for the last time. Oh, my lady, change your plan. Say if I return I may claim her. How can I live without her? How can I die? What answer can I make the Great Judge when He asks me for my child?"

"You are only doing what you decided yourself was for the best," said Lady Hutton. "I cannot change my plans; they are founded on common sense. If for fifteen or twenty years I educate your daughter, and she becomes a refined and delicate lady, you would not surely wish to drag her down again to your level, remembering what that level is?"

"No," replied the woman, shuddering as with deadly fear, "anything rather than that."

"You are not the first," continued Lady Hutton, in her cold, passionless voice, "whose life has been wrecked at its outset; others have had the same trouble, perhaps even greater. Life is ended for you. The cloud that has fallen over it is so dark that no light can penetrate it. Let your child live and be happy, as she never could be with you. Do you think, after fifteen years spent as my daughter, that it would be fair to ask her to return to such a home as yours? Would it not be cruel and unjust? Be brave for her sake, Magdalen! You have yourself decided where your duty lies."

"I know," said the poor mother, plaintively; "one way or another, my heart must break."

"You fancy so," said Lady Hutton; "one can bear much, yet live on. Hilda will be happy and well cared for; if she lives she will grow up a beautiful, accomplished lady; she will marry well, and live honored and esteemed. Yet you would have her exchange all this for poverty and shame."

"But, my lady," said the woman, "he may alter, he may repent, and then——"

"Hush," said Lady Hutton; "I believe it is easier to change the leopard's spots than to reform a really bad man. See, I have brought the money, Magdalen; now, tell me, is there anything more I can do for you? Do not ask me to alter my conditions. I cannot do so. If I take Hilda now, it is for life; and I exact from you a solemn promise that you will never seek her again, never ask for her, but remember always, that for your own good you have parted with her until you meet in another world."

Magdalen Hurst clasped the little child still more tightly in her arms. Her lips lingered lovingly on the fair little face, the golden curls, and the sweet lips.

"My darling will be a lady," she said, "a grand lady; she will have dresses and rare jewels; she will be rich and honored; but my heart will be empty, and she will have no mother; she will never know me, never love me."

Lady Hutton took from her purse gold and bank notes, and laid them upon the table.

"The sum we agreed upon is there, Magdalen," said Lady Hutton. "It is growing late; you had better say good-by to Hilda; we must leave you now; write to me when you reach your journey's end. I can only hope your future may be happier than your past has been."

A low moan came from the white lips still touching the child's face. Then Magdalen Hurst rose and took from her finger a thick plain gold ring.

"Lady Hutton," she said, gently, "may I give this to Hilda? Will you let her wear it?"

With her own hands Lady Hutton fastened the ring to a little chain the child wore.

"I promise you," she said. "Hilda shall always wear it. I will put it on her finger when she is old enough."

It was a plain ring, made in a peculiar way; the single word "Fidelity" was engraved upon it.

"Good-by, Magdalen," said Lady Hutton. "I trust you will have a prosperous voyage. Never let a fear of Hilda's welfare cross your mind; she will be to me as my own child. Bid her farewell. See, the sun is setting; we must go."

She turned aside while the unhappy mother held her child in that last close embrace. In that minute Magdalen Hurst died as loving, suffering women die. Death, when it came, held no pang half so bitter as that which rent her heart now. She covered the little wondering face with passionate kisses; she pillowed the golden head on her breast and bent in untold agony over it.

"Hilda," she whispered, "my own little child, I shall never see you again. Say 'good-by,' and 'God bless you, mother.'"

The child repeated the words, then clasped her arms round her mother's neck. "Let me stay with you," she cried; "I love you best."

In one moment it seemed as though the mother's soul must leave her. Then she clasped the child, murmuring words that Lady Hutton never forgot. To the last her mournful eyes followed the little figure, drinking in, as it were, every movement, every action. The child passed forever from its mother's home. She gazed after it, watched the sunbeams shining on the sweet face and golden hair, watched the stately lady take the little one in her arms and dry her tears, watched the child as it smiled, and then knew herself forgotten. With a cry that rang out in the clear summer air, startling and shrill, Magdalen Hurst fell to the ground, and the sunbeams played upon her white, unconscious face; while the child from whom she had parted slept softly and sweetly in Lady Hutton's arms.

CHAPTER II.

Five years before the opening of our story there was not a happier or more beautiful girl in Scotland than Magdalen Burns. Her father was head gamekeeper to Sir Ralph Erskine; her mother had been Lady Erskine's maid. They married, and lived in a pretty cottage close to the woods of Brynmar; they had one little daughter, called Magdalen, to suit some fancy of her mother's. On the same day that little Magdalen was born at the cottage, a daughter and heiress was born at the Hall. Lady Erskine was, however, dangerously ill, and her babe was nursed by Mrs. Burns. As the heiress of Brynmar grew up she retained a great affection for her foster-sister.

Miss Erskine had made lovers, but she cared only for one, that was the young careless debonair Lord Hutton, the prodigal son of a prodigal race. He liked Miss Erskine, and his friends advised him to marry her; she would be rich, and he needed money. Lord Hutton did not decide all at once; he went frequently to the Hall, and on one occasion took his favorite boon companion, Stephen Hurst, with him.

Stephen found his visit a very dull one; he did not care for the pomposities of Sir Ralph, or the inanity of Lady Erskine. Both bored him alike; and besides, there was no billard-table at the Hall. Lady Erskine disapproved of gambling in even its innocent branches; a game at billiards was something very terrible in her eyes. Miss Erskine never appeared to see or notice any one except Lord Hutton, and the other guests were summed up by Mr. Hurst in his amiable way, as "a mixture of bores and nobodies."

Having no mischief ready made to his hand, Stephen went out to seek it for himself; he sought and found it in the woods of Brynmar; he sauntered down a broad path to enjoy a cigar. The day was fine, and the cigar a good one. Stephen sat on the trunk of a fallen tree, in order to enjoy both; and as he sat there a girl, beautiful as a fairy vision, came tripping down the path.

Stephen Hurst saw her with a thrill of delight; he had been idle and listless; here was something to do; here was a beautiful young face, pure, sweet, and happy; he could teach it to blush and to glow. Here was a pure, innocent young heart; he could teach it to love. All that he said to himself as the girl drew near. She did not perceive him until he, to attract her attention, spoke, then Magdalen Burns raised her eyes to his face, and in that one look met her fate. He asked some idle question as to the nearest way to the Hall, and she replied; then gradually he drew from her her name and her simple little history. Nothing could be better, he said to himself. There was no one to interfere while he remained at this dull place; it would be a magnificent resource to be able to meet this beautiful, simple girl, out in the bonny woods of Brynmar. He never calculated on Donald Burns' strength of arm or strength of will.

Lord Hutton could not imagine how it happened that Stephen Hurst, who used to complain the whole day long of the dullness of the place and every one in it, suddenly grew attached to it, and absolutely tried to persuade him to prolong his stay.

Brynmar Woods could have told him why. There was no day passed that Stephen Hurst did not meet Magdalen under the shade of their tall trees.

What need to tell the story? He wooed, as idle men do woo when they have no other occupation, and she learned to love, as the young and happy love when they are so wooed.

How it would have ended no one can tell; but one morning, while the dew still lay upon flower and leaf, Magdalen went out to meet her lover. They walked for some long time up and down the broad path, forgetting everything save themselves and their own happiness, when all at once the keeper, white with rage, stood before them.

"So," said he, slowly, "this is it! I have always said that fatal beauty would prove a curse. Go home, Magdalen; leave your lover with me. Stay—do not let me be rash. Is he your lover? Does he profess to love you?"

"He does love me," said Magdalen, proudly; "and I—oh, father, do not be angry—I love him."

She spoke bravely, although trembling with fear.

"I am not angry, child," said the keeper, gently. "Go home—I will settle this."

"You will not hurt him, father?" pleaded Magdalen.

"I will not disturb even one of his well-arranged curls," said the keeper, grimly. "Leave him to me."

Magdalen hastened away, and the two men gazed fixedly at each other. Stephen Hurst did not quite like the strong hands that trembled with eagerness. He was a coward at heart, but thought in this case there was nothing much to fear.

"Well, my friend," he said, insolently, "don't act the virtuous peasant. I have seen that kind of thing so often on the stage that I am tired of it."

"I tell you what you never saw upon the stage," said the keeper. "You never saw a father who meant to lash his daughter's lover like a whipped hound unless he did justice to her."

There was something in the hot, angry eyes that glowed upon him, and in the low hissing voice, that shook Stephen Hurst's craven heart.

"Do not let us make any error," he said, hastily; "your daughter is a beautiful girl, and pure as an angel. I would not utter one word derogatory to her to save my life."

Donald Burns' face softened at these words.

"Have you taught my child to love you?" he asked; "tell me in one word. I will know the truth."

"She does love me," replied Stephen, quietly.

"Then listen to me," said the keeper. "You are a fine gentleman, I suppose—one from the Hall; she is poor and almost friendless, but you have taught her to love you; and if you do not marry her and make her happy, I will follow you—even to the world's end—and slay you—you hear me; I say it—I, who never broke my word. Now please yourself."

He turned away without one word more, leaving Stephen Hurst looking vacantly after him.

"A very pretty price certainly to pay for a summer's wanderings in these stupid woods," he muttered. "That all comes from having nothing to do. I must either marry the girl or run the risk of being beaten to death by that energetic and active keeper. Well, I have nothing to keep her upon; I cannot keep myself; but she is a beautiful girl; and I really like her better than any one else in the world. Let me toss up for it; head, I marry her; the reverse, I run away." Then he carelessly threw up a few small silver coins. "Heads win," said he, with a smile. "I will wait upon the keeper to-morrow."

And that was the man Magdalen Hurst idealized and loved.

What passed when Stephen Hurst called at the cottage, no one ever knew. When Lord Hutton heard that his random friend was to marry the loveliest girl in Scotland, he advised Miss Erskine to use her influence to prevent the sacrifice.

"Let the girl marry some steady, honest young man in her own station," he said; "she will have a chance of happiness then. If she marries Stephen Hurst, she will be wretched for life."

Miss Erskine tried her influence, and Sir Ralph and Lady Erskine tried theirs, but all in vain; when did love ever listen to reason? Before the summer ended, beautiful, simple Magdalen Burns became Stephen Hurst's wife.

(To be continued.)

OPERA HOUSES IN GERMANY.

Every Little Town Has Its Place of Entertainment and an Orchestra.

The traveler in Germany is apt to be agreeably surprised by the fact that no town, however small, is without its Residenz Theater, says a writer in the Pall Mall Budget. In the lesser ones operas and plays are given on alternate nights, but usually an opera house with quite an excellent orchestra is to be found as well as a good theater. In Leipsic, where we arrived on Monday, we hastened to the opera house, where Marschner's opera, "Der Vampyr," was going on. The music is not interesting, nor very much in keeping with the subject, which seems to demand more depth of treatment. The scene is laid in Scotland, a fact conveyed only by the chorus appearing in kilts and tartans; the music itself has no Scottish flavor, and is written on the lines of old Italian opera; the performance was, however, a spirited one and Fraulein Schodel, the prima donna, possesses a cultivated and extremely pretty voice; the orchestra was rich and precise. Weimar was our next halting place, and we were fortunate enough to hear Lortzing's ever fresh and bright little opera, "Zar und Zimmermann." It was on this small stage that some of Wagner's greatest operas first saw the light of day, produced there by the loving enthusiasm of his friend Liszt. And so beautifully and delicately did the small, but select band of musicians do their work that it was evident how much the influence of the master's hand was still lingering among them.

We are sorry we cannot speak in such eulogistic terms of Frankfort. Art seems to be a coy mistress, and does not always consent to dwell in the rich and thriving capitals of the world. However, the reason for the inferiority of the Frankfort orchestra, and more especially the chorus, is not far to seek. Capellmeister Erber is one of those conductors who have what may be described as a flabby beat, and in consequence the orchestra, in itself a large and fine one, gave an inadequate performance, the operas being "Pagliacci" and "Cavalleria Rusticana," and although stage management and scenery were of the best, we cannot speak highly of either solo artists or chorus. There is something very delightful on arriving in some small German town after a not too fatiguing journey in being able to stroll out to some neighboring theater or opera house and to enjoy without the ceremony of evening dress and for the moderate sum of 3 or 4 marks an excellent representation of such varied works as we have just described. When shall we be able to do the like in Manchester, Birmingham, Liverpool or any other well-known town in England?

Scott in Germany.

In Germany the works of Sir Walter Scott are used as a school text book.

THE season of maple sugar making comes at a time when the farmer could not profitably employ his time otherwise, usually about March 10, and continues three or four weeks, according to the weather. Sap will run only when the temperature is at 32 degrees Fahrenheit, and stop running as soon as frost is out of the ground, or directly after the snow is gone. Sometimes the cold weather continues so late in the spring that it is nearly April 1 before the thermometer goes above 30 degrees. In 1893 the farmers in Vermont did not tap the trees until the latter part of March. Last year the tapping began about March 8 or 9.

As soon as the weather is favorable the farmer gets out his buckets and sets to work tapping his maple trees as quickly as possible. The maple trees are tapped by boring the trunks with a small bit—usually half-inch—about 1½ inches deep, and from one to three feet above the ground. Trees are not tapped until they are about one foot in diameter. After tapping, a spout made of clean maple, beach, tin or galvanized iron and fitted with a hanger for holding the bucket, is driven firmly into the hole made by the bit; a bucket of tin or wood is hung upon the spout, and the tapping process is finished. The buckets are ordinary water pails, generally all alike, and each farmer usually paints all his buckets one color.

Only one hole is bored in young trees, but it is not uncommon to have as many as half a dozen buckets, with two spouts each, hung to maples of large size. If the bucket fills with sap in a day the run is a good one, although twice this amount is obtained in exceptionally favorable sap days. What is called a "good-sized" sugar orchard will contain from 500 to 800 trees. There are many orchards of 1,500 trees, and in the northern and central parts of Vermont orchards of 2,000 to 4,000 trees are not uncommon. When the sap begins to run well the farmer and all his family must work hard. A man with a large farm will employ help outside of his family frequently, and use two or three pairs of oxen or horses to make the rounds of the trees with a sled on which is the large sap tub into which the sap from the buckets is poured.

THE SUGAR MAPLE.

IN THE SUGAR ORCHARD.

An orchard of 700 or 800 or even 1,000 trees need not require the farmer to hire help, if he has two or three men or boys in the family besides himself. From an orchard of 700 trees an ordinary run of sap for two days will enable the farmer to collect about eighty barrels. Sometimes sixty barrels of sap can be collected from 700 trees in one day.

As soon as the men begin collecting the sap, the fires in the big evaporator furnace must be started, and the boiling of the sap begun as fast as it is brought in, so that none will be wasted by souring, or the quantity brought from the woods may not so far exceed the accommodations at the house that while waiting to get room for it much will be wasted at the trees. At the time when the sap is running freely the farmer must often keep the fires going and the sap boiling all through the night, and, of course, he is likely to have to work all day Sunday and Sunday night as any other time of the week. It is all-important that he "make hay while the sun shines."

When the work is hardest the fun is at its best. Those who have but a small orchard will "spare" some of the family to help a relative or neighbor through sugaring. And the sugar parties—what one of Vermont's sons or daughters ever forgets them? The snow is still upon the ground, and as night comes on the clear cold air upon the rock-ribbed hills brings the color to the cheeks and quickens the step. And the smell of good maple syrup—well, perhaps, that may have something to do with quickening the step; but the young people are not long on the road to a sugar party. The time it requires to go from a sugar party varies. An average computation has never been attempted; for, as at husking bees, the young man has the girl of his choice if he can get her.

At the party the hot sugar is dropped upon the snow and forms into "frogs" and various other imaginative reproductions of animal life before it is considered at the stage of perfection for eating. Some have bowls of snow and saucers of hot sap, and the great fun of a "sugaring off" party is to sit out on the wood pile, covered with buffalo skins, and "candy" the sugar by pouring a spoonful on the snow in the bowl and eat it with doughnuts and crullers.

OX SLED AND SAP TANK.

Sometimes a small branch of stripped maple or beach is dipped into the kettle and you have the fun of twirling it until it cools. Then you break off the candied branches.

The modern evaporator makes it possible to do much sugar making in a short time. The evaporator is made of tin, copper or galvanized iron, and is so constructed that the sap flows in at one end, and, by means of partitions extending nearly across the pan, is made to take a zigzag course to the other end, where it is drawn off as syrup. The sap in the pan is kept shallow—about one-half inch in depth—and evaporates very rapidly. Rapidity of evaporation is greatly to be desired, not only on the score of time but because the sooner sap is converted into syrup after it runs from the trees the lighter will be the color and the finer the flavor of the syrup and sugar.

The sugar house is a rough little building, with a shed half full of well-dried cordwood for the boiling fire. The room is mainly occupied by the boiling apparatus, with the bunk of the man who has to watch the pans of boiling sap day and night. One side is taken up by the oven, which is built on a bed of brick and consists of two brick walls about two feet apart, 2½ feet high and 12 feet long, with an iron door at the end near the shed entrance to the house. A huge, old-fashioned brick chimney stands at the other end, where there also is a sort of square, brick furnace to hold a big kettle. In the roof, near the center of the ridge pole, a large slot opens to the sky as an escape for the steam, which rises in heavy volumes from the pans on the fire.

The sap as it comes from the maple tree is like water and has barely any more flavor than good water. But it doesn't take much heat to produce flavor. A barrel of good sap will make a gallon of syrup or eight pounds of sugar. After being reduced to syrup in the evaporator the product is allowed to cool and settle, more or less of impurities being precipitated by standing. The syrup is now ready for putting into cans for sale. The size mostly in use is one gallon. The proper consistency of syrup is generally conceded to be 11 pounds to the gallon, and this degree of density is reached at 219 degrees Fahrenheit. The sap is never made into more than syrup in the evaporator. Then it is poured into a large porcelain lined kettle to be boiled to sugar. If wanted for sugar the boiling is continued until the thermometer indicates 232 degrees for pail sugar, or 238 or 240 degrees for cake, when the mass is removed from the fire, stirred briskly for a short time, and then poured into tin pails or cake moulds, as the case may be, to harden.

THE SUGAR HOUSE.

The cake moulds are often a series of parallel partitions on a large wooden board, with spaces in them about three inches apart, and just wide enough to admit a knife blade The moulds are dampened with a sponge, then the hot sugar poured in. Little fancy tins are also used for moulds. The farmer gets anywhere from 10 to 18 cents per pound for his sugar, and from 75 cents to $1 a gallon for his sirup. A sugar maple produces on an average about 3½ pounds of sugar during a season.

No More Slashing.

It is a noteworthy fact that the rapidly increasing number of new books, not of poetry only, at the present hour is accompanied by a diminution, not an increase, of critical severity. One would have supposed that at such a period—when, to adapt the proverb of the wood and the trees, one can hardly see literature for the books—the critical standard would rise; that the critic would show himself more, not less, exacting, and would be more careful, in the interest of the reader, to emphasize the distinction between the excellent and the mediocre.

Yet no one can read much of the current periodical criticism without noting that it is rather the opposite that is happening. While it is an obvious and undeniable fact that the manufacture of books, as distinguished from authorship, exists on an enormous scale, yet apparently the average critic becomes more easy to please, not less, than of old; as if he cried in sheer despair to the makers of books: "Well, if you can't rise to my standard I must come down to yours," and hardly six months pass without some prose romance appearing, by some fresh writer, and being received with such a chorus of welcome and such hecatombs of praise as (to borrow Macaulay's phrase) would require some modification if applied to the masterpieces of Walter Scott—to "Old Mortality" or "The Heart of Midlothian."

Now, as I have said, no one wishes for a return of the criticism called slashing, but what I do think the intelligent reader often sighs for is some criticism that may be called discriminating, and if the value of such in literature of whatever kind is great, it is surely greatest where the literature in question is poetry, in which Horace has told us—and the cultivated sense of mankind has ratified his words—"mediocrity is not admissible."—Macmillan's Magazine.

Jones' Success with "Scratch" Crews.

One of the strangest things in Paul Jones' career was the success he achieved with "scratch" crews. In his greatest fight, contemporary history says, he had "as bad a crew as ever was shipped," being made up of all nations, among them Maltese, Portuguese, and Malays, who did not always comprehend the word of command. Paul Jones has been severely denounced for having returned to the place of his birth bent on destruction; but, as Cooper justly points out, an officer's oath obliges him to do all in his power to harass the enemy; and it was not only Paul Jones' right, but his duty, to use his knowledge of the Scotch and Irish coasts in the prosecution of the war. If he had any feeling on the subject, it would have been his duty to suppress it. But Paul Jones probably had no feeling whatever, except resentment. He had left his native land as a child, and upon his last visit he had been cruelly ill used, as he thought; and he did his duty on this cruise with no more repugnance than he would have felt at doing it elsewhere—and did it mercifully.—Century.

Tickling the Plebeian Quaker.

"It catches them every time," said a Philadelphia printer the other day who keeps a copy of "Burke's Peerage" in his office. "Jones, who, we will say, keeps a little hat store up on Columbia avenue, comes in here and wants me to get him up some tasty design, a trademark, that he can place upon his goods. When I show him our regular stock of designs for such a purpose, the chances are that he will turn up his nose at them. Then I take down 'Burke's Peerage' and turn to the proud name of Jones, where all the crests of the illustrious family are duly pictured forth, with their mottoes and all the record of their nobility. Jones is fascinated, and immediately imagines that he is some way connected with some fine old English family. He picks out the crest that most pleases his eye, and some time after it reappears on his hats in Columbia avenue. It is a great scheme, I assure you, and I treasure my 'Burke's Peerage' as a really valuable asset."—New York Tribune.

Paul Jones' Naval Prescience.

It is wonderful to note the prescience of Paul Jones in the light of another century. This Revolutionary captain foresaw the use of torpedoes, and experimented boldly with very primitive ones. He understood as fully as a great contemporary writer the "influence of sea power upon history," and wrote, a century and a quarter ago: "In time of peace, it is necessary to prepare, and to be always prepared, for war by sea." He advocated the establishment of a naval academy, and a supplementary course for officers closely resembling the Naval War College, and advocated the constant study and practice of fleet evolutions. This was in the days when Britannia ruled the waves with a vengeance, but without "tactic." In his admiration for this fascinating part of his profession, Paul Jones certainly underrated the British; but when he came to fight them, he showed them, in his preparations, every mark of respect.—Century.

Borrowell—"What would you do if you were me?" Buggins—"Pay myself the $10 you owe me."—Philadelphia Record

PIPER HEIDSIECK PLUG TOBACCO

Consumers of chewing tobacco who are willing to pay a little more than the price charged for the ordinary trade tobaccos, will find this brand superior to all others.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

DR. MOTT'S PENNYROYAL PILLS

The only safe, sure and reliable Female Pill ever offered to Ladies, especially recommended to married Ladies. Beware of pills put up in tin boxes as they are dangerous. Ask for DR. MOTT'S PENNYROYAL PILLS and take no other. Send for circular. Price $1.00 per box, 6 boxes for $5.00. DR. MOTT'S CHEMICAL CO., Cleveland, Ohio. Fisher & Son, Auburn, Ind.

FITS!

Brace Up! Don't Lose Courage!!

Your disease is not incurable because your Physician has given you up, and you have not received any benefit from the medicine you have tried, is not any reason you cannot be cured. We can positively cure all kinds of Fits, Epileptic Convulsion or Spasmodic. WE GUARANTEE A POSITIVE AND PERMANENT CURE IN ALL CASES. We have cured thousands, many cases of long standing, and given up by Doctors as incurable. In our "Allen's Fits Cure" you will find a medicine that has never failed to effect a speedy cure. We back our guarantee with an offer of $100 to any person we cannot cure. Highest Bank references furnished on application.

1 Qt. Bottle, $3.00, 2 Qt. $5.00.

ALLEN MEDICAL CO., Washington & Water Sts., BOSTON, MASS.

LADIES

Suffering from Retarded, Suppressed or Painful Menstruation and all irregularities of like nature, will find our FAMALE PILLS an infallible cure. They are entirely safe and can always be relied upon for speedy relief. We have yet to hear of a case where they have failed to produce the desired result. A box should be kept on hand at all times to provide for emergencies. Correspondence Confidential.

By mail, with full directions, securely sealed, $2.00 per box.

ALLEN MEDICAL CO., Washington & Water Sts., BOSTON, MASS.

Every Woman

Sometimes needs a reliable monthly regulating medicine.

Dr. PEAL'S PENNYROYAL PILLS,

Are prompt, safe and certain in result. The genuine (Dr. Peal's) never disappoint. Sent anywhere $1.00. Peal Medicine Co., Cleveland, O.

Sold by Fischler & Son., Auburn.

WE HAVE NO AGENTS

but ship from our factory at wholesale prices. Ship anywhere for examination; pay freight both ways if not satisfactory. 100 styles of Carriages. 90 styles of Harness. Send 4cts. for 112 page catalogue. ELKHART CARRIAGE AND HARNESS MFG. CO., W. B. Pratt, Sec'y, Elkhart, Ind. No. 7193 $35.

Sexine Pills

RESTORE LOST VIGOR

Before and After Using.

New discovery. Will brace you up in a week. Sold with a WRITTEN GUARANTEE to Cure Nervous Debility, Loss of Sexual Power in either sex, Involuntary Emissions from any cause. If neglected, such troubles lead to consumption or insanity. $1.00 per box by mail, 6 boxes for $5.00. With every $5 order we give a written guarantee to cure or refund the money. Address PEAL MEDICINE CO., Cleveland, Ohio.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

RESTORED MANHOOD.

DR. MOTT'S NERVERINE PILLS

The great remedy for nervous prostration and all nervous diseases of the generative organs of either sex, such as Nervous Prostration, Failing or Lost Manhood, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Youthful Errors, Mental Worry, excessive use of Tobacco or Opium, which lead to Consumption and Insanity. With every $5 order we give a written guarantee to cure or refund the money. Sold at $1.00 per box, 6 boxes for $5.00. DR. MOTT'S CHEMICAL COMPANY, Cleveland, Ohio.

BEFORE AND AFTER USING.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES. OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patents in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.

OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Say,
Do
You
Know
That you
Can Buy
At Cost,
Any Pair of Ladies,
Misses
Or Children's Shoes
And Slippers
At the GLOBE CLOTHING
and SHOE COMPANY.
It's a
Fact!
Try
It.

STILL WE LEAD With a nice line of Watches, Clocks, Jewelry Silverware, Spectacles, Gold Pins, Musical Instruments, etc. All kinds of Machine Needles Best Oil,

SPECIAL and PERSONAL attention given to REPAIRING by Mr. Yesbera.

BICYCLES promptly Repaired by W. C Champion.

SEWING MACHINES put in first-class order by R. A. York

First goods and first-class workmen you will find at

F. J. YESBERA'S

Jewelry Store, Auburn Ind

R. SHULL'S
CASH SHOE STORE
Is now located in the
KIBLINGER BUILDING
where a
Large Line
OF
BOOTS AND SHOES
May be Found.

THE AUBURN COURIER

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY.

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, post-office as second-class matter.

THURSDAY,.....MAY 2, 1895.

Not Better.

The Dispatch is out in its usual election article about how much a republican town board has saved the taxpayers. This is foolishness. He can only show a decrease of $186 in the amount of orders issued, as compared with the last democratic board, that was putting down many fire wells, cement crossings, helping on the expense of the new school house, etc. The past year, none of these things were done except to help a little on the school house. Not a fire well has been added, and the neglected crossings show how little has been done in that line. So, instead of a better showing, it is a poorer one.

CALL FOR COUNTY ORDERS.

All orders dated previous to Oct. 31, 1893 and up to No. 1856, series M., are called. Interest on same will stop April 27, 1895.

17-18 D. W. FAIR, Treasurer.

OLDS-KLINE

At the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Martha Britton, on North Jackson street, at 10:30 a. m. to-day, occurred the marriage of R. Wildred Kline and Arthur B. Olds. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. K. Walts, of the M. E. church, in the presence of only a few of the near relatives. The rooms were nicely decorated and over the folding door hung a beautiful vine of English ivy which had been used on two former occasions of this kind. Underneath this vine the young couple were joined as husband and wife. The bride wore a pearl colored lawnsdowne silk dress and the groom, the regulation black dress suit. After congratulations by the friends present they were invited to the dining room where dinner was served. After dinner was over they took the cab for the Junction, where they took the B. & O. west bound train at 12:25 for Plainwell, Mich., where they will spend a few days with Mr. Olds' sister, Mrs. John Bishop. On their return they will visit a few days at Lagrange.

Mr. Olds is one of Auburn's most successful business men having for several years been associated with his brother in running a novelty and china store. He is a member of the M. E. church and an honest and upright young man. Mrs. Olds is also among the many cultured young ladies of our town. She is an esteemed and worthy member of the M. E. church and also is a member of the L. L. C. They will go to housekeeping in a few weeks. Mr. Olds having bought the property formerly occupied by W. J. Olds. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Olds, mother and father of the groom, of St. Joe, Mrs. W. Olds, of Hicksville, Mrs. J. K. Walts and Mrs. Nettie Eckhart. The COURIER joins with their many friends in congratulations. This reminds us, that about a year ago there were four young couples who were always seen together. The first couple married, were John Lochner and Miss Darley Clark, the 9th of May, last; Will Eckhart and Nettie Willis, June 6; Eugene Altenberg and Hattie Casebeer went next and Arthur Olds and Wildred Kline. And the ivy decorations have served for the last three.

WATERLOO.

Mrs. Maxson returned home Thursday of last week from a visit with friends and relatives in Michigan. Her daughter had planned a surprise for their mother, and had been cleaning house in her absence. Such kind, thoughtful daughters make home happy.

There continues to be some new cases of grippe, and many of measles, some of the number adults.

Rev. Richard Locke is in New York now, which city he likes even better than Boston. He has recently had calls from two churches to fill their pulpit. He will probably accept one.

Dora Locke is at home, and reports a delightful visit at Decatur.

Mrs. Tim McClure continues to improve in health.

Mrs. Nellie Leas, and Mrs. Alda Bemenderfer returned from Indianapolis Friday where they represented the Eastern Star in the grand chapter of that order.

Miss Ora Yeagey took Mrs. Bemenderfer's place in the high school during her absence last week.

The DeKalb Bank Building has been improved by a new stairway to the R. of H. hall above and a platform below, the whole painted together with outside wood work, windows and door frames shutters etc.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder
Awarded Gold Medal Midwinter Fair, San Francisco.

HELD UP.

Either in fun or in earnest, a couple of Auburn boys had their nerve tried Sunday evening. John Richards and Geo. Trout, had driven up into the country this side of Ashley to visit their relatives the Buss families. They started home about dusk and had gone three or four miles, when they met a team consisting of two scrawny horses and a light road wagon, in the wagon were three strange men. As the two rigs approached the strangers gave a little of the road and stopped. As the boys turned out to get by, the men called out to them to stop which they did. The strangers added, 'You might as well jump; we are going to have that rig." "Not much you won't" answered George, though he was badly scared. John told him to whip up and not stop, which he did and they shot ahead and out of danger in a jiffy. A little farther along they inquired about the strange men they had encountered, but no one believed they lived in that section. It is apparent that either some one tried to frighten the boys or else were half drunk and really meant business. But whether in fun or in earnest, they may some day get into trouble, as the law does not contemplate any encouragement to that kind of fun.

BAPTIZO.

Some people Differ as to the Meaning of this Fine Old Word, but the Two Billies Don't.

Yesterday Billy Miller and Billy Edgington took a horseback ride. Billy E. was a cavalry man in the late unpleasantness and keeps up the memories of his hard service by owning a horse on which he takes daily rides. Billy M., is also a fair rider, and as both are barbers they are good friends. As they went cantering up Seventh street, they reminded one of G. P. R. James' "Solitary horsemen," only they were not "solitary" neither did they swear such strange oaths as "by my halidome" like James' heroes in his novels. All the swearing they do, can be readily understood in the United States, east or west, north or south. And so, gaily conversing they careered to the northward, the horses hoofs keeping up a musical sound like Tennyson's North England horse like the sound of "property, property, property, etc." Like the wise men in the east, they sought the "Morning star." They soon reached Cedar Creek at that popular point where the Morningstar road crosses it, and where the big "swimmin' hole" is. There, they paused to let their horses drink of the cool, limpid water. This was the mistake of the trip. As Billy Miller's horse struck the deep water, it either found quicksand or stumbled over something. At all events it fell, splash in the deep water, Miller was thrown off, and went under, one foot remaining in the stirrup. When he rose to the top, he was damp, very damp, but he did not forget, that one foot was fast, and he set about, very industriously trying to get loose. But this was not easy, and he at last had to go under water long enough to free his foot, coming up again half drowned. In the meantime his friend Billy Edgington, had rushed in to help him. But to do this, he had to jump off his horse and likewise plunge into the deep water. So both were thoroughly soaked. They let the horses go, and they "Pulled for the Shore" in vigorous style. They reached a small island and drew themselves out and lay down to rest and dry off. Their island was not as big as Robinson Crusoe's but they were as wet as he was and like him, "their right there was none to dispute." They are both home now. They are "in out of the wet" and while both believe in the virtues of cold water, they are free to admit that one may have too much, even of a good thing. As Cowper said of John Gilpin,

"And when they once do ride again
May I be there to see."

CORUNNA.

Making garden seems to be the order of the day in Corunna.

Mrs. Ida Knauer's brother, of Ayilla was her guest last week.

David Shook has been on the sick list for several days past. Ed Gushwa is working in his place.

Miss Vallie Shaffer is visiting friends in LaOtto this week.

Milo Thomas sold five buggies in one day last week, and it didn't seem to be a very good day for buggies either.

Mrs. Mary Britton, of Hudson, visited with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Pairsn, last week.

Tillie Henke, of Waterloo, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Wallace over Sunday.

The wife of Fred Deem died Wednesday the 24th. Funeral services on Thursday 25th by Rev. F. D. Speckien, after which the remains were laid to rest in the cemetery at Garrett.

Children Cry for
Pitcher's Castoria.

Sizes Getting Broken

Have you purchased your straw hats for Summer?

If not, come at once. This weather is raising havoc with them. We have you sizes now in abont fifty different styles of straw.

But we will not have it long at the present rate of sales Straws from 10 cents to 2 dollars- Manillas from one dallar and fifty centts to two dollars and fifty cents. Children's Sailors from 25 c to 1 dollar, in sizes from 7 1-8 to 7.

Come and examine our line and be convinced that we carry the proper things for summer wear.

G. H. Yesbera.

RUPTURE

Of Men, Women and Children permanently cured in 30 days, without pain or slightest inconvenience by the Fidelity Method. Every case guaranteed. Patient need not pay a dollar until completely cured. The truss discardeer. Over 8,000 cases cured in the last five years. Consultation free.

J. B. CASEBEER, M. D.

Their authorized physician in Indiana and who will visit Auburn in April. Correspondence Solicited, Address 14 East Ohio Street, INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

The Baltz Case

he Case of Baltz vs Martin & Row, finally Ended.

The above case was decded in Columbia City, Saturday, in favor of Mr. Baltz It will be remembered that Harry Martin and his wife, traded their farm in Fairfield township to Baltz for his Auburn livery stock in 1893. The farm belonged to Martin's wife and she lacked a few months of being 21 years old at the time of the sale. After remaining in the livery business for a time Martin and his wife disposed of his livery stock. But after Mrs. Martin became of age she attempted to dis-affrm the sale because she was a minor, and without returning the livery stock. She then sold the farm to her step-father, John Row. Baltz had taken the land subject to a mortgage of $1,000, in favor of Mrs. J. G. Martz, which he agreed to pay. After Mr. Row got a deed for the land he got a new mortgage on it to Kauffman, of Kendallville of $1,800, also including in the mortgage his home farm, and with a portion of the money obtained from Kauffman he paid off the Martz mortgage. Baltz then brought this action to quiet his title. The case was taken to Whitley county on change of venue. While the action was pending in that court, Row deeded the farm back to Mrs. Martin and she and her husband settled with Baltz, he paying them $750, and a judgment was rendered by agreement, quieting Baltz' title. Row then made application to have the judgment set aside, giving the reason that he had no notice of the matter, and that Martin had obtained said deed from him through frudulent representation. His application was granted and the case was tried over again with the above result, that is quieting Baltz' title against all the parties, and rendering a judgment against John Row for $2,200 and foreclosing the Kauffman mortgage on his farm alone. He only owns three-fifths of the 80 acres and while it is one of the best 80-acre farms in the county it will possibly take it all to pay the judgment and costs. Row and his wife own 40 acres in addition, which will leave them a home, but this transaction will be a severe lesson to Row in his old age. Judge McClellan and Roby were Baltz' attorneys and Penfield, Marshall and McNagny for Martin and Row.

Gas Explosion

We don't have to go to Bluffton to get our explosions. Yesterday it is reported on what seems to be good authority, that there was an explosion of natural gas out at Mr. Pyles' east of here. He has always insisted that gas flows up at different places on his farm and near there. In this case, there was a distinct explosion that shook up things generally. Dr. James Adams was there at the time, or soon after, and brought word about it. This reminds us, that McDougall, the gas expert, will be here next week and will likely test this section for gas and oil.

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of Nathan Squires, deceased, late of said county

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

SAMUEL A. SQUIRES, Administrator.

April 30, 1895.

J. E. & J. H. ROSE, Attorneys for Estate.

LICENSE NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given to the citizens of the incorporated town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana, that the undersigned will make application to the board of commissioners of said county, at their next regular session, to be held at the courthouse in said county, commencing on the 3rd day of June, 1895, for a license to sell spirituous, vinous, and malt liquors in less quantities than a quart at a time with the privilege of having the same drank on the premises where sold, described as follows:

A one story brick building containing but one room and occupying the South 50 feet of the following described lot: Commencing at the south-east corner of lot number twenty-seven (27) in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana, and running thence west twenty-two and two-thirds (22⅔) feet, thence north to sixth street, thence east twenty-two and two-thirds (22⅔) feet, thence south along the line of said lot number twenty seven (27) to the place of beginning. And in the same application for license I will ask permission of the Board of County Commissioners to run a lunch room, bowling alley, billiard and pool room in a one story frame building containing but one room situated on the premises hereinbefore described and north and adjoining the building in which I desire to sell liquors.

THOMAS SOMMERS.

April 29, 1895.

BIG DAMAGES

CHARLES HENTHORNE GETS $30,000 FOR THE LOSS OF BOTH LEGS.

He was Maimed in the B. & O. Wreck in Jackson Township, Sunday, Oct, 16, 1892.

Two Chicago men stole a $60 overcoat one day last week, and pawned it for enough money to buy each a new suit. As pawnbrokers seldom advance half the value of an article, here is a good illustration of the difference between a luxury and an article of neccessity.

GOOD IDEA.

A. L. Kuhlman, secretary and manager of the Auburn Mfg. Co., has provided against fire at the factory. Barrels of water have been placed in different parts of the factory with plenty of pails hanging near which are to be used for "Fire Only." Then he has attached a rope to the whistle and from different places the whistle may be blown. According to the instructions two signals are for fire, and if blown at any other time, as punishment, the person is laid off a few days. Mr. Kuhlman has the men practice each week. This morning the reporter was at the factory and he called them out supposing a fire was in the dry kiln. In less than a minute from the time the whistle was sounded the machinery stopped running and every man was out with a pail looking for the fire. This system if kept up may at some time save the institution from destruction by fire as it can not be reached by the department from any of the wells. A good example for others to follow.

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administratrix of the estate of James D. McAnally deceased late of said County.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

MARY A MCANALLY Administratrix.

April 30, 1895.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder
World's Fair Highest Award.

I. O. BUCHTEL, Homœopathic
Physician and Surgeon.

Special attention given to chronic and obscure cases and catarrhal diseases of the nose, throat and lungs; also to diseases peculiar to women and children.

Office and residence over Smith & Madden's marble works, Auburn, Ind. Office apart from residence and private. All calls attended to promptly, night or day.

Albert Robbins, Pres. J. C. Henry, V. P.

FARMERS BANK.

Capital Stock,— —$45,000.00.

—UNDER STATE SUPERVISION.—

Transacts a general banking business. Interest paid on time deposits by agreement. Collections receive careful attention. Business solicited.

A. C. ROBBINS, Cashier.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE

To all lands in DeKalb County, Indiana, at reasonable rates. I have the only set of Abstract Books in the County. Also Mortgages, Deeds and Notary Public Work of all kinds promptly attended to.

Inquire at Auditor or Surveyor's office, Auburn, or leave orders at Postoffice, Garrett,

J. P. Crimmins, Abstractor and Notary Public.

MEN WANTED

To take orders. Instruction and outfit free. Salary or commission as preferred. Splendid chance for reliable men. Experience not necessary. Write for terms and full particulars.

The R. G. CHASE COMPANY, Nurserymen. Geneva, N. Y.

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE.

Notice is hereby given, that I, Wm. Seeley Administrator of the Estate of John Nichols deceased, will offer for sale at public auction, to the highest bidder on,

Saturday, May 11, 1895,

at the late residence of the decedent in Newville township, DeKalb, Indiana, the following described personal property, belonging to the estate of said decedent, to-wit:

2 head of work horses, 1 cow 7 years old, 1 yearling steer, 1 calf 3 months old, 1 brood sow and 8 pigs, 10 head of shoats, 31 head of sheep, 1 Road wagon 1 farm wagon, 1 set double harness 1 plow, 1 drag, 1 wheel cultivator, 1 sulkly hay rake, 1 corn plow, 1 hay rake, 1 swelled body sleigh, 1 mowing machine, 1 fanning mill, household goods, log chains, double trees and whiffl trees, buggy fills and buggy pole, neck-yoke, hay in the barn, potatoes, 1 parlor stove and other articles.

TERMS OF SALE.

For all amounts not exceeding five dollars cash in hand. For amounts of five dollars and upwards, a credit of nine (9) months will be given.

Note, bearing six per cent interest after maturity, with approved security, and waiving Valuation and Appraisement Laws, will be required.

WILLIAM SEELEY. Administrator.

Baxter and Brown Attorneys.

PROBATE CAUSE NO. 4038.

State of Indiana, DeKalb County } ss:

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, May Term, 1895, Henry Wartenslaben, Louisa Fitzpatrick and M. J. Fitzpatrick, husband of Louisa Fitzpatrick, non-residents of the state of Indiana, and Woman's Home Mission Society, incorporated under the laws of the state of Illinois; Woman's Baptist Foreign Missionary Society of the West, incorporated under the laws of the state of Illinois, foreign corporations, are hereby notified that Orrin C. Clark, as executor of the will of Adelbert Wartenslaben, deceased, has filed in the Circuit Court of DeKalb county, Indiana, a petition, making them defendants thereto, and praying therein for an order and decree of said Court authorizing the sale of certain real estate belonging to the estate of said decedent and in said petition described, to make assets for the payment of the debts and liabilities of said estate; and that said petition, so filed and which is now pending, is set for hearing in said Circuit Court at the court house in Auburn, Indiana, on the 10th day of June, 1895.

Witness, the Clerk and Seal of said Court, this 27th day of March 1895.

[SEAL.] DANIEL D. MOODY, Clerk DeKalb Circuit Court.

Baxter & Brown, Attorneys.

Children Cry for
Pitcher's Castoria.

THE good name of Bishop & Lackey is our guarantee to our patrons; we do exactly as we advertise.

THE SECRET OF IT!

Every time we sell a bill of goods to a new patron we make a new friend. They are pleased. They tell their friends and make us more new customers. That's the secret of our continual success. The ball keeps rolling.

That's why our big store is continually crowded with customers.
That's why it requires Seven Thousand Feet of floor space to handle our business.
That's why you hear "Bishop & Lackey" most favorably spoken of among the people.
That's why our business is growing larger every day.
That's why we sell more goods than any two houses in DeKalb county

DRESS UP.

75 ct Serges for	50c
75 " Henriettas for	50
50 " Cashmeres for	29c
75 " Cloaking for	60c
15 " Ginghams for	10c
10 " Ginghams for	6c
7 " Calico for	5c
35 " Silks for	25c
50 " Silks for	35
75 " Silks for	50c
15 " Piques for	12½c
12½ ct Pongees for	10c
65 ct Swivel Silks for	80c
$7.50 Dress Skirts for	$5 00
4 00 Duck Suits for	3 00
3.50 Capes for	2.75
7.00 Capes for	5 00
3.00 Ladies' Hats for	2.00
5 00 Ladies' Hats for	3 50
5 ct Un'n Muslin for	4c
6 " " for	5c
9 " Bleh " for	7c
10 " " " for	8c
9 " Shirting for	7c
10 " " for	8c
10 " Outing for	8c
15 " " for	10c
12½c Ticking for	10c
20 " " for	15c
50 " Table Linen for	33c
60 " " " for	45c
40 " Men's Shirts for	25c
60 " " Overalls for	50c
20 " Denims for	15c
50 " Neck Ties for	25c
75 " Un'l'd Shirts for	50c
15 " Straw Hats for	10c
25 " " " for	15c
50 DOZ. Corsets worth 75c for	50c
100 DOZ. LADIES' Fast Black Hose worth 12½c for	10c
100 DOZ. MEN'S Half Hose worth 15c for	10c
200 DOZ. CHILDREN'S Fast Black Hose worth 15c for	10c
100 DOZ. LADIES' Fast Black Hose worth 35c for	25c
25 PIECES Chinese Matting worth 20c for	12½c
50 PIECES All Wool Carpet worth 75c for	65c
100 DOZ. MOUNTED Shades worth 20c for	12½c
25 DOZ. MOUNTED Shades worth 40c for	25c
20 DOZ. LACE CURTAINS Worth $2 50 for	$1 50

BARGAINS IN LACE CURTAINS at $2.00, $3.00, $5.00 and up to $15.00

The Good Name of Bishop & Lackey is a guarantee of the Genuineness of the Bargains we Offer.

MAIL ORDERS PROMPTLY FILLED,

Agents for the Old Reliable Butterick Patterns.

Bishop & Lackey.

Leading Merchants of DeKalb County.

You leave it to YOURSELF

To Purchase the

BEST GOODS

That are offered for the

LEAST MONEY

And to do this you should come to

Cowan Sisters'

and see the

New SUMMER GOODS Just in

D. A. HODGE, Jeweler.

KIBLINGER BUILDING.

You don't have to look through a board fence to be able to see that we are giving the very best values that can be given at the very lowest prices. See our new Goods. They re up-to date.

We invite you to call and look over our stock.
Repair work guaranteed.

The Place to buy

EASELS

Is at

OLDS BROS.'

See their assortment

Wednesday's Daily.

NORMAL at Auburn.
Write Box 52, Toledo, O., free book to men

Wheat was 63 cents in Auburn yesterday, so Mr. Miller informs us. Let 'er rise!

Jacob Walborn returned to-day from Wabash, where he has been the guest of his daughter, Mrs. L. T. Rice.

Mrs. James Veeley died this forenoon. She hadbeen in p r health for some time.

Mrs. Silver and Mrs. Mike L ong wen to Indianapolis this morning where they will attend a meeting of the order of the Eastern Star. They are delegates.

The COURIER is prepared to furnish the latest and prettiest commencement programs. Call and look at the samples.

D. A. Garwood is having his lot fixed up in fine style. When it is completed it will be one of the nicest in town. Others are now patterning after him Wm. McIntyre now has men at work fixing up his lots and when this is completed no street in town will have the appearance of VanBuren street from 7th to 9th street.

All diseases of the air passages especially catarrah and chronic, Bronchitis, as well as first stages of consumption can be cured. I am treating these diseases with great success by the use of the latest and most improved medicines and instruments. Dr. W H. Nusbaum, Auburn, Ind. 42tf

INSURANCE AGENCY:—People desiring good insurance should remember that Geo. Lanning has an office at the Davis Harware store, and works some of the very best companies in the country. Good farm risks taken. Call on him. 32tf

An Allen county man was riding out Sunday, with the lady he was going to marry the next day, when the team ran away, and they were so badly injured, that the wedding had to be postponed. We know some wives in Auburn, who would have been fortunate if both they and their husbands had been killed in a runaway on the eve of their marriage.

Mr. Hathaway and wife, of Hudson, were in town to-day the guests of Mr. Cool. Mr. Hathaway is a taxidermist and has three Montana lions, (Pumas) to mount for H. M. Showalter, of Butler. The largest one is six feet and nine inches, and the other two are five feet nine inches. The foot of the large one is six inches long by five inches wide with claws one and three-eighth inches long.

Goshen Times: Senator Vail says he will defend anyone free of charge arrested for fishing under the provisions of the Holler law and will clear them in any court. The law was defeated in the lower house of the legislature and was signed by the governor by mistake. Acting on the word of Senator Vail a number of Goshenites will visit the lakes at Syracuse with hook and line and take the chance of conviction. Of course the law cannot be declared void until it is tested in the supreme court and it remains for some one to make a test case.

The reporter had occasion to visit the Eckhart carriage factory to day. As one approaches the factory and sees the large number of bicycles standing up against the building, he at once is led to believe it is a bicycle factory. But when entering we find a large force of skilled workmen turning out the popular Eckhart carriages, surreys and phaetons. The demand for their goods is far beyond the out-put of the factory and the company is considering the matter of enlarging their capacity, which will of course necessitate the employment of more men.

A VALUABLE FIND.

After years of study ahd labor there has at last been discovered a sure and never-failing remedy. It has been tested on patients who have despaired of ever being cured, and the results have been in every case, wonderful. Groff's Rheumatic Cure is unequaled as a positive remedy in all cases of Chronic and Acute Inflammatory Rheumatism, Gout, Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia, especially Ovarian Neuralgia, Dysmenorrhœa and all kindred affections. It is also a valuable Blood Purifier, being especially useful in Eczema, Psoriasis, Scrofula, all Glandular Enlargements and diseases of the Liver and Kidneys. It is absolutely free from all narcotics. Severe attacks are relieved in from one to three days, and a positive cure effected in from five to eighteen days. For sale by Druggists. Manufactured and sold by THE GROFF MEDICINE Co., Chicago, Ill. 17 tf

Dr. A. F. Phillips a graduate of Trinity Medical College of Toronto, has located in Auburn and will occupy the front rooms on the second floor of the Kiblinger building. This is the room so long occupied by the COURIER as its business and editorial room. He comes well recommended not only as a thoroughly equipped physician but as a citizen. His patrons will find him in his office at all working hours; after 11 p. m. he can be found at his boarding place at Mrs. Askew's on West seventh street ready to respond to calls at all hours.

Awarded
Highest Honors—World's Fair,
DR.
PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER
MOST PERFECT MADE.
A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.
40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

Smoke the K. & B. ten-cent cigar.

Sealed book to men free, box 52, Toledo, O.

AUBURN Summer Normal will begin July 8.

THERE WILL be at least three instructors in the Auburn Summer Normal and each will be a specialist in the branches he teaches.

FOR SALE: A good house and barn in south part of town. Call at this office.

To Rent: Rear business room in Kiblinger building, newly painted and papered W. C. Hartman.

YOU can have most any article of iron or brass manufactured at the Junction Foundry.

You can have most any article of iron or brass manufactured at the Junction Foundry.

It is quite a sight to see the big trip-hammer work in the Kiblinger establishment. It not only gives powerful blows but rapid ones. And then, the man in charge can control it so as to give blows of any degree of lightness, so that a very delicate impression, only will be the result of a stroke. What at one moment seems a dangerous giant, suddenly becomes a delicate and painstaking servant. It is probable that the skilled man in charge could crack a walnut with it and not ruin the kernel. That reminds us of the story that Mr. Vann, the foreman of this department tells us. A certain man had heard of great triphammers and had been told that such was the perfect control the workman had of them that the crystal of a watch could be broken by it and the watch not otherwise harmed. He sought out one of the iron giants and after seeing it work asked the man in charge, "Do you think you con'd break the crystal in my watch with that hammer?" "Certainly," returned the man "if you wish it." The man took out a fine watch, laid it down on the block with the crystal uppermost. The giant made one stroke and the atoms of that watch were all over the room. The crystal had been broken——likewise the rest of the watch.

The present outlook is for a fine crop of fruit. Apple and pear trees promise enormous crops. It is early to feel certain about these things, but if no untimely frosts come the trees will be loaded with fruit. Not so much is expected of cherries and peaches. The peach blossom has almost become a rarity in this community. A good many cherry trees are in bloom, but there others that did not revive from the long winter sleep. Strawberries are promising only moderately well.

LIST OF PATENTS.

Granted to Indiana inventors this week. Reported by C. A. Snow & Co., Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents, Opp. U. S. Patent office, Washington, D. C.

L. F. Boyd, Marion' Pitman rod for organs; W. L. Cassiday, South Bend, gang plow; C. J. Greenstreet, Indianapolis, fertilizer and making same; G. Habig, Columbus, cheese safe; E. C. Johnson, Hammond, thermometer case; A. H Kennedy, Rockport, ball bat; A. J. Elkhart, electrical igniting device for gas engines; W. R. Teeguarden, Indianapolis, draft attachment for plows or cultivators.

We notice Dr. Casebeer still on our streets occasionally. We are glad to note the fact of his meeting with much success in treating different kinds of rupture. His patients speak of it in flattering terms as they can already see great improvement in their cases and have confidence in the ultimate cure. He treats by the Fidelity method which seems a great improvement over all other methods heretofore used. His patients are allowed to go on with their regular business and suffer less inconvenience than by other methods. We understand he also has a number of patients in the adjoining towns of Waterloo, Butler, Churubusco and Fort Wayne. We are glad to hear of his success and that there is permanent relief offered to those suffering from such dangerous and painful maladies. It shows progress in the scientific world and especialy in the science of medicine.

Many Citizens

Are being cured by Vitaline and Nervetone. Many others need it to restore shattered nerves and for a renewal of life and strength. That it is a most wonderful nerve soother as well as brain feeder and strength restorer is being demonstrated every day. The most obstinate nerve pains, headache, toothache and neuralgi cured in an hour's time. Ask your druggist, and accept no other. Prepared by the Hall Medicine Company Toledo, Ohio.

A Complete Chautauqua Program

Of the 1895 Chautauqua Assembly will be mailed to any address on application to A. J. Smith, G. P. A., L. S. & M. S. Ry., Cleveland, O.

Please bear in mind that the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Ry. is the best line to Chautauqua Lake, also that reduced rate tickets are on sale during the summer season.

Under the Knife.

Of the surgeon there no more scut suffering than people endure every day with Rheumatism. Distorted and withered limbs mark its ravages everywhere. Dr. Drummond's Lightning Remedy for Rheumatism has a remarkable record of cures—not only relieving the pain but restoring all the functions of crippled limbs. Send 25 to the Drummond Medicine Co., 48 Maiden Lane, New York, and the full month's treatment of two large bottles will be sent to your express address. Agents Wanted.

Thursday's Daily.

Those who are to bring us wood on subscription can deliver it to us at any time now.

Book free despondent men, box 52, Toledo, O

"Coin's Financial School," the greatest book of the age, converting thousands of gold bugs into free silver men. For sale at the Glazier News Stand, 25 cents per copy.

Alba Heywood has been playing at LaGrange.

Chas. E. Miller, expert optician, will again be at Yesbera's jewelry store, Friday, May 10th. All glasses guaranteed to be correct.

CUSTOMERS, waiting to buy properties in town ranging in price from $400 to $1,000 come quick. Rickel & Sprott

Now is your time to buy a good second hand binder. Brown, Culbertson & Boland have several that they will sell very cheap.

There was a meeting of the executive committee of the DeKalb county Sunday school association at the Lutheran church this afternoon. They were arranging the program for the convention which meets at Waterloo, June 4 and 5. Mort Olds and M. T. Bishop were up from St. Joe.

The Eagle Manufacturing Co. at Auburn Junction are making all kinds of light and heavy castings.

St. Joe News: S. N. Olds is assisting his son W. J., on the farm near Hicksville this week. As Will is a new hand at the business and father is over seventy-five years old there will doubtless be some tall farming done.

MARRIED: Thursday, April 18, 1895, A. M. Harkey, of this county, to Miss Dora Hull, of Churubusco. The groom is one of our young Butler township citizens, and the COURIER sends its best wishes for their happiness.

Samuel A. Squires has been appointed administrator of the estate of his father, the late Nathan Squires, and Mrs. Mary A. McAnally has been appointed administratrix of the estate of her husband, the late James McAnally, of Waterloo.

James D. McAnally.

James D. McAnally the subject of this brief memoir was born at Troy Ohio, January 31, 1830. Here the happy joyous days of his childhood and youth were passed beneath the parental roof, in the old "Ohio home." These happy days, like all of life's, Alas! how soon are gone.

In 1846 he came with his parents to Indiana and settled on what is now known as the Wm. Thrush farm in Butler township, DeKalb county. Here he assisted in clearing away the forest in order the "Wilderness might blossom as the rose." These ware years of hard labor and privation.

In the year Jan. 9, 1851, he was married to Miss Mary Knott, a neighbor's daughter, with whom he has trodden life's rugged path for more than forty years. To this union were born six children, four daughters and two sons But three of these survive to mourn the loss of a kind and indulgent father. They are, Mrs. Lizzie Klotz and Mrs. Francelia Stamets, of Waterloo, and Mr. Samuel Y. McAnallly, of Auburn Junction.

During the years of the "Gold ever" he crossed the continent and engaged in gold mining in California, and shortly after his return from the far west he removed to Waterloo, where he has since continously resided for a period of about 34 years.

In the domain of mechanics Mr. McAnally had few equals. He was truly a cunning worker in wood, stone, iron, brass, and other metals. Whatever he was able to contrive in the curious workshop of his brain, the same could he fashion or shape or mould into beautiful form with his dextrous hands. With proper encouragement, and with the necessary means to push his inventive genius to the front, he might easily have divided honors with the "Wizzard" of the nineteenth century—Thomas A. Edison.

For several years Mr. McAnally had been failing in health. This condition continued until Saturday, April 27, 1895, when he answered the final summons to enter the silent tent whose curtain never outward swings. He leaves behind, a faithful wife, three devoted children, an aged mother and many other relatives and friends to mourn his loss. Let those who stand in the presence of death to-day cherish the bright hope that

"Some time—some day his eyes shall see
The loved ones enshrined in memory
That some time his hand shall clasp their hand
When he meets them in a brighter land."

Charles Goodman and sister May are visiting friends at Auburn Junction. They expect to return to Philadelphia, Pa., in a few days, at least till after Sunday. Mr. G. was formerly at the Junction in the employ of the B. & O., and a brother was in the employ of G. W. Werntz, the bridge builder.

JAPANESE MANHOOD
Treatment quickly and forever cures Emission, Drains, Impotency, Varicocele, Self-Abuse and all resulting evils. No C. O. D. or quack scheme. Sealed Sexual Book Free if you mention this paper and describe your case. Address Japan Medical Company, Toledo, O.

Saturday's Daily:

The Opera House will no doubt be built. Our people have been asking us about it and we wish to say that while the project starts out a little slow, we consider it sure, and that the building will be a good one and a credit to the town and the liberal projectors.

Free sexual book to men, box 52, Toledo, O.

Geo. Henderson came down from Angola this morning. He says Mr. Hendry is recovering and will be able to attend his trial Tuesday.

F. T. Zimmerman was driving at the Junction yesterday when his horse became frightened at the train. Mr. Zimmerman got out of the buggy and held his horse, but in some way slipped and sprained his limb. He was able to be about this morning with the aid of a crutch.

Free book to weak men, box 52, Toledo, O.

Perry Link went to his home at Benzonia, Mich, yesterday. He left via Wabash No. 45.

F. H. Boyle has ten full blood black Java chicks. He is as proud of them as ever he was of little Ruth when she came to his home. Frank belongs to the poultry association.

Kendallville Sun:—Two months ago a cow belonging to a man named Kiser, residing on the Coquillard farm dropped a fine calf. In a few days for some mysterious reason the cow's milk dried up. Monday evening of this week the cow dropped another fine healthy calf and the milk drying mystery had its explanation. What this item will become under the telegraph liar's manipulation can only be conjectured.

CHICAGO started her first street car April 25, 1859. They were on State street and ran from Twelfth street "up town." Seems funny now, when they have a hundred or so lines some going out twenty miles from "up town."

THE CHICAGO RECORD offers $30,000 to be divided up among authors who will write "Stories of Mystery" for them. There will be twelve prizes, the highest being $10,000 and the lowest $500. Then they will pay $10,000 additional for stories that do not take the prize but have sufficient value to entitle them to space in the paper.

Monday's Daily

Wm. T. Peters, a noted musician of Sandusky, O, and V. H. Daniels, representing the Kimball Co., of Chicago, were in the city Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Less and Rev. W. O. Butler of Waterloo passed through here to-day from attending the burial of the late J. D. McAnally of Waterloo.

Frank W. Stoops will sell the popular Pierce Bicycle made at Buffalo, N. Y. If you want a good wheel call on him at Neff & Weeks' grocery and examine his samples. 18 19

All sorts of clubs are formed nowadays. One of the queerest is a club of people with six fingers on each hand, started in London. Persons having six fingers on only one hand may, however, be admitted. The secretary reports that there are known to be at least 2,173 persons with six, and 431 with seven fingers on one hand. There is but one person living known to have eight fingers on one hand. Ex.

M. B. Masters, over in Gas Addition, has his early garden well under way. He is also planning to have an abundance of fine fruit in a year or two.

Mrs. F. J. Yesbera has been engaged to sing at the High School commencement at Montpelier, Ohio. She receives $10 and her expenses. All eyes turn towards Auburn when anything is wanted.

Cook Ford drove over to Hicksville yesterday to call on Mrs. Ford's parents Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Lewis.

Tuesday's Daily.

Miss Fannie Casebeer, who has been in Chicago for several months, is in town again the guest of friends.

The Kendallville Standard compliments Auburn for her enterprise in keeping the Auburn Foundsy and Machine works here.

Andy Murhpy has sold his residence property on Cedar street to Mrs. James Sterling, mother of Mrs. D. N. Fitch.

In speaking of the flowing well yesterday we stated the well at Al. Bishop's was only 100 feet deep. But Mr. Bishop informs us he paid for 180 feet. We are glad to make the correction.

FOUND: A bunch of keys. Owner can have by paying for this notice.

Jacob Walborn left this morning for Wabash where he will remain a few days in the family of his daughter, Mrs. L T. Rice.

Get "Gerbelle" flour.

One of Auburn's bicyclists was taking a pleasure ride in the country east of town yesterday, when he was attacked by a big dog. As a result, of course, his pants were somewhat torn, his temper up to the highest possible notch and swore vengeance against the dog and further promised it sure death if he ever met it again.

Treasurer Fair is moving into Mr. Saxton's property and Mr. S. C. Snyder will occupy the Casebeer house.

The time is near at hand when you had better look up your programs for commencements. The COURIER has the 1895 samples and are the latest and prettiest thing out.

Jacob Stealy of Angola came down yesterday to visit his son, George Stealy who is painting in the Kiblinger factory. Mr. Stealy is a marble dealer and of course put in some time at the establishment of Madden Brothers.

A. F. Phillips, Fellow of Trinity Medical College of TORONTO.
OFFICE in the Second Floor Front of the Kiblinger Building, Corner of Main and Seventh Street, AUBURN.
Calls answered promptly. Be in Office till 11 p. m.
ROOMS at Mrs. Askew's, on West Seventh Streets. 18tf

LOOK HERE.

We have a little story to tell you about economy. Buy where you can get best values of goods for the money.

LOOK AT PRICES!

27 inch, double fold plaids and novelties 15c. per yard.
36 inch ½ wool cashmere for 20c pr yd
36 inch all wool cashmere for 35c " "
36 " " " albatross " 35c " "
46 " " " serges " 50c " "
46 " " " henrietta, 60a75c " "
30 " canvas back duck suiting at 12½c per yard.
30 inch sateens, new line, 12½c per yd
30 inch plain and fancy percales, 10c per yard.
New ginghams, 5, 8, 10 and 12½c per yard.
L L sheeting muslins, 4c per yard.
The Bibb Carpet warp on spools. By using theis warp there is no cost for spooling. No waste by tangled skeins. Price 20 cents per pound.
Gents' white and fancy Percales and Dermet Shirts, Underwear, ½ Hose Suspenders, Overalls' Cottonade pants.
Neckties, New Styles, Latest Novelties

Larger Lines - Better Values,
LOWER PRICES.

M. JONES & SON

Wanted.

Good person to represent us.
QUAKER LIFE INSURANCE Co,
Elkhart, Ind.

Money to Loan.

By F. L. Welsheimer. Best Building and Loan Association represented in Auburn. Money to loan in large or small sums on good security.

WANTED TO BUY: Dwelling property in Auburn, ranging in price from $350 to $800. Answer quick we have customers waiting. Rickel & Sprott.

Eggs for Hatching.

I will sell eggs from my pen of pure bred Golden Buff Cochins, Doolittle Strain, at 50c. per setting of 13. Call or address, H. V. SINCLAIR.

Brown, Culbertson & Boland have several good second hand binders at prices ranging from $15 to $50. Call and see them.

Notice of Sale of Real Estate.

Notice is hereby given, that I, Harrison Enzor, executor of the will of Stephen K. Enzor, deceased, will offer for sale at public auction, to the highest bidder, on Saturday, May 11, 1895, at 10 o'clock, a. m., at the door of the court house in Auburn, Indiana, for the purpose of paying debts, the following described real estate, belonging to the estate of said decedent to-wit:

The north half of the northeast quarter [¼] of the northeast quarter [¼] of section fourteen [14] and the north half [½] of the northwest quarter [¼] of the northwest quarter [¼] of section thirteen [13] all in township thirty-five [35] north, of range fourteen [14] east, in DeKalb county, state of Indiana.

TERMS OF SALE:

One-third cash, one-third in 9 months, and one-third in 12 months. Deferred payments to be evidenced by interest-bearing notes waiving relief and secured by mortgage upon the premises sold. HARRISON ENZOR, Executor.
Baxter & Brown, Attys.

Notice to Non-Residents

State of Indiana, De alb County
In the Circuit Court, May Term, 1895

William H. McIntyre Administrator of the estate of William H. Kiblinger deceased vs Horace G. Kircher, Nettie Kircher. } Notice

The plaintiff in the above cause having filed his complaint therein together with an affidavit that the defendants are not residents of the State of Indiana, and the cause of action alleged in the complaint is founded upon a contract in relation to real estate in this State, to-wit: to enforce a lien thereon by foreclosure of a mortgage and the appointment of a receiver.

Now therefore, the said defendants are hereby notified that unless they be and appear on the 3rd day of next (May) term of the DeKalb Circuit Court, to be held on the 3rd Monday of May A. D., 1895, at the Court House in Auburn, in said County and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in their absence.

In Witness whereof, I hereunto set my hand and affix the seal of said Court this 20th day of April 1895. DANIEL D. MOODY, Clerk.
C. A. O. McClellan. Atty. for ptf.

Notice of Final Settlement of Estate.

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested in the estate of Lewis Olinger, deceased, to appear in the DeKalb Circuit Court, held at Auburn, Indiana, on the 20th day of May, 1895, and show cause, if any, why my final settlement accounts with the estate of said decedent should not be approved; and said heirs and all others interested are notified to then and there make proof of heirship or claim and receive their distributive shares.

Witness my name this 24th day of April, 1895.
MARION F. FRANKS Executor
Baxter & Brown, Atty's.

Notice to Non-Residents

STATE OF INDIANA, DEKALB COUNTY, SS:
In the DeKalb Circuit Court, May term, 1895.

Cora Skutt is hereby notified that an action has been commenced against her in said Court, for divorce, by Oscar M. Skutt, and that the same will be heard and determined on the 17th day of June, 1895, being of the next term of said court, which commences May 20, 1895.

Witness, The Clerk of said Court this 23d day of April, 1895. DANIEL D. MOODY, Clerk.
W. H. Leas, Attorney.

LICENSE NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given to the citizens of the incorporated town of Auburn, Union township, DeKalb county, in the state of Indiana, that the undersigned will apply to the Board of Commissioners of said county at their next regular session, commencing on the 3rd day of June, 1895, for a license to sell spirituous, vinous and malt liquors in less quantities than a quart at a time, with the privilege of permitting the same to be drank on the premises where sold. And in the same application for license I will ask permission of the Board of County Commissioners to sell cigars and lunch in the said room. The premises on which I desire to sell is a part of town lot numbered one hundred thirty-eight (138) in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana, and particularly described as follows.

Commencing thirteen and one-half (13½) feet east of the northwest corner of said lot and running thence east thirty-one and one-half (31½) feet, thence south to the south line of said lot thence west thirty-one and one-half [31½] feet, thence north to the place of beginning, in Auburn, Union township, DeKalb county, Indiana.
April 27, 1895. HENRY WEST.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder
World's Fair Highest Medal and Diploma.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

JAMES A. BARNS, - - PUBLISHER.

There is a scheme on foot to extend the Sheridan drive and Chicago's park system to Milwaukee.

A Washington dispatch says that Dr. Mary Walker has lost her suit in court. If it is the one she wore awhile ago she is to be congratulated.

There is reason to believe from his recent comments that Editor Stead of London has been overindulging in somebody's nerve tonic again.

What was the principal cause of the Republican victories in Chicago and St. Louis?—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Votes.

Miss Braddon, the novelist, has lost her husband, John Maxwell.—New York Sun.

No doubt Miss Braddon Mrs. him greatly.

John W. Goff receives $20,000 for his six months' work before the Lexow committee, to say nothing of the Recordership. Even at the present low price of high-class entertainments, he was cheap at the price.

Japan's dictum that China must be opened to commerce will be a grievous blow to the latter nation. To be whipped into acceptance of civilization is necessarily humiliating.

For kissing a dude, a woman has been fined $15 by a Chicago Justice. Any woman with the bad taste to kiss one of those things, by courtesy called dudes, deserves even greater punishment.

Professor Falb, of Leipsic, has named twenty-five days as critical days in 1895. There are, however, many more. Falb, perhaps, doesn't know it; but in fact every day that comes "thirty days after date" is an awfully critical day.

Judge Hazen, of Topeka, has just handed down a very able decision that chickens are animals. The Supreme Court of the United States last year ruled that the beet is a vegetable. One by one these great questions of jurisprudence are being settled.

Train robbers who recently held up an express train in Indian Territory apologized for taking the passengers' valuables and excused their course by saying: "You know times are mighty hard." That sort of work doesn't make times much better, however.

Telegraph editors should not overlook the nice point that what the Harvard overseers said was not that Harvard boys can play foot-ball, but that they may. Of late years there has been grave doubt whether Harvard can play foot-ball, whether its faculty approves or not.

A charming actress, whose suit for divorce created something of a sensation a few days ago, states that she admires the defendant in the case as a friend, but cares for him no longer as a husband. When she secures her divorce, she says she will marry again—Art being the lucky object of her affections. We have always believed that art was of the feminine persuasion—but that may make no difference.

A medical writer calls attention to the fact that the filling of carious teeth with amalgam is destructive to health. One of the ingredients of amalgam is quicksilver, which oxydizes rapidly when exposed to the air, in contact with fetid water, and in the mouth when exposed to acids and vitiated secretions. The product is swallowed into the stomach and there becomes poisonous, producing the well-known symptoms of mercurial poisoning. Here and there a person may escape, but in the great majority of cases where amalgam has been used for the filling of teeth it does great harm. Therefore it should not be used at all for this purpose. Gold is the only perfectly safe material for filling, and is also the most durable.

So far as bloomers are concerned they are doing very well indeed. It is true that a young woman student at the University of Michigan has been ejected from her boarding-house because she would come to the table in a bicycle suit built for two. But the young woman's loss of nutriment by this ejection (assuming that there was any loss) has been more than made up in the glory of martyrdom. Yesterday she was an eccentric young person; to-day she is the Queen of a Cult. Dux femina facti. Ann Arbor is blooming with bloomers now. Even the young men are wearing them. Then there is Elmore, Ohio. We cannot tell where this town may be, but it must be on the map. Twenty-four of Elmore's daughters have sworn to wear no skirts save of the bifurcated sort, which, by the uninitiate may not be distinguished from knickerbockers. Their fathers and young men are in distress, but that is only because they know no better. What insight have they into the aesthetic value of such things? There may be bloomers in Elmore when all the young men are dead or bald. These are trifles only—mere breaths or pantlets of wind, so to speak, precursing the cyclone that is to blow over the land, carrying with it the last vestiges of the old-fashioned skirt. It may be with us a little season yet, but it is doomed.

Part, at least, of the remarkable advance in the price of beef can be accounted for by natural causes affecting the cattle crop. The statistics given by Secretary Morton show that the cattle crop for the present year is nearly 1,000,000 less than that of the year preceding. Last year's drought played havoc with cattle in many of the larger stock-raising districts of the West. The lack of an adequate crop of corn also had a tendency to decrease the supply of prime beef made from corn-fed cattle. It is not unlikely that the firms which control the cattle supply have taken advantage of these influences to make a profit on their decreased supply by artificial means. It would be quite possible to do this without entering upon any actual combination or trust. With a serious scarcity of cattle the influence of even one of the giant packing firms which might choose to hold back its supply of cattle would effect an increase of price which the other firms would rather secure than endeavor to cut down by competition. However, it is gratifying to know that the Secretary of Agriculture is going to make a thorough investigation of the facts with a view to learning the exact causes of the sudden advance in beef. If any unfair means is being used to increase the cost of the people's tenderloins and sirloins the public has a right to know it.

TREAD LIKE A CAT.

Excessive Care Exercised by Workmen in a Powder Mill.

A devout Mohammedan who removes his shoe before entering a mosque is hardly more ceremonious than the every day workman in a gun-powder mill. For gun-powder has all the attributes of a jealous and exacting deity, and unless it is treated with due deference it has a habit of puncturing solid stone walls with the bodies of its devotees and making itself highly uncomfortable in other ways. So when the workman reaches the mill in the morning he stops in a little vestibule and brushes his shoes and clothing with great care, removing every particle of sand and grit. Usually he wears long rubber boots that he may tread softly while in the august presence of the gun-powder. In some of the processes he dons a rubber cap and rubber mittens, and he is always exceedingly careful to leave his pipe and matches at home. He cannot receive any visitors at the works, for gun-powder has a particular aversion to strangers and not infrequently it disintegrates and scatters a new or pretentious workman over several acres of ground.

Besides these peculiarities gun-powder has a distinct aversion to iron or steel in any form. No nails or bolts can be used anywhere in the interior of the building, and the machinery must all be of copper or gun-metal, held together with wooden pegs. Dirt of any kind, especially grit, is tabooed. About half the time of the workmen is taken up every day in brushing down the walls of the mill and sweeping off the floors. A visitor would think to see them stealing around so softly and quietly with their brooms that the place was haunted, but it is only their way of showing respect to the gun-powder deity.

The work is for the most part light and easy, the men receiving from $1.25 to $2 a day. They are necessarily of a high grade of intelligence, sober and industrious. One heedless or blundering workman might cause horrifying loss of property and life. At a great manufactory near Keokuk, Iowa, the employes, consisting of about forty families, have organized a little commune. They have a club containing a fine library and billiard and pool tables and lounging-rooms. There is also a co-operative store in which each workman holds a share, and the company guarantees the bills. It has been eminently successful. The discounts for cash on the merchandise bills are saved and used to purchase new shares of stock, which are presented to the babies of the town in the order of their birth, thus furnishing a distinct encouragement to matrimony.

While every precaution is taken against explosions the company always expects more or less of them, and the works are usually built in such a way that they will do as little harm as possible. Yet a prominent dealer says that fewer men are killed every year by all the powder mills in the country than meet their death under the wheels of railway trains in Chicago alone.

Sir Francis Head.

Another Quarterly Reviewer of the early days was Sir Francis Head, and well do I remember his cheery face and kindly manner. The last time I saw him he was hobbling about on a pair of crutches, for he had recently been suffering from a severe attack of shingles. His feats of horsemanship across the pampas of South America, as well as with the Quorn and the Pytchley, are matters of history.

On this occasion he said to me: "For fifty-two years I never missed one day getting on horseback until this malady attacked me, and I attribute my wonderful good health to this constant practice." In order to obtain exercise while thus crippled he set up a swing in his garden on Duppas Hill, and was swung by his old coachman. "It is the next best thing to going across country," he said, "and I can smell the sea when the wind comes direct from the South Downs."

I believed he had his tombstone all ready, prepared after his own design, several years before his death, and used to keep it in his coach house until it should be required, in the pretty churchyard of Sanderstead, near Croydon.—John Murray, in Good Words.

Painted Lobsters of Paris.

Energetic measures are being taken in Paris to put a stop to the coloring of lobsters and crayfish which goes on at the great central markets. Pots of red paint have been seized, and the venders of the too brilliant looking shellfish have been prosecuted in the police court for fraud by adulteration. The object of coloring the lobsters is, of course, to give them an appearance of freshness after they have been in stock for some time.

An amusing scene was witnessed in the police court when a whole crowd of voluble and excited fishwives were arraigned. Some of them declared that even experts cannot tell whether or not lobsters are fresh. One of them went so far as to solemnly affirm that certain customers prefer their shellfish "high," which gave the magistrate an opportunity for a little joke to the effect that only "faisans" (pheasants) are good "faisandes" (high). The women were sentenced to six days' imprisonment each and a fine of fifty francs.

There are some people whose religion wouldn't fool the most credulous person on earth, but they expect the Lord to swallow it.

It is easy for a disagreeable person to get the reputation of being "literary."

ALLIES OF THE JAPS.

ENGLAND AND UNCLE SAM WITH THE MIKADO.

With Two Powerful Friends the Demands of the Russian Bear Are Laughed to Scorn—Montreal the Scene of a Terrible Accident.

Defies Her Big Foe.

London advices say that England will give Japan open support in the ratification of the treaty of peace with China. A friendly understanding exists between the mikado and Lord Rosebery's government. But this is not all. This tacit alliance is a triple one and the United States is the third party to it. Japanese diplomats, with wonderful astuteness, have been for weeks preparing for the situation which now confronts the nations. They recognized that if they could secure even the moral support of England and America in settling the terms of peace with their conquered foe Japan could afford to ignore or defy the rest of the world. England entered heartily into the arrangement and representatives of both Japan and England are now using the most strenuous efforts to induce the United States to stand by its tacit agreement and join in protecting Japan against foreign interference. Such an attitude, it is represented, would not be repugnant to the American policy, but it is a peculiarly unusual and strange one for Great Britain to assume.

Japan watches with keen interest the course of the European powers regarding the Shimoneseki treaty. Japanese diplomats are not particularly apprehensive of the outcome. The refusal of England to act in concert with Russia, Germany and France has encouraged the Japanese to believe that no strong single policy can be agreed on by the countries that feel their interests in the East are threatened by the terms of the peace. Germany is thought to be but half-hearted in her co-operation with France and Russia, if such co-operation has been assured. Much confidence is felt in the assurances of good feeling given by Great Britain and the United States.

The Russian Prince Uchtomoky, who accompanied the present czar on his tour in the East, has written a long communication to the Moscow Viedomosti explaining the threatening features of the situation in the Orient. He declares that Russian intervention is inevitable. It would be criminal neglect, he thinks, if Russia were to allow Japan to menace Russia's interests in east Asia, as is contemplated in the Shimoneseki treaty. He expresses the fear that bloodshed will be necessary before Japan's aggressive spirit can be checked. He regards the Japanese as intoxicated with the completeness of their victory and determined to force upon the rest of the world a policy which all nations having interests in east Asia must frustrate, by peaceful means if possible, but otherwise by the sword.

Washington Diplomats Secretive.

A Washington dispatch says the report by cable that England and Japan were making strenuous efforts to secure the co-operation of the United States to prevent other powers from interfering in the making of the treaty of peace between Japan and China and control certain of its terms, was referred to the Japanese Legation. Minister Kurino is sick, but questions as to the truth of the story were answered to the effect that nothing was known of it at the Japanese Legation. If efforts were being made to bring the United States into the affair on the side of Japan they were not being participated in by Minister Kurino. There is high authority for the statement that nothing of the kind had been urged at the State Department by either the English or Japanese diplomats. So far, at least, no invitation to the United States to interfere in any way in the treaty making between China and Japan had come from any source. It was stated emphatically that no attitude of interference would be assumed by the United States now or hereafter, no matter who issued the invitation or who urged it.

MANY GIRLS MANGLED.

Pinned in a Montreal Fire-Trap by Iron-Barred Windows.

W. C. McDonald's extensive tobacco factory in Montreal, Que., was partially destroyed by fire Thursday evening. The loss will reach half a million dollars, on which there was no insurance. There was not a fire escape on the outside nor any appliances on the inside of the building for the fighting of the fire. Even the windows were guarded by heavy iron screens, presumably to prevent theft. The fire started at 5 o'clock in the drying room, and for a while smoldered. Then suddenly the flames burst through and a most awful panic ensued.

There were 900 employes in the building, and more than half this number were women and girls. The shrieks of the women as they beat against the iron screens, praying the crowd to do something to save them, were most heartrending. As the flames burst out three firemen were on the roof, and for fully twenty minutes their lives were despaired of, till finally ladders were found to bring them down. They were badly burned.

The girls were nearly all on the fourth floor, and frantic with fear. With much trouble one of the iron lattices was knocked off, when one of the girls jumped and was almost shattered to pieces when she struck the roof of an adjoining warehouse. In a similar manner the others followed to the number of thirty. The ambulances were kept busy carrying the women and girls to the hospitals, and some were driven in cabs to their homes.

From inquiries at the hospitals concerning the condition of the girls injured by jumping from the windows of the burning building, it was learned that but little hope is entertained for the recovery of at least five. The first girl to make the terrible leap from the fourth floor to the warehouse roof was Marie Gagnon, who was picked up in an insensible condition with her back broken.

TOO BIG FOR JAIL.

A Kentucky Giant Who Wouldn't Stoop to Enter a Prison Door.

James McDowell, a man of herculean build and standing seven feet and one inch in his bare feet, treated Grayson Ky., to a regular picnic a few days ago. Jailer Brown had a warrant issued for him, the charge being that McDowell had smuggled liquor to prisoners in jail. McDowell was easily found and went to the jail door, which was only six and one half feet high. But he refused to stoop to enter the jail. The jailer begged, then threatened, but the giant stood immovable. Brown tried to bend McDowell's legs at the knee. He got up twenty feet away. Help was called for, but McDowell stood at the door, grim, but steadfast. A crowd began to gather. Soon all the town was attracted to the giant at the jail door. He was good-natured and laughed and jested with the crowd.

Toward evening McDowell announced that he was getting weary and would go home, promising to appear in court the next day, adding that if the door was enlarged he would go into the jail, but he would never bow to any jail door. Brown let him go. McDowell came back as he had promised, pleaded guilty and paid his fine.

SCARED BY A HAG.

Sad Case of a Foolish Bride Who Is Dying in Florida.

As a result of what some folks claim is witchcraft, Mrs. W. R. Langford, a bride of but a few weeks, who lives about twelve miles from Bartow, Fla., is on her deathbed.

Some time ago Mrs. Langford came to Bartow to attend the Normal Institute hoping to pass her examination and afterward get an appointment as school teacher. Mrs. Langford was in high spirits and soon became noted as one of the jolliest of the Normal students. One day as she was walking alone in the suburbs of the town she was accosted by an old woman of the Meg Merrilies type, whom Mrs. Langford had never seen before. The hag surprised Mrs. Langford by addressing her by name and by telling her that she had been married only a few days, and that she was the second wife of her husband; all of which was true.

Mrs. Langford wondered how the old woman should be so familiar with the circumstances of her life, but her astonishment increased when the hag, pointing a skinny finger at her, said: "Enjoy yourself while you may, dearie, for in three months from to-day you will be a corpse."

The old woman disappeared, and has not been seen since, nor has any clue to her identity been discovered. Mrs. Langford returned from her walk and told her companions what had occurred. Her friends attempted to laugh the matter off, but the young bride seemed convinced that the hag's prophecy would prove true. She returned to her home, told her husband of the old woman's prediction and then took to her bed. She has been growing weaker ever since, and it is believed she will die before the date fixed. Mrs. Langford complains of no pain, but is simply wasting away. She takes medicines prescribed by doctors, but says it is useless as she is doomed.

An Inexact Man.

Rent day in Paris is a very important occasion. The landlord is king in a realm where exactitude is not only encouraged but enforced. An English man says he once went to see a landlord about some matter connected with the house he had hired. The Frenchman proved to be a suspicious and inquisitive old gentleman, who had made his fortune in the candle trade.

"What do you sell?" he inquired.

The Englishman acknowledged that he made his bread by writing for the magazines. The landlord shrugged his shoulders.

"I am afraid," said he, "that you will not be exact with your rent, on the 15th of the month."

He evidently had old-fashioned notions of literature as well as the other arts, and preferred that his tenants should be, like himself, comfortable in trade. So, in order to vindicate his vocation, the Englishman went to call upon him in person on the 14th, with rent in hand.

"I told you so!" exclaimed the precise old merchant. "I knew you would not be exact, at the day and hour fixed. You have brought your rent twenty four hours too soon!"

No Pope Joan.

Though the story has been refuted over and over again, there is still a widespread belief that there existed in the middle ages a female pope. Pope Joan, as she is called, has even given her name to a game of cards which is mentioned in Sheridan's "School for Scandal." The tradition with regard to the female pope has been traced back to the eleventh century, but she is said to have lived much earlier, her pontificate having taken place in the ninth century and having lasted for more than two years. The name she is alleged to have assumed is John VII. At the last meeting of the Academy of Inscriptions, in Paris, M. Muntz dealt another blow at the story, which he characterizes as a vulgar fable invented in the middle ages. Never, he declares, after a careful study of the question, has a woman worn the tiara and, moreover, there was no interregnum at the period when the pretender John VII. governed the church.

Made Fifty Millions.

By the advance in petroleum the Standard Oil Company has pocketed $50,000,000 within the past two weeks.

PEACE RESTORED IN THE ORIENT.

WAGES BEING RAISED

GOING UP FASTER THAN THEY EVER WENT DOWN.

Prospects Indicate that Wage-Earners by Next Year Will Have Regained All They Lost by Reductions During the McKinley Period.

Republicans Silenced.

There is a conspiracy of silence among Republican newspapers just now in regard to the rapidly increasing wages in woolen and cotton and other textile mills, and in various other mills and mines. It is perhaps fortunate for the Republicans that the tariff is not likely to be the leading issue next year. Present prospects indicate that by next year the wage-earners will have regained all that they lost by thousands of wage reductions during the McKinley period. They certainly will not care to experiment with another such wage-advancer as was the McKinley bill.

We got free wool on August 28th, 1894. Before one week had passed wages had advanced in the woolen mills of Rawitzer Bros., Stafford Springs. A score or more of wage advances were reported in large textile mills before the end of 1894, and the disease was beginning to spread to other industries. Early in 1895 everybody was surprised to learn that H. C. Frick & Co., and other coke producers had voluntarily advanced the wages of 15,000 workers 15 per cent. Below is given a partial list of wage advances from April 1st to April 22d. The most startling feature of the situation is the fact that in all but one or two cases wages have been advanced "voluntarily"—that is, without a strike.

The 200 employes of the Pakachoag worsted mills at South Worcester were surprised on April 1st at the announcement that their wages had on that day been advanced about 18 per cent—a restoration of a 15 per cent. reduction made a year or two previous.

On April 1st a 15 per cent. restoration of wages took place in the three woolen mills of ex-Congressman Moses T. Stevens & Sons, in New Hampshire. These mills represent the most extensive woolen manufacturing business carried on by any one firm in this country.

Thomas Dolan & Co., large manufacturers of woolens in Philadelphia, on April 4 advanced the wages of all weavers employed 15 per cent. Other firms were expected to follow suit.

The Globe Iron Works, of Cleveland, Ohio, on April 14th restored the 10 per cent. reduction of wages made in 1893.

Wholfender, Shore & Co., Cardington, Pa., posted notices in their mills on April 4th, restoring 5 per cent. of the 10 per cent. reduction made some time ago.

Notices were posted in the Washington Mills at Lawrence, Mass., on April 5th, restoring wages reduced a year or two ago. Nearly 4,000 employes were affected.

Representatives of the Bricklayer's Company, Philadelphia, Pa., on April 5th agreed to advance wages to bricklayers.

The 400 employes of the Belding Bros. & Co.'s silk mills were notified of a 5 per cent. advance in wages on April 6th.

On April 6th the Willimantic Linen Co., Willimantic, Conn., employing 2,000 hands, decided to advance wages generally 5 per cent.

The American Linen Mills, Fall River, Mass., ordered an increase of wages on April 10th.

Five hundred silk-ribbon weavers in New York City on or before April 10th had their wages raised, and 200 others were threatening to strike for an advance.

Worumbo Mills, Lisbon Falls, Me., ordered a 10 per cent. advance about April 10th.

The Fall River Iron Works mills (cotton goods), Fall River, Mass., posted notices on April 11th, advancing wages 10 per cent. in all departments. It has 1,800 employes.

Twelve hundred employes in the mills at North Grosvenorsdale, Conn., had their wages advanced 10 per cent. on April 13th.

E. W. Chapin & Co., manufacturers of woolens, Chapinville, Mass., advanced wages 10 per cent. about April 12th.

United States Bunting Company, Lowell, Mass., advanced wages 10 per cent. about April 12.

The Lakeside Manufacturing Company, Leicester, Mass., promised to "shortly restore the 10 per cent. reduction which went into effect a year ago."

United States Cotton Company, Central Falls, R. I., gave notice to its employes on April 11 that their wages would be increased 5 per cent. to 10 per cent.

All the cotton factories in Fall River, Mass., following the example set by Mr. Borden, on April 16 ordered an increase of 12½ per cent., restoring the rate prevailing before Aug. 20, 1894, the change to take effect on April 22. More than 25,000 employes are affected, and the wage payments will be increased, it is stated, by $18,000 per week.

At the cotton factories in New Bedford, Mass., a restoration of the rate paid before Aug. 20, 1894, was ordered on April 17, an advance of about 5 per cent., affecting about 25,000 operatives.

The Quinebaug and Danielsonville Manufacturing Companies posted notices on the 15th in their mills at Danielsonville, Williamsville and Wauregan, Conn., announcing an increase of wages to take effect on April 22. More than 4,000 operatives are affected by the advance.

B. S. Stevens, manufacturer of woolens at Quinebaug, Conn., on the 17th increased the wages of his 200 employes by 15 per cent., restoring the rate paid in 1893.

The Slater Woolen Company of Webster, Mass., gave notice on the 20th inst. that the wages of its employes would be increased on May 1. An increase has been ordered by the same company in its cambric mills at East Webster for May 1. The rate paid before the reduction of last year is to be restored. In both mills 1,500 employes are benefited.

John Chase & Sons, manufacturers of cassimeres at Webster, Mass., have increased the wages of their 300 operatives by 10 per cent.

Vassalborough Woolen Mills, near Augusta, Me., increase of 10 per cent.

Burke Holl Company, Rowley, Mass., increase of 10 per cent., restoring old rate.

Weybosset Woolen Mills, Olneyville, R. I., wages increased in certain departments on the 18th inst.

Dyerville Manufacturing Company, Dyerville, R. I., increase of 5 per cent. on the 17th inst.

About 400 loom hands at the silk mills of John M. Stearns & Co., Williamsport, Pa., had their wages advanced 1 cent per yard on April 19.

The firm of William H. Grundy & Co., the largest worsted mills at Bristol, Pa., increased the wages of all employes 5 per cent. on April 18, and promised another increase of 4 per cent. if business shall continue to improve.

The strikers in the Linwood mill, North Adams, Mass., returned to work on April 18, the old schedule of wages demanded by the strikers having been granted.

The weavers in the Westerly Woolen Companies' mills were notified on April 18 that they could return to work on the following Monday at an increase of wages and steady work.

A Good Showing.

The current impression that the farming interests of the country are in a bad way has not all the elements of fact about it. The farmers have without doubt suffered from the depressed prices of the past few years, and those who have staked everything on wheat have sometimes come to actual loss. But, as the low prices have come to most other industries as well as agriculture, probably the average farmer has been able to exchange his products for as much machinery, clothing and food as he got in years when his products sold at higher prices. The chief burden has fallen on those who borrowed money at the time when a dollar was worth a bushel of wheat, and have to pay interest and debt when a dollar is worth two bushels of wheat. Yet even this class is not so badly off as the calamity howlers have asserted. Estimates are misleading, but the returns of the money-lending companies furnish the best kind of evidence of the actual condition of the farmers. An insurance company that lends large sums on farm property makes the following report of its farm loans for last year:

"Of the total interest that fell due in 1894, amounting to $2,953,969, only $200,151 remained unpaid December 31st, and this amount, the greater part of which was not due until the latter part of the year, has since been largely reduced. The entire amount of interest due and unpaid December 31, 1894, (including the $200,151), amounted to but $253,058, or less than 5 (4.5) per cent. of the interest $5,628,340) that fell due in 1893 and 1894. Even this small amount is in no danger of loss, however, as it is amply secured by the property mortgaged. The interest accrued but not yet due on mortgage loans amounted to $784,325. The total real estate acquired under foreclosure and now owned after an experience of over thirty-six years, during which time more than $115,000,000 were invested in mortgage loans, amounts to but $431,372 during the year. Included in the amount acquired by foreclosure in 1894 were but three farms, involving only $9,781."

This would be a good showing in what are accounted good times. When it is reflected that the statement covers the year of greatest depression in recent history, it is safe to assert that our farming industries are on a solid and enduring basis.—San Francisco Examiner.

The Supreme Court's Duty.

There can be no two opinions as to what the court ought to do in the matter of again taking up the income tax. As it now stands the court has nullified a part of the law as unconstitutional, and has failed to render any decision whatever as to the rest of it. The law as it is now being enforced is left to rest upon negation alone. The court has not ruled either that it is constitutional or that it is not. Four Justices have decided one way and four the other. The ninth Justice has not heard the case. This is unfair alike to the Treasury and to the people subject to the tax. It compels the Treasury to collect the tax in uncertainty whether or not it may have to refund it. It compels the people to pay without knowing whether they are bound to do so or not. It leaves the country in perilous uncertainty as to its resources, the extent of its taxing power and the policy it should pursue.

We who have advocated the income tax as a just and equitable apportionment of the public burdens, equally with those who have opposed it, want all the questions touching its validity settled. The whole country wants to know whether it is or is not a constitutional tax, and the Supreme Court has no right to withhold its decision upon so important a point. It is intolerable that the revenues of the Government and the rights of citizens should be left dependent upon a mere failure of the court to decide as to the validity or invalidity of a disputed statute.

A Blessing, Certainly.

The New York Press says: "California fruit growers desire that currants should be taken off the free list, as their business suffers in consequence of the importation of foreign currants in large quantities. This is one of the blessings of the Wilson tariff bill, the practical workings of which have everywhere been fraught with disaster to the industries of our country, both large and small."

Certainly this is one of the blessings of the Wilson bill. To have cheap currants is a blessing to all of the people in this country, except the few fruit growers, who have been trying to monopolize our markets and advance prices. Not having a tariff to keep out foreign currants, the California Currant trust people are having trouble in compelling Americans to pay trust prices. Of course they want the McKinley bill back again—what trust does not?

There are only 71,895 divorced women in this country; there might have been more.

Too many men never praise their wives until after they bury them.

OUR BUDGET OF FUN.

HUMOROUS SAYINGS AND DOINGS HERE AND THERE.

Jokes and Jokelets that Are Supposed to Have Been Recently Born—Sayings and Doings that Are Odd, Curious and Laughable—The Week's Humor.

Let Us All Laugh.

Strawber—Was her father willing to help you out? Singerly—That's the way he acted.—Brooklyn Life.

"Tom, who did you say our friend Lawley married?" "Well, he married £40,000. I forget her other name."—Tit-Bits.

"Do you think the new boarder is permanent?" "Yes, indeed! He threatens continually to leave."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

"Is your editor a man of letters?" "Don't know, stranger, but you kin find out by axin' the postmaster."—Atlanta Constitution.

Applicant—Please, mum, the lady wot washes the steps for that woman which lives opposite says as you wants a girl.—Pall Mall Budget.

"Oh, doctor, how do you do? You look killing this evening." "Thank you; but I'm not; I'm off duty, you know."—Brooklyn Life.

"I wonder why taxes are generally due in March?" said the suburban. "It's easier to raise the wind then, I suppose."—Harper's Bazar.

Tommy Asker—Now, if you was to git to be a artist, what would you like to draw? Andy Quick—A check on the bank.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"De man dat comes roun' makin' de mos' noise," said Uncle Eben, "doan' ginerally hab 'nuf time lef' ter make anyt'ink else."—Washington Star.

Squildig—He's a great criminal lawyer, isn't he? McSwilligen—Well, I believe he always stops short of actual criminality.—Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph.

First Boarder—What's the star boarder making all that hubbub about over that berry pie? Second Boarder—I guess he found the berry.—Syracuse Post.

Johnny fools his parents—
It's very sad to state—
They think he's making garden
When he's only digging bait.
—Washington Star.

Mrs. Jackson—Do you call this sponge cake? Why, it is as hard as a stone. Cook—Yes, mum, that's the way a sponge is before it is wet. Soak it in your tea.—Truth.

Figgs—My! but isn't that a picture? Fogg—Quite stylish. But what is it? Looks rather large for a parlor lamp, and rather too small for a woman.—Boston Transcript.

She—So the count's relatives consider it mesalliance? He—Decidedly. The girl has only a quarter of a million, and the count owes three times as much as that.—Judge.

Professor (to his wife)—Elise, I have promised to deliver an address to-morrow evening on the rational exercise of the memory. Don't let me forget about it.—Fliegende Blaetter.

"Oh, my dear Mrs. ——, how glad I am to see you. It is four years since we met, and you recognized me immediately." "Oh, yes. I recognized the hat."—Fliegende Blaetter.

She—I know I'm cross at times, John, but if I had my life to live over again I should marry you just the same. He—I have my doubts about that, my dear.—Philadelphia Times.

The lady arrives a little late at the sewing circle. Servant—Excuse me, madam, but I'd advise you to wait a few minutes. Just now they are talking about you!—Humoristiche Blaetter.

Gussy—Why do you so persistently wear the hair of another woman on your head? Beatrice—For the same reason that you wear the skin of another calf on your feet.—The Great Divide.

Artist—I'm half distracted trying to think up a subject for my picture, "The Queen of May." Practical Friend—Why not paint a picture of a servant girl taking up carpets?—Chicago Record.

Goutran burst like a whirlwind in upon his friend Gaston. "Will you be my witness?" "Going to fight?" "No, to get married." Gaston (after a pause)—Can't you apologize?—Los Angeles Herald.

She—I can't help thinking I have seen your portrait in the newspapers somewhere. He—Oh, no doubt; it's often been published. She—Then I am not mistaken. What were you cured of?—Judge.

Mrs. Kicksey—I see by the head line in this paper that Spain has her hands full. Kicksey—Yes, and if she fools with this country she'll have her whole anatomy full—of holes.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"Here comes the carriage, Maud! Fancy having to go and pay calls in such weather! It's enough to give one one's death of cold!" "Worse than that, mother! Everybody's sure to be in!"—Boston Budget.

Nurse—Sure, ma'am, the twins have been making a fuss all day, ma'am. Mrs. Olive Branch—What about? Nurse—It's because they can't have a birthday a-piece, like the Dawson children next door.—Tit-Bits.

Mother—"Don't you feel able to sit up to-day?" Boy—"No, mamma, I am too weak." Mamma—"Well, let me see. I guess you will be able to go to school Monday. To-morrow is Saturday, and——" Boy (jumping out of bed)—"Saturday! I thought it was Friday."—Harper's Bazar.

She (after the unmasking)—I see that strawberries are on the bill of fare, George. He (nervously)—Yes, but they are very sour at this season of the year. She—Of course; but I think I will take a few. One cannot expect strawberries to be at their best in March, you know.—Harlem Life.

The only friends who are not ashamed of you in your shabby clothes are the friends whose clothes are shabbier than your own.

So few women know how to use dry goods after they get them.

Look Out for "No. 1"

Your first duty is to yourself. Your bodily condition calls for the help to be found in a good

Spring Medicine

The best preparation for this purpose is

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Spring is the season for cleansing and renewing the blood. During the winter it has crept sluggishly through the veins, gathering impurities from indoor air, from fatty substances in the food, and from many other sources.

The great blood-purifying medicine especially prepared to do this work is Hood's Sarsaparilla. It will give to the blood purity, richness and vitality, and these will bring health and vigor, strong nerves, a good appetite, refreshing sleep, and powers of endurance.

Cleanse your blood by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, a renovating preparation especially prepared to make pure blood, then you may enjoy the season of flowers and birds and outdoor pleasures, for you will be healthy, strong and well.

"I cannot speak too highly of Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it has worked wonders in my case. I am 74 years of age, and have been afflicted with salt rheum on my hands for a great many years. I tried many things to cure them, but failed. My hands would crack open and bleed profusely, and the pain was terrible to bear. Since taking Hood's Sarsaparilla the flesh has healed and the skin is as smooth as any farmer's. I recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as a reliable medicine, and always speak in its favor." LLOYD B. CHASE, Swansea, Mass.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Is the Only True Blood Purifier

Prominently in the public eye to-day. Be sure to get Hood's and only Hood's.

Hood's Pills cure all liver ills, biliousness, headache. 25 cents.

Frontier Marks.

The frontier between Germany and France is more distinctly marked than that of any other two countries.

The frontier line crosses every road at right angles. On the German side is a large post, 12 feet high, painted like a barber's pole—red, black and white, with a cross-piece at the top—with the word, in black letters on a white ground, "Grenze" (boundary), with an exclamation mark.

Diagonally opposite is a cast-iron post, 12 feet high, whereon is painted in gray, on an iron cross-piece, the word "Frontiere."

Such posts are placed on roads and railways. The line is indicated "across country" by stone blocks projecting about a foot above the ground at intervals of 50 yards. On the French side of the block is cut with a chisel the letter "F;" on the German side is the letter "D"—for "Deutschland."

THE truth hurts, but it also heals.

MORE GOOD NEWS

For All Women Who Are Sick.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

"I am happy to say your Vegetable Compound has cured me of painful menstruations and backache.

"My suffering every month was dreadful. The doctor gave me morphine to ease the pain, but nothing to cure me; and I was obliged to spend two or three days in bed. Now I have no pain at all.

"I can work harder, and be on my feet longer, than I have for years. I cannot praise your medicine enough. I am glad to tell every one that I was cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—MRS. NEWTON COBB, Manchester, Ohio. All druggists sell it.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

PENSION JOHN W. MORRIS, Washington, D. C. Successfully Prosecutes Claims. Late Principal Examiner U. S. Pension Bureau. 3 yrs in last war, 15 adjudicating claims, atty since.

PATENTS Thomas P. Simpson, Washington, D.C. No att'y fee until Patent obtained. Write for Inventor's Guide.

Mrs. Winslow's SOOTHING SYRUP for Children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

EAT FRIENDS' OATS. ALWAYS THE BEST. Daily Sales, 80,000 lbs.

Names.

Now and then a family is found where the parents have been animated with a desire to give their children "names that mean somthing," as in the case of one where the children were numbered instead of named. In other instances the first name has been bestowed with strict reference to the significance of the last name.

An English journal records that, not long since, a clergyman in Nottinghamshire, in baptizing a baby, paused to inquire the name, and was told by the father, "Shady, sir, if you please!"

"Shady!" replied the minister, "then it's a boy, and you mean Shadrach, eh?"

"No, sir, it's a girl."

"And what do you mean by giving it such a name as Shady?"

"Why, sir, if you must know, our name is Bower, and we thought as how Shady Bower would make such a pretty name."

This recalls the case of a young lady in a Western State who bore the romantic name of Ivy Green—or bore it until she was married.

Her case was more fortunate than that of the daughter of a gentleman named Rose, who bore through her girlhood the name of Wild Rose; but having married an excellent young German of the name of Katz, was fated during the remainder of her life to sign herself Wild Katz!

Tanning Sheep Skins.

This is the way to tan a sheepskin: As soon as the skin is removed from the carcass spread it out smoothly on the ground, hair side down; rub in a mixture of powdered alum and table salt. This mixture should consist of one-third alum and two-thirds salt. After a thorough rubbing, sprinkle mixture over the skin to the depth of a quarter of an inch, then fold the skin up carefully and put in a cellar or some tolerably damp place where it should remain for ten or twelve days. At the end of this time take it out, and while moist stretch it tightly to an old door or a table of boards, being careful to tack it at every point and corner; now give it a hard rubbing with cornmeal for half an hour daily for four or five days. If corn-meal cannot be procured use perfectly dry sand, but be very careful to sift it so that only the finest may be used on the skin. By this rubbing the skin is made as soft as wished; the more it is rubbed the softer it will become.—Rural World.

The Dinner Bell

Sounds but a mockery to the dyspeptic. He hears it, of course, but his stomach does not respond to the call. He "goes through the motions" and suffers afterwards for the small amount of victuals he partakes of. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters alters his condition into one of ability to eat plentifully, digest heartily, and assimilate thoroughly. Malaria, rheumatism, constipation and biliousness are conquered by this world-famed medicine.

Photographing Meteors.

An interesting device for photographing meteors has recently been placed in the Yale university observatory. It consists of an inclined shaft carrying a number of cameras so inclined as to include in their combined field a large area of sky. The shaft is turned by clockwork so as to follow the motion of the stars and make their images appear as points instead of lines, as would be the case if the cameras were fixed. With this arrangement the paths of the meteors are shown in their true relation to the heavenly bodies and their direction at once determined. The instrument is exceedingly useful in discovering the "radiant points" of meteors—the spots in the sky from which they start.

STATE OF OHIO, CITY OF TOLEDO, } ss.
LUCAS COUNTY.

FRANK J. CHENEY makes oath that he is the senior partner of the firm of F. J. CHENEY & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of CATARRH that cannot be cured by the use of HALL'S CATARRH CURE.
FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D., 1886.

SEAL } A. W. GLEASON, Notary Public

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free.
F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O
Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Take a Lesson from the Frog.

"My son," said the philosopher, "it does not matter so much what you say as the time you say it. If the festive frog used his rau ous voice in anouncing the approach of winter instead of heralding the advent of blessed, balmy spring he would be chased off the earth as a croaker.

THE hands of George Sand, Victor Hugo, Lamartine, and Walter Scott, were all of moderate size, with the fingers slim and conical tips.

THE rearrangement of the dining cars on the Nickel Plate road provides breakfast and dinner on the New York and Boston Express No. 2 eastbound, breakfast and dinner on the Fast Western Express No. 5, and dinner on No. 6. This newly established service not only accommodates the through passengers of that line more satisfactorily, but provides a better arrange for its local patrons.

A CHOIR, after a musical effort, was surprised to hear the preacher announce as his text, "When the uproar had ceased."

THE NESTS OF BIRDS.

PECULIAR STRUCTURES WHICH SOME BUILD.

A Remarkable Australian Species That Builds a Nest 60 Feet in Circumference—Weaving Bird's Homes—Where the Warblers Live.

An Interesting Study.

In the broad domain of nature there are few more interesting studies than those of birds, and the nests of these creatures come in for a fair share of attention.

There is a variety of birds found in Australia and the eastern archipelagoes of Asia which by a singular instinct rely upon the decomposition of vegetable matter to supply the necessary warmth for the hatching of their eggs. In some cases several pairs of one species collect an enormous heap of decaying vegetable matter and there deposit their eggs, usually at a depth of two or more feet. The heaps are pyramidal in form and are so large as to contain several cartloads of material. The heat in the center of this mass often reaches as high as 95 degrees. Another species constructs large mounds of earth, often of an immense size, varying from 20 to 60 feet in circumference and from 5 to 15 feet in height. In these the eggs are carefully buried to the depth of six feet. Another bird of this group deposits her eggs in mounds of sand alternating with layers of dried leaves and grasses. The sun's heat added to that engendered by vegetable decomposition supplies the necessary warmth for hatching them. These mounds are nine feet in diameter and three in height.

NEST OF THE AFRICAN GROSBEAK.

The weaving birds construct peculiar nests. The grossbeak of Africa suspends a very curious basket, woven of straw and reeds, from the end of a branch, usually over a river. This is in shape like an oblong bag, with the entrance from below. Within and on one side of this is the real nest.

SOCIAL WEAVER'S NEST.

Another species of the weaving grosbeaks, social weaver, build an enormous structure in shape resembling an umbrella. The grass is so woven as to be impervious to rain. Under the shelter of this canopy each pair of birds build their own particular nest, placed under the eaves. Each nest is three or four inches in diameter and has its own opening.

The yellow-throated warbler of the Southern States builds a peculiar nest of the long mosses to be found there. The mosses, three feet in height, are fastened together into a woven bag of half the original length, and in the center of this the bird constructs its tiny nest of the softest vegetable down.

YELLOW-THROATED WARBLER'S NEST.

Peninsular Medals.

Coming to the great European wars of the revolutionary period, we might expect a great crop of medals for our brave soldiers. But no; there are gold medals for superior officers, but for the die-hards of the peninsular war, who often, by sheer hard fighting, redeemed the blunders of their commanders, absolutely nothing. As for the Generals, Wellington complained that they were too thickly hung with medals. There is a splendid gold medal for Maida, the very finest of all our military medals, of which only seventeen were issued.

Talavera was acknowledged in gold medals to commanding officers. And Wellington suggests that only one medal should be issued to an officer, and that future actions should be engraved upon it. When four actions had been scored, the medal should be replaced by a cross to be worn at the buttonhole; decorations worn around the neck are "awkward to ride in," says the matter-of-fact commander. Frederick of York carried out the suggestion with a characteristic difference. The gold cross—Maltese, with lion statant in the center, and suspended by a gold laurel wreath—was issued to be worn by general officers around the neck; others at the buttonhole.—All the Year Round.

NOT AN EXPERT.

Queen Victoria's Effort Aroused the Contempt of the Highland Woman.

It was back in the sixties, and the Queen was staying with the first wife of the late Duke of Sutherland, at Dunrobin castle, when one day, as related by London Society, she took a long morning walk, attended only by one of her ladies. The morning was a delightful one and the ladies soon found themselves nearly four miles from the castle. Coming to a little cottage they saw an old woman knitting stockings by the door and asked her permission to enter and sit down to rest themselves, which was accorded with all the hospitality of the highland. The old woman, resuming her knitting, began to chat about her son Donald, who had just joined a highland regiment. "I'll bethinkin' noo, that you fine leddies come a' the way frae Lumnon maybe," she said, looking at the two milk drainers. The sovereign nodded assent. "Weel, when ye gae back, aiblins, ye'll pr'aps tell Donald ye just had a wee bit a' sup with his auld mither." The Queen wrote the name and the number of his regiment down in her tablets, and not long afterward Donald became a sergeant. But when the Queen rose to go she asked to look at the tartan stocking the old woman was knitting. The stocking was handed over, and her Majesty tried the three-corner stich, which she had been steadily watching the old lady perform for ten minutes, and soon got the skein into a hopeless tangle. The hieland mither looking at her disdainfully said: "Leddy, it is to be hoped that your gud-man buys his stockings ready-made."

A Brigand's Courtship.

It is said that the captain of a robber band who desires a wife does his courting after this style: Casting his eye on some fair village maiden, he descends upon the occasion of a dance upon the green, and manages to dance with the fair one himself. He charms her with his grace and the beauty of his dancing, whispers love passages in her terrified ears—for well she knows with whom she if dancing—and circling ever nearer and nearer to the outer edge of the company he suddenly gives a whistle, and his men appear in a moment and dash off with the prize, their leader covering their retreat with a fusilade of firearms which the villagers dare not return, being too much cowed by the bandit's daring.

Honorable marriage by a captured priest is offered the girl, who dare not refuse to become the brigand's bride, knowing she can never return to her home below the mountains. It is said that these marriages are exceptionally happy, and that the men love their abducted prizes with constant affection, and that the villages from which they are stolen are forever after safe from fire and rapine at the hands of the robber band.

COMPLETELY PARALYZED.

PHYSICIANS ARE ASTOUNDED BY A PECULIAR CASE.

A Young Man Stricken with Landry's Paralysis and Yet Recovers.

(From the Times, Philadelphia, Pa.)

Stricken with Landry's Paralysis and yet cured. That means but little to the average layman, but it means a miracle to a physician. Such is the experience of O. E. Dallimore, now a resident of Madison, N. J., and a rare experience it is.

"Yes, it is true that I had Landry's Paralysis," said Mr. Dallimore to a reporter, "or else the most celebrated physicians of London were mistaken.

"It was on the 15th of March, this year," he continued, "when I was in New York City, that I first felt the symptoms of my trouble. I experienced difficulty in going up stairs, my legs failing to support me. I consulted a physician, who informed me that I had every symptom of Locomotor Ataxia, but as the case developed he pronounced it a case of Landry's Paralysis, and knowing the nature of the disease advised me to start for my home and friends. I gave up my work, and on April 1st started for London, Ont. A well-known physician was consulted, but I grew rapidly worse, and on Saturday, April 7th, several eminent physicians held a consultation on my case and informed me that I was at death's door, having but three to six days to live, still I lingered on, by this time completely paralyzed, my hands and feet being dead. I could hardly whisper my wants and could only swallow liquids. Oh, the misery of those moments are beyond all description and death would really have been a welcome visitor.

"Now comes the part that has astounded the physicians. Rev. Mr. Gondy, a clergyman who visited me in my last hours, as he supposed, told me of the marvelous cures of paralysis that had been performed by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I started to take the pills about April 28, and a week after that felt an improvement in my condition. There was a warm, tingling sensation in the limbs that had been entirely dead, and I soon began to move my feet and hands, the improvement continued until May 28, when I was taken out of bed for a drive and drove the horse myself. By the beginning of July I was able to walk upstairs alone and paid a visit to Niagara.

"Slowly but surely I gained my old health and strength, leaving Ontario for New York on Oct. 11, and beginning my work again on Oct. 26, 1894; cured of Landry's Paralysis in eight months." To confirm his story beyond all doubt, Mr. Dallimore made the following affidavit.

Sworn and subscribed before me Dec. 3, 1894. AMOS C. RATHBUN, (Seal.) Notary Public.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

Chicago's First Ordinances.

Citizens were forbidden to let pigs wander in the streets; to "shoot off any firearms;" to steal timber from any of the bridges for firewood or other purposes; to endanger the public safety by putting a red hot stovepipe through the board wall; to run a race horse through the principal streets; to exhibit a stallion without due consideration for public decency; to leave lumber lying loose on the streets; or to throw dead animals in the river.

The Cows.

Dry cows do not require very rich food, and may be made to consume the coarse provender, such as straw and corn fodder, but they should receive an allowance of grain also. While it is best to have them in good condition they should not be made fat, as they may be liable to milk fever at time of calving.

EVERY man should keep a fair-sized cemetery in which to bury the faults of his friends.

IN bleaching, linen loses one-third of its weight; cotton, one-twentieth.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

How He Learned.

A traveler in England was one day walking along a country road, gathering wild flowers from the lonely hedgerows. Presently he was overtaken by a burly old farmer, who, with his pretty daughter and two large barrels of beer, was being drawn up a steep hill in a market-cart by a stout little pony.

The farmer saluted me jovially, and seeing that I was puffing up the hill to catch the coach; he offered me a seat on his trap.

"Thank you," said I, "but it seems to me the pony has rather a tough job as it is."

"Aye, yes, yes," he said, "I should 'a' got down myself, but we be so heavy behind! But you're welcome to ride if you like."

"I am really very much obliged to you for your politeness in asking me," I returned, "but I prefer to walk."

The first part of my sentence evidently "went to the spot."

"Well, ye see, sir," said he, "I be used to meet a many gents up about these hills, and that's how I larnt to be so polite!"

Sacrifice the First.

He had been working all winter to get a place in the brass band as a cornet-player, and just as his hopes seemed to be on the verge of fulfilment she met him on his way home from the postoffice, and, linking her hand within his arm, walked on in silence until they reached the popular walk. There she stopped in the long shadows and said, "George, I wise you wouldn't play the cornet in the new band."

"Why not?" said he, surprised. "It is the place of honor, and I get a great deal of attention by it, dear."

"Yes, I know," she said, coaxingly. "It is nice to have you noticed by every one, and all that, but——" She paused and hung her curly head a little lower. "But what?" said he sharply.

"Blowing the cornet makes—makes——" Her voice sank to a pouting whisper. "Makes the lips so stiff and hard!" George has decided not to be the cornet-player in the band.

Don't Quarrel.

If anything in the world will make a man feel badly, except pinching his fingers in the crack of a door, it is a quarrel. No man fails to think less of himself after than he did before; it degrades him in the eyes of others, and, what is worse, tends to blunt his sensibilities, and increase his irritability. The truth is, that the more peaceably and quietly we get on the better for our neighbors. In nine cases out of ten the better course is, if the man cheats you, to quit dealing with him; if he slanders you, take care to live down his slanders. Let such persons alone, for there is nothing better than this way of dealing with those who injure us.

STATISTICS and reports go to show that the consumption of canned goods, stimulated by low prices, has increased the past year enormously.

Excursion Rates to Michigan.

The Nickel Plate road offers one fare rate to designated Michigan points on May 7th, account Land Seekers' Excursion. Write for particulars.

MEXICO is the City of Mexitli, the god of war.

Consumption kills more people than rifle balls. It is more deadly than any of the much dreaded epidemics. It is a stealthy, gradual, slow disease. It penetrates the whole body. It is in every drop of blood. It seems to work only at the lungs, but the terrible drain and waste go on all over the body. To cure consumption, work on the blood, make it pure, rich and wholesome, build up the wasting tissues, put the body into condition for a fight with the dread disease.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery fights in the right way. It will cure 98 per cent. of all cases if taken during the early stages of the disease. Its first action is to put the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys into good working order. That makes digestion good and assimilation quick and thorough. It makes sound, healthy flesh. That is half the battle. That makes the "Discovery" good for those who have not consumption, but who are lighter and less robust than they ought to be.

A Queer House.

In Lake Nyassa there is a kind of black fish which every year build what the natives term a house. In the mud at the bottom of the lake it makes a hole some two or three feet broad, heaping up the mud removed from the hole so as to form a little wall around it. The depth of the hole and the height of the wall measured together make a basin from fifteen to twenty inches deep. In this lake within a lake this queer little fish erects a mud house, the averaged sized specimen, measuring fourteen inches across the bottom, rapidly coming to a point in the shape of a broad cone. A hole four inches in diameter, always on the south side, serves as an opening for egress and ingress. A dried specimen of this queer domicile preserved in the Royal Museum at Berlin has two doors and a partition separating it into two rooms.

Cleanse Your Blood.

Cleanse the vitiated blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through your skin in the form of pimples, eruptions and sores. Cleanse it when you find it obstructed or sluggish in the veins. Cleanse it when it is foul. Your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure—health of the system will surely follow. And, remember, whenever your blood needs cleansing, that Hood's Sarsaparilla and only Hood's must be the medicine employed. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most prominent blood purifier in the world to-day—for it is the best.

HE who attempts to make others believe in means which he himself despises, is a puffer; he who makes use of more means than he knows to be necessary, is a quack; and he who ascribes to those means a greater efficacy than his own experience warrants, is an impostor.

Don't Tobacco Spit or Smoke Your Life Away

is the truthful, startling title of a book about No-To-Bac, the harmless, guaranteed tobacco habit cure that braces up nicotinized nerves, eliminates the nicotine poison, makes weak men gain strength, vigor and manhood. You run no physical or financial risk, as No-To-Bac is sold by Druggists everywhere, under a guarantee to cure or money refunded. Book free. Address Sterling Remedy Co., New York or Chicago.

In a Better World.

A favorite horse of the children's died and we broke the news to them as gently as possible. Little John was very sad at first, then a smile lit up his face as he said to me: "Mamma, I don't think we ought to feel sorry about old Jim, for he's happy up there galloping around with the angels.—Harper's Bazar.

NATIONAL EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION MEETING.

Denver, Colo., July 5 to 12, 1895.

For this occasion the Wabash Railroad has made a rate of one fare for the round trip to Denver plus $2.00, added for membership fee.

For full particulars in regard to this meeting, time of trains, rates, route, etc., call upon or write to any representative of the Wabash R. R., or connecting lines, or

C. S. CRANE,
Gen'l Pass. & Tkt. Agt.,
Wabash R. R.,
St. Louis, Mo.

JANUARY 8, the anniversary of the defeat of the British army under Gen. Pakenham before the city of New Orleans, is a legal holiday in Louisiana.

I CAN recommend Piso's Cure for Consumption to sufferers from Asthma.—E. D. TOWNSEND, Ft. Howard, Wis., May 4, '94.

MEN who are noted for their outspoken utterances are not usually men who are spoken of in a very complimentary manner.

And Make Money at It.

If you only knew it, the trouble is with your digestion. If that was good you would sleep better, wake better, work better, and make more money at it. How can one "get on" when the whole system is sluggish? But people don't realize what is the trouble. A box of Ripans Tabules makes life worth living. All druggists.

DONKEYS have an aversion to drinking running water, or crossing a running stream.

RATES are offered on the certificate plan by agents of the Nickel Plate road to Springfield, Mass., and Hartford, Conn., May 8th to 16th, account Southern Baptist Association.

ST. JACOBS OIL is the Perfect CURE for

NEURALGIA

WITHOUT RELAPSE, COLLAPSE, MISHAPS or PERHAPS.

"Brevity Is the Soul of Wit."

Good Wife, You Need

SAPOLIO

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil, with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, is a constructive food that nourishes, enriches the blood, creates solid flesh, stops wasting and gives strength. It is for all

Wasting Diseases

like Consumption, Scrofula, Anæmia, Marasmus; or for Coughs and Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Weak Lungs, Loss of Flesh and General Debility. Scott's Emulsion has no equal as Nourishment for Babies and Growing Children.

Buy only the genuine put up in salmon-colored wrapper.

Send for pamplet on Scott's Emulsion. FREE.

Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists. 50 cents and $1.

BEST IN THE WORLD.

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH. For durability and for cheapness this preparation is truly unrivalled.

PASTE STOVE POLISH. DUSTLESS LABOR SAVING. BEST IN THE WORLD.

THE RISING SUN STOVE POLISH in cakes for general blacking of a stove.

THE SUN PASTE POLISH for a quick after-dinner shine, applied and polished with a cloth.

Morse Bros., Props., Canton, Mass., U. S. A.

Too Much for the Greyhound.

At a recent dinner of some veterans there was the usual interchange of reminiscences, but one story told by an appreciative comrade certainly deserves a wider hearing.

It was after the great battle of Bull Run, and the scattered soldiers, most of whom had just got their first taste of war, were hurrying over the long bridge and seeking refuge in the Federal capital. Everybody looked gloomy, but one man was particularly downcast.

"Say, comrade," exclaimed a member of the same company, happening to strike him and noticing his general wretchedness, "what in Heaven's name is the matter with you?"

"Matter with me? Well, I should say there was matter enough!"

"Well, what is it? You ain't shot, are you?"

"Shot? No. Worse, worse; I've had a terrible loss."

"Well, come, comrade, cheer up and tell me about it."

"Well, it was my greyhound."

"Your greyhound?"

"Yes, poor dog, he went into battle with us, and he came out all right; but somewhere on our way back he got lost. He could'nt keep up."

Guard Duty a Sinecure.

"I am the guardian of my own honor," said once a member of parliament who was attacked. "I always thought the honorable gentleman was opposed to sinecures," came the retort across the floor of the house.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Beecham's pills are for biliousness, sick headache, dizziness, dyspepsia, bad taste in the mouth, heartburn, torpid liver, foul breath, sallow skin, coated tongue, pimples loss of appetite, etc., when caused by constipation; and constipation is the most frequent cause of all of them.

One of the most important things for everybody to learn is that constipation causes more than half the sickness in the world, especially of women; and it can all be prevented. Go by the book, free at your druggist's, or write B. F. Allen Co., 365 Cens't St., New York. Pills, 10¢ and 25¢ a box.

Annual sales more than 6,000,000 boxes.

WALTER BAKER & CO.

The Largest Manufacturers of PURE, HIGH GRADE COCOAS AND CHOCOLATES On this Continent, have received HIGHEST AWARDS from the great Industrial and Food EXPOSITIONS In Europe and America.

Unlike the Dutch Process, no Alkalies or other Chemicals or Dyes are used in any of their preparations. Their delicious BREAKFAST COCOA is absolutely pure and soluble, and costs less than one cent a cup.

SOLD BY GROCERS EVERYWHERE.

WALTER BAKER & CO. DORCHESTER, MASS.

W. L. DOUGLAS $3 SHOE IS THE BEST. FIT FOR A KING.

$5. CORDOVAN, FRENCH & ENAMELLED CALF. $4. $3.50 FINE CALF & KANGAROO. $3.50 POLICE, 3 SOLES. $2.50 $2. WORKINGMEN'S. EXTRA FINE. $2. $1.75 BOYS' SCHOOL SHOES. LADIES. $3. $2.50 $2. $1.75 BEST DONGOLA.

SEND FOR CATALOGUE. W. L. DOUGLAS, BROCKTON, MASS.

Over One Million People wear the W. L. Douglas $3 & $4 Shoes

All our shoes are equally satisfactory. They give the best value for the money. They equal custom shoes in style and fit. Their wearing qualities are unsurpassed. The prices are uniform,—stamped on sole. From $1 to $3 saved over other makes. If your dealer cannot supply you we can.

LINENE REVERSIBLE. Raphael, Angelo, Rubens, Tasso

The "LINENE REVERSIBLE" are the Best and Most Economical Collars and Cuffs worn; they are made of fine cloth, both sides finished alike, and, being reversible, one collar is equal to two of any other kind. They fit well, wear well, and look well. A box of Ten Collars or Five Pairs of Cuffs for Twenty-five Cents. A Sample Collar and Pair of Cuffs by mail for Six Cents. Name style and size. Address REVERSIBLE COLLAR COMPANY. 77 FRANKLIN ST., NEW YORK. 27 KILBY ST., BOSTON.

LEWIS' 98 % LYE. Powdered and Perfumed. (PATENTED.) The strongest and purest Lye made. Unlike other Lye, it being a fine powder and packed in a can with removable lid, the contents are always ready for use. Will make the best perfumed Hard Soap in 20 minutes without boiling. It is the best for cleansing waste-pipes, disinfecting sinks, closets, washing bottles, paints, trees, etc. PENNA. SALT M'F'G CO., Gen. Agts., Phila., Pa.

EVERY HOME-SEEKER Should READ the pamphlet recently published by the Passenger Department of the Illinois Central Railroad, entitled "Southern Home-Seeker's Guide for 1895." It contains over 50 excellent letters from Northern farmers now located in the South, and other authentic and valuable information. For a free copy address the undersigned at Manchester, Iowa. J. F. MERRY, Assistant Gen'l Passenger Agt.

KIDDER'S PASTILLES. Sure relief. Price 25 cts. ASTHMA. Only at all Druggists, Powell & Co. Charlestown, Mass.

F. W. N. U. - - - - - No. 18—95

When Writing to Advertisers, say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

LYON'S ☆☆☆ WONDERS

A SPECIFIC For all DERANGEMENTS of the STOMACH. PRICE $1.00

Manf'd by THE LYON MEDICINE CO. INDIANAPOLIS IND.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Disappearance of a Stomach Trouble.

Lyon Medicine Company:

DEAR SIRS—For fifteen years I was afflicted with stomach, heart and kidney troubles. I was induced to try LYON'S SEVEN WONDERS, and am more than pleased at the result. My stomach trouble has disappeared and my heart has resumed its normal action. I can cheerfully recommend it.

ALFRED PARISH.

ORLEANS, IND., July 25, 1894.

Hot Flashes and Headaches.

To the Lyon Medicine Company:

After using three boxes I am pleased to say my appetite has returned, the pains have entirely left my side, I no more experience hot flashes and my headaches have disappeared. I am free to say that had it not been for LYON'S SEVEN WONDERS I should not be alive to-day. MRS. LIZZIE JOHNSON.

ORLEANS, IND., July 26, 1894.

PURE

ARM AND HAMMER

BEWARE of imitation trade marks and labels.

is the whole story about

ARM AND HAMMER SODA

in packages. Costs no more than other package soda—never spoils flour—universally acknowledged purest in the world.

Made only by CHURCH & CO., New York. Sold by grocers everywhere.

Write for Arm and Hammer Book of valuable Recipes—FREE.

OUR GREAT

APRIL

SALE

ROOT & COMPANY FT. WAYNE

Will be an attraction to the ladies of this city and vicinity of unusual Merit and Magnitude.

The Dantiest Patterns In Silks.

More positively than ever has our large Silk Department become Headquarters for the best bargains in Seasonable Silks. New fancy Silks for Waists will create a very great sensation.

50c. 60c. 75c. 88c. and $100.

White and Evening Crystal and Gros de Londres Silks, New Black Satin Brocades, New Black Satin for Skirts, New Evening Crepes, Charming Shades and Very Cheap.

Black Crepons

For the great April Sale, all in stock; Black Broadcloths for Capes; Black Serges and Fancies, All-Wool and Silk and Wool.

Colored Dress Fabrics.

Elegant lines of the Charming New Crepons in all Colors, Light Weight and Wool Novelties.

35c. 40c. 50c. 60c. 75c and $1.00.

Our New Spring Underwear.

The demand has now set in with a vim, White and Ecru, Silk Cotton Lisle—Long Sleeves, Short Sleeves, No Sleeves, Union Suits.

Our Carpet Department

Shows its complete lines of New Carpeting---Wiltons, Axminsters, Moquettes, Body and Tapestry Brussels, Ingrains.

Drapery and Upholstery Goods

In the greatest variety; and at lower prices than have been known. This is the month to get good selections.

MAIL ORDERS CAREFULLY EXECUTED.

ROOT & COMPANY.

ELECTION NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that an election will be held in the Incorporated town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana on

Monday, May 6, 1895

for the purpose of electing,
One Marshal,
One Clerk,
One Treasurer,
each for the term of one (1) year;
One Trustee in second (2) ward,
One Trustee in fifth (5) ward,
each for the term of two (2) years.

That the Polling places for such election will be at the following places to-wit:

North precinct at the residence of Caleb Neal,
Middle precinct at the office of Jacob Walborn,
South precinct at the residence of Mr. Haues known as the Engle property.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of said town this 16th day of April 1895.

MILO D. HUSSELMAN, Town Clerk.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder World's Fair Highest Award.

TIRED WOMEN.

The Housewife, the Farmer and the Toilers of All Vocations.

Depression of the nervous system at the approach of spring is a fertile source of blood impurities. That tired feeling, which is the natural result of the depressing effect of warm weather immediately after the invigorating cold of winter, quickly disappears when Pe-ru-na is taken. Thousands are daily testifying to its priceless benefit. General lassitude, dull, heavy sensations, continual tired feelings, with irregular appetite, and sometimes loss of sleep. Pe-ru-na meets every indication and proves itself to be perfectly adapted to all their varied peculiarities. Pe-ru-na invigorates the system, rejuvenates the feelings, restores the normal appetite and procures regular sleep.

This tired-out feeling is especially true of the housewife in spring time—used up fagged out, jaded and weak. There are thousands of them everywhere. A few bottles of Pe-ru-na would do them untold benefit. As a tonic and nerve invigorator it has no equal. It builds up the nerves, it gives strength to the circulation at once restores the appetite and digestion. No feeble woman should be without Pe-ru-na.

A finely illustrated pamphlet on spring Medicine sent free by The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company. Columbus, O.

For free book on Cancer address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

Rheumatism Cured in a Day.—Myst Cure" for Rheumatism and Neuralgia radically cures in 1 to 3 days. Its action upon the system is remarkable and mysterious. It removes at once the cause and the disease immediately disappears. The first dose greatly benefits, 75 cts. Sold by Robbins & McCord, druggists, Auburn. 41tf

PILES! PILES! PILES!

Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment will cure Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles when all other Ointments have failed. It absorbs the tumors allays the itching at once, acts as a poultice, gives instant relief. Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment is prepared only for Piles and itching of the private parts, and nothing else. Every box is warranted. Sold by druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of price, 50c. and $1.00 per box. WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Prop's, Cleveland, O. Sold on a guarantee by Matheny & Gerke.

Dr. H. R. Fish, of Gravais Mills, Mo., a practicing physician of many years experience, writes: De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve has no equal for indolent sores, scalds and burns. It stops pain instantly heals a burn quickly and leaves no scar.

BUCKLEN'S ARNICA SALVE.—The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Robbins & McCord. tf

De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve cures scalds, burns, indolent sores and never fails to cure piles.

T. F. Anthony, ex-postmaster of Promise City, Iowa, says: "I bought one bottle of 'Mystic Cure' for Rheumatism and two doses of it did me more good than all the medicine I ever took." Sold by Robbins & McCord, druggists, Auburn. 41tf

La Grippe is here again with all of its old time vigor. One Minute Cough Cure is a reliable remedy. It cures and cures quickly.

Relief in One Day.

South American Nervine relieves the worst cases of nervous prostrations nervousness and nervous dyspepsia in a single day. No such relief and blessing has ever come to the invalids of this country. Its powers to cure the stomach are wonderful in the extreme. It always cures; it cannot fail. It radically cures all weakness of the stomach and never disappoints. Its effects are marvelous and surprising.—It gladdens the hearts of the suffering and brings immediate relief. It is a luxury to take and always safe. Trial bottles 15 cents. Sold by Robbins & McCord druggist Auburn Ind. 50tf

Rebecca Wilkinson, of Brownsvalley, Ind., says: I have been in a distressed condition for three years from Nervousness Weakness of the Stomach, Dyspepsia and Indigestion until my health was gone. I had been doctoring constantly with no relief. I bought one bottle of South American Nervine, which did me more good than any $50 worth of doctoring I ever did in my life. I would advise every weakly person to use this valuable and lovely remedy; a few bottles of it has cured me completely. I consider it the greatest medicine in the world." Warranted the most wonderful stomach and nerve cure ever known. Trial bottles 15 cents. Sold by Robbins and McCord druggists Auburn Ind. 34tf

W. T. Stafford, Station Agent of Leeper, Clarion Co. Pa., writes; I can recommend One Minute Cough Cure as the best I ever used. It gave instant relief and a quick cure.

L. S. & M. S. R. R.

TIME TABLE--In Effect Nov. 18, 1894.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

Stations—	Mail.	Exp'ss	Fre'gt
Fort Wayne,.... p	11 45 am	4 45 pm	6 40 am
New Era.....	12 14 pm	5 14	7 27
Auburn Junc.....	12 25	5 25	7 58
Auburn.....	12 29	5 29	8 37
Waterloo.....	12 41	5 41	9 24
Summit.....	12 52	5 52	9 45
Steubenville.....	12 56	5 56	.....
Pleasant Lake...	1 03	6 03	10 12
Angola.....	1 13	6 14	10 50
Jackson.....	3 25	8 35	4 30

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

Stations—	Freight	Exp'ss	Mail
Jackson.....dp	6 55 am	11 20 am	6 30 pm
Angola.....	12 25 pm	2 21 pm	8 51
Pleasant Lake....	1 03	2 32	9 01
Steubenville.....	.....	2 40	9 07
Summit.....	1 25	2 44	9 11
Waterloo	2 30	3 00	9 24
Auburn.....	3 00	3 11	9 35
Auburn Junc....	3 14	3 14	9 38
New Era	4 05	3 24	9 50
Fort Wayne.....	5 25	3 55	10 25

For rates on tickets or freight to all points, call on or address E. T. DeLAPP, Agent at Auburn

FRONT AND BACK VIEW

AMERICAN SILVER TRUSS

LIGHT COOL Easy to Wear No pressure on Hips or Back. No understraps. Never moves.

Retains Severest Hernia with Comfort.

MANUFACTURED AT 290 Main St., BUFFALO, N. Y.

For Sale by Fischler & Son, Auburn, Ind.

REMEMBER there are hundreds of brands of White Lead (so called) on the market that are not White Lead, composed largely of Barytes and other cheap materials. But the number of brands of genuine is limited. The following brands are standard "Old Dutch" process, and just as good as they were when you or your father were boys:

Strictly Pure White Lead

"Anchor,"	"Collier,"
"Eckstein,"	"Shipman,"
"Armstrong & McKelvy,"	"Southern."
"Beymer-Bauman,"	"Red Seal,"
"Davis-Chambers,"	"Fahnestock."

FOR COLORS.—National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors, a one-pound can to a 25-pound keg of Lead and mix your own paints. Saves time and annoyance in matching shades, and insures the best paint that it is possible to put on wood.

Send us a postal card and get our book on paints and color-card, free; it will probably save you a good many dollars.

NATIONAL LEAD CO.
Chicago Branch,
State and Fifteenth Streets, Chicago.

For sale by John L Davis, Auburn, Ind

DR. WILLIAMS' KIDNEY PILLS

A remedy that has no equal in diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs, Have you neglected your kidneys? Have you overworked your nervous system and caused trouble with your kidneys and liver? Have you pains in the loins, side, back, loins and bladder? Have you a flabby appearance of the face, especially under the eyes? Too frequent desire to pass urine? No matter what the cause, we know Dr. Williams' Kidney Pills will cure you. Imparts new life to the diseased organs, tones up the whole system and makes a new man of you. Mailed on receipt of price, $1.00 per box.

WILLIAMS M'F'G CO., Props., Cleveland, O. Sold by FISCHLER & SON, Auburn. 1y20

Relief in Six Hours.

Distressing Kidney and Bladder diseases relieved in six hours by the "New Great South American Kidney Cure." This new remedy is a great surprise on account of its exceeding promptness in relieving pain in the bladder, kidneys, back and every part of the urinary passages in male or female. It relieves retention of water and pain in passing it almost immediately. If you want quick relief and cure this is your remedy. Sold by Robbins and McCord druggists Auburn Ind. 34tf

Sick headache, constipation and indigestion are quickly cured by De Witt's Little Early Risers, the famous little pills.

B. H. Bowman; Pub. Enquirer: at Bremen, Ind., writes: Last week our little girl baby the only one we have was taken sick with croup. After two Doctors failed to give relief and life was hanging on a mere thread we tried One Minute Cough Cure and its life was saved.

It Never Fails.

Harris & Buquo, Erin, Tenn., manufacturers of the celebrated Erin Lime, have in their employ, in the various departments of their business several hundred men. The firm write to the Drummond Medicine Co., 48 Maiden Lane, New York, in great praise of Drummond's Lightning Remedy for rheumatism, and they say they have cured four cases with it, and that it has not failed in a single instance. The remedy always gives satisfaction. Send $5 to the Drummond Medicine Co., and they will send to your address two large bottles a month's treatment, by return express. Agents wanted. 39-40

Terrible Indeed.

"Oh, these terrible pains! Will they ever leave my rhuematic racked joints?" Yes, if you will take the great Scotch remedy, just introduced in the United States—Infallible Scotch Cure. It never disappoints, and speedily cures. Ask your druggist for it, and accept no substitute. Prepared only by the Hall Medicine Company, Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Fischler & Son. 18-20

Your Lame Back.

And the painful torture in joints and muscles is nothing but rheumatism. Nothing but rheumatism kills people. Nothing like Drummond's Lightning Remedy for speedy relief and quick cure. Accept nothing in its place, for nothing else will do the work. The full month's treatment of two large bottles sent to any address by express on receipt of $5. Drummond Medicine Co., 48 Maiden Lane, New York. Agents wanted. 39-40

Pitcher's Castoria.

Children Cry for

Full oft with starch and gloss serene,
The linen collar starts the morn;
Full oft at noontime it is seen
All wilted, wrinkled and forlorn.

That's what you must expect of such a collar; it's the linen of it. The stand-up collars won't stand up, and the turn-down collars will wilt down. The easy, cheap, and pleasant way out of this is to wear "CELLULOID" COLLARS AND CUFFS. These goods are made by covering linen collars or cuffs on both sides with "CELLULOID," thus making them strong and durable, and waterproof, not affected by heat or moisture. There are no other waterproof goods made this way, consequently none that can wear so well. When soiled simply wipe them off with a wet cloth. Every piece of the genuine is stamped like this:

TRADE CELLULOID MARK.

Insist upon goods so marked if you expect full satisfaction, and if your dealer does not keep them, send direct to us enclosing amount and we will mail sample. State size, and whether a stand-up or turned-down collar is wanted. Collars 25c. each. Cuffs 50c. pair.

The CELLULOID COMPANY
427-29 Broadway, New York.

ALL THE TALK.

The Unfortunate Affair Between Mr. Gill and Miss Crew Creates a Sensation.

The DAILY said Saturday it would endeavor to get at the facts before attempting to give them to the public. This is not always easy to do, as oftentimes the parties who alone know what the facts are, refuse to give them up. And to go and publish all the garbled reports one hears on the street would be poor business. But such facts as we have, we give, in the belief that the truth is what our readers desire. It appears that a year or more ago, Mr. and Mrs. Gill, with their only child, a girl of about eleven years old, rented Mr. Crew's house, at the north end of Van-Buren street, and settled down there to make their home. Mr. Crew and his daughters, Leota and Cora, boarded with them. So situated, of course the parties, would naturally be on intimate terms. After a time Mrs. Gill noticed what she believed was an undue degree of friendliness betwee Mr. Gill and Miss Crew but was slow to believe there was anything wrong, though others called her attention to it. Gill worked at Kiblinger's carriage factory, being a painter, and it has been the talk some time, that he would so manage his home coming, that he could walk up home after reaching Seventh street, with Miss Crew. And so things went on. About a month ago, Mr. and Mrs. Gill moved into the W. L. Meese house on South Jackson. Last Friday Mrs. Gill found a letter from Miss Crew to Gill. This she at once decided should end the matter. She took it to the tailor shop, and in the presence of Mr. Yeshers, and his tailor, Mr. Sheets, told Miss Crew she had the letter and knew what was in it, but she did not read it to Miss Crew, as some have said. Of course, exaggerated reports soon got out, but we felt they were too uncertain to publish. Mrs. Gill offered on Saturday to give us the letter for publication if we would wait till to-day. But to-day she had changed her mind, and we agree with her, that no good could result from its publication. Saturday, it seems, Mr. and Mrs. Gill agreed to separate. They sold off such articles as they could spare best, and to-day, he accompanied her to her former home, at Air Line Junction, Toledo. There, they expect to separate, she to remain with a sister and he going to Grand Rapids, Mich. No one blames Mrs. Gill in the least and all sympathize with her. She has shown good judgment under most trying circumstances, and is a lady of intelligence and in every way a worthy woman. She has made a pleasant impression on all who met her, even in this unfortunate matter. As to Gill and Miss Crew, it seems to be the general belief that there has been no criminal conduct, but rather a silly love affair. Miss Crew left town Saturday over the B. & O. She went to Defiance where she has a brother and will probably stay there a short time. We suppose she will then go to her former home at Bowling Green. Before leaving, she sent a letter to Mrs. Gill in which she acknowledged she had done wrong and expressing her deep regret that she had gone even as far as she had. Mrs. Gill sent an answer, the nature of which we did not learn.

FOUNTAIN WELL.

Auburn has quite a number of fountains, or flowing wells especially in the east part of town along the creek bottom and in the west and southwest sections. We have several times alluded to these especially the ones on the bottom along 9th street and also the 100-foot well at G. A. Bishop's residence in the center of town. But the latest as well as the best one, is that put down last week by John Weaver at his new carpenter shop on the low grounds on East 7th street. It is driven seventy feet and the water comes up with a strong and abundant stream the biggest stream so far found. Mr. Weaver is highly gratified with his "find" as well he might be. A steady stream of nice cold water will make that particular locality very popular and the drinks John furnishes will not only be popular but safe.

Cured with One Bottle.

Mr. Jordon Baker, Tifton, Ga., had muscular rheumatism for ten years. After using a bottle of Drummond's Lightning Remedy for Rheumatism, he wrote to the manufactures that he was satisfied he would be cured by the time the bottle would be used up. If you want satisfaction, insist on having Drummond's Lightning Remedy. Nothing can take its place. Send $5 to the Drummond Medicine Co., 48 Maiden Lane, New York, and two large bottles of the remedy will be sent to your address Agents Wanted.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Wednesday's Daily:

ONLY A DIME.

A dime is a little thing, but if one can get a sufficient number of them, they are very satisfactory. A poor editor in Nebraska, is sending out papers containing an urgent request for help in the shape of dime contributions. He has a farm, but the three dry seasons, made it worth less. Then, too, the bad seasons have ruined other business so that his paper gets but little patronage. He is in Custer county and his paper is the oldest one there. We hope our distant brothe will get the dimes he so frankly asks for Four Big Successes.

Having the needed merit to more than make good all the advertising claimed for them, the following four remedies have reached a phenomenal sale. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, each bottle guaranteed; Electric Bitters, the great remedy for Liver, Stomach and Kidneys; Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the best in the world, and Dr. King's New Life Pills, which are a perfect pill. All these remedies are guaranteed to do just what is claimed for them, and the dealer, whose name is attached here with, will be glad to tell you more of them. Sold at Robbins & McCord's drugstore. 1

ANOTHER FIRE.

This time one of our valuable factories, but the loss was paid in full by one of the strong fire insurance companies represented by WALTER C. HARTMAN. Give him your insurance.

Business Women.

WHY SUCCESS IS SO DIFFICULT, THOUGH MANY SUCCEED.

An exchange has this very sensible article, which every man and every woman should study carefully:

"One reason why a woman's success in business life is so difficult and so uncertain is because, besides the one main thing, she tries to do so many other things too. She teaches, and after school hours essays to make her own gowns. She typewrites, and at the close of a hard day's work burns midnight oil over a "love of a bonnet." She sketches, and in all-too-scarce intervals attempts to darn her stockings. A man, on the contrary, whether he teaches or typewrites or sketches, does these things solely and pays somebody else to attend to his clothes. If he can't afford to pay for very many clothes he gets along with few. But all a woman's spare time and strength and cash are put upon loves of bonnets and gowns. Whoever heard of a man coming into an office and saying: 'Oh, boys, what do you think of my new vest? Is'nt it a dear? I got the stuff, oh! dirt cheap at Joblot's the other day, and Billy Bjones lent me the pattern, and I made it all myself after office hours. Don't you think I'm awfully clever?"

THE 26TH TRIENNIAL CONCLAVE KNIGHTS TEMPLAR

will be held in Boston, Mass., August 26th to 30th, 1895. For this occasion the Wabash Railroad will sell tickets from all stations to Boston at one fare for the round trip. Map of route and guide to Boston will be mailed on application to C. S. Crane Gen'l Pass'r and Ticket Agent St. Louis, Mo. 17-2m

INCOME TAX.

The latest phase of the income tax is, that it will be re opened and a new hearing of the cases had by the full bench about May 7. It will be remembered that when the case came up before, one of the members of the court, Judge Jackson, was not able to be present Since then, he is greatly improved, and will no doubt be present. It is thought he is favorable to the law. And even if he is not, it is better to have the expression of the full board, as it will save much litigation.

A Chance to Make Money.

I saw one of your subscriber tell in your columns a few weeks ago how she made money selling Disher Washers, I wrote to the Iron City Disher Co., E. E. Pittsburg, Pa., and obtained one of their Disher Washers and tried it myself first. It is just lovely; you can wash and dry the dishes for a family in two minutes, without touching your hands to a dish or putting them in hot water. I made the first day, $5.00, and everybody wanted a Dish Washer just as soon as they saw me wash their dishes. Since then I have made as high as $18.00 a day, and I believe I can get enough money to keep my brother at school this winter and have money in the bank too. Any lady or gentleman can do as well as I am doing, I am sure, as I had no experience. When everybody wants to buy, It is not hard to sell. Anyone can get information by writing the above firm, and I am glad to add my experience, because I think it is my duty to others to help them over the hard times.

VIRGINIA HERNE.

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of John Nichols deceased late of said County.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

WILLIAM SEELEY Administrator.

April 15, 1895.
Baxter & Brown Attorney's

FISH FROZEN.

The LaPorte Argus of a recent date says: It is probable that all the sunfish and black bass in Orr's lake died during the winter. The ice is now out and the shore is lined with dead fish, and in places for rods square they lay in the edge of the water by thousands. The stench about the lake from these decaying fish is now almost unbearable. Thousands of dead frogs also line the shore. Great black bass that will weigh from one to six pounds along the shore by the wagon load, and it would seem that all the black bass in that lake must be dead. It is a curious fact, however, that not a dead perch or bullhead is to be found, and but very few rock bass are seen among the dead. What is still more curious is the fact that no black bass that will weigh much less than a pound are to be found, and no sunfish or minnows are among the dead. Whether the minnows have escaped or whether they have not yet floated ashore is a question. It is supposed the thick and long continued ice of the winter shut out the air and killed the fish, but the perch and rock bass have been as plentiful as the sunfish and and how is it that they too are not dead? It is a matter worth investigating.

The United Society of Christian Endeavor

and the National Young People's Christian Union will hold their Fourteenth International Convention at Boston, July 10 to 14, 1895. The Wabash Railroad has reduced the rate to one first-class fare for the round trip from all stations to Boston for this occasion. For maps of route and guide to Boston write to C. S. Crane Gen'l Pass'r and Ticket Agent, St. Louis, Mo. 17 2m Right Arm Paralyzed!

Saved from St. Vitus Dance.

"Our daughter, Blanche, now fifteen years of age, had been terribly afflicted with nervousness, and had lost the entire use of her right arm. We feared St. Vitus dance, and tried the best physicians, with no benefit. She has taken three bottles of Dr. Miles' Nervine and has gained 31 pounds. Her nervousness and symptoms of St. Vitus dance are entirely gone, she attends school regularly, and has recovered complete use of her arm, her appetite is splendid."

MRS. E. R. BULLOCK, Brighton, N. Y.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Cures.

Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold on a positive guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. All druggists sell it at $1, 6 bottles for $5, or it will be sent, prepaid, on receipt of price by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

For Sale by, Fischle & Son., Auburn.

THE HUB'S BOYS' HEAD-TO-FOOT OUTFITS

THIS AND PREVENT THIS

THESE HEAD-TO-FOOT OUTFITS

Consist of One COAT, Two Pairs of PANTS, One CAP to Match and a Pair of Shoes.

And the price of the whole outfit is Only $5.00

If on receipt you do not consider them the greatest bargain you ever bought for $5.00 you can send back the outfit and we expressly agree to return your money.

Send for samples of the cloth and full description of the outfit, also for our new spring catalogue—all sent free on application.

THE HUB The World's Largest Clothing Store. CHICAGO, ILL.

English Spavin Liniment removes all hard, soft or calloused lumps and blemishes from horses, blood spavins, curbs, splints, sweeney, ring-bone, stifles, sprains, all swollen throats, coughs, etc. Save $50 by use of one bottle. Warranted the most wonderful blemish cure ever known. Sold by Robbins and McCord druggists Auburn. 34tf

Our patrons will find De Witt's Little Early Risers a safe and reliable remedy for constipation, dyspepsia and liver complaints.

$15 A DAY is fair wages for a boy. I made this working for [W. M. WOODWORTH. Kokomo, Ind. Anyone with ordinary ability can do the same; a deaf and dumb person can sell the goods as it does not require any talking.

Everybody Buys. The samples, worth $1.00 will be sent with instructions, for 25 cents. Better send now as opportunity of your life to make money

THE AUBURN COURIER.

VOLUME XXV. AUBURN, DE KALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY. MAY 9. 1895. NUMBER 19

SAY : :

HOW MUCH DO YOU OWE?

Who holds your mortgage? How much interest are you paying? Do you owe a building loan association anything? If you do, how much interest are you paying them? Unless you are better posted than the majority of people who have such loans, you cannot tell. You think you are paying 6 per cent. Do you know (of course not) that you are paying at least 12 per cent. If you think not, just figure it out yourself. Now then, are you not paying 6 per cent interest and 6 per cent premium? Certainly. Well now don't you know that premium and interest are the same thing—its all interest. Can you afford to pay 12 per cent interest to a loan association when even your banks only charge 8 per cent and you think they are charging too much, and when do you expect to have your loan canceled or paid off in full? You have been told 72 or 78 months. Now then, we undertake to say that it will take you 100 months, if you will call on us we will show you so you will be satisfied that we are right. Now then, we are prepared to loan you money on monthly installment plan for 8 per cent, we charge you no membership fee and you do not have to make three or more payments in advance so that if on account of insufficient security or bad title your loan is rejected you will not lose one cent. You pay nothing unless your loan is granted. We are making farm loans at from 3 to 5 per cent with privilege of partial payments.

ANOTHER THING!

There is scarcely a day but what there is some traveling agent for some building loan association in Auburn soliciting business, selling stock upon which they charge you a membership fee of from 50 cents to $1.00 per share, which amount goes to the agent and you never get back this money thrown away. If you will call on us we will take your application for all the stock you want in the BEST (we can prove it) building loan association in the state the INDIANA MUTUAL OF INDIANAPOLIS, and charge you NO MEMBERSHIP FEE AT ALL. This is certainly fair. If you have any investment stock in any association just write them a letter and ask them the withdrawal value of same, their reply will probably open your eyes. What would you say if you would deposit $8.00 per month in your bank for one year and wanted to withdraw the same and they would offer to pay you only about $80? The bank would only have to do this in one case to be compelled to retire from business. Now you pay ten dollars membership fee and 8 dollars for 12 months making 108 dollars, you lose the 10 dollars membership fee and 10 cents per share each month for expenses, making 12 dollars, or a total of 22 dollars loss upon which you would receive 6 per cent interest for average time on 96 dollars, making 2 dollars and 88 cts. from 22 dollars would leave you a loser of 19 dollars and 12 cents. In our association your stock is worth alll you have paid in, with its interest added, so that upon withdrawal you do not get less than you paid. We want the people of Auburn to become familiar with this matter, and would like to have any that are interested to call and talk with us, we can give you some pointers.

We are still in the Real Estate, Insurance and R. R. Ticket business.

RICKEL & SPROTT

AUBURN, INDIANA.

Woman Should Rest

So few women know how to rest themselves in the reason why so few women keep their good looks on into middle life. Full of nervous energy, never for a moment quiet, even when the chance comes for a respite, they go on using up their nervous system until one day comes a grand collapse and a long siege of expensive and painful illness is the result. Now, would't it be much better, ye good managers, to look as carefully to your health as to your households? Even when you stretch yourself out on the couch for a little nap, what do you do? Answer honestly, and you will say that you are thinking how you will make over your little girl's dress, or wondering whether the picture that is hung in the hall wouldn't look better in a corner of the library, and nine times out of ten you will jump up and begin work again instead of letting your brain take a thorough holiday, even if it is only a very brief one. Even when you are sitting with no work in your hands you can't keep them still. You tap your feet, you keep the nerves up to the highest tension and then you wonder why you go to bed tired and get up feeling no less fatigued. The technique of rest is the hardest thing for American women to learn. Five minutes a day of real rest is worth more than a much longer period of artificial, respite at mountains or seaside after the body and brain have been thoroughly exhausted and such relief is necessity. Exchange.

MARRIED.

Saturday, Henry Conrad and Miss Eliza Sweigard of Smithfield came into the law office of D. Y. Husselman, and being a rather bashful old couple, asked the Ex clerk to go over to the court house and procure a marriage license for them. This he did and they had him secure a man to tie the knot. So he brought in Justice Walborn, who linked them together as man and wife, with neatness and dispatch. And they went home happy.

THE SMALLEST SHERI'S SALE EVER MADE.

The smallest sum ever realized by a sheriff's sale in Lancaster county, Pa., was that just received from the sale of the personal property of Isaac Walton, of Mount Nebo. A few years ago he was a prosperous merchant, but a series of misfortunes ended in financial ruin. At the sale just held only the neighbors were present, and these refused to bid against Mrs. Walton. The sheriff first offered the goods at their supposed value in dollars, finally dropping to cents, and in the end Mrs. Walton bought in everything for thirty-one cents.—Philadelphia Times

The Discovery Saved His Life.

Mr. G. Caillouette, Druggist. Beaverville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with Lagrippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial bottle at Robbins & McCord drug store. 2

THE GERMAM BAPITST BRETHREN

Will hold their annual meeting at Decatur, Ill., the latter part of May. Everything has been arranged, and work on the buildings will begin in a few days The Wabash R. R. is the only line running trains direct to the grounds.

Cured in Forty Minutes.

A lady at Tooleys La., was very sick with bilious colic when M. C. Tisler, a prominent merchant of the town gave her a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. He says she was well in forty minutes after taking the first dose. For sale by Robbins & McCord Druggists. 18 22

Reduced Rate Excursions to Boston.

Over the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern R'y in July, account National Convention Y. P. S. C. E., and in August account 26th Triennial Conclave Knights Templar. The L. S. & M. S, R'y is the direct and only double track line from the west to Boston. 19-20

The Rush
STILL CONTINUES.

The people know when they get a good thing. It's the talk of the town, the South Side Buggy Repository, where they are selling Buggies, Phaetons, Surreys and Road Wagons at Free Trade Prices.

What you want is the Best at a price you can afford to pay. We have All Styles at the Right Prices. You are sure to be pleased by calling on

McDowell AND Carter,

SOUTH OF COURT HOUSE.

What is
CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

UNITED HOSPITAL AND DISPENSARY, Boston, Mass.

ALLEN C. SMITH, Pres.,

The Centaur Company, 77 Murray Street, New York City.

FARRAGUT.

AND THE SAILOR WHO LASHED HIM TO THE RIGGING.

From Harper's Weekly.

The death at Annapolis, Maryland, of an old man-of-war's man, John H. Knowles, recalls a dramatic incident of the war which has become historical, and one that the late William Page made the subject of his well-known picture.

On the morning of August 5, 1864, Admiral Farragut stood in the port main rigging of the flag-ship Hartford, several feet above the deck, as his squadron entered Mobile Bay. From this elevated position the Admiral could view the progress of the fight, watch the movements o the Confederate ram Tennessee, commanded by his old friend Buchanan, and also communicate easily with the Metacomet, lashed alongside to port. As the heavy firing increased, and the smoke hung over the deck, step by step the Admiral climbed the rigging to gain a clearer view just under the "top.' Leaning against the stay, he intently watched the engagement. Captain Drayton and the officers standing on the poop-deck, observing his perilous position and fully aware that even a slight wound might cause the Admiral to lose his footing, hurriedly ordered the Signal Quartermaster Knowles to take a piece of rope up to the Admiral and make his position secure. This is the simple statement of Knowles to the writer: "Mr. Watson [now Captain J. C.] ordered me to go up in the port main-rigging where the Admiral was and put a rope around him. I cut off a fathom or two from a new lead-line which was lying on deck, went up the ratlings to where the Admiral was standing with opera-glasses in his hand just under the futtock-shrouds, and made the forward end of the line fast. As I took the other end around the Admiral he passed the remark that the rope was not necessary, but I went on and made the after-end secure. I don't think he noticed the rope around him, as we were square abreast of Fort Morgan, and it was pretty hot work, but when the ship got clear of the forts the Admiral cast the rope adrift before he could come down." This statement is certified to by James Smith, of Baltimore, Captain of the Mizzentop.

The controversy in regard to this incident arose from the fact that Farragut came down on deck quickly after the ships entered the bay, but the circumstances as above related are fully corroborated by Drayton, Watson, and, fact, by letters of Farragut himself. Subsequently, when the Hartford rammed the Tennesee, the Admiral was in the port mizzen-rigging, where, Watson says, "I secured him with my own hands to prevent his being thrown out of the rigging by the shock of the collission."

John Hazard Knowles was born at South Kingston, Washington county, Rhode Island, August 10, 1834. At the time of his death he had just completed his enlistment, having been continuously in the navy since May 15, 1855. He served on the Constellation, Brooklyn, Donegal and Phlox, and on the Hartford during the whole war, participating in all her engagements. Since 1868 he has been attached to the Naval Academy. He was proud of the fact he was a "true-born American of old Roger Williams stock," and that he hoisted the first Rear-Admiral's flag in the United States navy, June, 1862.

He had a fine record in the service, and was a good specimen of the "men behind the guns."

ANOTHER PUZZLE.

The Angola Republican gets off this interesting item concerning the eggs:

"A lady brought a basket of eggs to one of our grocers a few days ago, and on being asked how many she had she replied that if she were to take the eggs out two at a time she would have one left, in the basket, that if she were to take them out three at a time she would have one left, that if four at a time one would be left, that if five at a time one would be left, that if six at a time one would be left; but if she were to take them out seven at a time, there would be none left in the basket. After making this statement the lady proposed to the grocer that if he would figure out how many eggs the basket contained without counting them he should have them for nothing, but if he was unable to do so, he should give her 15 cents a dozen for the eggs, together with their weight in the best granulated sugar. To this proposition the grocer readily acceded, but after working at the peg problem for a time according to both the single and double rule of three he frankly admitted that he was worsted, that while he could figure out a profit on sugar, even when sold below cost, the sum which he proposed was too hard for his arithmetic, and he paid over the sugar as the easiest way out of the bargain. Perhaps some of our student friends who have ciphered beyond the double rule of three can furnish a solution and a rule which will enable our grocer friend to count his eggs mathematically in the future.

Dr. H. R. Fish, of Gravais Mills, Mo., a practicing physician of many years experience, writes: De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve has no equal for indolent sores, scalds and burns. It stops pain instantly heals a burn quickly and leaves no scar.

Thursday's Daily.

A Thrilling Incident

[Defiance Express.]

There was a thrilling incident on the B. & O. railway bridge that crosses the Auglaize river in this city, Thursday afternoon A number of young girls from the Central school building were on their way to gather wild flowers. They chose to cross on the B. & O. bridge rather than to walk to the Hopkins street bridge. All of the young ladies had passed over the bridge but one. She was swinging along very leisurely when suddenly one of the B. & O. limited passenger trains came roaring down the track like a hurricane. There were frantic shrieks from the shore, but it was obvious that the girl could not leave the bridge in time to escape the train. The situation was one that would have tried the nerves of the strongest man. The structure is a lofty affair, all of the braces and trusses being under the track. There are no side rails, nothing indeed that a person could catch to but the ends of the ties that project over the sides of the bridge. But it was not a man that was forced to cling like a bird to the side of the structure some thirty or forty feet above the sluggish waters of the Auglaize, but a frail maiden, tenderly raised and unused to any such nerve destroying experiences. A man passing in a boat took in the situation at a glance He instructed the young lady how to place herself and then pulled his boat into position to rescue her if she should lose her hold and drop into the river. It was all over in a minute. The girl had scarcely cleared the track and perched upon the ends of the cross piece when the train passed like a flash of light. When the trail of smoke that it left behind had cleared away the young miss again took her place on the track and passed very leisurely to the east shore where she joined her trembling and frightened companions. Not a girl in a thousand could have taken her place, but the circumstance did not seem to disturb her in the least, It just happened that she possessed superb nerves. The name of the young lady was Miss Mabel Switzer.

BAPTIZO NO. 2.

SPRINKLED, POURED OR IMMERSED. ALL TIE TO IT.

Yesterday we alluded to the great difference of opinion as to the real meaning and effect of the word "Baptize." One faction will tell you that wherever one of the forms of this respectable old word is used, it always means "immerse." The next man you meet, will insist it means "to sprinkle" and still a third is satisfied that "pour" will suit for a translation, just as well. And so, some go on studying their bible and immersing everyone they can get hold of; others go on sprinkling, as an essential ordinance while others just "pour," Our own decided opinion is that some of the people who do these things will be saved, and some wont. Among those who either will be or wont be, are Andy Murphy and Dr. L. A. Hines. It was decided this way: They saw there were several cats hanging about Jim Sheffer's meat market, and they proposed to have a little amusement, by catching them, and some dark night deliver them to any family they thought needed or didn't need an extra feline. But there is an old saying, "First catch your rabbit," and so they took steps to "first catch your cats." They took the same plan that is used to catch wild elephants. They dug a hole not wide, but deep, at the rear of Schaab & Murphy's clothing store, and put into it, sundry tempting morels of stale meat, such as the Indian wanted "A little smell as well as all taste." This they expected would tempt each pussy and tiramalkin, to jump down into the pit, when they would slip up and put a board over the top, and lo, a cat! They could see exactly how that captive cat would jump. As they beat, in gleeful expectation over the pit, Clint Potter, from the cigar factory of Spriegel & Greenman, above, poured down a bucket of water.

Two spinal columns got a share.
Two dampened coats sprang into air.
The curtain drops. We leave e'm there.

J. A. Richardson, of Jefferson City, Mo. Chief Enrolling force 38th general assembly of Missouri, writes: I wish to testify to the merits of One Minute Cough Cure. When other so-called cures failed, I obtained almost instant relief and a speedy cure by the use of One Minute Cough cure.

NATIONAL EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION MEETING.

Denver, Colo., July 5 to 12, 1895.

For this occasion the Wabash Railroad has made a rate of one fare for the round trip to Denver plus $2.00, added for membership fee.

For full particulars in regard to this meeting, time of trains, rate, route, etc. call upon or write to any representative of the Wabash R. R., or connection lines, or C. S. Crane, Gen'l Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Wabash R. R., St, Louis. Mo.

Rheumatism Cured in a Day.—"Mye t Cure" for Rheumatism and Neuralgia radically cures in 1 to 3 days. Its action upon the system is remarkable and mysterious. It removes at once the cause and the disease immediately disappears. The first dose greatly benefits, 75 cts. Sold by Robbins & McCord, druggists, Auburn. 41tf

Beginning to remind us of

GOOD OLD TIMES

Again. Business better than it has ever been, even in the great hustle of '92. We are striving to make it even better. With

INCREASED FACILITIES,
LARGER STOCK,
LOWER PRICES,

we are bound to succeed. Each day we aim to improve one or the other of our Many Departments.

This week it is in our Clothing, Ladies' Wrap and Carpet Departments..

Brim Full

of choice new goods at

Spot Cash Prices.

More of those elegant Five Dollar Black Capes which have attracted more attention than any other garment this season.

New Hats

In all the latest shapes and shades.

New Summer Neckwear.

in Flowing ends, D'Joinvilles, Silks and Lawns. These are a few of the many attractions on which we can save you money.

SCHAAB & BROTHER

BROWN, CULBERTSON & BOLAND

The leading Hardware and Agricultural Implement Firm in DeKalb Co.

SELLS

Eckhart Buggies,
Turnbull Wagons,
Oliver and Bryan Plows,
Bement Disc and Spring-tooth Harrows,
Bryan Spading Harrows,
Ohio, Albion and New Western Cultivators,
McCormick, Champion and Deering, Binders and Mowers.
Stoves, Tinware, Paints
OILS, Glass, etc., etc.

Come and See

North Side Public Square.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

JAMES A. BARNS, - - Postmaster.

Commercial circulars carelessly composed consume capital.

And only a short time ago Oscar Wilde was over here telling the American people how to live.

It is no more dangerous now to attend a country dance in Kentucky than to rob a train down there.

A young man was shot to death in Mississippi the other day for singing. We would like to wager that we can name the song.

A good deal of the news from Hawaii continues to be of a kind that requires corroboration in a formal affidavit under a notary's seal.

A tramp stole a box of soap in Atchison the other day. That fellow ought to be watched; he evidently wants to get out of that section in disguise.

Perugini denies the rumor that Lillian Russell has been reconciled to her husband. How does he know? Perhaps he is not the husband to whom rumor refers.

A musical critic suggests that pianos are too large and thinks they should be made much smaller. Too many pounds are taken out of the average piano, as it is.

Dr. Chauncey M. Depew says: "My ideal woman is not a great talker." What would Dr. Depew think if the women should say their ideal man is not a great talker?

It must be admitted that Kentucky thus far holds the first prize blue ribbon in two classes—she has the best cure for snake bite and the best treatment for train robbers.

Bismarck received nearly a million postal cards and letters of congratulation and more than 11,000 telegrams on his eightieth birthday anniversary. It is just barely possible that he may not answer all of them personally.

There seems to be an inexplicable lack of penalty for the sale of milk from consumptive cows. While such sales are interrupted and the cows sent to the bone-yard, the milkmen escape the gallows and do not even appear to be in jail.

A Philadelphia paper says that Lillian Russell's power as a comic-opera divinity is waning and that she must husband her resources if she hopes to hold popular favor. When it comes to husbands Lillian probably is more resourceful than any singer now before the public.

Chitral, the little Indian State to which England is just now engaged in giving a lesson in the art of war, lies on the southern slope of the great Hindo-Koosh range. The province is about a hundred miles long and from twelve to twenty in breadth. Its chief city, also named Chitral, has about 4,000 inhabitants, most of whom are Mohammedans. They have the reputation of being good fighters, but, of course, their present uprising is perfectly hopeless. Nearest neighbor to Chitral is the State of Swat, about the death of whose Akoond a very famous and equally admirable poem was once written.

An English naval officer, writing in the North American Review for April, applies a kind of reductio ad absurdum process to the battle ship and torpedo boat problem. He says the matter now looks very much as if, when England sends out a fleet of armored battleships she will have to send along another fleet of torpedo-boat destroyers—which, he says, are themselves torpedo boats—to protect the battleships. And on that basis he wants to know what is the use of sending out the battleships at all. The truth is that nearly the whole of naval tactics, under present conditions, is entirely speculative. Modern warships have had very little experience in actual fighting.

Chicago Mail: The testimony in the suit of Coudrey vs. Schweinfurth, which terminated in a verdict for the plaintiff and an award of $50,000 damages, was a shocking revelation of licentiousness and blasphemy on the part of Schweinfurth and his dupes. That this man should have been permitted to maintain a harem, designate it as "heaven," the inmates as angels, and himself as the "Messiah," in the vicinity of such an intelligent and moral community as that of Rockford is a striking evidence either of the liberal laws of the State or the indifference of the people to such offenses. Schweinfurth has given a characteristic answer to the announcement of the verdict against him. He says: "The verdict is as unjust as the original prosecution. It will do them no good, as I have no property. I do not fear prosecutions, for I am protected from above." If the Coudrey verdict should end the matter and this unspeakable rascal should be permitted to go on in his orgies and blasphemies the decent people of the country will begin to believe that the power from below has got the upper hand.

The London Times, in commenting on a recent decision of the United States Supreme Court, has words of great praise and admiration for that great tribunal, and it deplores the absence of such a court with similar powers in Great Britain. That any institution of the United States should be so commended by a newspaper which is undoubtedly the organized opinion of England is so remarkable as to at least demand a passing comment. Twenty-five years ago such a compliment would have been but grudgingly expressed, is at all, fifty years ago it would have been impossible. It may not be many years before some other of our institutions will meet with like approval, followed, perhaps, by imitation. The truth is no part of our government has been so much admired by European nations as the Supreme Court of the United States, and particularly that part of its function which empowers it to declare void an act of Congress or of a State Legislature, when not in conformity with the constitution. The British courts possess no such power, for the reason that parliament is supreme, and there is no written constitution, in our sense of that term. Therefore, an act of parliament cannot be compared with a higher or more authoritative law than itself, for if it is contrary to any former enactment it repeals it. The habeas corpus act, for instance, is simply a law of parliament, and it could be repealed to-morrow, if parliament so willed, and no court could declare the repeal invalid. With us the writ to a writ of habeas corpus is imbedded in the constitution, and any law of Congress denying it would be declared void by the court as being contrary to the fundamental law of the land, and that would end it. Justly, indeed, may such a protecting power of the rights and liberties of the citizens be admired and envied by those people who possess it not.

Big Prices for Trifles.

A party of auctioneers en route from Chicago to Buffalo were in the smoking room of a Lake Shore sleeper the other night telling stories. "Selling horses and farm stuff by auction is all right," said one, "all right, but for genuine fun give me the private sale of a rich man's furniture. When Anthony Drexel died there were a lot of things which had personal reminiscences connected with them which everyone wanted. It was finally decided to hold a family auction and sell them to the highest bidder. The first thing I put up was a small clock, worth, I suppose, about $20.

"'I'll give $500,' was the first bid. It came from a nephew.

"'Make it $1,000,' interjected a younger son.

"'Fifteen hundred dollars,' replied the nephew.

"The nephew won and got the twenty-dollar clock for money with which he could have bought the finest clock in Philadelphia. I never knew what the history of the clock was, but it must have had a peculiar one. Then I put up a big arm chair. It was the chair Drexel had sat in for over twenty years, and it had a valuable association for each one of the family. A married daughter and young Anthony Drexel were the ones who wanted it the most, and the bidding, which opened at $1,000, was spirited and lively. I finally sold the chair to Anthony for $6,500. The day's sales brought in over $25,000."

"I never had anything as good as that," said another auctioneer, "but I sold the Childs effects the same way. The chief contest was over one of those old-fashioned tall clocks. Childs' eldest son finally bought it for $1,850, and it is now in the Ledger office in Philadelphia."—Chicago Times-Herald.

A Neglected Study.

Thirty odd years ago, Yale, the college I knew best, while it had plenty of teachers of theology, Latin, Greek and mathematics, and a fair supply in physical science, had not one whose specialty was economics or history, or even a language in which any modern contributions to economics or history have been made—not even the language of Adam Smith, though, of course, we could have studied him if we had the chance, and I mention the lack of a professor of English merely as throwing light on the general situation. But we had no chance to study Adam Smith or any other real economist.

Even Mill, though he was the acknowledged authority on the science until nearly a score of years later, was closed to us. He was an "infidel," as a score of years later was Spencer, whose "Study of Sociology" the then president ruled out of the course. So a scholar whose specialty was Greek, and, later, international law, put us through parrot-like recitations in economics from a compilation that I often incline to think the very worst book I ever saw, and my trade leads me to see a good many bad ones. What was true of Yale was virtually true everywhere. Of course few if any of the men educated in this fashion have developed well in economics, but they nevertheless include, in various situations, most of the present leaders of popular opinion, and they naturally lead it—nowhere. What wonder that the politico-economic progress of the country, instead of being a steady course toward a definite end, is a zig-zag of "landslides?"—The Forum.

His Lordship's Joke.

Before the bridge of Dalserf, in Lanarkshire, Scotland, was built, about forty years ago, a ferry-boat was kept there by Bauchie Lee, a very eccentric character, possessed of great shrewdness and humor. The Earl of Hyndford—the last of the title—had occasion very fequently to cross the ferry, when he generally gave Bauchie a shilling, although the charge was only one penny. His lordship cracked many a joke with Bauchie, who, in return, indulged in a good deal of freedom; but the former, on a particular occasion, determined to puzzle the ferryman, and, having got across the river, his lordship leaped out of the boat without so much as putting his hand into his pocket. Beauchie, apparently thunderstruck at the occurrence, eyed the Earl for a while, and then, after he had gone a few paces, ran after him with the vehement vociferation: "Min', my lord, gin ye hae lost your purse, it wasna in my boat!" The good Earl laughed heartily, retraced his steps, and rewarder Bauchie with a double gift.

Dangers in Hot-Water Bottles.

Many as are the blessings of the hot water bottle, it must not be forgotten that it is also a source of some danger. Always see that the stopper is absolutely tight and never use it without a thick cover. Many a painful burn has it given, especially to an unconscious patient or to an old person. In old age, the circulation being weaker, the vitality becomes low. A thick cover will keep the water warm longer as well as insure against burns. Filling the bag quite full will also cause the heat to be retained for a longer time, but will not be as comfortable as when half full. When not in use, the bag should be emptied.

Be good to a man long enough, and he will finally confess his crime.

TEACHERS TO GO WEST

A HOST WILL ATTEND THE DENVER CONVENTION.

Thirty-fourth Annual Meeting of the National Educational Association, July 5-12—Many Eminent Educators on the Program.

Thirty Thousand Expected.

The thirty-fourth annual meeting of the National Educational Association will be held in Denver, July 5 to 12. The association goes so far West this year for the second time in its history. In 1888 the session was held in San Francisco, the president of the association for '88 was Aaron Gove, then and now superintendent of the Denver schools. The San Francisco meeting was the largest the association has ever held, before or since that time, and such enthusiasm as was manifested in 1888 has not been known until 1895, when the fame of Denver has called forth, three months before the time set for the July meeting, an enthusiasm on the part of educators throughout the country, which assures an attendance of between 20,000 and 30,000 people. The San Francisco attendance was 12,000.

DR. BUTLER.

The National Educational Association was established in 1857 in Philadelphia; its object, as stated in the preamble to the constitution, is "To elevate the character and advance the interests of the profession of teaching, and to promote the cause of popular education in the United States."

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia College, professor of philosophy and education, and State university examiner for New York, is president of the association. Dr. Butler is one of the young men who have of late years come to the front in educational lines. He is 33 years of age and is recognized as one of the most advanced thinkers, and among the most progressive educators in the world.

DENVER CITY HALL.

Superintendent A. G. Lane, of Chicago schools, is vice-president; Irwin Shepard, State superintendent of Minnesota, is secretary; Superintendent J. M. Greenwood, of the Kansas City schools, is treasurer, and Superintendent N. A. Calkins, of the New York schools, is chairman of the Board of Trustees, the governing body of the association. The membership is composed of men and women eminent in educational lines in the United States and Canada, and numbered last year over 5,000.

Convention Program.

The National Educational Association has eleven departments, each of which has a meeting place and holds sessions of its own, in addition to those of the general convention. The departments are: Kindergarten, Elementary, Secondary, Higher, Normal, Manual Training, Art, Music, Business Education, Child Study; and a National Council of Education. Among the noted educators who will read papers and take part in the discussions of the convention and its departments are: President De Garmo, of Swarthmore; Commissioner Harris, of the United States Bureau of Education; Hon. Hoke Smith, Secretary of the Interior; Prof. Jackman, of the Cook County Normal School, Illinois; Chancellor W. H. Payne, of Nashville University; George H. Martin, Supervisor of Boston Schools; Prof. William Carey Jones, of the University of California; James L. Hughes, Inspector of Schools, Toronto; Dr. J. M. Rice, of New York; Mrs. Mary Hunt, of Boston; Prof. Richard T. Ely, of the University of Wisconsin; N. C. Shaeffer, Pennsylvania State Superintendent; Halsey C. Ives, Chief of the Art Department of the World's Columbian Exposition.

AARON GOVE.

The Convention City.

Not only has Denver become famous as a city of conventions, some sixty organizations having met there in convention last year, but no city of the age and size of Denver is so well known throughout the country for the superior excellence of its school system and for the educational advantages it affords.

Ever since the Knight Templar Conclave, of August, 1892, when 100,000 guests were so royally entertained in Denver, that city has always been considered in choosing a place for large conventions. Several other cities, east and west, fought hard for the '95 convention of the National Educational Association, but Denver prevailed.

COLORADO STATE CAPITOL, DENVER.

From all points in the East, railroads will sell tickets to Denver and return at one fare, plus $2 for membership in the association. These tickets will read, "good returning July 15 or 16," but if deposited with the Union Ticket Agent in Denver the return coupons will be extended to any time up to Sept. 1.

Big Deficit Certain.

A Washington dispatch says that the treasury receipts during April have not been up to expectations, and it is probable that there will be a deficiency this year of nearly $45,000,000. Receipts for the month were $24,247,836 and expenditures $32,952,690, leaving a deficit for the month of $8,704,854 and for the fiscal year to date of $45,247,006.

J. Fletcher Williams, ex-secretary of the Minnesota Historical Society and one of the most prominent Odd Fellows in the Northwest, died at Rochester, Minn., of softening of the brain, due to overwork.

CROPS IN GOOD SHAPE.

Fine Showing of Winter Wheat—Corn Planting Well Under Way.

Reports as to the conditions of crops throughout the country and the general influence of weather on cultivation and growth of crops made by the directors of the different State weather services and telegraphed to Chicago are as follows:

Winter wheat is reported as in excellent condition in Kentucky, Tennessee, Maryland and over the greater part of Illinois; Nebraska reports good condition in extreme southeast, elsewhere mostly winther killed; Iowa reports good condition; Ohio much improved and in fair condition except in northern portion; a good crop is promised in Indiana, except on clay soil; Arkansas and Oregon report crop much improved; Michigan fair condition, except in some central counties, where winter killed; in Wisconsin it has been largely winter killed; in Kansas the crop is improved in western portions of the State, but in central counties much has been plowed up and the ground sown in other grain. Spring wheat is coming up and growing nicely in the Dakotas and Minnesota, but in the southern portion of the last named State the late sown is needing rain. Corn planting has begun in Minnesota and is progressing in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and South Dakota; some damage is being done by cut worms in Mississippi and Kentucky. Cotton planting is nearly completed in South Carolina, Alabama and Arkansas and will be finished in Louisiana the coming week.

Indiana—Warm weather and few showers were beneficial, but rain is needed; wheat on favorable soil promises good crop, on clay ground it stands thin and spotted; plowing for corn nearly ended; planting begun in most counties.

Wisconsin—Weather too cold and dry for crop growth; grass and oats making slow progress; winter wheat largely killed and land sown to other grain; about 50 per cent. of the crop saved in east portion; planting begun.

Iowa—The week ended warm and favorable; a fair start has been made in corn planting; all small grain crops doing well; winter wheat in good condition.

North Dakota—Favorable weather, wheat seeding about finished; oats, rye and flax being sown; grain coming up nicely.

Minnesota—Good rains in northern and central portions and light showers in southern portion; warm sunshiny days, with frosty nights; early sown grain good stand and sprouting nicely; potato planting well advanced and corn planting begun; grass and late sown grain need more rain in southern portion.

South Dakota—Above an average temperature, with about average rainfall and sufficient sunshine caused satisfactory progress in all vegetation; wheat, oats, gardens and grass growing nicely; flax seeding progressing; potato planting advanced; corn planting becoming general.

Michigan—Warm, dry week has greatly advanced farm work, but held back vegetation, which is badly in need of rain; all winter wheat in fair condition except in eastern third of central counties, where it is poor and winter killed in spots.

Nebraska—Crops have grown slowly owing to dry weather first of week, but heavy rains the past three days make the week close with all crops in excellent condition. Winter wheat good in extreme southeastern counties; elsewhere mostly winter killed and has been plowed up for other crops. Fruit in remarkably good condition.

PYTHIANS ON PARADE.

Delegates from All Over the World Meet at Indianapolis.

Twenty-four States were represented at the first meeting of Supreme Council Uniformed Rank, Knights of Pythias of the World, which began in Castle Hall at Indianapolis, Tuesday. There were in attendance the supreme chancellor and other officials, many representatives of supreme lodges, the brigade commanders of the various States and the members of supreme tribunals. The supreme council is the legislative power of the rank. This is the first meeting since the uniformed rank was authorized to be under control of its own members. James Carnahan, who is at the head of the rank, welcomed the delegates to the convention, and Supreme Chancellor Rich, of Ohio, responded. The report of General Carnahan was then read. It called attention to the rapid growth of the uniform rank and made recommendations for the future government of the rank. The report was referred to a committee. Committees were then appointed on rules and regulations, finance, revenue, appeals and grievances, mileage and per diem and law.

The convention fixed a basis on mileage and per diem for the representatives and accepted and approved the bond of William J. McKee, of Indianapolis, adjutant general of the rank, who will hereafter handle all the funds of the uniform rank. In the afternoon there was a magnificent parade, commanded by Gen. J. R. Ross. At night the delegates to the convention witnessed the exemplification of the proposed ritual of the uniform rank at the opera house.

PERSONAL Tidbits

Charles B. Lewis, better known as "M. Quad," has resumed his editorial connection with the Detroit Free Press.

Mr. John W. Foster is well pleased with the peace treaty between Japan and China. He gets $100,000 out of it.

The Princess of Wales is a lover and collector of fine and rare laces and has $150,000 worth locked up in her cabinets.

John Ruskin can play chess and indulge in other similar recreations, but it is not thought that he will ever be able to resume literary work.

Mr. Foote has been elected president of the Boston Boot and Shoe Club. Some years ago Mr. Foote was walking on his uppers, but now he is well heeled.

Chief Clarence of the Mosquito Reservation is still at Kingston, Jamaica, under British protection, and is allowed $22 a day for living expenses.

Dr. Edward S. Holden, director of the Lick Observatory, has been made a commander of the Order of the Ernestine House of Saxony in recognition of his services to science.

Mrs. Potts, the woman suffrage leader of Topeka, has applied for divorce for the reason that Mr. Potts has accorded her, among other rights, the one of earning her daily bread.

E. Clark, Jr., who recently resigned his position as general freight agent of the New York Central Railroad, had been forty-seven consecutive years in the service of the company.

Prof. Guntz, of Nancy, says that he has found a simpler method of obtaining argon than that of Lord Rayleigh and Prof. Ramsey. He extracts it from lithium at a moderate temperature.

E. St. John, vice-president of the Seaboard Air Line, was recently presented with a magnificent gold watch from the locomotive engineers of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad as a token of their appreciation of the kind treatment they received from him while he was general manager of the Rock Island road.

WHY PROTECT THEM?

MANUFACTURERS CAN UNDERSELL ENGLISH COMPETITORS.

A Conclusive Tariff Argument—Protectionists Now Afraid of Chinese Labor—Immigration and the Tariff—Don't Sell Your Sheep Now.

As to Certain Tariff Duties.

For some time past in almost every weekly issue of the American and the English trade journals of the iron and steel industry reference has been made to sales of American iron or steel products in England or in neutral markets which were formerly supplied by English manufacturers. We have directed attention to many of these sales during the last twelve months. They show that our manufacturers are selling in the English market wrought iron tubes, cast iron pipes, hoop iron, files, shears, saws, and wire for the English makers of screws. They also show that in Canada and some other neutral markets our manufacturers are overcoming or already have overcome the competition of the English in several important branches of the industry.

All of the products thus sold abroad—in England, the British colonies, or neutral markets—without the help of any protective duty, and sometimes under a considerable handicap of ocean freight charges, are protected here at home by duties which are high, even in the new tariff. These duties are needed, the followers of McKinley say, for the defense of the domestic manufacturer against sales in this country of English goods which the domestic manufacturer undersells in England itself.

Our neighbor, the New York Tribune, published a few days ago an article showing "how the great Pittsburg pipe mills are underbidding their competitors across the ocean." The transaction in question was the reported sale of 250 tons of wrought iron tubing in London by Pennsylvania manufacturers.

Our neighbor should explain why the present duties on wrought iron pipes (25 per cent.) and cast iron pipe ($13.44 per ton) are too low to afford adequate protection to the American manufacturer as against importations of wrought iron tubes and cast iron pipes into this country, and why the American manufacturer, who undersells his English competitor in South America, Canada, France, and England itself, needs to be protected here by any duty whatever.

We should like to know whether Gov. McKinley and those who agree with him would now, if they had the power to do so, increase the present duties on wrought iron tubes, cast iron pipe, hoop iron, galvanized iron, saws, files, boiler plate, tank plate, wire, and other iron or steel products which our manufacturers are selling abroad at prices which the English manufacturers cannot meet, as in Canada, where the English have already lost the greater part of their old trade, and even in England, with respect to some of these products. A glance at the statute will show that the present duties on these goods are high. Would Gov. McKinley and his party make them higher, and if so, why? Would they reduce them? Why not? Why is any part of them required, even from the point of view of the McKinley protectionist?—New York Times.

Afraid of Chinese Labor.

Great lamentations are going up now from the protectionists all over the land; 400,000,000 of slaves, they say, are to compete with our workingmen. China is to have open commerce with the rest of the world. Unless we increase the protection duties on Chinese products our workingmen will be forced to work for Chinese wages. The future looks blue to all disbelievers in trade and commerce.

It is true that according to the terms of peace with Japan five Chinese ports are to be opened to commerce and that Japan and other nations will be permitted to open cotton factories and other industries in China. But what will happen? Is modern progress and invention unable to compete with hand labor and antiquated methods? Not much! European and American goods will find big markets in China as soon as the Chinese have learned to make something to exchange for our goods—for, of course, it would be impossible for the Chinese to take our goods unless they had something to offer us that we desired in exchange.

We must take some product of theirs or they cannot take our goods. In any case, both we and they would benefit by an exchange of products. The Chinese would produce such articles as they are by nature best fitted to produce and we would do the same. They can produce rice very cheaply. We can produce machine-made goods more cheaply. We will exchange our sewing machines, clocks, stoves, shoes, tools, etc., for their rice, tea, silks, etc. Our mechanic will produce goods in one day that will exchange for as much rice or tea as will be represented by ten days' labor in China. He can by exchanging with the Chinese get more rice for one day's labor than he could get in any other way. The more rice he will take from the Chinese the more of his goods can the Chinese buy. This will make trade. It is not unlikely that our exports to China will increase from $5,000,000 a year, as at present, to $25,000,000 or $50,000,000 in ten or fifteen years.

Even supposing that after twenty or thirty years the Chinese should be able to manufacture a considerable portion of the cotton goods of the world, would we Americans be better or worse off because of the change? Would we not get our cotton fabrics much cheaper than now? Would not many more be employed in making something to exchange for these Chinese goods than were thrown out of employment because a part of our cotton industry had left us? We would certainly gain more than we would lose by such a change. It is natural and well that each individual and each nation should produce those things which he or it can most cheaply produce and get by exchange those things which he or it cannot produce most cheaply. Hence all barriers to commerce and trade—whether mountain ranges, Chinese walls, or tariff walls—are an obstruction to civilization and progress. The removal of any of these barriers makes life easier to millions of people on this globe. We need have no fear of competition with Chinese labor.

Immigration and the Tariff.

The New York Press is doing some tall calamity howling. It says that "two years of tariff reform have reversed the tide of immigration into the United States, which in one year had reached 730,000, and now our net gain in population from abroad for the last year is only 1,696. Our outgoing refugees from bad industrial conditions last year were 312,771 and our incoming immigrants were only 314,467."

This is indeed a bad showing, for which some party is responsible. It occurred, however, not under Democratic, but under Republican laws—the McKinley bill being in full force during the last fiscal year. Since the Wilson bill has been operative, wages have begun to rise—at first slowly, but now more rapidly—and the tide has turned toward this country. Canadian mill operatives who left New England by thousands during the dull McKinley-Sherman period of 1893-4 are now coming back in flocks.

The Press is correct in saying that "Nothing more clearly indicates the relative superiority of countries than the tide of immigration. It always flows toward the place of best opportunities for getting a living. A little more of tariff reform and the United States will be reduced below the water mark of Europe."

The fact that so many people were leaving this country for Europe in 1893-4 shows that, all things considered, wages reached the European level during the McKinley period. When wage earners considered the rate of wages, cost of living and opportunities for employment and enjoyment in Europe and America, they concluded that it was, in 1893-4, about "six of one to a half dozen of the other." There being no duty on either emigration or immigration in any country, labor is free to flow back and forth at will—which it has been doing. This fact serves to show what a farce tariffs are as a means of "protection to American labor." American labor has absolutely no protection (except the trouble and expense of crossing the ocean) from foreign labor; for, as the Press explains, the moment the "opportunities for getting a living" are better here than abroad, foreign labor begins to flow this way. Tariff duties are on goods and all the "protection" there is for any class goes to the manufacturers or producers of these goods. The case is very clear.

Women in Pittsburg Rolling Mills.

Protectionists who have found delight in pointing out the superior condition of American workingmen and in emphasizing the barbarity of employing women and children in the coal mines and iron works of Great Britain may be interested in this item, which has recently come from Pittsburg:

"Women as operatives in tinplate mills in America have proved a success in the large new plant of the Monongahela Tinplate Company, at South 15th street, the past week. Two weeks ago Mrs. Hattie Williams came to the manager of the Monongahela mill and asked for work because her husband was ill and could not support the family. Mrs. Williams was put to work separating plates as they came from the rolls, and so proficient was she that five young girls were given her as assistants, and she was made forewoman of that department. The company now proposes to put 100 girls and women at work in the mill within the next few weeks."

The impossibility of competing with Welsh tinplate manufacturers, with their low-priced labor and their women and children operatives, has been one of the stock arguments by which American manufacturers have supported their demand for a highly protective tariff on tinplate. With a duty that is equal to nearly 60 per cent. of the foreign cost of ordinary grades of tinplate and nearly 30 per cent. of the price in this country, the manufacture of tinplate has proved so alluring to protectionists with money to invest that already the cry of over-production is heard in the land. Now comes the descent to the lower plane of the much-despised Welsh manufacturers, and the employment of children in the mills is followed by the introduction of women in the sheet rolling mills. The Monongahela mill referred to in the paragraph above is essentially a protectionist enterprise, of which Henry W. Oliver is the president.—Philadelphia Record.

Give the Goose a Chance.

A good many workmen in different parts of the country, impatient at the delay in an increase of their wages, are threatening to strike.

As a friend to the workingmen in many times of their need, the World feels impelled to repeat the familiar laconic advice of Punch to those about to marry: "Don't."

There are unmistakable indications that the industrial goose is getting ready to lay golden eggs for labor. To strike now may not kill the goose, but it might frighten her from her benign purpose.

With wages rising on all sides, trade reviving and the wheels of industry humming again, it is inevitable that wages will advance in all lines where they are now too low. Competition—the demand for labor—will attend to that, with a little quiet and persistent effort by the labor unions.

But to inject the element of uncertainty and fear into the industrial situation at this time by threatening to strike would be very bad policy. Be patient a little longer. Give the goose a chance.—New York World.

Don't Sell Your Sheep Now.

Educated by events, some of the protectionist journals are now advising the farmers to hold on to their sheep. But we do not observe that they make any apology for their misleading and panic-breeding articles last year in which they advised the farmers to send their sheep post-haste to the shambles. The farmer who edits his farm on the strength of what he reads in the Republican newspapers is a man much to be pitied.—Philadelphia Record.

It is believed by microscopists that the highest powers of their instruments have not yet revealed the most minute forms of animal life.

NIAGARA FALLS EXCURSION!

Thursday, August 8, 1895.

—VIA THE—

Lake Erie & Western R. R.

"Natural Gas Route."

On Thursday, August 8, 1895, the Lake Erie & Western R.R. will run their popular annual excursion to Cleveland, Chautauqua Lake, Buffalo and Niagara Falls at following very low rates, viz.:

Peoria	$7 50	Fort Wayne	$5 00
Bloomington	7 00	Muncie	5 00
LaFayette	6 00	Connersville	5 00
Michigan City	6 00	Rushville	5 00
Indianapolis	5 00	New Castle	5 00
Tipton	5 00	Cambridge City	5 00
Lima	4 00	Fremont	4 00

Sandusky, $4 00.

With corresponding reductions from intermediate points.

In addition to the above, the purchasers of these tickets will be given privilege of special excursion side trips to Lewiston-on-the-Lake, including a steamboat ride on Lake Ontario, 25 cents. To Toronto and return by Lake from Lewiston $1.00; to Thousand Islands, $5.00. Tickets for the above side trips can be had when purchasing Niagara Falls ticket, or at any time on train.

Besides the above privileges with that of spending Sunday at the Falls, we will furnish all those who desire a side trip from Brockton Junction to Chautauqua Lake and return FREE OF CHARGE.

Tickets of admission to places of special interest at or near Niagara Falls, but outside the reservation, including toll over the International Bridge to the Canadian side, elevators to the water's edge at Whirlpool Rapids on the Canadian side, will be offered on train at a reduction from prices charged after reaching the Falls.

Do not miss this opportunity to spend Sunday at Niagara Falls. The excursion train will arrive at Niagara Falls 7.00 A. M. Friday, August 9, 1895, and will leave the Falls returning Sunday morning, August 11, at 6 o'clock, stopping at Cleveland Sunday afternoon, giving an opportunity to visit the magnificent monument of the late President Garfield, and many other interesting points.

Tickets will be good, however, to return on regular trains leaving the Falls Saturday, August 10, for those not desiring to remain over. Tickets will also be good returning on all regular trains up to and including Tuesday, August 13, 1895. SECURE YOUR TICKETS, ALSO CHAIR AND SLEEPING CAR ACCOMMODATIONS, early. Those desiring can secure accommodations in these cars while at the Falls. For further information call on any agent Lake Erie & Western R. R. or address.

C. F. DALY, Gen. Pass Agent, Indianapolis Ind.

•HORSEMEN•

SAVE YOUR STOCK BY USING THE CELEBRATED

Morris' English Stable Powder
For Loss of Appetite, Constipation, Rough Hair, Hide Bound, and all Diseases of the Blood. Price, 25c. per package.

Morris' English Stable Liniment
Cures Lameness, Cuts, Bruises, Scratches, Galls, Sweeney, Spavins, Splint, Curb, etc. Price, 50c. per bottle.

Morris' English Worm Powder
Warranted to cure any case of Worms in Horses, Cattle, Sheep or Dogs, also Pin Worms in Colts. Price, 50c. per box.

Craft's Distemper and Cough Cure
A Specific for Distemper, Coughs, Colds, Heaves, Pink Eye, and all Catarrhal diseases of horses. Price, 50c. $1.00 per bottle.

Wells' Hoosier Poultry Powder
Makes Hens lay, cures Cholera, Gapes and Roup, and keeps poultry healthy. Price, 25c. per package.

Every remedy guaranteed satisfactory or money refunded. Our new book, "The Horse: His Diseases and Treatment," mailed free.

Wells Medicine Co., Lafayette, Ind.

BE A MAN

Ajax Tablets

have cured thousands and will cure you if you are suffering from Loss of Vigor, Impotence, Sterility, Seminal Weakness or any of the other effects of Self-Abuse or excesses of early life. We give positive Written Guarantee to effect a cure in each case or to refund money in case of failure. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Sent prepaid upon receipt of price. Send for free circular. Address

AJAX REMEDY CO.,
79 Dearborn Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

TOWER'S SURFACE.... CULTIVATOR

IS THE PIONEER OF ITS CLASS,

And as now perfected

Can not be equalled for Corn, Potatoes, Cabbage and Tobacco Culture.

IT IS A PERFECT ERADICATOR

Of Morning Glories, Cockleburrs, Barn Grass and other noxious Weeds.

EQUALLY AS EFFICIENT

IN WET AS IN DRY SEASONS.

All the Agricultural Experiment Stations in the country have decided in favor of surface culture, and all of them who have tested it, have decided in favor of the Tower Hoe Cultivator for that purpose.

Manufactured by

J. D. TOWER & BRO.,
MENDOTA, ILL.

SUBSCRIBE

FOR THE

COURIER.

That Tired Feeling

It is remarkable how many people there are who have That Tired Feeling and seem to think it is of no importance or that nothing need be done for it. They would not be so careless if they realized how really serious the malady is. But they think or say "It will go off after a while."

We do not mean the legitimate weariness which all experience after a hard day's work, but that all-gone, worn-out feeling which is especially overpowering in the morning, when the body should be refreshed and ready for work. It is often only the forerunner of nervous prostration, with all the horrible suffering that term implies. That Tired Feeling and nervousness are sure indications of an impure and impoverished condition of the blood. The craving of the system for help can only be met by purifying the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the one great blood purifier. It expels all impurities, gives vitality and strength, regulates the digestion, and makes the weak strong.

"In the spring I felt very much run down—no strength or appetite. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and my appetite improved and I did not have that tired feeling." H. R. SQUIRES, East Leverett, Massachusetts.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Makes Pure Blood

Good Idea.

Every man living on any public highway should have his name displayed in some prominent place on the house, front gate, or fence, where it can be seen and read from the road. My attention was called to this a few years ago when having occasion to summon a physician. He knew me and knew what pike I lived on, but did not know which house, and drove one mile past my house. Had my name been on my house it would have saved him a two-mile drive, loss of time and annoyance. I resolved it should not occur again, and soon a board on the front gate announced who lived there. It was criticised a great deal, some saying, "He wants everybody to know who lives their." I did not want everybody to know, but I did those who wanted to know who lived there. It was a subject of ridicule for some time, but now has dozens of imitators.—Stockman.

MERITED REWARD.

SALES OF LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND.

Unequalled in the History of Medicine. Honesty, Excellence, Faithfulness Fitly Rewarded.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

Never in the history of medicine has the demand for one particular remedy for female diseases equalled that attained by Lydia E. Pinkhams Vegetable Compound and never in the history of Mrs. Pinkhams wonderful Compound has the demand for it been so great as it is today. From Maine to California, from the Gulf to the St. Lawrence, come the glad tidings of woman's suffering relieved by it; and thousands upon thousands of letters are pouring in from grateful women, saying that it WILL and does positively cure those painful Ailments of Women.

It will cure the worst forms of female complaints, all ovarian troubles, inflammation and ulceration, falling and displacements of the womb, and consequent spinal weakness, and is peculiarly adapted to the change of life.

Every time it will cure

Backache.

It has cured more cases of leucorrhœa by removing the cause, than any remedy the world has ever known; it is almost infallible in such cases. It dissolves and expels tumors from the uterus in an early stage of development, and checks any tendency to cancerous humors.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills work in unison with the Compound, and are a sure cure for constipation and sick-headache. Mrs. Pinkham's Sanative Wash is frequently found of great value for local application. Correspondence is freely solicited by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., and the strictest confidence assured. All druggists sell the Pinkham's remedies. The Vegetable Compound in three forms, — Liquid, Pills, and Lozenges.

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Age.

KENNEDY'S MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

DONALD KENNEDY, OF ROXBURY, MASS.,

Has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures every kind of Humor, from the worst Scrofula down to a common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases (both thunder humor). He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston. Send postal card for book.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the right quantity is taken.

When the lungs are affected it causes shooting pains, like needles passing through them; the same with the Liver or Bowels. This is caused by the ducts being stopped, and always disappears in a week after taking it. Read the label.

If the stomach is foul or bilious it will cause squeamish feelings at first.

No change of diet ever necessary. Eat the best you can get, and enough of it. Dose, one tablespoonful in water at bedtime. Sold by all Druggists.

A Busy Man.

He was a big, strong, healthy-looking fellow, and when he knocked at a kitchen door on Antoine street and asked for something to eat, the woman was not charitably disposed.

"Want something to eat, do you?" she snapped.

"I am very hungry, ma'am, he responded.

"You ought to be."

"I am," he admitted, humbly.

"Why don't you go to work?"

"I haven't time, ma'am.

"Haven't time?" she asked in surprise.

"No, ma'am, I'm busy."

"Busy, indeed!" she said, sarcastically. "I'd like to know what keeps you busy?"

"Hustlin' around from house to house ma'am."

"What?"

"Hustlin' around from house to house, ma'am, tryin' to git something to eat, takes up all my time, so I don't have any left to work in. That's the gospel truth, ma'am, and if you don't give me a bite, I'll have to waste two er three precious hours, ma'am, lookin' up somebody that will," and his nerve saved him.—Detroit Free Press.

Richer Feed for Holstein Cows.

It seems to be generally conceded that the Jersey and Guernsey cows give richer milk than the average of Holsteins and other breeds that have larger frames. But there is great difference in the character of milk given by the larger breeds of cows. It is, perhaps, in part due to difference in feeding, and in part is hereditary. If more rich foods were given to Holsteins, they also will increase the proportion of butter fats in their milk. The first calf of any cow is apt, if a heifer, to give rich milk. Its dam while bearing it has had to provide for some growth of her own frame and for that of her foetus. The fat in the milk is not required for this. Heifers' milk is usually rich in fats and poor in casein, or the nutrition that makes strength, bone and muscle. The heifer's milk is deficient in quantity, and it is better for making butter than for cheese making.

Now It Is Different.

A very pretty young girl was sitting in a Colerain avenue car the other day. At a corner there jumped on a young man evidently a bill collector on his rounds.

"Why, Nellie," said he, "where have you been so long?"

"Home," said Nellie demurely.

"Thought you was hammering same old typewriter for Plunk & Plunk."

"Well, I ain't."

"What are you doing?"

"I'm married."

"Married!" exclaimed the youth "Who'd you marry?"

"Horace Plunk."

The face of the youth grew blank. "I can't see what you married him for."

Nellie blushed and then dimpled into an amused smile. "I got tired of having him dictate to me."—Cincinnati Tribune.

Wanted a Pleasant Expression

Mr. Grumps—Good morning. Do you take pictures by the instantaneous process?

Photographer—Yes, sir.

Mr. Grumps—Well, this is Mrs. Grumps, my wife, you know. I want her picture taken.

Photographer—Certainly. But are you particular about having it instantaneous?

Mr. Grumps—Of course. When you get things ready, tell her to look pleasant, and then snap off the machine before the expression fades away. You've gotter be quick'n lightning.—New York Weekly.

A Poisonous Mist.

This fitly describes miasma, a vaporous poison which breeds chills and fever, bilious remittent, dumb ague, ague cake, and in the tropics deadly typhoid forms of fever. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters prevents and cures these complaints. Biliousness, constipation, dyspepsia, nervous and kidney trouble, rheumatism, neuralgia and impaired vitality are also remedied by the great restorative.

Forty Years Ago in Chicago.

A line of omnibuses ran from the Lake street bridge to State street, thence south to Ulrich's Hotel on Ringgold place—now Twenty-second street. There was a newspaper printed in those days called the Young America, the plant of which was the foundation later of the Chicago Times, and there was another paper printed in those days near Thirty-sixth street called the Rising Generation.

Freshness and purity are communicated to the complexion by Glenn's Sulphur Soap.

"Hill's Hair and Whisker Dye," Black or Brown, 50c.

If you have Rheumatism

Or any other pain, you don't take chances with St. Jacobs Oil, for twenty years ago it began to kill pain, and it's been pain-killing ever since.

"A Fair Face Cannot Atone for An Untidy House." Use SAPOLIO

HUMOR OF THE WEEK

STORIES TOLD BY FUNNY MEN OF THE PRESS.

Odd, Curious and Laughable Phases of Human Nature Graphically Portrayed by Eminent Word Artists of Our Own Day—A Budget of Fun.

Sprinkles of Spice.

"Don't you think the man who marries for money is a fool?" "He is, unless he gets it in advance."—Indianapolis Journal.

Fuddy—The villain! But you made him swallow his words?" Duddy—How could I, when they were so bitter?—Boston Transcript.

"Want any mouse traps? Come buy one, do!" "No, thanks; we have no mice." "Ach, I'll throw 'em in with pleasure!"—Humoristisches.

In the Gloaming.—She (pointing at at a star)—Ah, there is Orion. Voice (from the darkness)—Yez are mistaken, mum, it's O'Reilly.—Life.

Wool—I don't see how a dealer can afford to iron all the silk hats he sells Van Pelt—Has to do it; they'd last too long if he didn't.—Harlem Life.

"Beg pardon, but what did you say was the name of your Kentucky friend?" "Col. Vandewater." "Col. Vande—what?"—Cincinnati Tribune.

Jaggers (weakly facetious)—Th—think I was a burglar, m' dear? Mrs. Jaggers—No! A burglar wouldn't have taken half the time to get in!—Life.

Blobbs—What's the difference between gloves and policemen? Slobbs—Give it up. Blobbs—Well, gloves are usually on hand.—Philadelphia Record.

Miss McFlirter—I have refused seven offers of marriage since last season. Miss C. Vere—Quite a sleight-of-hand performer, aren't you?—New York Ledger.

Wife—Mrs. Aller has gone abroad to be treated by a Parisian physician. Husband—So? She always had a predilection for French heels.—Boston Transcript.

"Why do you punch that hole in my ticket?" asked a little man of the railroad conductor. "So you can pass through," was the reply.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

"I see you have a safe in your dining-room," said Perkins, who was visiting Jarley. "Is that for your liver?" "No; that's my wine-cellar," said Jarley.—Harper's Bazar.

Mrs. Kicksey—Why do you suppose the high hat is making so much trouble? Kicksey—Because there's a woman at the bottom of it, of course.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"Jinkins, I believe you have some of the elements of a success about you." "Not a dollar, old man. Honor bright. You'd be welcome to it if I had."—Chicago Tribune.

"Will you have the chicken dressed?" asked the poulterer. "No," replied young Mrs. Hunnimune; "you may send it to me—er—in the altogether."—Washington Star.

First Actor—What, don't you like this play? I know one man, now, who thinks it is simply great. Second Actor—Who is that? First Actor—The author.—Somerville Journal.

Prospective Tenant (to agent)—You say this house is just a stone's throw from the depot. Well, all I have to say is I have great admiration for the man who threw the stone.—Life.

"Yes," remarked the telephone girl as she gazed out at the waves and wondered what their number was, "I am connected with the best families in our city."—Indianapolis Sentinel.

Bouncing lawyer—"Then you are prepared to swear that the parties came to high words?" Coster witness—"Nay. I didna say that. I should say they was particularly low words."—Sheffield Week.

"Don't you think that a good many of these Easter bonnet jokes are overdrawn?" she inquired. "Yes," replied her cheerless husband; "and a good many bank accounts."—Washington Star.

Johnny Smart—"There's a big difference between my teacher and a streak of lightning." Mrs. Smart—"How so, son?" Johnny Smart—"He strikes several times in the same place."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

She—"I think there is considerable room for improvement in ladies' dresses nowadays." He—"Well, in the sleeves especially, I should say there was room enough for almost anything."—Yonkers Statesman.

Professor—"To what did Xenophon owe his reputation?" Student—"Principally to the fact that his name commenced with X, and came in so handy for headlines in alphabetical copy books."—Pearson's Weekly.

Mrs. Gray (to friend who has been to the prayer meeting)—"Did you have a good meeting?" Mrs. White—"Rather uninteresting. None of the men who spoke had ever done anything bad."—Boston Transcript.

Julia—"Do you consider Mr. Nippy a mean man?" Nellie—"Mean? Not only mean, but cowardly. Why, he never will take a seat in a street car for fear he will have to give it up to some woman."—Boston Transcript.

Hoax—"I see they have a new name for those high buildings which are being erected." Joax—"Indeed? What is it?" Hoax—"They are called serial buildings, because they are continued stories."—Philadelphia Ledger.

"My mother-in-law never understands a joke," says a correspondent. "So I was surprised to receive a letter from her a few weeks after my little boy had swallowed a farthing, in which the last words were, 'Has Ernest gotten over his financial difficulties yet?'"—Tid-Bits.

A Millionaire Anarchist.

There was a millionaire among the anarchists recently expelled by the Federal Council of Switzerland. He was an Italian, named Borghetti, and a temporary resident at Lugano, the great anarchist center in Europe. Borghetti is only 25 years old. He dressed very simply, but kept open house for his fellow-revolutionists, who frequently had recourse also to his purse. Borghetti's father, who did not share the anti-patriotic and anarchistic ideas of his son, used to hoist the Italian flag on national occasions, but young Borghetti promptly replaced it with the red banner of the revolutionists.

SINGS FOR THE PHONOGRAPHS.

Chicago Man Who Makes $50 a Day by Stretching His Lungs.

Away out in the extreme northwestern part of the city, near the Milwaukee Railroad tracks, Silas Leachman puts in four or five hours every day singing at the top of his lungs, though not a soul is in hearing but his wife. When he gets tired of singing he varies the proceedings by preaching a negro sermon, or gives an imitation of an Irish wake, and altogether conducts himself in a way that would lead the neighbors to consider him a fit subject for a lunatic asylum—if there were any neighbors, but there are not. This is the very reason Mr. Leachman chose the lonely spot for his residence. No one ever goes out there to hear him sing, and yet he is getting rich at it. He earns something over $50 every day, though he never sees one of his auditors. Mr. Leachman sings for phonographs, and as he has a monopoly of the business in the West, he contrives to keep busy, and has even been heard to express a wish that he were twins. He has better protection in his monopoly than a copyright or an injunction, or unlimited legal talent could afford. Nature gave him the peculiar qualities that enable him to reproduce his voice perfectly on the wax cylinders. Hundreds of persons have attempted to break in on his profitable monopoly, but the results of their efforts put an effectual stop to their attempts. And so Mr. Leachman goes on enjoying the monopoly and reaping the profits thereof.

There are four other men in the East that also do work for the phonograph, but while they have to have a man to play the piano while they sing, another to make the announcement, another to change the cylinders, and a fourth to keep the machines in order, Mr. Leachman is the entire show in himself. Furthermore, he can give an unlimited number of impersonations, while the other four men are limited to a few specialties each. He sings ballads, negro melodies, and Irish, Chinese and Dutch dialect songs. He plays his own accompaniment on the piano and takes care of the machines. He prepares three "records," as the wax cylinders are called, at one time. To do this three phonographs are placed near the piano with the horns at one side pointing away from the keyboard at an angle of 45 degrees. The horns have to be placed very carefully, for a fifth of an inch makes a great difference in the one the cylinders will reproduce.

When the horns have been adjusted exactly right Mr. Leachman seats himself at the piano and, turning his head away over his right shoulder, begins to sing as loud as he can, and that is pretty loud, for he is a man of powerful physique, and has been practicing loud singing for four years. He has been doing this work until his thoat has become calloused so that he no longer becomes exhausted after singing a short time. As soon as he has finished one song he slips off the wax cylinders, puts on three fresh ones without leaving his seat, and goes right on singing until a passing train compels him to stop for a short time. In the four years he has been in the business he has made nearly 250,000 records. So great is the demand for them that he cannot fill his orders. It is such exceedingly hard work that he cannot sing more than four hours a day. He gets 37½ cents for every cylinder he prepares. He has a repertoire of 420 pieces, and his work is put on the market under a score of names. He has a remarkable memory, and after once hearing a song cannot only repeat the words and music correctly, but he can imitate excellently the voice and expression of the singer.—Chicago Tribune.

TALE WITH A MORAL.

The Evil of Following a Bad Example.

—New York World.

Of the Sheep-Stinger.

Among the animals found in the great upland plains of South Africa known as the Karroo, none are so much dreaded as the poisonous snakes. There is one snake so prettily colored, a coral red being the most prominent of the colors, that it is hard to think of it as venomous. And yet this small creature kills so many sheep that the Dutch Boers, or farmers, call it the "sheep-stinger."

"Good Enough for the Boys."

Did you ever go to the house of some friend or acquaintance who was the happy possessor of sons and daughters and look at their respective rooms? First you came to the girls' rooms, dainty white spreads, pretty curtains harmonious colors, delicate hangihgs of all kinds. And then you went a floor higher and saw the "boys' room" Of couse you didn't come away and tell all you saw, because that would be a piece of ill-breeding that every one knows you would not be guilty of, for a moment, but all the same you saw the battered bureau, the cracked glass, the three-legged chair and the faded worn carpet; and you heart ached that no one had tried to put any beauty into the surroundings of those boys. You had heard the mother's argument that "boys spoiled things so, and didn't think it manly to care for pretty things, any way," but you knew all the time that if those other boys had been brought up as yours had, a love of the beautiful and appropriate would have been early instilled into them, and they would have liked their own clean white spreads too well to put their muddy boots and their fishing tackle on the bed. And they would have learned habits of neatness and care early in life, that nothing else would instill.—Leisure Hours.

SAVED FROM NICOTINE

Little Charley Fogleman Used Tobacco Since Babyhood, and His Father Smoked and Chewed for the Past Twenty Years—Both Set Free at Asheville, N. C.

"Is that true?" asked the News man at Pelham's Pharmacy, as he laid down a letter in the presence of a dozen interested customers.

"Yes, it is. It was written here on one of our letter heads, and signed by J. C. Fogleman," promptly answered the proprietor.

"You know him, don't you?"

"Certainly; he lives at No. 5 Buxton street. We all know Fogleman is a man of his word."

"I am glad to hear it. There are so many misleading statements published nowadays that when this came in this morning's mail I came right over to ask you about it. I read the letter three times, but you read it, and you will agree with me that it is almost too good to be true." This is what the letter said:

"Office of Pelham's Pharmacy, 24 Patton avenue, Asheville, N. C., Sept. 12, 1894. Gentlemen—My little boy, now 8 years, began chewing tobacco when three years old by the advice of our family physician, in the place of stronger stimulants. Four or five weeks ago I began giving him No-To-Bac, which I bought at Pelham's Pharmacy, and, to my great surprise, and, it is needless to say, my delight, No-To-Bac completely cured him. He does not seem to care for tobacco and is very much improved in health, eats heartily and has a much better color.

"Finding such remarkable results from the use of No-To-Bac I began myself, and it cured me, after using tobacco, in all its various forms, for a period of twenty years.

"I take pleasure in making this plain statement of facts for the benefit of others." (Signed) J. C. FOGLEMAN."

"Yes, I know it's a fact, and its one of the strongest, truthful testimonials I ever read—and it's true, for I sold him the No-To-Bac."

"What's that?" asked Chief of Police Hawkins, whose manly form attired in the new police uniform, like Solomon in all his glory, came to the door.

"Why, No-To-Bac cures!"

"Cures? Why, I should say so. I have used it myself. It cured me."

"Would you object to making a statement of the fact for publication?"

"Certainly not," and the Chief wrote as follows:

"Asheville, N. C., Sept. 25, 1894. Pelham Pharmacy—I bought one box of No-To-Bac from you some time since. After using No-To-Bac I found I had lost the desire for tobacco. I was cured.

"I have used tobacco—chiefly chewing—for eight (8) or ten (10) years.

"H. S. HAWKINS."

Everybody looked astonished and wondered what would next turn up.

"Suppose it don't cure?" some one asked. "Then they do the right thing when No-To-Bac won't cure." "What's that?" asked the News man. "Every druggist in America is authorized to sell No-To-Bac under an absolute guarantee to cure or money refunded. No-To-Bac is made by the Sterling Remedy Co., general offices in Chicago, Montreal and New York, and their laboratory is at Indiana Mineral Springs, Indiana, a big health resort they own, it's the place where they give Mud Baths for rheumatism and skin diseases. You ought to know the president, Mr. A. L. Thomas, of Lord & Thomas, of Chicago." "Yes, of course I do. We get business from them right along, and they are as good as gold. Well, give me their advertising books, and I will make a statement in the paper about what you have told me, for I know there are thousands of good North Carolina people who are tobacco spitting and smoking their lives away, and No-To-Bac is an easy guaranteed cure and they ought to know it."

Too Thirsty to Talk.

"I notice that your husband has never much to say in the morning when he has been out late at night," said the wife's mother.

"No," was the reply of the wife, "he's mum then, extra dry."—New York Press.

WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION

Will be of value to the world by illustrating the improvements in the mechanical arts and eminent physicians will tell you that the progress in medicinal agents, has been of equal importance, and as a strengthening laxative that Syrup of Figs is far in advance of all others.

Paper Pipes.

The making of water pipes out of paper pulp is said to have met with great success. It is claimed that they are as durable as iron, and the process of moulding them is about the same in both cases.

Hall's Catarrh Cure

Is a constitutional cure. Price 75 cents.

ARABIA was so called from its inhabitants, the Arabs.

NATIONAL EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION MEETING.

Denver, Colo., July 5 to 12, 1895.

For this occasion the Wabash Railroad has made a rate of one fare for the round trip to Denver plus $2.00, added for membership fee.

For full particulars in regard to this meeting, time of trains, rates, route, etc., call upon or write to any representative of the Wabash R. R., or connecting lines, or

C. S. CRANE,
Gen'l Pass. & Tkt. Agt.,
Wabash R. R.,
St. Louis, Mo.

WHEN a woman sends her subscription to The Ladies' Home Journal special privileges seems to go with it, besides getting her full money's worth in the magazine. She can take the fullest advantage of a perfect educational plan by which she can educate her daughters or sons at the best colleges in the country free of charge, and now the Journal has arranged it so that she can buy her books—even a single book at a time—at prices heretofore obtained only by large buyers. There comes to us from this magazine a very artistically gotten-up illustrated booklet of over 250 pages, called "5,000 Books," which serves as an easy guide to the best books in any department of reading. This guide is very well done. The best literary experts of New York, Boston, and Philadelphia were engaged by the Journal to select the five thousand books which it presents as the most desirable for a home library, and their work has been admirably carried out. Very clear, explanatory comments are given by these men of books, and besides there are given not less than 160 portraits of leading authors. No book will, perhaps, do so much to extend good reading as this guide, so carefully gotten up, so beautifully printed, and so generously offered, free of charge, by the publishers of The Ladies' Home Journal.

One Gives Relief.

It is so easy to be mistaken about indigestion, and think there is some other trouble. The cure is Ripans Tabules. One tabule gives relief. Ask any druggist.

SOME men are like sparrows, they never get high enough to cease being nuisances.

PISO'S Cure for Consumption has no equal as a Cough medicine.—F. M. ABBOTT, 383 Seneca St., Buffalo, New York, May 9, 1893.

THERE are many men who are afraid of ghosts who have no fear of spirits.

RATES are offered on the certificate plan by agents of the Nickel Plate road to Springfield, Mass., and Hartford, Conn., May 8th to 16th, account Southern Baptist Association.

MOLDAVIA took its name from the River Moldau.

Dr. PIERCE'S FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION FOR WEAK WOMEN.

On first introducing this world-famed medicine to the afflicted, and for many years thereafter, it was sold under a Positive Guarantee of giving entire satisfaction in every case for which it is recommended. So uniformly successful did it prove in curing the diseases, derangements and weaknesses of women that claims for the return of money paid for it were exceedingly rare. Since its manufacturers can now point to thousands of noted cures effected by it in every part of the land, they believe its past record a sufficient guarantee of its great value as a curative agent, therefore, they now rest its claims to the confidence of the afflicted solely upon that record. By all medicine dealers.

BEST IN THE WORLD.

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH. For durability and for cheapness this preparation is truly unrivalled.

THE RISING SUN STOVE POLISH, in cakes for general blacking of a stove.

THE SUN PASTE POLISH for a quick after-dinner shine, applied and polished with a cloth.

Morse Bros. Props., Canton, Mass., U.S.A.

McELREES WINE OF CARDUI.

For Female Diseases.

Good Scheme.

To Guard against poisoning a law has been passed in Germany that all drugs intended for internal use must be put in round bottles, and those which are only used externally must be placed in hexagonal bottles.

THE rearrangement of the dining cars on the Nickel Plate road provides breakfast and dinner on the New York and Boston Express No. 2 eastbound, breakfast and dinner on the Fast Western Express No. 5, and dinner on No. 6. This newly established service not only accommodates the through passengers of that line more satisfactorily, but provides a better arrange for its local patrons.

WHO is dumb? He who does not know how to say kind things at the proper time.

FRIENDS' ROLLED OATS

ALWAYS THE BEST. DAILY SALES 80,000 lbs.

FRIENDS' ROLLED OATS

★ ASK YOUR DRUGGIST FOR ★ IMPERIAL GRANUM IT IS ★ THE BEST ★ FOOD FOR NURSING MOTHERS, INFANTS, AND CHILDREN

★ JOHN CARLE & SONS, New York. ★

Beecham's pills are for biliousness, sick headache, dizziness, dyspepsia, bad taste in the mouth, heartburn, torpid liver, foul breath, sallow skin, coated tongue, pimples loss of appetite, etc., when caused by constipation; and constipation is the most frequent cause of all of them.

One of the most important things for everybody to learn is that constipation causes more than half the sickness in the world, especially of women; and it can all be prevented. Go by the book, free at your druggist's, or write B.F. Allen Co., 365 Canal St., New York. Pills, 10¢ and 25¢ a box.

Annual sales more than 6,000,000 boxes.

W. L. DOUGLAS $3 SHOE IS THE BEST. FIT FOR A KING.

$5. CORDOVAN, FRENCH & ENAMELLED CALF. $4.$3.50 FINE CALF & KANGAROO. $3.89 POLICE, 3 SOLES. $2.50 $2. WORKINGMEN'S. EXTRA FINE. $2. $1.75 BOYS' SCHOOL SHOES. LADIES. $3. $2.50 $2. $1.75 BEST DONGOLA. SEND FOR CATALOGUE. W. L. DOUGLAS, BROCKTON, MASS.

Over One Million People wear the W. L. Douglas $3 & $4 Shoes. All our shoes are equally satisfactory. They give the best value for the money. They equal custom shoes in style and fit. Their wearing qualities are unsurpassed. The prices are uniform,—stamped on sole. From $1 to $3 saved over other makes. If your dealer cannot supply you we can.

TAPE-WORM Expelled with head. Sure Cure within 2 hours. No inconvenience. One dose, price $1, guaranteed sufficient. GUARANI REMEDY CO., Dolgeville, N. Y.

PATENTS. TRADE-MARKS. Examination and Advice as to Patentability of Invention. Send for Inventors' Guide, or How to Get a Patent. PATRICK O'FARRELL, Washington, D. C.

PATENTS Thomas P. Simpson, Washington, D. C. No att'y fee until Patent obtained. Write for Inventor's Guide.

Mrs. Winslow's SOOTHING SYRUP for Children teething; softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

When Writing to Advertisers, say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

Say,
Do
You
Know
That you
Can Buy
At Cost,
Any Pair of Ladies,
Misses
Or Children's Shoes
And Slippers
At the GLOBE CLOTHING
and SHOE COMPANY.
It's a
Fact!
Try
It.

STILL WE LEAD With a nice line of Watches, Clocks, Jewelry Silverware, Spectacles Gold Pins, Musical Instruments, etc. All kinds of Machine Needles Best Oil,

SPECIAL and PERSONAL attention given to REPAIRING by Mr. Yesbera.

BICYCLES promptly Repaired by W. C. Champion.

SEWING MACHINES put in first-class order by R. A. York

First goods and first-class workmen you will find at

F. J. YESBERA'S

Jewelry Store, Auburn Ind

R. SHULL'S

CASH SHOE STORE

Is now located in the

KIBLINGER BUILDING

where a

Large Line

OF

BOOTS AND SHOES

May be Found.

THE AUBURN COURIER

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY.

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, post-office as second-class matter.

THURSDAY,.....MAY 9, 1895.

FRANCIS SCOTT KEY, the author of Star Spangled Banner is buried in Frederick, Md. He will soon have a monument.

LATEST as to Nicaragua is that the British have agreed to withdraw their fleet now in the harbor of Corinto, if Nicaragua will pay the cash damages asked for, in two weeks.

MANY reports from the terrible cyclone that swept over Northwestern Iowa, last Friday, state that the loss of life was about 50 and not 200 as at first reported

THE HUNTINGTON DEMOCRAT reports twenty-four corporations in that county that will have to pay income tax, and believes there will be several individuals who will come under the law also.

J. OSCAR HENDERSON, recently State Auditor wants to buy the Indianapolis Sentinal, and may be will succeed. He is an able newspaper man, he and his brother H. E. Henderson, having for some years published the Kokomo Dispatch.

MIXED.

THE ELECTION FAVORED THREE DEMOCRATS AND TWO REPUBLICANS.

As foreseen by many, the election yesterday was a mixed affair. It apparently became a mere matter of personal friendship or preference, politics appearing not to cut much of a figure.

The following shows the vote by precincts:

FOR MARSHAL.

	No.	Mid.	So.	Total	Maj.
G. A. Mader, d	93	103	109	305
John West r	75	125	118	318	13
CLERK.
M. Husselman d	83	119	131	325	51
Joseph Grover, r	81	105	96	282
TREASURER.
C. H. G. Jones, d	76	118	124	318	32
A. C. Robbins, r	85	107	94	286
TRUSTEE SECOND WARD.
L. J. Miller, d	88	108	125	321	30
Wm. Rakestraw r	76	116	99	291
TRUSTEE FIFTH WARD.
Sam. D. Hanna, d	78	88	90	256
Silas S. Potter, r	85	135	134	354	93

From this it will be seen that the total vote cast ran a little over 600. As a large number of voters are known to have staid away, it is plain that our total vote is much greater than ever before.

At Waterloo was also mixed. Ab. Kelley, democrat, was elected as one of the trustees, but there was a tie vote on treasurer. The other offices went to the republicans.

A GOOD WALKER.

(Columbia City Daily Commercial)

While at Pittsburg depot this afternoon we talked to a gentleman by the name of C. H. Watson who is walking from San Francisco to New York in 175 days or less for $3,500 and a diamond medal and the championship long distance walker in the world given by Richard Fox in the Police Gazette, of New York. The best record ever made is 180 days and was made about a year ago. Mr. Watson is a member of the California Athletic Club and started from San Francisco, December 22, 1895, and must be in New York City, June 15. He is going by the way of Portland, Oregon. Northern Pacific railroad and the Pennsylvania lines, and is walking by these roads. He never leaves a depot when a train is in. He waits until after the train leaves so the agent and operator can see that he does not ride. He has 44 days in which to make New York and averages about thirty miles a day, the longest distance traveled in one day being 56 miles. He started without a cent and is not to have a dollar in his pocket at one time. He says he will go into New York one day ahead of time.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Adopted by the K. P. Lodge of Spencerville, Ind., on the death of Granville Erick.

Since it has pleased Almighty God in His Alwise Providence to remove our dear beloved brother

Resolved, That although he has been taken away from us in the midst of his usefulness. We will bow in humble submission to Him who doeth all things well. For His mercies are everlasting and eternal.

Resolved, That we extend our sincere sympathy to the wife and friends who are bereft of a dear companion, son and brother.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be printed in the St. Joe News and Auburn COURIER, also a copy be tendered the bereft wife and family.

Com. { DR. N. J. SHOOK
E. U. BEAMS.

Derthick Killed.

Word was received by Wm. Derthick Friday that his brother Frank, who was in jail for stealing at Waterloo and was sentenced to 90 days labor on the county farm, was killed between Cleveland and Akron, O. He did not work out his sentence at the county farm but skipped out one night. He informed Sheriff Stroh that he wanted to go to Akron and it is supposed that he was dead-beating his way and fell from the train.

OLD BIBLE.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Eckhart were up to Waterloo Sunday and visited Mr. and Mrs Geo. Walker, Mrs. Walker being his aunt. They were shown an old and interesting bible, a keepsake which Mrs Walker's parents brought over from Germany. They came to this contry in 1833 and its wooden cover is stained with the salt water splashed over it in a hard storm they encountered on the trip. The book was printed in 1747, and is of course highly prized as a family heirloom.

BURGLRD.

The Ward School House Gets It This Time, and as Usual, no Clue.

Chris. Fell, who is one of the election sheriffs in the north precinct came to his work quite early and happened to notice a pile of leaves at a point near the water closet. There was something about the way the leaves were piled up, that attracted his attention, and he went there and opened the pile. He found a lot of pens, pencils and other material that evidently belonged to the school. There were seventeen pencils and eleven pens, each kind carefully tied up in a bundle by itself. He took the articles into the school house when the teacher Miss Ettinger arrived, and showed them to her. She at first thought they could not belong there, but on examination, declared the building had been broken into and the pencils and pens of the pupils which are kept in a box, had been taken, together with some crayon and other things. Just what anyone would want to take these things for is a puzzle. Some people will steal for pure meanness.

SNAIKS.

A HOOSIER ST. PATRICK GREATLY NEEDED OUT EAST OF AUBURN.

Reports come to the DAILY COURIER that a few miles east of town is a sort of Paradise for rattlesnakes. It was generally supposed that when the country was cleared up, and especially the low grounds, that the rattlesnakes had moved west to grow up with the country. Such, however, does not seem to be the case. The farm that J. G. Stonebreaker got of Lyman Lockwood seems to be the favored spot. Mr. Smith who used to live here is now in charge out there and reports near 30 of the rattlers killed in one day last week. It is possible that the universally dry season accounts for it. St. Patrick could get a job out there of driving them out.

FINE BUGGY.

Charles Eckhart, of the Eckhart Carriage Co., has a new buggy of a kind never seen here before. It has has rubber tires, what are called "cushion" tires which are held in place partly by tension and partly by a flanged rim of iron put on the wheel like an ordinary iron tire. This makes it run without noise or jar. It also has "ball bearings" which arrangement reduces the work for the horse. It has a canopy top, put up on one standard. Altogether it is a new and greatly improved rig.

GET THIS.

Two men hire out to dig a ditch 100 rods long for $100. They divide up so as to each receive $50. One end is harder to dig than the other so they make an agreement to divide up the work. One digs the easy end for 75c per rod and the other digs the other end for $1.25 per rod. How many rods did each dig?

CHEAP EXCURSIONS TO THE WEST.

On May 21st and June 11th, The North-Western Line (Chicago & North-Western Railway) will sell excursion tickets at very low rates to a large number of points in the west and northwest. For full information apply to ticket agents of connecting lines, or address A. H. Waggener, T. P. A., 7 Jackson place, Indianapolis, Ind. 19-23

Homeseekers' Excursion.

On April 30 the Baltimore & Ohio Rail road will sell 30-day Excursion Tickets to points in Virginia on the Harper Ferry & Valley Branch south of and including Winchester, at rate of one fare for the round trip. Excursion Tickets will also be sold to points in the South and Southwest at a very low rates, good for return 20 days from date of sale.

For futher information, call on or addess any B. & O. Ticket Agent, S. P. Kretzer, Land and Immigration Agent, Philadelphia, Pa., or L. S. Allen, Ass't Gen'l Pass'r Agent Chicago, Ill.

OBITUARY.

Curtis C. Case was born in Otis, Mass., May 4, A. D. 1814, and died May 4, 1895 at the age of 81 years. In the year 1817, he with his parents came to Jefferson county, N. Y., and resided there till he was 50 years of age. In the year 1864 he moved to the state of Indiana and has since resided there. The funeral was held at the residence of Matt Case, on the Avenue this afternoon conducted by Rev. J. K. Waits and the interment in Woodlawn.

SUMMER COATS!
SOME ARE VESTS!
SUMMER SHIRTS!
SOME ARE DRAWERS!

Don't wear your winter weight clothes and underwear until the fragrance of your profuse perspiration makes people think you have been to a Negro Campmeeting. (Cast them off.) Buy you a nice light weight coat and vest. We have them in Serges, Vicunas, Clay Worsteds, Flannels, Cheviots and Seersuckers, for both Men and Boys, ranging from a 75-cent coat and vest up to six dollars.

An elegant line of French Balbriggan Underwear at one dollar a suit. Call and see us for summer wearing apparel.

G. H. Yesbera.

The Clothier.

RUPTURE

Of Men, Women and Children permanently cured in 30 days, without pain or slightest inconvenience by the Fidelity Method. Every case guaranteed. Patient need not pay a dollar until completely cured. The truss discardeer. Over 8,000 cases cured in the last five years. Consultation free.

J. B. CASEBEER, M. D.

Their authorized physician in Indiana and who will visit Auburn in April. Correspondence Solicited, Address 14 East Ohio Street, INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

GAS BOOMS.

WHAT AUBURN COULD BE IF WE COULD ESTABLISH A GOOD GAS FIELD.

We Probably Have as Good a Chance as Other Communities.

Our attention was called to this by getting hold of an outline map of Madison county, this state. It is about the size of DeKalb, though not lying in a shape so nearly square as our county The county seat was originally at Pendleton, but a few years later, Anderson became its county seat, and is so still. Seven years ago, gas was found in the county, and since then every part of it has been drilled and some of the best wells in the state have been struck there The result has been to establish a number of live manufacturing towns all over the county. Anderson, which before had about 8,000 people, now has 20,000; Elwood which was then only a few houses, now has 10,000 people; the same may be said of Alexandria, which now has 6,000, of Summitville, with its 1,600, of Frankton, with its 1,400, while Pendleton that had about died out, now has 1,900. The number of manufacturing establishments, has similarly increased. Previous to developing the gas, there was but little in this line, By 1890, in two or three years, it had greatly increased. But even comparing the present with what the showing was in 1890, we find a vast increase. But our only figures must date back to 1880 as we have not yet got hold of the census of 1890. In comparing with 1880, we must remember that the manufacturing establishments of that date were small affairs. A blacksmith's shop or a shoe shop with one man in each, would be called and they were called, a manufacturing establishment, while now, most of the factories employ from twenty to five hundred hands each. We give an extract from a recent report for Madison county to make this clearer.

	1880	1895.
No. of establishments	167	310
No. of persons employed	627	3,680
Capital invested	$ 525,250	$3,910,000
Value of annual product	1,194,312	5,885,000
Annual wages paid	176,733	1,370,000

When it is considered that this remarkable growth in the manufacturing industry of the county has been made since the discovery of natural gas, about seven years ago, the reader will have some adequate idea of the impulse due to the new product. According to the census data of number of persons to the home, here we have added in seven years about 15,000 consumers engaged in and dependent upon manufacturing. Herein is seen the value of this industry to agriculture, for all these added thousands must be fed and the home market opens up the demand for the surplus products of the farm' orchard and garden at the door of agriculture, making a ready market and better prices for the vegetables and small fruits.

The German Baptist's Meeting Decatur Illinois.

For this occasion the Wabash Railroad will sell tickets May 27th to June 3, inclusive, from all points to Decatur, Ill., at one fare for the round trip, good to return any time up to June 30. This is the only line running direct to the meeting grounds. Be sure and go via the Wabash in order to save delay and trouble in changing from one road to another, either before your arrival at Decatur or after. For time tables, printed matter and other information call on or write to any ticket agent of the Wabash or connecting line or C. S. Crane, Gen'l Pass. & Tkt. Agt., St. Louis, Mo.

CORUNNA.

Warm weather is here now with a vengeance.

Misses Minnie and Ona Finch visited friends in Auburn last week.

Born Friday the 3rd to David Shaffer and wife, a boy.

Billy Leins has just got over the measles, and now his wife and children are all down with them.

Mrs. Wm. Murphy and little daughter who have been visiting in Findlay, Ohio, for several weeks, returned home last Friday.

W. H. Kuhn, of Auburn, was in Corunna one day last week.

Some folks can get gold watches without buying them, but they had better look "a leedle oudt" as it is risky business.

Ashley boasts a great deal about her improvements this spring, but she "aint" in it at all compared with Corunna.

Spring time has come, gentle Annie and the birds are singing in the trees, and the farmer is busy with his spring work, and nearly everybody else is gone a fishing, or making preparations to go

WATERLOO.

Mr. S. J. Lock, of Lock's Hotel will take posession of the Kelley House of Kendallville June 1.

Mrs. A. L. Faucett, Mrs. Cora Stanley and daughter Hellon spent Sunday in Auburn with the family of R. D. Teft.

The Minerva club elected officers May 7 with the following result: President, Mrs. Rena Smith; Vice President, Mrs. Josephine Willis: Secretary, Miss Rose Blair; Treasurer, Miss Mattie Maxon Critic, Mrs. Alda Bemenderfer.

Little Glen Stamets is having the measles.

Scott Campbell has moved into the Taylor property on Oak Street.

Mrs. L. S. Stamets visited a few days in Angola last.

Miss Silvia Daniels spent Sunday in Ft. Wayne.

A good residence property for sale. For particulars call on Gen. L. J. Blair.

Frank Long who has been here with his father this winter, has returned to his home in California.

Mrs. Wash Askew and children were guests of Phil Plum and wife over Sunday.

Improved Train Service on the Wabash.

Commencing May 1, 1895, the Wabash railroad will place in service a through reclining chair car (seats free) between St. Louis and Des Moines, on trains 7 and 8.

In addition to above elegant new sleeping cars will be placed in service between Kansas City and Des Moines, on same trains. C. S. CRANE, Gen'l Pass. & Ticket Agent.

SURPISED.

A number of the little friends of Minnie Cole gave her a surprise last evening it being her eleventh birthday. She was the recipient of several presents. The guests were served with taffy. The following were, present: Addie and Mamie Showers, Clayton Farmer, Neva Beaty, Victor and Nettie Applegate, Mary and Cary Reader, Anna and Frank Gouly, Lodie Potter, Ernest and Charles Cole, Willie Culler, Don. Husselman, and John Gulick.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder World's Fair Highest Award.

L. O. BUCHTEL, Homœopathic Physician and Surgeon.

Special attention given to chronic and obscure cases and catarrhal diseases of the nose, throat and lungs; also to diseases peculiar to women and children.

Office and residence over Smith & Madden's marble works, Auburn, Ind. Office apart from residence and private. All calls attended to promptly, night or day.

Albert Robbins, Pres. J. C. Hendry, V. P

FARMERS BANK.

Capital Stock.—
—$45,000.00.

—UNDER STATE SUPERVISION.—

Transacts a general banking business. Interest paid on time deposits by agreement. Collections receive careful attention. Business solicited.

A. C. ROBBINS, Cashier.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE

To all lands in DeKalb County, Indiana, at reasonable rates. I have the only set of Abstract Books in the County. Also Mortgages, Deeds and Notary Public Work of all kinds promptly attended to.

Inquire at Auditor or Surveyor's office, Auburn, or leave orders at Postoffice, Garrett,

J. P. Crimmins.
Abstractor and Notary Public.

MUTUAL BENEFIT LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

Was chartered by the state of New Jersey January 31, 1845, as a purely Mutual Life company, without any capital stock. Our profits are returnable to the company's policy holders, who thus receive their insurance at its absolute net cost. Since the organization of the company it has returned to its policy holders in annual dividend of $43,706,710 and its total payments to policy holders for policy claims, surrendered policies and dividends have aggregated $131,226,228. The company's policies are strictly non-forfeitable and incontestable after the second year. In case of lapse policies the company, without any action being taken by the insured, continues the insurance at term rate until the full present value of the policy, at the time of lapse, has been exhausted. During 1893 the company paid 47 lapses policies in full amounting in all to $123,620. In other companies those policies would, under similar conditions, have been forfeited and void. The company's assets Jan. 1, 1895, $55,546,092. Surplus, $6,000,000. E. W. Quackenbush, district agent., N. E. Indiana. Liberal contracts to reliable soliciting agents, Room 98, Long and Riley Block, Fort Wayne, Ind.

PROBATE CAUSE NO. 4038.

State of Indiana, DeKalb County } ss:

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, May Term, 1895. Henry Wartenslaben, Louisa Fitzpatrick and M. J. Fitzpatrick, husband of Louisa Fitzpatrick, non-residents of the state of Indiana, and Woman's Baptist Home Mission Society, incorporated under the laws of the state of Illinois; Woman's Baptist Foreign Missionary Society of the West, incorporated under the laws of the state of Illinois, foreign corporations, are hereby notified that Orrin C. Clark, as executor of the will of Adelheit Wartenslaben, deceased, has filed in the Circuit Court of DeKalb county, Indiana, a petition making them defendants thereto, and praying therein for an order and decree of said Court authorizing the sale of certain real estate belonging to the estate of said decedent and in said petition described, to make assets for the payment of the debts and liabilities of said estate: and that said petition, so filed and which is now pending, is set for hearing in said Circuit Court at the court house in Auburn, Indiana, on the 10th day of June, 1895.

Witness, the Clerk and Seal of said Court, this 27th day of March 1895.

[SEAL.] DANIEL D. MOODY, Clerk DeKalb Circuit Court.

Baxter & Brown, Attorneys.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

FRENCH DIMITY

8 CENTS YD.

A STONG POINT:

Look at the smallness of the price; that's one of the Strong Points of these sightly 32-inch wide summer fabrics. each yard of which is honestly worth 15 cents.

A STRONGER POINT:

Yet this fact would have little weight if these lovely Figured and Striped Dimities were ostracised by dame Fashion. No wash goods are more fashionable.

THE STRONGEST POINT:

The strongest argument however, why you should purchase a dress of this desirable material with white and tinted ground is advanced by a bunch of Thoroughly Washed samples in north end of Window display. of these, Representing all of the various colorings of this

LOW-PRICED.
FASHIONABLE.
FAST COLORED FABRIC.

3 Pieces New Black Crepons, New York's Most Fashionable Black Dress Goods

25 Doz. New Shirt Waists.

BISHOP & LACKEY,

Leading Merchants.

You leave it to YOURSELF

To Purchase the

BEST GOODS

That are offered for the

LEAST MONEY

And to do this you should come to

Cowan Sisters'

and see the

New— SUMMER GOODS Just in

D. A. HODGE, Jeweler.

KIBLINGER BUILDING.

You don't have to look through a board fence to be able to see that we are giving the very best values that can be given at the very lowest prices. See our new Goods. They re up-to date.

We invite you to call and look over our stock.
Repair work guaranteed.

WALL PAPER!

WE FORMERLY SOLD FOR

50 & 75 cents

NOW GOES FOR

35 Cents

At.....

OLDS BROS'.

All other Paper at Reduced Prices.

Thursday's Daily.

WANTED IMMEDIATELY: 100 cords of nigger head stone. J. C. Henry.

Those who are to bring us wood on subscription can deliver it to us at any time now.

Call and see our new farm wagons. Shaffer & Shull, south Main, Auburn.

Book free despondent men, box 52, Toledo, O

"Coin's Financial School," the greatest book of the age, converting thousands of gold bugs into free silver men. For sale at the Glazier News Stand, 25 cents per copy.

Eli Cochran was taken into the A. O. U. W. Lodge last night and is now a full fledged workman.

The brick work on the foundry is completed and John Weaver and his men are doing the wood work. It will only be a short time until the building will be ready for use.

D. A. Garwood went up to Angola last evening where he is acting as special judge in the Foster vs. Hendry case. The trial will probably continue for a week.

D. W. Souder ex-clerk of Allen county is on his way home from South Africa. It is supposed he was out of his head when he left home and a whim took him to that distant place.

Ira Brandon got up quite early this morning and rode up to the Morning Star where he tried fishing and was quite successful. He caught one that measured about fifteen inches in length.

Edith Alvord came up from Fort Wayne yesterday for a parting visit with her brother, Nate Alvord, who soon goes to Pennsylvania, where he has a good position on a paper. Miss Alvord is a nurse in Hope Hospital in Wayne.

Charles Thompson was taken to-day from Angola to Michigan City.

Mrs. Judge Best, of Minneapolis; came in over the Lake Shore this afternoon and is the guest of her sister, Mrs. J. E. Rose.

Friday's Daily:

Baker & Bauer will open up an ice cream parlor next week. They have a nice room and it will be furnished in first class style.

Mrs. C. M. Brown and daughter Ilif, went up to Hamilton to day. Mr. Brown will drive up to-morrow and remain till Sunday.

R.A. Christian left to-day for England where he will look after the money he has inherited. When he gets there and finds out the particulars he will furnish them to the DAILY COURIER.

Tic-nocks" may be very funny things for the boys who work them, but when the boy stumbles over a chair on the porch and punches his fist through the window, scattering pieces of glass over the women sitting in the room, it isn t so funny-for either party.

CHANGE OF FIRM.

The firm of Kruger & Son, grocers, on South Main street has changed hands, John Kruger, jr. now having entire control. His father has been in the business several years and is now quite old and unable to do much work, hence the son succeeds. He has hired Lester Till who will assist him. The business done at this stand during the past year is wonderful and we predict for the new management, success.

Saturday's Daily:

Mrs. Anna Shugers returned to her home at Coldwater, Mich., last evening after spending a few weeks with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Chas Eckhart and other friends.

The Eagle Manufacturing Company, at Auburn Junction, have taken the contract for making all the castings, for the Auburn Foundry & Machine Works, while the latter buildings are being completed.

Peggy Armstrong was set free yesterday evening, his term being shortened by the liberality of the attorneys and court officers, who threw off fees and costs to favor him. We hope he will appreciate this enough to keep sober hereafter for it is generally the liquor that makes him quarrelsome.

Frank Long of California was here today and we had a fine but brief visit and a talk about old times. He is employed by the Mason & Hamlin music dealers at Chicago but goes back soon to the coast. He brings word that the DeKalb folks are all prospering out there as far as he has seen them.

Granville Erick, of Spencerville, who left six weeks ago for Watanago, Oklahoma, died at that place Wednesday. His remains are expected at St. Joe today. The funeral will probably occur Sunday. He leaves a wife, relatives and a host of friends to mourn his untimely departure. He and his brother Beeks were in the dry goods business at Spencerville.

Our teachers will all remember the young and scholarly gentlemen, Prof. Walter M. Wood, that did such excellent work in our County Teachers' Institute two years ago this summer. Shortly after his work here, Prof. Wood was married to a very exemplary and talented lady, of Findlay, Ohio. In a letter just received by Supt. Merica, Mr. Wood says: "As a friend you may be interested to know that a daughter came into our home last week. Both mother and child are getting along nicely."

Under the Knife.

Of the surgeon there no more scut suffering than people endure every day with Rheumatism. Distorted and withered limbs mark its ravages everywhere. Dr. Drummond's Lightning Remedy for Rheumatism has a remarkable record of cures—not only relieving the pain but restoring all the functions of crippled limbs. Send $5 to the Drummond Medicine Co., 48 Maiden Lane, New York, and the full month's treatment of two large bottles will be sent to your express address. Agents Wanted.

Free Book to week men, box 52, Toledo, O.

Monday's Daily

Smoke the K. & B. ten-cent cigar.

Sealed book to men free, box 52, Toledo, O.

AUBURN Summer Normal will begin July 8.

MARRIED: At the residence of the bride,s parents in Richland township, May 1, 1895, Oliver Foote and Sarah J. Miser, Elder James Barton officiating Both are residents of this county.

Frank W. Stoops will sell the popular. Pierce Bicycle made at Buffalo, N. Y If you want a good wheel call on him at Neff & Weeks' grocery and examine his samples. 18-19

THERE WILL be at least three instructors in the Auburn Summer Normal and each will be a specialist in the branches he teaches.

FOR SALE: A good house and barn in south part of town. Call at this office.

YOU can have most any article of iron or brass manufactured at the Junction Foundry.

You can have most any article of iron or brass manufactured at the Junction Foundry.

Many Citizens

Are being cured by Vitaline and Nervetone. Many others need it to restore shattered nerves and for a renewal of life and strength. That it is a most wonderful nerve soother as well as brain feeded and strength restorer is being demonstrated every day. The most obstinate nerve pains, headache, toothache and neuralgi cured in an hour's time. Ask your druggist, and accept no other. Prepared by the Hall Medicine Company Toledo, Ohio.

A Complete Chautauqua Program

Of the 1895 Chautauqua Assembly will be mailed to any address on application to A. J. Smith, G. P. A., L. S. & M. S. Ry., Cleveland, O.

Please bear in mind that the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Ry. is the best line to Chautauqua Lake, also that reduced rate tickets are on sale during the summer season.

NORMAL at Auburn.

Write Box 52, Toledo, O., free book to men

Shaffer & Shull make the best farm wagons in this part of the state. They have a number newly finished. Call on them. d&wtf

The COURIER is prepared to furnish the latest and prettiest commencement programs. Call and look at the samples.

All diseases of the air passages especially catarrah and chronic, Bronchitis, as well as first stages of consumption can be cured. I am treating these diseases with great success by the use of the latest and most improved medicines and instruments. Dr. W H. Nusbaum, Auburn, Ind. 42tf

INSURANCE AGENCY:—People desiring good insurance should remember that Geo. Lanning has an office at the Davis Harware store, and works some of the very best companies in the country. Good farm risks taken. Call on him. 32tf

Tuesday's Daily.

Joe Case of Fairfield, came down today to attend the funeral of his brother, Curtis Case.

Mrs. Geo. Lackey and daughter of Garrett were over Saturday the guests of Mr. John Robbins.

J. P. Kandel came up from Muncie Saturday to see his father, who is in poor health. He says he and Mr. Boyer are prospering in the buggy business.

Mrs. J. D. Leighty is alternate delegate to represent Indiana at the World's International meeting of the W. C. T. U. that convenes at London, England, some time in June of this year. The DeKalb folks get the best places, as usual.

Miss Minnie Finch, of Corunna, has been several days a guest in the families of L. J. Miller and Auditor Borst.

Dr. Stewart and George Cox, of Garrett attended services at the Presbyterian church yesterday.

Mr. Coder, of St. Joe, father of Mrs. Elias Zimmerman is her guest since Saturday,

Mrs. A. L. Faucett of Waterloo, and daughter, spent Sunday with R. D. Tefft's family.

Mr, and Mrs. J. K. Stafford and daughter Ida, were taken into the M. E. church Sunday morning.

W. J. Frederick, of Garrett, and his two daughters Edith and Queen, were over here Saturday afternoon. The two young ladies made the COURIER a brief call.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Henning, of Waterloo were the guests of their daughter, Mrs. Geo. Clark yesterday. In the evening they all drove to St. Joe, where Mr. Henning has a farm.

Morris Widney goes up to Jackson today to sing for the meeting of "Cyclone" Bennett, held there this week. George Staley goes to Garrett to sing at the band concert Wednesday evening as their tenor singer is sick. They all draw on Auburn when musical talent is needed.

Samuel Squires, administrator of the estate of the late Nathan Squires, his father, will sell the personal property belonging to the estate on Friday, May 31, beginning at 9:30 a. m. There will be quite an amount of horses, sheep and cattle, farm tools and household goods 19 20

THERE seems to be a great deal o misunderstanding about the trouble in Nicaragua. The facts are, the British consul and several Americans were expelled from the country on a claim that they were sympathizing with a little rebellion that was on just then. Nicaragua apologized to the United States, or we would have made a fuss just as Great Britain has, although the Americans were not officers of our government. But Nicaragua refused to apologize to Great Britain for some cause not easily understood. Hence the trouble.

Tuesday's Daily.

Get "Gerbelle" flour.

Wm. Vollman who moved from here to Elkhart, is now located in Chicago.

Phil. Gibson has taken a position with the Eckhart Carriage Co. a stenographer. He began work Monday morning.

Dun's Review says: "Business opens in May, better than at any time since the breakdown in 1892.

Old Mr. Baker who used to live east of the creek is back here for a business visit of a few days. He is looking as well as usual.

Friday evening at the Presbyterian church Miss Easly will give "How Congress Fought for Sheridan," a selection replete with patriotism and pathos.

Will Mc.rory informs us the Auburn Iron Works are erecting a new moulding room and in a few days will be ready to do all kinds of casting.

Money to Loan.

By F. L. Welsheimer. Best Building and Loan Association represented in Auburn. Money to loan in large or small sums on good security.

H. C. Croy of Blakeslee, O., visited his father, Rev, H. A. Croy, last week. He had had just returned from Poplar Bluffs, Mo.

Mrs. Croy of Gas Addition and Mrs. Avery, drove out to Mr. Grimm's a few miles east of town Sunday, visiting there a few hours. Mrs, Grim was that day, 74 years old.

Mrs. Borst lives in happy anticipation that the flowering thorn at her door will have more blossoms this year than ever before. It is as full as the limbs can hold, and will be a vision of loveliness when fully in bloom.

The Eagle Manufacturing Co. at Auburn Junction are making all kinds of light and heavy castings.

Mrs. John Shugers is in very poor health, and is to be taken away for treatment. Her daughter, Mrs. Leedy, and her husband have moved up here and will remain at home till her mother is better.

The High School graduates of the town of Butler have organized an alumni and will give their first public entertainment at the M. E. church in that place Thursday evening May 23d. Supt. Merica is on the program for the invocation.

Laperte Argus: Senor Navarro, of the Argentine Republic, was in the city on business last Friday. He does not speak English and had an interpreter with him. He is a prominent business man of his country and was here on business with the carriage company.

Mrs. D. Z. Hoffman has been quite low for some time. Last evening she took a bad spell and it was thought for some time she would not recover. But to-day we learn she is some better.

The Albion New Era has a fine article this week speaking of a charitable deed two old soldiers had done to a comrade who had been less fortunate and was on the road, commonly known as a tramp. He was tired and nearly worn out and they sent him to the county farm to rest up a few days. The same man is now stopping with Mr. Bartels who runs the DeKalb County poor farm.

Dr. A. F. Phillips is now nicely located in the front rooms on the COURIER floor where his patients will find him almost any hour. His office is neatly fitted carpeted, etc and he is already getting business. He comes well recommended as a physician well equipped in the latest methods in medicine and surgery, as it is fully attested by four diplomas that adorn his rooms.

S. D. Hanna made a bet yesterday with A. J. Ralston that he, Hanna, would be the worst defeated man on the ticket. He bet a dollar against a doughnut, Ralston accepted and last evening when it was learned that Potter had a majority of 98 Ralston gave it up and bought the doughnut. It is a poor little election when you can't get up a bet.

AUBURN JUNCTION.

Charley and Mary Goodman started for Philadelphia this morning over the Lake Shore to Ft. Wayne, from there they will take the Pennsylvania system of which company Charley is employed as car inspector. Mary goes along to keep house.

The B. & O will make important changes in the time of trains next Sunday. So keep your eye on the DAILY and do not get left.

L. S. & M. S. No. 456 was one hour and eleven minutes late at this place. The regular engine broke an equalizer north of Angola and was replaced by a freight engine. It is very seldom the L. S. & M. S. is late but accidents will occur.

H. G. Wooster, Supt. of the Lansing division was on the local this morning, inspecting the depot etc.

Awarded
Highest Honors—World's Fair,
DR.
PRICE'S CREAM
BAKING POWDER
MOST PERFECT MADE.
A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.
40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

Wednesday's Daily.

There is now a business room in Auburn which can be rented at a low price The room is in the Kiblinger block near the business center of Auburn.

WANTED: Body trimmers at the Body Factory.

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Snyder were at Ft, Wayne to-day.

C. H. Bliss went down to Ft. Wayne this morning.

Brown, Culbertson & Boland have several good second hand binders at prices ranging from $15 to $50. Call and see them.

Dr. Buchtel write he will be home Saturday or Monday, and that he is enjoying a much needed rest and attending the Clinics and visiting the hospitals in Chicago.

If you failed to get a biscuit at Hoff's exhibit last week, you can bake some for yourself from "Gerbelle" flour.

Men are at work moving the telegraph pole, along the side of Hebel Bros. grocery. They will put down a 10 foot cement walk and it was necessary to move the pole south about a foot.

Call and see the "Gerbelle" Souvenir spoons at Hoff's.

Dr. Phillips has a neat new sign, the work of Geo, Steele.

Frank Stoops was in town this morning. His wife is still in poor health, though able to be about the house most of the time.

FOR SALE OR TRADE: A 2-year old well bred colt. Inquire at the COURIER office.

For bicycle sundries go to F. J. Yessbera, the jeweler. He is just putting in a line of these goods.

FOR SALE:—Must be sold soon. The barn on the Meese property. Call at the Misses Keeran's.

FARM IMPLEMENTS; Morr & Baker are now ready to show their patrons their line of farm implements. Call on them south of the jail.

AUBURN CEMENT.

A Lewis & Co. have just received a car of Portland Cement direct from Holzminden-Harburg-on-the-Elbe, Germany, and will say to the public that this brand of Portland Cement is one of the best cements that is imported to this country. It has been tested here in walks and has stood the severe cold winter better than cements that were sold for 50 per cent more per barrel. A Lewis & Co. will, if the cement is properly handled, stand by any defect of walks caused from inferior quality of cement. They keep a supply on hand besides a large stock of American cements for stone work, cisterns and etc.

A. LEWIS & CO.
Yard at S. S. & M. S. R. R. Auburn Ind.

OPERA HOUSE

The new Opera House is now a coming reality, in fact a sure thing. It took a new turn his time, for quite a number of our livliest business men thought best to help on the good work in a new way. They subscribed various sums for "seats" the first two weeks of the use of the new Hall and in this way, quite a nice sum was raised. First-class companies will be engaged for the opening season and the subscribers will not only have full tickets for that length of time, but will feel they have done that much to get it. While many have helped in this way, the parties who are assisting in this way, will within a day or two, present the matter to the rest of our business men. We do not know as any order will build a part of it, as at one time anticipated. We believe the chief mover in the enterprise is Mr. Henry. He generally is in the lead in anything of a public character.

CONTRAST.

I.	II.
No ad.	Ad. neat,
Business bad;	Busy feet;
Merchant blue,	Merchant smiling,
Clerks few.	Dollars piling
No push,	Every day;
No rush.	Ads. pay.

A MODEL LESSON.

In physical culture and dramatic expression, also readings, and a set of sixty artistic attitudes will be given at the Presbyterian church in this city, Friday evening, May 10, under the auspices of Miss Maggie S. Easly, assisted by representative members of her classes. Miss Easly's purpose in giving this program is to illustrate her methods of teaching the subjects of physical culture and elocution and to show the extent and degree of proficiency that may be attained from a given number of lessons, with a view of organizing classes in this city. All persons interested in this important branch of education are most cordially invited to be present. Admission free. Exercises to begin at 8 o'clock.

MEN WANTED

To take orders. Instruction and outfit free. Salary or commission as preferred. Splendid chance for reliable men. Experience not necessary. Write for terms and full particulars.
The R. G. CHASE COMPANY,
Nurserymen. Geneva, N.Y.

JAPANESE MANHOOD

Treatment quickly and forever cures Emissions, Drains, Impotency, Varicocele, Self-Abuse and all resulting evils. No C. O. D. or quack schemes. Sealed Sexual Book Free if you mention this paper and describe your case. Address Japan Medical Company, Toledo, O.

A. F. Phillips, M. D. C. M.,

Fellow of Trinity Medical College, of TORONTO.

OFFICE in the Second Floor Front of the Kiblinger Building, Corner of Main and Seventh Street, AUBURN.

Calls answered promptly. Be in Office till 11 p. m.

ROOMS at L. E. Gregg's on West Seventh Street. 18tf

First National Bank

AUBURN, INDIANA.

Capital and Surplus, $60,000.00.

Certificates of deposits issued, drawing interest 4 per cent per annum, if left six months. County and town orders bought. Money to loan.

C. A. O. MCCLELLAN, President.
CHAS. MCCLELLAN, Cashier.

LOOK HERE.

We have a little story to tell you about economy. Buy where you can get best values of goods for the money.

LOOK AT PRICES!

27 inch, double fold plaids and novelties 15c. per yard.
36 inch ½ wool cashmere for 20c pr yd
36 inch all wool cashmere for 35c " "
36 " " " albatross " 35c " "
46 " " " serges " 50c " "
46 " " " henrietta, 60a75c "
30 " canvas back duck suiting at 12½c per yard.
30 inch sateens, new line, 12½c per yd
30 inch plain and fancy percales, 10c per yard.

New ginghams, 5, 8, 10 and 12½c per yard.

L L sheeting muslins, 4c per yard.

The Bibb Carpet warp on spools. By using theis warp there is no cost for spooling. No waste by tangled skeins. Price 20 cents per pound.

Gents' white and fancy Percales and Dermet Shirts, Underwear, ½ Hose Suspenders, Overalls' Cottonade pants.

Neckties, New Styles, Latest Novelties

Larger Lines - Better Values,

LOWER PRICES.

M. JONES & SON

Notice of Sale of Real Estate.

Notice is hereby given, that I, Harrison Enzor, executor of the will of Stephen K. Enzor, deceased, will offer for sale at public auction, to the highest bidder, on Saturday, May 11, 1895, at 10 o'clock, a. m., at the door of the court house in Auburn, Indiana, for the purpose of paying debts, the following described real estate, belonging to the estate of said decedent to-wit:

The north half of the northeast quarter [¼] of the northeast quarter [¼] of section fourteen [14] and the north half [½] of the northwest quarter [¼] of the northwest quarter [¼] of section thirteen [13] all in township thirty-five [35] north, of range fourteen [14] east, in DeKalb county, state of Indiana.

TERMS OF SALE:

One-third cash, one-third in 9 months, and one-third in 12 months. Deferred payments to be evidenced by interest-bearing notes waiving relief and secured by mortgage upon the premises sold. HARRISON ENZOR, Executor.
Baxter & Brown, Attys.

Notice to Non-Residents

State of Indiana, De alb County
In the Circuit Court, May Term, 1895

William H. McIntyre Administrator of the estate of William H. Kibitinger deceased vs
Horace G. Kircher
Nettie Kircher.
} Notice

The plaintiff in the above cause having filed his complaint therein together with an affidavit that the defendants are not residents of the State of Indiana, and the cause of action alleged in the complaint is founded upon a contract in relation to real estate in this State, to-wit: to enforce a lien thereon by foreclosure of a mortgage and the appointment of a receiver.

Now therefore, the said defendants are hereby notified that unless they be and appear on the 3rd day of next (May) term of the DeKalb Circuit Court, to be held on the 3rd Monday of May A. D., 1895, at the Court House in Auburn, in said County and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in their absence.

In Witness whereof, I hereunto set my hand and affix the seal of said Court this 20th day of April 1895.

DANIEL D. MOODY, Clerk.
C. A. O. McClellan. Atty. for ptf.

Notice to Non-Residents

STATE OF INDIANA, DEKALB COUNTY, SS:
In the DeKalb Circuit Court, May term, 1895.

Cora Skatt is hereby notified that an action has been commenced against her in said Court, for divorce, by Oscar M. Skatt, and that the same will be heard and determined on the 17th day of June, 1895, being of the next term of said court, which commences May 20, 1895.

Witness, The Clerk of said Court this 23d day of April, 1895.

DANIEL D. MOODY, Clerk.
W. H. Leas, Attorney.

NOTICE OF SALE OF PERSONAL PROPERTY.

Notice is hereby that on:

FRIDAY, MAY 31, 1895,

at the late residence of the deceased, in Section Twenty-two (22), in Jackson Township, DeKalb County, Indiana, I, Samuel Squires, Administrator of the estate of Nathan Squires, deceased, will sell at public sale the personal property of said decedent, not taken by the widow, consisting of horses, sheep, cattle, pigs, farming tools, household goods and other articles too numerous to mention. Also rye and wheat in the field. Said sale will begin at half-past nine o'clock in the forenoon of said day.

TERMS OF SALE.

All sums under five dollars cash in hand; on sums of five dollars and over a credit of nine months will be given upon the purchaser giving his note with approved security, waiving relief from valuation laws and bearing six per cent interest after maturity.

SAMUEL SQUIRES, Administrator.
May 4, 1895. 19-21

COFFEE 12½ Cts Per lb

By using Aluminum Coffee Filterer will save its cost every 3 months in the year; always bright; no egg required to settle. Coffee is richer and stronger. Every big restaurant in the world makes their coffee on this principle. Is of more value than any other kithchen utensil. Price 75 cents prepaid. Money refunded if not satifactory. Agents can make from $3 to $15 per day selling this and other novelties. W. M. Woodworth, Kokomo, Ind.

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administratrix of the estate of James D. McAnally deceased late of said County.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent,

MARY A. MCANALLY Administratrix.
April 30, 1895.

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of Nathan Squires, deceased, late of said county

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

SAMUEL A. SQUIRES, Administrator.
April 30, 1895.
J. E. & J. H. ROSE,
Attorneys for Estate.

Auburn Courier,
AUBURN, INDIANA.
JAMES A. BARNS, - - PUBLISHER.

THE NEWS RECORD.

SUMMARY OF A WEEK'S HAPPENINGS.

The Latest News as Flashed Over the Wires from All Parts of the World—Regarding Politics, Religion, Casualties, Commerce, and Industry.

ALL AFLAME.

The Business Portion of New Carlisle, Ohio, Destroyed.

A fire broke out in Charles Gardner's livery stable, at New Carlisle, Ohio, and spread so rapidly that in half an hour the business portion of the town was enveloped in flames. The fire is throught to have been the work of an incendiary. The following buildings were entirely destroyed: Gardner's livery stable, including two horses and several vehicles. Town Hall, including Mayor's office and Police Headquarters. All the township records were destroyed. Staley's Hotel, Sutton Brothers' shoe store, George Kessler's barber shop, George Collins' shoe shop, John Metzger's saloon, George Wilburton's saloon, Frank Ulrich's saloon. Odd Fellows' Hall and C. S. McGuire, Jr., shoe store were badly damaged.

Several stables in the rear were destroyed. The Springfield fire department was called upon, and assisted in subduing the flames. Anton Singer's saloon and Max Holtzmiller's bakery were entirely destroyed. The main portion of the Gem Opera House was burned. While Holtzmiller was trying to save his goods he was caught by the flames, and before he was rescued he received terrible burns. His injuries are pronounced fatal.

Looted by Tramps.

The village of Granger, St. Joseph county, Ind., was terrorized by tramps recently. An armed posse is guarding the peace of the place. Granger is an isolated station on the line of the Michigan division of the Big Four railroad. The invasion of the body of belligerent tramps was the signal for acts of lawlessness which terminated in the looting of stores and houses. The depraditions continued unchecked until the community was aroused. Men armed themselves and by force of number drove the raiders from the town. No arrests have been made, but serious trouble will follow any further depredation. The tramps are well organized and dispatches report active measures as having been taken to suppress lawlessness of any character at points likely to be raided.

Kilrain Whipped.

Fully 7,000 persons journeyed to the arena of the Seaside Athletic Club, Coney Island, N. Y., to see the twenty-five-round contest between Steve O'Donnell, who has gained notoriety as Champion Jim Corbett's sparring partner, and Jake Kilrain, the Baltimorean, who was a shining light it the prize ring five years or more ago. The announcement that Corbett would be in O'Donnell's corner and John L. Sullivan would second Kilrain probably had some effect on the attendance, which was the largest seen at a fight there since the days when Johnny McKane was all powerful and the recognized "czar" of that seaside resort. The men faught twenty-one desperate rounds when the referee stopped the fight and awarded it to O'Donnell.

A Cloud Burst.

Herrington, Kas., was visited by a cloud burst recently. The town and surrounding country was flooded. Lime Creek, which has been dry for a year, was converted into a raging torrent and houses, horses, cattle and hogs were swept down stream. John Williams' house was carried away and the family narrowly escaped drowning, The house of Samuel McManus was also carried away and wrecked by striking a bridge. McManus escaped, but Mrs. McManus was drowned. Her body was found lodged in a tree in the park south of town.

Instantly Killed.

Near Ironton, Ohio, during a rainstorm lightning struck a tree under which three hunters, H. H. Bazzell, T. J. Boldman, and Chilton O. Woods, had taken refuge, instantly killing Woods and knocking the others unconscious. The guns were demolished. Bazzell had a belt full of cartridges around him, nearly all of which exploded, but luckily the contents hit no one. Wood's clothing and shoes were torn from his body. Boldman and Bazzell's recovery is doubtful. Woods was married only a few days before. All parties live near Rock Camp.

Attempted to Board an Express Train.

Train No. 14, carring the Wells-Fargo through express east over the Erie, was taking water at Spencerville, Ohio, and when pulling out an attempt was made by unknown parties to board the train. The express agents immediately fired upon the gang, which at once sought cover. The intentions of the gang are not known, but it is supposed robbery was the motive. The large Winchester guns carried by the express agents sounded like a whole regiment of soldiers.

Shot His Companion.

At Roann, Ind., Alfred Bonewitz, aged 8, shot and killed Rex Whitley, aged 6, while the two were playing with an old gun. Bonewitz had the weapon and pointing it at Whitley called to him to throw up his hands in bandit style. The latter complied and the gun being accidentally discharged the load took effect under the right arm, inflicting a wound causing death in 15 minutes.

Fire at Saginaw.

Forest fires are reported to be threatening the village of Greenwood, Mich. Partridge Bros.' saw mill was destroyed, together with a large quantity of timber. It is said the dwellings of the settlers are in a precarious situation.

Baby Scalded.

Manie, the baby daughter of Anthony Russ, of Portsmouth, Ohio, was fatally scalded recently. The mother was preparing to do the week's wash, and had placed a tub of boiling water on a bench near the door. She left the spot a moment and meantime the little toddler caught hold of the edge of the tub and tipped it over on her. The child's screams brought the mother quickly, but it was too late. The child was frightfully burned from the neck down, the flesh sloughing away in great rolls. It will die.

Brigands Slaughtered.

A band of nine brigands attacked a house at Air Castello, Sicily, and killed one of its occupants. A number of gendarmes started in pursuit of the brigands, overtook them, and in the fight which followed, six of the outlaws were killed. The remaining three were arrested. Two gendarmes were wounded during the affray.

Killed by Lightning.

During an electrical storm at Mellsville, Wis., Mrs. John P. Sutherland, of York, fearing the storm, retired to the cellar. Lightning struck the house, stunned her husband and killed her.

VOLCANO ACTIVE.

Houses in Colima Covered with Ashes and People Arranging for Flight.

A special from Manzanillo, state of Colima, says: The glare from the eruption of the volcano of Colima, sixty miles in the interior, is plainly seen at this city and at other points along the Pacific coast at night. The disturbances are steadily increasing. Houses in the city of Colima, but a few miles from the base of the mountain, are coated with ashes. The railroad line of the Mexican construction company from Manzanillo to Colima is depended upon to furnish a means of escape to the people of the towns and haycindas of the vicinity in case a panic should ensue. Subterranean rumblings are heard at intervals during the day and through the night, and masses are being said in all the churches to avert the threatened calamity. The volcanic fires have ignited some of the forests around the base of the mountain. The volcano of Colima is 12-800 feet in altitude, with two apertures which rotate in their discharges.

AFFAIRS IN CUBA.

Madrid Is Called Upon For Twenty Thousand More Troops.

Advices from Cuba bear out statements made in these dispatches that revolution is rapidly spreading. Gen. Martinez Campos evidently appreciates the gravity of the situation, for he has cabled to Madrid, asking the Goverument to send 20,000 more troops and hold 5,000 in readiness. The Spaniards are begining to admit that the insurgents fight, and fight desperately. They admit their forces suffered terrible losses at the battle of Ramon de Las Jaguas a few days ago, Spaniards say forty of their men were killed and ninety wounded. Capt. Julian Miranda was one of the killed and Major Tejerizo, who was in command, was probably mortally wounded. The Spaniards numbered 500. The insurgents were led by Victoriana Garcan, and numbered 700. The Spaniards were hemmed in in a cemetery and were being cut to pieces, when reinforcements arrived. These details came from the Spaniards themselves.

Powder Mill Explodes.

A special from Acton, Mass., says: An explosion took place in one of the powder mills at that place, completely demolishing it. The ruins took fire and communicated to a second mill, which also exploded. This was soon followed by a explosion in mill No. 3.

The property destroyed consisted of two kerneling mills and one press mill. Five men were killed—Nelson Morton, Fred Winslow, Albert Estey, and Charles Estey. The explosion set the woods on fire and a large magazine is in danger. Nelson leaves a widow and four children; Winslow a widow; Charles Estey leaves a mother, and Albert Estey a widow and six children. The pecuniary loss will be from $12,000 to $15,000.

The fifth victim was Charles O'Neill, jr. The bodies of Morton and Winslow were found about 500 feet from the mill. The remains of the others cannot be found, and they were probably blown to atoms.

John Brown, Jr., Dead.

Capt. John Brown, Jr., died suddenly of heart disease at his house on Put-in-Bay Island, Lake Erie. He was the son of "Old John Brown," the hero of Harper's Ferry, and was with his father at the time of his arrest. He has lived on the island for a large number of years almost a recluse. He rarely if ever referred to the arrest, conviction, and execution of his father. He supported himself partly by the raising of small fruit. He never left the island but once since he has resided there, and that was a few years ago, when he went to California as the guest of the State of Kansas. He was 74 years of age.

This Ends It.

A special from Managua, Nicaragua, Via Galveston, Texas, says: Nicaragua has authorized Senor Christanto Medina, Salvadorean Minister to London and Paris, Acting Nicaraguan Minister in London, to accept the modified ultimatum of Great Britain. This modified ultimatum, it is understood here, was secured by the influence and through the intercession of the United States. Senor Medina is also authorized by the Government of Nicaragua to pay the £15,000 in London, under protest, within 15 days after the departure of the British squadron from Corinto.

Those Sugar Claims.

No steps have as yet been taken at the Treasury Department looking to the payment of this year's sugar bounty, for which Congress appropriated $5,000,000 at the last session. From the estimates of the claims already resented to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue they will exceed the amount of the appropriation by between $500,000 and $1,000,000. Secretary Carlisle has already virtually decided that the payments on the claims proved will be pro rata.

Cut Him in Three

Billy Dungan, a glass worker of Steubenville, Ohio, employed at Elwood, Ind., was run over by a freight train while lying on the track. Both legs were cut off close up to his body, and he was so terribly mangled that he will die.

Will Resist Arrest.

Four hundred Indians are in camp three miles north of Rolla, N. D., prepared to resist arrest. During the night they descended on Trader Brook's store and helped themselves to amunition and firearms.

Held for Murder.

Theodore Durant was held to answer the charge of murder in the Superior Court at San Francisco, and bail was refused.

THE MARKETS.

Chicago—Cattle, common to prime, $3.75 to $6.25; hogs, shipping grades, $3 to $5; sheep, fair to choice, $2.50 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2 red, 62½c to 64½c; corn, No. 2, 47½c to 49½c; oats, No. 2, 28c to 29½c; rye, No. 2, 64c to 66c; butter, choice creamery, 17c to 18c; eggs, fresh, 12c to 13c; potatoes, car lots, per bushel, 70c to 90c; broom corn, per lb, common growth to fine brush, 4c to 7c.

Indianapolis—Cattle, shipping, $3 to $6.00; hogs, choice light, $3.00 to $5.25; sheep, common to prime, $2 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2 red, 61c to 62½c; corn, No. 1 white, 46c to 46½c; oats, No. 2 white, 33c to 33½c.

St. Louis—Cattle, $3 to $6; hogs, $4 to $5; wheat, No. 2 red, 64c to 67c; corn, No. 2, 46c to 47c; oats, No. 2, 29c to 30c; rye, No. 2, 63c to 69c.

Cincinnati—Cattle, $3.50 to $6; hogs, $3 to $5.25; sheep, $2.50 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2, 70c to 70½c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 49c to 49½c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 31c to 31½c; rye, No. 2, 67c to 68c.

Detroit—Cattle, $2.50 to $6; hogs, $4 to $5; sheep, $2 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2 red, 67c to 67½c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 48c to 48½c; oats, No. 2 white, 34c to 34½c; rye, 67c to 68c.

Toledo—Wheat, No. 2 red, 67c to 67½c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 48c to 49c; oats, No. 2 white, 33c to 33½c; rye, No. 2, 67c to 67½c.

Buffalo—Cattle, $2.50 to $6.50; hogs, $3 to $3.50; sheep, $3 to $4.75; wheat, No. 1 hard, 72c to 73c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 53c to 53½c; oats, No. 2 white, 35c to 36c.

Milwaukee—Wheat, No. 2 spring, 66c to 67c; corn, No. 3, 48c to 48½c; oats, No. 2 white, 32c to 33c; barley, No. 2, 52c to 53c; rye, No. 1, 62c to 64c; pork, mess, $11.50 to $12.

New York—Cattle, $3 to $6.25; hogs, $4 to $5.50; sheep, $3 to $5; wheat, No. 2 red, 71c to 71½c; corn, No. 2, 53c to 55c; oats, white Western, 37c to 41c; butter, creamery, 14c to 20c; eggs, Western, 13c to 14c.

PATH OF THE STORM

Fifty Persons Killed and One Hundred Badly Hurt.

FARMS LAID WASTE.

Property Worth Half a Million Destroyed.

Survivors of the Horror Deprived of Their Homes—Fair Villages and Fertile Fields Devastated—Schoolhouses in the Path of the Storm, and Teachers and Pupils Annihilated—A Carpet of Mud Strewn Over Growing Crops in Iowa—Work of Wind, Rain and Hail.

Northwestern Iowa's cyclone in Sioux, Lynn, Osceola and O'Brien Counties cost at least fifty human lives. A hundred others are injured, and the destruction of half a million dollars' worth of farming property is a low estimate. The whirlwind, but half an hour in duration, while at its fiercest, swept over 1,200 square miles of cultivated farm land, and left in its wake a ruin rarely equaled in so short a period of time. The number of dead, although not so large as at first reported, is great enough to have plunged the whole of Northwestern Iowa into mourning. A revised list, as accurate as could be obtained at the time this is written, reports the following:

At Sioux Center and Vicinity.

John Marsden, Miss Anna Marsden, Mrs. John Koster, Alice Koster, aged 8; Miss Tillie Haggie, Babe of Mrs. L. Wynia, Mrs. Annie Postma, Jacob Jansen, Tewnes Verhof, aged 4; Maurice McCoombs, aged 4; Babe of W. Vlesma, Mrs. K. Waner and babe, A. Barblin, Mrs. L. E. Ost, Mrs. J. Post, A. M. Perry, Mrs. F. S. Fieldcamp, Mrs. Charles Waldron, Henry Smith, B. L. Smith, Mrs. L. Maretie and babe, L. D. Everetts, John Frize, H. Deboor.

At Sibley.

Mrs. John Waterman, Mrs. M. Blackburn, Mrs. Herman Belknap.

At Laurens.

Peter Stimmer.

At Sutherland.

Rudolph Schwordtfeger.

At Creston.

Everett Arnold.

Many Fatally Injured.

The fatally injured are:

H. Koster, aged 3; Minta McCoombs, Luella McCoombs, Mrs. L. Wynia, J. Deboor, Hattie Koster, Willie, Jennie and Grace Cerumman, Maggie, Gertie, Jennie and Jimmie Welbard, Jennie and Eddie Brown, Ben Pry, John Herman, Henry Haggie, Mrs. James Warie.

The greatest loss of life is in Sioux County, between Ireton, on the Hawarden branch of the Chicago and Northwestern, and Sioux Center, on the Sioux City and Northern. It was a veritable slaughter of the innocents. The children of tender years outnumbered all others in the mortality list, and that of those fatally injured. Upon the edge of a plowed road two little ones lay, their hands clasped together, their bodies torn and mangled. Beyond them in the roadway the leaves of an arithmetic fluttered in the breeze. Still further on and close to the McCoombs homestead was a battered dinner bucket and nearby a reader turned back to the page where the old lines ran, "This is a cat; is this a cat?" In the wrecked school houses little feet protruded from plaster and broken boards. Sun bonnets lay in the pastures yellow with butter cups. In one child's hand was clasped the broken slate and in another's a reward of merit card given but half an hour before by the teacher, dead, also face downward, in the furrow of a distant field. From Sioux Center to Perkins and from Perkins to Hull and George and Ashton there was the wail in the close of the spring afternoon of children, not dead, but dying, children with limbs torn apart, children who had been carried over forty-acre fields and hurled into ditches, children who called out for mothers already dead or beyond the aid of human help.

Anticipated No Danger.

Friday in Northwestern Iowa was blistering; the barometer vibrated with alarming changes, falling at one time to 29.50. In the Niobrara Valley, to the west, the thermometer indicated at different points 80, 82, 84 and 86 degrees. Such a temperature in May had never been known before, but the people were not apprehensive. They were preparing for the rain which had been denied them for two years past. Early in the morning in the midst of heat unknown in the past at this time of year, a tornado sprang up in the Niobrara Valley, fringed the towns on the west side of the Missouri and entered Iowa at the gait of fifty miles an hour. The sky was clear above Sioux County, but the gale bent the young grain to the ground and demolished a few granaries. Hail had fallen a day before in a few spots along the Little Sioux and rain was looked for. For six feet in depth the soil of Sioux, O'Brien, Clay and Pocahontas was baked and the winds of April had piled the dust along the tracks of the Chicago and Northwestern from Eagle Grove west from a foot to two feet in depth. Farmers refused to plant their grain under such conditions.

The tornado swept over Sioux and O'Brien Counties. The first victim of its wrath was claimed at Sutherland. Rudolph Shwerdtfoger was plowing in a field a quarter of a mile from Sutherland. Four horses were ahead of him. The sky was clear, but thunder sounded in the distance and frightened his animals. He sprang to their heads, and an instant later from the blue sky above him shot a thunderbolt. Three of the horses fell dead and underneath was Shwerdtfoger, struck by the same bolt. He was the first of the fifty who gave up their lives in Northwestern Iowa Friday. The fury of the gale ceased about noon and was followed by a dead suffocating heat.

Death Visits Schoolhouses.

About 3 o'clock in the afternoon black clouds, with green fringes, appeared west of Orange City and five miles northeast of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway. From the black mass, nine miles west of Orange City, as near as could be estimated, tentacles dropped, and at last a high, round ball, which appeared to strike the ground, rebounded and then touched again, just as football wages between goal and goal. Conductor Halan, on train No. 10 of the Chicago and Northwestern east-bound, saw the bounding mass of wind and electricity, as did also his brakeman, W. F. Dobson. This train and its valuable contents just escaped destruction.

Annie Marsden, a young girl from Boscobel, Wis., had dismissed her twenty pupils when she saw the approach of the storm. It was already 3:30 in the afternoon. She was conducting her second term of school and two miles beyond her on the same section line her brother was conducting a county school. She boarded at the farmhouse of L. McCoombs, the wealthiest farmer in the district. His home was a quarter of a mile distant from the school. Four of his children were taught by her. When she sent the other children home the four were frightened and refused to leave. Annie Marsden stood in the center of the little white school house and drew the four children, whose ages ranged from 5 to 14, about her and waited. An instant later the cyclone was upon the school house and the five hapless beings within. In less time than it takes for a watch to tick the seconds of a minute the teacher and one child were dead and two others fatally injured. The school house and its rock foundation was swept out of existence. At the Haggie school house, where George Marsden, brother of Annie, was teaching, not a vestige of the school house remained and Mr. Marsden was found some distance away in a field, dead, together with two pupils.

On the McCoombs homestead every building was destroyed but the house. There was not a seeded crop in his fields worth a picayune, and the honest accumulations of a lifetime swept away by a half hour's storm. His hundreds of acres of wheat, oats and barley were buried in dust and debris out of sight forever. His farming machinery was scattered for miles about his home. His cattle were dead or dying. At the little school house where his children had lisped their A B C's there was a hole to mark the spot, and in his house a little one dead and three others praying for relief from pain.

Beyond McCoombs' the storm raged. Curious things were found in the field by the relief parties sent out. In one field, on the crest of a furrow, lay an open prayer book. A clod of earth pointed to the lines, "Have mercy on me, O God, according to Thy great mercy." On the fly leaf of the book was found the name of Eva Butler. Mrs. Butler's home was three-quarters of a mile distant from where the book was found. Leaving the Butler's, the storm attacked Herman Ripma, one-half mile north of the destroyed school house. Ripma had his arm badly crushed, his house destroyed and his crops ruined. But shortly before this he lost his wife and two children through trichinae.

Presented a Pitiful Sight.

At the farm of L. Wylanga was one of the most pitiful sights of the storm. Wylanga was some distance from his house when the cyclone struck his fields. He was picked up in the teeth of the gale and carried bodily over forty acres of land. He fell in a plowed field, practically uninjured, but frantic as to the safety of his own wife and children. The wind had lifted him over two wire fences, but on his return he had to cut these down in order to pass. He found his house, barns, sheds and granaries gone. His hogs and chickens were lying in their yards. Still searching for his wife, he walked to the southwest of his house. In a field tilled for an early crop of corn, he found her, face downward, unconscious. She had been carried before the wind until her strength left her. In her head was a terrible gash and from her hips downward she was a mass of bruises. Close to her bosom was clasped her baby, dead. Thus husband and wife met, with the rain beating down upon them and the ruins of their home.

The description of the McCoombs and Wylanga property and school could be repeated on nearly every section in the wake of the storm.

Numerous victims were found lodged in the trees, where they had been hurled by the storm, and so seriously injured that death is expected momentarily. Two grown boys who had come from the field near Alton at the approach of the storm were injured in the barnyard, one seriously and the other fatally. Wires were completely stripped from the posts, and in some places posts were all taken from the ground. Horses, cattle and vehicles were hurled through the air like chaff, and the country for three-quarters of a mile wide and many miles in extent is entirely wrecked.

Where had stood fine residences could be found nothing but a cellar hole and in some cases a few twisted timbers, while strewn on the ground were portions of the buildings and furniture, bearing not the least semblance of their original form and useless except for kindling. Fields that were beautiful as green carpets with the sprouting grain are now as bare as in the bleak months of winter. Trees are uprooted and all is desolation along the trail of the destroyer.

In Osceola County Mrs. John Waterman, five miles west of Sibley, was instantly killed. A joist fell on her neck. She held her baby in her arms and the baby escaped injury. The Melcher and Whitney school houses were both wrecked. Miss Marie Good, teacher of the Whitney, closed the school twenty minutes before the storm struck. John Coughlin, wife and ten children were all saved by taking refuge in a cyclone cave. They lost their house, household goods, barn and had a horse killed.

DESTRUCTION IS WIDESPREAD.

Other Points Contribute to the Death List by the Cyclone.

Aside from the cyclone proper, which was confined to the three Northwestern Iowa counties, other sections of the country suffered from severe wind and electrical storms. On Saturday afternoon a terrific wind at St. Charles, Ill., blew down the brick walls that were left after the destruction by fire of the Lungreen & Wilson block. Next to the east wall was a small building owned by George Osgood, formerly used as a post office. It was occupied by Mrs. Hattie E. Church, milliner; John F. Elliott, justice of the peace, and the Anderson Sisters, dressmakers. The heavy wall crushed the small building, killing four persons and injuring two others, as follows: Charles Anderson, Miss Gustie Anderson, Mrs. Hattie E. Church, Joseph Thompson. The injured were as follows: Luke Cranston, will die; Andrew Johnson, Elgin.

Fred Cronkhite and his team were killed at Henderson, Ill., by lightning. The storm was severe at Abington, unroofing the new wagon factory, causing a damage of $10,000. Reports from the country indicate great damage.

Everett Arnold was instantly killed by the storm at Creston, Iowa.

J. P. Smith's house near Lake Geneva, Wis., was struck by lightning and totally destroyed. Loss about $40,000; well insured. Several freight cars were also burned.

George Rhodes and James Ashford, who had taken refuge in a barn, were killed by lightning at Lancaster, Mo. Both men were farmers living near Downing, and each leaves a family.

Three barns belonging to D. Ayres, about six miles west of Burlington, Wis., were struck by lightning and burned to the ground, with a loss of about $3,000. In Racine the residence of James Murphy on Jackson street was struck by lightning and his little son was knocked senseless. Considerable damage was done to the house.

At Superior, Wis., water came down in sheets, and a destructive hailstorm followed. Lightning destroyed several small buildings in the country.

A cyclone near Huron, S. D., took one-half the roof off Martin Baum's house and carried it half a mile. Lumber was scattered over the prairie. The graneries were also wrecked and scattered over the country.

FAVORS FREE SILVER.

SENATOR VOORHEES READY FOR FREE COINAGE.

He Avers the "Arrogant Apostles of Gold" Mean Ill to the People, and Demands White Metal at 16 to 1—Says We Should Not Wait for England

Wants No Straddling.

Senator Voorhees, of Indiana, in an interview on the silver question said:

I do not regret the agitation of the silver question. Sooner or later it had to be definitely settled whether the labor producing people of this country can be bulled out of half of their debt-paying money or that they will stand up like free men and protect and defend the money named and provided in the Constitution—gold and silver, or both—not one of the precious metals alone, but both, and on terms and conditions as to coinage and use of absolute equality. That is the question immediately before us, and no better time than now will ever be found for its settlement. The Sherman act, which was conceived in rancorous hostility to silver and brought forth into a law by an iniquitous betrayal of silver free coinage, has been buried in an unhonored grave, over which no lament will ever be heard. I have never been willing to admit that our system of currency should be dictated by England and other foreign countries, and I repel that idea now. The real and vital issue now presented to the American people is the proposed elimination of silver from our currency. This movement means the destruction of half of the debt-paying money of the United States and of the world. If it should be successful it will double the burdens on every debtor and multiply the gains and income of every creditor wherever the sun shines.

The debts of the American people at this time, both public and private, are appalling in amount. They have been contracted on a bimetallic basis and it is now proposed to make them payable on a basis of gold alone. The two metals also constitute the specie basis for such paper currency as may be put in circulation. If silver money is destroyed paper circulation must be contracted in that proportion. Every form and kind of money must become that much scarcer and harder to get in exchange for labor and the products of labor. Such a policy is to my mind simply horrible. I have not a particle of doubt as to the result of the contest now going on. The enemies of silver will be driven to the wall. Silver money will not only survive but it will be fully restored to its old place as a leading and controlling factor in the development and the progress of the country.

Danger from the coinage and use of silver as money in this country never occurred to the sane mind until greed, avarice, unholy speculation reared its serpent head and aimed a vicious, deadly blow at the honored dollar of the fathers in 1873. Since that time we have had nothing but financial vexation, distrusts, business depression, ruinous panics, and confiscation.

SENATOR VOORHEES.

If I am told on this question that silver bullion as a marketable commodity at this time commands a low price, my answer is that if gold had been conspired against, persistently assailed by foul means as well as fair, stabbed in the dark and in the daylight, and in the back and under the fifth rib, and wherever else a dagger could be planted for nearly a quarter of a century past, it would be in a far worse crippled condition than silver. No other form of money on the face of the earth could have withstood as silver has done such a malignant, unsparing crusade as the last twenty-two years have witnessed in this country. It still holds its place in the affections and confidence of the people. Battered, bruised, and tattered as it has been, yet it will buy to-day all that gold will buy, and pay all the debts that gold will pay, unless a special contract has been made for gold. The American people will never give it up, and the sooner the minions of aggressive, indolent, consolidated wealth and the arrogant apostles of gold monometallism realize and act upon this fact the better and safer it will be for them in the future of this country.

The need of the white metal in the hands of the people is even greater now than ever before. There is scarcely a speck of gold in sight of the laboring classes. In round numbers there are nearly four thousand millions of gold money in the world and about the same amount of silver. With silver demonetized the plain people, the wage workers, and those who raise and sell the produce of the soil will handle specie money no more forever, and will catch even a glimpse of it but seldom.

I wish to impugn the motives of no one and to avoid hard words in discussion as much as possible; but the time has come when speech, though temperate, should be very plain. Party platforms from this time forward will not be framed to cheat on this subject, whatever may have been done heretofore. If the free and unlimited coinage of silver as full legal tender money and as a standard of statutes and the unit of account and payment, without a word of international agreement on the subject, will put this country on a silver basis, then we were on such a basis every day and hour from the passage of the first coinage act in April, 1792, until the demonetization act of February, 1873, a period of eighty-one years, during which we rose from weakness to the foremost rank among the nations of the earth. I commend to all croakers in regard to a silver basis a careful reading of the act of April 2, 1792, formulated by Hamilton and Jefferson and approved by Washington.

SECRETARY MORTON'S VIEWS.

Declares Himself for Gold Supply and Demand Regulates Value.

Secretary Morton, in an interview on the silver question, said: "I do not believe that an international conference can establish permanently a commercial ratio between gold and silver any more than it can establish a permanent commercial ratio between rye and wheat. But if an international conference can fix the price of gold and silver it can also fix the price of wheat or any commodity, and thereby avoid all possible shrinkages in value which tend to cause panics.

SEC. MORTON.

"My own judgment is that we must sooner or later declare that the United States recognizes gold as the best and least fluctuating measure of value and medium of exchange which the commerce of civilization has thus far utilized. The time for straddlers is passed. Those who are for sound currency on a gold basis ought to have the courage to say so and abide by the results of their convictions. I have no hesitation in declaring myself opposed to all free coinage fallacies. My judgment is that silver cannot be restored to its former monetary place in the commerce of the world, because the supply of silver has outgrown the demand for silver in the exchanges of civilization. The relation of supply to demand is the regulator of value. This axiom applies alike to salt, silver, sugar and soap. All the legislation of the law-making bodies on the face of the globe can neither mitigate nor annul the operation of the inexorable law. The relation of supply and demand is the sole regulator of value."

Proposed Republican Policy.

Washington dispatch: Certain elements in the Republican party will endeavor to obtain a definite declaration regarding silver at the national convention. They think it useless to attempt to commit the party to free and unlimited coinage, but they will try to secure insertion in the platform of a provision for coinage of silver to a considerable amount. They are even willing to change the ratio and make it 18 to 1, or thereabouts, but they want the Republican party to commit itself to the coinage of $400,000,000 in silver. There are Republicans in the East who call themselves friends of silver, and this is the kind of policy they are counseling.

FOR FREE COINAGE.

Ex-Speaker Crisp Says the 1896 Democratic Convention Should So Declare.

In an interview at Atlanta ex-Speaker Crisp gives his views of the coming presidential campaign and the politics which will enter into it. He says:

"From the time of the tariff commission of 1880 down to a year ago tariff reform had its varying fortunes, resulting at last in a revision acceptable to the people. The silver question is going through the same course of public discussion. Just as in that fight the silver men will have their battle royal, when the American people will award the victory. The majority of people in both parties are in favor of the free coinage of silver. They are today behind the free silver movement, and they will push it on to success and have silver re-established to its old equality with gold. In the next campaign the rehabilitation of silver will be the controlling issue upon which Democracy will appeal to the people. Party platforms should always be plain and direct. Whatever reason existed for different constructions of the platform of 1892 should no longer exist, and for this purpose that to be adopted in 1896 should be so plain that even a school boy can understand it. The platform should declare for the free coinage of silver.

EX-SPEAKER CRISP.

"Of course," said Mr. Crisp, "there is a contingency in which the people might not be called upon to settle the question—that is the probable action of an international conference. That would be the best and easiest method of re-establishing silver, and with less of the element of experiment in it. If such a conference should be called, and it took action restoring silver so that the people would be satisfied, we would have no financial issue for 1896. I am in favor of its free coinage, as I have always been."

ALLISON FOR SOUND MONEY.

Iowa Man So Expresses Himself to a Chicago Newspaper Interviewer.

Senator William B. Allison, of Iowa, passed through Chicago the other day on his way to Washington. In response to the quiries of an interviewer he said: "I am in favor of sound money. Gold and silver have been the money of nations for centuries, and all that is needed is to establish the relative value of the two metals. The question now is how can we place silver in circulation and pass it current with gold? It is gratifying, is it not, to know that a few men can save our country by loaning us gold to pay our current expenses?"

ALLISON.

Tennessee Bimetallic League.

The first movement of the friends of free silver coinage in Tennessee to organize was made when, in response to a call, a gathering of the supporters of the white metal was held in Memphis, at which the nucleus of a Bimetallic League to embrace the entire State was formed. Before organization was perfected the meeting declared its principles in a brief resolution favoring the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, independent of the action of other countries.

Trials of the New Party.

Washington dispatch: When the Bimetallic League, which has headquarters in Washington, organized the new silver league on a 16 to 1 basis, it was with the expectation that both Populists and free coinage Democrats would go into it. The Democrats refused to have anything to do with a new party movement, and now the League people have been informed that the Populists will decline to join them.

Sixteen to One Move in Texas.

At a caucus in Austin, Tex., of the members of the Legislature, at which Hon. John H. Reagan, ex-State Comptrollers Brown and Swain and other prominent citizens were present, resolutions were adopted looking to the organization of the free silverites in Texas on the 16 to 1 basis.

Carlisle to Speak at Memphis.

Secretary Carlisle has confirmed the report that he is to address the sound-money convention at Memphis. He sent a formal acceptance and will at once begin the preparation of what he is to say.

WORK OF THE LAST CONGRESS.

Over Twelve Thousand Bills Introduced, but Very Few Became Laws.

According to figures prepared by B. S. Platt, enrolling clerk of the Senate, 720 bills and joint resolutions became laws during the third session of the Fifty-third Congress. Of these 215 were Senate and 505 House bills and resolutions. During the entire Congress 12,223 measures were introduced in the two houses, of which 2,952 originated in the Senate and 9,271 in the House. The Senate passed 527 of its own bills, but only 239 of these received favorable action in the House, while of the 711 House bills which passed the House, 569 also passed the Senate. The President vetoed or failed to sign 24 of the Senate bills sent to him, while 54 House bills met the same fate at the hand of the executive. It appears from this statement that less than 6 per cent. of the bills introduced during the Congress became laws.

Bridget's Dates.

"Bridget, I am tired of your carelessness. Only look at all that dust lying about on the furniture. It's six weeks old at the very least."

Bridget (very dignified)—Then it is no fault of mine. You knows very well, mum, that I have been with you only three weeks."—Exchange.

The eyeball is white because the blood vessels that feed its substance are so small that they do not admit the red corpuscles.

Some men would rather not pray than to have their trousers bag at the knees.

NEWS OF OUR STATE.

A WEEK AMONG THE HUSTLING HOOSIERS.

What Our Neighbors Are Doing—Matters of General and Local Interest—Marriages and Deaths—Accidents and Crimes—Poisons About Our Own People.

Don't Waste the Gas.

Prof. J. C. Leuzi, State Gas Inspector, who has returned from a tour of the gas belt, authorizes the following statement, warning the public against the needless waste of gas: "There are many sections of the gas field that I have not visited at all, and am, therefore, not sufficiently informed to give an intelligent estimate of the gas supply; but judging from what data I have at hand, I believe that the statistic pressure of the gas field is decreasing. True, there are some wells that show a very slight decrease, if any, but this is the exception and not the rule. The belief in many places that gas will last forever, and the extravagant use and waste caused thereby, are doing great damage to the commercial interests of the gas field; for no one knows better than the manufacturer, who is looking for a location for a factory, that at the present rate of reckless wasting of this precious fuel, the time is not far distant when he will have to return to coal. The gas companies have realized this for some time, and are doing all they can to husband their supply, and I am glad to say that in some places the people are awakening to these facts; are doing what they can to create a sentiment against the waste of this fuel."

Minor State News.

HOMER THOMAS was thrown from a horse at Elwood, and fatally injured.

SURVEY for the new electric road between Elwood and Anderson has begun.

JOSEPH ELLIS, 20, while working in a field near Warren, was killed by lightning.

THE Dieterich syndicate has brought the Logansport natural gas plant for $500-000.

EARLHAM college museum has received a tremendous alligator from a Florida friend.

HENRY county fair association has decided to build a half mile track at New Castle.

WORMS are destroying corps, meadows and other vegetation in Clarke and Floyd counties.

ORA PICKETT, 10, Noblesville, is dead from injuries received by falling from a haystack.

FRED YEATON, of Indianapolis, was seriously injured in a runaway accident at Columbus.

THE barn and four horses of Reuben Pierce of Sullivan burned. Loss, $1,500; no insurance.

FULTON county commissioners have let the contract for a new $78,000 court house, to be built at Rochester.

A MAD bull viciously attacked a horse driven by James McCombs near Logansport. McCombs was seriously hurt.

THE Muncie architectural iron works were destroyed by fire recently, for the second time since construction. Loss $20-000.

THE county seat removal question is being revived in Lake county, Hammond disputing with Crown Point for a relocation.

MAD dogs have done considerable damage to stock in Morgan county. Many hogs have been killed, suffering with rabies.

A CHILD was born in Kokomo, recently that is the fourteenth daughter of the fourteeth daughter. Mrs. S. H. Burt is the mother.

GUY SHEPHERED was waylaid by footpads at Vincennes, beaten unmercifully, robbed and driven home in a buggy by the robbers.

HOMER THOMAS, 15 years old, while horseback riding two miles east of Alexandria, was thrown from his horse and fatally injured.

SOUTH BEND will send a delegation to Washington to protest against the new public building in that City. The citizens are greatly dissatisfied with the plans.

MRS. BANTA'S three children played with kerosine at Washington, and one of them struck a match. The house was destroyed and one of the children fatally burned.

A PLYMOUTH man returned a stolen dress skirt to its owner, accompanying it with a note explaining in illiterate language that he stole it to clothe his naked wife, but it was his first theft and his conscience hurt him.

JAMES H. CHANDLER, running a restaurant at Indianapolis, was appealed to by a chambermaid for protection against three drunken fellows. Chandler undertook to remonstrate with his customers, and was hurled down a steep flight of steps, fatally fracturing his skull.

EZRA SEARLES, of Muncie, has mortgaged his property for $500 and gone to New York to try and get his son, Arthur Searles, out of prison by making good the money the young man received by fraudulently representing himself to be an agent of an Indianapolis newspaper.

AT Lafayette, Judge Everett rendered a decision in ex-Attorney-general Smith's suit to recover from the school trustees a considerable sum of money that had not been expended for tuition purposes. The court held

HILDA

Charlotte M. Braeme.

CHAPTER III.

The hasty, unequal marriage made no sensation. Few knew anything of Mr. Hurst, except that he was one of the gentlemen who visited the Hall. The beautiful girl who lived in the quite seclusion of Brynmar Woods was known and admired; so one expressed any surprise at hearing that she had married a "gentleman from London."

Stephen Hurst married the beautiful, simple country girl, and took her to London. He established her in third-rate lodgings in Pimlico. When fortune favored him he supplied her liberally with money; when it frowned he contented himself by abusing her. He was not naturally a cruel man; he would never rejoice in torture for torture's sake, but he was selfish and egotistical, mean and false.

It was some time before she discovered that he had no source of income save what he derived from gambling and betting. It was a bitter sorrow to her. She implored him to try some honest method of living; she offered to work for him, but he only laughed at her ideas, and told her when he could afford it he should open a gambling saloon at home.

Before long he did so, and then the real torture of her life began for Magdalen Hurst.

Stephen Hurst seemed all at once to lose his good luck. He never touched a card without losing money; he grew moody and irritable, then desperate, and in an evil hour he fell into the lowest depths. He forged the name of a young nobleman who had frequently played at his house. The forgery succeeded, and the sum of money he obtained was a large one; but, as invariably happens, detection followed the crime closely. He was watched, arrested and tried. The gay, dashing Stephen Hurst, who had purposely thrown off all principle, and hated all restraint, found himself now a prisoner for one of those crimes which the law punishes most severely. Then, when the world justly fell upon him, when good and bad looked alike with abhorrence upon him, he learned the value of a wife's love.

Magdalen Hurst clung to him still. Others might believe him guilty—he might be condemned and punished—it made no difference to her, he was her kin, though a fallen one. Woman-like, she loved him even more tenderly and truly in his adversity than she had done in his prosperity. Others blamed him; she knew how he had been tempted; she made a hundred excuses for him, even while she deplored his crime. When the day of his trial came men gazed with wonder on the beautiful white face, so full of anguish and despair. Her eyes never left him, and her lips quivered with every word that told against him. When the sentence of ten years' transportation was given, one long, low cry, never forgotten by those who heard it, rang through the court, and Magdalen Hurst fell as one dead.

Five weeks before Stephen Hurst left England, little Hilda was born; he only saw her once. What there was of a better nature in him was touched when his fair young wife laid the little babe in his arms. He half wished he had been a better man; but the good impulse vanished almost before he kissed the little face. He made his wife promise that she would come to him if she could, and she intended at any cost to keep her word.

Magdalen Hurst never knew how the day passed that took her husband away. It was one long dream of unutterable anguish. Awakening from it, she found herself alone in the great city of London—alone, save for her little child. She would not go home, where they would talk continually of the man she loved, where every idle word uttered against him would pierce her loving, faithful heart; so for three years Magdalen remained in the great city working hard to maintain herself and her child. During that time Donald Burns and his wife died. Miss Erskine, who married Lord Hutton, returned with him from abroad, and went to Brynmar.

Then Magdalen received a letter from her husband, begging her to go out to him; but she had not the means. She tried to save money, but found it impossible, out of her small earnings. Another year passed, and then Magdalen put aside her pride and went back to Brynmar. She found her foster-sister, Lady Hutton, in the bitterest depths of sorrow; her husband and little child, to whom she was passionately attached, were both drowned by the upsetting of a boat upon the lake. She stood upon the bank and saw them die before her eyes, unable to render them the least assistance; she saw her little daughter's golden head disappear in the cold water; she saw her husband struggle in vain to save himself and his child.

Many suns rose and set before Lady Hutton saw anything again; and, on the very day that her husband and child were brought home to Brynmar to be buried, Magdalen Hurst reached the little cottage where her simple, happy childhood had been spent. She waited there many long weeks until Lady Hutton was able to see her; then, taking little Hilda by the hand, she went to the Hall.

Sorrow and illness had so completely changed Lady Hutton, that her foster-sister hardly knew her again. There was but little greeting between them until Lady Hutton's eyes fell upon the child; then her pale face grew whiter, and her hands trembled.

"Is that your child, Magdalen?" she asked. "Is that Stephen Hurst's daughter?"

When Magdalen replied that it was, Lady Hutton led her to her own room, where hung the portrait of a lovely little girl, not unlike the one who gazed upon it.

"See," said she, "your child is like mine, Magdalen; you must give her to me; look at the violet eyes and the golden hair."

There was, indeed, some faint resemblance between the two fair little faces.

"You want money, Magdalen," said Lady Hutton—"money to take you to your husband; you shall have it—as much as you like to ask me for—if you will give me your child. Let her be mine."

At first Magdalen Hurst was deaf to all entreaties; she would not hear of it; then the master-passion of her life came into play. He whom she loved had sent for her, and sent again. She yielded at length, and consented that Lady Hutton should adopt her child. It was a hard struggle; how hard none knew but herself.

It was arranged at last to give little Hilda a trial; she was to visit Lady Hutton; if she appeared happy and contented her mother agreed to leave her there; if not, she would forego the great wish of her heart. But Hilda was quite contented; she liked her new and pretty dresses, the grand house, and, above all, the stately lady who was so cold to everyone else, and so kind to her; for Lady Hutton loved the child with a love beyond all words, and when that little golden head rested on her heart it seemed as though her own Maud was there again. Better, a thousand times, the pattering of little feet than the hushed calm of a house where no child lives; better the musical prattle of a stranger's voice than the unbroken silence; better the clasp of those tender little arms, the kisses of the sweet, childish lips, than the haunting memories that were never still.

So for three weeks Magdalen Hurst lived alone in her little cottage, and then consented to part with her child. The conditions Lady Hutton made were hard ones, but she would not alter them. Hilda was to be as her own daughter; never again was Magdalen Hurst to claim her, or call Hilda her child; never, let what would happen.

Lady Hutton was liberal in her own way. She did not spare gold, and Magdalen Hurst left England amply provided for, and never saw the face of her foster-sister again.

CHAPTER IV.

Ten years passed by and brought with them great changes to Brynmar. Sir Ralph and Lady Erskine slept with their ancestors in the family vault. Lady Hutton was sole mistress of the Hall and of the large fortune left by her father. She heard once from Magdalen Hurst; and then a silence, deep and unbroken as the silence of death, hid the mother of Lady Hutton's ward from all who had ever known her. The letter was a brief one, stating that she had found her husband, and, in accordance with her promise, never told him to whom she had confided her child. Hilda had been adopted, she said, by a lady who did not wish her name to be known; he seemed quite indifferent about it, and asked no questions.

Lady Hutton read correctly enough that a broken heart was revealed in every sad word of that letter. Magdalen Hurst sent no address; she asked no questions, and Lady Hutton never heard from her again.

Day by day Lady Hutton grew fonder of her adopted daughter. Hilda was taught to call her mamma, and in every way she was treated as her own child.

No one knew the girl's history, and even among the servants only a small number knew that she was Lady Hutton's adopted daughter—most people believed her to be the lady's own child. She was called Miss Hutton, of Brynmar, and it was generally known that she would inherit Lady Hutton's fortune.

No question ever came to Hilda as to what she would do with her life. Its calm, simple pleasures sufficed; she never looked beyond them; but Lady Hutton was ambitious for her. Day by day she watched the growth of that wondrous loveliness, and built her hopes upon it. The world she had given up and ceased to care for should smile upon her ward. She spared no pains over her education, and she rarely allowed her to be long out of her presence.

As soon as she reached her seventeenth year Lady Hutton intended taking her to London. With her beauty and prospects, lovers in plenty would surround her, and from them Lady Hutton decided she should choose the noblest and the best, but not one word of these plans did she ever mention to Hilda.

"Her heart will be untouched," thought Lady Hutton; "her fancy will be free. If I use my influence, she will marry whom I please, and that will be the most eligible man who presents himself. She will be something different from the general run of young ladies. I shall have no troublesome love affairs with her."

With her talents and wealth Lady Hutton could do much, but she could not control fate. Once, and once only, had the girl asked any questions about her parents.

"Mamma," she said one day to the stately mistress of Brynmar, "I am not your very own daughter, am I?"

"Who has been talking such nonsense to you, Hilda?" was the impatient question.

"Elpsie, your old housekeeper," replied Hilda. "She says I am your adopted daughter, and that I have another mother living away from here."

"Elpsie will leave Brynmar if I hear any more gossiping," said Lady Hutton, haughtily. "Listen to me, Hilda. You are my adopted child; no one else in this world has any claim upon you. I had a little daughter all my own once, and when she was taken from me you supplied her place. You have no friend but myself."

"Lady Hutton," said the young girl, earnestly, "who was my mother? Tell me something of her."

Her fair young face was pale and wistful.

"There is nothing to tell you, my dear," replied Lady Hutton; "she was my friend—we were children together—I adopted you; and surely, Hilda, you want no one else save me?"

Seeing that the very mention of the matter agitated and annoyed Lady Hutton, Hilda never alluded to it again; and as years passed on, and she grew older, the fact that she was only the adopted daughter of her stately benefactress grew more vague and indistinct.

It was a pleasant life when Hilda reached her sixteenth year, for then Lady Hutton dismissed her governess and masters.

"You must give yourself up to reading now," she said, "for a few months, and then I will take you into what you will think another world."

The large library was thrown open, and Lady Hutton selected the books, and Hilda read for the first time masterpieces of poetry and prose that enchanted her. Such reading was the one thing wanted to complete and perfect her.

The beautiful young face which bent over the volumes was a poem in itself. It changed with every thought, sometimes glowing bright and radiant, again sorrowful and half sad. From the fairy world of poetry and romance she learned something of the mysteries of life, the mystery of human love and human suffering—never dreaming it would one day reach her.

* * * * * *

One beautiful morning in May, Hilda rose earlier than usual. Elpsie had told her on the previous evening that any lady who for nine mornings together bathed her face in May dew would be beautiful forever. Hilda resolved to try it, and on this particular day rose almost with the sun, while the dew still lay upon the flowers, little dreaming that on that day the tragical story of her life would begin.

A golden glow seemed to have fallen over the earth when Hilda stood on the hill near Brynmar woods; the air was full of an indescribable melody and fragrance; the birds sang, the flowers bloomed, the hawthorn shone white upon the hedges; all was fresh, fair and beautiful. Heaven seemed smiling upon the bright face of the earth.

There was plenty of dew upon the heather; it glistened on the long blades of grass and shone upon the green leaves; and before long the fair young face was bathed in it.

An artist meeting Hilda then would have sketched her and called his picture "The May Morning." She looked just as fair and bright; the violet eyes were clear and lustrous; the beautiful face tinged with the loveliest color, and the golden hair waving over her graceful neck and shoulders.

"I will walk home through the woods," thought Hilda.

The way was long and pleasant, and she lingered in the deep shades watching with loving eyes the wild flowers that grew round the tall trees; watching the bees, which could never decide whether cowslips, bluebells or primroses were the most delicious and sweet; forgetting, as the warm sunny hours rolled on, that Lady Hutton would be waiting for her, and that the time for breakfast had long passed. While looking at the flowers some pretty fantastic lines she had read came into her mind:

"My own bluebell, my pretty bluebell,
I have come from the bower where the roses dwell;
My wings you view of your own bright hue,
And, oh! never doubt that my heart's true blue."

"What words!" said the young girl, laughingly, as she bent over the bluebells, "what words to put on a butterfly's lips!" Then in her rich, musical voice, she began to sing them. The sweet voice rose high in the clear morning air, until one could have fancied the trees, and flowers, and wind listened in hushed silence.

Hilda thought she was quite alone, singing, as she gathered the pretty bluebells, but down the broadwood path there came a young and handsome man. He stood for a few minutes silently watching the beautiful golden-haired girl, doubting whether the figure before him was real. Turning suddenly, Hilda saw him, and a rush of color dyed her fair face crimson. He advanced toward her, holding his hat in his hand and bowing reverentially as though she were a princess.

"I beg you to forgive me if I have alarmed you," he said. "I have lost my way in the woods and cannot find the path to the high-road. Will you have the kindness to point it out to me?"

"The one to the right," replied Hilda, raising her eyes to the handsomest and noblest face she had ever seen.

Then he should have bowed and left her, and she should have walked away, never once looking behind; but the sun shone and the birds sang. They were both young, she beautiful and fair as the morning; and instead of leaving her he spoke again.

"These are bonny woods," he said. "I have not seen fairer in all Scotland. They belong to the Brynmar estate, I suppose?"

Hilda bowed. She had not recovered her powers of speech. Who was this handsome stranger? Where had he come from?

"You are losing your bluebells," he said, gallantly. He stooped and, gathering them together again, offered them to her. "Those were pretty words I heard you singing," he continued; "they are quite new to me. May I ask whose they are?"

Hilda forgot her shyness then, and told him that she had read them the day before, and could not forget them. His eyes were riveted upon her beautiful face, his ears were charmed by the sound of her voice; he could have stood there, he thought, forever. Was ever picture so fair? In the soft light that fell through the green foliage, her fair face and golden hair shone brightly. He never forgot her as she stood then, with shy, drooping eyes, and the bluebells in her pretty white hands. He lingered until he knew he ought to go.

"Will you give me one of those flowers?" he said, touching the bluebells; "just as a little memento of the most pleasant morning I ever spent, and the most beautiful picture I ever saw—only one; I beg you will not refuse."

Half-smiling, half-coyly, she drew out a single flower, and offered it to him. His face flushed as he took it from her. Other words trembled upon his lips. He longed to tell her how beautiful, how fair and modest she was, and that he could never forget her; he longed to ask her name, where she dwelt, and why she was alone in the shades of Brynmar woods. But he did none of these things—he bowed as he would have done to a queen, and left her.

(To be continued.)

CARRYING OBELISKS.

British Engineers Not So Skillful in the Work as Americans.

There was a party around one of the small tables on the veranda of the Columbia Athletic Club the other night, says the Washington Post, when the talk turned on the Washington monument, and from that drifted to obelisks in general.

"Well, one of the most pleasant recollections I have to look back on," said Adam Johnson, who was one of the party, "is the fact that I was one of the party that helped to run up the American colors over Cleopatra's Needle, when it was being taken down to be carried to New York. Our vessel was out in the Mediterranean with a roving commission, and we were at Alexandria at the time the obelisk was being moved. The big stone had been presented by the Egyptian Government to this country, but the people were wild about having it moved. We had to place a guard around the men who were working on the shaft, and even then there was almost a riot. But that was one of the prettiest pieces of engineering work I have ever seen. The engineers who were moving our shaft had a couple of wooden cases built that fitted around the needle like the pieces of wood around the lead in a pencil. There were a couple of projections on each side of the castings just on the center of gravity in the shaft, like the trunions on a cannon. Under these they put lifting jacks and just picked that immense stone off its pedestal, swung it around horizontally, and then lowered it as gently as could be on a long sliding way, with cannon balls under it for rollers. They had a square hole cut in the stern of the steamer, and slid it into the hull through that and replaced the sheathing outside.

"Under the shaft in the inside of the pedestal there were a lot of bronze toads and ornaments, and the Lord knows what not, that the masons claimed were placed there by some of their progenitors aeons ago. I don't know anything about that, and you can leave it or take it, as you choose. The British were not half so slick with the obelisk they carried over to England. They eased it up in a big sheet iron arrangement like a boiler, riveted it in, and floated the whole down to the water. Then they rigged jury sails on it and towed it over to England, but they lost three or four men before they got it in port and had all sorts of a time generally. A couple of years afterward I saw the British obelisk set up on the east bank of the Thames, and when I came home the first thing I went to see was ours in Central Park."

SHARE IN THE PROFIT

HOW NEGRO FARMERS TILL THE SOUTHERN SOIL.

Old Plantations Cut Up Into Small Farms, Each Worked by a Tenant Who Pays the Landlord a Portion of the Crops.

Measured by Mules.

Macon, Ga., correspondence:

The tenant system in the cotton belt is unique. Before the war the agricultural sections of the State were divided into extensive plantations—3,000, 4,000, 5,000 and sometimes 10,000 acres, owned by one man, under a single management, and worked by gangs of slaves, male and female, directed by overseers, with a "field hand" for every thirty or forty acres, according to the wealth or the generosity of the master. Sometimes they would work fifty acres to a hand, but that was excessive cruelty, and such planters were universally condemned. That system meant 100 slaves for a 3,000-acre plantation, 150 or 160 for a 5,000-acre plantation, and 300 or 400 slaves for 10,000 acres. Nowadays much of the land is allowed to lie idle. The owner retains 200 or 300 acres around his residence for his own use, and farms the rest of the place, or as much of it as he can, on shares; and the extent of its cultivation is usually governed by the character of the land and the character of the landlord.

A GEORGIA COTTON GIN.

To a large extent the tenants to-day are the same men and women who lived upon the place as slaves; and they cultivate the same soil as freemen that they did in bondage, some of them being the better and others the worse for the change. And to a remarkable degree the same relations exist between the employer and the employed—the patriarchal system of communism and dependence which is often admirable, but sometimes degrading and oppressive.

The uneducated negro is a thoroughly domestic animal, and when he once forms an attachment for a place it is difficult to drive him away. Sometimes the restless, wayward ones wander off from the old plantation and are gone for years, but they will invariably claim a residence there and usually come back sooner or later, and expect to be taken on and given work again. This rule applies only to those plantations where the people were well treated in slave times and since, and where the property has been retained by the same owners. Often when a place is sold, if the negroes do not like the appearance or the behavior of the purchaser, they will evacuate in a body and build cabins upon the land of some kindlier man in the neighborhood whom they know, or who may be related to their old master.

When the ties of personal attachment are cut it does not take them long to move. A couple of men can build a cabin in three or four days with no tools but an ax to hew and trim the wood and a trowel to handle the mortar in building the chimney.

It was also the rule for plantations upon which there were hard masters to be entirely abandoned during the war, and when emancipation came, and many of them have never been repopulated. There are many farms in the South upon which no negro is willing to work for any wages or under any conditions. Those farms were the scenes of cruelties during slavery and are cursed—tabooed forever. And there are certain men who can never hire negro labor. If a negro should consent to work for them he would be boycotted by his race; he would be turned out of the church and ostracized in every way. The prejudices and the vindictiveness of the colored people are as deep-rooted as their attachments and their loyalty.

A PRIMITIVE COTTON PRESS.

But after emancipation a large majority of the slave population in the cotton belt remained in the old cabins or built new ones upon the old plantation, and their children are now working the lands their fathers and grandfathers tilled, receiving a share of the crop for their labor, or rather, in the way they are pleased to consider it, paying a share of their harvest to the landlord annually for ground rent.

Some of the frugal and industrious ones have purchased little farms from their old masters and are constantly adding to their real estate. Some have shown such ability and sagacity that they now own the property on which they worked as slaves—the entire plantation—and now and then you hear of an instance where one of these fortunate freemen has given financial aid or a home to his old master or mistress or some member of their family who are not too proud to accept charity from their former chattels.

A LOAD OF GEORGIA PRODUCE.

I have been told of a colored planter in the southern part of this State who maintains his former master and mistress in their old mansion just as they lived, although perhaps not so luxuriously, when he was their slave, while he resides in a more modest structure on another part of the place. They are childless and feeble-minded, and one of their delusions, which he permits them to enjoy and impose upon their friends, is that they still own the old plantation, and that he is their overseer or agent in charge.

Farms are not rented by acres and very rarely for cash, and there is seldom any lease or contract or memorandum. Between white and black men such papers are unknown. The unwritten laws of leasehold are the same all over this section, and have been unchanged since the war. Business follows a universal custom and is conducted entirely upon faith and the knowledge of the habits of men. There are one-mule farms and two-mule farms and four-mule farms. Area is not measured by acres nor by the labor of men, but by the number of mules employed.

A negro rents from his old master or his landlord as much land as he can cultivate with one mule, and the annual rental is one bale of cotton. If he has two mules he takes as much land as he can cultivate with them, and the rental is two bales of cotton, and so on. A one-mule farm is usually about forty acres, and a two-mule farm from eighty to a hundred acres. A man can cultivate more than twice as much land with two mules as with one, because he has two or three "hands" to help him, and their combined effort can accomplish more than if they are working independently. Men, women, boys and girls work in the fields together, and they plow also with steers, cows and heifers; but in estimating the rental nothing but a mule or a horse counts.

In addition to the land the tenant receives credit from his landlord, or from some supply store upon the latter's indorsement, to the extent of $4 a month, or $48 a year, for every mule he works. That buys his seed, his fertilizer, his implements and tools and necessaries of life, such as sugar, tea, coffee and tobacco for his family. The rest of his food he is supposed to raise himself, and he wants little more than cornmeal, bacon, eggs, chickens and the vegetables of his garden.

A GEORGIA FAMILY AT HOME.

At the end of the season all the crop is taken to the gin house—there is one upon almost every plantation—where, after the cotton is ginned, the landlord first takes out enough to settle the store account and his own bale or bales for rental. Then the tenant has what is left to dispose of as he pleases. It may be five bales or two or half a bale, or there may be nothing whatever coming to him for the whole season's labor. With a good crop he ought to harvest from six to ten bales on a one-mule farm, with an ordinary crop from four to six, but sometimes there is a failure and he finds himself in debt both to his landlord and at the store. But if there is any cotton the landlord gets it. A bale of cotton averages 500 pounds and the price at the gin house varies from 5 to 7 cents a pound.

Usually the colored tenant lets his cotton go with the rest, and receives his pay when the landlord sells his own. It may be in the winter, or perhaps in the spring; but it is a matter of faith. Sometimes he sells out to his landlord at current rates as soon as the cotton is weighed, and sometimes he hauls his bales to town one after another and gets what he can for them.

All the family usually go to town together when the cotton money is due and unite in the pleasure of its disbursement. They do not expect or intend to save anything. They will not go home as long as a penny remains. The old woman and the girls want new dresses, shoes, hats and bright ribbons. The old man wants cloth for some new shirts or a pair of shoes. He seldom buys a hat or a coat. He gets those garments from his old master or his landlord, and as they are worn on Sundays and holidays only they last for years.

When the necessaries are purchased, and they are very few, the esthetic fancies of the family run riot. Confectionery and cologne are bought first. They may properly be included with the necessaries of life. Then they invest in tinsel jewelry and bright-colored fans, photograph albums, for which they have no photographs; books, with showy bindings, which they cannot read; clocks, from which they cannot tell the time, and plaster images, pillow shams, embroidered counterpanes and fancy table cloths; bright-colored pictures in gilt or silver frames and every variety of article that please the eye and the palate. Then, when the cotton money is expended, the entire resources of the family are exhausted, and the remainder of the year they live upon credit or upon little things they can sell. Perhaps the old man will cut a load of wood and trade it for dry goods or groceries, or the old woman will save up her eggs and chickens and take them to town, but such sources of supply are meager and unreliable.

A COTTON PICKER.

A Handy Man's Queer Jobs.

We handy men who can do carpentering, painting and all manner of work are often asked to take suspicious and unpleasant jobs, said a handy man. I believe that shady people think we live from hand to mouth, and are ready for any queer job. Not long since a very gentlemanly sort of man called on me with drawings and asked me to make a sort of telescopic ladder, which he said was for a fire-escape. I happened to mention the matter to an expert thief-catcher, a detective of Bow street, and sure enough, my customer was a burglar and ex-convict. He was arrested on another charge. As for the tradesmen who wanted to steal from the gas companies, they have often offered me jobs in a careful sort of way. I have made several secret panels in offices; and I made one not a year ago for an employer of labor who can now both hear all the words and see all the actions of a dozen clerks. One of the last jobs I had was to knock a door out from one house into another, and then to cover over with very dark paper the door on both sides so that the pattern exactly fitted. I did not ask questions—I had no grounds for doing so—but I am pretty certain that one of the houses was a gambling place, and that some article of furniture would be placed against the door on each side. You see, we get a lot of our business by mixing about at public houses, and so on—and that is why we meet strange customers.

Shadow Pictures.

Making silhouettes of the faces of prominent men has become quite a fad in France. Below are given a few which may be produced after a little practice:

MR. GLADSTONE. BISMARCK. GAMBETTA. CZAR ALEXANDER III. LORD SALISBURY. M. THIERS.

Coat Thieves Baffled.

A practical innovation has been introduced in a Berlin restaurant, where the clothes hooks are arranged in such a way that, after hanging a coat on them, they can be locked by means of a snap lock in the upper hook or hat rack. Regular guests receive a key, while transient guests have to ask the waiter to return to them their overcoats. Since the introduction of this patent hook not an overcoat has been stolen in the place, while previous to that time considerable trouble arose both to the proprietor and guests because of sneak thieves. The new hook is very simple; the lowest part of it is on a hinge, and the lock is attached to the upper arm, being out of harm's way.

Fish.

Fish ought to be very plentiful and cheap, and most of them grow and increase without any care from man. It is said that each flounder, for instance, produces many millions of eggs. The sole produces 1,000,000 of eggs, a plaice not less than 3,000,000, while a large turbot has been credited with the deposition of 11,000,000 or 12,000,000 eggs.

"Let the Ship Walk."

Every one who has been seasick will appreciate this request of a child:

A passenger on board of a steamer from Sydney to Melbourne overheard a seasick little four-year-old girl say to her mother: "O, mamma, please do let the ship walk."

A man isn't made manager of a railroad or president of a bank because he can dance the german.

PIPER HEIDSIECK PLUG TOBACCO

Consumers of chewing tobacco who are willing to pay a little more than the price charged for the ordinary trade tobaccos, will find this brand superior to all others.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

DR. MOTT'S PENNYROYAL PILLS

The only safe, sure and reliable Female Pill ever offered to Ladies, especially recommended to married Ladies. Beware of pills put up in tin boxes as they are dangerous. Ask for DR. MOTT'S PENNYROYAL PILLS and take no other. Send for circular. Price $1.00 per box, 6 boxes for $5.00. DR. MOTT'S CHEMICAL CO., Cleveland, Ohio.

Fisher & Son, Auburn, Ind.

FITS!

Brace Up! Don't Lose Courage!!

Your disease is not incurable because your Physician has given you up, and you have not received any benefit from the medicine you have tried, is not any reason you cannot be cured. We can positively cure all kinds of Fits, Epileptic, Convulsion or Spasmodic. WE GUARANTEE A POSITIVE AND PERMANENT CURE IN ALL CASES. We have cured thousands, many cases of long standing, and given up by Doctors as incurable. In our "Allen's Fits Cure" you will find a medicine that has never failed to effect a speedy cure. We back our guarantee with an offer of $100 to any person we cannot cure. Highest Bank references furnished on application.

1 Qt. Bottle, $2.00. 2 Qt. $5.00.

ALLEN MEDICAL CO.,

Washington & Water Sts., BOSTON, MASS.

LADIES

Suffering from Retarded, Suppressed or Painful Menstruation and all irregularities of like nature, will find our FEMALE PILLS an infallible cure. They are entirely safe and can always be relied upon for speedy relief. We have yet to hear of a case where they have failed to produce the desired result. A box should be kept on hand at all times to provide for emergencies. Correspondence Confidential.

By mail, with full directions, securely sealed, $2.00 per box.

ALLEN MEDICAL CO.,

Washington & Water Sts., BOSTON, MASS.

Every Woman

Sometimes needs a reliable monthly regulating medicine.

Dr. PEAL'S PENNYROYAL PILLS,

Are prompt, safe and certain in result. The genuine (Dr. Peal's) never disappoint. Sent anywhere, $1.00. Peal Medicine Co., Cleveland, O.

Sold by Fischler & Son., Auburn.

WE HAVE NO AGENTS

but ship from our factory at wholesale prices. Ship anywhere for examination; pay freight both ways if not satisfactory. 100 styles of Carriages. 90 styles of Harness. Send 4 cts. for 112 page catalogue. ELKHART CARRIAGE AND HARNESS MFG. CO.

No. 11614 $35. W. E. Pratt, Sec'y, Elkhart, Ind.

Sex-ine Pills

RESTORE LOST VIGOR

Before and After Using.

New discovery. Will brace you up in a week. Sold with a WRITTEN GUARANTEE to Cure Nervous Debility, Loss of Sexual Power in either sex, involuntary Emissions from any cause. If neglected, such troubles lead to consumption or insanity. $1.00 per box by mail, 6 boxes for $5.00. With every $5 order we give a written guarantee to cure or refund the money. Address PEAL MEDICINE CO., Cleveland, Ohio.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

RESTORED MANHOOD.

DR. MOTT'S NERVERINE PILLS

The great remedy for nervous prostration and all nervous diseases of the generative organs of either sex, such as Nervous Prostration, Failing or Lost Manhood, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Youthful Errors, Mental Worry, excessive use of Tobacco or Opium, which lead to Consumption and Insanity. With every $5 order we give a written guarantee to cure or refund the money. Sold at $1.00 per box, 6 boxes for $5.00. DR. MOTT'S CHEMICAL COMPANY, Cleveland, Ohio.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES. OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington. Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured. A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.

OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

LYON'S SEVEN WONDERS

A SPECIFIC For all DERANGEMENTS of the STOMACH. PRICE $1.00

Manf by THE LYON MEDICINE CO. INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Disappearance of a Stomach Trouble.

Lyon Medicine Company:

DEAR SIRS—For fifteen years I was afflicted with stomach, heart and kidney troubles. I was induced to try LYON'S SEVEN WONDERS, and am more than pleased at the result. My stomach trouble has disappeared and my heart has resumed its normal action. I can cheerfully recommend it.

ALFRED PARISH.

ORLEANS, IND., July 25, 1894.

Hot Flashes and Headaches.

To the Lyon Medicine Company:

After using three boxes I am pleased to say my appetite has returned, the pains have entirely left my side, I no more experience hot flashes and my headaches have disappeared. I am free to say that had it not been for LYON'S SEVEN WONDERS I should not be alive to-day. MRS. LIZZIE JOHNSON.

ORLEANS, IND., July 26, 1894.

Insist on ARM AND HAMMER SODA in packages

BEWARE of imitation trade marks and labels.

ARM AND HAMMER

Costs no more than inferior package soda—never spoils the flour, keeps soft, and is universally acknowledged purest in the world.

Made only by CHURCH & CO., New York.
Sold by grocers everywhere.
Write for Arm and Hammer Book of valuable Recipes—FREE.

OUR GREAT APRIL SALE

ROOT & COMPANY FT. WAYNE

Will be an attraction to the ladies of this city and vicinity of unusual Merit and Magnitude.

The Dantiest Patterns In Silks.

More positively than ever has our large Silk Department become Headquarters for the best bargains in Seasonable Silks. New fancy Silks for Waists will create a very great sensation.

50c. 60c. 75c. 88c. and $100.

White and Evening Crystal and Gros de Londres Silks, New Black Satin Brocades, New Black Satin for Skirts, New Evening Crepes, Charming Shades and Very Cheap.

Black Crepons

For the great April Sale, all in stock; Black Broadcloths for Capes; Black Serges and Fancies, All-Wool and Silk and Wool.

Colored Dress Fabrics.

Elegant lines of the Charming New Crepons in all Colors, Light Weight and Wool Novelties.

35c. 40c. 50c. 60c. 75c and 1.00.

Our New Spring Underwear.

The demand has now set in with a vim, White and Ecru, Silk Cotton Lisle—Long Sleeves, Short Sleeves, No Sleeves, Union Suits.

Our Carpet Department

Shows its complete lines of New Carpeting---Wiltons, Axminsters, Moquettes, Body and Tapestry Brussels, Ingrains.

Drapery and Upholstery Goods

In the greatest variety; and at lower prices than have been known This is the month to get good selections.

MAIL ORDERS CAREFULLY EXECUTED.

ROOT & COMPANY.

WE SAVE you money, get you highest market price, and make you prompt and full returns on your

..WOOL..

Our experience of 39 years is worth something to you, our reliability also. Ask Chicago Bankers or Mercantile Houses about us. Sacks free to shippers. Write for "Wool Letter."

Silberman Brothers, 208-214 Michigan St., CHICAGO, ILL.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder World's Fair Highest Award.

English Spavin Liniment removes all hard, soft or calloused lumps and blemishes from horses, blood spavins, curbs, splints, sweeney, ring-bone, stifles, sprains, all swollen throats, coughs, etc. Save $50 by use of one bottle. Warranted the most wonderful blemish cure ever known. Sold by Robbins and McCord druggists Auburn. 34tf

Our patrons will find De Witt's Little Early Risers a safe and reliable remedy for constipation, dyspepsia and liver complaints.

$15 A DAY is fair wages for a boy. I made this working for [W. M. WOODWORTH, Kokomo, Ind. Anyone with ordinary ability can do the same; a deaf and dumb person can sell the goods as it does not require any talking. The samples, worth $1.00 will be sent with instructions, for 25 cents. Better send now best opportunity of your life to make mone

Everybody Buys.

HAMFATTERS

That's What We'd Call 'Em, But we Don't Know Who they Are.

Since the recent strong rise in the price of meat, people in general have not been throwing it away, or letting it go to waste in any shape. Still, all general rules have exceptions. An exception to this rule, came under the immediate notice of 'Squire Walborn this morning. When he first was out this morning he saw something out by the side of his house, that "was not there before." It was a market basket, and it was soaked with grease up to the handles. He paid but little attention to it till E. C. Foltz, who is painting his buildings called his attention to a couple of hams lying on the manure pile near the barn. He went and examined them. They were apparently nice hams, cured and smoked and were quite large. They were soiled by some manure sticking to them, but otherwise looked good. He took them to the house, and showed them to Mrs. Walborn After inspecting them carefully she was of the opinion they were spoiled. Mr. Foltz, also remembered that a couple of smoked shoulders were found a block or two away yesterday. They had a few slices cut off, but had probably been in possession of the same parties who left the hams at Mr. Walborn's. The matter is a mystery. If anyone had any spoiled meat, they could dispose of it easier than to carry it off at a distance. If anyone had stolen some meat, why did they abandon it in two different places? And why did they leave the basket some distance from the meat? In the meantime 'Squire says the owner can have the hams by proving property and paying for this little notice.

AUBURN ALUMNI.

The Auburn High school will form a permanent association to be called the High School Alumni. On Saturday afternoon of this week, there will be a meeting at the High School building and the organization will be perfected. Of course it takes in all the graduates of past years, and each year, the new graduates will be eligible to membership and a reception will be held annually. We understand that the plan has the sanction of both Supt. Harrison and Co. Supt. Merica.

PILES! PILES! PILES!

Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment will cure Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles when all other Ointments have failed. It absorbs the tumors allays the itching at once, acts as a poultice, gives instant relief. Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment is prepared only for Piles and itching of the private parts, and nothing else. Every box is warranted. Sold by druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of price, 50c. and $1.00 per box. WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Prop's, Cleveland, O. Sold on a guarantee by Mathews & Gerke.

BUCKLEN'S ARNICA SALVE.—The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Robbins & McCord. tf

De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve cures scalds, burns, indolent sores and never fails to cure piles.

T. F. Anthony, ex-postmaster of Promise City, Iowa, says: "I bought one bottle of 'Mystic Cure' for Rheumatism and two doses of it did me more good than all the medicine I ever took." Sold by Robbins & McCord, druggists, Auburn. 41tf

La Grippe is here again with all of its old time vigor. One Minute Cough Cure is a reliable remedy. It cures and cures quickly.

Relief in One Day.

South American Nervine relieves the worst cases of nervous prostrations nervousness and nervous dyspepsia in a single day. No such relief and blessing has ever come to the invalids of this country. Its powers to cure the stomach are wonderful in the extreme. It always cures; it cannot fail. It radically cures all weakness of the stomach and never disappoints. Its effects are marvelous and surprising.—It gladdens the hearts of the suffering and brings immediate relief. It is a luxury to take and always safe. Trial bottles 15 cents. Sold by Robbins & McCord druggist Auburn Ind. 50tf

Rebecca Wilkinson, of Brownsvalley, Ind., says: I have been in a distressed condition for three years from Nervousness Weakness of the Stomach, Dyspepsia and Indigestion until my health was gone. I had been doctoring constantly with no relief. I bought one bottle of South American Nervine, which did me more good than any $50 worth of doctoring I ever did in my life. I would advise every weakly person to use this valuable and lovely remedy; a few bottles of it has cured me completely. I consider it the greatest medicine in the world." Warranted the most wonderful stomach and nerve cure ever known. Trial bottles 15 cents. Sold by Robbins and McCord druggists Auburn Ind. 34tf

W. T. Stafford, Station Agent of Leeper, Clarion Co. Pa., writes; I can recommend One Minute Cough Cure as the best I ever used. It gave instant relief and a quick cure.

L. S. & M. S. R. R.

TIME TABLE--In effect Nov. 18, 1894.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

Stations—	Mail.		Exp'ss		Fre'gt
Fort Wayne, ... p	11 45	am	4 45	pm	8 40	am
New Era.....	12 14	pm	5 14		7 27
Auburn Junc.....	12 25		5 25		7 48
Auburn.....	12 29		5 29		8 37
Waterloo.....	12 41		5 41		9 24
Summit.....	12 52		5 52		9 45
Steubenville.....	12 56		5 56		.....
Pleasant Lake....	1 03		6 03		10 12
Angola.....	1 13		6 14		10 50
Jackson.....	1 35		6 35		4 30

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

Stations—	Freight		Exp'ess		Mail
Jackson.....dp	6 25	am	11 20	am	6 30	am
Angola.....	12 35	pm	2 21	pm	8 51
Pleasant Lake....	1 08		2 38		9 01
Steubenville.....	.....		2 40		9 07
Summit.....	1 25		2 44		9 11
Waterloo	2 30		3 00		9 24
Auburn.....	3 00		3 11		9 35
Auburn Junc.....	3 14		3 14		9 38
New Era	4 05		3 24		9 50
Fort Wayne.....	5 25		3 55		10 25

For rates on tickets or freight to all points, call on or address E. T. DeLAPP, Agent at Auburn

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

IN paint the best is the cheapest. Don't be misled by trying what is said to be "just as good," but when you paint insist upon having a genuine brand of

Strictly Pure White Lead

It costs no more per gallon than cheap paints, and lasts many times as long.

Look out for the brands of White Lead offered you; any of the following are sure:

"Anchor," "Collier," "Eckstein," "Shipman," "Armstrong & McKelvy," "Southern," "Beymer-Bauman," "Red Seal," "Davis-Chambers," "Fahnestock."

FOR COLORS.—National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors.

These colors are sold in one-pound cans, each can being sufficient to tint 25 pounds of strictly Pure White Lead the desired shade; they are in no sense ready-mixed paints, but a combination of perfectly pure colors in the handiest form to tint Strictly Pure White Lead.

A good many thousand dollars have been saved property-owners by having our book on painting and color-card. Send us a postal card and get both free.

NATIONAL LEAD CO.
Chicago Branch,
State and Fifteenth Streets, Chicago.

For sale by John L Davis, Auburn, Ind

DR. WILLIAMS' KIDNEY PILLS

A remedy that has no equal in diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs, Have you neglected your kidneys? Have you overworked your nervous system and caused trouble with your kidneys and liver? Have you pains in the loins, side, back, loins and bladder? Have you a flabby appearance of the face, especially under the eyes? Too frequent desire to pass urine? No matter what the cause, we know Dr. Williams' Kidney Pills will cure you. Imparts newlife to the diseased organs, tones up the whole system and makes a new man of you. Mailed onreceipt of price, $1.00 per box.
WILLIAMS MF'G CO., Props., Cleveland, O. Sold by FISCHLER & SON, Auburn. 1y30

Relief in Six Hours.

Distressing Kidney and Bladder diseases relieved in six hours by the "New Great South American Kidney Cure." This new remedy is a great surprise on account of its exceeding promptness in relieving pain in the bladder, kidneys, back and every part of the urinary passages in male or female. It relieves retention of water and pain in passing it almost immediately. If you want quick relief and cure this is your remedy. Sold by Robbins and McCord druggists Auburn Ind. 34tf

Sick headache, constipation and indigestion are quickly cured by De Will's Little Early Risers, the famous little pills.

B. H. Bowman; Pub. Enquirer: at Bremen, Ind., writes: Last week our little girl baby the only one we have was taken sick with croup. After two Doctors failed to give relief and life was hanging on a mere thread we tried One Minute Cough Cure and its life was saved.

Terrible Indeed.

"Oh, these terrible pains! Will they ever leave my rheumatic racked joints?" Yes, if you will take the great Scotch remedy, just introduced in the United States—Infallible Scotch Cure. It never disappoints, and speedily cures. Ask your druggist for it. and accept no substitute. Prepared only by the Hall Medicine Company, Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Fischler & Son. 18-20

He Couldn't Drive Nails.

Jonas Swartz, Hartville, Ohio, relates an experience all the more wonderful because he is nearly seventy. He says: "I wouldn't take $100 for the good Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer has done me. I always worked hard and was careless about a little stomach trruble I had and sleeplessness, which I suppose accounts for the nervous trouble which struck me about four years ago. Limbs of my right side got so I couldn't control them; at times I couldn't hold a cup in my hand to drink from it, and in a crowd would unconsciously hit people with my jerking right arm. The Doctors called it nervous paralysis and said that, at my age, I couldn't be cured. I saw Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer advertised in the Repository and got a sample bottle of it, which I thought helped me, so bought a bottle, Think I have used three bottles, and they have made a steady man of me. I have not felt as well in the four years and am still improving. Why, for two years I couldn't drive a nail." Mr. Geidlinger, in whose store the interview took place, fully corroborated Mr. Swartz' statement, saying his cure was a surprise to all who knew of the case. We are authorized to say, this medicine for control and cure of all nerve troubles, is sold by F. E. Davenport and by all druggists. 18-20

"CELLULOID" COLLARS AND CUFFS are made by covering a linen collar or cuff with "celluloid," thus making them strong, durable and waterproof. When soiled they can be cleaned by simply wiping off with a wet cloth. No other waterproof goods are made with this interlining, consequently no other goods can possibly give satisfaction. Do not forget that every piece of the genuine is stamped as follows:

TRADE CELLULOID MARK.

Insist upon goods so marked and refuse anything else if offered. If your dealer does not keep them you can procure a sample from us direct by enclosing amount and stating size and whether stand-up or turned-down collar is wanted. Collars 25c. each. Cuffs 50c. pair.

The Celluloid Company,
427-429 Broadway, New York.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

LAW SUIT.

The defendant was Charles Hovarter, and the plaintiff was Charles F. Brown. Both hailed from reliable old Fairfield and they tried to get even, in 'Squire Walborn's court yesterday. Hovarter and Brown had been makibg maple syrup together and Brown thought Hovarter was sneaking away too much of it for Brown's financial prosperity. So he set about to find a suitable charge on which he could get H. into court, and make him swear to something that would give a clue to the syrup transaction., So he had Hovarter arrested on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. But the 'Squire decided that the charge was not sustained and Hovarter was sent adrift out into the cold, cold world. Brown also went out into the cold world, and he swears he will yet have Hovarter punished for stealing his 'lasses.

THE EGG PROBLEM.

If that Angola lady with her eggs had come to Auburn and stepped into Hebel's grocery and made her proposition to Albert Weaver or Henry Funk she would have lost them. They would have said, "Do you think we never studied arithmetic? You have 301 eggs; or if it were a large basket 721; or if a bushel 1141, or there might be 1561 or 1981, etc., just a little turn in the "Least Common Multiple." She evidently did not call upon groceryman John Leasure.

ANOTHER ANSWER.

Pearl Merica, the 12-year old daughter of T. S. Merica, sends the following: Find the least common multiple of 2-3-4-5-6 equal 60. Find multiple of 60 This is one less than some multiple of 7. 300 is a multiple of 60, 300 plus 1 equals 301 a multiple of 7; 301 equals the number of eggs in the basket.

Frank Hoff says 25 dozen and 1 egg makes it.

LICE.

Not the Lice of Egypt, but the Lice of Northern Indiana.

Not a very alluring subject, we presume our readers say, at once. We admit it. But what we are going to do about it? We have the lice right among us, by the million. Apple tree lice, we mean for we don't wish to be considered personal, G. S. McCord brought this matter to our knowledge. He had a sprig of apple blossoms and leaves which showed nearly every leaf-stalk literally covered with small green lice. There are untold millions of them on our trees as a personal examination shows. It is plain, that if we wish to have an apple crop, we must spray our trees and not trust to the great abundance of flowers this season shows. Get a sprayer ready for a war of extermination.

CATARRH OF THE KIDNEY.

Sometimes Called Bright's Disease—Dr. Hartman's Latest Lecture.

In the course of a recent lecture at the Surgical Hotel Dr. Hartman said:

"Catarrh of the Kidneys is a very common disease, growing more and more common each year. The symptoms are pain in the back; scanty, high-colored urine, containing albumen and various sediments; nausea, and sometimes vomiting; puffiness of the face and feet; dropsy of the legs; shortness of breath and general weakness; pallor and dryness of the skin; chilly feelings, alternating with fever and sleeplessness.

"A table-spoonful of Pe-ru-na should be taken before each meal, between meals and at bed-time, and enough Man-a-lin at night to produce one natural action of the bowels each day. When the disease is of long standing heated Pe-ru-na should be applied to the back in addition to the above treatment, and the diet consist principally of milk and dry toast. Avoid liquors and tobacco."

Medical Books Free.

The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Co. of Columbus, Ohio, are offering free post-paid, two medical books, one on catarrh and catarrhal diseases, the other on spring medicines and spring diseases. These books contains the very latest and most reliable information on these important subjects.

For free book on cancer address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

Wide Reputations.

If King Solomon was alive he would now say: "Go to the traveling man learn his ways, and be wise." Mr. C. W. Battell, a Cincinnati traveling man representing the Queen City Printing Ink Co., after suffering intensely for two or three days with lameness of the shoulder, resulting from rhuematism, completely cured it with two applications of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. This remedy is gaining a wide reputation for its prompt cures of rhuematism, lame back, sprains, swellings and lameness. 50 cent bottles are for sale by Robbins & McCord Druggists. 18-22

Our Sympathy.

Persons who sympathize with the afflicted will rejoice with D. E. Carr of 1235 Harrison street, Kansas City. He is an old sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism, but has not heretofore been troubled in this climate. Last winter he went up into Wisconsin and in consequence has had another attack. "I came upon me again very acute and severe," he said. "My joints swelled and became inflamed; sore to touch or almost to look at. Upon the urgent request of my mother-in-law I tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm to reduce the swelling and ease the pain, and to my agreeable surprise, it did both. I have used three fifty-cent bottles and believe it to be the finest thing for rhuematism, pains and swellings extant. For sale by Robbins & McCord Druggists. 18 22

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder Awarded Gold Medal Midwinter Fair, San Francisco.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report

Royal Baking Powder ABSOLUTELY PURE

Essay On Hats.

Silk, as a non-conductor of electricity was one of the good ideas that were forced on the great original electrician, Ben. Franklin at an early stage in his experiments. It is still popular to-day, Alta Moody and Tom Patterson were repairing and arranging electric light fixtures in the south end of town, and each wore a high silk hat. And to further show that Franklin's theory is correct and still holds good, we add the more important fact that both were alive. Does anyone doubt the saving qualities of silk?

Wednesday's Daily:

Cure for Headache.

As a remedy for all forms of headache Electric Bitters has proved to be the very best. It effects a permanent cure, and the most dreaded habitual sick headache yields to its influence. We urge all who are afflicted to procure a bottle, and give this remedy a fair trial. In cases of habitual constipation Electric Bitters cure by giving the needed tone to the bowels, and few cases long resist the use of this medicine. Try it once. Large bottles only fifty cents at Robbins & McCord's drugstore. 2

ANOTHER FIRE.

This time one of our valuable factories, but the loss was paid in full by one of the strong fire insurance companies represented by WALTER C. HARTMAN. Give him your insurance.

THE 26TH TRIENNIAL CONCLAVE KNIGHTS TEMPLAR

will be held in Boston, Mass., August 26th to 30th, 1895. For this occasion the Wabash Railroad will sell tickets from all stations to Boston at one fare for the round trip. Map of route and guide to Boston will be mailed on application to C. S. Crane Gen'l Pass'r and Ticket Agent St. Louis, Mo. 17-2m

Cured with One Bottle.

Mr. Jordon Baker, Tifton, Ga., had muscular rheumatism for ten years After using a bottle of Drummond's Lightning Remedy for Rheumatism, he wrote to the manufactures that he was satisfied he would be cured by the time the bottle would be used up. If you want satisfaction, insist on having Drummond's Lightning Remedy. Nothing can take its place. Send $5 to the Drummond Medicine Co., 48 Maiden Lane, New York, and two large bottles of the remedy will be sent to your address Agents Wanted.

DECORATION DAY.

Do our people realize how time is passing away, and how fast the day is approaching when we are to honor our dead heroes by memorial exercises? May 30th will soon be with us. Are we ready for it? We have no doubt but most of our people have some flowers that will be in bloom about that time. Let us think about it and get ready.

A VALUABLE FIND.

After years of study and labor there has at last been discovered a sure and never-failing remedy. It has been tested on patients who have despaired of ever being cured, and the results have been in every case, wonderful. Groff's Rheumatic Cure is unequaled as a positive remedy in all cases of Chronic and Acute Inflammatory Rheumatism, Gout, Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia, especially Ovarian Neuralgia, Dysmenorrhœa and all kindred affections. It is also a valuable Blood Purifier, being especially useful in Eczema, Psoriasis, Scrofula, all Glandular Enlargements and diseases of the Liver and Kidneys. It is absolutely free from all narcotics. Severe attacks are relieved in from one to three days. and a positive cure effected in from five to eighteen days. For sale by Druggists. Manufactured and sold by THE GROFF MEDICINE Co., Chicago, Ill. 17 tf

Auburn Junction.

Yesterday afternoon the Eagle Manufacturing Company building might have been in the same shape as her sister foundry at Auburn, if it had not been for Winnie Krider, who was left to watch for fire. About half past four he discovered a blaze on the roof of the main part of the building which caught from the furnace from which they were taking off a heat. He began to apply the water quite freely from the barrels on top of the building provided for that purpose, and had it under control when a large crowd came running, attracted by the whistle of a B. & O. engine, which sounded the fire alarm. The main part of the building is very poor and should have steel roof. If this building would have burned G. W. Morr's barn and house would gone also as the wind was the right direction.

F. H. Boyle came very near meeting death yesterday evening. When he was turning the target one of the heavy weights on top of the pole fell, and missed his head about two inches. If it had hit him it would undoubtedly have killed him, as it went through a pine board without slacking its speed.

For whooping cough Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is excellent. By using it freely the disease is deprived of all dangerous consequences. There is no danger in giving the remedy to babies, as it contains nothing injurious. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Robbins & McCord Druggists 18-22

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder World's Fair Highest Medal and Diploma.

The United Society of Christian Endeavor

and the National Young People's Christian Union will hold their Fourteenth International Convention at Boston, July 10 to 14, 1895. The Wabash Railroad has reduced the rate to one first-class fare for the round trip from all stations to Boston for this occasion. For maps of route and guide to Boston write to C. S. Crane Gen'l Pass'r and Ticket Agent, St. Louis, Mo. 17 2m

Heart Disease 30 Yrs!

Short Breath, Palpitation.

Mr. G. W. McKinsey, postmaster of Kokomo, Ind., and a brave ex-soldier, says: "I had been severely troubled with heart disease ever since leaving the army at the close of the late war. I was troubled with palpitation and shortness of breath. I could not sleep on my left side, and had pain around my heart. I became so ill that I was much alarmed, and fortunately my attention was called to

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure

I decided to try it. The first bottle made a decided improvement in my condition, and five bottles have completely cured me."

G. W. McKINSEY, P. M., Kokomo, Ind

Dr. Miles Heart Cure is sold on a positive guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. All druggists sell it at $1, 6 bottles for $5, or it will be sent, prepaid, on receipt of price by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

For Sale by, Fischle & Son., Auburn.

THE HUB'S BOYS HEAD-TO-FOOT OUTFITS

THESE HEAD-TO-FOOT OUTFITS

Consist of One COAT, Two Pairs of PANTS, One CAP to Match and a Pair of Shoes.

And the price of the whole outfit is Only $5.00

If on receipt you do not consider them the greatest bargain you ever bought for $5.00 you can send back the outfit and we expressly agree to return your money.

Send for samples of the cloth and full description of the outfit, also for our new spring catalogue—all sent free on application.

THE HUB The Worlds Largest Clothing Store. CHICAGO, ILL.

Wabash Low Rate Harvest Excursions for 1895

Will be run from all stations on the Wabash Railroad on April 30th, May 21 and July 11th to the West, Northwest, South and Southwest.

For full particulars, apply to the nearest ticket agent of the Wabash lines or connecting lines or to

C. S. BRANE,
G. P. & T. A. Wabash R. R.

UNDES A CAR.

[Angola Magnet.]

Mervin Howard, an employe of the Lake Shore Company, fell or was thrown between the rails in front of a moving flat-car in a gravel train Thursday afternoon, and the car passed over him. He had no bones broken, but he was frightfully scratched and bruised. As the brake beams of railway cars are only five or six inches above the ties, it will be seen that his body was squeezed into a tolerably narrow space. The accident occurred at the gravel pit, near Pleasant Lake, from which point Howard was brought to Angola on a handcar. Drs. H. D. Wood and Weidnet picked the gravel stones and cinders out of his anatomy, and patched up his cuts and bruises.

Match here.

D. A. Garwood has a mulberry tree in the grounds at his new residence, one that was recently planted. It is a small tree and the only thing he expected it to do for some time, was to live. And it did not give very great promise of even that, for during the dry spring it just seemed to stand still and rest, and appeared to be in some doubt as to just what its duty to its new owner, really might be. So not a bud started, much less a blossom. Yesterday, however, there was a slight change in the weather. There was a light rain followed by warm air, and of course the air was damp. At once, the little tree seemed to have reached a decision. Its buds began to swell, and this morning it showed not only leaves, but berries large and nice but without the blossoms.

A PROBLEM SOLVED

EVERYBODY WONDERS WHY

FISCHLER & SON

SELL SO MUCH

WALL PAPER

Let us tell you. Our stock is new and complete. Our Combinations are handsome, and the best thing of all OUR PRICES ARE THE LOWEST! Yes, we have sold more Wall Paper this spring than all of our competitors combined. We are THE LEADERS and when in need of anything in the DRUG or WALL PAPER line come and see us.

FISCHLER & SON,

SOUTH MAIN STREET OPPOSITE SWINEFORD HOUSE.

Recorder's Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

VOLUME XXV. AUBURN, DE KALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY. MAY 16. 1895. NUMBER 20

SAY : :

HOW MUCH DO YOU OWE?

Who holds your mortgage? How much interest are you paying? Do you owe a building loan association anything? If you do, how much interest are you paying them? Unless you are better posted than the majority of people who have such loans, you cannot tell. You think you are paying 6 per cent. Do you know (of course not) that you are paying at least 12 per cent. If you think not, just figure it out yourself. Now then, are you not paying 6 per cent interest and 6 per cent premium? Certainly. Well now don't you know that premium and interest are the same thing—its all interest. Can you afford to pay 12 per cent interest to a loan association when even your banks only charge 8 per cent and you think they are charging too much, and when do you expect to have your loan canceled or paid off in full? You have been told 72 or 78 months. Now then, we undertake to say that it will take you 100 months, if you will call on us we will show you so you will be satisfied that we are right. Now then, we are prepared to loan you money on monthly installment plan for 8 per cent, we charge you no membership fee and you do not have to make three or more payments in advance so that if on account of insufficient security or bad title your loan is rejected you will not lose one cent. You pay nothing unless your loan is granted. We are making farm loans at from 3 to 5 per cent with privilege of partial payments.

ANOTHER THING!

There is scarcely a day but what there is some traveling agent for some building loan association in Auburn soliciting business, selling stock upon which they charge you a membership fee of from 50 cents to $1.00 per share, which amount goes to the agent and you never get back this money thrown away. If you will call on us we will take your application for all the stock you want in the BEST (we can prove it) building loan association in the state the INDIANA MUTUAL OF INDIANAPOLIS, and charge you NO MEMBERSHIP FEE AT ALL. This is certainly fair. If you have any investment stock in any association just write them a letter and ask them the withdrawal value of same, their reply will probably open your eyes. What would you say if you would deposit $8.00 per month in your bank for one year and wanted to withdraw the same and they would offer to pay you only about $80? The bank would only have to do this in one case to be compelled to retire from business. Now you pay ten dollars membership fee and 8 dollars for 12 months making 108 dollars, you lose the 10 dollars membership fee and 10 cents per share each month for expenses, making 12 dollars, or a total of 22 dollars loss upon which you would receive 6 per cent interest for average time on 96 dollars, making 2 dollars and 88 cts. from 22 dollars would leave you a loser of 19 dollars and 12 cents. In our association your stock is worth all you have paid in, with its interest added, so that upon withdrawal you do not get less than you paid. We want the people of Auburn to become familiar with this matter, and would like to have any that are interested to call and talk with us, we can give you some pointers.

We are still in the Real Estate, Insurance and R. R. Ticket business.

RICKEL & SPROTT

AUBURN, INDIANA.

COUNTERFEITERS.

About noon to-day a man entered the saloon of E. P. Refner and bought some drinks and paid for them with a counterfeit dollar. Sheriff Stroh was notified and he started after him. When the sheriff was at the L. S. & M. S., depot he saw him about forty rods west going up the road. When he saw the sheriff he ran south for the woods and was part way through the fields when he threw away a good coat and vest he had rolled up under his arm. This coat Mr. Stroh got and gave it to the reporter, who brought it to this office. Stroh followed the man to the woods where he got away from him. He then telegraphed to Garrett and Marshal Schreiner and his deputy and deputy sheriff Platter searched the woods between Auburn and Garrett. The man had on a red flannel shirt and was seen to enter the woods about two miles west of town by Calvin Olinger's and it was thought he was going to Garrett. The reporter and Chas. Pommert rode their bicycles to Garrett and were there when Mr. Stroh came out of the woods but no trace of the man was found then. But the other parties mentioned were still looking for him.

Did You Ever

Try Electric Bitters as a remedy for your troubles? If not, get a bottle now and get relief. This Medicine has been found to be peculiarly adapted to the relief and cure of all female complaints, exerting a wonderful direct influence in giving strength and tone to the organs. If you have loss of appetite, constipation, headache, fainting spells, or are nervous, sleepless, excitable, melancholy or troubled with dizzy spells, Electric Bitters is the medicine you need. Health and strength are guaranteed by its use Large bottles only fifty cents at Robbins & McCord. 3

THE GERMAM BAPTIST BRETHREN Will hold their annual meeting at Decatur, Ill., the latter part of May. Everything has been arranged, and work on the buildings will begin in a few days The Wabash R. R. is the only line running trains direct to the grounds.

GASOLENE.

Yesterday, Mrs. Mary Boyer came near having a serious accident with her gasolene stove. It is one of the smaller kind that is placed on the stove while in use, but is probably as safe as any. But yesterday, while one burner was running she was called out of the room for a little time, and on returning, saw that the blaze had gone out. She noticed it had leaked a little but not as she thought enough to cause any trouble. She struck a match to light it again, when a violent explosion occured. The stove pipe was thrown off by the force of it, and the blaze struck her full in the face, burning her hair and eyelashes, and blistering her face. Her right hand was badly blistered and it and her face were both very painful. But fortunately the burns were not deep. It pays to be careful wit gasolene.

A Household Treasure.

D. W. Fuller, of Canajoharie, N. Y, says that he always keeps Dr. King's New Discovery in the house and his family has always found the very best results follow its use; that he would not be without it, if procurable. G. A. Dykeman, druggist, Catskill, N. Y., says that Dr. King's New Discovery is undoubtedly the best cough remedy; that he has used it in his family for eight years, and it has never failed to do all that is claimed for it. Why not try a remedy so long tried and tested. Trial bottles free at Robbins & McCord's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1. 3

W. T. Stafford, Station Agent of Leeper, Clarion Co. Pa., writes; I can recommend One Minute Cough Cure as the best I ever used. It gave instant relief and a quick cure.

Cured in Forty Minutes.

A lady at Tooleys La., was very sick with bilious colic when M. C. Tisler, a prominent merchant of the town gave her a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. He says she was well in forty minutes after taking the first dose. For sale by Robbins & McCord Druggists. 18-22

The Rush
STILL CONTINUES.

The people know when they get a good thing. It's the talk of the town, the South Side Buggy Repository, where they are selling Buggies, Phaetons, Surreys and Road Wagons at Free Trade Prices.

What you want is the Best at a price you can afford to pay. We have All Styles at the Right Prices. You are sure to be pleased by calling on

McDowell AND Carter,

SOUTH OF COURT HOUSE.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

THIRTY years' observation of Castoria with the patronage of millions of persons, permit us to speak of it without guessing. It is unquestionably the best remedy for Infants and Children the world has ever known. It is harmless. Children like it. It gives them health. It will save their lives. In it Mothers have something which is absolutely safe and practically perfect as a child's medicine.

Castoria destroys Worms.
Castoria allays Feverishness.
Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd.
Castoria cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic.
Castoria relieves Teething Troubles.
Castoria cures Constipation and Flatulency.
Castoria neutralizes the effects of carbonic acid gas or poisonous air.
Castoria does not contain morphine, opium, or other narcotic property.
Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep.
Castoria is put up in one-size bottles only. It is not sold in bulk.
Don't allow any one to sell you anything else on the plea or promise that it is "just as good" and "will answer every purpose."
See that you get C-A-S-T-O-R-I-A.

The fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher is on every wrapper.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

"BUCK AND BRECK."

COPY OF AN OLD NATIONAL TICKET OF '56, WHEN THEY VOTED FREE AND EASY FOR BUCHANAN OR FREMONT OR FILLMORE.

FOR PRESIDENT

JAMES BUCHANAN

OF PENNSYLVANIA.

VICE PRESIDENT

JOHN C. BRECKENRIDGE

OF KENTUCKY.

FOR PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS.

GRAHAM N. FITCH, of Cass
SAMUEL H. BUSKIRK, of Monroe

1st District,		William F. Parrett, of Warrick
2d	"	Simeon K. Wolfe, of Harrison
3d	"	Samuel W. Short, of Lawrence
4th	"	Daniel D. Jones, of Franklin
5th	"	Edmund Johnson, of Henry
6th	"	Martin M. Ray, of Shelby
7th	"	James M. Hanna, of Vigo
8th	"	Jas. S. McClelland, of Clinton
9th	"	Orpheus Everts, of Laporte
10th	"	Franklin P. Randall, of Allen
11th	"	Samuel S. Markle, of Adams

The above ticket was voted at the November election of 1856, by Dennis Dove, now a resident of Wilmington township in this county. The ticket is printed on a wide strip of white silk, and after the tickets had been counted he got his ticket from the election board so he could keep it as a bit of history. He voted it in Cedar Creek township, Allen county. A few weeks ago he gave it to A. J. Ralston of this place and by his kindness we are enabled to give it to our readers. Ten of these silk tickets were voted.

Buchanan was the 13th man elected to serve as president, but his administration was the 15th. as Tyler and Fillmore elected as vice-presidents had each an administration of his own, on the death of Harrison and Taylor. His term was the 18th, as Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe and Jackson each served two terms. Buchanan's opponent was John C. Fremont, the first presidential candidate of the new party now called republican, then generally known as the "people's party" though by the time the election came off, the name "republican" was generally accepted. Fremont's running mate, for vice-president, was Wm. L. Dayton of New Jersey. There was a third ticket in the field, the "American party." This party believed in putting into office, none but native Americans. The candidates on that ticket were Millard Fillmore of New York, and A. J. Donelson of Tennesee. On the popular vote, Buchanan received 1,803,029; while his electeral vote was 174. Fremont had 1,342,164, his electoral vote being 114. Fillmore's popular vote 874,625, his electoral vote being 8. So it will be seen that although Buchanan had a big majority of the electors, he only had a plurality on the popular vote, for had his two competitors combined their popular vote they would have had 413,760 more than Buchanan. But this often happens. A majority of the electoral vote was 149. So he had 52 electoral votes more than both his competitors. There were only 31 states then. The questions at issue related largely to slavery, especially to its extention into new territories like Kansas and Nebraska. Douglas had had, two years before, the Kansas-Nebraska bill passed, permitting territories, when being admitted as states, to form a constitution either with or without slavery, as they chose. This had caused a good deal of trouble, and in '56 still helped to divide the parties, the democrats, favoring republicans opposing the principle of the Douglas bill The democrats also, in their platform adopted at Cincinnati June 6, when Buchanan was nominated, declared against national banks, in favor of "free seas and free trade" with other nations and in favor of our government assisting or at least controlling such railroads or canals as might be constructed across the Isthmus at Panama, or any other point across Central America or Mexico. It will be noted in the way this old ticket was used, the voters were allowed then to do about as they pleased. We had not then, learned all the tricks of the ballot, which has since then compelled us to adopt more stringent laws as to voting and counting. On looking over this old ticket we notice the peculiar shape and size, and the familiar names. In 1860 Breckenridge was the candidate of the extreme southern wing of the democrats for president. Later, he was a lieutenant-general in the Confederate army. Fitch was for a time, U. S. senator. Mr. Ray was the father of that Ray who so recently victimized so many trustee by selling them things they did not need at a high price. Everts, later on, became the officer in charge of the insane hospital at Indianapolis, He was a physician and one of Indiana's early poets. Many of our people will remember Mr. Randall of Ft. Wayne.

LAKE LEVEL.

The Laporte Argus, speaking of the change of level in our small lakes says: The water in our lakes was very low from about 1877 to 1880, but no positive record was kept of it as far as we can learn. Many people then feared the lakes would go dry and a good deal of feeling was manifested about it. It then began to rise and went up in the near neighborhood of 4 feet about 1885. Then another fall began and it keep going down each year until the lowest point was reached on the 3d day of September, 1891, and everybody again feared the lakes won'd dry up entirely. At this point a permanent gage was established and on that day there was a heavy shower that raised the water some two inches. It then gradually climbed upward until July 4, 1892, when it was just 37 inches above the low water mark. Then the recession began again and it is now within one foot of being as low as it was in 1891.

L. S. BIBLES.

The Lake Shore railroad was the only railroad in this country that had its passenger cars each equipped with bibles up to 1892. The Elkhart Review states that they and the bible racks have disappeared from the cars on the Lake Shore since then, and explains the fact of the Lake Shore's putting them on as due to the raising among the Lake Shore employes of the sum of $5,000 for the relief of Charles Paine, once general manager, who lost everything in the great Chicago fire. He declined the gift, however, and the money was turned over to the Cleveland Bible Society, which expended it in keeping bibles in Lake Shore coaches from 1872 to 1892.

DECORATION DAY.

The scholars of the different schools and Sunday schools of Auburn, and surrounding country are invited to take part in the decoration services the afternoon of May 30th. They will each be furnised with a flag to carry in the procession. It is proposed to have from 6 to 8 hundred scholars in line. Each school will elect their own marshal and report to the chief marshal of the school department.

MUSICAL CONVENTION.

G. W. Straub begins a musical convention at the brick church south of Sedan, May 27, at 7:45 p. m, and will hold three sessions a day on Tuesday, Wednesday Thursday and Friday closing Friday eve with a grand concert. Mr. Straub is one of the leading musical educators and authors of music, and this is a rare chance to improve one's musical education.

LIST OF PATENTS.

Granted to Indiana Inventors this week. Reported by C. A. Snow & Co., Solicitors of American and Foreign Patent Office, Washington, D C.

E B. Ball, Muncie, Apparatus for drying fruit-jars. J. H. Beret, Kokomo, Skewer-pointing machine. J. C. Burgess Columbus, Metal shearing and punching machine. L. Fetch, Van Buren Gate. N. E. Funk, Elkhart, Sheet separating device. A. H. Kennedy, Rockport, Mensuation form. G. B. Pickett, Liberty, Grain drill. J. Seath, Terre haute, Continuous draw-bar attachment. A. Weed, Anderson, Saw file.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

The Greatest Drive
OF THE SEASON

25 Pieces

Pongee and Sattine, 32 inches wide, at

5 Cts. Per Yd

These goods formerly sold for 15c per yd., and will go like

FIRE!

At the present price. For genuine bargains you will always find us

LEADING THE PROCESSION.

Our stock has never before been quite so complete, and our rapidly increasing business is a guarantee that our prices are right.

You are safe in giving us your patronage. Respectfully,

SCHAAB & BRO.

BROWN, CULBERTSON & BOLAND

The leading Hardware and Agricultural Implement Firm in DeKalb Co.

SELLS

Eckhart Buggies,
Turnbull Wagons,
Oliver and Bryan Plows,
Bement Disc and Spring-tooth Harrows,
Bryan Spading Harrows,
Ohio, Albion and New Western Cultivators,
McCormick, Champion and Deering, Binders and Mowers.
Stoves, Tinware, Paints
OILS, Glass, etc., etc.

Come and See

North Side Public Square.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

JAMES A. BARNS, - - PUBLISHER.

NEWS BY TELEGRAPH

BOILED DOWN FOR OUR INTELLIGENT READERS.

Highwaymen Raid a Chicago Gambling House—A State Senator Shot to Death by His Mistress at St. Louis—Cuban Insurgents Win a Battle—The Income Tax Sustained.

A St. Louis Murder.

State Senator Peter R. Morrissy was murdered while asleep in bed about 3 o'clock the other morning, by Maud Lewis, at her home, 2,019 Washington street, St. Louis. The woman sent a 38-calibre bullet crashing through Morrissy's brain, placing the muzzle of the pistol against the sleeping man's left eye before pulling the trigger. She also shot him in the mouth. Deceased was 32 years of age, single, and leaves a father and mother, a sister and brother. He was one of the best known Democrats in St. Louis and was just entering on his fourth year in the State Senate. Morrissy and two companions were drinking and late at night he went to the Lewis woman's house and retired. They had lived together for years and the woman is of a jealous nature. It is supposed she killed him as the result of a quarrel.

Held 'Em Up.

Three men entered the gambling house of Powers & O'Brien, at 170 Madison street, Chicago, and with drawn revolvers held up the players. Eight men were in the room playing poker. All of the players were made to hold up their hands while the robbers went through their pockets. One hundred and thirty dollars of stake money was raked off the table and about $250 more was extracted from the pockets. The robbed men were so astonished that it was several seconds before they made an effort to chase the robbers. When they did start there was a hot race around the down-town streets. John Frazee, one of the robbers, was caught, but the other two escaped and had with them all of the plunder.

A Runaway Engine.

An exciting runaway took place on the Lehigh Valley road at Drifton, Pa. A big coal engine was run out of the roundhouse to the ash-pit. It was left there while the attendand went back to change the turntable. In some way the throttle valve opened and the engine started off. It reached the main line, increasing in speed momentarily. The Freeland train had just passed the switch ahead of it, and stopped at the depot, where the runaway was brought to a sudden halt by plunging into the rear car. There were only three people in the coach. They escaped with slight bruises. The coach and engine were wrecked completely.

A Most Serious Charge.

Assistant Deputy United States Marshal Daniel Herring, of Deputy Aldrich's staff, Buffalo, New York, has been suspended upon charges of gross misconduct, pending an official investigation. The complaint was made by Deputy Marshal Kane, who alleges that Herring with intent to frustrate efforts to capture a gang of suspected opium smugglers, gave the latter warning, thereby enabling them to escape.

Three People Shocked.

At McArthur, Ohio, A storm struck the Christian Church, tearing away part of the steeple. Lightning set fire to the building which was saved by prompt work. The Christian Endeavor Society had a meeting at the time. Miss Cooney and Charles Barison were shocked and injured. Squire Sage was struck by the current and his whiskers and hair burned. He is now lying critically ill.

Non-Union Glass-Worker Assaulted.

Joseph Willard, a non-union glass worker, was assaulted at Martin's Ferry, Ohio, and terribly beaten. He was found unconscious, partially covered with blood, carried to Hoges' drug store, and attended by two physicians. A cut on his head will probably cause brain trouble. One rib was cracked. Charles Zeicher, an orphan boy employed by the Buckeye, was also attacked.

Injured in a Wreck.

A dispatch from Walkerton, St. Joseph County, Indiana, says that four men, names unknown, were seriously, if not fatally injured, in a freight wreck near that place. Two sections of a freight train came together with terrific force, piling up fifteen cars in a mass of debris, and burying the men under the wreck.

The Insurgents Win.

Tampa (Fla.) special: The latest reports from Spanish papers relate that a fierce engagement took place at Arroyo Hondo, in the province of Santiago, on the 10th instant. The Spanish force numbered 300; Cubans, 1,200. Several Spanish officers were killed. Members of the best Santiago families are joining the insurgents.

A Schooner Ashore.

South Haven (Mich.) special: During a heavy southwest gale the schoener H. M. Avery, Capt. David Smith, missed the pier and went ashore. The life-saving crew rescued the crew without loss of life. She lies easy on the first bar, and can probably be taken off when the weather moderates.

Sustained.

The Supreme Court has reached a conclusion in the income tax cases. The opinion will be announced soon. Justice Harlan is writing a majority opinion sustaining the law. It is estimated that the law as now sustained will produce over $20,000,000.

New Commissioners.

The President has made the following appointments: John A. Harlow of St. Louis, Mo., and Col. William G. Rice of New York, to be Civil Service Commissioners.

A Cloud-Burst.

Sargent (Ky.) special: A cloud-burst on Beaver Creek did great damage. The large splash dam, owned by Hall Bros., was completely swept away by the rushing waters. The report says several houses were flooded, while two or three lives were lost. Two families made their escape from the floating buildings unhurt.

Killed His Brother.

At Plainfield, Ind., Herbert Carter, 15 years old, was accidentally shot and killed by his brother, Palmer Carter, 19 years old.

His Son Bit Him.

Magoffin County, Kentucky, has another case of hydrophobia. Amazon Coal the father of Joe and Tom Coal, who went mad a short time ago, has gone mad. In trying to hold the boys when they had a fit Joe bit him on the arm. The man is now raging wild, hallooing for Joe and Tommy, all the time. The boys were bitten by a mad dog.

A Serious Blunder.

As the result of a careful investigation it is now announced that, by reason of the failure of the last Legislature of Wisconsin to pass a law for the commitment of insane persons, there is now no legal way in which to care for these unfortunates.

ROYALLY RECEIVED.

The Loyal Legion Entertained at Fort Wayne.

The annual meeting of the Indiana Commandery of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of held at the parlors of the Wayne Club, Fort Wayne, Ind. The members of the order and their wives and daughters arrived in the city over the Lake Erie & Western on a special train.

Governor Matthews and party, who accompanied the excursionists, were met at the depot by the Fort Wayne Rifles and the Wayne True Blues, headed by the First Regiment Band, and escorted to the Wayne Club.

The ladies of the party were driven about the city in carriages and afterwards taken to the Fort Wayne Club, where they were received by Mrs. S. R. Alden, wife of the president of the club, assisted by Mrs. D. N. Foster, Misses Anna Bond, Pearl Foster and Winnie Dougal, of the reception commitee.

The meeting of the Loyal Legion was called to order in the club library by State Commander General Lew Wallace. Resolutions of respect to the memory of the late General Mahlon D. Manson were read by Capt. T. H. B. McCain, of Crawfordsville, and adopted.

The reports of the secretary and treasurer, which were read, showed a favorable condition of the order, and were approved and adopted. The convention then proceeded to the election of officers, which resulted as follows:

Commander, Gen. Lew Wallace; Senior Vice Commander, Maj. George L. Bradbury; Junior Vice Commander, Col. D. N. Foster; Recorder, Capt. W. W. Daugherty, U. S. A.; Registar, Lieut. M. L. Brown; Treasurer, Capt. Horace McKay; Chancellor, Major Samson Fourtner; Chaplain, the Rev. M. L. Haines, D. D.; Board of Counsellors, Col. Ross, Col. Kahlo, Capt. Cleiland, Capt. Ensingheimer and Capt. Bean.

The next meeting of the Loyal Legion will be held at Indianapolis in October.

The Century Commercial Club gave an informal reception and banquet to the guests at the Randall Hotel. Gen. Lew Wallace officiated as toast-master, and in a happy manner introduced the speakers, who responded as follows: "Our City," Col. C. B. Oakley, Mayor; "The Militia," Gov. Matthews, Commander-in-chief; "The G. A. R.," Judge H. V. Shively, Wabash, Department Commander; "The Regular Army," Capt. W. W. Daugherty, Indianapolis, retired; "The Loyal Legion," Maj. James S. Ostrander, Mayor of Richmond.

At 11 o'clock the party repaired to the Wayne Club and was received by Presi- S. R. Alden of the club in a few well chosen remarks. An opportunity was given to all to greet Gov. Matthews and General Wallace. A ball followed.

Death of Ex-Governor Chase.

Indianapolis special: Ex-Governor Ira J. Chase died at Lubec, Me., of erysipelas. But little particulars are known of his last illness save that he was stricken with the disease some weeks ago, and was supposed to be convalescent. Within the last few days, however, it suddenly developed a malignant phase, and Sunday morning a telegram of warning was received by the family at Irvington. Governor Chase, after his retirement from politics, resumed work as an evangelist of the Christian denomination, and two months ago accepted an invitation to conduct a series of services at Lubec. Two weeks ago his family, who live in Irvington, a suburb four miles east of this city, received word that he was suffering from an attack of erysipelas, which, however, was yielding to treatment. His family consists of an invalid wife, who is blind, and a son and daughter.

SOME MAY DIE.

That is the Result of a Gasoline Explosion in a Baltimore Sweat Shop.

Six persons were probably fatally burned by the explosion of a gasoline stove and the fire which followed, in a sweat shop at 1424 East Pratt street, Baltimore. The explosion occurred in the third story of the building and the burning fluid flew in all directions, igniting the clothing of the inmates and the garments upon which they were at work.

But for the heroic conduct of a colored teamster—Samuel Morris—who heard the frenzied appeals for help, five of the unfortunates would not have been taken alive from the garret. Morris rushed up-stairs and found the door of the shop securely locked. He reached the veranda in front of the second story windows and called to the panic stricken inmates of the third-story to jump. One woman had already leaped from the third story to the street, her clothing in flames. She was miraculously saved from instant death by Tom McGuigan, whose outstretched arms broke her fall.

Morris caught two others in his arms, smothered the flames in which they were enveloped, and carried them to the sidewalk. He then ran up-stairs again, kicked open the door and hauled out the prostrate forms of two men and a woman. The injured persons were quickly removed to the Baltimore University hospital. The physicians do not think any of the victims will recover.

ENRAGED HUSBAND

Fights His Wife's Alleged Paramour to His Death.

A special from Lexington, Ky., says: A killing similar to the Brown-Gordon affair at Lousville, took place here at 7 o'clock the other morning. Bert Hall, who keeps a grocery on Kenton street, had for his clerk a young man named Volney Baird, who also boarded with the family. Hall went to the grocery early and after opening up, said he was sick and returned to his home on Jefferson street. There he found Baird with his wife, and a quarrel ensued, which brought on a fight. Hall had a pistol lying on the mantel, and he grabbed it. Baird clinched him and a fight throughout the house followed, in which lamps, vases, pictures and other things were broken and upset. The fighters finally got into the hallway, where Hall succeeded in bringing his pistol in line with Baird's head and pulled the trigger. The ball entered below and slightly to the left of the eye and penetrated the brain and lodged in the back of the skull. Baird fell dead with his head near the front door and squarely on his back.

WRECK IN OHIO.

Ten Cars Smashed Into Splinters Near Celina.

The eastbound freight No. 14, on the Lake Erie and Western was wrecked one mile west of Celina, Ohio. Ten cars were smashed in pieces. Otto Bierley, of St. Marys, and Peter Finch, of Portland, Ind., were instantly killed, and George Anderson, of St. Marys, and William Depew, of Portland, Ind., were seriously injured, Anderson probably fatally. These parties were all stealing rides. The wreck was caused by the engineer suddenly putting on airbrakes while coming down a steep grade, and lifting an oil tank car clear off the track. The car turned and fell across the track and the next nine cars were thrown in all directions. Two others were stealing their way on the same cars, but miraculously escaped. Finch is the son of Deputy Sheriff Finch, of Jay County, Ind.

CORBETT-FITZSIMMONS.

Their Prize Fight May Take Place at Dallas, Texas.

Dallas (Tex.) special: It looks now as if Dallas would surely get the Corbett-Fitzsimmons prize fight and that it will come off during the Texas State Fair and Dallas Exposition next October. Since the outlawing by legislation and court decisions of prize fighting in Florida and Louisiana, William A. Brady and Joe Vendig have been in wire communication with Dan A. Stuart, the wealthiest sporting man in Texas, to arrange to have the fight take place in Dallas. The details are partially completed; a definite decision will be reached before the week is ended. About $40,000 will be required.

Will Get Her Gold.

A special from Managua, Nicaragua, via Galveston, says: There is no longer any doubt that Great Britain will receive her smart money on time. The £15,000 sterling to be paid by Nicaragua to Great Britain has been raised here by popular donations. The general opinion seems to be that the Central American republics will form a combination, possibly secret, against Great Britain, and everything possible will be done to exclude British goods from Central America. This feeling will probably result in commercial gain to the United States. There is no doubt, however, that the action of the German firms in subscribing liberally to the indemnity fund will prove a good stroke of business for them.

Starved With Plenty.

For years Peter Tellerdam, about 72 years old, has lived in the attic room of a business block in Detroit, Mich., and was never suspected of having a cent. He begged his living from door to door, in the summer wearing the most meager and tattered garments, and in the winter bundling himself in such rags and pieces of bagging as he could pick up arround the factories and among the charitably inclined. Last week he was missed, but no one thought of looking for him until the other day, when he was found dead in his bed, literally starved to death. In the mattress under him was found hidden over $4,000 in bonds, certificates, and cash.

A Flying Flame.

In an explosion of chemicals at Braun & Sons' drug store, Columbus, Ohio, Karl Markert and Paul Dresbach, young pharmacists, were frightfully burned. Markert ran into the street with his clothes flaming and was so wild with pain that it was necessary for a spectator to knock him down in order to extinguish the fire. He may die of his injuries. Dresbach did not fare so badly.

One Killed.

A wreck occurred on the old Bee Line Big Four near Farmland, Ind., in which rails spread and ditched an eastbound freight running forty miles an hour. The engine and six cars were unharmed, but fifteen refrigerators with beef, were smashed and also three empty cars. Seven tramps were on the train, one was killed and six unhurt.

"Come to Mamma!"

"Come to mamma," said Mrs. David Bowers, Jr., of Upper Sandusky, Ohio, to her 2-year-old daughter. The little one started to toddle toward her, and slipping, fell into a pan of scalding water, which Mrs. Bowers was using to clean a churn. The child was so badly scalded that it is thought she will die.

Gale Hamilton Stricken.

Washington (D. C.) special: Gail Hamilton (Miss Abigail Dodge), the cherished friend of the late ex-Secretary Blaine, suffered a stroke of parlysis, and is in quite a dangerous condition at Mrs. Blaine's residence, near Dupont Circle.

Paralyzed by Fright.

At Warren, Ohio, Mrs. Rachel Hurd was about to go to sleep a few nights ago, when a large cat sprang through an open window onto her bed. She was paralyzed with fear, and for three days was unable to either speak or move.

Fatal Fire.

The Arlington hotel at Montrose, Cal., burned to the ground. In the flames perished Sales Agent C. W. Nehrbas, of the John Deere Implement company. Other guests and help in the hotel escaped by jumping.

Fatal Fire in Hungary.

A conflagration in the town of Gaishezeez, in the Zemplin district, Hungary, has destroyed 150 houses and three churches. Three persons were burned to death and four injured.

Four Thousand Happy.

Four thousand employes of the National Tube Works of Pittsburgh, have been made happy by an advance of 10 per cent. Carnegies also will likely raise their men.

Death of Hon. A. H. Hamilton.

Hon. A. H. Hamilton, ex-member of Congress from the Twelfth Indiana District, died at his residence, at Fort Wayne, Ind.

THE MARKETS.

Chicago—Cattle, common to prime, $3.75 to $6.50; hogs, shipping grades, $3 to $5; sheep, fair to choice, $2.50 to $5; wheat, No. 2 red, 61c to 61½c; corn, No. 2, 49c to 49½c; oats, No. 2, 28c to 29c; rye, No. 2, 63c to 65c; butter, choice creamery, 15c to 17c; eggs, fresh, 12c to 13c; potatoes, car lots, per bushel, 55c to 70c; broom corn, per lb, common growth to fine brush, 4c to 7c.

Indianapolis—Cattle, shipping, $3 to $6.25; hogs, choice light, $3.00 to $5.00; sheep, common to prime, $2 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2, 65c to 65½c; corn, No. 1 white, 47c to 48c; oats, No. 2 white, 32c to 33c.

St. Louis—Cattle, $3 to $6.25; hogs, $4 to $5; wheat, No. 2 red, 64c to 65c; corn, No. 2, 47c to 48c; oats, No. 2, 29c to 30c; rye, No. 2, 63c to 69c.

Cincinnati—Cattle, $3.50 to $6; hogs, $3 to $5.25; sheep, $2.50 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2, 69c to 69½c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 49c to 50c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 30½c to 31½c; rye, No. 2, 69c to 71c.

Detroit—Cattle, $2.50 to $6; hogs, $4 to $5; sheep, $2 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2 red, 66c to 66½c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 51c to 51½c; oats, No. 2 white, 33c to 34c; rye, 67c to 68c.

Toledo—Wheat, No. 2 red, 66c to 66½c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 50c to 51c; oats, No. 2 white, 33c to 33½c; rye, No. 2, 65c to 67c.

Buffalo—Cattle, $2.50 to $6.50; hogs, $3 to $5.25; sheep, $3 to $4.75; wheat, No. 1 hard, 72c to 72½c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 53c to 54c; oats, No. 2 white, 35c to 36c.

Milwaukee—Wheat, No. 2 spring, 62c to 63c; corn, No. 3, 49c to 51c; oats, No. 2 white, 32c to 33c; barley, No. 2, 50c to 53c; rye, No. 1, 62c to 64c; pork, mess, $11.50 to $12.

New York—Cattle, $3 to $6; hogs, $4 to $5.50; sheep, $3 to $5; wheat, No. 2 red, 68c to 68½c; corn, No. 2, 55c to 56c; oats, white Western, 38c to 41c; butter, creamery, 13c to 19c; eggs, Western, 13c to 14c.

STRIKERS IN A RIOT.

SAVAGE BATTLE FOUGHT AT SOUTH CHICAGO.

Striking Furnace Men in the Illinois Steel Company's Mills Attack Fellow Employes—Charged by the Police—Severe Battle Follows.

Rioters Are Routed.

Four hundred striking employes of the Illinois Steel Company at South Chicago created one of the most serious riots in the history of the town Tuesday afternoon, when they broke down the gates and attempted to drive all the workmen from the rail mills, blast furnace and machine shops. A series of hard fights ensued in each of the buildings. A riot call was turned in. Capt. Jenkins with nine policemen arrived on the scene in a few minutes. The handful of policemen attacked the rioters, who were armed with iron bars, coupling pins, clubs and stones. Although outnumbered, the police drove the rioters outside the main gate, where a savage fight occurred, in which all the police officers were more or less injured. Probably 100 of the rioters had their heads cracked. Twenty-six of their number were arrested, all of whom were more or less hurt. Many wounded rioters were carried off by the crowd. But for the determined fight made by the gallant little band of policemen, the officials of the company believe the mob would have destroyed thousands of dollars' worth of property as soon as the men who remained at work were driven away. The entire works is shut down, with the exception of the plate mill, which employs 600 men. Three thousand men are out of employment. The company's plant in Joliet is also affected, about 1,500 men being out there.

STRIKERS DRIVE FURNACE MEN AWAY.

After the riot at the mills and the arrest of twenty-six of the ringleaders, another mob of about 1,000 gathered about the police station, and the police were confronted with the possibility of an effort on the part of the friends of the strikers to rescue the men who were under arrest. Sergeant Van Pelt, who had just returned from the scene of the riot with a small detachment of men, took in this situation at a glance and ordered his men to disperse the mob, which they did without meeting with any great resistance. Additional men were at once sent for, and at midnight a strong cordon of police guarded the approaches to the station at Eighty-ninth street and Exchange place, while 125 bluecoats stood guard over the mills.

POLICE CLEARING THE STREET.

The trouble all started over the strike of about thirty barrow men, or ore wheelers, who work at what are known as the south furnaces. These furnaces, two in number, are used to reduce the crude ore to the form of pig iron and are wholly independent of the steel mills. These men struck Monday afternoon because the company refused to grant them a raise of wages. Tuesday morning they made their appearance in the yards, and, going to the four furnaces at the north end of the works, drove away all the men there, about 400 in number. These men, the officers of the company claim, did not wish to strike, but quit work through fear of personal violence. This shut down all the furnaces, throwing about 700 men out of employment. The men who are avowedly on strike did not number more than 125 at most; the rest who were forced to quit perform other duties about the furnaces and are more skilled and better paid than the wheelers.

A SHOWER OF MONEY.

Remarkable Scene at the Acquittal of Two Girls.

One of the most remarkable scenes witnessed in a New York State court room was enacted at Ballston, Saratoga County, Saturday. During the week there had been on trial the case of Catherine and Elizabeth Nolan, two sisters, charged with poisoning their brother. The crime was alleged to have been committed at their humble home in Waterford last June and the motive assigned by the authorities was that the girls, who are 22 and 15 years of age, desired the insurance on his life. For ten months they had been confined in the jail at Ballston.

The trial occupied all last week, and the prosecution vainly endeavored to fix the crime upon them. It failed, however, to prove even that the young man died of poisoning. The case was given to the jury at noon Saturday. They retired and took one ballot, which resulted in twelve votes for acquittal. When they re-entered the crowded court room and announced their verdict, a wild scene ensued. Men and women shouted themselves hoarse to show their approval. All rushed forward to meet the girls. Bouquets which the prisoners held in their hands were rudely snatched from them and speared upon the floor for them to walk upon. As the grave judge descended from the bench to congratulate the girls, the foreman of the jury mounted to the seat vacated by him and, calling attention to the fact that the girls' confinement had rendered them homeless and friendless, asked for contributions for their benefit. Spectators, counsel for both sides, the judge and the jury went down into their pockets and a shower of bank notes and coin rained into the juror's hat. The girls left the court room amid wild cheering.

Dr. H. C. Spencer, of St. Louis, Prof. L. McGuire, of Atlanta, Ga., and an unknown man attempted to cross Clinch river to Clinton, Tenn., in a wagon. Dr. Spencer was saved by a ferryman, but Prof. McGuire and the unknown man were drowned.

CONDITION OF THE CROPS.

Drought Is Relieved and Corn Planting Now Well Along.

Reports as to the condition of crops throughout the country, and the general influence of weather on their cultivation and growth, as compiled by Prof. Moore of the United States Weather Bureau at Chicago, show that generally the past week has been very favorable. In the Northwestern States much needed, and, for the present, ample rains have fallen, which, with unusually high temperatures, have been exceptionally favorable for the germination of seeds and for the rapid growth of all vegetation. The heavy rains of the previous week have caused delay in farm work in portions of the Carolinas, Virginia and Maryland; rain is badly needed in Michigan, Ohio and greater portion of Pennsylvania. Corn planting has progressed rapidly during the week in the Northern States, and is generally reported as promising in the Central and Southern States, although considerable damage has been done by cut worms in some sections. Cotton planting is about finished in the southern portion of the cotton region and is nearing completion in the northern portion; it is coming up to a good stand and cultivation is well advanced. Winter wheat has been unfavorably affected by warm, dry weather in Missouri and Ohio; Illinois reports are generally favorable; in Tennessee it is beginning to head. Tobacco plants are reported plentiful in Maryland; in Kentucky the beds have been injured by insects, and in Ohio the dry, warm weather has retarded growth. Fruit prospects continue excellent. Following are the telegraphic reports from various States:

Illinois—Abnormally high temperatures with rainfall lacking, except in west central and northern sections, in the latter heavy showers. Corn planting progressing rapidly in all sections, early planting up, good stand and growing finely. Wheat, oats, rye, clover, timothy, potatoes and gardens in excellent condition in rain belt, otherwise growing slowly; fruit setting unusually heavy.

Indiana—Very warm, sunny weather, only light local showers; crops advanced slowly, only heavier rains needed; much corn planted and coming up nicely; cut worms and army worms causing injury.

Wisconsin—Plentiful supply of rain received, which, with the high temperature, caused rapid growth. Vegetation more advanced than usual for the season; grain all sown and coming up nicely, corn and potato planting well along; pastures in good condition and stock turned out.

Minnesota—Abundant rains, with ample warmth and sunshine, have phenomenally advanced all vegetation; considerable flax and corn yet to be sown; other crops mostly all planted; small grain and grasses have a good stand and healthy color; apple and plum blossoms plentiful.

Iowa—The week has been unseasonably warm, with copious showers; corn planting, though delayed, is well advanced, with increased acreage; small grain crops; pastures and meadows show vigorous growth.

South Dakota—Frequent copious showers, well distributed, with temperature considerably above normal, produced marked development and growth in all vegetation. Field crops, gardens, grass and fruit unusually advanced and all doing finely; injury from local hails slight.

Kansas—Warm, with good rains in southern and eastern counties greatly improving all crop conditions. Much corn outside of rain limits not germinated, while grass and small grains are at a standstill, and fruit is dropping.

Nebraska—Warm, showery week unusually favorable for the growth of all crops. Small grain generally excellent; rye beginning to head in southern counties; corn planting has made rapid progress and much of the early planted is up and in fine condition.

Michigan—Dry and very warm week. Farm work far advanced for the season; light scattered showers very beneficial, but more rain badly needed; spring seeding nearly finished; corn planting beginning and potato planting becoming general.

Missouri—Good rains except in southeast section and all crops greatly improved; oats and winter wheat considerably damaged by drouth and chinch bugs in some counties, but generally doing well. Corn coming up well; considerable complaint from cut worms.

Ohio—Excessive warmth and dryness retarded growth of wheat, oats, grass, potatoes and tobacco plants. All cereals looking fairly well, but needing rain badly; corn planting advancing, early planted and potatoes coming up. Excessive fruit bloom.

Indianapolis, Ind., Populists will place a full municipal ticket in the field at the next city election.

The Missouri Senate passed the St. Louis Safety committee election bill as a substitute for the Filley bill.

Tuesday, June 11, at Des Moines, has been agreed upon as the date for the Iowa Populist State convention.

The Kentucky Republican State Committee has fixed June 5 as the day for the State Republican convention.

The Mississippi Democratic convention will be held at Jackson Aug. 7. The executive committee is for silver, 18 to 5.

Ex-Congressman Thomas E. Watson, of Georgia, has returned to the practice of law, though renominated by the Populists.

Senator Penrose, of Pennsylvania, introduced his resolution for a committee of five to investigate charges that the Councils of Philadelphia sell franchises. Referred to committee.

Gov. Matthews, of Indiana, says he would take the Democratic nomination for President if it were offered to him; but he is not a candidate for anything in the sense of seeking the nomination.

Thirty-five of the fifty-eight Democrats in the Missouri House at a caucus adopted a resolution favoring the free coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1. The whole trend of the caucus was to precipitate a discussion which will probably result in a State convention.

The Michigan Supreme Court has handed down a decision that the act passed by the present Legislature authorizing the appointment by the Governor of a new Detroit Board of Health is constitutional. The court declares the new board is entirely warranted in drawing upon the treasury of Detroit for money.

The Missouri Supreme Court rendered an important decision affecting the Australian ballot law. The Kansas City grand jury asked for the ballot boxes to investigate alleged ballot frauds. The request was refused. Giving the grand jury the right to inspect the ballot boxes, the court holds, would violate the secrecy of the ballot as well as being an infringement of the constitution.

HUSTLING HOOSIERS.

ITEMS GATHERED FROM OVER THE STATE.

An Interesting Summary of the More Important Doings of Our Neighbors—Weddings and Deaths—Crimes, Casualties, and General Indiana News Notes.

Minor State News.

ARCADIA plate glass works burned. Loss, $25,000.

FIRE destroyed 15 acres of fine timber in Porter county. Loss, $6,000.

GEORGE LANDON, aged 4, was accidentally drowned at Dupont.

FRED C. GEERKIN, 17, was drowned in the Maumee River at Fort Wayne.

MANY cases of diphtheria, scarlet fever and measles still exist in Anderson.

COLUMBUS is offering three acres of ground and $12,500 bonus for a factory.

THE bakeries of Elwood have combined and raised the price of bread from 2 to 4 cents per loaf.

JULIUS J. HASEL, Fort Wayne laborer, has fallen heir to $50,000 left him by his grand-father in Germany.

PAUL COOK, 5, Montpelier, tried to climb on a wagon. Fell under the wheels and was crushed to death.

OVER one hundred new residences and ten new business houses are to be erected in Parker City this summer.

MARTIN MADDEN was caught in the machinery of the Fox cracker factory, Fort Wayne, and fatally injured.

SHELBYVILLE capitalists have a scheme on foot to build an electric railway from Osgood to Brookville, 45 miles.

THE Richmond hospital for the insane is now over-crowed, and it is claimed that over 100 patients are awaiting admission.

THE members of the First Presbyterian Church of Greencastle have extended a call to Rev. William K. Weaver, of Owattona, Minn.

LOGANSPORT council passed an ordinance taxing transient stores, bankrupt sales, etc., but the court says the ordinance is unconstitutional.

WALTER ARMSTRONG was seriously injured at the Arcade file works, Anderson, by a grindstone bursting. A fragment struck him on the head.

HARLEY BOWSER was struck by lightning while working in a cornfield, near Elkhart. His hair was burned from his head and his arm singed.

JOHN HEIDENREICH, who has been a switchman in Terre Haute for thirty years, was run over and killed by the cars in the Evansville & Terre Huate yard.

MRS. G. W. ROSS, who last winter fell through a grating on Main street, Brazil, while in a delicate condition, and suffered serious injuries, has filed suit in the Superior Court for $_0,000 damages against the city.

A YOUNG man, who was beating a ride over the Monon railroad, fell between the freight cars near Crawfordsville, and was cut to pieces. Nothing was found to identify him, but it is supposed that he belonged at Danville, Ill.

WILLIAM CUMMINS, an employe of the Akron Forge Works, while operating the 100-ton trip hammer, was knocked senseless by a fragment of the steel billet, which broke off, and striking him, hurled him across the room.

EDWARD W. DRIEMAN, a commercial traveler who was seriously injured in a wreck on the Indianapolis & Vincennes railway some weeks ago, has filled suit at Vincennes for $5,000 damages against the Pennsylvania company.

FOUR young men were playing poker in the heading mills at Bedford, when Paul Johnson quarreled with Homer Bruce. The latter shot Johnson through the head causing a mortal wound. Bruce, his brother and Wm. Emery was arrested.

HARRY KELLAR, who was formerly in the dry goods business at Logansport, was assaulted and robbed of $315 shortly before midnight recently at his home. Hearing a noise he went to his barn and was attacked and left in a dazed condition. There is no clue and the affair is regarded as a mystery.

WHILE at play on a swing Josie Leatherman, 4-year-old daughter of Henry Leatherman of Wakarusa, became entangled in the rope in such a manner as to get it twisted about her neck. Death resulted from strangulation in a few moments. The body was found a short time after by her brothers and sisters with whom she had been playing.

A FINE field of wheat on the farm of Yancy Breedlove, near Plainfield, is being devasted by a small insect that is working on the stalk. So far no one who has examined the field is able to name the insect. The farmers are fearful lest the pest will get into other fields and cut short what a few days ago promised to be the best crop in years of this cereal.

A GANG of tramps made their appearance at Dunkirk and succeeded in driving a freight crew from their caboose. Officers Payton and Hubbard were called and in attempting to arrest them several shots were exchanged and after the smoke cleared away one of the tramps was found to be mortally wounded and shortly after died. A search revealed them well supplied with revolvers, saws, drills and powder. They refused to give their names or places of residence and are the toughest lot of "bums" that ever made their appearance in this city.

PATENTS have been issued to the following Indiana inventors: Charles F. Black, Topeka, dish cleaner; James D. Bowman, assignor one-half to H. Y. Miller, Union County, Indiana, earth auger; Allen C. Brantingham, assignor to Nordyke and Marmon, Indianapolis, feeder for mills; Edward and L. Hedderick, Pettit, washboard; Steven G. Hindsley, Union City, flood gate; Joseph Reiff, jr., assignor of one-half to E. M. Nichols, Hebron, vent controlling mecanism for pumps; Valentine C. Rocholl, Fort Wayne, prize wrench; Ferdinand Scheumann, Logansport, safety valve; Fred and L. Winkler, South Bend, sprinkler head, two patents.

As a result of eating onions purchased from a huckster, Herman Wilson, aged 7, died at Jeffersonville, and two other children, Elmer Wilson and Paul Mozier, are dangerously ill with little hopes of recovery. During the day the children purchased several bunches of onions and ate them with salt. Soon they were taken ill and physicians were puzzled at the symptoms. Emetics were administered and it was found that they had overdosed their stomachs, but as this alone would not be sufficient to produce death, the physicians are inclined to the belief that something of a poisonous nature must have been mixed with the onions.

THE Kokomo Wood Enameling Company has been sued for $20,000 by Frank Matney, an employe, who, last winter, received permanent injuries by the breaking of an elevator cable in the factory.

MAY 1, General Superintendent Johnson of the Nickleplate, issued a general order prohibiting its employers from loitering about saloons. The order was not be construed as to prohibit men from boarding at hotels maintaining bars, but they must not frequent the bar. At Fort Wayne two freight conductors and ten brakemen were dismissed because they had been seen entering a saloon since the order went into effect. It is said that twenty other trainmen have been ordered to report to answer charges of a like nature.

NIAGARA FALLS EXCURSION!

Thursday, August 8, 1895.

—VIA THE—

Lake Erie & Western R. R.

"Natural Gas Route."

On Thursday, August 8, 1895, the Lake Erie & Western R.R. will run their popular annual excursion to Cleveland, Chautauqua Lake, Buffalo and Niagara Falls at following very low rates, viz.:

Peoria	$7 50	Fort Wayne	$5 00
Bloomington	7 00	Muncie	5 00
LaFayette	6 00	Connersville	5 00
Michigan City	6 00	Rushville	5 00
Indianapolis	5 00	New Castle	5 00
Tipton	5 00	Cambridge City	5 00
Lima	4 00	Fremont	4 00

Sandusky, $4 00.

With corresponding reductions from intermediate points.

In addition to the above, the purchasers of these tickets will be given privilege of special excursion side trips to Lewiston-on-the-Lake, including a steamboat ride on Lake Ontario, 25 cents. To Toronto and return by Lake from Lewiston $1.00; to Thousand Islands, $5.00. Tickets for the above side trips can be had when purchasing Niagara Falls ticket, or at any time on train.

Besides the above privileges with that of spending Sunday at the Falls, we will furnish all those who desire a side trip from Brockton Junction to Chautauqua Lake and return FREE OF CHARGE.

Tickets of admission to places of special interest at or near Niagara Falls, but outside the reservation, including toll over the International Bridge to the Canadian side, elevators to the water's edge at Whirlpool Rapids on the Canadian side, will be offered on train at a reduction from prices charged after reaching the Falls.

Do not miss this opportunity to spend Sunday at Niagara Falls. The excusion train will arrive at Niagara Falls 7.00 A. M. Friday, August 9, 1895, and will leave the Falls returning Sunday morning, August 11, at 6 o'clock, stopping at Cleveland Sunday afternoon, giving an opportunity to visit the magnificent monument of the late President Garfield, and many other interesting points.

Tickets will be good, however, to return on regular trains leaving the Falls Saturday, August 10, for those not desiring to remain over. Tickets will also be good returning on all regular trains up to and including Tuesday, August 13, 1895. SECURE YOUR TICKETS, ALSO CHAIR AND SLEEPING CAR ACCOMMODATIONS, early. Those desiring can secure accommodations in these cars while at the Falls. For further information call on any agent Lake Erie & Western R. R. or address,

C. F DALY, Gen. Pass Agent.
Indianapolis Ind.

·HORSEMEN·

SAVE YOUR STOCK BY USING THE CELEBRATED

Morris' English Stable Powder
For Loss of Appetite, Constipation, Rough Hair Hide Bound, and all Diseases of the Blood.
Price, 25c. per package.

Morris' English Stable Liniment
Cures Lameness, Cuts, Bruises, Scratches, Galls, Sweeney, Spavins, Splint, Curb, etc.
Price, 50c. per bottle.

Morris' English Worm Powder
Warranted to cure any case of Worms in Horses, Cattle, Sheep or Dogs, also Pin Worms in Colts.
Price, 50c. per box.

Craft's Distemper and Cough Cure
A Specific for Distemper, Coughs, Colds, Heaves, Pink Eye, and all Catarrhal diseases of horses.
Price, 50c. $1.00 per bottle.

Wells' Hoosier Poultry Powder
Makes Hens Lay, cures Cholera, Gapes and Roup, and keeps poultry healthy.
Price, 25c. per package.

Every remedy guaranteed satisfactory or money refunded. Our new book, "The Horse: His Diseases and Treatment," mailed free.
Wells Medicine Co., Lafayette, Ind.

For sale by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

BE A MAN

Ajax Tablets

have cured thousands and will cure you if you are suffering from Loss of Vigor, Impotence, Sterility, Seminal Weakness or any of the other effects of Self-Abuse or excesses of early life. We give positive Written Guarantee to effect a cure in each case or to refund money in case of failure. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Sent prepaid upon receipt of price. Send for free circular. Address

AJAX REMEDY CO.,
70 Dearborn

HILDA

By Charlotte M. Braeme

CHAPTER V.

"Nothing seems to satisfy you, to content or please you," said Bertie Carlyon to his friend and companion, the young Earl of Bayneham. "Here you are, young, tolerably good looking, a magnificent income all clear—no debts. You possess two Edens in the country and a palace in town; no matter what you want, you can have it. Now look at me, a poor, unfortunate, younger son. My whole income would not keep me in cigars alone. I am over head and ears in debt; everything goes wrong with me; fate, love, and fortune, frown alike. Yet I look happier than you do."

"Do not tease me, Bertie; I am not in the humor for it," said Lord Bayneham, moodily.

"Neither for that or anything else," retorted Bertie. "What do you want that you cannot have? There is even a young and beautiful wife provided for you when you have time for the wooing."

The gloomy look deepened on Lord Bayneham's face.

"All you say is true, Bertie," he replied; "yet in all sober truth, I declare to you I would give my rank, title, 'magnificent income,' and all else I possess in the world, to be at this moment a free man."

"Free from what?" cried Bertie, in utter amazement.

Lord Bayneham made no reply, and a look of deeper gravity stole over his companion's face.

"You must trust me in all or none," said Mr. Carlyon. "I see you are changed; and, all jesting aside, you are unhappy. If I can help you, let me; if not, I can but sympathize in silence."

"If you would but be serious," remonstrated Lord Bayneham.

"I am," said Bertie; "laughing, with me, is second nature; but did I ever fail you?"

"No," said Lord Bayneham, "you never did; but you are so fond of joking over everything. What I have to say lies deep in my heart; if you were to smile I should never forgive you."

Not even the shadow of a smile crossed Bertie Carlyon's face; on the contrary, he looked half sorry, half vexed.

"'He jests at scars that never felt a wound,' said Bertie. "Despite my love of laughing, I have suffered as keenly as most men. I can respect real sorrow when I see it, Claude, as you know well."

The two gentlemen were quite alone in what appeared to be the smoking room of Lord Bayneham's London house. It was a large and lofty apartment, well furnished with divans, easy chairs, lounges and sofas, whereon the lords of creation could smoke at their ease.

Bertie Carlyon lounged upon a couch drawn near to the window. He was smoking industriously. Lord Bayneham had tried a meerschaum that failed to please him, and he took up a cigar with no better result. He laid both down with a sigh; going up to the mantelpiece, he leaned dejectedly upon it, then sighed again.

"Have a game of billiards?" said Bertie.

"It is too warm," replied the young earl.

"Let us join the ladies, and have some music," suggested Mr. Carlyon.

"I am tired," said Lord Bayneham, wearily.

Then his friend reproached him for not being happy and contented.

"I can respect true sorrow," continued Bertie, "but not fancied woes. I have seen something of a darker side of life. What is your trouble, Claude? It is not poverty, debt or ill-health—what else can make a man unhappy and dissatisfied?"

"I will tell you," replied Lord Bayneham. "I know you will guard my secret as you would your own life. I am engaged to marry one woman—good, amiable, noble and true, while I am passionately in love with another."

It must be recorded to Bertie's disgrace that, for all answer, he indulged in a low, prolonged whistle.

"That is a serious business," he said, at last. "I thought you were to marry Barbara Earle next year?"

"So it was arranged," said Lord Bayneham. "If it be right to marry one woman while the face of another haunts you—comes before you in dreams by night—looks at you all day—stands between you and the face you ought to love—fills your heart with a love that defies despair—if that be right, then next year I shall marry Barbara Earle."

"But whom in the world have you fallen so deeply in love with?" asked Bertie, aghast at his friend's earnest, impassioned manner.

"If I could but tell you," said Lord Bayneham, with a sigh—"a myth, a fairy, a nameless, beautiful vision."

"But that is nonsense," said his practical friend. "Visions are all very well—I like something more substantial. Where did it appear to you?"

"You promised to be serious, Bertie," replied his friend, reproachfully. "I will tell you where I saw it. Do you remember in May I went to Scotland with Trevors and Higham?"

"I remember," said Bertie.

"We went to Trosach Castle, and remained there three weeks," continued the young nobleman, "then I, longing to see more of the beautiful Scotch scenery, went on a pedestrian tour. To shorten my story, I need only tell you that one delicious morning I wandered into the very heart of the bonny woods of Brynmar. I lost the path, and was getting bewildered, when all at once the richest and most musical voice I ever heard rose, clear and bell-like, on the morning air. I listened to the words; they were pretty and fantastic, and they are firmly imprinted on my heart. I went on, and saw—oh, Bertie! I can never paint the picture for you. Imagine a young, girlish, graceful figure standing in the midst of soft, mellow, golden light—imagine the loveliest face that poet ever dreamed of, a smile parting the sweet lips as she bent over her flowers, a wealth of bright golden hair falling in beautiful confusion over shoulders that no sculptor could imitate—imagine little white hands holding, half-lovingly, a bouquet of bluebells."

"It would be a pretty picture," interrupted Bertie. "You should paint it."

"There is no need," said Lord Bayneham. "I give you my word of honor, Bertie, I did think it was a vision. You never saw anything so delicately lovely. I spoke to her—I asked her the right path, and she showed it to me; I said something about the beauty of the woods. I cannot tell how it happened, but I remained with her some minutes, and at the end of that time I loved her as it takes a lifetime to teach some men to love. I could have knelt at her feet and offered her my life. I longed to tell her how I admired her; but, although we were alone in the woods, a queen upon her throne was not more sacred to me than this young girl, whose shy, sweet eyes rarely met my own. When we parted I asked her for one of the flowers she held. She gave it to me, Bertie, and I would not part with it for anything you could offer me."

"Did you ever discover who she was?" asked Bertie.

"No," replied Lord Bayneham; "not exactly. It was a lonely neighborhood. I asked at some of the cottages. One woman told me I must have seen Lady Hutton, as she lived at Brynmar. I looked in the 'Peerage;' Lady Hutton is over forty, and has no daughter. I went back to the same place last week, but could neither see nor hear anything of her."

"What shall you do?" asked Bertie.

"What can I do?" said Lord Bayneham, impatiently—"'dree my weird,' as the Scotch say; try to forget her, I suppose, and marry Barbara Earle next year."

"It would not be fair to Barbara," said Bertie Carlyon; "she deserves a whole heart or none."

"You are right," replied Bayneham; "I esteem Barbara highly; but I love the girl I saw in Brynmar woods."

"Try to discover her," suggested Bertie.

"Even if I did," said the young earl, "what am I to do with Barbara? There must be misery one way or another. Now I have told you my secret, Bertie, do not torture me by reverting to it; bear with me patiently for a time. We Baynehams are doomed to love unhappily."

"Nonsense again," said practical Bertie. "I do not believe in dooms, visions, poetry or unhappiness. I am quite sure, no matter how dark the cloud may be just now, it has a silver lining."

CHAPTER VI.

The Baynehams, of Castle Bayneham, were a noble and ancient family. The earldom dated as far back as the reign of the "Merry Monarch." The father of the present earl was remarkable for nothing save having married one of the most beautiful and imperious women in England—Lady Blanche Delamere. She was descended from an illustrious but somewhat decayed family.

She had a younger sister, who, unlike the brilliant countess, married for love; she united her fate with that of an almost penniless captain, Gerald Earle. Fortune, however, favored them, for before Gerald Earle and his young wife began to feel the evils of poverty, a large fortune was bequeathed to him by a distant relative. Gerald Earle died abroad, and his delicate wife did not long survive him. She had left her only child, Barbara, to the care of the Countess of Bayneham. Her trust was nobly fulfilled; Barbara Earle was treated in every way like one of Lady Bayneham's own children. Her large fortune accumulated, and when she reached her eighteenth year she found herself one of the wealthiest heiresses in England.

The Countess of Bayneham had one fixed idea—it was that her son should marry Barbara Earle. She was deeply attached to the young girl, over whose childhood and youth she had watched so well. Both children were brought up with the same idea, but nothing definite was ever said to them. Lady Bayneham, foolishly enough, would speak of the time when Barbara would be Claude's wife. Every day, in fifty different ways, it was brought before them. Claude took it as a matter of course. Barbara loved her cousin; she had no thought, no happiness, no wish away from him. When Claude went to college he never returned without a present for his intended little wife. One speech of his was most characteristic. Talking one day at school in the midst of a group of boys, who were discussing their future, he said:

"I shall never have to trouble myself with love making; I am going to marry my cousin, Barbara, you know."

His father died, and Claude became the Earl of Bayneham. Perhaps no one ever began life under fairer auspices; he was young, handsome, clever and highly accomplished. Nature and fortune had both been kind to him. He owned one of the proudest names and the finest estates in England. The long and illustrious line of ancestors had each added a laurel to the crown of the Baynehams. Everything and everyone smiled upon him. He was one of the happiest of men until that May morning came and brought him to the woods of Brynmar.

He returned home an altered man. His previous life seemed to have been one long, calm, unbroken dream. He was awakened now, and the dream had ended. The realities of life had begun for him. He had learned on that bright May morning a lesson that Barbara Earle had never taught him—how to love. He saw the preparations continued for their marriage, and made no comment. Whatever he might think or suffer, he was a gentleman, a man of honor, who would scorn to break a promise and die rather than fail when honor bade him persevere.

CHAPTER VII.

The world generally did not call Barbara Earle a beautiful girl. The great charm of her face was the soul that shone there. Her eyes were magnificent, dark, dreamy, full of light and thought. She had sweet, sensitive lips, perfect in shape and color. People passed her by at first, considering her almost plain; at a second interview they would like her better. Then her face would grow upon them, until they would end by declaring that no other girl was half so beautiful as Barbara Earle.

Lovers in plenty sighed for Barbara Earle; she had no thought save for Lord Bayneham.

When he returned from Scotland she found him changed in every respect. He had lost the gay flow of spirits that once never failed him; he fell into dreamy reveries, from which nothing could ever rouse him. He looked like a man whose aim and purpose in life were ended. He was kind to her, but indifferent to everything in the wide world. Nothing seemed to interest or amuse him. Even Lady Bayneham noticed and wondered at the change that had come over her son.

One day Claude was unusually busy; his lawyer was at Bayneham, and many business affairs were on the tapis. The steward was waiting, and an important paper was mislaid. Lady Bayneham was in the drawing room with visitors, so that Claude could not ask for help from her. In his perplexity he sought Miss Earle.

"Barbara," he said, "like most people who undertake to do three things at once, I am making a terrible mess of it; will you help me? I have lost a paper—the plan for those new houses at Greystoke. Will you go to my study and look for it? The keys lie upon my writing table."

Barbara gladly hastened to comply with his wish. Lord Bayneham's study was a room sacred from all intrusion. It was very rarely that any one obtained admission there. It was a pretty little apartment, overlooking the park.

Miss Earle searched for the last plan in every available place; she went to a bureau where her cousin kept many private papers; there was no trace of it. One drawer smaller than the rest drew her attention; she opened it, and several papers fell out. One was the lost plan, another a picture that had been folded in paper. Barbara looked at it with surprise; she saw it was a sketch taken by her cousin; she recognized his style, and his initials were underneath it. It was a simple but beautiful subject, and the artist had done full justice to it. A young girl standing beneath the shade of a large, spreading tree, the sunbeams falling on her golden hair. Her face, so wondrously lovely, was bent over some bluebells that she carried in her little hands; anything so fresh, so fair, so delicately beautiful as that face, Barbara Earle had never seen.

It was quite strange to Barbara; but who could it be? With a woman's keen eyes she noted the details of the dress. The original of the picture was evidently a lady; who could she be? and why had Claude locked up what was certainly the best of his productions. He was too busy just then for her to mention it. He thanked her gratefully for the trouble she had taken, but Barbara Earle was ill at ease.

That evening when dinner was over and Claude rejoined the ladies, Barbara went to the table where he stood, looking over some beautiful engravings that had just arrived.

"Claude," she said, gravely, "when I opened the small drawer of your bureau this morning, a picture fell out of it, one of your own paintings, I believe. Whose face is it? I never saw one half so beautiful before."

She was watching him keenly, and saw a slight pallor in his face.

"I cannot tell you whose face it is," he replied; "it is a picture I saw on my travels, and thought it so beautiful that I could not refrain from trying to reproduce it."

"You have succeeded well," said Miss Earle.

He made some half-indifferent reply and turned away. Barbara Earle's eyes followed him with a sad, wistful look. What had changed him so?

Lord Bayneham went to his study. He took the picture from the drawer, and, folding it in many papers, locked it safely away.

He was kinder than usual to Barbara that evening, as though he would make amends for some involuntary wrong.

The Countess of Bayneham changed her mind once more. She had decided upon dissuading her son from going to London for the season until after he was married; but she looked upon it in a different light now. His engagement to Barbara Earle was known publicly. Perhaps, after all, it would be better to make a brilliant appearance in London, and then at the end of the season have a brilliant marriage. She decided it was to be so, and early in May the young earl left Castle Bayneham for his town house, which was an almost palatial mansion in Grosvenor Square.

(To be continued.)

HANDY WITH THEIR GUNS.

Veracious Yarn of Two Cowboys Who Played Pool with Revolvers.

"Yes, I've seen a good many games of pool," said the aged sport, reflectively, "and some mighty queer ones, but a game that I saw ten years ago out in Anaconda, Mont., beat them all."

"Tell us about it," said the Buffalo Express man.

That, of course, was the invitation which the aged sport was fishing for, so he began without further urging:

"It was a little one-horse saloon, one of the toughest in that tough western town. A half dozen or so of us had been sitting around drinking and playing, when in came a couple of cowboys, and, after taking eight drinks apiece as fast as they could swallow, they demanded the use of the pool table. Myself and three other fellows were playing at the time, but we gave it right up without a protest, for those cowboys had their pistols in their hands and they looked ugly.

The attendant placed the balls in a hurry and offered each of the cowboys a cue. They took the cues and hit him a couple of raps over the head with the heavy ends of them, whereupon he got down behind the bar and did not say another word. Then those cowboys threw the cues out of the window and drew their guns and began shooting the balls into the pockets.

"Well, sir, you can better believe it was the prettiest shooting a man ever saw. They played a regular game, each taking his turn and making his run just as you would with cues. Of course, when they hit a ball squarely the bullet would shatter it to pieces, but they were clever enough not to break more than one or two in the whole game. They would shoot glancing shots, just nipping the balls on the edges and whirling them off into the pockets almost every time. They made double shots and single shots and bank shots and all kinds of shots. The proprietor began to get nervous for his table, for, of course, every shot went through the edge of it, and he yelled from behind the bar for somebody to stop them, but they sent one ball in his direction which clipped off the tip of his ear and he got down behind the bar and stayed there. The rest of us, seeing we were not in danger, stood around and watched the game. Well, sir, those fellows cleared the tables in about two rounds apiece and then set the balls up again for another game. I don't know how long it would have lasted if it had not been for an accident."

"What was the accident?"

"Why, one of them tried a little too fine work. The balls had been scattered all around the edge of the table. He said he could shoot a curve which would send them all into the pockets at once. He put his pistol down on the table and fired. It was a beautiful shot, and it did what he said it would, but he miscalculated on one thing."

"Yes?"

"You see the pistol ball, after making the complete circuit of the table and driving all the balls into the pockets, naturally came back where it started from, and that was the cowboy's own gun. It entered the barrel and smashed the pistol, and so the game had to stop."

The pineal gland is a small body almost in the center of the brain. It contains a cavity holding a sandy substance composed of phosphate and carbonate of lime. Its use in the animal economy is absolutely unknown. Fanciful physiologists have conjectured it to be the seat of the soul.

After passing through the liver, the blood loses a great part of its fibrine, but what becomes of the latter substance is not positively known.

SYMPTOMS OF SPRING.

VARIOUS INDICATIONS THAT HERALD ITS COMING.

Diversified Occupations that Indicate the Opening of the Pleasant Season—The Time of Plowing, of Carpet Beating and House Cleaning.

Advent of Warm Weather.

In the spring a fuller crimson comes upon the robin's breast;
In the spring the wanton lapwing gets himself another crest;
In the spring a livelier iris changes on the burnished dove;
In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love.
—Tennyson.

The advent of the season of young chicken and tender onions is generally seized upon by poets and sentimentalists as a suitable occasion for preparing their wares for market, and, with the first bluebird, comes the man who has spring poetry for sale. Not that he ever finds a sale for it, for to bring spring poetry to a newspaper office or magazine sanctum, when every man in each of these establishments is, ex-officio, himself a spring poet, is like carrying coals to Newcastle or cigars to Havana. But in spite of the fact that there is never any demand for his work, the spring poet always comes, and comes so numerously and regularly that he must be regarded as a sign of the advent of the season of budding leaves and blooming flowers. Writing spring poetry must, therefore, be considered a regular occupation of the season, as well as a sign that the sun is about to come up from the south, reviving all nature, and waking the world to a new life.

But the advent of the spring poet with his well-worn rhymes and time-honored fancies, is not the only indication that the world is about to awake from its long torpor. Both in city and country there are at this season of the year unmistakable tokens that the spring has come. In the rural districts, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, even a blind man could not be in error with regard to the symptoms. As soon as the ground is dry enough, the spring plowing begins, and with the plowing the miseries of the farmer, the farmer's family and the farmer's hired man.

But the plowing is not the only indication of spring in the country. As the days lengthen, the farmer's wife begins to take a more decided interest in outdoor life than she has manifested during the winter, and all the indications point strongly towards the chicken house as the center of her concern. For weeks she collects eggs from the most eligible hens, and when, by ill-natured clucking, one of their number manifests an intention to "set," wherewithal for her to set on is immediately provided. In due time the fluffy little balls of down appear and immediately become objects of interest, for in them the farmer's wife discerns hopes of future profit. So they are carefully nursed through the various ailments that youthful chickenhood is heir to; they are taken into the kitchen in baskets when it rains or turns cold, they are protected from rats and weasels and other "varmints," they are guarded from pips and gapes and predacious insects, and all, not that they may grow up and scratch for themselves and be happy through life, but in order that when old enough they may be crowded into crates and sent to the city, there to appear on the restaurant menus and hotel bills of fare as "spring chicken.'

SPRING CHICKEN FROM START TO FINISH.

Whether or not the suburban resident is affected by the example of the farmer is a question that can not be satisfactorily answered without a previous knowledge of the character of the suburbanite's wife. Of course, she was responsible in the first place for his going out into the suburbs. No single man lives in the suburbs save under peculiar or exceptional circumstances, for the habitat of the single man is down town; nor does any married man consent to a removal to the suburbs until after a year or two has been spent in impressing on his mind the superiority of the suburbs, where the children can get fresh air, and where we can have a garden and our own fruits and vegetables. The unlucky wretch always tumbles into this pitfall, moves out in the autumn, endures during the whole winter the discomforts of traveling to and fro on the cars, and finally in the spring discovers that the only way to get a garden in the suburbs is to make it yourself. This discovery does not burst on him all of a sudden, like the sunlight from behind a cloud; it comes slowly and by degrees, like the advent of the dawn. He hires a man to spade up the ground, and at the end of half an hour's laborious toil the man disappears, and so does the new spade. Comforted by his wife with the assurance that if the ground is only spaded up she and the children can do the rest, he buys another spade, and hires another man. But even after the ground is prepared for the seed and the seed are sown, there is always a hitch. The children must go to school, for, of course, it would not do to allow them to grow up in ignorance, even if they do live in the suburbs, and when school is over, they must play, being naturally too tired to work. His wife is obliged to make the round of the neighbors' houses every day, and when she gets home her back feels like it would break, and her head is fit to split. Of course, she must lie down and rest awhile. So it goes until the suburbanite comes home from the city, and by this time she is rested and quite equal to the fatigue of standing in the yard and seeing him do the work, and he does it, too, or she is duly provided by him with an excellent reason to the contrary. He may not like gardening, in fact, he may utterly detest and abhor it, but if his wife has made up her mind that the establishment is to have a garden, he makes that garden or hires somebody as a substitute, in which case it is discovered at the end of the season that the radishes have cost 50 cents apiece and the cabbages $1.

THE SUBURBANITE'S LUCK.

In the city, too, there are indications of spring quite as pronounced as the budding trees, the blooming flowers and the piping of the spring chickens. Women are subject to many peculiar ailments, but among the whole number there is none more remarkable than that disease which makes its appearance with the advent of the first warm days, and of which the principal and most aggravating symptom is a burning desire to "clean house." The house may not be dirty; in fact, it may have been in the pink of condition, so far as cleanliness is concerned, all through the winter; but that fact counts for nothing; the disease, like the mumps or measles or cacoethes scribendi, must run its course, and everybody must be inconvenienced, and everything turned topsy turvy in order that the house may be clean. Only the youthful and inexperienced husband makes any effort to stem the tide, and any arguments that he may advance are triumphantly routed on the spot. His assertions that the house is clean enough are scornfully disproved by his wife, who points out to him certain finger marks on the doors, specks of dust and scratches on the furniture, and assures him, with an air of superior wisdom, that the carpets are absolutely filthy and must come up, for she can never get her own consent to live through the summer in a house that is little better than a pig stye. The old husband knows better. Like the willow, he bends before the storm. At the first preliminary symtoms, the appearance on the back porch of water buckets and scrubbing brushes, he girds up his loins and flees, to return no more until the tempest be over and past.

The enjoyment of the house-cleaning season by the woman is something almost miraculous. She fairly revels in it. With a towel over her hair, and her husband's last summer's straw hat on her head, with her oldest gown tucked up to be out of the mess on the floor, and her arms bare to the elbows, she gloats in the disorder that her own hands have created. In the language of a distinguished college president, "It is her occasion," and she feels, not only its importance, but her own as connected with it. In her presence her husband dwindles into insignificance, for what does a man know about house-cleaning? The darkies who beat the carpets into holes are of more consequence than he; far more, indeed, as on such occasions they are persons of considerable importance, for, as adjuncts to the spring cleaning, they are by no means to be despised. Every one knows them. At stated seasons they appear in every neighborhood, as regularly as the cuckoo in England, and just as mysteriously, for no one knows whence they come nor, after the spring cleaning is over, whither they go. Like the deus ex machina of the Latin stage, they appear just in time to execute their part at the annual spring sacrifice to the goddess of cleanliness, whoever she may be, and, after the oblations have been offered, they disappear, to be seen no more until the next season. Where they live in the meantime, or whether they live at all, is a question that cannot be settled by the denizens of the neighborhood. All that these can say is that at certain seasons sounds that suggest the opening of a heavy cannonade may be heard from a dozen different directions, and, if followed up, their origin will be found in as many vacant lots where a couple of Senegambians are beating a carpet into its original breadths.

ON THE FIRST ROUND.

ANOTHER KIND OF SPRING FEVER.

Every quarter has its own spring signs, however, and as the country and the suburbs herald the coming of spring in one way, just as certainly do the down-town regions detect its arrival in another. For, as the country bursts into bloom with the first warm sunshine, so, by the same means, do the show-windows of the millinery stores also betoken the advent of the pleasant season. Why the soul of woman should glow with unusual fervor at the mention of spring hats and headgear is one of those problems that, like the position of the magnetic pole, must ever remain in doubt. Whatever the solution, if, indeed, there is one at all, the fact is unquestioned, as any one may observe for himself who will take the trouble to note in passing, the enthusiasm displayed by feminine human nature when massed in front of the windows of a hat store. The word enthusiasm does not, in the least, express the idea, the feeling exhibited is closely related to that form of madness mentioned by the Greeks, which impels him who possesses it to fall down and worship any beautiful object, no matter what its nature.

ONE KIND OF SPRING FEVER.

PIPER HEIDSIECK PLUG TOBACCO

Consumers of chewing tobacco who are willing to pay a little more than the price charged for the ordinary trade tobaccos, will find this brand superior to all others.
BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

DR. MOTT'S PENNYROYAL PILLS

The only safe, sure and reliable Female Pill ever offered to Ladies, especially recommended to married Ladies. Beware of pills put up in tin boxes as they are dangerous. Ask for DR. MOTT'S PENNYROYAL PILLS and take no other. Send for circular. Price $1.00 per box, 6 boxes for $5.00. DR. MOTT'S CHEMICAL CO., - Cleveland, Ohio.
Fisher & Son, Auburn, Ind.

FITS!
Brace Up! Don't Lose Courage!!
Your disease is not incurable because your Physician has given you up, and you have not received any benefit from the medicine you have tried, is not any reason you cannot be cured. We can positively cure all kinds of Fits, Epileptic, Convulsion or Spasmodic. WE GUARANTEE A POSITIVE AND PERMANENT CURE IN ALL CASES. We have cured thousands, many cases of long standing, and given up by Doctors as incurable. In our "Allen's Fits Cure" you will find a medicine that has never failed to effect a speedy cure. We back our guarantee with an offer of $100 to any person we cannot cure. Highest Bank references furnished on application.
1 Qt. Bottle, $3.00. 2 Qt. $5.00.
ALLEN MEDICAL CO.,
Washington & Water Sts., BOSTON, MASS.

LADIES
Suffering from Retarded, Suppressed or Painful Menstruation and all irregularities of like nature, will find our FAMALE PILLS an infallible cure. They are entirely safe and can always be relied upon for speedy relief. We have yet to hear of a case where they have failed to produce the desired result. A box should be kept on hand at all times to provide for emergencies. Correspondence Confidential.
By mail, with full directions, securely sealed, $2.00 per box.
ALLEN MEDICAL CO.,
Washington & Water Sts., BOSTON, MASS.

Every Woman
Sometimes needs a reliable monthly regulating medicine.
Dr. PEAL'S PENNYROYAL PILLS.
Are prompt, safe and certain in result. The genuine (Dr. Peal's) never disappoint. Sent anywhere $1.00. Peal Medicine Co., Cleveland, O.
Sold by Fischler & Son., Auburn.

WE HAVE NO AGENTS

but ship from our factory at wholesale prices. Ship anywhere for examination; pay freight both ways if not satisfactory. 100 styles of Carriages. 30 styles of Harness. Send 4 cts. for 112 page catalogue.
No. 118½ $35. ELKHART CARRIAGE AND HARNESS MFG. CO., W. B. Pratt, Sec'y, Elkhart, Ind.

Sex-ine Pills

RESTORE LOST VIGOR
Before and After Using.
New discovery. Will brace you up in a week. Sold with a WRITTEN GUARANTEE to Cure Nervous Debility, Loss of Sexual Power in either sex, Involuntary Emissions from any cause. If neglected, such troubles lead to consumption or insanity. $1.00 per box by mail, 6 boxes for $5.00. With every $5 order we give a written guarantee to cure or refund the money. Address PEAL MEDICINE CO., Cleveland, Ohio.
Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

RESTORED MANHOOD.
DR. MOTT'S NERVERINE PILLS

The great remedy for nervous prostration and all nervous diseases of the generative organs of either sex, such as Nervous Prostration, Failing or Lost Manhood, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Youthful Errors, Mental Worry, excessive use of Tobacco or Opium, which lead to Consumption and Insanity. With every $5 order we give a written guarantee to cure or refund the money. Sold at $1.00 per box, 6 boxes for $5.00. DR. MOTT'S CHEMICAL COMPANY, Cleveland, Ohio.
Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

PATENTS
Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES. OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.
Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured. A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,
C. A. SNOW & CO.
OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

CLOTHING,

SHOES,

HATS,

GENTS' FURNISHING

GOODS.

The LARGEST and BEST assorted stock to be found in town, at the LOWEST PRICES. Follow the crowd and you will be right in it. It won't be hard to find the place.

THE

GLOBE

Clothing & Shoe Co.

GANDY BLOCK
North of Square,

Auburn. Ind

An Artistic Job

Is what everybody wants. We handle shoes that were made by artistic workmen. They are neat and attractive. It's hardly necessary for us to say much more about our line of shoes, but ask you to call and inspect them. Prices right. Kiblinger Building.

Shull's Shoe Store.

MUTUAL BENEFIT LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

Was chartered by the state of New Jersey January 31, 1845, as a purely Mutual Life company, without any capital stock. Our profits are returnable to the company's policy holders, who thus receive their insurance at its absolute net cost. Since the organization of the company it has returned to its policy holders in annual dividend of $43,706,710 and its total payments to policy holders for policy claims, surrendered policies and dividends have aggregated $131,226,228. The company's policies are strictly non-forfeitable and incontestable after the second year. In case of lapse policies the company, without any action being taken by the insured, continues the insurance at term rate until the full present value of the policy, at the time of lapse, has been exhausted. During 1893 the company paid 47 lapses policies in full amounting in all to $123,620. In other companies those policies would, under similar conditions, have been forfeited and void. The company's assets Jan. 1, 1895, $55,546,092. Surplus, $6,000,000. E. W. Quackenbush, district agent., N. E. Indiana. Liberal contracts to reliable soliciting agents, Room 98, Long and xley Block, Fort Wayne, Ind.

Bicycle Repairing

Frank Benedict will be prepared to repair bicycles on or about May 13th, at the old stand. The building is now being erected.

P. O. HOLIDAYS.

The postoffice general has fixed the question of the holidays on which postmasters are permitted to close their offices, something about which there has been considerable diversity of opinion. The new regulations as announced states that postmasters may observe as holidays, January 1, February 22, May 30, July 4, the first Monday in September known as Labor Day, December 25, and such other days as the president of the United States or the governors in their respective states may designate as fast or thanksgiving days or proclaim specially as holidays. On other occasions their offices can be closed only after permission obtained therefor from the department, to be applied for through the first assistant postmaster general. On holidays postoffices must be opened sufficiently to meet fairly the public convenience. Mails must be made up and dispatched as on other days. When a legal holiday falls upon a Sunday, the following Monday may be observed, unless otherwise specially provided for by state authority. —Ex.

Get "Gerbelle" flour.

FOR SALE OR TRADE: A 2-year old well bred colt. Inquire at the COURIER office.

THE AUBURN COURIER

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY.

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, postoffice as second-class matter.

THURSDAY,.....MAY 16, 1895.

W. H. HARVEY, the author of "Coin's Financial School" is a citizen of Chicago though a native of Virginia,

FRANCIS SCOTT KEY, the author of Star Spangled Banner is buried at Frederick, Md. He will soon have a monument.

Shot The Clock

Thomas McFadden of Garrett is the kind of man who should be kept inside the prison walls till he gets sense enough to behave himself. Yesterday he imparted to his wife the very pleasing information that he was going up town to get drunk and would then come back and kill her. He was such a liar that she did not know how much of this love tale to believe. But for once he tried to keep his word. He got drunk according to contract, came home ditto, went to shooting ditto. But twice his revolver snapped at the woman harmlessly. Not so, with other household articles. He filled the family clock with bullets. Then he took his wife's clothes, piled them up on the floor and poured a 4-gallon can of gasolene over them. He was about to perform the further pleasant duty of applying a match to the pile, when the marshal and some others came on the scene. He turned his gun loose on the intruders who wanted to spoil his fun. But after several wild shots he was captured and locked up. To-day he was bound over to Court in the sum of $500. The prospects are that he can't give bond, but will put in appearance here in person and go to boarding at the county bastile McFadden has but one leg, which may account for his unsteady aim when drunk He should be sent over the road till he grows a little less dangerous.

Herb Weaver has taken the agency of the National Life Insurance Co. See the big ad in the DAILY.

It seems odd that some one does not rent the rear business room in the Kiblinger Building. It is a good location.

WANTED: A girl to do general housework. Good wages to right person. E. D. Hartman, Auburn.

FOR SALE: A good, gentle horse, a mare, weight about 1,350. Call on me at corner of 5th and Railroad street. A. L. Frank. daw

WANTED IMMEDIATELY: 20 cords of nigger head stone. J. C. Henry.

If you failed to get a biscuit at Hoff's exhibit last week, you can bake some for yourself from "Gerbelle" flour.

FARM IMPLEMENTS; Morr & Baker are now ready to show their patrons their line of farm implements. Call on them south of the jail.

ISLAND PARK.

Island Park Assembly has been a losing venture for several years. A year or two ago being in a tight place, they had to borrow money. Now the notes are being sued, and the management may be forced to sell or give away the whole affair or it may be abandoned. This would be a hard blow on Rome City, and would take away a good deal of business from the Grand Rapids railroad. And if the "Assembly" is discontinued, the place itself as a summer resort will cease to be popular and there will be a loss to those who have put up cottages about the lake. In fact a summer resort in this part of the country is a very uncertain investment for anyone. It should start out with capital enough to sustain itself under temporary losses, for the losses will come, if not this year then some other year, They are like a fair ground.

South Bend Times:—Mary Brown a the age of twenty, married her husband who was a revolutionary soldier, aged 80. He died fifty-one years ago at Knoxville, Tenn., where his widow continued to live as a revolutionary pensioner until the 16th ult., when she died. Her death leaves but eight surviving revolutionary war widow pensioners.

It is said that a tall girl named Short was once promised to a big man named Little, while Little, little thinking of Short, loved a little lass named Long. To make a long story short, Little proposed to Long and Short longed to be even with Little's shortcomings, So Short, meeting Long, threatened to marry Little before Long which caused Little in a short time to marry Long. Query: Did tall Short love big Little less because Little loved Long?—Ex.

WE SAVE

you money, get you highest market price, and make you prompt and full returns on your

..WOOL..

Our experience of 29 years is worth something to you, our reliability also. Ask Chicago Bankers or Mercantile Houses about us. Sacks free to shippers. Write for "Wool Letter."

Silberman Brothers,
208-214 Michigan St.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

CHASE DEAD.

Ex Governor Ira J. Chase died Saturday at Lubeck, Maine. He had gone there about two months ago, to preach among the people of his church, the Christian denomination. He seemed in his usual health till about two weeks ago, when he had an attack of erysipelas which at the last, took a fatal turn. He was born in Rockport, N. Y. in 1834. In 1854 he moved with his parents to Cook county, Ill., served in the 19th Ill., during the war, then studied for the ministry, and moved to Indiana. He was nominated for lieutenant-governor, with Alvin P. Hovey. When Hovey died, he became governor. In 1892 he was nominated for governor, but was defeated by Gov. Mathews. Since then he has been preaching most of the time. He made a great mistake by going into politics for which he was not especially fitted and in which he did not succeed very well. Another mistake was in allowing himself to be mixed up with a system of wild-cat banks, for though he may have been innocent, he will always be blamed.

HOLCOMB, governor of Nebraska reports that his people need no more help, and he graceful thanks the country for their liberality.

FOREIGN countries are again buying our railway and similar bonds, It is considered a good sign of returning prosperity, and may result in our getting back the gold that was sent abroad in the last year or two.

CHINA, in her peace treaty with Japan, has agreed to open her ports to the world, and buy foreign goods and machinery. This will probably make a good market for the various productions of the United States.

MANY reports from the terrible cyclone that swept over Northwestern Iowa, last Friday, state that the loss of life was about 50 and not 200 as at first reported

A. H. HAMILTON died Thursday, at his home in Ft. Wayne. He was very wealthy, and always one of the most prominent citizens. He was elected to congress in 1874 and in 1876. He was a brother of Montgomery Hamilton.

LATEST as to Nicaragua is that the British have agreed to withdraw their fleet now in the harbor of Corinto, if Nicaragua will pay the cash damages asked for, in two weeks.

COUNTERFEITERS IN TOWN

SHERIFF AFTER THEM!

DROVE THEM TO THE WOODS!

WE ARE DEPUTIZED!

To help them, and we are after them tooth and toe-nails. We believe in honest money and honest goods for the money. We don't palm off shoddy, poorly made garments on anyone. We always do a legitimate, straight forward business, and our enormous increase of business substanciates our statement that we sell the best and make the most reasonable prices. We carry everything you need to fit you out from head to foot. Come and see our line of Summer Clothing, Silks Vests, Straw Hats, etc.

G. H. Yesbera.

RUPTURE

Of Men, Women and Children permanently cured in 30 days, without pain or slightest inconvenience by the Fidelity Method. Every case guaranteed. Patient need not pay a dollar until completely cured. The truss discardeer. Over 8,000 cases cured in the last five years. Consultation free.

J. B. CASEBEER, M. D.

Their authorized physician in Indiana and who will visit Auburn in April. Correspondence Solicited, Address

14 East Ohio Street, INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

F. Phillips, M. D. C. M.,

Fellow of Trinity Medical College, of TORONTO.

OFFICE in the Second Floor Front of the Kiblinger Building, Corner of Main and Seventh Street, AUBURN.

Calls answered promptly Be in Office till 11 p. m.

ROOMS at L. E. Gregg's on West Seventh Streets Auburn Ind. 1tf

I. O. BUCHTEL, Homœopathic Physician and Surgeon.

Special attention given to chronic and obscure cases and catarrhal diseases of the nose, throat and lungs; also to diseases peculiar to women and children.

Office and residence over Smith & Madden's marble works, Auburn, Ind. Office apart from residence and private. All calls attended to promptly, night or day.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE

To all lands in DeKalb County, Indiana, at reasonable rates. I have the only set of Abstract Books in the County. Also Mortgages, Deeds and Notary Public Work of all kinds promptly attended to.

Inquire at Auditor or Surveyor's office, Auburn, or leave orders at Postoffice, Garrett,

J. P. Crimmins.
Abstractor and Notary Public.

THE

NATIONAL LIFE INSURANCE CO.,

OF VERMONT, (ORGANIZED IN 1850.)

Writes the Most Desirable Contracts of Insurance Ever Issued.

Note Example of the Option Policy, Showing the Values as They Appear in the Contract.

PLAN, 10-PAYMENT LIFE. AMOUOT $10,000, AGE 35. ANNUAL PREMIUM $526.

If Lapse Occurs After Three Full Annual Premiums Have Been Paid.

THE CO. GUARANTEES	FIRST OR	SECOND OR	THIRD
	Without any action of the insured, a Paid-up Policy for	Upon surrender of this Policy within two months a cash value of	Upon application within two months to give extended insurance for full amount of this policy for
At end of 3 years.....	$ 3,000	$1,014 40	10 years, 355 days.
" 4 "	4,000	1 441 90	14 " 189 "
" 5 "	5,000	1 887 20	17 " 284 "
" 6 "	6,000	2 336 40	20 " 349 "
" 7 "	7,000	2 790 80	24 " 200 "
" 8 "	8,000	3 266 60	27 " 9 "
" 9 "	9,000	3 764 50	30 " 2 "
" 10 "	10,000	4 285 70
" 11 "		4 388 60
" 12 "		4 493 50
" 13 "	(No more payments required, but dividends are payable annually, and Cash Value continues to increase.)	4 600 20	(Total premiums paid $5,260. Guaranteed cash value at end of 20 years, $5,393.10, to which the dividends for 20 years are to be added.)
" 14 "		4 708 80
" 15 "		4 819 10
" 16 "		4 931 10
" 17 "		5 044 60
" 18 "		5 159 50
" 19 "		5 275 70
" 20 "		5 393 10

The values above cited are exclusive of surplus or dividends.

The dividends may be taken in CASH to reduce the premiums, or may be left to accumulate in the company's hands for either 10, 15 or 20 years. Or, if preferred, may be used at the end of 4 years (no extra examination required), and each year after to buy additional insurance.

If used upon the last or Convertible plan, and the insured should be forced to surrender his policy at the end of any year, he can take the cash value of his policy, as written in contract, plus cash value of his dividend addition.

GUARANTEED CASH VALUES given on all policies, no matter how you take your dividends. Policies also written on the life, fifteen, twenty and twenty-five payment life plans, and on all the popular Endowment plans.

Remember, the GUARANTEED CASH SURRENDER, PAID UP INSURANCE and EXTENDED INSURANCE VALUES are placed upon all these forms.

You don't know what your wants may be in the future. You may need cash more than protection, or you may want both. (Policies of this company are negotiable for their guaranteed cash surrender value) You may prefer extension. DON'T take a policy on which YOU HAVE TO OBLIGATE YOURSELF not to ask for either cash or extension.

In addition to the above plans, policies are written on the ten-year-renewable term plan, which contemplates the largest amount of insurance for the least possible outlay consistent with safety, equity, and continuance of the insurance. They are also written on all the non participating plans.

To any form of insurance written will be added "Insurance Rights" (the installment or annuity feature), when requested.

STUBBORN FACTS

The National confines its business to the healthy portions of the United States—hence, ITS DEATH RATE has been LOWER for twenty years than that of any other old company.

The National's Percentage of death losses and expenses combined is lower than the percentage of death losses alone in some companies that boast of their low expense rate, and upon that plea solicit business.

The National is one of the first companies in the land in interest-earning ability. Not one dollar of its assets is invested in fluctuating securities.

The National has a higher percentage of assets to liabilities than any other old company of its kind. The National has a special surplus of $345,000.00 which it places among liabilities. Other companies figure such surplus as an asset)

The above statements are derived from the sworn reports of the different companies, and every one made can easily be verified.

As the NATIONAL STANDS AMONG THE LEADERS in the points from which dividend earnings are made, it may be expected to stand among the leaders in paying dividends and furnishing insurance at low cost

For statements send age at nearest birthday. Don't wait to be drummed into taking insurance.

WE WANT GOOD AGENTS. For terms and information apply to

C. B. FITCH,

GENERAL AGENT FOR NORTHEASTERN INDIANA.

26 Bass Block - - - - Fort Wayne, Indiana. or at Swineford Hotel - - - - Auburn, Indiana

RAINY DAY RAMBLERS

Were here in force To-day

It's grown to be so pleasant—these long leasurely visits—that rainy-day throngs have stopped being small; almost looks as though people enjoyed having an occasional stormy day. And why not? It is but a few steps to Bishop & Lackey's Store. Hang up your wraps, let the umbrella drip and just enjoy the store.

Look at the New Underwear for Women and Children. You did not know that we had Union Suits for 25 and 50 cents, did you? Nor did you appreciate the good qualties of our 5, 10, 15, 20, 25, 35, 40 and 50 cent Vests. These cold, rainy days give us time to show them.

AND THEN THE HOSIERY DEPARTMENT! Our Window Display a few days ago told you of the immense stock, but rainy days give you time to examine qualities. You are surprised, and delighted; they are better than you expected for the money.

AND THE MILLINERY! Isn't it delightful to leasurely admire the beautiful Flowers, elegant Ribbons and Artistic creations in Trimmed Hats, so dear to the feminine heart. Come and see for yourself.

BISHOP & LACKEY,

Leading Merchants.

HODGE,

The Jeweler,

KIBLINGER BLOCK

You leave it to YOURSELF

To Purchase the

BEST GOODS

That are offered for the

LEAST MONEY

And to do this you should come to

Cowan Sisters'

and see the

New—— SUMMER GOODS Just in

WALL PAPER!

WE FORMERLY SOLD FOR

50 & 75 cents

NOW GOES FOR

35 Cents

At.....

OLDS BROS'.

All other Paper at Reduced Prices.

Thursday's Daily.

Those who are to bring us wood on subscription can deliver it to us at any time now.

"Coin's Financial School," the greatest book of the age, converting thousands of gold bugs into free silver men. For sale at the Glazier News Stand, 25 cents per copy.

Postmaster Brandon has gone to Mt. Clemens. Mich. for his health.

Miss Fannie Casebeer left yesterday for Philadelphia where she has a position making patterns and gets a salary of $60 per month.

Mrs. Hattie Altenburg of Indianapolis arrived in the city last evening and will remain the guest of friends in town for a few weeks.

Marion DeLong and wife of Sedan, were in town to-day. Mr. DeLong is among the successful farmers of that section and while he is making a good living yet he made application to-day to join the A. O. U. W. lodge and thereby secure $2,000 protection for his family after he has passed away. The small amount Mr. DeLong will pay for this $2,000 of insurance will scarcely be missed, and the course he has taken should be followed by every able bodied man, whether he lives in the country or in town for no one knows how soon they may be taken away, and leave their family in destitute circumstance.

Samuel Squires, administrator of the estate of the late Nathan Squires, his father, will sell the personal property belonging to the estate on Friday, May 31, beginning at 9:30 a. m. There will be quite an amount of horses, sheep and cattle, farm tools and household goods 19 20

The 30th Annual convention of the DeKalb county Sunday School association will be held at the Evangelical church at Waterloo on Tuesday and Wednesday June 4 and 5. We notice the following Auburn people are on the program; Rev. J. D. Brosy, M. B. Willis, Rev. F. W. Hart, J. W. Baxter and Mrs. J. K. Waltz.

Columbia City Commercial: Col. I. B. McDonald has opened a law office in the basement of the court house in the west room, where he will be pleased to see all his old clients and any others who may need his legal advice. The colonel will devote his entire time to the practice.

Saturday's Daily.

Mrs. Edith Refner and sister, Mrs Pearl Howell drove to Hudson yesterday and were the guests of Jack Bland, Jack is in the barber business there.

A heavy hail storm swept over the northern part of the county yesterday, Waterloo, Hudson, and Pleasant Lake report quite a shower.

From the extreme heat of yesterday to the extreme rawness of to-day is quite a jump.

During the hard thunder storm of last evening, a good deal of damage was done to the electric lights. The big converter in the Kiblinger factory rendered useless.

L. H. Wright, a resident of Auburn many years ago, and partner in the lumber business, is the guest of A. Lewis and family. He has a car of Michigan potatoes here.

T. J. Baxter and wife are back again after a two weeks sojourn on their farm near Summit. His school at Carmer's having closed he is putting out corn, and may conclude to live on the farm this summer. He goes up there again next Tuesday.

The next grand jury should look after the parties who fish in the little lakes of this county on Sunday and go hunting over farms and through the wood and for ducks on the lakes. There is a law against duck hunting at present, and a law always against Sabbath breaking.

Hoodlum boys that hang about church doors and on street corners Sunday evenings and make disagreeable remarks to passers, or in their hearing would do well to be a little careful. We understand they are being watched and are liable to become acquainted with the marshal.

Ligonier Banner: Bert Inks, the famous ball tosser, spent the past week at his home in this city recuperating his health. Upon his return from his southern trip with the Louisville team he suffered from an attack of malarial fever and was confined to his bed for some ten days As soon as able he left for home where he rapidly grew into his old time condition.

An observant reader desires to caution the parents of some of our young boys and girls to see that they know where their children are at nights. He thinks the youth of both sexes "gad" about the streets after dark entirely too much, and that such conduct will work evil to many of them. Some of the young people, he says, seem to have lost their reserve," and adds "if anything will cause this loss of modesty it is running the streets after night." It is certainly not conducive to the spiritual or moral growth of any young person, and we hope our observant reader's notes of alarm will arouse in parents an appreciation of the evil.

The German Baptist's Meeting Decatur Illinois.

For this occasion the Wabash Railroad will sell tickets May 27th to June 3, inclusive, from all points to Decatur, Ill. at one fare for the round trip, good to return any time up to June 30. This is the only line running direct to the meeting grounds. Be sure and go via the Wabash in order to save delay and trouble in changing from one road to another, either before your arrival at Decatur or after. For time tables, printed matter and other information call on or write to any ticket agent of the Wabash or connecting line or C. S. Crane, Gen'l Pass. & Tkt. Agt., St. Louis, Mo.

Monday's Daily

Smoke the K. & B. ten-cent cigar.

Court begins here next Monday.

AUBURN Summer Normal will begin July 8.

THERE WILL be at least three instructors in the Auburn Summer Normal and each will be a specialist in the branches he teaches.

FOR SALE: A good house and barn in south part of town. Call at this office.

You can have most any article of iron or brass manufactured at the Junction Foundry.

W. H. Leedy returned today from Detroit.

T. J. Cuppy arrived home Friday evening. He reports the finest spring for many years in the south. He went to the farm in Whitley county this morning, and to-morrow leaves for Chicago.

Howard W. Mounts, of Greencastle, was taken into the M. E. church Sunday. Mr. Mounts is studying law in the office of Roby, Shuman & Link. He a brother of Miss Osta Mounts who taught in our schools about a year ago.

John Picker has got the job of laying the brick on the new hotel at Ashley and the Pickers and Bumpus will be employed on it for some time. They have been putting up a brick house for Mr. Hensinger, out south of town. They will also do the brick work on the new Opera House in Auburn.

Dr. Buchtel it would appear stands high in his branch of the profession. At the Semi-Annual of the Homeopathisk of Northern Indiana and Southern Michigan, he was elected president of that body. He also tread a paper, his subject being "Paroxysmal Tachycardia." Many other interesting papers were read. There were many visiting physicians, also, in attendance, including a lady physician from China.

The cold storm storm worked bad for Buxton, the man who was putting in the stone abutments of the new bridges, He was working at the second one when the water flooded him out, and they had to take a lay off.

Rev. J. S. Tedrow, formerly pastor of the Butler church, who went to Florida last fall on account of Mrs. Tedrow's health, has returned. Mrs. Tedrow is no better.

The Star Spangled Banner's Author.

Many interesting things about Francis Scott Key—the author of the Star Spangle Banner—are contained in a pamphlet, which may be obtained free, from the Key Monument Association of Frederick City, Maryland, by sending one 2 cent stamp for postage. This Association is raising funds for a suitable monument to the poet, and they suggest, that in the schools and every where, upon or before Flag Day (June 14th), this subject be suitably recognized. Contributions, however small, are asked for. Every one who who loves the Flag, ought to have some small share in building this monument. The Governor of Maryland has strongly endorsed the movement. The names of all contributors will be preserved in the crypt of the monument, and published (without amount) in the history of the monument when completed.

MUSICAL CONVENTION.

G. W. Straub begins a musical convention at the brick church south of Sedan, May 27, at 7:45 p. m, and will hold three sessions a day on Tuesday, Wednesday Thursday and Friday closing Friday evewith a grand concert. Mr. Straub is one of the leading musical educators and authors of music, and this is a rare chance to improve one's musical education.

Many Citizens

Are being cured by Vitaline and Nervetone. Many others need it to restore shattered nerves and for a renewal of life and strength. That is is a most wonderful nerve soother as well as brain feeded and strength restorer is being demonstrated every day. The most obstinate nerve pains, headache, toothache and neuralgi cured in an hour's time. Ask your druggist, and accept no other. Prepared by the Hall Medicine Company Toledo, Ohio.

NORMAL at Auburn.

All diseases of the air pass ages especially catarrah and chronic, Bronchitis, as well as first stages of consumption can be cured. I am treating these diseases with great success by the use of the latest and most improved medicines and instruments. Dr. W H. Nusbaum, Auburn, Ind. 42tf

INSURANCE AGENCY:—People desiring good insurance should remember that Geo. Lanning has an office at the Davis Harware store, and works some of the very best companies in the country. Good farm risks taken. Call on him. 32tf

MARRIED.

Wednesday licenee to wed was issued to E. A. Moore of Paola, Kansas, aged 33, and Dora E. Olinger of this city, aged 25. They were married by Rev. Combs and took the afternoon train for Paola, their future home.

Miss Olinger is a daughter of Cyrus Olinger, now a resident of Richland township, this county, but who resided several years in Kansas. She is a granddaughter of L. Bowers of this city, and a sister to Mrs. Ollie Clay,

B & O. EXCURSIONS.

On May 24 to June 3, inclusive, the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad will sell excursion tickets to Decatur, Ill., at rate of one fare for the round trip, on account of the German Baptist Meeting. Tickets will be good for return 30 days from date of sale.

Tuesday's Daily.

Money to Loan.

By F. L. Welsheimer. Best Building and Loan Association represented in Auburn. Money to loan in large or small sums on good security.

The Eagle Manufacturing Co. at Auburn Junction are making all kinds of light and heavy castings.

The L. L C will meet this week with Mrs. Ford.

Word was received here yesterday that Judge Best's mother was dead. She had been living with the Judge's family in Minneapolis and her remains will reach Waterloo to-day. Mrs. Judge Best and her sister, Mrs. Rose have been at Ashland, Ohio, but are called home by this sad news.

AUBURN CEMENT.

A Lewis & Co. have just received a cars of Portland Cement direct from Holzminden Harburg-on-the Elbe, Germany, and will say to the public that this brand of Portland Cement is one of the best cements that is imported to this country. It has been tested here in walks and has stood the severe cold winter better than cements that were sold for 50 cents per barrel more. A Lewis & Co. will, if the cement is properly handled, stand by any defect of walks caused from inferior quality of cement They keep a supply on hand besides a large stock of American cements for stone work, cisterns ond etc.

A. LEWIS & Co.

Yard at S. S. & M. S R. R. Auburn Ind.

Under the Knife.

Of the surgeon there no more acut suffering than people endure every day with Rheumatism. Distorted and withered limbs mark its ravages everywhere. Dr. Drummond's Lightning Remedy for Rheumatism has a remarkable record of cures—not only relieving the pain but restoring all the functions of crippled limbs. Send $5 to the Drummond Medicine Co., 48 Maiden Lane, New York, and the full month's treatment of two large bottles will be sent to your express address. Agents Wanted.

Sunday morning, some of the early planted cucumbers, beans and the more tender kinds of garden truck were found to be nipped by the frost. Corn and fruit were not probably much hurt. There was a change from the 85 degrees in the shade Friday afternoon to about 55 the next morning. After the freeze Sunday morning, it came a little warmer, but by Monday morning was quite cold again. Then a cold rain set in.

And A. D. Moore's sons of Moore's station would like to have him. We refer to the man who passed the counterfeit dollar at Refner's saloon last Friday. The coat and vest he threw away when Sheriff Stroh was after him belonged to one of Moore's boys. The gang entered the house of Mr. Moore Friday while they were all out at work and stole two good suits of clothes, one new one that cost $18. One of Mr. Moore's boys came over to Auburn Sunday and identified the coat and vest and took them home. The tramps are perhaps more than a hundred miles from here now.

T. J. Baxter and his wife moved back to Summit this week, and will become farmers for the summer, at least. Mrs. Baxter's father, Edward Jackman is in poor health, and they wish to be near him.

E. Y. Williams and Reuben Loutzenheiser of Waterloo, were driving on our streets this forenoon.

Capt A. Scott died at the home of his son, T. P. Scott, this morning at 6:15. There will be a short service at the house to-morrow at ten o'clock standard time; Mr Colyin officiating. Interment will be at Pulaski Ohio, Thursday in the afternoon.

Call and see our new farm wagons. Shaffer & Shull, south Main, Auburn.

Call and see the "Gerbelle" Souvenir spoons at Hoff's.

For further information call on or address any B. & O. Ticket Agent, or L. S. Allen, Ass't Gen'l Pass'r Agent, Chicago, Illinois.

Indianapolis Sun: It is always wise to choose the lesser of two evils. Between Fairbanks and Voorhees for United States senator, give us "Fog-horn" Kelley.

C. B. Fitch general agent of the National Life Insurance is in town in the interest of that company. He has worked up a good business for his terms are so fair that they make a favorable impression. He certainly deserves a good business if one judges by the amount of advertising he is doing. See his big ad in the DAILY and WEEKLY COURIER.

FARMERS, we have just received a car of choice Michigan seed potatoes of the late variety. Now is your chance to improve your stock.

A. J. & G. M. RALSTON. 20-21

The Picker boys did not get off to Ashley Monday, on account of the hard rain, but are there now and no doubt the bricks are flying lively and the call for "Mort" will come with charming frequency. They know how to make the work hustle.

E. C. Foltz is painting Dr. Matheny's house. He is doing quite a neat job.

G. A. R. NOTICE

G. A. R. memorial service will be held at Rehoboth M. P. church, Jackson township, next Sunday, May 19 at 3 p. m. All old soldiers and others are invited to be present. The sermon will be preached by the pastor, Rev. W. W. Lineberry.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder
Awarded Gold Medal Midwinter Fair, San Francisco.

Shaffer & Shull make the best farm wagons in this part of the state. They have a number newly finished. Call on them. d&wtf

Ask you grocer for Victor Sack Bluing. d42tf

Reduced Rate Excursions to Boston.

Over the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern R'y in July, account National Convention Y. P. S. C. E, and in August account 26th Triennial Conclave Knights Templar. The L. S. & M. S, R'y is the direct and only double track line from the west to Boston. 19-20

CORUNNA.

The long drouth is at last broken.

The drummer has been a frequent visitor in town the past week.

Jonathan Gushwa has been slightly on on the sick list for several days with neuralgia.

The fellow who has too much brains for one man and not enough for two is in a mighty bad shape.

Martin Shaffer's moved to Kendallville last Friday.

No matter how high you fly, you will have to land on earth for your bread and meat.

Charley Wallace went to Waterloo last Friday to witness a ball game.

Jim DeLong has changed tactics, he is dealing now in bananas instead of meat.

The only way in which Corunna will feel the effects of the China-Japan War will be in the price of straw hats.

The woodlands are taking on an emerald hue and remind us that the picnic season will soon be here.

Rev. F. J. Spekein spent several days last week in Ligonier.

Some of those who had discarded their underwear. got a hustle on them last Saturday and hunted it up again, and not only the underwear, but their overcoats as well.

No young man with a spark of manhood in his make-up would be guilty of making fun of another because he is so unfortunate as to be a cripple. Yet we find occasionally one of those things which closely resembles a man, yet without a heart or conscience.

BUTLER.

The M. E. friends held their first quarterly meeting last Sunday. The attendance was only ordinary. Presiding Elder Hudson failed to appear, owing it is said, to the dangerous illness of his mother.

Henry Showalter was arrested and rather heavily fined last week, at the instance of Henry Aldrich, whom it appeared he had provoked to assault. There are a few others to whom this medicine might be administered in greater than homeopathic doses.

The bicycle works are turning out many wheels. They had a $1,000 cash sale last week.

The graduates of the Butler High School are arranging for a grand reunion and banquet on May 23d.

Frank Deets purchased the Henry Ball property on west Depot street last week.

Geo. Draggoo, of Concord, lost a barn by lightning last week, together with two horses, wagon and harness, tools and feed. His insurance had just expired, as often happens with many who neglect to attend to this important part of business economy.

M. F. Campbell is still an inmate of Hope Hospital, Ft. Wayne, but with great hopes of early recovery.

The cold snap last Saturday and Sunday caused many of our people to get into their winter undergarments without much ceremony. So far we have not heard of any injury by the frost Sunday morning.

Our corporation election passed off quietly and with perhaps a single exception the people are fairly well satisfied with the result.

WATERLOO.

The body of Mrs. Best of Minneapolis the mother of Judge Best was brought to Waterloo Tuesday for burial.

Dr. Chamberlain's health is much better and he is bright and cheerful, looking better than for years.

Mrs. Barnhart had a number of unexpected guests to supper Saturday. The Garrett Club were here that day to play ball with the Waterloo Club, and the Garrett boys took their supper at this popular house.

Saturday evening Jos. Barnes captured Charley Koon's cow in his own garden, and led it down street where some one suggested imprisoning the trespasser in the engine house which was done. The marshal soon appeared, and expressed his disapproval and led the animal to Robinson's livery stable, where it was safely tied until its owner should call for it and pay a dollar.

J. S. Locke is we believe to take possession of the Kelley house in Kendallville June 1.

We are this week passing through the annual storm commonly called sheep storm.

A brother of Mrs. Plum who lives in Butler has a daughter very sick.

Last Friday evening numbers from different directions might be seen wending their way to the Methodist church where the ladies of that society related how each earned a dollar to be used for the good of Christ's cause.

One of the ball players from Garrett Saturday met with a painful accident The ball came with full force against the end of his thumb, pushing the bones out of place and through the flesh. This seems to us like paying too dear for the whistle.

MAY JURIES

The two jury commissioners, H. M. Bicknell of Garrett, and Mike Boland of Auburn, met to-day and drew out names for the coming juries. They are:

GRAND JURY.

F. D. Oberlin, Franklin; Jno. Barnes, Keyser; Francis Koaht, Wilmington; Wm. Mason, Newville; John Urie, Fairfield; Samuel Kennedy, Grant.

PETIT JURY.

Freeman Hamman, Smithfield; Henry Gruop, Stafford; Isaiah Likens, Wilmington; Isaiah Davis, Newville; George Swander, Union; Fred. Deventer, Grant; Samuel Depew, Keyser; Simon Nichols, Newville; Jacob Christoffel, Stafford; Jerre McClintock, Troy; Eli Walker, Smithfield; Geo. Swineford Concord.

PROBATE CAUSE NO. 4038.

State of Indiana, DeKalb County } ss:

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, May Term, 1895, Henry Wartenslaben, Louisa Fitzpatrick and M. J. Fitzpatrick, husband of Louisa Fitzpatrick, non-residents of the state of Indiana, and Woman's Baptist Home Mission Society, incorporated under the laws of the state of Illinois; Woman's Baptist Foreign Missionary Society of the West, incorporated under the laws of the state of Illinois, foreign corporations, are hereby notified that Orrin C. Clark, as executor of the will of Adelbert Wartenslaben, deceased, has filed in the Circuit Court of DeKalb county, Indiana, a petition making them defendants thereto, and prays therein for an order and decree of said Court authorizing the sale of certain real estate belonging to the estate of said decedent and in said petition described, to make assets for the payment of the debts and liabilities of said estate: and that said petition, so filed and which is now pending, is set for hearing in said Circuit Court at the court house in Auburn, Indiana, on the 10th day of June, 1895.

Witness, the Clerk and Seal of said Court, thi 27th day of March 1895.

[SEAL.] DANIEL D. MOODY, Clerk DeKalb Circuit Court.

Baxter & Brown, Attorneys.

Notice to Non-Residents

State of Indiana, De alb County
In the Circuit Court, May Term, 1895

William H. McIntyre Administrator of the estate of William H. Kiblinger deceased vs. Horace G. Kircher, Nettie Kircher. } Notice

The plaintiff in the above cause having filed his complaint therein together with an affidavit that the defendants are not residents of the State of Indiana, and the cause of action alleged in the complaint is founded upon a contract in relation to real estate in this State, to-wit: to enforce a lien thereon by foreclosure of a mortgage and the appointment of a receiver.

Now therefore, the said defendants are hereby notified that unless they be and appear on the 3rd day of next (May) term of the DeKalb Circuit Court, to be held on the 3rd Monday of May A. D, 1895, at the Court House in Auburn, in said County and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in their absence.

In Witness whereof, I hereunto set my hand and affix the seal of said Court this 20th day of April 1895.

DANIEL D. MOODY, Clerk.

C. A. O. McClellan. Atty. for ptf.

NOTICE OF SALE OF PERSONAL PROPERTY.

Notice is hereby that on:

FRIDAY, MAY 31, 1895,

at the late residence of the deceased, in Section Twenty two (22), in Jackson Township, DeKalb County, Indiana, I, Samuel Squires, Administrator of the estate of Nathan Squires, deceased, will sell at public sale the personal property of said decedent, not taken by the widow, consisting of horses, sheep, cattle, pigs, farming tools, household goods and other articles too numerous to mention: Also rye and wheat in the field. Said sale will begin at half past nine o'clock in the forenoon of said day.

TERMS OF SALE.

All sums under five dollars cash in hand; on sums of five dollars and over a credit of nine months will be given upon the purchaser giving his note with approved security, waiving relief from valuation laws and bearing six per cent interest after maturity.

SAMUEL SQUIRES, Administrator.

May 4, 1895. 19-21

COFFEE 12½ Cts Per lb

By using Aluminum Coffee Filterer will save its cost every 3 months in the year; always bright; no egg requir- to settle. Coffee is richer and stronger. Every big restaurant in the world makes their coffee on this principle. Is of more value than any other kithchen utensil. Price 75 cents prepaid. Money refunded if not satisfactory. Agents can make from $3 to $15 per day selling this and other novelties. W. M. Woodworth, Kokomo, Ind.

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administratrix of the estate of James D. McAnally deceased late of said County.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent,

MARY A. MCANALLY Administratrix.

April 30, 1895.

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of Nathan Squires, deceased, late of said county

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

SAMUEL A. SQUIRES, Administrator.

April 30, 1895.

J. E. & J. H. ROSE, Attorneys for Estate.

CHEAP EXCURSIONS TO THE WEST.

On May 21st and June 11th, The North-Western Line (Chicago & North-Western Railway) will sell excursion tickets at very low rates to a large number of points in the west and northwest. For full information apply to ticket agents of connecting lines, or address A. H. Waggener, T. P. A., 7 Jackson place Indianapolis, Ind. 19-23

Albert Robbins, Pres. J. C. Henry, V. P

FARMERS BANK.

Capital Stock,— —$45,000.00.

—UNDER STATE SUPERVISION.—

Transacts a general banking business. Interest paid on time deposits by agreement. Collections receive careful attention. Business solicited.

A. C. ROBBINS, Cashier.

Awarded Highest Honors—World's Fair,

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER

MOST PERFECT MADE.

A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.

40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

JAMES A. BARNR, - - PUBLISHER.

A man to stand on his merits nowadays needs something to balance himself.

A mustard plaster is not a very poetic subject; but, ah, how warmly it appeals to a man's feelings.

On the Pingree potato patch job the old cry of "Ho! everyone that thirsteth" will be changed to "Thirst, every one that toeth."

The Atchison Globe says that one can always pick out the new woman by the way she kisses. Perhaps we should be thankful that the new woman kisses at all.

There is a future awaiting the theatrical manager who will provide a hat museum near the foyer where women may inspect each otheris bonnets between acts.

A man named J. Stanley Bell writes to a Boston paper defending the high check-rein and the docking of horses' tails. Remember the name—J. Stanley Bell. Pass him round.

Every Pingree potato patch will have to be guarded by special policemen. Those who neither plant potatoes nor handle the hoe will be willing and ready to do the harvesting, even if they have to work nights.

By forcing enormous advances in the price of meat the avaricious beef monopoly may yet succeed in making hash a household word. Even the lowly and unpretentious beef stew is rising to a new dignity in domestic economy.

Actor Joseph Jefferson has just been elected an honorary member of the Massachusetts State Horticultural Society. This looks like a blunder; Beerbohm Tree probably was the fellow they were after.

A New York man has applied for a divorce on the ground that he was hypnotized into marrying. To grant a divorce on such a claim would be to establish a dangerous precedent which might uncouple the whole country.

We learn from the esteemed Philadelphia Record that "One of the pudamunks at the Zoo is suffering from appendicitis, the result of the seed of a goo-goo berry lodging in the animal's vermiform appendix." We can imagine what wild excitement this must cause in such a quiet town.

The San Francisco murders betray a depth of depravity and brutality that suggest insanity in their perpetrator; but it is the kind of insanity that should be treated with prompt execution. Cases of this kind are powerful arguments against sentimental pleas for the abolition of the death penalty.

William J. Corcoran, a prominent druggist, writes to Printers' Ink, the advertising journal: "We have tried billposting. It is no good. Neither are samples. Newspaper ads reach more people at less cost. We find that such advertising is all that we need. Druggists need not start off with big ads. There is as much virtue in a small ad in proportion. Some think not, but it is like medicine—doses regularly, as required."

That was a characteristic scene in Montreal when the lifeless bodies of almost a score of employes in a burning building littered the sidewalk where the victims had leaped from a window, while three priests prayed for the souls of the mangled unfortunates. Montreal is strong on prayers, but weak in fire escapes. The condition of the fire-trap in which these people were caught and killed is a disgrace to any nineteenth century city. There was a building containing 900 employes, with no fire escapes and only two staircases. All the windows were barred with heavy iron lattice work—to keep the employes from throwing tobacco out to their friends, for it was a tobacco factory. The result was that over 500 women were penned up at the top of the stairs, and when a few finally managed to tear away the caging from one of the windows it was too late to do anything but dash themselves to death on the pavement below. Montreal in some respects is half a century behind the age. If it has any more such iniquities in architecture on its streets it had better make the owners put in fire escapes or send them to the penitentiary before they can have a chance to repeat such a wanton holocaust.

Among the Freaks.

The Armless Wonder was resting his head on the cold slab of a marble mantle just before the show opened when the Fat Woman came in and took her place.

"Hello, Army," she said in that strangely familiar way these people have, "what's the matter?"

"I was out with the boys last night, and, oh, my head!" groaned the Wonder.

"You deserve to suffer," she said harshly, "and I have no sympathy for you."

That's all right," retorted the Wonder. "I have one thing to be thankful for."

"What's that?"

"That I'm not the two-headed freak from Seringapatam," and the Wonder felt so grateful that he actually smiled at the Fat Woman.—Detroit Free Press.

A Defective Guess.

"Mister," said a bright boy, on the street to a passing gentleman, "will you please change half a dollar for me?"

"Sorry I can't, Johnny," replied the man, "but I haven't much change about me."

"How did you know that my name was Johnnie?" asked the boy, apparently in surprise.

"Oh, I guessed it!" replied the man, with an air which indicated that it was an easy matter for him to guess the name of any person he might chance to meet.

"Then you guessed wrong," added the boy, as he began to move away. "My name's Tommy."

What are the women going to do a hundred years or so hence for their winter furs? Fur-bearing animals are rapidly being exterminated, and unless soon protected there is reason to believe future wearers of ermine, sable and marten must pay fabulous prices for the privilege of being kept elegantly comfortable, while humble ordinary mortals will have to resort to imitations or to the skins of perennial cats. The employment of so much fur as a personal adornment has led to a fearful slaughter of animals in British North America, which was supposed to teem with material for cold-defying garments sufficient for all time. But such is not the case; the North is not so productive as the tropics, and we had better hang on to our Russian sable overcoats and frilly ermine capes! There never may be any more.

It is a surprise to note that a question has arisen at Camden, N. J., as to whether wedding presents belong to the bride or groom. Camden is near New York, and in New York the bride generally owns practically everything and the groom gets what he can induce her to give him. Aside from that, however, there should be no question as to wedding presents. They are given to the bride and the groom gets her. If he cannot keep her, how can he expect to keep the presents? In the Camden case the groom was unable to keep the bride, and she took the presents with her when she left. He has begun suit to recover them, but not to recover her. In fact, he plainly intimates that he does not want her. It is doubtful if he has good grounds for his action. He got them with her; can he separate them now? They were all drawn as one prize in the matrimonial lottery. Can he discard part of that prize and keep the rest? It seems only reasonable to suppose that he must keep all or nothing.

USE OF THE ROCKET IN WAR.

An Engine of Destruction Which Inventors Are Trying to Perfect.

The world was recently startled by the announcement that a Frenchman named Turpin had invented an engine of war so terrible that the nation possessing it would have the power of annihilating its opponents—so dread a machine that its very might would probably put an end to war altogether. The records of the French Patent Office reveal the fact that this engine of destruction, which should act as a sort of cast-iron Jupiter Tonans, is a rocket. Inventors in all ages have been struck with the great advantages of the rocket as a missile over the ordinary cannon with its projectile. First, the rocket carries its propelling power with it, while the projectile receives only a big push, as it were, at the beginning. The cannon ball must move more and more slowly as it goes; the rocket may go faster and faster. The cannon ball implies an enormously heavy and awkward piece of artillery; for setting off the rocket nothing is needed but a light portable frame or carriage.

The first military rockets that made much stir were those of Congreve, which did good work in the bombardment of Copenhagen and also in the Crimea.

But they did not always go straight. The inventors then tried to make a rocket which, like the breech-loading rifle, should cause its projectile to rotate swiftly. To do this and still keep the rocket in a straight and even line is a difficult problem.

To this end, instead of providing a rifled cannon tube, Turpin gives his rocket a preliminary spin by the aid of electric motors. He can thus evidently get up an enormously high speed, but it is unfortunately accompanied by a trembling movement, which has a disturbing action on the accuracy of fire. So the military rocket is still short of perfection as an engine of war, but Turpin's rocket has come nearer to it than any of its predecessors.

Horse-Swapping in Tennessee.

A traveling man thus describes a "horse-swapping day" in Tennessee: "One of the men was mounted on a rawboned dapple gray, while the other nag was of a deep yellow, and looked much like a living, moving hatrack. One was leading a mule and the other an old steed that looked like a broken-down car horse. Presently the man on the yellow horse said to the other: 'Well?' The answer was, 'Well?' 'Talk.' 'You talk.' 'Well, what'll you do?' 'Swap.' 'How'll you swap?' Horse and horse.' After dickering for some time a trade was effected, and one of them got a dollar to boot. We wandered about the place and covered about an acre and a half until we grew tired, and then returned to the train. On the way back we overheard two of the strangers talking. One of these said he was three jackknives and $3.25 in money ahead. We were told that these swapping days are held once a month. The men meet at this place and swap anything from a jackknife to a farm, but trading in horses is the favorite fancy with them."—New York Tribune.

He Was Earning Big Money.

"How much you say de fine wuz, boss?" asked a hard-faced negro who had been convicted of gambling, as he peeped from behind the bars in the window of the prisoner's room in the city court.

"Fifty dollars and costs," I replied.

"How much is dem costs?"

"About twenty-five dollars.'

"Den dat ud be seventy-fi' dollars?"

"Yes."

"An' ef I doan pay hit, how long I gotter wuk?"

"Six months."

"Shew, white man, you knows I'm gwine ter wuck it out," he cried, and, turning toward his wife on the outside, he said: "Honey, you go on home an' tell de chillun I'll be dar in six munse time. You knows I'm gwineter wuck, w'en I kin make seventy-fi' dollars an' my rashuns in six munse time; corse I is. Go long home, ole 'oman, an' tell de chillun wat I dun tole you bout."—Atlanta Journal.

A Large Bottle.

At the Bordeaux Exhibition the special feature will be the largest bottle ever made. It will be 115 feet high and divided into stories, in the lowest of which there will be a restaurant. A winding staircase will lead up the neck to a kiosque, taking the place of the cork, where there will be room for 35 persons at a time to sit and look over the exhibition grounds and the city.

THE RISE OF WAGES.

GOING UP FASTER THAN THEY DECLINED.

Republicans Forced to Admit the Benefits of Tariff Reduction—Good Clothing Cheaper, Yet Wages of Makers Not Reduced—European Sentiment.

Glowing Dawn of Trade Revival.

The rising tide of prosperity is now coming in so strongly that the Republicans are compelled to get out of its way and in doing so to admit that business is rapidly reviving under the Wilson free trade tariff bill.

As late as the 5th ult., the New York Tribune was still telling its readers that the wage-earners were in revolt because they could not get "the old rate of wages," and that "every week's payment brings home to them the fact that they have been persistently cheated, and that the Democratic policy was not intended to, and in the nature of things, cannot maintain the wages formerly paid." "Not only are wages not being restored," said the Tribune, but "the more severe competition with the labor of other lands only makes it more clearly impossible to restore them."

But the Tribune could not suppress the news of better times, and before the end of April admitted to its readers that "in a good many establishments wages have been advanced." On May 2 it again admitted that business was reviving with surprising vigor, but expressed great sorrow at the fact that the wage-earners should insist upon sharing in the revival. After declaring that "there seems to be a prospect that the woolen mills in Providence and the neighborhood will soon be shut down, on account of a controversy with the workers regarding wages," the Tribune continued:

"It is most unfortunate that this great industry, which has been so seriously depressed for the last two years, but has now begun to revive with surprising vigor, and has shown most gratifying progress in the effort to compete under new and trying circumstances with woolen manufacturers of other countries, should now be arrested by serious labor difficulties. It is to be hoped that better sense will prevail, and that for the time questions of wages may be deferred."

The 8,000 or 10,000 textile workers in and near Providence paid no attention to the Tribune's advice, but continued in revolt against McKinley wages. Other Republican newspapers are still asserting that wages are not advancing and that it is folly for wage-earners to expect higher wages while Democratic conditions exist. This is the position of the Philadelphia Press and the Boston Journal of Commerce. Regardless of the fact that several hundred thousands of wage-earners (mostly in textile mills) have had their wages advanced under the Wilson bill and apparently in blank ignorance of the fact that strikes for higher wages were then on in several scores of woolen mills, the Boston Journal of Commerce said, late in April:

"The advance of wages in one or two woolen mills, and the advance in some of our cotton mills, gives many the impression that there is to be a general advance all along the line in these industries. This is a great mistake. * * * It is folly to presume that woolen manufacturers can live and operate their mills on a closer margin. We have no doubt that our woolen men would like to pay more for labor in their mills if the present prices warranted it, but they do not; neither will they as long as we have so low duties on goods imported. It is hoped that the help in our woolen mills will understand this fact, and that no strikes will take place in that circle of business."

As a matter of fact nearly all of the reductions in 1893-4 have been restored and often the laborers are striking for as high wages as they were getting when McKinley struck them in 1890. The Republicans and protectionists cannot, with their little brooms, sweep back the rising tide of prosperity. If they were honest they would at once submit, as they will be forced to do later, that wages have advanced faster since this year than at any time during the last thirty years.

A Ten-Dollar Suit.

Under the new tariff the American people are able to get good clothing cheaper than ever before. The admission of wool free did not damage the domestic wool-growers, for there is a better demand for their product now than there was before the repeal of the McKinley tariff. More woolen mills are in operation, the mills are employing more hands and turning out a greater product as well as a better quality. Domestic wool is used largely for mixing with the foreign article, and the improved condition of woolen manufactures promises well for our wool-growers.

The new tariff is an attack on shoddy, which, under taxed wool, constituted a large part of the clothing of the masses in this country.

The American Wool and Cotton Reporter has had one of its editors investigating the matter, and he finds that clothes are so cheap since the tariff has been taken off wool that a really good suit can be bought in New York for $10.

This expert reports as follows on one such suit which he examined critically:

"A strictly all-wool, sixteen-ounce, Clay diagonal of American make, costing the wholesale clothier $1.10 a yard. The suit was made up and sold to the retailer for $7.50, leaving him a very handsome margin of profit when sold at $10. The suit was cut on the same stylish line used for their higher-priced garments, and was trimmed, lined and sewed in a neat and serviceable manner. When it is understood that woolens costing as high as $1, and in a few cases $1.10 a yard, and heavy-weight woolens sometimes as high as $1.25 per yard, are used in the manufacture of $10 suits, it is plainly apparent to any one acquainted with the quality of such fabrics that a stylish, serviceable and in every way good suit can be retailed at $10."

None of the reduction in the price of clothing has been made by cutting down the pay of those who make it. Wages have not been reduced in our woolen mills or clothing factories, and more persons are employed in both than were there when the new tariff went into effect.—Atlanta Journal.

Another Tariff Lesson.

The actual operation of the new tariff is playing havoc with the theories of its opponents. In many industries wages, which we were told would be cut down, have been increased. Manufactories, which we were told would be ruined, are now making more goods and selling them in more markets than they did under the McKinley tariff. We have given recently a number of instances in which American woolens and carpets have been sold in England and in continental European markets which they never reached before. The competition of the shoe manufacturers of this country has aroused the fear of the English manufacturers that a large part of their own home trade may be taken from them.

The Wilson tariff reduced the duty on decorated crockery from 60 to 35 per cent., and that on white ware from 55 to 30 per cent. The general reduction of duties on crockery has been about 10 per cent. The foreign manufacturers have not, as it was said they would, raised the price of their wares and thus secured for themselves the benefit of this reduction of the tariff. They are selling to us at the old prices and the people get the benefit of lower prices for both foreign and home-made crockery. The industry in this country does not seem to be injured by the lower duties, and the consumers find that they can buy table ware cheaper now than they ever could before.

The Wilson tariff has been in effect only a little more than seven months and it is justifying every claim that was made by its author and supporters when it was under consideration.—Atlanta Journal.

A Shaky Single Plank.

Mr. Depew thinks that he has discovered the winning issue for his party next year. It is simply "hard times." He would have no other—neither the tariff nor currency, except as incidental. His line of reasoning is short and direct. Everybody is "agin" hard times. Everybody wants good times. Therefore hold the Democratic party responsible for hard times. "Whoop it up" for Harrison (or McKinley, or Morton, or Reed) and good times—and there you are.

The formula is indeed simple—rather too much so. It supposes that the people are simple enough to have forgotten the long period of terribly hard times from 1873 to 1878 under Republican rule. It requires them to forget the depression, the strikes and lockouts, the million idle workmen, that led the voters to turn Mr. Depew's party down and out in 1890 and again in 1892. It ignores the sacking of the Treasury during the Harrison-McKinley reign, and the monetary panic of 1893, due to the Sherman Republican Silver-Purchase act.

But there is another and a more potent reason for thinking that Mr. Depew's single plank will be too shaky for use next year. The times are improving. They are growing rapidly better. Commerce increases. Industry hums. Wages rise. Prices are up. Crops promise well. If this improvement shall continue, as there are many indications that it will, where would the calamity howlers be then? We advise Dr. Depew to look earnestly about for another issue.—New York World.

Cannot Be Suppressed.

Possibly the tariff question may have to take a back seat for a year. No one, however, who knows anything about the question and the great extent to which public sentiment has been aroused will make the mistake of thinking that it can always be kept on a back seat. Tens of thousands of intelligent men have seen the iniquity of the whole tariff system and are waging a war upon it that cannot but be successful. In public and private debate, in homes, in labor unions, in granges, and even in church and society gatherings, debate will go on until Congress will be compelled to settle the question in the only way possible—by abolishing the obnoxious, unjust and corrupting system of tariff taxation.

Thousands of our best citizens consider the tariff question to be of far greater importance than the currency question, and it is by no means certain that the tariff question can be set aside for even a year.

Iron Workers' Wages.

Until the other day the only increases of wages in the iron industry which had been reported were at the very base of that industry—the advance of 15 per cent. for 15,000 coke workers in Western Pennsylvania, and an increase of about 10 per cent. for the employes of the Minnesota Iron Company in the iron-ore mines of the Vermillion Range. The upward tendency is now beginning to be manifested at the iron furnaces and the manufacturing plants. At all the furnaces in the Mahoning Valley wages are to be increased by 15 cents a day, and an addition of 10 per cent. has been made at the Phoenix Iron Works, Meadville, Pa.

Our Republican contemporaries still strive to ignore this wages movement, because they have continuously and strenuously asserted during the last twelve months that it could not take place so long as the present tariff should remain in force.—New York Times.

An English View of the Income Tax.

The rich people of America, whose fortunes are largely invested in such a manner as to escape with a nearly invisible minimum of taxation, fought the income tax from the outset with a naked frankness of selfishness which none of our impoverished lords of the manor would have ventured to display in resisting Sir William Harcourt's budget of last year. The astonishing decision of the Supreme Court, that to exact a percentage on rents is direct taxation, but to exact a percentage on salaries is indirect taxation, and hence permissible, gives an appropriate point to the entire controversy. There is no monarchical country in Europe, not excepting Russia or Turkey, where wealth enjoys the immunity from responsibility to the state and the general public that is given to it by the foremost of republics.—London Saturday Review.

Old Kaiser Wilhelm had a soft voice, and spoke in a soothing tone that gave pleasure to every hearer.

HOW TYPE IS MADE.

ACCURACY REQUIRED IN EVERY DETAIL.

Each Measurement Must Be Made to the Thousandth Part of an Inch—Type Metal a Combination of Four Metals—Extent of the Business.

A Great Industry.

VERY type in a font, like every link in a chain, must be perfect in itself, or else the work of the maker counts for nothing. Perhaps in no other industry, unless it be watch-making, is such scientific accuracy required in every detail. Each measurement must be made to the thousandth part of an inch, and if a mold or a die is not exact to the hair's breadth a whole casting may be lost. For in this age of newspapers every printed page is judged to a certain extent from an artistic point of view, and if the impressions of some type are heavier than those of others or if the alignment is imperfect or the spacing uneven it is subjected to condemnation. In this way type-founding becomes a real art.

One of the largest manufactories of type in the world is located in Chicago and the amount of type in tons which it turns out yearly runs well up into the thousands. It is a big, busy building humming with life and movement, more than 350 men and girls working at its benches every day.

Four metals are combined to make what is known as type metal—lead, tin, copper and antimony. The four are mixed according to a secret formula—the lead being the largest ingredient—and placed in the crucible. Antimony, which is a most expensive metal, is used because it gives hardness to the type-composition and because it has the unusual quality of expanding in cooling, thus preventing the type when cast from "falling away" from the mold and produces sharpness of the face and body of the type.

The first step in type-making is the cutting of the letters desired on the ends of pieces of hard, fine steel. This is very difficult work and the men who do it receive high wages. Each letter in a font must be exactly the same height and the width must be cut according to rule. A separate one of these dies or "punches" is required for each character in every font of type, and the making of them is the most expensive part of the business. Some of them cost as high as $7. When a set of "punches" is complete it goes to the matrix department. Here little rectangular pieces of pure copper known as "strikes" have been prepared. For minion or long primer type they are about two inches long by half an inch broad. At exactly the proper point near the top of each the steel die is driven in, and then the "strike" or embryo matrix goes to the fitter, who rubs and polishes it down on big pieces of sandstone until it is everywhere square and perfect and the depth of the letter is exactly the same as the rest of the font matrices.

Next the mold is made. This work requires the most skilled mechanics in steel. The pieces are all cut out by lathes, planers and shapers and ground down to just the right size and then polished on emery laps. There are two main parts to the mold and they may be so adjusted as to make room for casting the bodies of letters of any width from a 3-m size to an i size. A great deal depends upon the accuracy of these molds. The matrix is now fastened in the mold so that it will form one end of the hole between the two parts. Then one of the parts is fastened to the casting machine and the other to a movable arm. The metal it kept fluid in a little furnace heated by gas and is projected by great force into the mold by means of a pump. At every revolution of the crank the mold approaches the pump spout, takes a charge of metal and flies back with a fully formed type, which is cooled with air-blasts and water from above. When the movable arm is as far back as possible, a half of the mold lifts and the type jumps out. At the lower end of each one there is a "jet" of metal which clings and has to be broken off by an automatic device. In some of the larger styles of type the "jet" is removed by hand. When all the a's in the font are made the b matrix is put in, and so on to the end of the alphabet. A casting machine will turn out from 100 to 175 type a minute.

A TYPE-CASTING MACHINE.

A rolling stone gathers no moss, and it is liable to strike something and do a lot of damage.

OUR BUDGET OF FUN.

HUMOROUS SAYINGS AND DOINGS HERE AND THERE.

Jokes and Jokelets that Are Supposed to Have Been Recently Born—Sayings and Doings that Are Odd, Curious and Laughable—The Week's Humor.

Let Us All Laugh.

We hear and read of many men
Whose honor is like flint;
But I know a man so honest
That he never took a hint.
—Judge.

She—So you wouldn't take me to be 20. What would you take me for? He—For better or for worse.—Philadelphia Record.

"Hullo, Patlon! Haven't seen you for three days." "No. Went over to Philadelphia day before yesterday and spent a week."—Life.

Tommy—Pop, what is a popular song? Tommy's father—One that everybody gets sick and tired of hearing.—Philadelphia Record.

Billy, the Goat—That manuscript I just ate has given me an awful pain. Nanny—Yes, dearest; that's called writers' cramp.—Harper's Bazar.

"How on earth did Smith become a colonel?" "Easy enough. Train was delayed in Georgia and he attended a picnic."—Atlanta Constitution.

Mr. D.—If you get my coat done by Saturday I shall be forever indebted to you. Tailor—If that is the case, it won't be done.—New York Recorder.

Nell—If you really liked a young man, what would you do if some day he should kiss you suddenly, against your will? Belle—He couldn't.—Somerville Journal.

Jingle—Here, you can take back this dog you gave me. Dingle—What's the matter with him? Jingle—He's eaten his tag. I can't afford to get him a new license.—Life.

The Tourist—You seem to be proud of your family title. The New York millionaire abroad (proudly)—Of course I am. I paid for it in good hard dollars.—Chicago Record.

Mrs. Bellefield—Mrs. Oakland has a great secret. Mrs. Bloomfield—Oh, no! She can't have! "Why not?" "If she had she would have told it to me.'—Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph.

Nodd—Our nursegirl has just had a terrible fit of sickness. Todd—Yes? What was the matter? Nodd—By mistake she took some medicine she was going to give the baby.—Judge.

Mrs. Hicks—How do you like this little theater toque? I made it all myself. Hicks—It isn't very big, is it? Mrs. Hicks— No-o, I made it out of an old jet bracelet.—New York World.

Trivvet—Miss Flop claims to have made 1,000 refusals of marriage. Dicer—That's easily explained. When young Callow asked her to marry him, she replied: "No, a thousand times, no!"—Tid-Bits.

"I guess," said the sharp-nosed girl, "that I will take the wind out of her sails." "Why," asked the fluffy girl, "don't you be up to date and say take the wind out of her tires?"—Cincinnati Tribune.

Hurrying Stranger (in Squeekawket)—Is there time to catch the train? Languid Native—Waal, stranger, ye've got time enough, I reckon, but I'm dead sure ye hain't got the speed!—Harper's Bazar.

"Here's the latest thing in watches," said the dealer; "a warranted waterproof case." "I believe," said Mudge, "that one that could be soaked would be better suited to my needs."—Indianapolis Journal.

"Say, papa, if we were lying at the center of the earth, wouldn't we be all funny?" "What makes you think so, my son?" "'Cause this jography says everything there loses its gravity."—Brooklyn Life.

He—Don't you think there is considerable danger in letting a woman who cares for you know that you love her? She—I think there is considerable more danger in letting her know that you don't—Harlem Life.

"The first time I heard that played, Miss Ethel, do you know, I was completely carried away." "Indeed! Why, how delightful! If you'll sit nearer the door, Mr. Berthe, I'll play it over again."—Harper's Bazar.

A bond of sympathy: Mrs. Hicks—This paper tells about a hunting dog that has formed a strange attachment for an old hen. How do you account for that? Mr. Sport—Probably they are both setters.—Truth.

Wadsworth—Well, well, well! If this isn't Billie Brown. How are you, old man, anyway? The late Billie Brown—I am not Billie Brown any longer. I am Mr. Simpkins. I have married since we last met.—Indianapolis Journal.

"How do you like your new teacher, Willie?" "I'm afraid of her, mamma. She's so awfully swell." "Does she dress very stylishly?" "Does she? Mamma, she could put you in either one of her sleeves!"—Chicago Tribune.

"Do any of you women believe in advanced women?" shouted the car conductor, putting his head in at the car door. "Yes, we do," replied a woman holding on to a strap. "Well, then, move forward."—Yonkers Statesman.

Mrs. Chugwater—What did the doctor say you'd better do for your cold, Josiah? Mr. Chugwater—He told me to "take a nightcap." Mrs. Chugwater (greatly relieved)—Is that all? You can have one of mine?—Chicago Tribune.

Mrs. Goodheart—You have a bad cough, my poor man. Jogging Jerry—Yes, ma'am; durin' the fine weather of last week I made de mistake of takin' off me sanitary woolen flannels, an' now I'm sufferin' de consequences.—Brooklyn Eagle.

The Last Plan.

The latest engineering and ship canal idea is to dispense with the twenty-four locks in the Welland canal leading from Lake Erie to Lake Ontario, and to make the whole drop of 326 feet between these two lakes in two pneumatic balance locks, built of steel, operated by compressed air, and large enough to admit vessels of ocean draught. The greatest lock now in existence is on the Manchester ship canal, forty-five feet high.

What has become of the old-fashioned baby that held its breath?

A PECULIAR CASE.

PHYSICIANS PUZZLED BY THE EXPERIENCE OF MRS. BOWEN.

The Episcopal Hospital Said She Had Consumption.

(From the Record, Philadelphia, Pa.)

Last July the Episcopal Hospital admitted a woman whose pale and emaciated face and racking cough proclaimed her the victim of consumption. She gave her name as Mrs. Sallie G. Bowen, wife of Wm. G. Bowen, residence, 1849 Meighan street, Philadelphia. The case was diagnosed and she was told plainly that she was in an advanced stage of consumption. The examining physician even showed her the sunken place in her breast where the cavity in her lung was supposed to exist. She went home to her family a broken, disheartened woman with death staring her in the face. That was the beginning of the story; the end was told by Mrs. Bowen, who no longer expects to die, to a reporter who visited her home.

"The first symptoms of consumption came in the form of terrible sweats, both night and day. From April until September I was constantly cold and kept wrapped up in blankets through the hottest weather. A terrible cough took possession of me, my breast was sore to the slightest touch, and my limbs were like cold clay. The hardest rubbing with the coarsest towel would not create the slightest flush, and the least exertion would so exhaust me that I could barely gasp for water.

"I went to the hospital in July and they diagnosed my case as above stated. It was when the clouds were the darkest that the first glint of sunshine came. Mr. Shelmerdine, a friend, who lives around at 1844 Clementine street, said to me one day: 'Mrs. Bowen, did you ever try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People?' I had never heard of the medicine, but in my condition could not turn a deaf ear to anything that offered relief. It was after considerable thought and investigation that I concluded to discontinue all the medicine I was taking, including cod liver oil, and depend entirely upon Pink Pills. I began to take the pills, at first with but little encouragement. The first sign of improvement was a warmth and a tingling sensation in my limbs. Finally the cough disappeared, my chest lost its soreness and I began to gain flesh until I was fifteen pounds heavier. All this I owe to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I cannot praise them too highly."

Mrs. Bowen is a kindly-faced lady of middle age, a church member well-known and highly esteemed. She looks to-day well and strong, and it seems almost impossible that she was ever given up by eminent physicians as an incurable consumptive. Yet such is the case beyond all dispute.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

Politeness, Not Toadyism.

Politeness, like honesty, is the best policy. "I have often heard my uncle," said the nephew of a noted lawyer who died recently, "dwell upon the fact that he owed much of his success in life to a habit of invariable politeness; he made no distinction between the rich and the poor, but treated all with courtesy. His first start in his profession came through an old scrubwoman who was employed about the house where he boarded when a young man. One morning he passed out as she was scrubbing the front steps, and he saluted her politely, as usual. She stopped him. 'They tell me ye are a lawyer,' she said. 'Yes.' 'Well, I know a poor widdy woman that wants a lawyer, and if you will give me your address I'll tell her.' The 'poor widdy' proved to be the chief heir to a large estate in Delaware County. My uncle became her attorney and trustee of her children, recovered her interest in the estate and derived a good income from its management for many years."

Keeping Clear of Rats and Mice.

An experienced old housekeeper in charge of a large downtown mansion with few occupants is noted for a queer manner of tidying up each room daily, between intervals of thorough cleaning. Sometimes she merely changes the chairs about in the unused rooms or transposes articles on the mantelpiece, or, taking a broom, circles it once or twice around the floor. The result is absolute freedom from mice and rats. She says she learned years ago from a frontier hunter that all such animals avoided places which, to their acute senses, showed signs of recent disturbance. He informed her that always before lying down at night on the prairie he stuck his hunting knife in the ground and drew it entirely around the place where he was to sleep. A snake or any other dangerous prowler would stop as soon as it came upon the freshly disturbed earth and beat a hasty retreat.—Philadelphia Record.

A Japanese Wedding.

A Japanese wedding must be a very melancholy affair. In Japan it is not good for the bride to admit that she enjoys the prospect of getting married, and, therefore, when she is told about it three or for days before the event, she is expected to set up a loud bellowing and keep it up day and night until the ceremony comes on. After she has been richly dressed for the occasion, she is expected to hang back and shriek, and make a show of resisting her attendant's efforts to lead her to the bridegroom. This hollow farce is kept up by one of the bridesmaids finally throwing a veil over the bride's face, while an old hag takes her on her back and carries her to a sedan chair waiting at the door to take her to the bridegroom's mansion. When she arrives there she is a wife, the simple ride in a flowery chair having the mystic power of transforming her into a married woman. From that time she begins to brighten up.

Just as Vain as Now.

The hands of female mummies found in the tombs of Egypt are literally covered with rings, in many instances there being from two to six on every finger. In some cases these ornaments are composed wholly of gold, but in others, which probably represent all that is left of some poor man's wife or daughter, the rings are brass, glass or pottery ware.

Steamers.

A scheme has been proposed to reduce the friction of salt water against the sides of a steamer, which, it is claimed, will increase the speed 50 per cent. It is to force air through the vessel's plates and thereby form a narrow space between the iron and water.

WE would willingly have all our acquaintances perfect, and yet we do not amend our own faults.

THERE are 82,222 acres of raisin vineyards in California, producing 86,000,000 poun[illegible]

Spring Makes Me Tired

To many people Spring and its duties mean an aching head, tired limbs, and throbbing nerves. Just as the milder weather comes, the strength begins to wane and "that tired feeling" is the complaint of all.

The reason for this condition is found in the deficient quality of the blood. During the winter, owing to various causes, the blood becomes loaded with impurities and loses its richness and vitality. Consequently, as soon as the bracing effect of cold air is lost, there is languor and lack of energy. The cure will be found in purifying and enriching the blood.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is the greatest and best spring medicine because it is the greatest and best blood purifier. It overcomes that tired feeling because it makes pure, rich blood. It gives strength to nerves and muscles because it endows the blood with new powers of nourishment. It creates an appetite, tones and strengthens the stomach and digestive organs, and thus builds up the whole system and prepares it to meet the change to warmer weather.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is a medicine upon which you may depend. It is the only true blood purifier prominently before the public eye to-day. It has a record of cures unequaled in the history of medicine. It is the medicine of which so many people write, "Hood's Sarsaparilla does all that it is claimed to do." You can take Hood's Sarsaparilla with the confident expectation that it will give you pure blood and renewed health. Take it now.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Is the Only True Blood Purifier

Prominently in the Public Eye To-day.

Foreign to the Surroundings.

"I once saw an imported farm," says a traveller, "the soil as well as the products being absolutely foreign to the surroundings. This was in one of the coldest parts of Manitoba, where I was entertained by a family which had retained its love for milder regions and crops. The bill of fare was necessarily meagre, but some of the vegetables were so bright and green that I could not help asking how they were preserved so well. To my surprise, I learned that they were cultivated in a garden patch or a miniature farm, the soil of which had been brought from warmer regions so as to insure a fertility not found in the region of ice. The vegetables themselves had been grown from imported feed, and owing to the care and protection they had had they were a perfect luxury. The expense of conveying the soil in barrels such a long distance would prevent any but comparatively wealthy people from trying the experiment, but my friends had made it a hobby."

EVER live (misfortunes excepted) within your income.

BEAUTY IS POWER.

Perfection of Form, Feature, and Mind Render Women All-powerful.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

Yet blended with those perfections must be perfect health. Women are to-day stronger in their character, better in their nature, truer in their love, warmer in their affections, than they ever were.

But most women do not know themselves; and often when their influence is doing the most good, break down. They drift gradually and unconsciously into that tempestuous sea of woman's diseases. Then they should remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's VegetableCompound restores natural cheerfulness, destroys despondency, cures leucorrhœa, — the great forerunner of serious womb trouble, — relieves backache, strengthens the muscles of the womb, and restores it to its normal condition, regulates menstruations, removes inflammation, ulceration, and tumors of the womb, etc.

It is a remedy of a woman for women. Millions of women owe the health they enjoy, and the influence they exert, to Mrs. Pinkham; and the success of her Vegetable Compound has never been equalled in the field of medicine for the relief and cure of all kinds of female complaints. So say the druggists.

Here is another one of thousands who speaks that others may know the truth:—

"For five years I suffered with falling of the womb, and all the dreadful aches and pains that accompany the disease. I tried several doctors and different medicines, until I lost all faith in everything. I had not tried your Compound. I watched your advertisements from day to day, and each day became more hopeful. At last I resolved to try it. I have taken seven bottles, and have gained forty pounds. My pains have all left me, and I am a well woman. I do all my own work, and can walk two miles without feeling tired. Your Compound has been worth its weight in gold to me. I cannot praise it enough." MATILDA FOREMAN, Columbia, Lancaster Co., Pa.

EAT FRIENDS OATS

ALWAYS THE BEST
Made Exclusively from
Superior KILN DRIED Selected
IOWA WHITE OATS
SOLD ONLY in 2 lb. pkgs.

No Escape.

Mrs. Getthere (enthusiastic worker at church fair)—Now, Mr. Slimpurse, you really must take a chance in this beautiful pipe; you really must. Just think, the pipe is worth $20 and the chances are only $1 each.

Mr. Slimpurse (edging off)—Very sorry, madam, but I don't smoke.

Mrs. Getthere—Oh, but you can learn, you know.

Mr. Slimpurse—Tobacco does not agree with me. I would have no earthly use for a pipe.

Mrs. Getthere (struck with a bright idea)—Well, there isn't the slightest probability of your drawing it, you know!—New York Weekly.

Hold the Fort

Against a bilious attack by calling to your aid that puissant ally, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The foe will then be driven back utterly defeated. Dyspepsia, sick headache, malarial, kidney, nervous and rheumatic trouble and constipation yield to the action of this most beneficent of remedies. Take it regularly and you will soon experience its good effects.

Advice to Law Students.

Law students often suffer acutely from two fears. They suspect that they have "no business capacity," and they dread speaking in court. Mr. Charles G. Leland, otherwise known as "Hans Breitmann," confesses in his "Memoirs" that when he was a law student he suffered terribly from these two apprehensions. Having in mind nervous young men who are studying law, he offers some encouraging suggestions:

"A few months' practice in a mercantile college will go far to relieve the first apprehension of (no business capacity,) while as regards stage fright, it can be easily educated out of anybody, as I have since those days educated it out of myself, so that rising to debate or speak inspires in me a gaudium certaminis, (a joy of struggle,) which increases with the certainty of being attacked.

"Let the aspirant begin by reading papers before, let us say, a family or school, and continue to do so frequently and at as short intervals as possible before such societies or lyceums as will listen to him. Then let him speak from memory or improvise and debate. This should form a part of all education whatever, and it should be thorough.

"It is especially needed for lawyers and divines, yet a great proportion of both are insufficiently trained in it; and while I was studying law it was never mentioned to me. I was never taken into court or practically employed in any manner whatever."

Mr. Leland puts his finger upon the weak spot in the education of lawyers and ministers—the neglect of training them to express their ideas before an audience. But he fails to mention one fault that handicaps young men—the absence in the family of clear, idiomatic, expressive English.

There is a professor at Crozier Theological Seminary, Elia H. Johnson—he will pardon the writer, who has known him from childhood, for using him as an illustration,—whose English, while he was a student at Rochester University, was the admiration of his fellows. The students who listen to him to-day wonder at it. He owes it to his mother, who never permitted herself to use a slovenly sentence before her children, and whose voice, even when giving an order, was modulated to the demands of rhythm.

Such a family education ruled both ear and voice. And those who listen to Prof. Johnson hardly know which most to admire—his English or his ideas.

Surprised the Doctor.

Dr. Moffat, the distinguished missionary and father-in-law of Dr. Livingstone, once preached a long sermon to a tribe in the interior of Africa. Shortly after he had finished he saw that the crowds were gathering around a very common looking savage. To his surprise, however, the lad mounted a stone and repeated every word of the sermon that had just been finished.

GOOD character is above all things else.

Millions of Packages.

The Rising Sun Stove Polish factory sold 23,000,000 packages of stove polish in 1894. These packages, placed so as to touch end to end, would reach 1,000 miles. The factory at Canton, Mass., covers four acres, and turns out the enormous product of ten tons per day. Most of the material used is mined by natives in Ceylon, India, and brought by sailing vessels to New York.

The Rising Sun Stove Polish has the enormous sale of 3,000 tons per year, but Morse Bros. have recently added to their business the Sun Paste Stove Polish in answer to the demand for a perfect stove paste. This Sun Paste is already meeting a large sale. The Rising Sun Stove Polish in cakes is recommended for general blacking of a stove and for economy, and the Sun Paste Stove Polish in tin boxes for a quick after-dinner shine.—Lynn Item.

MAKE no haste to be rich if you would prosper.

RATES are offered on the certificate plan by agents of the Nickel Plate road to Springfield, Mass., and Hartford, Conn., May 8th to 16th, account Southern Baptist Association.

OUR DIPLOMATS IN JAPAN.

They Live Much Better than Those in Europe—Salaries Good.

Japan is now considered quite as desirable a country by our diplomatic agents as England or the continent. The salaries of the consuls are high, and our diplomats live much better in Japan than they do in Europe. Nearly every one of them has a large establishment, with plenty of servants, and they are, as a rule, of a higher grade than those appointed to the big cities of Europe. The Consul General at Yokohama is one of the ablest men who have ever been sent abroad in that capacity. His name is Nicholas W. McIvor, and he is an Iowa man of about 40 years of age. The Vice Consul General is Mr. George H. Scidmore, who has been for years connected with the service and who has considerable diplomatic ability. At Osaka and Hiogo, the great commercial centers of Western Japan, the United States is represented by Enoch J. Smithers, who has been connected with our diplomatic service for a quarter of a century and who did good work at Shanghai and Tien-Tsin. At Nagasaki we have F. H. Abercrombie, a rich American, who has one of the finest houses in the far East and who is a man of culture and brains.

AMERICAN LEGATION, TOKYO.

The consuls, however, have to do only with the business interests of the country and with the furthering of American trade. All matters connected with this war are left to the legation at Tokyo, and this is in a better condition to-day than it has been for years. The minister is Mr. Edwin Dun, a relative of Senator Thurman and a man well fitted to deal with the Japanese from his residence of many years in the country. He speaks the Japanese as well as he does the English, and he has an intimate personal friendship with the greatest of the Japanese statesmen. He is a big, broad-shouldered, red-headed man of about 45. He is a thorough American, and he has the nerve to demand and the diplomacy necessary to secure the best results for our people in the far East. The position of a Minister to Japan is now worth about $35,000 a year in silver. The Minister has a fine, modern home in Tokyo, and he lives within a stone's throw of half a dozen Japanese nobles and princes.

A Migratory Invalid.

A curious instance of sagacity on the part of a pigeon has come to my knowledge, writes a contributor to a London paper. Some time ago one of the blue rocks which frequent the square in front of the Guild Hall had the misfortune to damage its leg. The bird was promptly taken care of by one of the policemen on duty there, and so well did the injured limb prosper that in a week or two it was able to join its friends, but, not, however, until the constable had tied about its leg a piece of red ribbon, so that he might identify the patient and see how it was getting along. A few days ago a gentleman who has also been much interested in the sick bird saw, to his astonishment, among the pigeons contentedly feeding before St. Mark's in Venice, a blue rock which wore a red ribbon around its leg. He wired to the constable, whom he knew, "Have you missed pigeon with red ribbon?" The answer was returned, "Yes, three or four days since it has been seen." The bird must have known that bad weather was due in London, and taken a health excursion to Italy.

Wood Stains.

A solution of fifty parts of commercial alizarin in 1,000 parts of water, to which a solution of ammonia has been added drop by drop until a perceptible ammonia odor is developed, will give to fir and oak a yellow-brown color and to maple a red-brown. If the wood is then treated to a 1 per cent. aqueous barium chloride solution, the first named becomes brown and the latter a dark brown. If calcium chloride be used instead of barium chloride, the fir becomes brown, the oak red-brown and the maple a dark brown. If a 2 per cent, aqueous solution of magnesium sulphate be used, the fir and oak become dark brown and the maple a dark violet-brown. Alum and aluminum sulphate produce on the fir reddish brown and on oak and maple a blood red. Chrome alum colors maple and fir reddish brown and oak Havana brown. Finally, manganese sulphate renders fir and maple a beautiful dark violet-brown and oak a dark walnut-brown.—Scientific American.

Sure Enough.

A certain superintendent of schools had a way of thundering questions at the children that completely deprived them of their wits. His very presence seemed to set the pupils trembling.

One day he called the third reader class to stand upon the floor, and began a promiscuous catechism upon all the subjects in which they were supposed to have been taught. He skipped about from arithmetic to geography, from geography to grammar, from grammar to spelling, all in such a confusing way that if he had asked what day of the month the Fourth of July came on, half the children would have said they didn't know.

At last, pointing his finger at a small, shrinking figure at the end of the class, he shouted, "You, there! What do you understand by climate?"

The answer came in a weak, scared voice:

"Get up it, sir."

Dive Deep for Treasure.

The American divers are the hardiest in the world. Every year or two a new attempt is made to reach the supposed golden treasure of the Hussar at the bottom of Long Island sound, off New York City. Capt. F. Ryan, a government diver of Seattle, agreed to dive 265 feet in the harbor of Yokohama to raise $2,000,000 of gold bullion.

DANIEL O'CONNELL.

With Heart and Soul He Labored for the Good of Ireland.

Daniel O'Connell, well styled the Irish Liberator, is, perhaps, the most eminent of those whose lives and labors prepared the way for home rule agitation. With unsparing toil he devoted a fine mind and a well trained intellect to his country's service throughout his long life.

DANIEL O'CONNELL.

It was on Aug. 6, 1775, that Daniel O'Connell was born at Carhen, County Kerry. His childish training was received under all the difficulties which then were placed about the instruction of Roman Catholics in Ireland, but when he got old enough he was sent to the Jesuit College of St. Omer in France. Here he first gave evidence of his great ability and from here he went to the English College at Doual. In 1798 he was admitted to the bar and in a very short time became known as a brilliant and successful advocate.

O'Connell's entry into political life was made at Dublin, where he addressed a meeting of Catholics to petition against the proposed legislative union between Great Britain and Ireland. In May, 1828, O'Connell took his seat in Parliament and for many years thereafter he sat in the same body representing one borough or another.

The latter half of O'Connell's life was occupied in working for the repeal of the legislative union between Ireland and England. It was while he was lord mayor of Dublin, in 1841, that he first began to agitate this separation. Monster meetings were called all over the country and at each O'Connell spoke, urging his hearers to demand Ireland's autonomy. At length in 1843 he called a monster meeting at Clontarf for Sunday, Oct. 8. A body of soldiery, termed the "repealing cavalry," were to be present. This had so military a look that the authorities, fearing rebellion, declared the peace endangered and ordered all persons to keep away from Clontarf. O'Connell at once countermanded the meeting, but this readiness to yield did not profit him any and a week later himself, his son and eight coadjutors were arrested on the charge of conspiracy, sedition and unlawful assembling. They were brought to trial and found guilty. O'Connell was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment, to pay a fine of £2,000 and was bound over to keep the peace for seven years. An appeal was made to the House of Lords and the decision of the Irish courts reversed.

O'CONNELL'S BIRTHPLACE.

Apparently this was a victory for O'Connell and repeal, but in reality it proved otherwise. O'Connell was now in the position of a man who finds his followers grown too strong for him. He had always counseled a wise moderation and completely discouraged any recourse to physical force. Some of his associates belonged to the party of "young Ireland" and were ready to go to any length to obtain repeal. The time, they thought, was then come for force of arms. O'Connell attempted to restrain them, but without much success and bitter dissensions sprang up wildly.

These things preyed on O'Connell and the ingratitude of men who owed him much and now refused to be guided by him caused him such anxiety that his health was completely undermined. He began to fail and little by little his work had to be laid aside.

O'CONNELL'S MONUMENT AT DUBLIN.

In 1847 he left England on a pilgrimage to Rome, hoping to die in the eternal city with the blessing of the Pope. It was not to be, however. He grew weaker on the journey and at Genoa he could go no further. There he breathed forth his soul May 15, 1847. His heart was embalmed and sent to Rome, toward which his last wish and prayer had been directed; his body was taken back to Ireland.

New York Architecture.

A young student of architecture who has been spending the last year in gaining a knowledge of the fundamental principles of the profession he has chosen complains that there are comparatively few buildings in New York that possess artistic coherency. Many of the most imposing of the structure in this city are a kind of architectural crazy-quilt, combining many different styles in a crude mass that sacrifices beauty for the sake of utility or something else.—New York World.

Antiseptic Paper.

An antiseptic paper, which, it is stated, may be applied over wounds and fixed in position with a bandage, can be prepared by impregnating sheets of unsized paper with mercuric chloride. This is dissolved in the proportion of two and a half drachms to a pint of distilled water (previously sterilized by boiling) and six drachms of pure glycerine added. After thoroughly soaking, the paper is allowed to dry, and is then ready for use.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

POWER OF TELESCOPES.

Comparative Figures Showing the Weakness of the Human Eye.

The following careful statement by Prof. E. S. Holden on the power of the eye and the telescope, as they are contrasted in actual experience, is of special and permanent interest: If the brightness of a star seen with the eye alone is one, with a two-inch telescope it is 100 times as bright; with a four-inch telescope it is 400 times as bright; eight-inch telescope it is 1,600 times as bright; sixteen-inch telescope it is 25,600 times as bright; 36-inch telescope it is 32,400 times as bright. That is, stars can be seen with the 36-inch telescope which are 30,000 fainter than the faintest stars visible to the naked eye. While the magnifying power which can be successfully used on the 5-inch telescope is not above 400, the 36-inch telescope will permit a magnifying power or more than 2,000 on suitable objects, stars, for example. This power cannot be used on the moon and planets with real advantage for many reasons, but probably a power of 1,000 or 1,500 will be the maximum. The moon will thus appear under the same conditions as if it were to be viewed by the naked eye at a distance of, say, 200 miles. This is the same as saying that objects about 300 feet square can be recognized, so that no village or great canal or even large edifice can be built on the moon without our knowledge. Highly organized life on the moon will make itself known in this indirect way if it exists. If one were looking at the earth under the same conditions, the great works of hydraulic mining, or the great operations of Dakota farms or California ranches would be obvious.

One Cause of Benightedness.

In the Chinese language the meaning depends more on the tone in which the word is spoken than on the word itself. The same word may have a dozen different meanings, according to the tone in which it is spoken. This act not only makes it difficult for foreigners to learn Chinese, but retards Chinese progress by making it hard to keep an accurate and easily translated record of thought. On such a record more than on any one thing progressive civilization depends.

THE rearrangement of the dining cars on the Nickel Plate road provides breakfast and dinner on the New York and Boston Express No. 2 eastbound, breakfast and dinner on the Fast Western Express No. 5, and dinner on No. 6. This newly established service not only accommodates the through passengers of that line more satisfactorily, but provides a better arrange for its local patrons.

THAT LUMP in a man's stomach which makes him irritable and miserable and unfit for business or pleasure is caused by indigestion. Indigestion, like charity, covers a multitude of sins. The trouble may be in stomach, liver, bowels. Wherever it is, it is caused by the presence of poisonous, refuse matter which Nature has been unable to rid herself of, unaided. In such cases, wise people send down a little health officer, personified by one of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, to search out the trouble and remove its cause.

ASK YOUR DRUGGIST FOR
IMPERIAL GRANUM
IT IS ★ THE BEST ★ FOOD
FOR
Dyspeptic, Delicate, Infirm and AGED PERSONS
★ JOHN CARLE & SONS, New York. ★

Wealthy Redskins.

The Osage Indians are probably the richest people collectively in the world. There are only 1,600 of them, and they have $8,000,000 to their credit in the United States treasury, the interest of which, amounting to $400,000 annually, is paid to them by Uncle Sam's agents. They are treated as absolute wards of the government, and their lands and money are kept for them, as a guardian keeps the property of a minor.

AN IMPORTANT CASE.

IT COMES UP BEFORE THE UNITED STATES COURT.

A Suit for an Estoppel—The Eureka Chemical Company, of La Crosse, Makes the Trouble.

Papers have been filed in the United States Court of the Western District of Wisconsin, by Tarrant & Kronshage, attorneys for the Sterling Remedy Company, of Chicago and New York, in a suit for estoppel and damages against an imitation of No-to-bac, the tobacco habit cure. The action is brought against a concern called the Eureka Chemical Company, of La Crosse, Wis.

The principles involved in these proceedings are of the utmost importance to the proprietary interests of America in general, and form in many respects, a test case, the outcome of which will be carefully watched by the many other important manufacturing concerns similarly imitated. Not only the question of imitation of name, trade-mark, form of preparation and package enter into the case, but also the proposition whether the actual advertising literature used in establishing the publicity of a preparation can be stolen with impunity, word for word, by an imitator. The decision in this case will settle one of the vital points in United States trade-mark and copyright law.—Madison (Wis.) Democrat.

OUR years, our debts, and our enemies are always greater in number than we believe them to be.

Hall's Catarrh Cure

Is taken internally. Price 75 cents.

THE electric wires of a French railroad are so arranged that they can be use for telegraphing or telephoning.

You Don't Have to Swear Off, says the St. Louis Journal of Agriculture in an editorial about No-To-Bac, the famous tobacco habit cure. "We know of many cases cured by No-To-Bac, one, a prominent St. Louis architect, smoked and chewed for twenty years; two boxes cured him so that even the smell of tobacco makes him sick." No-To-Bac sold and guaranteed by Druggists everywhere. No cure no pay. Book free. Sterling Remedy Co., New York or Chicago.

IF your hands are not usefully employed attend to the cultivation of your mind.

NATIONAL EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION MEETING.

Denver, Colo., July 5 to 12, 1895.

For this occasion the Wabash Railroad has made a rate of one fare for the round trip to Denver plus $2.00, added for membership fee.

For full particulars in regard to this meeting, time of trains, rates, route, etc., call upon or write to any representative of the Wabash R. R., or connecting lines, or

C. S. CRANE,
Gen'l Pass. & Tkt. Agt.,
Wabash R. R.,
St. Louis, Mo.

KEEP good company or none. Never be idle.

They Call It Overwork.

Business requires a clear head; yet how few business men—with all their sense—realize what is the trouble with their heads. They call it overwork, worry, anything but what it really is—indigestion. This stealthiest of ailments usually comes disguised as something else. Wouldn't you be convinced if a box of Ripans Tabules cleared your head and brightened up the business outlook?

GOOD company and good conversation are the very sinews of virtue.

PISO'S Cure for Consumption is an A No. 1 Asthma medicine.—W. R. WILLIAMS, Antioch, Ill., April 11, 1894.

WHEN you speak to a person, look him in the face.

Mrs. Winslow's SOOTHING SYRUP for Children teething; softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

LIVE up to your engagements. Keep your own secrets, if you have any.

Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Backache,

ST. JACOBS OIL

SAFE, SURE, PROMPT.

"A Good Tale Will Bear Telling Twice." Use Sapolio!
... Use ...
SAPOLIO

For Twenty Years

Scott's Emulsion has been endorsed by physicians of the whole world. There is no secret about its ingredients. Physicians prescribe because they know what great nourishing and curative properties it contains. They know it is what it is represented to be; namely, a perfect emulsion of the best Norway liver Oil with the hypophosphites of lime and soda.

Scott's Emulsion

For Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Weak Lungs, Consumption, Scrofula, Anæmia, Weak Babies, Thin Children, Rickets, Marasmus, Loss of Flesh, General Debility, and all conditions of Wasting.

The only genuine Scott's Emulsion is put in salmon-colored wrapper. Refuse inferior substitutes!

Send for pamphlet on Scott's Emulsion. FREE.

Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists. 50 cents and $1.

BEST IN THE WORLD.

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH
For durability and for cheapness this preparation is truly unrivalled.

THE RISING SUN STOVE POLISH is cakes for general blacking of a stove.

THE SUN PASTE POLISH for a quick after-dinner shine, applied and polished with a cloth.

Morse Bros., Props., Canton, Mass., U.S.A.

The Falls of Niagara.

According to the most recent calculations 100,000,000 tons of water pour over Niagara every hour. This represents 16,000,000-horse power. The total coal production of the world, either daily, weekly, monthly, or yearly, would not furnish steam sufficient to pump it back again.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

Beecham's pills are for biliousness, sick headache, dizziness, dyspepsia, bad taste in the mouth, heartburn, torpid liver, foul breath, sallow skin, coated tongue, pimples loss of appetite, etc., when caused by constipation; and constipation is the most frequent cause of all of them.

One of the most important things for everybody to learn is that constipation causes more than half the sickness in the world, especially of women; and it can all be prevented. Go by the book, free at your druggist's, or write B. F. Allen Co., 365 Canal St., New York. Pills, 10¢ and 25¢ a box.

Annual sales more than 6,000,000 boxes.

WALTER BAKER & CO.
The Largest Manufacturers of
PURE, HIGH GRADE
COCOAS AND CHOCOLATES
On this Continent, have received
HIGHEST AWARDS
from the great
Industrial and Food EXPOSITIONS
In Europe and America.

Unlike the Dutch Process, no Alkalies or other Chemicals or Dyes are used in any of their preparations. Their delicious BREAKFAST COCOA is absolutely pure and soluble, and costs less than one cent a cup.

SOLD BY GROCERS EVERYWHERE.

WALTER BAKER & CO. DORCHESTER, MASS.

LINENE REVERSIBLE

Raphael, Angelo, Rubens, Tasso

The "LINENE REVERSIBLE" are the Best and Most Economical Collars and Cuffs worn; they are made of fine cloth, both sides finished alike, and, being reversible, one collar is equal to two of any other kind. They fit well, wear well and look well. A box of Ten Collars or Five Pairs of Cuffs for Twenty-five Cents. A Sample Collar and Pair of Cuffs by mail for Six Cents. Name style and size. Address

REVERSIBLE COLLAR COMPANY.
77 FRANKLIN ST., NEW YORK. 27 KILBY ST., BOSTON.

LEWIS' 98 % LYE
Powdered and Perfumed.
(PATENTED.)

The strongest and purest Lye made. Unlike other Lye, it being a fine powder and packed in a can with removable lid, the contents are always ready for use. Will make the best perfumed Hard Soap in 20 minutes without boiling. It is the best for cleansing waste-pipes, disinfecting sinks, closets, washing bottles, pails, tubs, etc.

PENNA. SALT M'F'G CO.
Gen. Agts., Phila., Pa.

EVERY HOME-SEEKER Should READ the pamphlet recently published by the Passenger Department of the Illinois Central Railroad, entitled "Southern Home-Seeker's Guide for 1895." It contains over 80 excellent letters from Northern farmers now located in the South, and other authentic and valuable information. For a free copy address the undersigned at Manchester, Iowa. J. P. MERRY, Assistant Gen'l Passenger Agt.

PENSION JOHN W. MORRIS, Washington, D. C. Successfully Prosecutes Claims. Late Principal Examiner U. S. Pension Bureau. 3 yrs in last war, 15 adjudicating claims, atty since.

KIDDER'S PASTILLES. Sure relief. Price 25 cts. ASTHMA. by mail. Stowell & Co. Charlestown, Mass.

PATENTS Thomas P. Simpson, Washington, D. C. No att'y fee until Patent obtained. Write for Inventor's Guide.

When Writing to Advertisers, say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

LYON'S 7 WONDERS

A SPECIFIC For all DERANGEMENTS of the STOMACH. PRICE $1.00

Manf by THE LYON MEDICINE CO. INDIANAPOLIS IND.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Disappearance of a Stomach Trouble.

Lyon Medicine Company:

DEAR SIRS—For fifteen years I was afflicted with stomach, heart and kidney troubles. I was induced to try LYON'S SEVEN WONDERS, and am more than pleased at the result. My stomach trouble has disappeared and my heart has resumed its normal action. I can cheerfully recommend it.

ALFRED PARISH.

ORLEANS, IND., July 25, 1894.

Hot Flashes and Headaches.

To the Lyon Medicine Company:

After using three boxes I am pleased to say my appetite has returned, the pains have entirely left my side, I no more experience hot flashes and my headaches have disappeared. I am free to say that had it not been for LYON'S SEVEN WONDERS I should not be alive to-day. MRS. LIZZIE JOHNSON.

ORLEANS, IND., July 26, 1894.

ROOT & COMPANY,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

GRADUATING DRESSES - - -

Commencement Day not far off. Has the Graduation Dress been considered? All the fabrics mentioned are suited for this special purpose There's a very complete assortment of both plain and fancy wears in silk and wool cream textures.

All Wool Cashmeres at	40 cents
" " Albatross at	38, 50 & 65 "
" " Challies at	35 "
" " Henriettas at	40 "
French Diagonals at	50 "
All Wool Crepes and Crepons	38, 50 to 90c
Silk and Wool Lansdowne	$1.00
Silk Warp Engalines	1.00

Silks for Graduation:

Figured India Silks	65c, 75c and $1 00
China Silks	40, 50 and 75 cts.
Habutai Silks	45 and 65 cts.
Taffetr Silks	$1 00.
Crepe de Chine	1.00.
All Silk Crepe and Crepons	60 and 75 cts.

FANS

All Silk, Cream and White, delicately painted by hand $1, $1 25, $1.50, $2. $2 50, $3

Kid Gloves for graduating:

Fine 4 B Glace	$1.00.
8-inch Suede Mousquetaires	$1.25 and $1.50.
16 " " "	2 00.
Cream Mitts, elbow length	75 cts.
" " arm "	$1 and $1 25.

Charming lines of LACES for Graduation.

SAMPLES MAILED AT ONCE UPON REQUEST

ROOT & COMPANY.

The BEST Boys' Outfits in the World are offered to the public by THE HUB—Chicago's greatest clothing store! Made of strictly all-wool cloth—well fitting and strong—we can positively guarantee them the Best Bargains for the Money ever given by anybody.

The Hub's Famous Head-To-Foot Outfits

For Boys from 5 to 15 years old.

consist of One Double-Breasted Coat, Two Pairs of Knee Pants, a Stanley Cap, made to match the suit, and One Pair of Shoes, made of solid leather very neat, yet as strong as a brick, and the price of the entire "Head-To-Foot" Outfit is

Only $5.00

Tens of thousands sold to every state of the Union, and everyone is delighted with them. You'll be pleased, too, if you'll let us send you one—all charges prepaid to any part of the U. S. for $5.75, or C. O. D. with privilege of examination before payment—if a deposit of $1.00 is sent with the order.

Samples of Cloth and 60-page Illustrated Catalogue telling you all about the greatest line of Men's and Boys' Clothing, Furnishing Goods, Hats, Shoes for Men and Women, and Ladies' Cloaks and Furs, sent free and postage paid.

THE HUB

N. W. Cor. State and Jackson Sts., CHICAGO, ILL.

The Hub has no Branch Stores Anywhere.

LIKE HIGHWAYMEN.

FATAL ENCOUNTER AVOIDED BY THE HASTY RETREAT OF FOUR HIGHWAYMEN.

The south end, and the center having enjoyed their inning, the north end now wheels into line and has a little sensation. Roy Hull, cigarmaker at Kessler Bros., will hereafter be compelled to wear his hair a-la-pompadour resulting from a hair raising experience with four daring desperadoes that have lately terrorized the north end. As he was going south on VanBuren street about 8:30 ast evening, thinkingof the fair one he has been making his weekly Sunday eve visits to, and the nice 10:30 lunch always in store for him he was compelled to look into the muzzles of two shining revolvers while a pair of the same was pressed close to his ear. They told him they wanted the shekels that he carried in his inside vest pocket, which he had intended using to defray the expenses of a happy honeymoon, license and justice fees, etc, His time was short and he worked accordingly. By a swift move of his right hand he transferred his large roll to his boot while with the left he grasped his 44 caliber, which took them so unawares that they forgot the money question and took to their heels, getting behind the old ward school house for protection from the deadly weapon, while Roy proceeded on his way wondering if there would be any more thugs, that would dare to tackle a man of means. And further deponent saith not.

WILCOX COMPOUND TANSY PILLS

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS. The only safe and always reliable Relief for Ladies. Accept no worthless and dangerous imitations. Save money and guard health by taking nothing but the only genuine and original Wilcox Compound Tansy Pills, in metal boxes bearing shield trade mark, price $2.00, all druggists. Send 4 cts. for Woman's Safe Guard, securely sealed.

WILCOX SPECIFIC CO., 228 South Eighth Street, Phila., Pa.

Wooden Rails

An exchange speaking of this sort of railway, says: The citizens of Avon Park and Haines City, Fla., forty miles distant, have decided, according to a correspondent of The Manufacturers' Record, to build a railroad with wooden rails, which are large enough to be laid so that they will be half-impedded in the sand, without other ballast. They are to be held in position by wooden pins, two inches in diamter and eighteen inches long, while the ends are connected by plank couplers placed underneath and held by pins. Not a pound of metal will be used in construction of the tracks. Most of the "rails" will be furnished gratis by property owners along the right of way. The company, believes that in a few years the fruit, vegetable and passenger business over the route will pay for regular steel rails, when the others will be used for ties. A small steam dummy will furnish power for the road.

PILES! PILES! PILES!

Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment will cure Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles when all other Ointments have failed. It absorbs the tumors allays the itching at once, acts as a poultice, gives instant relief. Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment is prepared only for Piles and itching of the private parts, and nothing else. Every box is warranted. Sold by druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of price, 50c. and $1.00 per box. WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Prop's, Cleveland, O. Sold on a guarantee by Matheny & Gerke.

BUCKLEN'S ARNICA SALVE.—The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Robbins & McCord. tf

De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve cures scalds, burns, indolent sores and never fails to cure piles.

T. F. Anthony, ex-postmaster of Promise City, Iowa, says: "I bought one bottle of 'Mystic Cure' for Rheumatism and two doses of it did me more good than all the medicine I ever took." Sold by Robbins & McCord, druggists, Auburn. 41tf

La Grippe is here again with all of its old time vigor. One Minute Cough Cure is a reliable remedy. It cures and cures quickly.

Relief in One Day.

South American Nervine relieves the worst cases of nervous prostrations nervousness and nervous dyspepsia in a single day. No such relief and blessing has ever come to the invalids of this country. Its powers to cure the stomach are wonderful in the extreme. It always cures; it cannot fail. It radically cures all weakness of the stomach and never disappoints. Its effects are marvelous and surprising.—It gladdens the hearts of the suffering and brings immediate relief. It is a luxury to take and always safe. Trial bottles 15 cents. Sold by Robbins & McCord druggist Auburn Ind. 50tf

Rebecca Wilkinson, of Brownsvalley, Ind., says: I have been in a distressed condition for three years from Nervousness Weakness of the Stomach, Dyspepsia and Indigestion until my health was gone. I had been doctoring constantly with no relief. I bought one bottle of South American Nervine, which did me more good than any $50 worth of doctoring I ever did in my life. I would advise every weakly person to use this valuable and lovely remedy; a few bottles of it has cured me completely. I consider it the greatest medicine in the world." Warranted the most wonderful stomach and nerve cure ever known. Trial bottles 15 cents. Sold by Robbins and McCord druggists Auburn Ind. 34tf

A VALUABLE FIND.

After years of study and labor there has at last been discovered a sure and never-failing remedy. It has been tested on patients who have despaired of ever being cured, and the results have been in every case, wonderful. Groff's Rheumatic Cure is unequaled as a positive remedy in all cases of Chronic and Acute Inflammatory Rheumatism, Gout, Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia, especially Ovarian Neuralgia, Dysmenorrhœa and all kindred affections. It is also a valuable Blood Purifier, being especially useful in Eczema, Psoriasis, Scrofula, all Glandular Enlargements and diseases of the Liver and Kidneys. It is absolutely free from all narcotics. Severe attacks are relieved in from one to three days, and a positive cure effected in from five to eighteen days. For sale by Druggists. Manufactured and sold by THE GROFF MEDICINE CO., Chicago. 1 711

L. S. & M. S. R. R.

TIME TABLE.—In Effect Nov. 18, 1894.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

Stations—	Mail.	Exp'ss	Fre'gt
Fort Wayne, lv	11 45 am	4 45 pm	6 40 am
New Era	12 14 pm	5 14	7 08
Auburn Junc.	12 25	5 25	7 58
Auburn	12 29	5 29	8 37
Waterloo	12 41	5 41	9 24
Summit	12 52	5 52	9 45
Steubenville	12 56	5 56	.....
Pleasant Lake	1 03	6 03	10 12
Angola	1 14	6 14	10 50
Jackson	1 25	6 25	4 30

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

Stations—	Freight	Exp'ss	Mail
Jackson, dp	6 55 am	11 20 am	6 30 pm
Angola	12 25 pm	2 21 pm	8 51
Pleasant Lake	1 03	2 38	9 01
Steubenville	.....	2 40	9 07
Summit	1 25	2 44	9 11
Waterloo	2 30	3 00	9 24
Auburn	3 00	3 11	9 35
Auburn Junc.	3 14	3 14	9 38
New Era	4 05	3 24	9 50
Fort Wayne	6 25	3 55	10 25

For rates on tickets or freight to all points, call on or address E. T. DAL APP, Agent at Auburn

Homeseekers' Excursion,

On May 21 the Baltimore & Ohio Rail road will sell 30-day Excursion Tickets to points in Virginia on the Harper Ferry & Valley Branch south of and including Winchester, at rate of one fare for the round trip. Excursion Tickets will also be sold to points in the South and Southwest at a very low rates, good for return 20 days from date of sale.

For futher information, call on or address any B. & O. Ticket Agent, S. P. Kretzer, Land and Immigration Agent, Philadelphia, Pa., or L. S. Allen, Ass't Gen'l Pass'r Agent Chicago, Ill.

Our patrons will find De Witt's Little Early Risers a safe and reliable remedy for constipation, dyspepsia and liver complaints.

PAINT cracks.—It often costs more to prepare a house for repainting that has been painted in the first place with cheap ready-mixed paints, than it would to have painted it twice with strictly pure white lead, ground in pure linseed oil.

Strictly Pure White Lead

forms a permanent base for repainting and never has to be burned or scraped off on account of scaling or cracking. It is always smooth and clean. To be sure of getting strictly pure white lead, purchase any of the following brands:

"Anchor," "Eckstein," "Armstrong & McKelvy," "Reymer-Bauman," "Davis-Chambers," "Collier," "Shipman," "Southern," "Red Seal," "Fahnestock."

FOR COLORS.—National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors, a one-pound can to a 25-pound keg of Lead and mix your own paints. Saves time and annoyance in matching shades, and insures the best paint that it is possible to put on wood.

Send us a postal card and get our book on paints and color-card, free; it will probably save you a good many dollars.

NATIONAL LEAD CO. Chicago Branch, State and Fifteenth Streets, Chicago.

For sale by John L Davis, Auburn, Ind

DR. WILLIAMS' KIDNEY PILLS

A remedy that has no equal in diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs, Have you neglected your kidneys? Have you overworked your nervous system and caused trouble with your kidneys and liver? Have you pains in the loins, side, back, loins and bladder? Have you a flabby appearance of the face, especially under the eyes? Too frequent desire to pass urine? No matter what the cause, we know Dr. Williams' Kidney Pills will cure you. Imparts newlife to the diseased organs, tones up the whole system and makes a new man of you. Mailed onreceipt of price, $1.00 per box.

WILLIAMS M'F'G CO., Props., Cleveland, O. Sold by FISCHLER & SON, Auburn. 1y36

Relief in Six Hours.

Distressing Kidney and Bladder diseases relieved in six hours by the "New Great South American Kidney Cure." This new remedy is a great surprise on account of its exceeding promptness in relieving pain in the bladder, kidneys, back and every part of the urinary passages in male or female. It relieves retention of water and pain in passing it almost immediately. If you want quick relief and cure this is your remedy. Sold by Robbins and McCord druggists Auburn Ind. 34tf

Sick headache, constipation and indigestion are quickly cured by De Will's Little Early Risers, the famous little pills.

B. H. Bowman; Pub. Enquirer: at Bremen, Ind., writes: Last week our little girl baby the only one we have was taken sick with croup. After two Doctors failed to give relief and life was hanging on a mere thread we tried One Minute Cough Cure and its life was saved.

Terrible Indeed.

"Oh, these terrible pains! Will they ever leave my rhuematic racked joints?" Yes, if you will take the great Scotch remedy, just introduced in the United States—Infallible Scotch Cure. It never disappoints, and speedily cures. Ask your druggist for it and accept no substitute. Prepared only by the Hall Medicine Company, Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Fischler & Son. 18 20

He Couldn't Drive Nails.

Jonas Swartz, Hartville, Ohio, relates an experience all the more wonderful because he is nearly seventy. He says: "I wouldn't take $100 for the good Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer has done me. I always worked hard and was careless about a little stomach trouble I had and sleeplessness, which I suppose accounts for the nervous trouble which struck me about four years ago. Limbs of my right side got so I couldn't control them; at times I couldn't hold a cup in my hand to drink from it, and in a crowd would unconsciously hit people with my jerking right arm. The Doctors called it nervous paralysis and said that, at my age, I couldn't be cured. I saw Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer advertised in the Repository and got a sample bottle of it, which I thougt helped me, so bought a bottle. Think I have used three bottles, and they have made a steady man of me. I have not felt as well in the four years and am still improving. Why, for two years I couldn't drive a nail." Mr. Geidlinger, in whose store the interview took place, fully corroborated Mr. Swartz' statement, saying his cure was a surprise to all who knew of the case. We are authorized to say, this medicine for control and cure of all nerve troubles, is sold by F. E. Davenport and by all druggists. 18-22

It's Water-proof.

Interlined "Celluloid" Collars and Cuffs turn water like a duck's back and show neither spot nor soil. They are not effected by perspiration, and always look as if right out of the box. When they get soiled you can clean them in a minute by simply wiping off with a wet cloth. These are but a few of the advantages of wearing the "Celluloid" Collars and Cuffs. There are many others that you will readily discover the first time you wear one.

They are the only waterproof interlined collars and cuffs made. Be sure to get the genuine with this trade mark stamped inside, if you desire perfect satisfaction. Made in all sizes and all styles. If you can't get them at the dealers, we will send sample postpaid, on receipt of price: Collars, 25 cents each. Cuffs, 50 cents pair. State size, and whether you want a stand-up or turned-down collar.

TRADE CELLULOID MARK

THE CELLULOID COMPANY, 427-29 Broadway, NEW YORK.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

EIGHTH AGE.

THURSDAY.....MAY 9, 1895.

How to Make Money.

I understood now why I could not make money with the plater that I had. There are so many things about the plating business that I did not understand. It was not until I saw the advertisement of Gray & Co. Plating Works, Columbus, Ohio, that I commenced to make money. The Royal is sent by this house and all the trade secrets connected with the plating business, such as are necessary in the great gold and silver plating factories are given free. As soon as I got the Royal Plater I made money right along. Last week I cleared $72 50, and everybody is delighted with my work. Anyone who has had trouble with their plating machines, as I have, should send to the above firm and obtain their circulars, and they will be able to make lots of money as I have done. The Royal plater is fitted out complete, everything ready for business; you do not have to spend a cent for materials. During these hard times this information is valuable.

TREE LICE.

This little insect has appeared in such numbers in our apple orchards as to attract the attention of fruit growers from all over the state. In fact inquiries were received during the winter concerning the eggs which were found in unusual abundance on the branches. Since the warm weather began these inquiries have become so numerous that it seems best to publish a brief account of the insect and means of combating it.

The little shiny black eggs, mentioned above, are deposited by the female louse on the twigs and smaller branches of the apple trees in the autumn. About the time the buds begin to expand in the spring, these eggs hatch into very small light green lice, which immediately insert their tiny beaks into the young and tender leaves and commence sucking their juices. The broods hatched at this time are all females, which mature sufficiently in ten or twelve days to enable them to begin the process of reproduction, which, contrary to the general rule they are able to do without the presence of the male, and the slow process of egg laying is avoided, as the young which are produced during the summer are hatched within the mother. The process of throwing off these summer broods continues until fall, when a brood of true males and females is produced, from which comes the stock of eggs for the next season's supply.

Remedies: The many inquiries received concerning this insect have developed the fact that people are not generally acquainted with the way in which it takes its food. Like all members of this family, instead of having well developed jaws for biting and chewing, its mouth parts are developed into a beak, which is adapted for sucking. It will be seen therefore that the arsenites will have but little value in fighting this pest as it takes its food from the inner tissues of the plant. It will therefore be necessary to apply some substance which kills by contact: and the kerosene emulsion is as effective as any substance which can be used. This is made by dissolving one half pound of hard soap in one gallon of hot water, after which add one gallon of kerosene or coal oil and mix thoroughly, by forcing the mixture back into the same vessel by means of a spraying pump, until it becomes a thick creamy mass. Dilute this with ten times its bulk of water before applying it to the trees.

These insects also have their natural enemies which aid very materially in their destruction. Among these are the several species of Lady-bird beetles, which are unusually plentiful this season. They should not be destroyed, as they are among the horticulturist's best friends.

Medical Books Free.

The Peruna Drug Manufacturing Co. of Columbus, Ohio, are offering free post-paid, two medical books, one on catarrh and catarrhal diseases, the other on spring medicines and spring diseases. These books contains the very latest and most reliable information on these important subjects.

For free book on cancer address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

Wide Reputations.

If King Solomon was alive he would now say: "Go to the traveling man learn his ways, and be wise." Mr. C. W. Battell, a Cincinnati traveling man representing the Queen City Printing Ink Co., after suffering intensely for two or three days with lameness of the shoulder, resulting from rhuematism, completely cured it with two applications of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. This remedy is gaining a wide reputation for its prompt cures of rhuematism, lame back, sprains, swellings and lameness. 50 cent bottles are for sale by Robbins & McCord Druggists. 18-22

Our Sympathy.

Persons who sympathise with the afflicted will rejoice with D. E. Carr of 1235 Harrison street, Kansas City. He is an old sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism, but has not heretofore been troubled in this climate. Last winter he went up into Wisconsin and in consequence has had another attack. "I came upon me again very acute and severe," he said. "My joints swelled and became inflamed, sore to touch or almost to look at. Upon the urgent request of my mother-in-law I tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm to reduce the swelling and ease the pain, and to my agreeable surprise, it did both. I have used three fifty-cent bottles and believe it to be the finest thing for rheumatism, pains and swellings extant. For sale by Robbins & McCord Druggists. 18 22

LEWIS' 98 % LYE POWDERED AND PERFUMED (PATENTED)

The strongest and purest Lye made. Unlike other Lye, it being a fine powder and packed in a can with removable lid, the contents are always ready for use. Will make the best perfumed Hard soap in 20 minutes without boiling. It is the best for cleansing waste pipes, disinfecting sinks, closets, washing bottles, paints, trees, etc.

PENNA. SALT M'F'G CO. Gen. Agts., Phila., Pa.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

GREEN GOODS.

The following letter from Frank King at Hillsdale, gives details of the arrest of the green goods men in that city Tuesday:

"The greatest excitement that ever prevailed in the city of Hillsdale, took place about noon to-day. Eight United States Marshals walked into the Keefer House with drawn revolvers and arrested the house and all in it, and would let no one in, or out for a while. This was done to catch a gang of counterfeiters and they got seven. The day clerk was one, and the others were Dan O'Meara, Charley Ellis, (Rose's fellow) and four others they caught in a house corner of Railroad and West streets and one woman. They found the green goods in the lining of Charley Ellis' coat: $150 in the woman's stocking, and a lot on Dan O'Meara. They were all put in jail and this evening were taken to Lansing for trial. When they went from jail to the depot the streets were a mass of people to see them go, and hundreds went to the depot. A detective was here three weeks working on the case but pretending to be an insurance agent. Two of the marshals came last night, and this morning bought three hundred dollars of the counterfeit, and then they had them solid. It was one of the greatest arrests ever made in Michigan. The boys will get from ten to fifteen years. The detectives are here yet looking for others. They think Chas. Burket is in it too.

The Star Spangled Banner's Author.

Many interesting things about Francis Scott Key—the author of the Star Spangle Banner—are contained in a pamphlet, which may be obtained free, from the Key Monument Association of Frederick City, Maryland, by sending one 2 cent stamp for postage. This Association is raising funds for a suitable monument to the poet, and they suggest, that in the schools and every where, upon or before Flag Day (June 14th), this subject be suitably recognized. Contributions, however small, are asked for. Every one who who loves the Flag, ought to have some small share in building this monument. The Governor of Maryland has strongly endorsed the movement. The names of all contributers will be preserved in the crypt of the monument, and published (without amount) in the history of the monument when completed.

ANOTHER FIRE.

This time one of our valuable factories, but the loss was paid in full by one of the strong fire insurance companies represented by WALTER C. HARTMAN. Give him your insurance.

THE 26TH TRIENNIAL CONCLAVE KNIGHTS TEMPLAR

will be held in Boston, Mass., August 26th to 30th, 1895. For this occasion the Wabash Railroad will sell tickets from all stations to Boston at one fare for the round trip. Map of route and guide to Boston will be mailed on application to C. S. Crane Gen'l Pass'r and Ticket Agent St. Louis, Mo. 17-2m

Cured with One Bottle.

Mr. Jordon Baker, Tifton, Ga., had muscular rheumatism for ten years After using a bottle of Drummond's Lightning Remedy for Rheumatism, he wrote to the manufactures that he was satisfied he would be cured by the time the bottle would be used up. If you want satisfaction, insist on having Drummond's Lightning Remedy. Nothing can take its place. Send $5 to the Drummond Medicine Co, 48 Maiden Lane, New York, and two large bottles of the remedy will be sent to your address Agents Wanted.

For whooping cough Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is excellent. By using it freely the disease is deprived of all dangerous consequences. There is no danger in giving the remedy to babies as it contains nothing injurious. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Robbins & McCord Druggists 18-22

Rheumatism Cured in a Day.—Mystic Cure" for Rheumatism and Neuralgia radically cures in 1 to 3 days. Its action upon the system is remarkable and mysterious. It removes at once the cause and the disease immediately disappears. The first dose greatly benefits, 75 cts Sold by Robbins & McCord, druggists, Auburn. 41tf

Dr. H. R. Fish, of Gravais Mills, Mo., a practicing physician of many years experience, writes: De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve has no equal for indolent sores, scalds and burns. It stops pain instantly heals a burn quickly and leaves no scar.

J. A. Richardson, of Jefferson City, Mo. Chief Eurolling force 38th general assembly of Missouri, writes: I wish to testify to the merits of One Minute Cough Cure. When other so-called cures failed, I obtained almost instant relief and a speedy cure by the use of One Minute Cough cure.

NATIONAL EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION MEETING.

Denver, Colo., July 5 to 12, 1895.

For this occasion the Wabash Railroad has made a rate of one fare for the round trip to Denver plus $2.00, added for membership fee.

For full particulars in regard to this meeting, time of trains, rate, route, etc. call upon or write to any representative of the Wabash R. R, or connection lines, or C. S. Crane, Gen'l Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Wabash R. R., St. Louis. Mo.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

OSCAR LOCKWOOD

Our readers will remember the death of Mrs. Oscar Lockwood a few weeks ago and at the time we stated Mr. Lockwood would soon have to die. He lived much longer than was expected by many as he had that dreaded disease consumption. Last evening at 9 o'clock he passed quietly away. His funeral will be held at the residence Friday at 1 p. m. conducted by Rev. W. L. Meese and interment will take place in Woodlawn cemetery. There will lie father and mother who have been called home in less than a month.

The United Society of Christian Endeavor

and the National Young People's Christian Union will hold their Fourteenth, International Convention at Boston, July 10 to 14, 1895. The Wabash Railroad has reduced the rate to one first-class fare for the round trip from all stations to Boston for this occasion For maps of route and guide to Boston write to C. S. Crane Gen'l Pass'r and Ticket Agent, St. Louis, Mo. 17-2m

Chronic Nervousness

Could Not Sleep, Nervous Headaches.

Gentlemen:—I have been taking your Restorative Nervine for the past three months and I cannot say enough in its praise. It has for I had almost given up hope of ever being well again. I was a chronic sufferer from nervousness and could not sleep. I was also troubled with nervous headache, and had tried doctors in vain, until I used your Nervine. MRS. M. WOOD, Ringwood, Ill.

Saved My Life,

Dr. Miles' Nervine Cures.

Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold on a positive guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. All druggists sell it at $1, 6 bottles for $5, or it will be sent, prepaid, on receipt of price by the Dr. Miles' Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

For Sale by Fischle & Son., Auburn.

THE HUB'S BOYS HEAD-TO-FOOT OUTFITS

THESE HEAD-TO-FOOT OUTFITS

Consist of One COAT, Two Pairs of PANTS, One CAP to Match and a Pair of Shoes.

And the price of the whole outfit is

Only $5.00

If on receipt you do not consider them the greatest bargain you ever bought for $5.00 you can send back the outfit and we expressly agree to return your money.

Send for samples of the cloth and full description of the outfit, also for our new spring catalogue—all sent free on application.

THE HUB The World's Largest Clothing Store. CHICAGO, ILL.

Wabash Low Rate Harvest Excursions for 1895

Will be run from all stations on the Wabash Railroad on April 30th, May 21 and July 11th to the West, Northwest, South and Southwest.

For full particulars, apply to the nearest ticket agent of the Wabash lines or connecting lines or to

C. S. CRANE, G. P. & T. A. Wabash R. R.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder World's Fair Highest Medal and Diploma.

THE AUBURN COURIER.

VOLUME XXV. AUBURN, DE KALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY. MAY 23. 1895. NUMBER 21

SAY : :

HOW MUCH DO YOU OWE?

Who holds your mortgage? How much interest are you paying? Do you owe a building loan association anything? If you do, how much interest are you paying them? Unless you are better posted than the majority of people who have such loans, you cannot tell. You think you are paying 6 per cent. Do you know (of course not) that you are paying at least 12 per cent. If you think not, just figure it out yourself. Now then, are you not paying 6 per cent interest and 6 per cent premium? Certainly. Well now don't you know that premium and interest are the same thing—its all interest. Can you afford to pay 12 per cent interest to a loan association when even your banks only charge 8 per cent and you think they are charging too much, and when do you expect to have your loan canceled or paid off in full? You have been told 72 or 78 months. Now then, we undertake to say that it will take you 100 months, if you will call on us we will show you so you will be satisfied that we are right. Now then, we are prepared to loan you money on monthly installment plan for 8 per cent, we charge you no membership fee and you do not have to make three or more payments in advance so that if on account of insufficient security or bad title your loan is rejected you will not lose one cent. You pay nothing unless your loan is granted. We are making farm loans at from 3 to 5 per cent with privilege of partial payments.

ANOTHER THING!

There is scarcely a day but what there is some traveling agent for some building loan association in Auburn soliciting business, selling stock upon which they charge you a membership fee of from 50 cents to $1.00 per share, which amount goes to the agent and you never get back this money thrown away. If you will call on us we will take your application for all the stock you want in the BEST (we can prove it) building loan association in the state the INDIANA MUTUAL OF INDIANAPOLIS, and charge you No MEMBERSHIP FEE AT ALL. This is certainly fair. If you have any investment stock in any association just write them a letter and ask them the withdrawal value of same, their reply will probably open your eyes. What would you say if you would deposit $8.00 per month in your bank for one year and wanted to withdraw the same and they would offer to pay you only about $80? The bank would only have to do this in one case to be compelled to retire from business. Now you pay ten dollars membership fee and 8 dollars for 12 months making 108 dollars, you lose the 10 dollars membership fee and 10 cents per share each month for expenses, making 12 dollars, or a total of 22 dollars loss upon which you would receive 6 per cent interest for average time on 96 dollars, making 2 dollars and 88 cts. from 22 dollars would leave you a loser of 19 dollars and 12 cents. In our association your stock is worth all you have paid in, with its interest added, so that upon withdrawal you do not get less than you paid. We want the people of Auburn to become familiar with this matter, and would like to have any that are interested to call and talk with us, we can give you some pointers.

We are still in the Real Estate, Insurance and R. R. Ticket business.

RICKEL & SPROTT

AUBURN, INDIANA.

Winona Assembly.

The Presbyterian Chautauqua assembly will be located at Warsaw, at Spring Fountain Park, we suppose. The people at Warsaw raised $5,000 to go toward fitting up additional buildings and for similar purposes as even an "Assembly" requires a money foundation. If they had had plenty of money to fit up new grounds they could have found other locations at least as good. But the selected will be a good one all things considered.

FULL OF PLUMS.

We never saw plums as full as some trees are this year. But the greatest of all, was the branch that J. W. Baxter handed us yesterday. It was sent down by our Waterloo friend, John Duncan, he having cut it from one of the thirty-five plum trees he has now bearing on the Charles Bassett property at Waterloo. It is a damson, and the part of the limb on which they are growing is but thirteen and a half inches in length. Yet in this short space we can count ninety-one perfect plums. There are three to five at each point, and several are growing double. We doubt if anyone ever saw a branch of fruit better loaded. How this tree will ever be saved to carry this crop to ripeness, we cannot see.

THE GERMAM BAPTIST BRETHREN Will hold their annual meeting at Decatur, Ill., the latter part of May. Everything has been arranged, and work on the buildings will begin in a few days The Wabash R. R. is the only line running trains direct to the grounds.

Travelers find a safe companion in DeWitt's Colic and Cholera Cure. A change in drinking water and diet, often causes severe and dangerous complaints. This medicine always cures them.

Fish Story.

A few days ago, some workmen were cleaning out the big cisterns under the roof in the state capitol building at Indianapolis, and found one of them quite lively with young fish. The question is, Did they rain down from the clouds? Did some one put the fish there, or are they some of those in the tank of the near by fountain who got so deadly a scare when the legislature unsheathed its fists for the adjournment, that they climbed up the spout and fell over into the tank in a faint?

Cured in Forty Minutes.

A lady at Tooleys La., was very sick with bilious colic when M. C. Tisler, a prominent merchant of the town gave her a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. He says she was well in forty minutes after taking the first dose. For sale by Robbins & McCord Druggists. 18 22

The United Society of Christian Endeavor

and the National Young People's Christian Union will hold their Fourteenth International Convention at Boston, July 10 to 14, 1895. The Wabash Railroad has reduced the rate to one first-class fare for the round trip from all stations to Boston for this occasion For maps of route and guide to Boston write to C. S. Crane Gen'l Pass'r and Ticket Agent, St. Louis, Mo. 17-2m

Free Pills.

Send your address to H. E. Bucklen & Co., Chicago, and get a free sample box of Dr. King's New Life pills. A trial will convince you of their merits. These pills are easy in action and are particularly effective in the cure of constipation and sick headache. For Malaria and liver troubles they have been proved invaluable. They are guaranteed to be perfectly free from every deleterious substance and to be purely vegetable. They do not weaken by their action, but by giving tone to stomach and bowels greatly invigorate the system. Regular size 25c. per box. Sold at Robbins & McCord drug store. 4

The Rush

STILL CONTINUES.

The people know when they get a good thing. It's the talk of the town, the South Side Buggy Repository, where they are selling Buggies, Phaetons, Surreys and Road Wagons at Free Trade Prices.

What you want is the Best at a price you can afford to pay. We have All Styles at the Right Prices. You are sure to be pleased by calling on

McDowell AND Carter,

SOUTH OF COURT HOUSE.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child, unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold, than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher is on every wrapper.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

THE OLD BOARD.

THE PRESENT BOARD OF TRUSTEES WILL ELECT A COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT.

Judge McClellan Investigates the Question, the and Hunter Law is a Dead Letter.

The late legislature in its haste to grab everything in sight overreached itself and lost all.

The question as to the constitutionality of the act passed by the legislature last winter, changing the time of electing county superintendents from June to September has been somewhat discussed by news paper men over the state, and as we are greatly interested in the question in this county and wishing to have something more definite on the subject, we submitted the matter to Judge McClellan for his opinion. After a careful investigation of the matter he assures us that the law is without a doubt unconstitutional and absolutely void, and that it will be the duty of the township trustees of the several townships of each county to meet on the first Monday of June, as heretofore, and elect a county superintendent of schools, which means the reelection of Mr. Merica, if he can be prevailed upon to accept, it as to which there is some doubt, for we are informed he has partially perfected arrangements to enter into other business. If he cannot be prevailed upon to accept the position it will be almost a calamity to our schools, as most of the new trustees have had no experience, and if to that is added a new superintendent without practical experience, the schools would of necessity suffer.

Judge McClellan says:

The legislature in the act passed last winter attempted to amend section 33, of an act in reference to common schools, approved March 6, 1865, [see acts of 1865, page 13]

Said section had been amended in 1873 [see acts of 1873 page 75;] and said amended section is set out in the revised statutes of 1881 as section 4424. By that amendment said section 33, of the acts of 1865, ceased to exist as completely as if it had never been passed.

In 1875 by the acts of that year, [see page 131]. the legislature undertook to mend said section 33, of the original act of 1865, after it had been amended in 1873 and was therefore not in force, and Judge Biddle decided in the case of state vs Harrison 67th Ind. page 71, that said attempted amendment was void. And the legislature of 1875 attempted to do in that case just precisely what the legislature of 1895 attempted in this case, even to the amendment of the same section.

It appears to be the settled law of this state that an amendatory act strikes down the act which is amended, for it has been so often held that one amended act cannot be again amended that it appears to be folly to discuss it

Langlass vs Langlass	48	Ind.	p 60
Draper vs Falley	33	"	" 465
Board vs Markle	46	"	" 96
Blakeman vs Dolan	50	"	" 194
Feibleman vs state	98	"	" 516
Hale vs Craig	125	"	" 523

These decisions, with many others undoubtedly settle the law upon that question.

It may be contended however, that after reciting these acts of 1865 and then saying that "section 33 of the above entitled act, being section 4424 of the revised statues of 1881" that it was the intention of the legislature to amend the act of 1873. Upon comparson however we find that section 4424 is a copy of section 2 of the acts of 1873, instead of section 33, of the acts of 1865.

But if it should be conceded that it was intended by the act of 1895 in its reference to section 4424 of the revised statutes to amend the 2nd section of the acts of 1873, t would still be void. If the intention was not the amendment of the 33d section of the acts of 1865, but was the amendment of the 2nd section of the acts of 1873, (sec 4424) then all reference to the title of said act of 1865, should be regarded as surplusage, and when eliminated, the title to said act of 1895 would read. "An act to amend section 4424 of the revised statutes of 1881, etc.

Would this be sufficient? In other words, may a section of the revised statute of 1881 be amended by naming section sought to be amended without referring to the title of the act of which it forms a part?

Section 21 of article 4, of our state constitution provides that, "No act shall ever be revised or amended by mere reference to its title; but it act revised, or section amended, shall be set forth and published at full length."

Judge Hammond in deciding the case of Feibleman vs State 98th Ind., page 520, in which this question was discussed, says:

We do not think it was intended by the first clause of the above section of the constitution to dispense with reference to the title of an act in its amendment. If such had been its object, the first clause might well have been omitted. If nothing was required in the revision of an act or the amendment of a section, but to set it forth and publish it at full length, the entire purpose of section, 21 supra, of the constitution could have been more briefly expressed by reading. "An act revised or section amended shall be set forth and published at full length," Why then was the first clause inserted that, "No act shall ever be revised or amended by mere reference to its title?" These words are presumed to have been used for some object. If a section in the revision of 1881 may be amended by simply referring to it by number, so may a law of any session of the legislature be amended in the same way, by a title like this: "An act to amend section 2 on page 75 of the acts of 1873." This would at least be looseness and uncertainty in statutory amendments, which it was the main object of the constitutional provision under consideration to prevent.

Section 19 of article 4 of the constitution provides that "Every act shall embrace but one subject and matters properly connected therewith, which subject shall be expressed in the title." And this title we think under section 21, supra, must be referred to when any subsequent amendment of the act is made.

Under this view the act of the legislature last winter is void, whether it is regarded as an amendment of section 33 of the acts of 1865, or of the amendatory act of 1873 [see revised statutes 4424] If of the former, it is invalid because that section was already superseded by the act of 1873. And if designed as an amendment of the acts of 1873, it is void for failing to refer to the title of that act.

Even if the trustees of any county should fail to appoint in June then the new act being void, the present incumbents will hold over until their successors are "elected and qualified." Such election, cannot again take place before the first Monday of June 1897. State vs Harrison, 67 Ind. page 71, Sackett vs Foreman, 74 Ind. page 486.

APPLE WORMS.

Recently we spoke of the pest of apple tree lice. Now we give the worms a bad word. L. S. Stoner called our attention to-day, to the queer appearance of the old orchard on the Peter Shafer farm southeast of town. Looking at it from town, it appeared black and dead. Mr. Lochner, of the COURIER force, visited the orchard this forenoon, and found that the trees were stripped bare of the leaves, by the ravages of the apple worm, we don't know any better name for it. It is likely that the early hot spell brought them out sooner than usual, and of course they began work at once. They are the same kind that fill the trees with webs and starting from the web go out along the limbs and eat the softer parts of the leaves. On examining the limbs from this orchard, it looks as if the worms had many of them, been killed by the cold weather of the last few days, as only a few now show signs of life. May be the late freeze did some good after all.

DELAWARE.

THE LITTLE STATE DO'NT KNOW WHETHER SHE HAS ELECTED A SENATOR OR NOT.

Delaware legislature balloted 211 times during the four months' session, in a vain attempt to elect a U. S. Senator. Last Thursday, the session ended, and as the last vote gave H. A. Dupont, republican, 15 votes, the party leaders declared him elected. But there is likely to be trouble over it for several reasons. Delaware has but three counties, so her legislature is small. They have 21 in the House, and 6 in the Senate. Recently the governor died and the president of the senate, by law becomes governor. This the republicans claim left the senate with but 8 members. Then, 15 would be a majority. But the democrats claim a man must have 16 votes, that is a majority of the full membership of the two Houses. The time of the legislature expired last Thursday, and if no election was made, then, it is probable, the governor could make no appointment, as the senate itself has already refused to admit members chosen by the governors when a legislature failed to elect. But in case a senator dies or resigns when the legislature is not in session, then the governor can appoint one. Our Washington correspondent speaking of this case, says:

'Democrats generally regard the position taken by Senator Gray concerning that alleged election of Col. Dupont to be a U. S. Senatar by the Delaware legislature as the correct one, and believe with him that the senate will not allow Col. Dupont to take his seat, Even as radical a republican as senator Mitchell, of Oregon, expresses doubt of Dupont's claim. Senator Morgan, of Alabama, doesn't believe that Dupont will be seated, nor that the U. S. senate has any constitutional right to question the legality of Gov. Watson's vote as senator acting governor of the state. Senator Morgan also calls attention to the fact that only one man has been allowed during his senatorial career to take a seat in the senate without first presenting the governor's certificate of his election. That man was Roscoe Conkling, but in his case the certificate had been sent by the governor of New York, but was delayed in the mails. Dupont will not, it is certain, get a certificate from Gov Watson.

De Witt's Colic and Cholera Cure never disappoints, never fails to give immediate relief. It cures just as sure as you take it. For sale by all druggists.

SCHAAB & BRO.

DRY GOODS,

CLOTHING,

CARPETS.

We have the Largest Store in DeKalb County

We Sell

GOOD GOODS

Cheaper than any other Firm in DeKalb County,

We Invite You To Call.

SCHAAB & BRO.

BROWN, CULBERTSON & BOLAND

The leading Hardware and Agricultural Implement Firm in DeKalb Co.

SELLS

Eckhart Buggies,
Turnbull Wagons,
Oliver and Bryan Plows,
Bement Disc and Spring-tooth Harrows,
Bryan Spading Harrows,
Ohio, Albion and New Western Cultivators,
McCormick, Champion and Deering, Binders and Mowers.
Stoves, Tinware, Paints
OILS, Glass, etc., etc.

ome and See

North Side Public Square.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

JAMES A. BARNS, - - - PUBLISHER.

THE NEWS RECORD.

SUMMARY OF A WEEK'S HAPPENINGS.

The Latest News as Flashed Over the Wires from All Parts of the World—Regarding Politics, Religion, Casualties, Commerce, and Industry.

'TIS NOT VALID.

The Supreme Court Declares the Income Tax Unconstitutional.

The supreme court has declared the income tax law unconstitutional. The Chief Justice announced the following conclusions:

First. We adhere to the opinion already announced that taxes of real estate being undisputable direct taxes, taxes on the rents or income of real estate are equally direct taxes.

Second. We are of the opinion that taxes on personal property or on the income of personal property are likewise direct taxes.

Third. The tax imposed by sections 27 to 37 inclusive, of the act of 1894, so far as it falls on the income of real estate and personal property, being a direct tax within the meaning of the constitution, is therefore unconstitutional and void, because not apportioned according to representation, all those sections constituting one entire scheme of taxation are necessarily invalid.

After Chief Justice Fuller concluded he was followed by Justice Jackson, who read a vigorous dissent.

Upon the question of the general constitutionality of the law the court is understood to be divided as follows:

Against the law—Chief Justice Fuller Justices Field, Gray, Brewer and Shiras.

For the law—Justices Harlan, Jackson, Brown and White.

Internal Revenue Commissioner Miller says that under section 3,220 of the revised statutes all the moneys paid in on account of the income tax will be refunded to the payers by the treasury department without delay. Acting under this section, internal revenue taxes wrongfully collected are daily refunded by his office, and the same action will be taken as to repaying the income tax collected. It amounts to only $73,000.

A Famine of Coal Threatened.

Columbus (Ohio.) special: The strike of the coal miners is assuming very threatening proportions. A coal famine similar to to that of last year is threatened. Already the local price has advanced to $2.75 a ton at retail. The supply of coal on hand May 1, when the present strike was inaugurated, has been practically exhausted, and no coal is obtainable except from West Virginia. The wholesale price has advanced 40 cents, delivered on cars in the yards at Columbus, and further advance is anticipated. Dealers who have contracts to fill are compelled to bid against each other in order to obtain from the limited supply of West Virginia coal shipped here a sufficient amount to accommodate customers and fulfill their contracts.

Met a Swift Death.

Miss Nettie Ford was run over and killed by an electric car. The fatality occurred near the north approach of the viaduct opposite the Union Railroad Deport at Columbus, Ohio. The car which ran over the woman was coming south. She was walking along High street, and just before the car reached her the hat she wore was blown off. She endeavored to recover the hat, rushing in front of a car coming from an opposite direction. As she stooped to pick it up she was struck by the rapidly approaching conveyance. She was carried into a barber shop kept by C. H. Thies, at 473 North High street and soon afterward expired.

Lives Burned Out.

Fire at Gate City, Ala., destroyed the grocery store of George M. Mitchell and ten other buildings. The fire broke out from some unknown cause in Mitchell's store. Overhead was the boarding house of J. C. Fant, in which thirty rolling mill operatives were sleeping at the time. The whole building was in a blaze before the men were awakened. Many jumped out of windows. James Smithson and two unknown men were burned to death.

Child Choked to Death.

At Fort Wayne, Ind., Little Hattie Philabaum, aged 5 years, watched her sister, Mrs. Maxwell, cooking a beef pot pie for dinner. The child asked for a taste of the meat and was given a bite. She choked on it, and, despite the efforts of Mrs. Maxwell and neighbors, she was dead in 10 minutes.

"Gen." Kelley's New Scheme.

"General" Kelley, who led an army of hoboes to Washington, D. C., last summer, is to change his plan of campaign. This year he will travel over the country in a "prairie schooner" and solicit signatures to a petition to have the government do something to relieve the general depression.

A Heavy Man's Fate.

Nicholas Wilhelm, while walking on Cherry street, Massillon, Ohio, fell over an embankment, a distance of but two feet. He was killed instantly, his neck being broken. Wilhelm weighed over 200 pounds.

Riot at Cleveland.

Union lumber shovers had a riot in Cleveland, Ohio, and prevented non-union men from unloading a lumber vessel. By mistake the rioters clubbed a union man to insensibility and he was taken to a hospital.

Skinned Alive.

Three colored wretches waylaid, outraged and murdered a young white woman in Lafayette County, Florida. They were captured, skinned alive, bound to trees, and burned to death.

Disastrous Runaway.

In a runaway accident twelve miles east of Fort Wayne, Ind., Henry Knipslein was killed and several others dangerously injured. Charles Raudebausch had a leg broken, and was hurt internally. Miss Clara Aufeldt had several ribs broken, and may die.

To Hang June 21.

St. Paul (Minn.) special: Gov. Clough has signed the death warrant of Harry T. Hayward, the murderer of Kate Ging, fixing the date of execution for June 21.

Confessed His Guilt.

Springfield (O.) special: Constable Walker and Traveling Auditor Travis, of the American Express Co., who were in the city investigating the theft of $500 worth of money orders from the American Express office at New Moorefield, have arrested Benjamin D. Remsbreg, a telegraph operator of that place. Remsburg at first said that he did not steal the orders. He said they were given to him by a man named Yeazell. He told the story very plausibly, but finally admitted that it was unture, and owned to his guilt. Remsburg was employed in the depot where the express company is located, and had easy access to the money order book, which he stole.

GETTING BRIGHTER.

Every Indication for Better Times in the Business World.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

"The severe cold snap, with extensive frosts, and in some States snow, has fortunately done little damage to the great crops, though much to fruit, has considerably retarded retail trade. The best news of the week is the advance of 10 per cent. in wages by the Carnegie works, followed by the Jones-Laughlin establishment, and evidently implying a similar advance by many other concerns. The Illinois Steel Company is starting its furnaces without granting the demands of employes. No advance has been found practicable in the woolen mills, where conditions as to prices and foreign competition are very different, and about 10,000 workers are still idle at Olneyville, where the works should produce 600,000 pounds per week. In other departments of labor, troubles are not serious, and the demand for manufactured products increases. The volume of domestic business measured by railroad earnings for the first week of May is 4.2 per cent. larger than last year, and measured by bank exchanges outside New York is only 11.0 per cent. larger than last year, and for the month the daily average is 11.0 per cent. less than in 1893. It is but fair to note that business broke down and exchanges fell below the normal average about this time two years ago."

TAKE THE TOWN.

Reported Victory of Cuban Rebels Confirmed.

New York special: The recent attack and capture of the town of Ranes by the Cuban revolutionists was confirmed by one of the passengers of the little fruit steamer Brixham, which has arrived from Gibara. The insurgents, numbering 300 men, made a bold attack on the town, May 7, and captured it with but little resistance.

M. Gonzalo DeQuesada, secretary of the Cuban revolutionary party, and Carlos M. Cespedes will sail at once from this city for Jacksonville, Fla., where they intend to address meetings and collect money to help along the cause of their compatriots. From Jacksonville they will go to Tampa, and possibly to Key West.

In the latest letters received by the Cuban leaders in this city from Gomez and Marti they say they are in excellent spirits over progress which the revolutionists are making. A council of the Cuban generals had been held, at which Jose Marti was acknowledged as a delegate of the revolutionary party and the title of Major General was confirmed upon him.

Kills a Former Friend.

Noblesville (Ind.) special: For years Charlie Stevenson and Jack Moore had been intimate friends. The two met on the street, and, without a warning of any kind, Stevenson drew his revolver and commenced shooting at Moore. After the first shot the latter ran in an opposite direction from his assailant, begging piteously for him not to shoot. Stevenson paid no attention to the request and followed Moore, firing four shots at him, but one of which took effect. It struck him in the neck and severed the jugular vein, causing death within five minutes. In an interview the murderer said he did not regret the fact that he had killed Moore, and assigned as a reason that the dead man had on many occasions made indecent proposals to his wife.

Russian Bear Plans to Size Corea.

Washington special: Russia's demand for a Corean port does not surprise the state department. It was not born of an impulse. It was simply pursuant to the policy outlined by Russia before the China-Japan war. It was known at the state department fully six months before the first shot was fired by Japan that Russia expected to obtain a Corean port in the event of a Japanese victory. This information came from no less a person than the Russisn minister himself. In speaking of the matter he pointed out that Russia has no seaport on the Pacific Ocean available in winter. In view of the railroad building across Russia and Siberia it was absolutely necessary, he declared, to secure a seaport which would be open the year round.

Compulsory Education.

Gov. Hastings of Pennsylvania, has approved the Farr compulsory educational bill, recently passed by the Legislature, giving as his reasons for signing it that there appeared to be throughout the commonwealth a genuine desire for such a law, that he had not received a single protest from any citizen against it; that it had passed the Legislature by a large vote. He says: "This measure provides for compulsory education in perhaps the least objectionable form to those who oppose it on principle, and offends as little against the personal rights of the citizen as possible."

Long Judicial Career.

Last Monday Justice Field celebrated the thirty-second anniversary of his entering upon the duties of a member of the United States Supreme Court. He was appointed to the office on March 10, 1863, by President Lincoln, but did not assume the duties of the position until the 20th day of May following. It is said to be Mr. Field's ambition to extend his term so as to make it the longest on record, and he bids fair to be able to accomplish that result, notwithstanding he is now almost seventy-nine years old.

A Probable Murder.

There was a probable murder in the vicinity of Brightwood, four miles north of Indianapolis. Walter Shelby and a stranger known as "Manuel" were fellow-employes at Frank Tatman's dairy, and Shelby complained to Tatman that "Manuel" was neglecting his work. "Manuel" was thereupon discharged. Watching his opportunity he attacked Shelby with a pitchfork and also used a knife. Shelby was found in the barn unconscious and apparently dying. "Manuel" fled to avoid arrest.

Wrecked by Dynamite.

At Parker, eight miles east of Muncie, Ind., the boarding house of Mrs. John Hewitt was wrecked by a dynamite explosion. Mrs. Hewitt and her daughter, Susie, were taken out unconscious and both were terribly injured. Mrs. Hewitt was injured internally and her daughter's legs were crushed. Four other occupants were injured. Mrs. Hewitt is living apart from her husband and when he appeared at the scene, Mrs. Hewitt accused him of causing the outrage.

Victory for the Bell.

The decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, in the case of the American Bell Telephone Company et al., appellant, vs. the United States, appellee, was filed with the Court at Boston. It reverses the decree of Judge Carpenter, declaring the Berliner telephone patent invalid, and is a victory for the American Bell Company. The decree practically concedes to the Bell Company the monopoly of the microphone until 1908.

Millions of Fish Hatched.

The hatch at the fish hatchery at Put-in-Bay, Ohio, beats the world's record in the number of eggs taken in one season at one station. During the year, which will end in June, there have been taken at this station 115,000,000 white fish eggs, 11,000,000 ciscos, or lake herring; 404,000,000 pike-perch, or wall-eyed pike, besides lake trout, grass pike, yellow perch and other varieties.

Objects to An American Scheme.

A dispatch from Tien-Tsin says that France, Germany and Russia object to any financial scheme under which China shall confer special rights on any nation. This frustrates the reported proposals of an American syndicate to advance the amount of the indemnity demanded by Japan on the security of concessions of the right to build a railway in China.

Piled Ties on the Track.

An attempt was made to wreck Nickel Plate passenger train No. 6 at Green Springs, Ohio. Operator Woolpert overheard a remark in a conversation which took place between two men on the depot platform, and becoming suspicious, took a lamp and started down the track to investigate. He discovered a pile of stones and ties on the track, and succeeded in stopping the train a few feet from the obstruction, which the trainmen removed in a few minutes, and the train proceeded on its way. The wreckers in the meantime had made their escape, and the authorities have no clue to their identity.

Disastrous Explosion.

There was another big explosion at the Hancock Chemical Works, at Dollar Bay, three miles from Houghton, Mich. Several were injured and some killed. The works were blown to pieces. The explosion was similar to the one which occurred at the same works March 15. Fred Shouper is known to have been killed and several were injured. The office and several other buildings were blown up. The telephone to the works is disabled and the names of the injured cannot yet be learned.

Coney Island's Loss.

An extensive fire raged at Coney Island, New York, Friday. The block in which the fire started was entirely swept and over fifty buildings, many being small ones, destroyed. The total loss is about $100,000. The territory covered by the fire was bounded by Sea Beach walk, Maiden Lane, Culver's walk and Surf avenue. A large number of families have been rendered homeless. They took refuge in the Sea Beach palace.

Fire in Lumber Yards.

Fire started in the yards of the Dwight Lumber Company, which was located on Scoten avenue between the tracks of the Michigan Central and Bay City Railroads, Detroit, and which are two blocks long and one block wide. Before the fire was brought under control the planing mill, dry kiln, shingle mill, backing mill, drying sheds, and engine house were destroyed. The loss will reach $100,000; insurance, $60,000.

Orchards All Right.

The Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad has made a special inquiry regarding the damage done fruit along its line. The reports show that no damage was done through the territory within thirty miles of Lake Michigan, though north of Big Rapids vegetables above the ground were frozen and will have to be replanted. In the central part of the State fruit was pretty generally killed, though apples may pull through.

He Would Accept.

United States Senator Cullom, of Illinois, in an interview said he was in no sense a candidate for the presidency, but admitted that he would accept it if it were offered him. He expressed himself as believing that the tariff question and not the money question would be the leading issue of the national election.

A Novel Voyage.

Capt. J. W. Morris started from San Francisco recently in a boat 45 feet long to make a trip around the world. He was accompanied by his wife, two sailors and a cabin boy. The boat draws 11 feet and is sharp at each end, which is said to make it proof against capsizing. The party will go first to Australia and then to South America.

Lightning Kills Three Men.

While a crowd of mountaineers were sitting around a wildcat distillery, near Culman, Ala., a storm came up and the men sought shelter under the protection of several trees. Scarcely had Frank Walker Frank Dill and Bob Moreland reached the cover of a large oak when lightning struck the tree and shattered it killing the three men.

Apachee Renegades.

Several miners are reported to have been killed by Apachees near Fort Bayard, New Mexico, on the Mescalero Indian reservation. The murders are believed to be chargeable to Apachee Kid and his band of renegades. The outbreak is not general.

Horrible Explosion.

Four mills of the Schaghticoke Powder Company, of Schaghticoke, N. Y., blew up. The shock was terrific. Chauncey Loanes, unmarried, was killed and Charles Clum, who had a wife and three children, was fatally injured.

Ordered to Sea.

Orders have been received at Port Townsend, Wash., for the cutter Grand to prepare at once for sea. The order was a surprise. It may point either north toward Alaska, or south toward the isthmus.

Miners in Destitution.

Alliance (Ohio) special: The miners have resumed work at the old scale. At Dickstonton the destitute men are begging of the farmers and killing cattle and sheep.

Cotton Mills Burned.

The La Fama cotton mills, situated near Monterey, Mex., have been destroyed by fire. They were the largest in Northern Mexico. Loss, $125,000.

A Big Dose of Justice.

At Chicago, Illinois, James Winrow, a marble polisher, was given two years in the penitentiary for beating his wife.

THE MARKETS.

Chicago—Cattle, common to prime, $3.75 to $6.50; hogs, shipping grades, $3.00 to $5.00; sheep, fair to choice, $2.50 to $5.00; wheat, No. 2 red, 64c to 65c; corn, No. 2, 50c to 51c; oats, No. 2, 28c to 29c; rye, No. 2, 64c to 65c; butter, choice creamery, 15c to 17c; eggs, fresh, 11c to 13c; potatoes, car lots, per bushel, 50c to 60c; broom corn, per lb, common growth to fine brush, 4c to 7c.

Indianapolis—Cattle, shipping, $3.00 to $6.00; hogs, choice light, $3.00 to $4.75; sheep, common to prime, $2.00 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2, 64c to 65c; corn, No. 1 white, 50c to 50½c; oats, No. 2 white, 33c to 33½c.

St. Louis—Cattle, $3.00 to $6.50; hogs, $4.00 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2 red, 66c to 67c; corn, No. 2, 48c to 49c; oats, No. 2, 29c to 30c; rye, No. 2, 67c to 69c.

Cincinnati—Cattle, $3.50 to $5.50; hogs, $3.00 to $4.75; sheep, $2.50 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2, 69c to 69½c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 54c to 55c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 30½c to 31½c; rye, No. 2, 63c to 65c.

Detroit—Cattle, $2.50 to $6.00; hogs, $4.00 to $4.75; sheep, $2.00 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2 red, 68c to 69c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 50½c to 51½c; oats, No. 2 white, 33c to 34c; rye, 65c to 67c.

Toledo—Wheat, No. 2 red, 68c to 69c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 51c to 52c; oats, No. 2 white, 33c to 33½c; rye, No. 2, 66c to 68c.

Buffalo—Cattle, $2.50 to $6.50; hogs, $3.00 to $5.25; sheep, $3.00 to $4.75; wheat, No. 1 hard, 72c to 73c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 54c to 55c; oats, No. 2 white, 35c to 36c.

Milwaukee—Wheat, No. 2 spring, 64c to 65c; corn, No. 3, 50c to 51c; oats, No. 2 white, 32c to 33c; barley, No. 2, 48c to 51c; rye, No. 1, 64c to 65c; pork, mess, $11.75 to $12.25.

New York—Cattle, $3.00 to $6.50; hogs, $4.00 to $5.50; sheep, $3.00 to $5.25; wheat, No. 2 red, 70c to 71c; corn, No. 2, 55c to 56c; oats, white Western, 38c to 41c; butter, creamery, 12c to 18c; eggs, Western, 13½c to 14½c.

FRUIT IS BLIGHTED.

JACK FROST CAUSES SERIOUS DAMAGE.

Reports from Various Sections Show the Injury Inflicted by Monday Night's Cold Snap Was Great—Garden Stuffs and Fruits Affected Most.

Snow in Places.

Jack Frost again swooped down on the fruit trees of Southern Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Wisconsin early Tuesday morning and blighted almost the entire crop. The frosts of Saturday and Sunday nights began the destruction. Tuesday the young leaves turned black and the blossoms withered. Few districts escaped. Reports of damage are conflicting, but it is calculated only one-fourth of the fruit crop will be saved. From fifteen States Professor Moore, the weather watcher in Chicago, received telegrams reporting the condition of crops and the general influence of the weather on the cultivation and growth of all cereals during the week. The reports set forth that the cool wave, which overspread nearly the whole of the country east of the Rocky Mountains, had proved very unfavorable to growing crops, and that much injury had resulted from frosts in northern latitudes. In the Western States the reports state that during the early part of the week the crops were doing splendidly, but the frost of Saturday and Sunday nights had proved disastrous. Some of the States were suffering from drought, notably Ohio and Illinois. In the eastern part of Ohio wheat, corn, potatoes and fruit were seriously injured. The reports in general were cheering concerning the condition of wheat, oats and barley. But fruit, corn and vegetables have suffered.

The following readings of the thermometer, taken at 6 o'clock Tuesday morning, best tell the tale of the frigid wave's visit:

	Degrees.
Marquette, Mich.	28
Green Bay, Wis.	30
La Crosse, Wis.	20
Grand Haven, Mich.	32
Port Huron, Mich.	34
St. Paul, Minn.	34
Duluth, Minn.	34
Indianapolis	34
Keokuk, Iowa	36
Des Moines, Iowa	36
Cincinnati, Ohio	36
Erie, Pa.	36
Cleveland, Ohio	36
Sandusky, Ohio	36
Toledo, Ohio	36
Louisville, Ky.	36
Pittsburg, Pa.	38
Parkersburg, W. Va.	38
Cairo, Ill.	40
Chattanooga, Tenn.	40
Knoxville, Tenn.	40
Nashville, Tenn.	40
St. Louis, Mo.	40
Vincennes, Ind.	40

State Reports.

Michigan—As far as can be learned the frosts of Saturday night did but very little damage except on the high ground of the central part of the lower peninsula, where fruits, corn and garden truck were nipped. Beside the garden truck, which has been killed outright, strawberries seem to have suffered the worst. Estimates now place the State crop at less than half the usual yield, a direct loss to growers of close to $150,000. The covering of snow is believed to have preserved all grain from serious injury.

Indiana—Fruit, vegetables and grain have been killed in many sections of the State, central Indiana being the only section that escaped with moderately small loss. In the southwestern section potatoes, beets, tomatoes and melons were killed, and whole fields of corn were frozen stiff and turned black under the rays of the burning sun. Though the fruit was protected to some extent by foliage, grapes, cherries and apples suffered greatly, and it is questionable if one-fourth of a crop will remain. Ice in many localities was from one-fourth to one-half inch thick.

Illinois—Frost has reduced the prospects for an abundant supply of grapes probably 50 per cent. Cherries suffered to some extent, but it is thought little or no damage was done to apples or peaches. Potatoes, beans, tomatoes and other garden products were cut down and destroyed. Early corn was somewhat damaged. Wheat and oats are all right.

Iowa—Corn in spots has been nipped to the ground, and garden truck badly damaged. Otherwise none of the reports indicate any permanent damage either to corn, small grain or small fruit. Tomato plants and vegetation of similar kinds were ruined. Potatoes, beans and peas were slightly injured, but will recover. Corn along the Burlington Road on the main line, west and south, is scarcely injured at all. The fruit also escaped, as the foliage, being more luxuriant than usual, played a prominent factor in preserving them.

Nebraska—The damage to fruits is estimated to be enough to reduce the crop one-half. Small grain suffered very little. Patches through the State show ten to twenty acres of corn ruined. This is only in the lowlands. Damage to other grain very light. Those fields of corn known to be damaged are being prepared for replanting at once. The acreage, consequently, will not be decreased.

EPWORTH ANNIVERSARY.

Members Throughout the Country Celebrated Its Anniversary.

Sunday was the anniversary of the formation of the Epworth League, and throughout Methodist America the birthday of this great organization of young people was celebrated in the churches and Sunday schools with special services and exercises. Meanwhile the arrangements are being completed for the international conference of the league, which is to be held at Chattanooga during the last week of June. More than 10,000 delegates are expected, and the great tent used at the Cleveland convention of the Endeavorers has been secured.

The committee has received acceptances of invitations from Bishops Hendrix, Hargrove and Joyce, Rev. Charles H. Parkhurst, D. D., Mrs. Maud Ballington Booth, Hon. McKenzie Bowell, prime minister of Canada, and Rev. Sam P. Jones. The conference will be without legislative powers, and will be simply a great Methodist jubilee, at which the leaders may exchange experiences on revivals, missions, temperance and other questions that engage the efforts of the league.

THE KING OF FARMERS.

A Pennsylvania Man Who Earned That Title.

Col. James Young, whose death occurred at his home at Middletown, Pa., the other day, from injuries received by being thrown from his carriage, was known the country over as the "Farmer King of Pennsylvania." His career had been an eventful one and is another example of what pluck and energy will accomplish when rightly applied. He was born 75 years ago near Middletown. While attending the district school he helped his father, who was a hotelkeeper. He was very willing and industrious, and with his first $100 he purchased a stage route between Middletown and Hummelstown. He was successful in this venture, and, at the age of 19, having saved several hundred dollars, he purchased a canal boat and this he ran for nearly a year. He went into the lumber and coal business in Middletown. He became connected in business with Gen. Simon Cameron and the latter made him a director in his bank.

COL. JAMES YOUNG.

In 1859 he purchased a limestone quarry, which for twenty-seven years he operated with great profit. In 1886 he sold the quarry and purchased real estate in the form of farms and at the time of his death he was the possessor of thirteen farms, comprising more than 3,000 of the most highly cultivated and productive acres in the Keystone State.

HER ACTION APPLAUDED.

An Indiana Lady Who Suppressed a Gross Nuisance.

The action of Mrs. Dr. Anna Lemmon Griffin, who, while attending a Muncie, Ind., theater the other evening, refused to allow two young men to crowd past her to go out and "see a man" between the first and second acts, met with commendation and applause not only in Muncie but throughout the whole country, and letters and telegrams have been received by her from many cities, all upholding her refusal. The young men had crowded into their seats at the commencement of the performance past Mrs. Griffin and a party of ladies whom she was with. When the curtain fell on the first act they asked permission to pass out again, and Mrs. Griffin said they could not do so. They protested and even called the police, but Mrs. Griffin remained seated and the manager said she could not be compelled to let any one pass in front of her until the end of the performance, and the young men were made to sit down. A storm of applause followed, which, together with the newspaper comments which have since been made, showed the manager so plainly that the people considered the passing out between the acts a nuisance, that he has cancelled the door-check system, and the nuisance has been abated.

MRS. DR. GRIFFIN.

The Comic Side of The News

The half-breed uprising in North Dakota seems to have lacked yeast—it didn't rise.

England will not take the Nicaragua Canal just now. She'll wait till it's finished.

No wonder the Oscar Wilde jury disagreed; it certainly was a most disagreeable case.

For a young man of his peculiar habits Lord Sholto Douglas makes too loud professions of his honor. Falstaff had the same fault.

It is now reported that Li Hung Chang has been degraded. Can it be possible that he has been compelled to remove his ulster again?

Russia says that Japan has acted upon its "advice." The imperial humorist or the court jester must be responsible for the use of that word.

The Briggs case seems to have all the staying qualities of the grip, without the latter nuisance's excuse in the way of occasional fatal results.

It is said that a revolution is looked for in Nicaragua just as soon as this season's coffee crop is harvested. Haven't they enough grounds for one now?

The press agents of the summer resorts are beginning to get in their work. Asbury Park, N. J., is reported to have a colored man who saw Washington cross the Delaware.

If Judge Meyers, of Leavenworth, have his way, Dr. Keeley, of gold cure fame, must make known the ingredients of his celebrated specific. This may result in making every "jag" victim his own physician.

The St. Louis judge who fined that unutterable nuisance, a masher, $100 and regretted that the law would not permit him to raise the figure, is entitled to the gratitude of the country. If the strong arm of the law be powerful enough to mash the masher, it should not be withheld.

HAILSTONES PICKED UP AT OMAHA.

The hailstorm which recently swept the eastern portion of Nebraska was the worst in the history of the State. A photograph of some of the hailstones which fell at Omaha was taken shortly after the storm had passed, and the samples were gathered at random from a flat roof. The largest one in the group measured 5¾ inches in circumference nearly an hour after it fell.

COMBAT WITH "COIN."

GREAT DEBATE ON THE CURRENCY QUESTION.

W. H. Harvey vs. Prof. Laughlin—Former Champions Free Silver, the Latter Opposing It—Thousands Hear the Discussion in Chicago.

Silver Question Discussed.

An animated and interesting debate took place in Chicago the other night between J. Lawrence Laughlin, professor of political economy in the University of Chicago, and William H. Harvey, author of "Coin's Financial School," upon the question whether the United States should at once enter upon the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, independently of the action of any other nation. Dr. Homer J. Thomas presided, and the spacious rooms of the Illinois Club were crowded to suffocation.

Dr. Thomas read the proposition to be discussed as follows: "Resolved, that the United States should at once enter upon free coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1, independently of the action of any other nations." Harvey, it was stated, would speak for an hour in the affirmative and Prof. Laughlin an hour and a half in the negative, Harvey then having thirty minutes for rejoinder. Both men were liberally applauded. In opening for the affirmative, Harvey said:

"The first reason why I am in favor of independent action by this country is that we should not be subjected to the influences of the governments of Europe. When our forefathers declared their independence from Europe, it was to free themselves of the class legislation of those governments, justly termed plutocracies. If the people can be reduced to poverty and the prosperity of the United States can be ruined by hanging to the financial policy of Europe, then we can be reduced to the same conditions by financial legislation as a war conquest would reduce us. If we are right, and our friends, the mono-metallists mostly say: 'We admit bi-metallism would be good if we could get international bi-metallism;' in other words, they agree that there is something radically wrong, but claim that we are tied to the financial policy of Europe, so, that if there was a war of conquest in this country by the monarchies of Europe, whose form of government is different from ours, it would reduce us to a condition that the people of those governments are in, and they can accomplish the same purpose by financial legislation, then there is necessity for independent action. Where there is necessity, there is a remedy. The governments of Europe are plutocracies. They squeeze the lemon for the people about every so often. A few control class legislation and the masses are the hewers of wood and the drawers of water for the titled few. Like the farmer who goes out and robs the bee's nest, they rob the people and then give them time to fill the nest again before going out to rob it again. We have certainly not forgotten history giving reasons why our forefathers established this government—and that was the reason.

"Now as financial legislation is one of the classes of class legislation by which many are robbed and a few are enriched, then it is one of the institutions of the European governments that we as a nation should declare our independence of. That is the first reason why independent financial action should be taken by the United States. If they say: 'We must have the same money they have in order to carry on business with them,' my reply is, 'that the biggest business we ever carried on with the balance of the world, and particularly with Europe, was the time when they had silver as a money and we had neither.'

"This nation can have an independent financial system without any reference whatever to the balance of the world, and can carry on its own commerce by ocean and by land with the other governments of the world notwithstanding. We do not now settle our balances with Europe in coin except on its commercial value and by weight. Our coinage has nothing to do with it. Primarily the balances of trade are settled by trade. We give them our wheat and we take their silks and the balance that we may owe them or they may owe us will be settled just as merchants between importing points may agree to settle it. They can settle it in gold for so much per pennyweight as measured in the money of either country or our country, or in so much silver or so much copper, or so much of any other merchandise may be agreed upon between them in their trade relations. There is no such thing as an international money.

"What we are contending for is the opening of the mints to free coinage of silver (they are now open to free and unlimited coinage of gold and have never been closed to that metal), and the establishment of bi-metallism on these simple and fixed principles that were adopted by those statesmen who had in view the interests of no class, but of all the people. What we want is bi-metallism. And scientific bimetallism is this:

"1. Free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver; these two metals to constitute the primary or redemption money of the government

"2. The silver dollar of 371¼ grains of pure silver to be the unit of value and gold to be coined into money and the ratio to be changed if necessary from time to time, if commercial parity to legal ratio shall be affected by the action of foreign countries.

"3. The money coined from both metals to be legal tender in the payment of all debts.

"4. The option as to which of the two moneys is to be paid in liquidation of debt to rest with the debtor, and the government also to exercise that option when desirable when paying out redemption money."

Harvey closed as follows: "This is a question of capital on one side and humanity on the other. Of sound, the sound of the clod on the coffin, on one side and sound money, the sound that has an honest ring of the people's money in it, on the other side. It is a question of an English policy or an American policy. Which shall it be?"

Prof. Laughlin's Argument.

Prof. Laughlin, replying for the negative, said in part: "There is no need of an amount of money equal to all the goods in existence. The measure of value is that in which the prices are stated and debts are paid, provided the measure is also the legal tender in any country. It is evident that the quantity of measures is not so material as the unvarying stability of the standard. The necessity of an increasing quantity of money is growing less important with the development of the system of exchanges. From 92 to 95 per cent. of the transactions are performed by this machinery without the use of money and investigations by the comptroller of the currency show that 54 per cent. of the retail transactions are similarly performed without the use of the money.

"But some one might say that this vast system must be liquidated in actual coin and money, so our business system rests like an inverted pyramid or a vertex on a small reserve of coin. This is wholly untrue. We express the value of goods in terms of money, but then we really exchange them almost entirely by means of a deposit of currency. It is not true that this system is unstable like the inverted pyramid. Checks and deposits are not reason for the existence of a transaction. The redemption is ultimately in goods, not coin. Coin is only the means of going from one set of goods to another.

"The prices since 1873 have not fallen because of lack of money. Silver has fallen about 50 per cent., compared with the very modest fall in the price of commodities. Silver does not have the same purchasing price as in 1873. Hence free coinage cannot be urged as a just means of paying a debt. More so-called redemption money, by the amount of $1,092,000,000 is in existence to-day compared with 1873, and yet prices have fallen and silver still more. Prices unmistakably have fallen because of the cheapened cost of production. Since we undertook the purchase of silver in 1878 it has fallen nearly one-half in value although we have purchased about $600,000,000 worth. It is perfectly evident there is no use in the United States acting alone to bolster up the price of silver when we have failed even in concert with the Latin union. Free coinage of silver at 16 to 1 means a single silver standard or silver monometallism. To-day the market ratio between gold and silver is nearly 34 to 1. If we had free coinage there would be a premium of nearly eighteen ounces of silver on the withdrawing of every ounce of gold in circulation. Free coinage of silver under such conditionss as exist to-day would mean the immediate adoption of a single standard. It would not increase the quantity of money. Since gold must be inevitably driven out, the free coinage of silver would result in a diminution of the quantity of money.

"It is usually supposed that free coinage of silver is in the interest of the debtor class. I think it will be found quite the contrary. But greater than all objections is that of public dishonor and repudiation. No trick or sophistry can make the scaling of a debt to mean anything but dishonesty and cheating. Were free coinage to pass it means that every deposit in savings bank, every investor in loan associations, every holder of life insurance, every recipient of pensions, would have their dues reduced one half. Is it possible there is something behind this scheme not really discovered?

"The proposal for free coinage is in truth a hugh disease, born in the private offices of the silver kings, nursed by speculators, fed by boodle, and as sure as there is honesty and truth in the American heart, it will die young and be buried in the same ignominious grave wherein now lies the forgotten infant, once famous as the Rag Baby. Free coinage is greenbackism galvanized into life."

Contrary to the expected arrangement, the time for the rejoinder was divided into three parts between Harvey and Laughlin. This splitting up of the time resulted in the rejoinders being more in the nature of chaffing each other than serious argument. The meeting did not adjourn until after midnight.

CHICAGO'S NEW PARKHURST.

Rev. John Rusk, Ph. D., Smashes Seductive Slot Machines.

Rev. John Rusk, Ph. D., pastor of the Fullerton Avenue Presbyterian Church, Chicago, is the youngest and most virile of that city's reformers. He is the president of the Society for the Prevention of Crime. In his capacity as president he has visited many of the plague spots of the city. His discourses upon such evils, and while working to suppress them is active in ameliorating the condition of those not beyond the reach of help. He is now engaged in fighting the places which have the nickel-in-the-slot machines and is meeting with good success. Dr. Rusk, fortified with the necessary papers and attended by the officers of the law, invaded a place where a number of machines were in operation, seized the first one he came to and boldly marched out with it. All the machines in the place were confiscated, and great excitement was created among owners of places where these devices are used. In an interview the doctor said: "There are upward of 10,000 slot machines in Chicago. I have had figures compiled as to their probable revenue, and find that the sum of $50,000 daily goes into the little slots. This enormous sum of money comes out of the pockets of people who can ill afford to lose it, and is a very considerable income to the men who operate the machine."

REV. JOHN RUSK.

The doctor is an Ohio man, and 38 years of age. Like many other distinguished pulpitarians, he has a great variety of topics, gospel, philosophy, theology, history and sociology. He is conscientious in his humanitarianism, reaching far beyond mere denominational lines. Sometimes he shocks his congregation by a lack of orthodoxy, and the ultra conservative element have made several attempts to depose him.

THE CASE OF MEADE.

Insubordination Is Said to Exist in the Navy to an Alarming Degree.

It seems probable that the issue between the Navy Department and Admiral Meade, growing out of remarks of the latter in a public interview reflecting upon the administration, will become a celebrated case in our naval annals. The admiral has been retired from command, with a year's leave of absence, at his own request, and it was subsequent to the granting of this that the interview containing the objectionable remarks was published.

ADMIRAL MEADE.

The naval regulations expressly forbid officers from discussing public matters through the press or from criticising or commenting upon the acts and policy of those in authority. The duty of officers, both in the navy and the army, is to obey orders unquestioningly and to refrain from criticism upon their superiors. It would seem that these regulations were violated by Admiral Meade and surprise has been expressed in naval circles that an officer of Admiral Meade's rank and experience, entirely familiar, of course, with the regulations, should have committed so grave an infraction of them and manifested such a spirit of insubordination. Secretary Herbert, in speaking of the matter the other day, stated that the President was shocked at the recent prevalence of insubordination among naval officers. At no time for thirty-five years, it is said, have there been so many cases of this character. The Secretary said that there were more indictments pending now against naval officers for offenses against the discipline and good order of the navy than at any time since before the civil war.

BLED THE WHISKY TRUST.

Culmination of Charges Against J. B. Greenhut and Others.

The culmination of the charges against J. B. Greenhut, ex-president of the whisky trust, and some of his associates, was reached in a bill filed in the United States Circuit Court by Receiver McNulta. Greenhut and Nelson Morris are accused of having used the funds of the trust for outside speculation of a personal character in which they met with a loss of half a million dollars. Then to make good the losses, they are charged with having conspired to secure the assent of the board of directors of the trust to the issuance of bonds in the summer of 1893. That they sold a million dollars of bonds at 50 cents on the dollar, appropriated the proceeds to make up their losses in speculations and secured possession of $800,000 of the bonds so issued at the 50 cent valuation in order to "milk" the trust for the other 50 cents of the doll

CHAPTER VII.—Continued.

The season opened brilliantly. Miss Earle, the niece of the Countess of Bayneham, was much admired. But what puzzled both ladies was that Claude took little or no interest in any of the gayeties that surrounded them.

Lord Bayneham was fortunate in one thing—he met in London his oldest and dearest college friend, Bertie Carlyon, the second son of Sir Hubert Carlyon, of Durham Park, one of the kindliest and noblest of men, unfortunate, as he himself declared, in everything, love and finance above all other things; but so kind, so genial, so true, no one could help loving him.

Bertie had his secret, too; from the first moment he saw Barbara Earle he loved her. He seemed almost by instinct to understand the woman's grand, noble soul. He never mentioned his love; of what avail could it have been, when the girl who had so unconsciously won his heart was the affianced wife of his best friend?

So Bertie Carlyon, as many another man before him had done, shut up his love in the silence and secrecy of his own heart. He avoided seeing Barbara as much as possible, but he was a great favorite with the stately countess. She admired him and encouraged his visits to the house. So it happened that not one day passed without bringing Bertie Carlyon to Grosvenor Square.

"I hear wonders of a young lady who is to be presented at the next drawing room," said Bertie Carlyon one day to the countess.

"Who is it?" asked Lady Bayneham.

"I can give your ladyship every information," replied Mr. Carlyon. "We younger sons are in a state of fervent rejoicing. She is to be presented by Lady Hutton, the daughter and heiress of the late Sir Ralph Erskine, of Brynmar. The young lady is very beautiful, and, if rumor speaks truly, her adopted child. She is called Lady Hutton's ward."

CHAPTER VIII.

The drawing room was a brilliant one. Lady Hutton's ward was greatly admired. No such beautiful girl had been seen for some time; it was a new style, every one declared; there was something so fresh and fair, so innocent and graceful about her. Even the brilliant Countess of Bayneham was pleased.

"She is perfect in her way," said that lady to her niece, "but her face is not developed; and unless I am greatly mistaken, it will attain much rarer beauty yet."

Lady Morton, the wife of one of the leading ministers, gave a grand ball on the evening of the day on which the drawing room was held. Lord Bayneham, with his mother and cousin, was to be present. It was arranged for Bertie Carlyon to dine at Grosvenor Square and accompany them to Lady Morton's.

They were late, the rooms were full, and everyone seemed to be talking about the same thing, the delicate beauty and rare grace of Lady Hutton's ward.

"Claude," said Bertie to Lord Bayneham, "you must procure an introduction to Miss Hutton, the new beauty. Let us go into the ball room; she is dancing, I think, with Sir Harry Poyntz; I want you to see her."

The young earl had not paid much attention to what his friend was saying; all beauties were indifferent alike to him. They went through the long suite of brilliantly crowded rooms. At the furthest end of one stood a young girl in earnest conversation with an elderly gentleman, the celebrated painter whose pictures had taken the world by storm. His eyes, expressive of deep admiration, were bent upon her. She was well worthy of the artist's praise. It is so seldom that in a London drawing room a face so pure and lovely can be seen, a face on which the world did not seem to have breathed, calm and unruffled in its sweet innocence and childlike grace; violet eyes, so clear and pure and full of truth; bright, shining golden hair, that fell in rich waves over her shoulders, white and shapely; a slender, graceful figure, full of dignity; round, white arms, perfect in color and contour. She wore a dress of costly white lace, and a suite of pearls that a princess might envy.

"See," said Bertie Carlyon, quietly, "that is Miss Hutton. What do you think of her, Claude?"

Lord Bayneham made no reply. His face became white, and his dark eyes grew darker still. The beautiful girl before him was the one who had haunted him day and night since he had met her on that May morning in the woods at Brynmar.

"What do you think of her?" asked Bertie, impatiently.

"I have seen her before," replied Lord Bayneham, in a low, constrained voice; "she is very beautiful."

Bertie Carlyon looked wonderingly at his friend's face.

"I must have an introduction to her," said Claude.

Just at that moment they saw the Countess of Bayneham conversing with Lady Hutton. The young earl hastened toward them. His mother introduced him to Lady Hutton, who was more gracious than usual to the handsome young man who saluted her so reverentially.

What he had longed for came at last. While he was talking to Lady Hutton, Mr. Seaton, the artist, returned with the fair young girl, and Lady Hutton introduced Claude to her.

He had no need to ask if he were forgotten, for a deep burning blush covered the beautiful face, and the sweet eyes drooped, lest he should see the lovelight in them. Lady Hutton turned away with Mr. Seaton, and they were left together.

"I never dreamed of seeing you again," said Lord Bayneham; "I am bewildered."

"You had not forgotten me?" she asked, and a new light came upon the lovely face.

Claude dared not trust himself to speak. A whole torrent of burning words rose to his lips, but he would not utter them. After some minutes he said gently: "I do not think it very possible for anyone to forget you, Miss Hutton. Tell me how Brynmar woods are looking. Are they bonny as ever?"

"I was sorry to leave them," she replied. "I would rather be there than in London; here it seems to me all gaslight."

"Did you never find it dull at Brynmar?" he asked, smiling at her naive simplicity.

"No," she replied, looking at him in sheer wonder; "never; sometimes I feel dull in London. It is like a new world to me."

It was also like a new world to Lord Bayneham; he forgot everything except that he had found her again; that he was looking at her radiant face, listening to her voice, watching the blushes that came and went with almost every word. He offered her his arm almost mechanically; she took it, and they wandered through the rooms, forgetful of everything in the wide world except each other.

Miss Hutton had promised Captain Massey the next dance, but she never remembered it until it was ended, and the gallant captain, looking very much hurt and annoyed, stood before her. Then a sense of her broken promise came over her.

"I have been looking everywhere for you, Miss Hutton," said the captain. "You had promised me this dance."

She apologized so sweetly and gracefully that Captain Massey could not be angry, and Lord Bayneham felt something like a thrill of guilty satisfaction that she had forgotten someone else to talk to him.

They passed on quickly, but on entering the room that seemed to be reserved for conversation and flirtation, they met Barbara Earle and Lady Bayneham.

Claude never looked at his cousin's face, or he would have seen upon it first an expression of unqualified surprise, then a wistful look of something like despair. In the excitement of his happiness he forgot that Barbara had seen the treasured picture, and would recognize his companion's beautiful face.

Lady Bayneham spoke to Miss Hutton, and then introduced Barbara Earle to her. Barbara said some few courteous words, but the very tone of her voice seemed changed as she did so.

Ah, this was his secret. He had seen Miss Hutton before; and her face had charmed him so much that he had painted it. How every feature must have dwelt in his memory! Where and how could he have met her? She was very lovely, and a sharp pang shot through Barbara's heart as she noted the grace and perfection of that delicate beauty; but a still sharper pain struck her as she saw her cousin's changed face; and it had never lighted up so for her. He had never looked at her as he did at Miss Hutton, and she was his promised wife.

Just then another gentleman came to claim Miss Hutton's hand, and Barbara Earle was left with Lord Bayneham. He seemed to awake from a bewildering dream. His eyes followed every movement of her figure. He watched her until she had passed from his sight, then he turned with a profound sigh to Barbara. His short, bright dream was ended. The plain, cold, hard reality was before him; of what avail, if he had found her again? What could it matter? What if she had given him her sweetest smiles and kindest words? What if she had remembered him as vividly and as truly as he had thought of her? It was all of no avail. He belonged to another. His promised wife stood there before him, looking with sad, wistful eyes in his face.

"Claude," she said gently, "you have met Miss Hutton before to-night, have you not?"

"Only once," he replied; then there flashed across him the remembrance of that picture which Barbara Earle had seen and admired. He grew confused and embarrassed; she looked on quietly and calmly. "I saw her under such peculiar circumstances," he added, feeling that some explanation was due, "in such a picturesque spot, and with such beautiful surroundings, that I made a little sketch of the scene. You saw it, Barbara?"

"Yes, I saw it," she replied; "and it was a good painting. How well you remembered the face, Claude, if you only saw it once!"

Barbara could not help that little bit of malice.

"It is not easily forgotten," he replied, coldly. "Are you engaged, Barbara, for this next waltz—may I have the pleasure?"

Not one word more did the cousins exchange on the subject.

Later on that evening Barbara Earle sought Miss Hutton. She wanted to see more of her, to know what was hidden under that lovely face; and she found her by Lady Hutton's side.

"Have you seen those rare japonicas, Miss Hutton?" she asked, "they are in the long drawing room; Lady Morton is very proud of them. If you are fond of flowers they will please you."

"I like flowers almost better than anything else in the world," replied Hilda; "they have been my companions at Brynmar. I shall be so glad to see them."

"You are not unlike one yourself," thought Barbara Earle. "I wonder what it is you like better."

The two girls walked down the ball room together. They reached the stand on which the japonicas were placed, and Hilda bent her beautiful face over them. The room was nearly empty; Capt. Massey and Mr. Seaton were at the other end. They stood watching the young girls bending over the flowers. There could not have been a greater contrast—Hilda so fair and bright and radiant, with shining golden hair and rich white dress; Barbara Earle, dark and stately, a noble soul shining through her eloquent face, giving it a beauty all its own.

"That would not make a bad picture," said Captain Massey to the artist; "what title should you give it?"

"I hardly know," said the artist, musingly. "Miss Earle is my highest ideal of a beautiful, noble woman. Miss Hutton is the truest type of a lovely girl. I could not say to which I could accord the palm. I could not choose between them."

Lord Bayneham joined them at that moment, and overheard the last few words, and felt that they were true. He saw the woman he loved, and the woman who loved him; but for him there was no choice. Fate, honor and truth bound him to one, while his heart and love lay at the feet of the other.

CHAPTER IX.

Lord Bayneham inherited the courage of his ancestors; he said to himself that his love was a danger he must fly from, and, cost him what it might, he kept his resolution. Whenever he heard that Lady Hutton and her beautiful ward were to be present at a ball, party, or fete, there he refused to go. He would not again voluntarily meet the young girl who was never for a moment out of his mind. He could not help his love; but he would not divulge it weakly, at the price of his honor.

So a month of the brilliant London season passed, and never once did Lord Bayneham allow himself even to look upon the fair young face he loved so well. Hilda could not understand it. She knew nothing of the engagement between the earl and his cousin. It had never been mentioned in her presence, and she wondered, until wonder became pain, why he did not call upon her or try to see her. She had never forgotten him; that one morning had colored her life; she had remembered him, thought of him, dreamed of him, and loved him, but she had never hoped to meet him again. When he suddenly stood before her that night at Lady Morton's ball her heart almost stood still. Then he had spoken to her, and gazed so long and earnestly upon her, had seemed so utterly and entirely happy, that she thought he cared a great deal for her. And now it was four weeks since, and he had never once sought her. Hilda could not understand.

Every morning she awoke hoping she should see him during the day, and every day brought its own bitter disappointment.

In the meantime, as Lady Hutton had foreseen, lovers in plenty surrounded the beautiful young heiress. There was no one more popular or more admired. "The beautiful Miss Hutton" was declared to be the belle of the season; but flattery, homage and admiration brought no pleasure to her. She would have exchanged all for one word from Lord Bayneham.

There was a grand fete at the Botanical Gardens, and Miss Earle wished to go. It was arranged that Lord Bayneham should escort both ladies. It was a beautiful day in the beginning of June. The sky was cloudless, the air soft and balmy. The gardens were magnificent, the flowers in full perfection, the show of roses was superb, and crowds of splendidly dressed ladies surrounded them.

As Lord Bayneham walked slowly down one of the more retired paths, following Barbara and the countess at a little distance, the whole party suddenly met Lady Hutton and Hilda. They were surrounded by quite a little court of admirers. Captain Massey, hopelessly in love, and Mr. Seaton, who never neglected an opportunity of studying Hilda's face. There was a murmur of polite greeting, a dispersion of the group of admirers; then Lord Bayneham found himself, he hardly knew how, by Hilda's side. His heart beat almost painfully; he spoke a few words, and those without looking at her.

The path was narrow, and the countess said, half impatiently: "We cannot all remain together. I am going to see the roses. Claude, you wanted to look at the geraniums; they are over there. Perhaps Miss Hutton would like to see them."

In less than three minutes after her ladyship's little speech, Barbara Earle found herself with Captain Massey. The two elder ladies enjoyed a half confidential chat over the roses, and Lord Bayneham and Hilda were left behind with the geraniums. She bent over them, but he made no pretense of even looking at a flower. His lips grew white, and he would have flown from the danger, but could not.

"Are you not well, Lord Bayneham?" asked Hilda, looking up into his still face.

"Yes," he replied, "I am quite well."

Then a dreary silence fell upon them; all kinds of wild thoughts rushed through Hilda's mind. She tried to think if it were possible she could have offended him. Was this stern, silent man the same who had lingered by her side in Brynmar woods, and seemed to live in her smiles on the night of the ball? What could have brought about so great a change?

"Shall we follow Lady Hutton?" she said, at length.

He bowed assent; but, as good or bad fortune would have it, they took the wrong turning, and instead of rejoining their companions, found themselves quite alone in a broad, shady path.

(To be continued.)

CURIOSITIES IN PLANT LIFE.

Trees that Distill Water, Furnish Light, Change Color and Catch Fish.

On the Canary Island grows a fountain tree, a tree most needed in some parts of the island, says the San Jose Mercury. It is said that the leaves constantly distill enough water to furnish drink to every living creature in Hiero, nature having provided this remedy for the drought of the island. Every morning, near this part of the island, a cloud or mist arises from the sea, which the winds force against the steep cliff on which the tree grows, and it is from the mist that the tree distills the water.

China, too, claims her remarkable tree. This is known as the tallow tree, so called from the fact of its producing a substance like tallow, and which serves the same purpose, is of the same consistency, color and smell. On the Island of Lewchew grows a tree about the size of a common cherry tree, which possesses the peculiarity of changing the color of its blossoms. At one time the flower assumes the tint of the lily, and again shortly takes the color of the rose. In Thibet there is a curious tree known as the tree of the thousand images; its leaves are covered with well-defined characters of the Thibetan alphabet. It is of great age and the only one of its kind known there.

The caobab tree is considered one of the most wonderful of the vegetable kingdom. It appears that nothing can kill this tree; hence it reaches an astonishing age as well as enormous size. The natives make a strong cord from the fibers of the bark; hence the trees are continually barked, but without damage, as they soon put forth a new bark. It appears impervious to fire and even the ax is resisted, as it continues to grow in length while it is lying on the ground.

In Mexico there is a plant known by the name of Palo de Leche. It belongs to the family of euphorbia. The Indians throw the leaves into the water and the fish become stupefied and rise to the surface and are then caught by the natives. In this case the effect of the narcotic soon passes off. The milk of this plant thrown upon the fire gives out fumes that produce nausea and headache. The milk taken internally is a deadly poison; it will produce death or insanity according to the size of the dose. There is a popular belief among the lower class in Mexico that the insanity of the ex-Empress Carlotta was caused by this poison.

Live to Tell of Indian Wars.

It appears that there still remains of the Seminole war of 1817 but five survivors and 120 widows. Of the "La Fevre" Indian war, which occurred sixty-eight years ago, there remain but fourteen survivors and 107 widows. Of the Sabine war of 1836 there remain but 22 survivors and 55 widows. Of the Cayuse war of 1847 there are 144 survivors and eighty-two widows. Of the Texas and New Mexico Indian wars there still survive 1,448 veterans and 890 widows. Of the California Indian wars there still survive 476 and 230 widows. Of the Indian wars of Oregon and Washington, prior to 1858, there are still 2,390 survivors and 1,340 widows.

Our 451 colleges have an income of $14,601,034, and funds vested are available of $84,500,758.

MIRACLES BY WIRE.

PRINTING BY TELEGRAPH BETWEEN TWO CITIES.

How News Can Be Transmitted at the Rate of Over Two Hundred Words a Minute—Pictures Accurately Engraved at Distant Points.

Two Wonderful Inventions.

Sending a letter to Washington at the rate of two hundred words a minute at a cost of twenty-five cents does not seem reasonable, but it has been done in Baltimore every day for more than a week past, says the American of that city. There is not the slightest doubt about the work of the new method. It is one of those miracles which appear impossible until they are seen, and then look so easy that a child might do it. By the same means, and over the same wire, but with other machinery, it will soon be possible to send pictures, so that if a criminal should leave on a forty-five-minute train for Washington, the Baltimore chief of police could have a letter, with his photograph, in the hands of the Washington police before the train arrived. The whole thing is so incredibly rapid that the only way to know it is to see it.

Over twenty years ago Mr. J. H. Rogers, of Washington, D. C., then a resident of Peekskill, N. Y., and a sometimes pupil of Prof. Joseph Henry, began to delve in the field of printing telegraphy, and, seeing the impossibility of rapid action with a type wheel, struck out in an entirely new path. Observing that the vertical, ceriph, and angular lines of which the upright, or Roman, letters of the alphabet consist were duplicated many times in the various letters, he determined to reduce the alphabet to these primary characters, or marks, and by transmitting impulses with great rapidity, rebuild with these cardinal type, piece by piece, the letters in Roman, or fuil-faced, style.

No. 1. A—Plan view of type arms. B—Face of type magnified.

After several years he succeeded in printing all the letters of the alphabet with ten characters, and at this stage consulted freely with that Nestor of modern scientists, Prof. Henry, and that great man—who, as all the world knows, had gratuitously tutored Morse, instructing him in the use of the electro-magnet—on examining Rogers' elementary type, placed his hand over the model and said: "My young friend, this is more ingenious and original than anything Morse ever did!"

Prof. Henry was cognizant of Rogers' aims, and encouraged him to persevere. After ten years' experimenting, he reduced his elementary type from ten to eight, and it startles one to realize that every word in the English language lies buried in these eight little marks.

NO. 2.—TRANSMITTER.

The type are attached to arms four inches long, arranged radially, and carrying armatures, which are operated by an equal number of electro-magnets. Plate No. 1 shows the position and arrangement of the type arms, also the face of the type magnified.

For fifteen years Mr. Rogers experimented and searched to find some method for controlling or keeping rapid synchronous motion, which, he had faith, existed. He connected duplicate wheels fourteen inches in diameter through an artificial line 200 miles long, and sought to run them synchronously at a speed of one thousand revolutions per minute. After years of failure he varied the monotony of his researches by experiments in the photophone line, or seeing a long distance by electricity. One day he succeeded in transmitting an image from one revolving wheel which cast a shadow on the other, sometimes the shadow stood on its head on the lower periphery of the receiving wheel and moved to the upper edge. By a slight pressure of the thumb on the wheel, he found he could hold the shadow at a given point. This instantly suggested visual synchronism, and offered at last a certain means for controlling two motors. In the place of the shadow Mr. Rogers substituted an electric spark, and the spark on the receiving wheel registers each measured revolution of the sending wheel. With the wheels running synchronously, by local motors, the types print one letter at each revolution, or a thousand letters per minute, equivalent to 200 words of average length. The highest speed Mr. Rogers has been able to synchronously maintain is 2,500 revolutions, or 500 words, per minute.

This wonderful system has brought forward the United States Postal Printing Telegraph Company, and this company has completed and put into practical operation his first line between Washington and Baltimore. It will in due time, it is thought, practically do away with the sending of letters by mail.

NO. 3.—RECEIVING.

Mr. N. S. Amstutz, one of the best known inventors of the country, has an invention which rivals that of Mr. Rogers, and which may soon be combined with it. The object of the invention is to transmit copies of photographs to any distance, and reproduce the same at the other end of the wire, in line engraving, ready for press printing. The following description is from the Scientific American, from which the illustration is also taken:

As will be seen by the workings described, it might appropriately be termed a marriage of the phonograph and telephone, as the features of these two inventions are allied in this, called by Mr. Amstutz electro-artograph. The undulatory or wave current is used, as in the telephone, while the reproduction is made upon a synchronously revolving, waxed cylinder, as in the phonograph. There is required for this end both a transmitting and receiving instrument, views of each of which are shown in our illustrations, from sketches made from the instruments in use by Mr. Amstutz. The principle by which this work is accomplished is quite simple, and will readily be understood by reference to the diagrams shown, fig. 3 representing the transmitter and fig. 4 the receiver.

An ordinary photographic negative is made of the subject to be transmitted; an exposure is made under this negative of a film of gelatine, sensitized with bichromate of potash, and by which the effect is produced of rendering insoluble in water the parts exposed to the light passing through the thin portions of the negative, while those portions protected from the action of the light can be dissolved away; the capabilities of dissolving away varying with the intensity of shade or light upon the negative. After dissolving away the soluble portions from the film there will remain the same picture as appeared on the negative, but it will be entirely in relief. We show a section of such a film, exaggerated, in fig. 5, in which the variations upon the surface represent the varying effects of the light and shade of the picture.

This film is now attached to the surface of the cylinder, A, fig. 3, and caused to revolve; a tracer or point, B, adjustably connected to a lever, C, rests upon the film, and as the film revolves, rises and falls with the undulating surface of the film, and communicating an up and down movement of the end of the lever, C, in a multiplied degree. A number of tappets or levers, F, are centrally fulcrumed at D, and arranged so that one end presses upward on the lower end of terminals, E; the opposite ends of the tappets varying in distance from a horizontal line over the end of the lever, C, as shown. When the lever, C, is at its lowest point, as influenced by a depression in the gelatine film, all the tappets press up against the terminals; with a further revolution of the cylinder, A, and an elevation in the film forcing the lever, C, upward, all of the tappets' contact with the terminals, except one, is broken. The height of the hill and depth of valley of the film's surface measuring the number of tappets in contact with the terminals.

THE AMSTUTZ ELECTRO-ARTOGRAPH.

1. The transmitter. 2. The receiver. 3. Diagram of transmitter. 4. Diagram of receiver. 5. Section of film. The portrait at the upper corner is that of the inventor and is printed from an electro of the picture made by the apparatus. The engraving at the right is another picture printed from an electro of the picture made by the apparatus.

NO. 2.—TRANSMITTER.

One terminal of a battery, N, is grounded, and the other is connected to the fulcrum, D, of the tappets, F, and the current passes through the tappets, F, terminals, E, and resistance, H, to the main line wire, and thence on to the distant solenoid, I, at the receiving end, and to the ground. When all of the tappets touch the terminals, all the resistances are in parallel and the total resistance is least and the current greatest; and vice versa, resistance greatest and current least as the number of tappets' contact are broken. By this arrangement of the resistances, there are hills and valleys in the current corresponding to those on the film's surface. This variable current, circulating around the solenoid, I, produces a varying pull on the core attached to the end of the lever, J. This lever is fulcrumed at K. A diamond or V-shaped cutter, L, is attached to the lever, beneath which is a plain gelatine or wax film attached to the cylinder, M.

With this arrangement in mind, it will readily be seen that with one revolution of the cylinder, A, as the tracer follows the elevations and depressions upon the film, the free end of the lever, C, is made to contact with the ends of one or more of the tappets, permitting more or less of a current to pass through the resistance, and exerting thereby more or less of a downward pull on the end of the lever, J.

We have selected two examples of the work done by these machines in their present form, which will convey a faint idea of the artistic capabilities it can be made to display when its future perfection of detail is accomplished. Both the portrait of the inventor and the view of the boy and dog were engraved upon these machines in the private laboratory of Mr. Amstutz, the time required in engraving the latter being but three minutes.

It is not difficult to believe that in the future events which may take place in London or Paris may be sent from photos taken in Europe, and the reproduction of the same in an artistic picture, appear in the next morning's New York or Chicago papers; and this without disturbing the existing conditions of telegraphic communication further than supplying the two offices each with machines for transmitting and receiving.

ELECTRICAL PERFORATOR ATTACHABLE TO TYPE-WRITING MACHINE.

Dual Brain Action.

A curious case of dual brain action is described in Brain. An insane patient varied considerably in his mental condition. In one state he was subject to chronic mania, spoke English, was fairly intelligent, and was right-handed; in another state he was subject to dementia, was almost unintelligible, but what could be understood was Welsh, and he was then left-handed. In his English intervals he remembered clearly what had happened in previous English periods, but his memory was a blank to what occurred during the Welsh stages. He preferred to write with his right hand, but if asked to do so, would write with his left hand, and then the writing was from right to left. Mr. Bruce, who observed the case, infers from it that the cerebral hemispheres are capable of individual mental action, that the one mentally active at any time can control the motor functions, and that the patient lives two separate existences during the two stages through which he passes, the mental impressions in each existence being recorded in one cerebral hemisphere only.

Liquor Drinking in Two Countries.

It has generally been supposed that "hard times" lead to hard drinking, but the British statistics do not bear out that supposition very logically. Thus, in 1890, the amount expended for consumption of liquors per capita was about $18.50, while in 1894 the sum per capita had fallen to $17.75. On the other hand, the figures for the decade show that while drinking has decreased to some extent since the "flush" year of 1890, the general tendency through the past ten years has been to spend more for liquor; as in 1885 the per capita expenditures was but $16.25; so that in spite of the hard times the drinking is greater than it was ten years ago. In the United States, while in the hard times the consumption of some kinds of liquors, such as distilled spirits from fruit, decreased, the general tendency was in the direction of increased drinking, so that not only do the figures for 1893 show largely increased consumption over the figures for 1884, but the per capita consumption is also larger than it was in 1892—Boston Advertiser.

Fond of Dog Meat.

In Pittsburg there is a Swiss laborer who was pulled up the other day for stealing, killing and eating the seven-months-old bull pup belonging to his neighbor, says the Post of that city. He admitted at the trial, while denying the particular charge, that he and his wife were very fond of dog meat, and that they had killed and eaten eighteen dogs. Their particular weakness was bull pup cutlet breaded, though Newfoundland puppies are much better than pork. One of the witnesses against the defendant was his own brother, who said that he had been continually annoyed by people who mistook him for "the man who eats dogs."

Trials of Tourists.

There turned up at Hamilton, in the Bermudas, the other day, a company of several hundred British tourists, including Sir Arthur Sullivan and many musical and literary folks of some distinction. They were a sorry and bedraggled crowd, and their appearance was partly explained by the fact that they had left a six weeks' washing ashore at one of the far down islands and had come away without it, so that everybody was at a low ebb of linen. They were cheered with the hope that the British cruiser Blake, whose captain had promised to fetch up the missing garments, would soon arrive in the harbor. This hope was disappointed, for the excursonists left on schedule time, a few hours before the arrival of the Blake with their linen. Those that saw them at Hamilton are wondering how they looked on reaching Great Britain.

Mrs. Bordroom—That boarder with the musical tastes is a nuisance. We used to make him wake up in the morning by dropping coal scuttles down stairs. Star Boarder—And now? Mrs. Bordroom—And now he's taken to attending Wagner opera and we can't wake him up at all.—Chicago Record.

Having announced to a man that she will never forgive him, a woman's next worry is that he will not ask her to be forgiven.

In time a man's thoughts begin to show themselves on his face.

NIAGARA FALLS EXCURSION!

Thursday, August 8, 1895.

—VIA THE—

Lake Erie & Western R. R.

"Natural Gas Route."

On Thursday, August 8, 1895, the Lake Erie & Western R.R. will run their popular annual excursion to Cleveland, Chautauqua Lake, Buffalo and Niagara Falls at following very low rates, viz.:

Peoria	$7 50	Fort Wayne	$5 00
Bloomington	7 00	Muncie	5 00
LaFayette	6 00	Connersville	5 00
Michigan City	6 00	Rushville	5 00
Indianapolis	5 00	New Castle	5 00
Tipton	5 00	Cambridge City	5 00
Lima	4 00	Fremont	4 00

Sandusky, $4 00.

With corresponding reductions from intermediate points.

In addition to the above, the purchasers of these tickets will be given privilege of special excursion side trips to Lewiston-on-the-Lake, including a steamboat ride on Lake Ontario, 25 cents; to Toronto and return by Lake from Lewiston $1.00; to Thousand Islands, $5.00. Tickets for the above side trips can be had when purchasing Niagara Falls ticket, or at any time on train.

Besides the above privileges with that of spending Sunday at the Falls, we will furnish all those who desire a side trip from Brockton Junction to Chautauqua Lake and return FREE OF CHARGE.

Tickets of admission to places of special interest at or near Niagara Falls, but outside the reservation, including toll over the International Bridge to the Canadian side, elevators to the water's edge at Whirlpool Rapids on the Canadian side, will be offered on train at a reduction from prices charged after reaching the Falls.

Do not miss this opportunity to spend Sunday at Niagara Falls. The excursion train will arrive at Niagara Falls 7.00 A. M. Friday, August 9, 1895, and will leave the Falls returning Sunday morning, August 11, at 6 o'clock, stopping at Cleveland Sunday afternoon, giving an opportunity to visit the magnificent monument of the late President Garfield, and many other interesting points.

Tickets will be good, however, to return on regular trains leaving the Falls Saturday, August 10, for those not desiring to remain over. Tickets will also be good returning on all regular trains up to and including Tuesday, August 13, 1895. SECURE YOUR TICKETS, ALSO CHAIR AND SLEEPING CAR ACCOMMODATIONS, early. Those desiring can secure accommodations in these cars while at the Falls. For further information call on any agent Lake Erie & Western R. R. or address.

C. F. DALY, Gen. Pass Agent, Indianapolis Ind.

·HORSEMEN·

SAVE YOUR STOCK BY USING THE CELEBRATED

Morris' English Stable Powder
For Loss of Appetite, Constipation, Rough Hair Hide Bound, and all Diseases of the Blood. Price, 25c. per package.

Morris' English Stable Liniment
Cures Lameness, Cuts, Bruises, Scratches, Galls, Sweeney, Spavins, Splint, Curb, etc. Price, 50c. per bottle.

Morris' English Worm Powder
Warranted to cure any case of Worms in Horses, Cattle, Sheep or Dogs, also Pin Worms in Colts. Price, 50c. per box.

Craft's Distemper and Cough Cure
A Specific for Distemper, Coughs, Colds, Heaves, Pink Eye, and all Catarrhal Diseases of horses. Price, 50c. $1.00 per bottle.

Wells' Hoosier Poultry Powder
Makes Hens Lay, cures Cholera, Gapes and Roup, and keeps poultry healthy. Price, 25c. per package.

Every remedy guaranteed satisfactory or money refunded. Our new book, "The Horse: His Diseases and Treatment," mailed free.
Wells Medicine Co., Lafayette, Ind.
For sale by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

BE A MAN

Ajax Tablets

have cured thousands and will cure you if you are suffering from Loss of Vigor, Impotence, Sterility, Seminal Weakness or any of the other effects of Self-Abuse or excesses of early life. We give positive Written Guarantee to effect a cure in each case or to refund money in case of failure. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Sent prepaid upon receipt of price. Send for free circular. Address

AJAX REMEDY CO.,
79 Dearborn Street, CHICAGO, ILL.
For sale by F. E. Davenport, Druggist, Auburn.

TOWER'S
SURFACE.... CULTIVATOR

IS THE PIONEER OF ITS CLASS,

And as now perfected

Can not be equalled for Corn, Potatoes, Cabbage and Tobacco Culture.

IT IS A PERFECT ERADICATOR

Of Morning Glories, Cockleburrs, Barn Grass and other noxious Weeds.

EQUALLY AS EFFICIENT

IN WET AS IN DRY SEASONS.

All the Agricultural Experiment Stations in the country have decided in favor of surface culture, and all of them who have tested it, have decided in favor of the Tower Hoe Cultivator for that purpose.

Manufactured by

J. D. TOWER & BRO.,
MENDOTA, ILL.

SUBSCRIBE

FOR THE COURIER.

CLOTHING,

SHOES,

HATS,

GENTS' FURNISHING

GOODS.

The LARGEST and BEST assorted stock to be found in town, at the LOWEST PRICES. Follow the crowd and you will be right in it. It won't be hard to find the place.

THE

GLOBE

Clothing & Shoe Co.

GANDY BLOCK
North of Square, Auburn. Ind

An Artistic Job

Is what everybody wants. We handle shoes that were made by artistic workmen. They are neat and attractive. It's hardly necessary for us to say much more about our line of shoes, but ask you to call and inspect them. Prices right. Kiblinger Building.

Shull's Shoe Store.

WE SAVE you money, get you highest market price, and make you prompt and full returns on your

.. WOOL ..

Our experience of 29 years is worth something to you, our reliability also. Ask Chicago Bankers or Mercantile Houses about us. Sacks free to shippers. Write for "Wool Letter."

Silberman Brothers,
208-214 Michigan St.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

B & O. EXCURSIONS.

On May 24 to June 3, inclusive, the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad will sell excursion tickets to Decatur, Ill., at rate of one fare for the round trip, on account of the German Baptist Meeting. Tickets will be good for return 30 days from date of sale.

For further information call on or address any B. & O. Ticket Agent, or L. S. Allen, Ass't Gen'l Pass'r Agent, Chicago Illinois.

Something New Under The Sun

Two new and wonderful remedies, just introduced into the United States. The great Scotch remedy, Infallible Scotch Cure, a great specific for rheumatism, gout, etc., in all the multiplied forms, and the not less wonderful Vitaline and Nervetone, for every form of nerve pains and nervous trouble, weakness and debility. These remedies are the "talk of Europe." Ask your druggist for it and accept no substitute. Prepared only by the Hall Medicine Company, Toledo, Ohio. - Sold by Fischler & Son. 21-22

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder
World's Fair Highest Medal and Diploma.

Notice of Sale of Real Estate.

Notice is hereby given, that I, Roxana E. Knott Administratrix of the estate of Samuel M. Knott deceased, will offer for sale at public auction, to the highest bidder, at 10 o'clock a. m. on Saturday, June 22 1895,

at the door of the Court House in Auburn. DeKalb County State of Indiana, the following described real estate, belonging to the estate of said decedent, to-wit:

The West half (½) of the West half (½) of the South East Quarter (¼) of Section Sixteen (16) in township numbered thirty-three (33) North, of range twelve (12) East in DeKalb County, in the state of Indiana for the purpose of paying the debts of said estate.

TERMS OF SALE:

One-third cash, one-third in nine (9) months and one-third in eighteen (18) months. Deferred payments to be evidenced by interest-bearing notes waiving relief and secured by mortgage upon the premises sold.

ROXANA E KNOTT, Administratrix.
Baxter & Brown Attys. 21 24

Notice of Insolvency.

In the Matter of the Will of Stephen K. Enzor, deceased } In the DeKalb Circuit Court. No. 550.

Notice is hereby given that upon petition filed in said Court by Harrison Enzor, Executor of said will, setting up insufficiency of the estate of said decedent to pay the debts and liabilities thereof the Judge of said Court did, on the 21st day of May 1895, find said estate to be probably insolvent, and order the same to be settled accordingly. The creditors of said estate are therefore hereby notified of such insolvency, and required to file their claims against said estate for allowance.

Witness, the Clerk and seal of said Court, at Auburn, Indiana, this 21st day of May, 1895.

DANIEL D. MOODY, Clerk.
Baxter & Brown Attys. for Ex. 21-23

Those needing glasses should call at Yesbera's jewelry store Saturday, June 1, and have them accurately fitted by Chas. E. Miller optician.

Columbia City Commercial claims that John Froley, of Pierceton has invented a steam boat, on which he can put wheels and steam out to some lake then take the wheels off, put on a set of paddles, and ride on the lake. He steams up when he starts from home. Up here a man "steams up" before he starts for home.

THE AUBURN COURIER

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY.

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, post-office as second-class matter.

THURSDAY,.....MAY 23, 1895.

ROBY race track can start up again as the injunction against it has been dissolved.

THE floor sweepings of the U. S. ment are being melted now and it is estimated that $30,000 of gold dust will be saved

THURSDAY the president's proclamation will open 131,000 acres for settlement in the Kickapoo reservation in Oklahoma. price $1.50 per acre.

EX PRESIDENT HARRISON will retire from the practice of law. He made a great plea before the jury in the Morrison will case at Richmond, this state Friday, and intends it shall be his last plea in court. He has been a very successfu lawyer.

PIECES of the wrecked lake steamer, Chicora, keep floating ashore along the lake. The latest find was a sack of flour which came ashore yesterday. The owners of the boat have had a couple of tugs out dragging the lake for some time, at the place where the vessel is supposed to be. The tugs found the flour in water forty-five feet deep.

CARNEGIE steel works lately advanced the wages of their 25,000 men, ten per cent, and the men did not have to ask for it either. A low tariff is bringing good results in many other cases, securing for the workingman better wages. If the material that goes into a piece of work can be bought cheaper, the owner of the plant can pay his men that much more.

THE Income Tax received its death blow Monday, when the full bench of the supreme court gave its decision. Those against the law are Chief Justice Fuller and Justices Field, Gray, Brewer and Shiras. For the law, Harlan, White, Brown and Jackson. The trouble is, they say the income tax is a direct tax, and as such is not collected on each state according to population but according to wealth. It begins to look as if it would not pay to have a legislature or a congress make laws. A supreme court in the state or nation fixes all things. The $78,000 already collected will be paid back.

THE Morrison Will case at Richmond began in court there Jan. 14, and closed last week. Gen. Harrison made the last speech, that for plaintiff. Two grandchildren of Morrison were omitted in his will and thought they should have a part of the $650,000. The jury was out about ninety hours, and then came in saying they could not agree. The judge gave them new instructions indicating that they must bring in a verdict for plaintiffs. This they soon did and the estate will be divided according to law without regard to the will, unless the supreme courts hould say differently. The claim is that Morrison was not capable of making a will.

SO FAR it appears that scarcely a law passed by the late legislature will hold good. The Roby anti racing law; the state apportionment law; the law changing the date of electing county superintendent, the new fee and salary law, and in fact about every law we can think of that they thought they had made, except the bill to pay their own salaries. The law that affects county superintendents, is in a worse muddle than any of the others. and is liable to be utterly knocked out. We will refer to this more fully in a day or two, as we have time to look it up.

EXTREME silver men are quarreling with extreme gold men. This country is too big for extreme measures either way. Both gold and silver should be our money. It always has been, though some of them seem never to have found it out. If people will stop quarreling over a matter they have no power to decide, and use their brains and breath in securing a congress that has sense enough to serve the country properly, it will be better all around.

SILVER OR GOLD.

It is very unwise for our people, just at this time, to be quarreling over the silver question. It cannot be acted on, either way for some time So give it a rest. This country is too great to accept either extreme of the money question. We must adopt a conservative course. Instead of unlimited silver we may find it wise to satisfy both extremes by a compromise—the coming of say from two to four millions of silver a month, as was done under the Bland-Allison law. Our people can never agree on a single gold standard, nor on free silver. Let each faction come half way.

$10.00 OR 12.00

Tuesday morning at about 3 o'clock someone entered the residence of John Roberts of Gas Addition, and stole his wife's pocketbook which contained about $10 or $12. They did not lock the front door that evening and the robber deliberately walked in. Mr. Roberts was awakened by the noise but did not think of any one being in the house. His wife and son also heard the same noise but did not get up. The same night a young man commonly called "Wienerwurst" who resides over there also missed $3 50. We did not learn if any one in Auburn was suspicioned as to have done the work, or whether it was a stranger.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

MUSICAL CONVENTION.

G. W. Straub begins a musical convention at the brick church south of Sedan, May 27, at 7:45 p. m, and will hold three sessions a day on Tuesday, Wednesday Thursday and Friday closing Friday evewith a grand concert. Mr. Straub is one of the leading musical educators and authors of music, and this is a rare chance to improve one's musical education.

Saturday's Daily.

CONCORD P. O.

Concord postoffice is among the things of the past. This week Mrs. Wm. Wise, and later, John H. Farver told us of this change. The material was moved on Wednesday to St. Joe. And now, all mail directed to Concord is sent to St. Joe. The COURIER has quite a bundle of mail for Concord, and no doubt many of our subscribers are put to a good deal of inconvenience by having their mail sent elsewhere. All our patrons at Concord are requested to let us know where they wish their papers sent, and we will at once make the change. It appears that no one will take the office there, as it does not pay very much. Still, we cannot help thinking it will some day be revived.

ARBITRATION.

The Peter McIntosh heirs have been having a deal of trouble over the division of the personal property of the estate. And as they could not agree among themselves, they did a wise things by leaving it to arbitrators. R. N. Crooks of Grant towhship and A. J. Baxter of Butler were the men chosen, and yesterday the parties met here in the office of J. F. Shuman, and went over the matter. It took some little time, and some reasoning by the arbitrators, but before night it was all amicably settled. The realty of the estate, it is likely they will agree on among themselves. Mr. McIntosh died at his home in Smithfield township two years ago.

REWARDED.

No act of bold and heroic service s too small to receive a proper recognition. Last Thursday morning the nightwatch at the Eckhart Carriage factory, left an oil stove in the office to heat up the room before the men came to work. In some way the stove came near exploding filling the room with smoke. It just happened that Charlie Marvin and Everet VanAuken came to work earlier than usual and discovered it They, running a big risk, entered the office and carried the stove out. Probably, in less than ten minutes the building would have been on fire. As a reward for the thoughtfulness and timely deed the young men did, Mr. Eckhart put an extra $5 in their envelopes Saturday evening. This amount will not be missed by Mr. Eckhart and will probably, in the future be a good precedent to establish.

COURT.

Monday's Daily.

Judge Penfield called the boys to order early this morning and work began at once, Charlie Crew is court room bailiff and Henry Wolf has the grand jury in charge. The grand jury are the men named in the COURIER last week: F. D. Oberlin, J. S. Barnes, Francis Kosht, Wm. Mason, Samuel Kennedy and John Urey. The Judge gave them the usual charge and they are now at work.

Among the first things done was to call up cases and when the Judge came to the Dawson divorce case that was tried last term and taken under advisement, he gave his decision. It grants Mrs Dawson a divorce and custody of the youngest child.

Tuesday's Daily.

J. A. Potter was divorced from his late wife, the one who went west, and is probably well suited that it is over with. W. H. Leas as attorney for the James Till estate got an order of court for the administrator, Elmer Stamets, to sell some of the real estate. This is a desirable residence across the road from Clairsville, south side of Waterloo. and will give some one a chance to get a home very cheap. "John Doe" was brought over from Butler and put in jail, for being on a big drunk and disorderly. He is a stranger and refuses to give his name. When arrested over there, he was so crazy drunk that he smashed the windows of the calaboose, and cut his hands so badly, that he cannot feed himself. Dr. Hines has been called in to dress his pounds.

Wednesday's Daily.

Bailiff Henry Wolf finds he has a lively lot of chaps on his hands, but he talks to them like a father. We hope it may have a good effect. But when he found some Garrett boys spitting down on people standing on the steps, he made them know their place.

Clerk Moody was bothered this morning by the loss of his hammer. It was not certain whether some of the attorneys had taken it to hammer in their arguments or to clinch them after they were driven home. Nor are we informed whether this was the hammer used in opening court or in keeping order. Certainly it was not "Thor's hammer," for that was found.

The grand jury went out to the County Home Monday afternoon to make the usual inspection required by law.

Alvin Anderson with some others was cutting timber near Hudson, when he was struck by a falling tree, crushing a leg and breaking his shoulder. He was also hurt internally and is partially paralyzed. He may die.

NOTICE OF ELECTION.

The annual meeting for the election of officers of the Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company, of DeKalb Co., will be held at Gandy's Hall in Auburn on Saturday, May 25th at 10 o'clock. A full attendance of the members is requested.

By order of the Board of Directors.

S. KUTZNER, Secy.

Another Gross of

BUCKBOARDS

To Be

Given Away

We thought we had enough for every boy in the county that wore short pants.

But our enormous trade in Children's Clothing makes it necessary for us to get another gross to give with every short pant at $2.00 and upwards. Remember, these wagons go with suit and not with furnishings. We have a large assortment of children's clothing at prices ranging from $1.00 a suit up to $7.50.

We Aim to Carry Everything You Need

in Children's Wear, and can make you prices that cannot be duplicated elsewhere. Come and see us for a nice velvet suit and Fauntleroy waists.

Buckboard with every $2.00 suit.

Buckboard with every $2.00 suit

G. H. Yesbera,

The Clothier

RUPTURE

Of Men, Women and Children permanently cured in 30 days, without pain or slightest inconvenience by the Fidelity Method. Every case guaranteed. Patient need not pay a dollar until completely cured. The truss discardeer. Over 8,000 cases cured in the last five years. Consultation free.

J. B. CASEBEER, M. D.

Their authorized physician in Indiana and who will visit Auburn in April. Correspondence Solicited, Address

14 East Ohio Street, INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

Decoration.

The comrades, of Butler township, met at J. A. Millers' on Monday evening, May 20, to arrange for decoration services at Cedar Creek. On motion of comrade Sayder, Comrade Hilkey was made chairman and Comrade Noel secretary. Committees were appointed, and it was decided that the services be held in Jacob Fansler's orchard, and at the close to march to the cemetery where the graves will be decorated. The meeting is to be Sunday, June 2, 1895, at 2 o'clock sun time. They have a good program as usual. A pleasant invitation is given to all to come and help us to honor to our noble dead.

AMOS HILKEY, Pres. PHIL NOEL, Sec

PRUGRAM FOR MAY 30th.

The procession will form at the public square at one o'clock and will be ready to move on the arrival of the pupils of the school under charge of Prof. Harrison. The order of formation of the column will be arranged by the chief marshal. The column will be composed of three divisions, each division will be preceded by a band. Marching orders will be given promptly at one thirty. After services at the cemetery the column will return to the public square in same order as first formed and the scholars will be massed in front of the speakers stand and are requested to remain until dismissed at the close of services. The program will be short, consisting of an opening and closing song, a prayer and address by Hon. Frank Willis. Flags will be furnished all the scholars in the procession, which are to be returned at the close of the services for next year. All societies are respectfully invited to participate and will be assigned a place in the parade.

The citizens are earnestly requested to discountenance any games or money making schemes on this day.

It is further requested that the business houses be closed from 12 o'clock until the close of the services.

COMMITTEE.

Graduation.

Concord township is to have its graduationg exercises in the Christian church at St. Joe, on Friday evening May 31. The following shows they will have an intellectual treat:

PROGRAM.

Grand March, Piano, Blake, Leona Tustison
Invocation - - W. W. Lineberry
Quartet, - - - Roederman
Bessie Patterson, Matlie Tustison, Bertha and Myrtle Wade
Compensation - - W. H. McIntosh
Dust, Murmuring Sea - - Glover
Bertha and Myrtle Wade
Choice of Life Prof. Arnold Tompkins
Song, By a Fairy of Five Summers
Presentation of Diplomas County Superintendent C. M. Merica
Quartet, The Mill, Brahms, Marshal, Charley and Ervin Hadsell and C. A. Woodcox
Benediction - - J. W. Thomas

The invitations are of the best, for Concord thinks the best of anything, good too good for her schools. Teacher Woodcox has been a hustler. After the regular exercises, there will be a banquet, the proceeds of which go to the Christian church.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

TOWN COUNCIL.

The town board met in regular session Monday evening with all members present. The following bills were allowed:

E. J. Rickard	$ 1.05
Ed. Baker	35.00
W. B Campbell	1.50

The bond of treasurer Chas. H. G. Jones, was read and on motion approved and ordered placed on file.

Clerk Husselman was instructed to collect $5 00 per week from Mr. Morley for running an auction room, the same to be payable in advance.

The matter of petitioning for city government was postponed for further consideration until the next meeting. On motion of Hague and seconded by Miller, the request of Wm. Schaab to move electric light at the end of north Main street was granted. The town not to be put to any expense for moving of same. The report of Marshal West for the past two weeks was read and accepted.

Money to Loan.

By F. L. Welsheimer. Best Building and Loan Association represented in Auburn. Money to loan in large or small sums on good security.

B. & O. DEAL.

The Kendallville Standard says:

"The Baltimore & Ohio railroad has purchased or will soon purchase the old St. Joseph Valley railroad running between Buchanan and Berrien Springs. It is also said that the B. & O. is about to close a deal by which it will come into posession of the Elkhart & Western railroad, between Elkhart and Mishawaka, Ind. It is stated that the B. & O. people intend to construct a line from Milford, Kosciusko county, Indiana, to Elkhart to connect with the St. Joseph Valley railroad and from Berrien Springs to Benton Harbor and St. Joseph, Mich., thus giving them an entrance to the Lake Michigan port.

SUMMIT.

Last Thursday, 25 of the schoolmates of little Cora Forney, surprised her on her 10th birthday. They made her some nice gifts and all enjoyed a fine supper.

Mrs. G. D. Conrad visited her daughter Mrs. Blanche Boyer near Hamilton on Friday. The same day F. A. Clark, of Ashley, and David Ling, of Hudson, were in our town.

Sunday, Frank Hilt and wife, and Margaret Mortorf and Mrs. Wagoner were guests of Sol Grear and family.

Sunday, A. Myers and wife Jerry Mortorff and wife and Isaac Getts and family visited Mrs. Sarah Mortorf.

John Salander and wife visited at Bert Conrad's Sunday.

Mrs. Frank Hilt is back from Cadillac, Mich. Her brother, Noah Mortorff and daughter Mrs. Purdee, and the other relatives are well.

WATERLOO.

E. R. Shoemaker has bought a lot on the corner, east of Henry Willis' and will put up a residence there.

Mrs. M. G. Carrol, of Cleveland, passed through here this week on her way to Reading, Mich., and visited her cousin, Mrs. Will Leas.

JAPANESE MANHOOD

Guarantee a lasting and forever cure. Emissions, Impotency, Varicocele, Self-Abuse and all wasting evils. No C. O. D. or quack schemes. Sealed Sexual Book Free if you mention this paper and describe your case. Address Japan Medical Company, Toledo, O.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE

To all lands in DeKalb County, Indiana, at reasonable rates. I have the only set of Abstract Books in the County. Also Mortgages, Deeds and Notary Public Work of all kinds promptly attended to.

Inquire at Auditor or Surveyor's office, Auburn, or leave orders at Postoffice, Garrett.

J. P. Crimmins.
Abstractor and Notary Public.

L. O. BUCHTEL, Homœopathic Physician and Surgeon.

Special attention given to chronic and obscure cases and catarrhal diseases of the nose, throat and lungs; also to diseases peculiar to women and children.

Office and residence over Smith & Madden's marble works, Auburn, Ind. Office apart from residence and private. All calls attended to promptly, night or day.

A. F. Phillips, M. D. C. M.,

Fellow of Trinity Medical College, of TORONTO.

OFFICE in the Second Floor Front of the Kiblinger Building, Corner of Main and Seventh Street, AUBURN.

Calls answered promptly Be in Office till 1 p. m.

ROOMS at L. E. Gregg's on West Seventh Streets Auburn Ind. 18tf

Albert Robbins, Pres. J. C. Henry, V. P

FARMERS BANK.

Capital Stock.--
--$45,000.00.

—UNDER STATE SUPERVISION.—

Transacts a general banking business. Interest paid on time deposits by agreement. Collections receive careful attention. Business solicited.

A. C. ROBBINS, Cashier.

The ease with which even sacred things and ideas may be given a ludicrous turn is shown by an incident in Sunday School the other day. One of the teachers was illustrating a point with a story of a tramp who came to a farm house to ask for some thing to eat. The farmer brought out a rather dry piece of bread and handed him with the remark, "I don't give you this for your sake, nor for my sake, but for God's sake." The tramp took it and rejoined "Well if you don't give it for your sake, nor for my sake, for God's sake put a little butter on it." The point was illustrated but several of the class were struck by the odd turn the story took.

AUBURN CEMENT.

A Lewis & Co. have just received a cars of Portland Cement direct from Holzminden Harburg-on-the Elbe, Germany, and will say to the public that this brand of Portland Cement is one of the best cements that is imported to this country. It has been tested here in walks and has stood the severe cold winter better than cements that were sold for 50 cents per barrel more. A Lewis & Co. will, if the cement is properly handled, stand by any defect of walks caused from inferior quality of cement They keep a supply on hand besides a large stock of American cements for stone work, cisterns and etc.

A. LEWIS & CO.
Yard at S. S. & M. S R. R. Auburn Ind.

Do all your buying at the Family Grocery Saturday and get flower seeds free.

TANSY PILLS WILCOX COMPOUND

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS. The only safe and always reliable Relief for Ladies. Accept no worthless and dangerous imitations. Save money and guard health by taking nothing but the only genuine and original Wilcox Compound Tansy Pills, in metal boxes bearing shield trade mark, price $2.00, all druggists. Send 4 cts. for Woman's Safe Guard, securely sealed.

WILCOX SPECIFIC CO.,
228 South Eighth Street, Phila., Pa.

CARPETS:

Some carpets are cheap—cheap in quality as well as price; instead of covering six years they are used up in three, consequently cost twice as much in the end. Which does it pay tobuy? Our carpets are sold on their merits, their beauty, their wearing qualities. We also ask a fair price for them. From the way the business keeps growing we infer that a fair price for good carpets is more to our towns-people's liking than the other kind. Our Carpet Sales are more than doubled this year.

CURTAINS:

The Curtain man takes one hundred pairs and makes a new price. We ask why? He says they are a trifle slow; they will be slow no longer when the price is known to a hundred waiting women who want curtain "bargains." Not a thing wrong with them, but our curtain man is anxious to sell and we are always willing. You get the benefit. See?

PARASOLS:

The first exhibition of what's to be the thing in Parasols starts to-morrow. Odd conceits, some of them, but fashion's followers must have one store for odd things. We will be glad to show them whether you buy or just look.

BISHOP & LACKEY,

Leading Merchants.

You leave it to YOURSELF

To Purchase the

BEST GOODS

That are offered for the

LEAST MONEY

And to do this you should come to

Cowan Sisters'

and see the

New— SUMMER GOODS Just in

HODGE,

The Jeweler,

KIBLINGER BLOCK

PANTS

Pants for Working Men

We have got a good line of

PANTS

For 75c and $1.00. Come and see them.

OLDS BROS'.

North of Court House.

Thursday's Daily.

Judge Best came down from Waterloo this morning. As noted in yesterday's paper he had brought his mother back to Waterloo for burial. She had resided with him at Minneapolis for some years.

The first marriage license issued in Fulton county, Illinois, was in 1831 and read as follows; State of Illinois, Fulton County. To all the world, greeting: Know ye that John Smith and Polly Meyers is hereby entitled to go together and do as old folks does anywhere inside of Copperas precinct, and when my commission comes I am to to marry 'em good and date it back. [Signed] C. Ross, J. P. when my commission comes.

Miss Etta Blain, a cook at the McDonald House, Columbia City, came near burning to death yesterday morning. Her clothes caught fire from a gasolene range. She was badly burned about the chest and abdomen and also internally as she inhaled the flames. Too much care can not be taken with gasolene.

In discussing the baby show Saturday evening a number of women are inclined to complain of the shortness of the notice. "If they had only told us about this a year ago." And then they are inclined to quote Whittier:

"Of all the sad thoughts of tongue or pen,
The saddest are "It might have been."

The German Baptist's Meeting Decatur Illinois.

For this occasion the Wabash Railroad will sell tickets May 27th to June 3, inclusive, from all points to Decatur, Ill. at one fare for the round trip, good to return any time up to June 30. This is the only line running direct to the meeting grounds. Be sure and go via the Wabash in order to save delay and trouble in changing from one road to another, either before your arrival at Decatur or after. For time tables, printed matter and other information call on or write to any ticket agent of the Wabash or connecting line or C. S. Crane, Gen'l Pass. & Tkt. Agt., St Louis, Mo.

Friday's Daily:

L. Bowers went up to Corunna to-day on a business matter.

W. A. Goodrich of Morenci, sends us two answers to the postage stamp question. They are both correct.

An ordinance has been passed at Ashley prohibiting all persons from riding on the sidewalks with bicycles or other vehicles.

Wm. Sheffer and his brother John and wife left this morning for a drive to their mother's who lives nine miles north of Huntington. Mrs. Wm. Sheffer went as far as Columbia City on the Wabash and will join them there and enjoy the ride the rest of the way.

S. Mosher of Garrett, was over here yesterday to bring his grandchild to Dr. Hines for treatment. The mother of the child, Mrs. Cyrus Beard came with him The child was injured some time ago by falling down a stairway.

Levi Till, with his wife and daughter Matie, were in town last evening. They greatly enjoyed the band music and think it will be an easy thing to come over often to hear them. In this way, they can combine business with pleasure.

Charlie Dugan is back in town to-day, for a brief business visit. He is looking well. He is back at Decatur, Ind., again after a term of two years as Professor of Mathematics in Washburne College, Ill. He brings word that Mr. Gerke, who was in the Physicians' drugstore here for a time, is still at Decatur and prospering.

A Wabash official arrived in town on the 2:04 train and in company with Chas. Eckhart is investigating the matter of placing a switch to the Eckhart Carriage factory. Mr. Eckhart's idea is to leave the main track about one half mile east of the depot. This, if accomplished, will be a great saving to the Eckhart company as the long distance makes drayage expensive.

Frost this morning probably did more damage than the one Sunday morning. Young potatoes were especially unfortunate. But as this is our third frost we hope it will now let up.

W. W. Snyder, wife and baby of Rockford, Ill., are the guests of his brother, S. C. Snyder and family. W. W. and wife went to Angola at noon to visit until tomorrow.

L. Bowers was out on the farm, the old J. M. Goetschius place in Richland and says corn looks pretty sickly, but rye has taken on an enormous growth and is lodging considerably owing to the strong soil of the low land and to the recent hard winds.

An agent has been in town and offers to enlarge pictures and deliver them for $1.98, and want persons having work done to sign a contract. When the work is delivered this proves to be a contract for the packing and $10 00 additional for the picture, total $11.98. Our people should take warning.

A large number of visiting masons from Garrett and other places are in the city and will attend a meeting here this evening. A banquet will also be given.

It will interest several Auburn people to learn that Ex-President Edmund B. Fairfield, will deliver the baccalaurate sermon at Hillsdale College this year. It will be on Sunday June 16.

Madden Bros. have just received from Scotland a fine granite monument, of a new pattern. The shaft is so divided at the top, as to furnish a secure resting place for a large polished globe of the same material. It is nicely polished, and looks prettier than the one old Christopher Columbus seems threatening to heave out onto the ground from the east steps of the capitol at Washington.

MEN WANTED

To take orders. Instruction and outfit free Salary or commission as preferred. Splendid chance for reliable men. Experience not necessary. Write for terms and full particulars. The R. G. CHASE COMPANY, Nurserymen. Geneva, N.Y.

Saturday's Daily:

H. E. Coe was over from Butler to day. The schools closed there yesterday.

Dr. Nusbaum yesterday purchased the Dan. Phillips farm east of St. Joe, formerly the Hoisington farm. It is one of the most desirable farms in that section. We understand the price paid was $5,500.

Mrs. Margaret Sheets, south of town met with a painful and dangerous accident yesterday. She was standing on a chair washing a window and fell back striking the plank over the cistern. Her back was injured, and possibly she was hurt internally. Dr. Buchtel was called and at last accounts she was doing as well as could be expected.

Monday's Daily

Smoke the K. & B. ten-cent cigar.

Court begins here next Monday.

Those who are to bring us wood on subscription can deliver it to us at any time now.

AUBURN Summer Normal will begin July 8.

Notre Dame University celebrates its 50th year June 11, 12 and 13. Father Sorin, who died two years ago, founded the school in 1845.

J. D. Lahnum's address is 258 West Van Buren, as shown by a recent letter, he having changed his location. He says Henry Sherlock is doing well and has steady employment. J. D. hopes success for the DAILY COURIER. Thanks.

THERE WILL be at least three instructors in the Auburn Summer Normal and each will be a specialist in the branches he teaches.

FOR SALE: A good house and barn in south part of town. Call at this office.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bishop, of Mooresville, are the guests of their daughter Mrs. John Baird.

Dr. D. J. Swartz was called to Altona Sunday in consultation with Dr Thomson of Garrett in the case of Charles Vallou.

You can have most any article of iron or brass manufactured at the Junction Foundry.

The Star Spangled Banner's Author.

The Goshen Times says that Senator Vail was presented a picture of the scene at the adjournment of our late legislature. It says the picture was a libel on the fair name of our state. If the mere picture was a libel, what was the scene itself? And the thing actually took place.

C. H. Bliss left this morning Ft. Wayne where he will commence work on the new daily. He said he was leaving with a light heart this morning.

Henry Witt showed us a very interesting specimen Saturday. It was a grinder tooth of some ancient, extinct animal and of a somewhat different character from anything we have seen. The grinding surface is peculiar, especially its shape, which is exactly that of the bottom of the moccasined foot of an Indian. It is a question we cannot solve, as to whether this tooth was that of a mastodon, or of some animal of the same epoch.

The COURIER is pleased to announce the arrival of a new girl at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hebel Sunday.

Mrs. Wm. Click received $1,000 Friday from the Oddfellow's insurance which her husband carried. This is another case where the small amount paid in for insurance made the widow and orphans happy. Every man that is able should carry life insurance.

R. H. Weamer of Bristol arrived this afternoon and will remain a day with friends.

Mrs Sam Helhour will go to Ann Arbor to-morrow with her little girl where she will have its eyes treated.

James Potter and wife who were the guests over Sunday of their son S. S. went up to Hamilton to-day to visit in the family of Eugene Kinney.

While Dell Purdy was repairing crossings Saturday, he met with an accident. He had one end of a plank pried up and the prop accidentally fell under it and the plank with large nails in the end of it struck his arm. The nails were driven into the flesh quite deep and it is feared they may cause him trouble, as the rust is quite poison.

H. C Shull may be considered a veteran in the milk business. We have got our supply of him for fourteen years. Then, he delivered all alone. Now it takes another hand to help. Honest dealing pays,—if not at first, it will eventually.

Mr. Rickel came home from Albany Friday and staid over Sunday. While here, he and Mr. Sprott made arrangements to locate at Albany, the Daisy Cultivator factory of Pleasant Lake.

Four Auburn lads turned globe trotters, or the next thing to it, Saturday. About nine in the forenoon two little sons of Oscar Elson and two little sons of Jesse Richards, concluded they would see the world. The parents missed them after a while, and searched far and near for them. But no word could be heard about them, till about seven that evening, Will Elson concluded he would go to the Junction and look for them, and he met all four boys before he reached there. They had been to Garrett. and told where they had got dinner, and seemed generally to have enjoyed themselves.

Attorney Leas, of Waterloo, is pretty "stiff necked," owing to a bad carbuncle.

The Christian Endeavor of the Lutheran church gave an excellent entertainment at the church last evening. The services were not only interesting but edifying The Y. P. S. C E. of the Lutheran church is a band of earnest workers. At 7:30 was the regular preaching services which were well attended.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder
Awarded Gold Medal Midwinter Fair, San Francisco.

Tuesday's Daily.

NORMAL at Auburn.

A. J. Baxter was over from Butler and attending to court matters to-day.

Geo. Wagoner who has been confined to his home a few weeks is recovering.

The Philomathian club meets with Mrs. John Keeran Saturday.

The ladies of the Lutheran church will give a supper in the lecture room of the church next Friday, May 24. Supper served from 5 to 7:30. Mite 15 cents. Everybody Come.

WANTED IMMEDIATELY: 20 cords of nigger head stone. J. C. Henry.

Will Pepple, of Concord, was in town yesterday. He is having trouble with a large swelling of the glands of the neck a result of a severe attack of measles.

FOR SALE OR TRADE: A 2 year old well bred colt. Inquire at the COURIER office.

Ira Bone of Concord, spent Sunday with his mother, Mrs. Latson, who is dangerously ill.

Wheat 73, and going up.

The Wabash pay car went through today.

Mrs. James Draggoo and niece, Miss Sadie Ferrel went to Ft. Wayne to day.

Miss Ida Stafford is spending a few days with her grandmother. Mrs. Essig, south of town.

Call and see our new farm wagons. Shaffer & Shull, south Main, Auburn.

Mrs. Geo. Lanning is at Warsaw attending a meeting of the Rathbone sisters.

Work is being pushed on the "Old people's Home" at Avilla. So says the News. Corner stone will be laid some time in July.

The Eagle Manufacturing Co. at Auburn Junction are making all kinds of light and heavy castings.

East Ninth street is improving. The new Benedict factory is nearly completed, Andy Murphy has built a new building to keep wool in, and adjoining this is the old woolen mill building which is used by the Kiblinger Co., the paint in, and next Ike Jones has moved an old building and is fitting it up for a paint shop.

The boys think they have a joke on A. Lewis, and it does look a little that way Saturday evening while it was raining he was out on the lawn using a sprinkler on the grass. The facts are, he had just got a new lot of hose and new wind pump, and he wanted to try them if it did look a little funny.

INSURANCE AGENCY:—People desiring good insurance should remember that Geo. Lanning has an office at the Davis Harware store, and works some of the very best companies in the country. Good farm risks taken. Call on him. 32tf

Mr. and Mrs. Baltz moved to-day to their farm up beyond Corunna. We believe this is the place he got of Mr. Martin when he traded his livery barn and stock.

Sheriff Stroh accompanied Robert McDougall to Logansport yesterday where he entered the asylum. Mrs. McDougall and baby also accompanied him. They returned this afternoon.

Some of our exchanges speak of sheept dying under the recent change of weather. They had been sheared during the hot weather, and the sudden cold found them too thinly clad.

FOR SALE: A good second hand buggy. W. C. Hartman 2dw

Garrett voted on waterworks yesterday, and the result showed 192 majority in favor of it. They expect to begin the work soon.

All diseases of the air passages especially catarrah and chronic, Bronchitis, as well as first stages of consumption can be cured. I am treating these diseases with great success by the use of the latest and most improved medicines and instruments. Dr. W H. Nusbaum, Auburn, Ind. 42tf

The net receipts at the Presbyterian social Saturday evenig, amounted to over $30. The baby show brought out quite a number of our nice little ones, and it was a difficlt thing to decide. But the matter was decided by giving first premium to Mrs. Frank Rose's baby and second to that of Mrs. Dave Hodge.

A little letter received to-day says, "Margaret Dorothy Blattner, May 16, 1895. Weight 10.lbs." The accompanying card says F. S. and Dora D. Blattner, 3106 north 26th St. Tacoma. And the COURIER and many friends send congratulations.

This afternoon the ladies of the Minerva Club at Waterloo came over here and are being entertained by Mrs F. N. Beidler and Mrs. Mary Boyer at the home of the former. Mrs. Beidleir retains her membership in the club, and Mrs. Boyer was formerly a member.

The little boy, Russel, of Shaw Moody, who lives near New Era, fell from a horse yesterday and broke his leg. He and his brother were both riding one horse and was just returning from work in the field. As the older boy got off to open a gate his foot caught Russel and pulled him off. He was brought to Auburn by his father and taken to Dr. Hines' office where he and Dr. Casebeer set the fractured limb.

Last night it turned colder again, and this morning there was a heavy frost, a freeze, in fact, and the early corn, potatoes, etc, were cut down much worse than in the sudden cold snap of a week or so ago. Daniel Maginnis reports ice a quarter of an inch thick. He thinks fruit has received a serious additional injury. Of course the corn can be replanted, and the great part of it is not up, so that a good crop is yet possible. The some is true of potatoes. But the fruit loss cannot be estimated for a week or more.

Wednesday's Daily:

Smoke the

Owl and Receipt

Keesler Bros.

Judge Powers came down from Angola this morning.

Herb Weaver is having his house repainted. C. Foltz is doing the work.

It seems odd that some one does not rent the rear business room in the Kiger Building. It is a good location.

"Pat" Murphy is painting the new railing around Mrs. Moes' poarch.

Marcus Servoss of Peru, is the guest of his daughter, who is one of the teachers in our schools.

Asa Brandon has the lumber on the ground for a new residence just across the Lake Shore track on 7th street.

Tickets are now on sale for the Phonograph concert at Robbins & McCord's. The admission is 25 cents, children 15 cents. No charges for reserved seats.

FOR SALE: Desirable lot. with good house on South Main street, Auburn W. C. Hartman. 2d-1w

Julius Proteck, who came to Butler thirty years ago, died on Sunday morning and was buried Monday. He was 76 years old.

Eight Auburnite musical people went up to Waterloo last evening and assisted at the recital of Mrs. Jennie Shull's class in music. They were Mrs. Garwood, Mrs. R. Shull, Miss Blanch Shilling, Mrs Zent, Dr. and Mrs. Buchtel, Morris Widney and Geo. Stealy.

Someone thought they had buried a rat but instead threw it in the gutter at the north west corner of the court house square. Our health officers should investigate.

The nickel social of the Presbyterian church, will meet with Mrs. Jas. A. Barns on Friday afternoon.

Home talent will speak, sing and play, which will be reproduced by the phonograph, even to the applause of the audience, at the M. E. church, Friday evening.

Marshal West and his men are losing no time in repairing crossings and filling in with gravel where it is needed. There were several crossings which needed repairs and they are finding them.

We are here to get news and we want it all. Any person having an item of news will confer a great favor upon us by leaving it at the office or handing it to our reporters. If you have visitors, hand us their names. If you are going away on a visit, kindly make a note of it and hand it to our reporter. The more support you give us the better paper you will get.

Two "elderly hosses" and a colt have been running at large in town for about a week, and as many of our people have no fences about their yards and lawns, these tramp horses play havoc with the grass grounds and the flowers. If they are owned in town, they should be cared for by the owners. In any case they ought to be taken off the streets.

The practice of writing up interesting events, with a mighty fervor, that rivets the attention of the reader, only to wind up with an advertisement, is wrong. The COURIER believes that the only effectual way to stop it, is for all our citizens, without regard to age, sex or condition, to buy their wall paper and drugs of fischler & son, main street, opposite swineford house.

Laporte Argus: It is said that the whole secret of raising seedless cucumbers lies in covering the first joint of the vine after it starts to "run" and then cutting the vine from the original stalk as soon as the joint takes root. It is an experiment easily tried and costs nothing, and we advise the readers The Argus to see what they can do with it.

Shaffer & Shull make the best farm wagons in this part of the state. They have a number newly finished. Call on them. d&wtf

Ask you grocer for Victor Sack Bluing. d42tf

AUBURN JUNCTION.

Ira Burns, brother of opearator J. E. Burns, has returned from Napanee to resume his treatment with Dr. Buchtel.

The Lake Shore has reduced the forces on the section by two men and the foreman, from Jackson to Ft. Wayne. This is done in order to reduce the pay roll lower than it was last year. This reduction will be used to help defray the expenses of elevating their track at Chicago. We are informed that this takes effect over the entire system.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Pifer, formerly of this place but now located at Montpelier, Ohio, have purchased a Buckeye dish washer. We mean to say a little girl has come to stay. Success to all.

The hoop factory people have received another car load of material to finish the erection of their building.

FARMERS, we have just received a car of choice Michigan seed potatoes of the late variety. Now is your chance to improve your stock.

A. J. & G. M. RALSTON. 20-21

Awarded
Highest Honors—World's Fair,

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER

MOST PERFECT MADE.

A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.

40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

DISPATCH SOLD!

Monday and Tuesday, as noted in the DAILY, R. H. Weamer, of Bristol, was here. He was present to take part in negotiations for the purchase of the Dispatch. Tuesday, the deal was completed, and the property will soon pass into the control of G. W. Gordon and Mr. Weamer. Mr. Gordon will probably be the principal owner and Mr. Weamer will be the editor. Mr. Campbell retains the paper for about three weeks yet. We have always had pleasant relations with Mr. Campbell, and hope he may continue to prosper in the new field wherever it may be. He and his wife will be missed from many circles. The new proprietors are well known here, as Mr. Weamer was the founder of the paper. We hope to maintain the friendly relations we have always had with both.

PROBATE CAUSE NO. 4038.

State of Indiana, DeKalb County } ss:

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, May Term, 1895, Henry Wartenslaben, Louisa Fitzpatrick and M. J. Fitzpatrick, husband of Louisa Fitzpatrick, non-residents of the state of Indiana, and Woman's Baptist Home Mission Society, incorporated under the laws of the state of Illinois; Woman's Baptist Foreign Missionary Society of the West, incorporated under the laws of the state of Illinois, foreign corporations, are hereby notified that Orrin C. Clark, as executor of the will of Adelbert Wartenslaben, deceased, has filed in the Circuit Court of DeKalb county, Indiana, a petition making them defendants thereto, and praying therein for an order and decree of said Court authorizing the sale of certain real estate belonging to the estate of said decedent and in said petition described, to make assets for the payment of the debts and liabilities of said estate; and that said petition, so filed and which is now pending, is set for hearing in said Circuit Court at the court house in Auburn, Indiana, on the 10th day of June, 1895.

Witness, the Clerk and Seal of said Court, this 27th day of March 1895.

[SEAL.] DANIEL D. MOODY, Clerk DeKalb Circuit Court.

Baxter & Brown, Attorneys.

NOTICE OF SALE OF PERSONAL PROPERTY.

Notice is hereby that on:

FRIDAY, MAY 31, 1895,

at the late residence of the deceased, in Section Twenty two (22), in Jackson Township, DeKalb County, Indiana, I, Samuel Squires, Administrator of the estate of Nathan Squires, deceased, will sell at public sale the personal property of said decedent, not taken by the widow, consisting of horses, sheep, cattle, pigs, farming tools, household goods and other articles too numerous to mention. Also rye and wheat in the field. Said sale will begin at half-past nine o'clock in the forenoon of said day.

TERMS OF SALE.

All sums under five dollars cash in hand; on sums of five dollars and over a credit of nine months will be given upon the purchaser giving his note with approved security, waiving relief from valuation laws and bearing six per cent interest after maturity.

SAMUEL SQUIRES, Administrator.

May 4, 1895. 19-21

COFFEE 12½ Cts Per lb

By using Aluminum Coffee Filterer will save its cost every 3 months in the year; always bright; no egg requir- to settle. Coffee is richer and stronger. Every big restaurant in the world makes their coffee on this principle. Is of more value than any other kithchen utensil. Price 75 cents prepaid. Money refunded if not satifactory. Agents can make from $3 to $15 per day selling this and other novelties. W. M. Woodworth, Kokomo, Ind.

DEER PARK,

On the Crest of the Alleghenies.

To those contemplating a trip to the mountains in search of health and pleasure, Deer Park, on the crest of the Allegheny mountains, 3,000 feet above the sea level, offers such varied attractions as a delightful atmosphere during both day and night, pure water, smooth, winding roads through the mountains and valleys, and the most picturesque scenery in the Allegheny range. The hotel is equipped with all adjuncts conducive to the entertainment, pleasure and comfort of its guests.

The surrounding grounds, as well as the hotel, are lighted with electricity. Six miles distant, on the same mountain summit is Oakland, the twin resort of Deer Park and equally as well equipped for the entertainment and accommodations of its patrons. Both hotels are upon the main line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, have the advantages of its splendid Vestibuled Limited Express trains between the East and West. Season excursion tickets, good for return passage until October 31, will be placed on sale at greatly reduced rates at all principal ticket offices throughout the country. One way tickets, reading from St. Louis, Louisville Cincinnati, Columbus, Chicago, and any point on the B & O system to Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia or New York, or vice versa, are good to stop off at either Deer Park, Mountain Lake Park or Oakland, and the time limit will be extended by agents at either resort upon application, to cover the period of the holder's visit.

The season at these popular resorts commences June 22nd.

For full information as to hotel rates, rooms, etc., address George D. DeShields, Manager, Deer Park, or Oakland, Garrett County, Md. 24

CHEAP EXCURSIONS TO THE WEST.

On May 21st and June 11th, The North-Western Line (Chicago & North-Western Railway) will sell excursion tickets at very low rates to a large number of points in the west and northwest. For full information apply to ticket agents of connecting lines, or address A. H. Waggener, T. P. A., 7 Jackson place Indianapolis, Ind. 19-23

A Reward of $500,

Will be paid for any case of Rheumatism which cannot be cured by Dr. Drummond Lightning Remedy. This offer is made in good faith by the proprietors, and there is no reasonable excuse for any one to suffer longer. Any ordinary case will be cured by one treatment, and it is poor economy to suffer when relief can be secured so certainly. The price of a month's treatment—two bottles—is $5, and that is the cost of a cure. Full particulars and testimonials of wonderful cures sent to any address. Drummond Medicine Co., 18 Maiden Lane, New York Agents Wanted. 22

Wicked Artists and Wicked Authors.

Montague Marks, in The Art Amateur.

It is difficult to understand the propriety of excluding from a public library books hitherto deemed worthy of a place in it, simply because their author personally has become infamous. What was good in them surely must still be good. Were we to exclude all books whose writers were immoral, our libraries would be shorn of many of the most valued classics. To do this, however, would be about as reasonable as for a man to pull down his dwelling because he found out that it was built by convict labor. Brutal Torregiano broke the nose of the divine Michael Angelo; Benvento Cellini was a brawling assassin; Giovanni Bazzi was worse. Nevertheless the world will continue to admire Torregiano's "Tomb of Henry VII.," Cellini's "Perseus," and Bazzi's frescoes.

Workmen are staking off the plans for S. C. Snyder's new residence on north Main street.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

JAMES A. BARNS, - - PUBLISHER.

The American method of cross-examining witnesses is at least one hundred years before the civilization of the age.

A fearful rumor comes out of Boston that hoopskirts are to become fashionable again. That's no way to extend woman's sphere.

Great Britain having unwillingly refrained from whipping Nicaragua, it is time for the other small nations of the world to tremble in their boots.

Millions of angle worms are said to have fallen in Ohio. Evidently morals are degenerating. People can't wait to lie about the fish, but must begin with the bait.

The country has no objection to Mr. Rockefeller's handsome contribution to the Chicago University, but it doesn't like to foot the bill by paying exorbitant prices for oil.

The Chicago man who confessed to having robbed his church systematically for the past ten years, might be charged with having stolen the livery of Heaven to serve the devil in.

A dairyman in New Jersey sold 1,300 quarts of milk a day and could only produce thirty cows. The cows, however, gave rubber milk, and he stretched it. He was fined according to his pumps.

If anything can mitigate the horror of the Elbe disaster it is the fact that the North German Lloyd Company has already voluntarily spent $175,000 for the relief of the victims' survivors and is still engaged in the good work of spending more.

"Shakspeare, St. George and I," says Chauncey Depew, "were all born on the same day. I am the only one left to tell the tale. It is another case of survival of the fittest." Very neat, and all right as a pleasantry. But Shakspeare will live many years after Chauncey is dead and forgotten.

A court in Leavenworth, Kan., has ordered Dr. Keeley to reveal the formula of his celebrated gold cure under penalty of being mulcted in the sum of $100,000 damages. At the same time a Milwaukee court has permanently enjoined the doctor from making the same revelation. Dr. Keeley is a clever man and an expectant world will watch with interest his plan of riding at once the two horses, Silence and Disclosure.

It is not generally known that watches may be used as compasses, yet such is the case. Point the hour hand to the sun, and the south is exactly half way between the hour and the figure XII on the watch. For instance, supposing it is 4 o'clock. Point the hand indicating four to the sun and II on the watch is exactly south. Suppose that it is 8 o'clock. Point the hand indicating eight to the sun, and the figure X on the watch is due south.

People are not much better and not much worse than they have always been. The earliest form of insurance was marine insurance and the first insurer was the Emperor Claudius, who insured the vessels bringing wheat to Rome. And alas! they used to put up jobs on the Emperor. They loaded up old hulks with weevily grain, sunk them and claimed the insurance. That is 1,850 years ago or thereabout; and it is suspected that similar schemes are worked on the marine companies today.

Time works curious revenges. It would be interesting, indeed, if it proves to be true, as now rumored, that through the German Bank of Berlin Henry Villard has once more secured control of the Northern Pacific railway, with the aim of dissolving the receivership and assuming personal direction of the entire system. Considering all that has been said of him by many people, it would scarcely seem more revolutionary if Eugene Debs were suddenly announced as confidential general manager of the Pullman Palace Car Company.

There is great excitement in England over the discovery that Birmingham metal manufacturers have been engaged in making idols for export to the heathen subjects of the Queen of India. No doubt Enblish enterprise and skill can turn out a superior, as well as cheaper, article than native workers in metals can do. But it seems a strange thing for a professedly Christian nation to thus aid and abet idolaters in their devotions. Perhaps the fact that money is made thereby will cover the sin. It is money rather than anything else that serves as an idol to millions who little suspect themselves of idolatry.

Confectioners who make candy containing noxious or disagreeable substance to assist practical jokers in their low trickery are parties to a very scurvy piece of villainy, and ought to suffer for it in some way. The suspicion that a little child attending a school in New York died from arsenic given to it in "April fool" candy has fixed attention upon this subject, and the candy maker from whom the suspected candy is supposed to have been bought is known. This man admits that he sells candy containing cayenne pepper for such uses, and that fact alone is enough to justify the injury to his trade that has already followed the suspicion that there is poison in his candy. It is well known that there are several poisons used in making the colors that are mixed with candy, and the case should be looked into.

A French newspaper publishes the statement that seventeen French soldiers have been poisoned by eating American canned meats. It is highly probable that a hunting down of the facts would result in the discovery that the statement is a lie made out of whole cloth. It is not improbable that the United States Secretary of Agriculture will feel it his duty to request an investigation to the end that we may know if the report be founded on fact or be merely a falsehood intended to discredit American canned meats. It seems strange that bad food from this country only reaches places where there are strong local interests opposed to the use of food from the United States, whatever its quality may be.

The climax of absurdity was reached the other day in New York when Mrs. Hetty Green objected to being assessed in New York for the income tax, because she did not reside in that city. She denied also that she "resides" in Brooklyn, and on being pressed for a reply, says that she does not know that she is a resident anywhere, except it may be in Bellows, Falls, Vt., as she "visits around" everywhere else. This should not stump the officers. If she is a resident of Bellows Falls let her tax be collected in that district. If she has no home, she belongs to the tramp class of rich people who ought to be assessable anywhere they can be caught. In her case New York would do as well as any other place.

M'KINLEY'S MOTHER.

She Is 86 Years Old and Is Proud of Her Famous Son.

Gov. McKinley has repeatedly said that nearly all of his success in life has been due to the sterling qualities of womanhood possessed by his mother. It was her directing mind that shaped the ideals of his early manhood and her devotion to principle did much to keep her son's feet out of those pitfalls which are strewn so thickly in the path of the young politician.

MRS. M'KINLEY.

Mrs. McKinley is a resident of Canton, Ohio, and is distinctly a motherly woman. The political honors that have come to her son have been among the pleasantest things in her declining years; not that she is flattered by them, but because, as she says quaintly, "I know that William won't want for friends when I am gone." The innocence of the old lady's mind is shown by this remark, so expressive of her ignorance of the fickleness of political friendships. She has taken great delight in attending the receptions to Gov. McKinley, as she there meets many friends and can live over the happy years of her life. The custom of her friends for many years back has been to call on her during the afternoon and evening of her birthday to congratulate her and, as she is still vigorous and intellectually keen, the same custom was observed this year.

Fatal to Energy.

The art of putting things off is easily acquired, and soon grows into a habit. The shoeing horn to pull this easy art on is the promise to "think about it." People who promise this very often, of course, acquire the habit of not thinking about it, and, finally, do not think at all; and leaving off thinking, they soon leave off doing. They soon excuse themselves, as every one can; they regard business as a bore, and activity as very irksome. To dilatory people hope is always whispering a flattering tale. To-morrow will be to them a better day than to-day; and if they take thought for to-morrow, it is to think that it will not only bear its own burdens, but bring its own pleasures and consolations with it. In this case content borders on vice. Delays are almost fatal, because they lead to other delays, which at last do the business. Of all persons whose head is bruised by the sudden falling of to-morrow, when we are unprepared for it, the man who puts things off suffers the most. Time runs rapidly with all of us, but most rapidly with the man who is never ready for the traveler. A man, to be a man, must be up and doing. He who is young, hopeful, and endowed with talents is always rich, especially if he will trust to himself, and, going forward, will take Time by the forelock, and not put off till to-morrow what he can do to-day.

A Gay Scene.

No more brilliant scene can be imagined than a dancing palace in the Isle of Man at what may be called high tide. The floor is immense; four or five thousand young women are dancing on it; the young men in tennis flanneis and colored scarfs, the young women in light muslin and straw hats. You sit in the gallery and look down. Sometimes the white lights in the glass roof are covered with red and blue and yellow, and these tints are cast on to the dancers. This simple artifice is astounding in its effects. The mere sense of size and the presence of so much life must count for a great deal. You have to witness the scene in order to realize its extraordinary fascination. The low buzz of the dancers' feet, the clang and clash of the brass instruments, the boom of the drum, the quake of the great glass house itself, and the low rumble of the hollow floor beneath—it is like one thing only that I can dream of or imagine—a battlefield set to music.

A Fine Specimen.

A certain rich man was very fond of exhibiting his pictures in an ostentatious and patronizing manner to artists of his acquaintance. One day a young painter lunched with him, and was escorted around his gallery, and the youth, wishing to curry favor with a possible patron, exclaimed after every picture exhibited:

"And a very fine specimen of that master!"

The picture owner, however, though he was rich, had a sense of humor, and, noticing his audience stifling a yawn, said:

"Now, here is a remarkably fine Salvolatile, you perceive."

"And a very fine specimen of that master!" exclaimed the artist, enthusiastically.

First Lieutenant—"By Jove, as we were going over the river on the plank bridge it gave way and the men fell in." Second lieutenant—"What did you do?" First lieutenant—"I ordered them to fall out, of course."—Pearson's Weekly.

Bachelor girl sounds better than old maid, but it means the absence of a man just the same.

TORTURED BY TURKS.

A MISSIONARY DESCRIBES ARMENIAN SUFFERINGS.

Awful Atrocities Committed by Kurds and Soldiers of the Sultan—Priests Massacred—Children Are Cut in Two and Their Jaws Torn Apart.

A Tale of Horror.

There does not seem to be much doubt that the sufferings endured by the wretched Armenians are something more dreadful than can be conceived.

MURDERED IN THEIR BEDS.

Unprotected and left to the mercy of a pitiless enemy to their physical tortures is added the hopelessness of despair; the government allows their foes to work their cruel will on women and children as well as men.

A returned American missionary, Frederick Davis Greene, has written a book that has just been published by the Philo-Armenian Association and scattered broadcast over this country, in which a terrible picture is given of Armenian sufferings. To show how obstinately the Turkish Government upholds its own side of the case and how loth it is to acknowledge its own wrongdoing, it is only necessary to consider that it has had a book printed in New York as an offset to Mr. Greene's work. In this Armenian affairs are barely touched on and the kindness of the Sultan and his eagerness for his people's welfare is treated of in glowing colors.

Many of the atrocities described in Mr. Greene's book are too horrible for publication. Here are some extracts from a description of the great massacre at Sassoun, near Moosh:

STABBING AN ARMENIAN CHIEF TO PIECES

"The government had suspected that the Talvoveeg villages were harboring agitators, and had sent orders to certain Kurdish chiefs to attack the district, assuming the responsibility for all they should kill and promising the Kurds all the spoil.

"At first the Kurds were set on and the troops kept out of sight. The villagers, put to the fight, and thinking they had only the Kurds to deal with, repulsed them on several occasions. Some of the troops assumed Kurdish dress and helped them in the fight with more success. Small companies of troops entered several villages, saying they had come to protect them as loyal subjects, and were quartered among the houses. In the night they arose and slew the sleeping villagers, man, woman, and child.

"By this time those in the other villages were beginning to feel that extermination was the object of the government, and desperately determined to sell their lives as dearly as possible.

DROPPING A PRIEST ON BAYONETS.

"No distinctions were made between persons or villages as to whether they were loyal and had paid their taxes or not. The orders were to make a clean sweep. A priest and some leading men from one village went out to meet an officer, taking in their hands their tax receipts, declaring their loyalty and begging for mercy; but the village was surrounded and all human beings put to the bayonet. A large and strong man, the chief of one village, was captured by the Kurds, who tied him, threw him on the ground and, squatting around him, stabbed him to pieces.

"At Galogozan many young men were tied hand and foot, laid in a row, covered with brushwood and burned alive. Others were seized and hacked to death piecemeal.

"At another village a priest and several leading men were captured and promised release if they would tell where others had fled, but after telling all but the priest were killed. A chain was put around the priest's neck and pulled from opposite sides till he was several times choked and revived, after which several bayonets were planted upright and he was raised in the air and let fall upon them.

A TURKISH SOLDIER'S PASTIME.

"The men of one village, when fleeing, took the women and children, some 500 in number, and placed them in a sort of grotto in a ravine. After several days the soldiers found them and butchered those who had not died of hunger.

"Children were frequently held up by the hair and cut in two or had their jaws torn apart. The last stand took place on Mount Andoke, south of Moosh, where some thousand persons had sought refuge. The Kurds were sent in relays to attack them, and after the besieged had been without food for several days and their ammunition was exhausted the troops succeeded in reaching the summit without any loss, and let scarcely a man escape.

"Now all turned their attention to those who had been driven into the Talvoveeg district. Three or four thousand of the besieged were left in this small plain. When they saw themselves thickly surrounded on all sides by Turks and Kurds, they raised their hands to heaven with an agonizing moan for deliverance. They were thinned out by rifle shots and the remainder were slaughtered with bayonets and swords till a veritable river of blood flowed from the heaps of the slain. Forty villages were totally destroyed, and it is probable that 16,000 st least were killed. The lowest estimate is 10,000, and many put it much higher."

THE RAINMAKER.

He Has a Hard Time When the Weather Doesn't Suit

The belief of the Indians in sorcery is a very practical one, and if their medicine chiefs fail in any appointed exploit they are promptly tortured.

Frank Cushing, in his experiences among the Zunis, the wonderful castle-building Indians of Western New Mexico, tells that upon returning one day to the Zuni town he found one of the old men of the tribe on trial for sorcery, or, rather, for misusing his powers.

There had been no rain for weeks, the wells were drying up and a water famine stared the nation in the face.

The chiefs decided that the medicine man had turned witch.

After a long and exhaustive trial the old man was sentenced to be suspended from the wall until he would confess.

His hands were tied behind his back, and he was suspended by his wrists from a rope. The torture was excruciating, and the old man howled piteously for mercy.

"Say something," shouted the Zuni chief.

"What shall I say?" whined the old man.

"Say yes or no," yelled the chief.

The old man finally confessed, and was let down. He went through an elaborate series of promises as to his future behavior, and promised that rain would fall within four days.

At the end of four days no rain had fallen, but the old man had disappeared. A party of Zunis went out in search of him, and had he been found he would undoubtedly have been killed.

On the night of the fifth day, however, and while the search was still in progress, the rain came in torrents. The next day, says the New Orleans Picayune, the old man marched proudly into the village and was received with acclamations of great joy.

Heavy Responsibility.

The pecuniary difficulties in which aspirants for fame become involved have inspired many an anecdote.

"Here's a poem on the 'Owld Country,' sorr," said a frayed-looking individual to the editor of a weekly paper in a large town; "an' it's hopin' you'll take it, Oi am."

"What is your address?" inquired the editor.

"That depinds intoirely on you, sorr," responded the poet, with a cheerful smile.

"Depends on me!" echoed the editor; "what do you mean?"

"If yez take the bit poe... sorr, me addthress will shtill be sivinty-wan Dixther Sthrate," replied the sanguine poet; "but if yez don't take it," he added, darkly, "it's mesilf that'll be lift widout anny addthress to me name, if me landlady kapes her wurrd, sorr!"

An Old Roman Bath.

The following is called a "mock milk bath," and wouldn't be a bad thing to try if it was not named at all: Make up a dozen cheese cloth bags about a foot square. Fill them with oatmeal and pure white castile soap shaved fine—two-thirds oatmeal and one-third soap. Put in the bag a teaspoonful of borax and some orris root or lavender flowers, or anything of that kind that you like as a perfume. Have about twelve gallons of water for your bath and make it pretty warm. Use the bag for a wash rag, and you will come out of each bath feeling as though you had the skin of a baby. Of course, one bag will only do for one bath, and the contents will then have to be thrown away, but the cheese cloth can be washed and used till it breaks in holes.

How Do the Turkeys Know.

Says an old Pennsylvania farmer: "I always know when there is to be a windstorm by watching the turkeys and chickens go to roost each night. In calm weather the fowls always roost on their poles with their heads alternating each way; that is, one faces east, the next west, and so on. But when there is going to be a high wind they always roost with their heads toward the direction from which it is coming. There are reasons for these different ways of roosting, I take it. When there is no wind to guard against they can see other danger more readily if they are headed in both directions, but when wind is to arise they face it because they can hold their positions better. But the part I can't understand," he concluded, "is how the critters know that the wind is going to rise when we mortals lack all intimation of it."

Lost.

What remarkable places some fearsome souls choose for the hiding of their money! A New York woman concealed a thousand dollars' worth of diamonds in one of her old shoes lately for fear the burglars would get them. Her hired girl took the shoe to the cobbler's to get it mended, and now that lady mourns her diamonds. A Michigan woman who had no faith in banks recently hid her money (one thousand dollars), in her house, whether under the carpet, or in a cracked teapot, or in an old tomato can, under the kitchen sink is not stated. At any rate, masked men got in, bound and gagged her and took all her money, leaving her more dead than alive. It would have been more satisfactory to lose the money in a broken bank than to lose it in that violent way.

You can always pick out the New Woman by the way she kisses.

FIGURES AND FACTS.

RECENT IMPORTS COMPARED WITH M'KINLEY IMPORTS.

A Showing that Demolishes Hundreds of Columns of Partisan Comment—Impossible for McKinley Papers to Tell the Truth—What Trade Means.

Speak for Themselves.

For some time past the McKinley newspapers have been filling a great part of their space with dispatches and editorial articles relating to the value of goods imported under the new tariff. Every month the official reports of the government have given them a fresh text. We suppose that our neighbor, the New York Tribune, has published in the last two or three months not less than forty columns of matter on this subject, pointing out and commenting upon the fact that the value of the imports exceeds the value of the goods imported during the corresponding months of last year.

But none of the Republican journals has ventured to compare the values for the corresponding months of the fiscal year ending on June 30, 1893, a year in which the sacred McKinley tariff was in force.

The treasury department published a few days ago a summary of the imports for the nine months ending on March 31 and beginning on July 1, 1894. It will be noticed that the new tariff was in force for a little more than seven of these nine months. In the following table the values of the imports of the leading articles or kinds of goods for the nine months ending on March 31 last are compared with the values for the corresponding nine months ending on March 31, 1893, during which the McKinley tariff was in operation:

VALUES OF IMPORTS.

	Nine Months Ending on March 31, 1893.	Nine Months Ending on March 31, 1895.
Woolen goods	$31,752,175	$25,900,366
Wool	16,546,072	16,536,997
Silk goods	30,430,008	24,378,049
Cotton goods	26,536,668	25,672,779
Glass and glassware	6,129,014	5,208,807
Iron and steel manufactures	24,594,865	17,558,327
Leather	5,851,307	4,567,517
Gloves	6,107,909	5,372,023
Animals	3,614,220	2,176,260
Buttons and button forms	1,120,966	825,565
Chemicals, drugs and dyes	38,352,838	32,029,152
Earthen, stone, and china ware	7,144,927	6,616,120
Fruits and nuts	16,792,149	12,305,975
Precious stones	11,503,655	5,235,147
Malt Liquors	1,372,931	1,111,790
Paper and manufactures of	2,907,207	2,147,130
Meat products and dairy products	1,631,503	1,514,655
Manufactures of tobacco	2,238,993	1,672,833
Vegetables	3,715,544	2,786,117
Wines	7,023,999	5,091,118

These figures speak for themselves. They demolish hundreds of columns of unjust and misleading partisan comment upon the imports of the last few months under the new tariff. Our Republican friends have sought to deceive by comparing the values of recent imports with the values of the imports in a panic year, when trade and industry were depressed by the operation of a silver-purchase law which had been enacted as the fruit of a bargain between the supporters of the McKinley bill and the agents of the owners of silver mines. The readers of Republican journals are not permitted to see any comparison between recent imports and those of the year immediately preceding the silver panic. Our table shows that the imports of that year—or of the nine months taken for comparison—were considerably in excess of those reported under the new tariff—New York Times.

The Wilson Tariff.

Although it may truthfully be said that the new tariff law has not yet had an opportunity to display its merits, many of its most important provisions not going into effect until Jan. 1, the figures obtained from the official reports on the Federal Bureau of Statistics are indeed gratifying as showing the good results which may be expected when the new law shall have had time to fully vindicate itself. The report shows revenues of over forty-five and one-half million dollars raised by the new tariff during the quarter ending March 31, at which rate the total revenue for the current year will exceed $182,000,000, a very sung and satisfactory figure.

The export trade of the United States has notably increased during this period, the value of goods exported for the quarter being $41,898,004 against $36,991,298 for the corresponding period in 1892, when the McKinley law was in full operation, and when no depression had occurred to cause business stagnation. This gain of a clear 12 per cent. is especially gratifying when we consider the depressed trade conditions which have so long prevailed and which were a direct result of Republican mismanagement of the nation's affairs.

During the quarter the total value of merchandise importations amounted to $185,161,150 upon which the customs duties were $45,615,396, or 24.6 per cent. of the value of all merchandise imported into the United States. On all dutiable imports the statistics show that an average duty of 43.72 per cent. is now being collected. The corresponding McKinley rate was 48.71 in 1892 and 49.58 in 1893. Under the high tariff of 1893 the average rate of duties on dutiable goods was 45.61 per cent. This shows a reduction of some 5 or 6 per cent. from the McKinley duties on dutiable goods and less than 2 per cent. from the tariff of 1893. Surely, this doesn't look much like opening our markets to the products of the "pauper labor" of Europe.

In view of these facts it would be advisable for our opponents to revise to some extent their attacks on the Democratic tariff policy. Under a lower tariff and with the advantages of free raw materials, our export trade is increasing satisfactorily, business is improving all over the country, and an era of prosperity is making its appearance, which shows every indication of coming to stay.—Erie Herald.

Tribulations of Political Growers.

Judge Lawrence is on the war-path again. He writes to the editor of the Reporter:

"Unless the New England States stand up strong for adequate wool protection, the country will be driven to favor free woolen goods. You will not believe it. The slave-holders would not believe that slavery extension would endanger them, so they drove on and slavery fell. You are following a similar road. I regret it."

This is the old "howling-waste" argument. Unless the Ohio wool growers got their bounty, Olneyville should be a resort for jackals, and the bittern should perch on the ruins of Dobson's factories. But the judge should not be thus envious at the prosperity of the wicked. It doubtless galls him, as it does the Tribune, to see the woolen manufacturers thrive, so humorously careless of protectionist oracles of woe, but he and his fellow-woolites can similarly thrive if they adopt similar means. Enterprise and intelligence applied to wool- growing will do for it what they have done for woolen manufacturing. Moreover, when American woolens are beginning to be sold right in Bradford, the judge's threat of free woolens does not carry with it anything like its old terrors.—New York Evening Post.

Tell the Truth.

Is it impossible for a McKinley paper to tell the truth? Our neighbor, the Weedsport Sentinel, prints every week from a high-tariff paper gotten up in New York City paragraphs like this clipped from its last issue:

"Increasing imports, decreasing exports, selling less to foreign countries, buying more from them. According to the free-trade theory, this is the way for a country to lay up treasure. No individual would expect to get rich in this way."

Exports are not "decreasing." On the contrary, they are constantly increasing, at a very satisfactory rate, showing that our people are selling their products abroad and are starting up a lively trade in exchange for foreign products that we do not grow nor produce in this country. This is a revival of business life and activity, which if kept up will soon produce prosperity.

The Wilson tariff did not go fully into effect until Jan. 1, 1895. Figures taken from the United States Bureau of Statistics show that the revenue raised by the new tariff during the quarter ending March 31, 1895, was $45,615,396. At this rate the total revenue of the current calendar year derived from customs will be $182,461,584, a figure which, if realized, will be very satisfactory.

Now for the exports during the same three months of the new tariff: The value of manufactured goods exported from the United States during the quarter ending March 31, 1895, was $41,898,004. During the corresponding quarter of 1892, when the McKinley tariff was in force, the total value of American manufactures exported was only $36,991,298. In the same quarter of 1893 the figures were $36,690,838. Here we have a clear gain of 12 per cent. in our export trade for three months of the new tariff, as compared with similar periods under normal conditions of the McKinley law. This substantial increase has been made despite the prevalence of business depression in our foreign markets—a depression which had not made its appearance three years ago.

In the light of these official figures, we once more ask, is it impossible for a McKinley paper to speak the truth?—Cayuga (N. Y.) Chief.

Increase in Exported Manufactures.

The Treasury bulletin of exports for the month shows a decided gain in leading articles of manfactured goods. It is noticeable throughout the manufactured schedules. It indicates that manufacturers have closed their ears against the cry of calamity and gone to work.

The increase for the month this year over the same month last year is from $591,000 to $1,116,000 in agricultural implements. It is from $713,000 to $772,000 in chemicals, with like slight increases in numerous other schedules. Iron shows an increase from $2,265,000 to $2,975,000. Machinery increases from $928,000 to $1,323,000. Cottons show a marked gain. The total exports for the month reached the very neat figure of 16,728,000 yards, a gain of over 3,000,000 yards in comparison with the same month last year.

The extent of territory covered by our shipments of cotton goods indicates what we can do when our national enterprise and energy are developed in other lines. We sold over a million yards of cotton goods to Great Britain during the month. Lots of between a million and two million yards went to China to Africa, to the West Indies, to Central America, to several of the South American States, to British North America, while smaller lots found their way to almost if not quite every country on the map.

Such facts indicate the coming of a time when foreign trade will no longer be considered criminal and unpatriotic. The idea that no good American will try to buy or sell outside of the home market has had its day. Its purposes have been served. It made noise enough in its time, but it is an exploded squib, a spent delusion. Our manufacturers can control the trade of the world if they will. And the time is coming when they will.—New York World.

What Trade Means.

The idea never enters the dense McKinley head that it takes two to trade; that trade means mutual profit; that profits are the life of trade; that both we and our customers are benefited when we exchange products which we do not need, or even money which we can spare for products that we do need and can buy to advantage. To the Chinese-wall patriots all trade is loss, all commerce is calamity, all prosperity rests on monopoly and taxes.—New York World.

The foregoing is as neat a summary of the proposition as could be put in the space. It should be painted on the rocks, posted on the fences, and tacked to the trees, until every bourbon McKinleyite in the land has had opportunity to spell it out. What a wonderful revelation it will be to those fellows when they find out that dearness is not preferable to cheapness, that trade is not an evil, and that a nation cannot tax itself rich.—Los Angeles Herald.

Iced Milk.

The French industry of icing milk is an original departure in tinned commodities. The milk is frozen and placed in block form in tins, and on the part of the purchaser requires to be melted previous to use. Being hermetically sealed, the commodity thus iced preserves its form until it is required, when a minute's exposure to the sun's rays or to the heat of the fire is all that is necessary to reduce it to a liquid condition.

PIPER HEIDSIECK PLUG TOBACCO

Consumers of chewing tobacco who are willing to pay a little more than the price charged for the ordinary trade tobaccos, will find this brand superior to all others.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

DR. MOTT'S PENNYROYAL PILLS

The only safe, sure and reliable Female Pill ever offered to Ladies, especially recommended to married Ladies. Beware of pills put up in tin boxes as they are dangerous. Ask for DR. MOTT'S PENNYROYAL PILLS and take no other. Send for circular. Price $1.00 per box, 6 boxes for $5.00. DR. MOTT'S CHEMICAL CO., - Cleveland, Ohio.

Fisher & Son, Auburn, Ind.

FITS!

Brace Up! Don't Lose Courage!!

Your disease is not incurable because your Physician has given you up, and you have not received any benefit from the medicine you have tried, is not any reason you cannot be cured. We can positively cure all kinds of Fits, Epileptic, Convulsion or Spasmodic. WE GUARANTEE A POSITIVE AND PERMANENT CURE IN ALL CASES. We have cured thousands, many cases of long standing, and given up by Doctors as incurable. In our "Allen's Fits Cure" you will find a medicine that has never failed to effect a speedy cure. We back our guarantee with an offer of $100 to any person we cannot cure. Highest Bank references furnished on application.

1 Qt. Bottle, $3.00. 2 Qt. $5.00.

ALLEN MEDICAL CO.,

Washington & Water Sts., BOSTON, MASS.

LADIES

Suffering from Retarded, Suppressed or Painful Menstruation and all irregularities of like nature, will find our FAMALE PILLS an infallible cure. They are entirely safe and can always be relied upon for speedy relief. We have yet to hear of a case where they have failed to produce the desired result. A box should be kept on hand at all times to provide for emergencies. Correspondence Confidential.

By mail, with full directions, securely sealed, $2.00 per box.

ALLEN MEDICAL CO.,

Washington & Water Sts., BOSTON, MASS.

Every Woman

Sometimes needs a reliable monthly regulating medicine.

Dr. PEAL'S PENNYROYAL PILLS.

Are prompt, safe and certain in result. The genuine (Dr. Peal's) never disappoint. Sent anywhere $1.00. Peal Medicine Co., Cleveland, O.

Sold by Fischler & Son., Auburn.

WE HAVE NO AGENTS

but ship from our factory at wholesale prices. Ship anywhere for examination; pay freight both ways if not satisfactory. 100 styles of Carriages. 90 styles of Harness. Send 4cts. for 112 page catalogue. ELKHART CARRIAGE AND HARNESS MFG. CO.,

No. 7183½ $35. W. B. Pratt, Sec'y, Elkhart, Ind.

Sex-ine Pills

RESTORE LOST VIGOR

Before and After Using.

New discovery. Will brace you up in a week. Sold with a WRITTEN GUARANTEE to Cure Nervous Debility, Loss of Sexual Power in either sex, nightly Emissions from any cause. If neglected, such troubles lead to consumption or insanity. $1.00 per box by mail, 6 boxes for $5.00. With every $5 order we give a written guarantee to cure or refund the money. Address PEAL MEDICINE CO., Cleveland, Ohio.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

RESTORED MANHOOD.

DR. MOTT'S NERVERINE PILLS

BEFORE AND AFTER USING.

The great remedy for nervous prostration and all nervous diseases of the generative organs of either sex such as Nervous Prostration, Failing or Lost Manhood, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Youthful Errors, Mental Worry, excessive use of Tobacco or Opium which lead to Consumption and Insanity. With every $5 order we give a written guarantee to cure or refund the money. Sold at $1.00 per box, 6 boxes for $5.00. DR. MOTT'S CHEMICAL COMPANY, Cleveland, Ohio.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES. OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.

OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Women Only Know

How much they suffer when nervous, weak and tired.

Nervous prostration is a lingering, racking, living death to those afflicted, though wholly incomprehensible to others. The cause of this condition is impure and insufficient blood.

Make the blood pure, give it vitality, and it will properly feed the nerves and make them strong. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures nervousness because it acts directly upon the blood, making it rich and pure and endowing it with vitality and strength-giving power. No other medicine has such a record of cures. Thousands write that they suffered intensely with nervousness and were cured by this great medicine. The building-up powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla are wonderful. Even a few doses are sufficient to create an appetite, and from that time on its healing, purifying, strengthening effects are plainly felt. The nerves become stronger, the sleep becomes natural and refreshing, the hands and limbs become steady and soon "life seems to go on without effort," and perfect health is restored. Such is the work which Hood's Sarsaparilla is doing for hundreds of women to-day.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Makes Pure Blood

Aquatic Sports at Wellesley.

Wellesley girls show no diminution in their fondness for aquatic sports. There has just been shipped from the works of a Connecticut boat builder a fine eight-oared barge, intended for the use of the class of '97. The barge is described as forty-five feet long, three feet beam, and is constructed throughout of Spanish cedar, lap-streaked, with copper fastenings. The fittings are made up of patent roller slides, swivel rowlocks, and adjustable foot braces. It sounds like a racing boat, but it has not been built for that purpose, as the students are not permitted to race on the lake near the college, but it is safe to say there will be some pleasant and not too slow spins taken in the new barge.

They Knew What He Meant.

A Georgia judge warned his people in regard to coming into court intoxicated, and used these words: "I wish to put everybody on notice, that if they come into this courtroom while I am sitting on this bench drunk, they had better look out."

A BABY

CONTRADICTS THE DOCTORS.

All Are Happy, Glad, and Well.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

The theories of physicians in regard to female complaints suffer a "Waterloo" very frequently, when sensible and thinking women take matters into their own hands.

Women are sometimes compelled to act for themselves, because of the suffering forced upon them by incompetent doctors, who are baffled by very simple complaints, because they are not the right sex to comprehend them.

Lydia E. Pinkham, when she gave to the world her Vegetable Compound, lifted women from the darkness into light. She placed within their reach a guaranty, not only of health, but of delicacy and self-respect.

The following letter is a little story where a "dear little boy" was the "Waterloo."

"I have taken three bottles of your Vegetable Compound, one package of Sanative Wash, one box of Liver Pills; and now I have a dear little babe four weeks old, and I am well. I have to thank you for this.

"I have spent $200.00 for doctors' bills without a cure. For my cure I only spent $5.00.

"I was once a victim of female troubles in their worst form. I have suffered untold agonies every month; had to stay in bed, and have poultices applied, and then could not stand the pain.

"My physician told me if I became pregnant I would die. I had bladder trouble, itching, backache, catarrh of the stomach, hysteria, and heart trouble, fainting spells and leucorrhœa. Can you wonder that I sing the praises of a medicine that has cured me of all these ills?" MRS. GEO. C. KIRCHNER, 351 Snediker Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y.

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Age.

KENNEDY'S MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

DONALD KENNEDY, OF ROXBURY, MASS.,

Has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures every kind of Humor, from the worst Scrofula down to a common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases (both thunder humor). He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston. Send postal card for book.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the right quantity is taken.

When the lungs are affected it causes shooting pains, like needles passing through them; the same with the Liver or Bowels. This is caused by the ducts being stopped, and always disappears in a week after taking it. Read the label.

If the stomach is foul or bilious it will cause squeamish feelings at first.

No change of diet ever necessary. Eat the best you can get, and enough of it. Dose, one tablespoonful in water at bedtime. Sold by all Druggists.

New York's Old Paths.

There are more things in the heaven above and the earth beneath New York than are dreamed of in the average resident's philosophy.

For instance, there are many streets scattered throughout the downtown district that people less than a block away never heard of. There is Edgar street, to mention one, the shortest thoroughfare in the city. It runs from Greenwich street to Trinity place, and is about as wide as it is long.

Another funny little by-way with an odd name also runs to Trinity place, and is known as Tin Pot alley. The Mecca of newsboy gamblers is Theater alley, between Ann street and Beekman.

It about approximates to the famous Pie alley, of Boston, says the New York correspondent of the Boston Home Journal, and before the issue of the first edition of the evening papers is full of lads playing "craps."

One is selected from the number to watch the entrance, and at a cry from him of "cheese it, the cop," all disappear at the other end like pills running from the end of a bottle.

Lord's court is another funny place. Although a public street belonging to the city, it goes nowhere, and can only be reached by going through some one of the tall buildings surrounding it.

These infinitesimal streets are famous for various peculiarities. Gay street is known as Darktown, from the number of colored people there; while Washington Mews is mostly inhabited by cats that make night hideous after hours when the big iron gates at the end of the streets are closed.

Much Oil Needed.

Cholly—Yes, papa, I fix my hair this way by using lots of oil.

Papa—Yes, an' thet keeps th' wheel a-goin', hu?

Fashion Dolls.

Before the day of the useful book of fashion, women derived their knowledge of the fashions from dolls dressed in model costumes, which were sent from one country to another, more especially from Paris, which then as now, was the leading center of the mode. This custom of exchanging fashion dolls commenced early in the fifteenth century, and prevailed for more than one hundred years, when wood-cuts and engravings were substituted, until toward the end of the eighteenth century colored fashion plates and illustrated almanacs made their appearance. Wealthy ladies used to send dolls to their friends at a distance, and, as the costumes were made by professional "cutters," exactly to the right shape and in the latest style, with due regard to details of materials and trimmings, the dressmakers had only to enlarge the measurements of them.

Russian Tax on Amusements.

Russia has probably the most unique tax in the world. It is called the "amusement tax," and was instituted about fifteen months ago to found an institution for the poor under the name of the "Empress Marie Foundation." The tax is laid upon every amusement ticket sold, and the managers raise the price accordingly. Already nearly 1,000,000 rubles have been raised in this way (a gold ruble is worth 77 and a silver ruble 60 cents), of which St. Petersburgh contributed 200,000. All cities except Riga are merriest in December and January and the dullest in February and March, on account of Lent. Our government taxes whisky and tobacco because they are regarded as luxuries. Russia treats theater-going and club life as luxuries. —Troy Times.

Protecting the Oyster.

Private oyster beds in the upper Virginia waters of the Chesapeake have been successfully protected against the oyster thieves by a simple but ingenious device. The owner of the beds, sixteen acres in area, crossed them in two directions with ½-inch wire secured to posts at the point of intersection. Both wires and posts are invisible, even at low tide. The oyster pirate that attacks the bed is sure sooner or later to lose his dredge by having it entangled in the wire, and thefts are rare.

Arrests in Japan.

When a man is arrested in Japan he finds that the lockup is a square case like a crockery crate. The preliminary examination is secret. No one except the magistrate, his clerk, the prisoner and an officer may be present by special arrangement.

AROUND A BIG STATE.

BRIEF COMPILATION OF INDIANA NEWS.

What Our Neighbors Are Doing—Matters of General and Local Interest—Marriages and Deaths—Accidents and Crimes—Personal Pointers About Indianians.

Minor State News.

FROST flayed fruit badly in northern Indiana.

CUT-WORMS are after the corn near Newport.

SQUIRRELS are very abundant around Seymour.

CHARLEY REED of Muncie, was given ten years for horse stealing.

RICHMOND is to have a monthly comic paper called "Yours Truly."

FARMERS near Rockville report that a black bug is destroying crops.

CRAWFORDSVILLE'S city treasury contains a surplus of over $10,000.

NAPPANEE is to have a new elevator with a capacity of 50,000 bushels.

AN effort will be made to reorganize Brazil's defunct militia campany.

MAT WILLIAMS, murderer in the southern pen, was found dead in his cell.

WHITEWATER RIVER in Wayne County has been stocked with 1,200,000 fish.

JACOB GOETZ, aged 60, a farmer near Columbus, fell from a hay loft. May die.

JOSEPH TODD, carpenter, fell from a ladder at Rockville, and was fatally injured.

WHILE the family of George Dinins, Muncie, was at breakfast, a sneak theif secured $100.

GEORGE LEWIS, a wealthy Peru lumberman, was struck by a plank in his saw mill, and killed.

SEVERAL Marion citizens want the residents to subscribe $140,000 to a new railroad that it is proposed to build.

THE village of Southwest, near Goshen, has no postmaster and Uncle Sam can't find anybody who'll take the job.

HENRY EBERHART, near South Bend, accidentally shot and killed himself while climbing over a fence with a shotgun.

OWING to the smallpox scare—which was nothing more than chickenpox—at Valparaiso, nearly 3,000 were vaccinated.

THE crown sheet of a Panhandle freight engine blew off near Winamac. Brakeman Long and Fireman Kinner were seriously scalded.

AN Anderson man cut small pieces of iron into the size of pennies and worked slot machines for about $100 worth of chocolate candy, etc.

WILLIAM NOTIX'S team ran away near Anderson, fatally injuring him. Joseph Holmes' team also took fright and he was probably fatally injured.

A MADISON firm has received an order from Germany for 25,000 pounds of burdock root, and it is said to be the largest sale of the kind ever made by a single firm in this country.

JACOB HUTCHINGS, aged eighteen, fell while running through a field near Muncie. His head struck a thorn, which penetrated the skull at the top of the ear. He is dying of blood poisoning.

PHILIP GOETZ and David Tinkey of Columbus, were personal friends. The former died by accident and was buried. Tinkey could not attend the funeral of his friend, and just after 12 o'clock fainted away, and is dead.

THE report of the school enumerators for Vigo County shows a falling off in the school population from last year of 1,461, of which 1,157 is in Terre Haute. The total for the county is 13,935, about equally divided between the city and the township.

THE annual meeting of the Northern Indiana Editorial Association to be held at Logansport, June 13 and 14, promises to be one of the most interesting and enjoyable in the history of the organization. The executive committee of the association in conjunction with the local newspaper men has arranged an interesting programe.

A MAN named Davis met his divorced wife on the highway near Rockville, and fired three shots at her, two taking effect in her arm and one in the head. He then went home, took morphine and shot himself. The town marshal prevented William Chestwright, brother of the woman, from shooting Davis. Mrs. Davis will die, but Davis may recover.

MANY horses in the vicinity of Plainfield are afflicted with a disease that is puzzling our best posted horsemen. The animal first shows symptoms of the disease by a swelling in the throat. In a few days pus begins to discharge from the nose, accompanied with a cough. This is followed by a weakness of such a character that the animal is unable to get up without help after lying down for a rest.

LOUIS SCHMIDT of Laporte, has just found his brother Charles Schmidt, whom he had mourned as dead for forty-two years. The brothers came from Germany and separated at Buffalo, N. Y. Repeated efforts on the part of Louis to locate his brother failed until recently, when his whereabouts were ascertained through the Buffalo officials. The result will be a joyous reunion in a day or two at Buffalo.

FOR several weeks fire bugs have been setting fire to buildings in Terre Haute, but, fortunately, the losses have been confined to barns, the fires in other structures being discovered in time to prevent serious damage. The night of the firemen's annual ball the building where the ball was being held was fired three times. After midnight the other morning fire was discovered in four of the largest business buildings on Main street.

DELLA MILLER, of near Sedalia, was found dead in her room shot through the heart. The nature of the wound would indicate suicide, but the young lady's sister Margary says that Della had taken up her father's revolver and playfully remarked that she was going to shoot it. Margary being afraid then hurriedly rushed from the room and after the report returned to find her sister dying. The dead girl was a general favorite in the community, cheerful disposition and, so far as known, had no troubles of any kind.

LOUIE ALTER, aged 10, saved her young sister's life at Frackfort by risking her own. A vicious dog attacked the child. Louie grabbed the beast and, although being bitten herself, kept it from attacking the child. She held the dog until assistance arrived.

RICHARD PADGETT was instantly killed in the yards of the Big Four, Anderson, near the Union glass work. Padgett, who was a brakeman on the local freight of the southern division, was caught while making a coupling, thrown under a car and two of the trucks passed over his body. The trainmen who went to his rescue found him dead.

ORLANDO BANDY, who was found wandering on the streets of Terre Haute, recently, and sent to jail as insane, proves to be a prominent citizen of Gas City who has been mysteriously missing.

THE prospect for a good wheat crop in Decatur County is meager. On the high land the dry weather has cut the wheat short, and in the low ground it is beginning to head out. In the past week the Hessian fly has been at work on the wheat, and it has the appearance of live stock having tramped it down. The Hessian fly is a small, two-winged fly, nearly black, and very destructive to young wheat, and is so called from the opinion that it was brought to this country by the Hessian troops during the Revolution.

HUMOR OF THE WEEK

STORIES TOLD BY FUNNY MEN OF THE PRESS.

Odd, Curious and Laughable Phases of Human Nature Graphically Portrayed by Eminent Word Artists of Our Own Day—A Budget of Fun.

Sprinkles of Spice.

In order to reduce his weight
He purchased him a wheel;
Before he'd ridden it a week
He fell off a good deal.
—Kansas City Journal.

The plumber now steps down to make room for the milliner.—Philadelphia Record.

Miss Oldun—"I'd like to see any man alive kiss me!" Mr. Sharp—"I guess you would."—Yonkers Statesman.

Robbins—"Higbee is a genius." Bradford—"Can do anything, I suppose?" Robbins—"Yes, anything but make a living."

Beggar—"Ach, my dear sir, I have lost my leg." Gentleman—"Very sorry. I haven't seen it anywhere about."—Wiener Luft.

Some women are so ill-mannered as to go right into a store and try to interrupt a conversation between the clerks. —Cleveland Plain-Dealer.

"How is it that you are still a bachelor?" inquired Cags. "I don't know," said Taggs, "unless it's because I never married."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Nervous employer—"I don't pay you for whistling." Office boy—"That's all right, sir. I can't whistle well enough yet to charge extra for it."—Truth.

She—"No, Mr. Blunderre, I cannot entertain your proposal. The truth is—I am engaged to marry your father." He—"Why, the old idiot!"—Indianapolis Journal.

"What do you think of the financial question, major?" "It's ahead of me, sir. The fellow who borrowed my last dollar left town last night."—Atlanta Constitution.

He (resuming his seat after a brief visit outside)—"What an atmosphere of realism there is about this play." She—"Yes. Smells like cloves."—Chicago Tribune.

Mother—"You are at the foot of the spelling class again, are you?" Boy—"Yes'm." Mother—"How did that happen?" Boy—"Got too many zs in scissors."—Tid-Bits.

"Why, she actually cut Mr. Storflington, and Storflington, you know, is one of the better sort." "Yes; choice cuts come high now, but we must have 'em." —Boston Transcript.

He'll soon be here—the fellow who
Asks if it's warm enough for you;
And likewise he—which is much worse—
Who jokes about him in bad verse.
—Kansas City Journal.

Jack Borrowit—"I woke last night and found a burglar in my room." George Genrus—"Well! Well! Did you succeed in borrowing anything from him?"—New York Weekly.

"That's about as crooked a piece of work as I ever saw," mused Uncle Allen Sporks, looking at the track the lightning had made on the body of the big tree.—Chicago Tribune.

"Which is my part in this duet?" asked the prima donna of her husband, who was tenor. "Your part? Here it is, of course. The one with the last word in it."—London Punch.

Hoax—"Have you seen D'Auber's new painting? He calls it 'Friendless.'" Joax—"Yes; it's remarkably realistic. I understand a base-ball umpire posed for him."—Philadelphia Record.

"Have you heard that the big sleeves are going out, George, dear?" "Yes, my love, I have, but I don't believe it." "Why not, pray?" "I don't believe they can get through the door."—Harper's Bazar.

Mr. Dunn (unpaid bill in his hand)—When shall I call again, Mr. Owens? Mr. Owens—Well, it would hardly be proper for you to call again until I have returned the present call.—Harper's Bazar.

"Doesn't Mrs. Noowoman strike you as a person of remarkably decided opinions?" "Naw. She can't make up her mind, apparently, whether she wants to be a gentleman or a lady."—Indianapolis Journal.

He—"Wasn't Brown's wife named Stone before she was married?" She—"Yes, and it was a very suitable name." He—"What do you mean?" She—"Oh, nothing! Only she threw herself at his head."—Life.

Fozzleton—Every time you measure me for a pair of trousers you measure me a little short. Tailor—That isn't my fault. Fozzleton—Why not? Tailor—Because you always come in that way.—Brooklyn Eagle.

"I want to see a big, roomy flat," exclaimed the pompous man, as he strode into the real estate agent's office, "and I'm in a hurry, too." "You'll find a mirror in the washroom," replied the clerk, politely.—Chicago Post.

Dauber—I heard a fine compliment paid to my painting of "Mephistopheles" to-day. Critique—What was that? Dauber—A fellow looked at it for a while and said: "Well, that looks like the devil."—Philadelphia Record.

"Married!" sighed the elderly friend. "Married and with no provisions for the future." "No," smilingly chirped the young bride, "there are no provisions for the future in the house. He just detests canned goods."—Indianapolis Journal.

A little girl was overheard talking to her doll, whose arm had come off, exposing the sawdust stuffing. "You dear, good, obedient dolly. I knew I had told you to chew your food fine, but I didn't think you would chew it so fine as that."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Beat Dumas on Remuneration.

Alexander Dumas was much addicted to boasting of the high fees he received for his articles. "That is pretty fair, no doubt," once said a stranger to him at a party. "How much was the highest fee you ever got?"

"Ten francs a line," replied Dumas.

"Bah! that is nothing," said the other gentleman. "I get about half a million francs a line?"

"Really?" rejoined Dumas, with an incredulous smile at the apparently outrageous piece of brag. "Pray, what are you?"

"A railway contractor."—The Outlook.

Highest of all in leavening strength.—Latest U. S. Gov. Food Report.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Economy requires that in every receipt calling for baking powder the Royal shall be used. It will go further and make the food lighter, sweeter, of finer flavor, more digestible and wholesome.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 WALL ST., NEW YORK.

French Comic Songs.

One of the French papers has been making inquiries on the subject of the profits derived from the sale of popular comic songs. It hardly pays, it seems, to publish songs that only have a moderate success at the music halls, as up to 1,000 copies or more the sale barely pays for the cost of printing and paper. After that figure is reached, however, the profits are large. There are two sorts of copies—those which have only the words and the notes of the air, and those which give besides the piano-forte accompaniment. Comparatively few of the latter are sold. "En revenant de la Revue," commonly called the Boulanger March, brought its happy composer alone 50,000f from the sale of copies. The author of the verses is believed to have received much more than this. Nevertheless, the business of song writing is not a very lucrative one, for successes such as that are very rare. Even the best-known men, such as M. Delormel, M. Petit and M. Garnier, are believed to earn less than £300 a year on an average.

Unstable Constitution.

The French constitution seems to be a great menace to the republic. During the last hundred years she has had no fewer than seventeen constitutions. Not content with this exhibition of political versatility, French history reveals that seven provisional governments at different times managed to worry along without the annoyance of a constitution.

Milestones on the Road

That leads to health are marked in the memory of those who, at regular stages and persistently, have been conveyed thither by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a potent auxiliary of nature in her efforts to throw off the yoke of disease. Malarial, kidney, rheumatic and bilious trouble, constipation and nervousness take their departure when this benignant medicine is resorted to for their eradication.

Metals and Alloys.

Twenty-four-carat gold is all gold; twenty-two-carat gold has twenty-two parts of gold, one of silver and one of copper; eighteen-carat gold has eighteen parts of pure gold and three parts each of silver and copper in its composition; twelve-carat gold is half gold, the remainder being made up of three and one-half parts of silver and eight and one-half parts of copper.

I HAVE found Piso's Cure for Consumption an unfailing medicine.—F. R. LOTZ, 1305 Scott St., Covington, Ky., Oct. 1, 1894.

NEVER run into debt unless you see a way to get out again.

For the Dunkards' Convention at Decatur, Ill., May 28th to June 8th the Nickel Plate road offers a superb passenger service with magnificent sleeping cars, unexcelled diners, luxurious day coaches, and reduced excursion rates.

WE GIVE AWAY

Absolutely free of cost, for a LIMITED TIME ONLY,

COUPON No. 112

The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, By R. V. Pierce, M. D., Chief Consulting Physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, a book of over 1,000 large pages and 300 colored and other illustrations, in strong paper covers to any one sending 21 cents in one-cent stamps for packing and postage only. Over 680,000 copies of this complete Family Doctor Book already sold in cloth binding at regular price of $1.50. Address: (with stamps and this Coupon) WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, No. 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

New Canal Scheme.

The latest engineering and ship canal idea is to dispense with the twenty-four locks in the Welland Canal leading from Lake Erie to Lake Ontario, and to make the whole drop of 326 feet between these two lakes in two pneumatic balance locks, built of steel, operated by compressed air, large enough to admit vessels of ocean draught.

WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION

Will be of value to the world by illustrating the improvements in the mechanical arts and eminent physicians will tell you that the progress in medicinal agents, has been of equal importance, and as a strengthening laxative that Syrup of Figs is far in advance of all others.

Colonies of Imbeciles.

Ohio is about to follow the example of Pennsylvania in establishing a state colony of imbeciles. Pennsylvania has proven on its idiot farm at Elwyn that properly attended imbeciles will form an industrious and self-sustaining colony, to the advantage of all concerned.

Hall's Catarrh Cure

Is a constitutional cure. Price 75 cents.

SINCE 1890 Turkey has bought 700,000 improved rifles and 200,000,000 cartridges made of smokeless powder are stored in different parts of the country.

Homeseekers' Excursion

To the West, Northwest and Southwest, May 21st and June 11th at low rates. Ask agents of the Nickel Plate road. Remember we offer a perfect passenger service with through sleeping cars between Chicago, Buffalo, New York and Boston.

THERE are five "tasters" in the Sultan's kitchen at Constantinople. They taste every dish before it is placed before their royal master.

Reduced Rates

Are authorized by the Nickel Plate road to the following conventions:

1. German Baptists, May 28th to June 8th, Decatur, Ill.
2. Commercial Travelers, May 31st to June 1st, Columbus, Ohio.
3. Knights of Honor, June 10th to 19th, New York City.
4. Epworth League, June 27th to 30th, Chattanooga, Tenn.

CLEANLINESS of the skin has a great effect upon the assimilation of food. It has been proved that swine that are washed put on a fifth more flesh than those that are unwashed.

Tobacco Destroys Vitality.

Nervous system paralyzed by nicotine means lost manhood, weak eyes, and a general all gone look and feeling that robs life of its pleasure. Tobacco is the root of many a symptom of weakness, and No-To-Bac a guaranteed cure that will make you strong, vigorous and happy in more ways than one. No-To-Bac guaranteed and sold by Druggists everywhere. Book, titled "Don't Tobacco Spit or Smoke Your Life Away." Ad. Sterling Remedy Co., New York or Chicago.

BICYCLISTS must first learn to ride fairly well before they are allowed to use their wheels in the public streets of Russian cities.

The public no longer lacks a genuine remedy for skin diseases. The article is Glenn's Sulphur Soap.

"Hill's Hair and Whisker Dye," Black or Brown, 50c.

A MOVEMENT has been started in Ceylon for the establishment of a college for the higher education of girls.

Excursion Rates

West, Northwest, and Southwest. Agents of the Nickel Plate are authorized to sell Homeseekers' Excursion tickets May 21st and June 11th. An unexcelled dining car service and palatial sleepers on through trains between Chicago, Buffalo, New York and Boston.

BE temperate in all things.

Mrs. Winslow's SOOTHING SYRUP for Children teething; softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

BE just before you are generous.

For Sprains and Bruises and all Painful Accidents, . . .

St. Jacobs Oil in ALL KINDS OF SPORTS

. . . Is the professional's first choice of a remedy always.

"The Best Is Aye the Cheapest."

Avoid Imitations of and Substitutes for

SAPOLIO

"Plain, but athletic."

(After sketch in New York Truth.)

Evidently the picture of a woman cleaning house for the first time with Pearline. She finds that what has always been the hardest kind of hard work is now comparatively easy, pleasant, quickly done—and in her joy and enthusiasm and high spirits, she kicks up her heels.

Probably this is an extreme case. Still, it may be there are numbers of women who, when they clean house first with Pearline, manifest their pleasure in the same way. You don't hear of it, though. They simply tell you that in all their lives the work of house-cleaning has never been so light, so satisfactory, so soon over, so thoroughly well done.

Send it Back — Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, be honest—send it back. 187 JAMES PYLE, New York.

BEST IN THE WORLD.

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH. For durability and for cheapness this preparation is truly unrivalled.

PASTE STOVE POLISH. RUSTLESS LABOR SAVING. BEST IN THE WORLD.

THE RISING SUN STOVE POLISH is cakes for general blacking of a stove.

THE SUN PASTE POLISH for a quick after-dinner shine, applied and polished with a cloth.

Morse Bros., Props., Canton, Mass., U.S.A.

NATIONAL EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION MEETING.

Denver, Colo., July 5 to 12, 1895.

For this occasion the Wabash Railroad has made a rate of one fare for the round trip to Denver plus $2.00, added for membership fee.

For full particulars in regard to this meeting, time of trains, rates, route, etc., call upon or write to any representative of the Wabash R. R., or connecting lines, or

C. S. CRANE,
Gen'l Pass. & Tkt. Agt.,
Wabash R. R.,
St. Louis, Mo.

THE inch was formerly divided into three "barle corns," these divisions being originally the length of a well dried grain of "corn" of the barley.

Do You Know Its Cause?

Indigestion: Do you know when you have it? Do you know its cause and cure? Ask your druggist for Ripans Tabules. One gives relief.

STRANGE bed-warmers are used by Chilean women. In cold weather, when in bed, they keep their feet warm by placing them on a dog.

THE rich are envied more by those who have a little than by those who have nothing.

LOW EXCURSION rates West, May 21st and June 11th via the Nickel Plate road. Superb sleeping cars and sumptuous diners make travel on this popular line a luxury.

EAT FRIENDS OATS

ALWAYS THE BEST

Made Exclusively from Superior KILN DRIED Selected IOWA WHITE OATS

SOLD ONLY in 2 lb. pkgs.

Beecham's pills are for biliousness, sick headache, dizziness, dyspepsia, bad taste in the mouth, heartburn, torpid liver, foul breath, sallow skin, coated tongue, pimples, loss of appetite, etc., when caused by constipation; and constipation is the most frequent cause of all of them.

One of the most important things for everybody to learn is that constipation causes more than half the sickness in the world, especially of women; and it can all be prevented. Go by the book, free at your druggist's, or write B. F. Allen Co., 365 Canal St., New York. Pills, 10¢ and 25¢ a box.

Annual sales more than 6,000,000 boxes.

★ HIGHEST AWARD ★ WORLD'S FAIR.

IMPERIAL GRANUM IS ★ THE BEST ★ PREPARED FOOD

SOLD EVERYWHERE.

★ JOHN CARLE & SONS, New York. ★

McELREES WINE OF CARDUI.

For Female Diseases.

WE SELL PRINTING OFFICE OUTFITS

at reasonable rates and upon liberal terms. WRITE FOR PARTICULARS. FORT WAYNE NEWSPAPER UNION, Fort Wayne, Ind.

HOMES IN THE SOUTH.

Good farms; fine climate; low prices; easy terms. Address D. H. HOGAN, Colonization Agent Q. & C. R. R., BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

PATENTS Thomas P. Simpson, Washington, D. C. No att'y fee until Patent obtained. Write for Inventor's Guide.

F. W. N. U. - - - - - No. 21—95

When Writing to Advertisers, say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

LYON'S 7 WONDERS

A SPECIFIC For all DERANGEMENTS of the STOMACH. PRICE $1.00

Manf'd by THE LYON MEDICINE CO. INDIANAPOLIS IND.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Disappearance of a Stomach Trouble.

Lyon Medicine Company:

DEAR SIRS—For fifteen years I was afflicted with stomach, heart and kidney troubles. I was induced to try LYON'S SEVEN WONDERS, and am more than pleased at the result. My stomach trouble has disappeared and my heart has resumed its normal action. I can cheerfully recommend it.

ALFRED PARISH.

ORLEANS, IND., July 25, 1894.

Hot Flashes and Headaches.

To the Lyon Medicine Company:

After using three boxes I am pleased to say my appetite has returned, the pains have entirely left my side, I no more experience hot flashes and my headaches have disappeared. I am free to say that had it not been for LYON'S SEVEN WONDERS I should not be alive to-day. MRS. LIZZIE JOHNSON.

ORLEANS, IND., July 26, 1894.

ROOT & COMPANY,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

GRADUATING DRESSES - - -

Commencement Day not far off. Has the Graduation Dress been considered? All the fabrics mentioned are suited for this special purpose. There's a very complete assortment of both plain and fancy wears in silk and wool cream textures.

All Wool Cashmeres at	40 cents
" " Albatrosse at	38, 50 & 65 "
" " Challies at	35 "
" " Henriettas at	40 "
French Diagonals at	50 "
All Wool Crepes and Crepons	38, 50 to 90c
Silk and Wool Lansdowne	$1.00
Silk Warp Engalines	1.00

Silks for Graduation:

Figured India Silks	65c, 75c and $1 00
China Silks	40, 50 and 75 cts.
Habutai Silks	45 and 65 cts.
Taffeta Silks	$1 00.
Crepe de Chine	1.00.
All Silk Crepe and Crepons	60 and 75 cts.

FANS

All Silk, Cream and White, delicately painted by hand $1, $1-25, $1.50, $2. $2.50, $3

Kid Gloves for graduating:

Fine 4 B Glace	$1.00.
8-inch Suede Mousquetaires	$1.25 and $1 50.
16 " " "	2 00.
Cream Mitts, elbow length	75 cts.
" " arm "	$1 and $1 25.

Charming lines of LACES for Graduation.

SAMPLES MAILED AT ONCE UPON REQUEST

ROOT & COMPANY.

Saturday's Daily.

Winona Assembly.

A dispatch of yesterday, to the Ft. Wayne Journal speaks of the final purchase of Spring Fountain Park for the Presbyterian Chautauqua:

"The executive committee of the Winona association met here yesterday to complete the arrangements of the establishment of the Presbyterian summer school at Spring Fountain Park. There were present at the meeting, Charles H. Connor, of Louisville, Ky., president; J. M. Studebaker, of South Bend, vice-president; George W. Brown, of Indianapolis, treasurer; E. S. Scott, of Logansport, secretary; Sol. C. Dickey, of Indianapolis, councillor; E. F. Yarnelle, of Fort. Wayne, and Prof. John M. Coulter, of Chicago, principal of the schools.

The Rev. Henry Johnson, of South Bend, and J. E. Beyer, of Warsaw, were added to the executive committee, and J. F. Beyer was elected superintendent of grounds. The final decision of the committee has not yet been made public and probably will not be known until the railroads are heard from.

Later. At a late hour last night it was learned that the Winona Assembly had purchased the grounds and accessories of Spring Fountain Park, the Pennsylvania and Big Four railroad companies and the city of Warsaw having donated $5,000 each. The figures of the deal could not be learned, but it is said that the grounds were sold for a handsome sum.

WHEAT 70!

L. J. Miller informs us that wheat has reached this encouraging figure, the first time in several years. Thursday, it stood at 65½ cents for a time, but he got an extra good load of Wm. Merica and paid 66 cents for it. The price started at 64 cents this week and gained a cent each day till it was 70 cents.

CORUNNA

Wonder if the Queen of May brought along her winter wraps?

Minnie Gregg visited with friends last week near Auburn.

Rev. F. J. Spekein was called to Hudson last Friday to preach a funeral sermon.

The Lake Shore "pay buggy" went through last Friday and made glad the hearts of the boys.

What's the matter, of Corunna celebrating the Ge-lorious Fourth this year?

Mrs. S. G. Wise, of Goshen, is visiting with her sister Mrs. Emily Weirman this week.

Jonathan Shook was pretty badly bruised up in a runaway last Thursday.

Mrs. Ida Knauer and Miss Dell. Orr visited Mrs. Knauer's parents in Avilla last Monday.

Mrs. Charley Mercer, who has been visiting in Shelby Ohio for Several weeks, returned home last Monday.

When you go to a store to buy a pair of pants, it is well enough to learn the the price of the article before putting them on,

Elder Frank Minnick attend the funeral of Ex-Gov. Chase in Indianapolis Thursday,

Charley Wallace is headquarters for Chewing Gum. He says he will sell quantities to suit purchaser—by the stick, by the box, or by the cord.

Last Monday while working in the timber, Levi Hartman fell a tree on one of his horses, killing it instantly.

The social given by the Christian Endeavor last Saturday evening at Hartman's Hall was a success, Notwithstanding the disagreeable weather.

There is great danger in neglecting Colic, Cholera and similar complaints An absolutely prompt and safe cure is ound in De Witt's Colic and Cholera cure. For sale by all druggists

Marry This Girl—Somebody.

MR. EDITOR:—

I stained a blue silk dress with lemon juice; what will restore the color? I am making lots of money selling the Climax Dish Washer. Have not made less than $10 any day I worked. Every family wants a Dish Washer, and pay $5 quickly when they see the dishes washed and dried perfectly in ONE MINUTE. I generally sell at every house. It is easy selling what every family wants to buy. I sell as many washers as my brother, and he is an old sale man. I will clear $3,000 this year. By addressing J. H. Nolen, 60 W. Third Ave., Columbus, Ohio, anyone can get particulars about the Dish Washer and can do as well as I am doing. Talk about hard times; you can soon pay off a mortgage, when making $10 a day, if you will ONLY WORK; and why won't people try, when they have such good opportunities. MAGGIE R.

PILES! PILES! PILES!

Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment will cure Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles when all other Ointments have failed. It absorbs the tumors allays the itching at once, acts as a poultice, gives instant relief. Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment is prepared only for Piles and Itching of the private parts, and nothing else. Every box is warranted. Sold by druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of price, 50c, and $1.00 per box. WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Prop's, Cleveland, O. Sold on a guarantee by Matheny & Gerke.

Old Dr. Drummond,

After years of patient study and experiment, has given to the world a preparation which is an absolute and permanent cure for every form of Rheumatism. The price is $5. but it is two large bottles—enough for a month's treatment—and will relieve the worst case from the first dose. Sent by express to any address upon receipt of price, by the Drummond Medicine Co, 48 Maiden Lane, New York with full particulars and testimonials of wonderful cures. Agents Wanted. 22

Persons who are subject to diarrhœa will find a speedy cure in De Witt's Colic and Cholera Cure. Use no other. It is the best that can be made or that money can procure. It leaves the system in natural condition after its use.

BUCKLEN'S ARNICA SALVE.—The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Robbins & McCord. tf

T. F. Anthony, ex-postmaster of Promise City, Iowa, says: "I bought one bottle of 'Mystic Cure' for Rheumatism and two doses of it did me more good than all the medicine I ever took." Sold by Robbins & McCord, druggists, Auburn. 41tf

English Spavin Liniment removes all hard, soft or calloused lumps and blemishes from horses, blood spavins, curbs, splints, sweeney, ring-bone, stifles, sprains, all swollen throats, coughs, etc. Save $50 by use of one bottle. Warranted the most wonderful blemish cure ever known. Sold by Robbins and McCord druggists Auburn. 34tf

We recmend De Witt's Colic and Cholera Cure because we believe it a safe and reliable remedy. It's good effects are shown at once in cases of Cholera Morbus and similar complaints.

Relief in One Day.

South American Nervine relieves the worst cases of nervous prostrations nervousness and nervous dyspepsia in a single day. No such relief and blessing has ever come to the invalids of this country. Its powers to cure the stomach are wonderful in the extreme. It always cures; it cannot fail. It radically cures all weaknees of the stomach and never disappoints. Its effects are marvelous and surprising.—It gladdens the hearts of the suffering and brings immediate relief. It is a luxury to take and always safe. Trial bottles 15 cents. Sold by Robbins & McCord druggist Auburn Ind. 50tf

Rebecca Wilkinson, of Brownsvalley, Ind., says: I have been in a distressed condition for three years from Nervousness Weakness of the Stomach, Dyspepsia and Indigestion until my health was gone. I had been doctoring constantly with no relief. I bought one bottle of South American Nervine, which did me more good than any $50 worth of doctoring I ever did in my life. I would advise every weakly person to use this valuable and lovely remedy, a few bottles of it has cured me completely. I consider it the greatest medicine in the world." Warranted the most wonderful stomach and nerve cure ever known. Trial bottles 15 cents. Sold by Robbins and McCord druggists Auburn Ind. 34tf

A VALUABLE FIND.

After years of study and labor there has at last been discovered a sure and never failing remedy. It has been tested on patients who have despaired of ever being cured, and the results have been in every case, wonderful. Groff's Rheumatic Cure is unequaled as a positive remedy in all cases of Chronic and Acute Inflammatory Rheumatism, Gout, Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia, especially Ovarian Neuralgia, Dysmenorrhœa and all kindred affections. It is also a valuable Blood Purifier, being especially useful in Eczema, Psoriasis, Scrofula, all Glandular Enlargements and diseases of the Liver and Kidneys. It is absolutely free from all narcotics. Severe attacks are relieved in from one to three days. and a positive cure effected in from five to eighteen days. For sale by Druggists. Manufactured and sold by THE GROFF MEDICINE CO., Chicago. 17tf

L. S. & M. S. R. R.

TIME TABLE.—In Effect Nov. 18, 1894.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

Stations—	Mail.	Exp'ss	Fre'gt
Fort Wayne, p	11 45 am	4 45 pm	6 40 am
New Era	12 14 pm	5 14	7 27
Auburn Junc.	12 25	5 25	7 58
Auburn	12 29	5 29	8 37
Waterloo	12 41	5 41	9 24
Summit	12 52	5 52	9 45
Steubenville	12 56	5 56	.....
Pleasant Lake	1 03	6 03	10 12
Angola	1 14	6 14	10 50
Jackson	3 25	8 25	4 30

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

Stations—	Freight	Exp'ss	Mail
Jackson, dp	6 55 am	11 20 am	6 30 pm
Angola	12 25 pm	2 21 pm	8 51
Pleasant Lake	1 03	2 32	9 01
Steubenville	.....	2 40	9 07
Summit	1 25	2 44	9 11
Waterloo	2 30	3 00	9 24
Auburn	3 00	3 11	9 35
Auburn Junc.	3 14	3 14	9 38
New Era	4 05	3 24	9 50
Fort Wayne	5 25	3 55	10 25

For rates on tickets or freight to all points, call on or address E. T. DeLAPP, Agent at Auburn

THERE is but one way in the world to be sure of having the best paint, and that is to use only a well-established brand of strictly pure white lead, pure linseed oil, and pure colors.*

The following brands are standard, "Old Dutch" process, and are always absolutely

Strictly Pure White Lead

"Anchor,"	"Collier,"
"Eckstein,"	"Shipman,"
"Armstrong & McKelvy,"	"Southern,"
"Beymer-Bauman,"	"Red Seal,"
"Davis-Chambers,"	"Fahnestock."

* If you want colored paint, tint any of the above strictly pure leads with National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors.

These colors are sold in one-pound cans, each can being sufficient to tint 25 pounds of Strictly Pure White Lead the desired shade; they are in no sense ready-mixed paints, but a combination of perfectly pure colors in the handiest form to tint Strictly Pure White Lead.

Send us a postal card and get our book on paints and color-card, free.

NATIONAL LEAD CO.
Chicago Branch,
State and Fifteenth Streets, Chicago.

For sale by John L Davis, Auburn, Ind

DR. WILLIAMS' KIDNEY PILLS

A remedy that has no equal in diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs, Have you neglected your kidneys? Have you overworked your nervous system and caused trouble with your kidneys and liver? Have you pains in the loins, side, back, loins and bladder? Have you a flabby appearance of the face, especially under the eyes? Too frequent desire to pass urine? No matter what the cause, we know Dr. Williams' Kidney Pills will cure you. Imparts new life to the diseased organs, tones up the whole system and makes a new man of you. Mailed on receipt of price, $1 00 per box.

WILLIAMS M'F'G CO., Props., Cleveland, O.
Sold by FISCHLER & SON, Auburn. 1y30

When occasion demands its use, try De-Witt's Witch Hazel Salve. It is cooling to burns, stops pain instantly, cleanses, a perfect healer for scalds or skin eruptions. Always cures piles All druggists.

Relief in Six Hours.

Distressing Kidney and Bladder diseases relieved in six hours by the "New Great South American Kidney Cure." This new remedy is a great surprise on account of its exceeding promptness in relieving pain in the bladder, kidneys, back and every part of the urinary passages in male or female. It relieves retention of water and pain in passing it almost immediately. If you want quick relief and cure this is your remedy. Sold by Robbins and McCord druggists Auburn Ind. 34tf

The most pleasant little pills for regulating the bowels, are De Witt's Little Early Risers. Cure sick headache and constipation. Small pill. Small dose.

He Couldn't Drive Nails.

Jonas Swartz, Hartville, Ohio, relates an experience all the more wonderful because he is nearly seventy. He says: "I wouldn't take $100 for the good Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer has done me. I always worked hard and was careless about a little stomach trruble I had and sleeplessness, which I suppose accounts for the nervous trouble which struck me about four years ago. Limbs of my right side got so I couldn't control them; at times I couldn't hold a cup in my hand to drink from it, and in a crowd would unconsciously hit people with my jerking right arm. The Doctors called it nervous paralysis and said that, at my age, I couldn't be cured. I saw Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer advertised in the Repository and got a sample bottle of it, which I thought helped me, so bought a bottle. Think I have used three bottles, and they have made a steady man of me. I have not felt as well in the four years and am still improving. Why, for two years I couldn't drive a nail." Mr. Geidlinger, in whose store the interview took place, fully corroborated Mr. Swartz' statement, saying his cure was a surprise to all who knew of the case. We are authorized to say, this medicine for control and cure of all nerve troubles, is sold by F. E. Davenport and by all druggists. 18-22

Wide Reputations.

If King Solomon was alive he would now say: "Go to the traveling man learn his ways, and be wise." Mr. C. W. Battell, a Cincinnati traveling man representing the Queen City Printing Ink Co., after suffering intensely for two or three days with lameness of the shoulder, resulting from rhuematism, completely cured it with two applications of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. This remedy is gaining a wide reputation for its prompt cures of rhuematism, lame back, sprains, swellings and lameness. 50 cent bottles are for sale by Robbins & McCord Druggists. 18-22

Waterproof collars and cuffs that you can clean yourself by simply wiping off with a wet sponge. The genuine look exactly like linen and every piece is marked this way:

TRADE CELLULOID MARK.

They are made by covering a linen collar or cuff with "celluloid," and are the only waterproof goods made with an interlining, and the only goods that can stand the wear and give perfect satisfaction. Never wilt and not effected by moisture. Try them and you will never regret it. Ask for those with above trade mark and refuse any imitations. If your dealer does not have them we will mail you a sample direct on receipt of price. Collars 25c. each. Cuffs 50c. pair. State whether stand-up or turned-down collar is wanted.

The Celluloid Company,
427-429 Broadway, New York.

EIGHTHPAGE.

THURSDAY.....MAY 23, 1895.

A QUERY.

When I was a chunk of a lad I heard my grandfather tell that before the Revolutionary war there was a large walnut tree about three feet in diamater that fell out of root on his father's farm at Wheeling, Virginia, that had a skeleton of a human being under it and the thigh bone was three feet long. The question is, How tall is a person that has a thigh bone three feet long? I want some doctor or school teacher to answer this question.

JACOB LINK,
Auburn Junction.

LATE LITERARY NEWS.

Rudyard Kipling to Revisit India.

Much interest will be felt by the public in the return of Rudyard Kipling to India. He has just agreed to furnish a regular contribution to The Cosmopolitan Magazine for the coming year, beginning his work upon his return to India. India has never been critically considered by such a pen as Kipling's, and what he will write for the Cosmopolitan will attract the widest attention, both here and in England.

Perhaps the most beautiful series of pictures ever presented of the Rocky mountains will be found in a collection of fourteen original paintings executed by Thomas Moran, for the May Cosmopolitan. To those who have been in the Rockies, this issue of the Cosmopolitan will be a souvenir worthy of preservation. This number contains fifty-two original drawings by Thomas Moran, Oliver Hetford, Dan Beard H. M. Eaton, F. G. Attwood, F. O. Small, F. Lix, J. H. Dolph and Rosina Emmett Sherwood, besides six reproductions of famous recent works of art, and forty other interesting illustrations—ninety-eight in all. Though the Cosmopolitan sells for but fifteen cents, probably no magazine in the world will present for May so great a number of illustrations specially designed for its pages by famous illustrators. The fiction in this number is by F. Hopkinson Smith, Gustav Kobbe, W. Clark Russell, Edgar W. Nye and T. C. Crawford.

There is one medicine that will cure immediately. We refer to De Witt's Colic and Cholera Cure for all Summer Complaints. No delay, no disappointment, no failure. All druggists

BUTLER.

Rev. Cummins preached the baccalaureate sermon before the High School graduating class at the M. E. church Sunday evening. His excellent effort was highly appreciated by the large crowd that filled the spacious edifice.

Benj. Wallick a former well known citizen of Troy township, who emigrated from that place to Effingham, Kansas in 1860, is visiting old acquaintances and friends in this vicinity. The west seems to have dealt kindly with Mr. W., as evidence by his robust appearance and perfect health, though bordering on his three score and ten years. He goes from here to Ohio and Pennsylvania, and is in no hurry to return. He reports the death recently of Lucinda Helwig, wife of John Helwig, who were residents of Butler in the sixties.

J. A. Campbell and wife visited the latter's mother, near Angola, Monday. They found her very sick. She failed to rally, and died on Tuesday afternoon. She was in her 68th year. Her funeral was held at the North Otsego, M E. church, Rev. Albright, of Pleasant Lake, officiating. She left nine children and twenty-four grandchildren.

Andrew Casebeer, a pioneer settler of Troy township, and later a citizen of Butler, who moved to Topeka, Kansas, about fifteen years ago, has come back and settled in Butler with his daughter, Mrs. David McCurdy, to spend the closing years of his life. He seems hale and youthful, though past ninety years old.

The High School alumni reunion and banquet promises to be an affair of more than ordinary moment. The gathering will take place at the M. E. church next Thursday evening, with the banquet at the Opera House.

Mrs. Emma Cousins, of Toledo, who came here a week or two ago to attend the funeral of her brother-in-law, Mr. Button of Angola, is still staying with her daughter, Mrs. R. C. Campbell.

A belligerent tramp was arrested and locked up, Sunday. He made a desperate attempt to escape, broke the glass from the window and cut his hands and arms so that a surgeon had to be called to dress his wounds. He failed to escape.

Our Sympathy.

Persons who sympathize with the afflicted will rejoice with D. E. Carr of 1235 Harrison street, Kansas City. He is an old sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism, but has not heretofore been troubled in this climate. Last winter he went up into Wisconsin and in consequence has had another attack. "I came upon me again very acute and severe," he said. "My joints swelled and became inflamed so ore to touch or almost to look at. Upon the urgent request of my mother-in-law I tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm to reduce the swelling and ease the pain, and to my agreeable surprise, it did both. I have used three fifty-cent bottles and believe it to be the finest thing for rheumatism, pains and swellings extant. For sale by Robbins & McCord Druggists. 18-22

LEWIS' 98 % LYE
POWDERED AND PERFUMED
(PATENTED)

The strongest and purest Lye made. Unlike other Lye, it being a fine powder and packed in a can with removable lid, the contents are always ready for use. Will make the best perfumed Hard Soap in 20 minutes without boiling. It is the best for cleansing waste pipes, disinfecting sinks, closets, washing bottles, paints, trees, etc.

PENNA. SALT M'F'G CO.
Gen. Agts., Phila., Pa.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Saturday's Daily.

Painful Accident.

The little twenty-seven months old baby of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Beadle met with a painful accident last evening. It appears that the hired girl was coming down stairs with the baby on her back, the child having both arms around her neck and as she was at the bottom of the stairway stooped down for the baby to let loose. But in a playful manner the child did not let go and the young lady gently raised herself, thinking the baby would. This it did with one hand but with the other, remained firm and unfortunately swung around and sprained the elbow at the joint. It was first thought the child's arm was broken but Dr. Hines was called and on investigation found it was only sprained. The arm was straightened to its proper place, and bandaged with splints. The little one suffered extreme pain all night and was constantly carried about by its mother. The accident is a painful one and is thought that it will be weeks before it recovers.

All Free.

Those who have used Dr. King's New Discovery know its value, and those who have not, have now the opportunity to try it, free. Call on the advertised druggist and get a trial bottle free. Send your name and address to H. E Bucklen & Co., Chicago, and get a sample box of Dr. King's New Life Pill free, as well as a copy of Guide to Health and Household Instructor, free. All of which is guaranteed to do you good and cost you nothing. Robbins & McCord's drugstore. 4

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly For June.

In the June number of Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly the immortal art work of Richard Wagner is set forth in an admirably illustrated article by Mercia Abbott Keith, entitled "Richard Wagner and his Festspiele in Bayreuth," followed by a critical paper on the same subject by M. A A. Galloway. Charles Edwardes, the well-known English essayist and descriptive writer, contributes to this number a highly picturesque account of the ancient and storm-worn Scilly Islands. In "Kite Flying Extraordinary" "Wilf P. Pond gives some very interesting information about this fascinating sport, and furnishes many curious examples of the application of the kite to pratical and scientific purposes. A well-informed article by Robert Sloan, accompanied by some wonderful photographs, describes the giant redwood forests of California. Other illustrated features of this great popular magazine are: "The Sailors' Snug Harbor," by Mrs. R. F. Woodward; "The Sun Dance of the Taos Indians," by M. Campana; "The Hospice of St. Bernard," by James Ricalton; "Following the Hounds in Southern California," by C. F. Holder; and "Human Phosphorescence," by J. Carter Beard. There is also, as usual, an abundance of good short stories and poems.

ANOTHER FIRE.

This time one of our valuable factories, but the loss was paid in full by one of the strong fire insurance companies represented by WALTER C. HARTMAN. Give him your insurance.

THE 26TH TRIENNIAL CONCLAVE KNIGHTS TEMPLAR

will be held in Boston, Mass., August 26th to 30th, 1895. For this occasion the Wabash Railroad will sell tickets from all stations to Boston at one fare for the round trip. Map of route and guide to Boston will be mailed on application to C. S. Crane Gen'l Pass'r and Ticket Agent St. Louis, Mo. 17-2m

For whooping cough Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is excellent. By using it freely the disease is deprived of all dangerous consequences. There is no danger in giving the remedy to babies as it contains nothing injurious. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Robbins & McCord Druggists 18-22

Rheumatism Cured in a Day.—Myst Cure" for Rheumatism and Neuralgia radically cures in 1 to 3 days. Its action upon the system is remarkable and mysterious. It removes at once the cause and the disease immediately disappears. The first dose greatly benefits, 75 cts Sold by Robbins & McCord, druggists, Auburn. 41tf

NATIONAL EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION MEETING.

Denver, Colo., July 8 to 12, 1895.

For this occasion the Wabash Railroad has made a rate of one fare for the round trip to Denver plus $2.00, added for membership fee.

For full particulars in regard to this meeting, time of trains, rate, route, etc. call upon or write to any representative of the Wabash R. R., or connection lines, or C. S. Crane, Gen'l Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Wabash R. R., St. Louis. Mo.

The Talk of Europe.

A worthy theme in Europe just now is discussing the marvelous cures by Vitalin and Nervetona, prepared by the Hall Medicine Company of Toledo, O, and for sale by all druggists. This wonderful remedy cures every form of nervous debility, nervous prostration, loss of nerve and brain power, mental depression, palpitation, sleeplessness, etc. also every form of nerve pain, headache, toothache and neuralgia, and is just such a brain feeder and strength restorer as thousands need. For sale by Fischler & Son. Accept no other. 21-22

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder World's Fair Highest Award.

English Politics.

"Gentlemen," said an ex-army officer who was a candidate for parliament, "I have fought against the Russians. I have often had no bed but the battlefield, and no canopy but the sky. I have marched over the frozen ground till every step has been marked with blood."

His story took effect, till a countrified looking voter shouted out:

"Did you say yer'd fought against the Roosians?"

"Yes," replied the candidate.

"And that you slept on the ground with only the sky for a cover?"

"Certainly."

"And that your feet bled in marching over the ground?"

"That they did," cried the exultant candidate.

"Then I'm sure you've done enough for your country. Go home and rest. I'll vote for the other fellow."

Palpitation of the Heart

Shortness of Breath, Swelling of Legs and Feet.

"For about four years I was troubled with palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath and swelling of the legs and feet. At times I would faint. I was treated by the best physicians in Savannah, Ga., with no relief. I then tried various Springs without benefit. Finally, I tried also his Nerve and Liver Pills. After beginning to take them I felt better. I continued taking them and I am now in better health than for many years. Since my recovery I have gained fifty pounds in weight. I hope this statement may be of value to some poor sufferer."

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure

E. B. SUTTON, Ways Station, Ga.

Dr. Miles Heart Cure is sold on a positive guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. All druggists sell it at $1.—6 bottles for $5, or it will be sent, prepaid, on receipt of price by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

For Sale by, Fischle & Son., Auburn.

THE HUB'S BOYS' HEAD-TO-FOOT OUTFITS

THIS AND PREVENT THIS

THESE HEAD-TO-FOOT OUTFITS

Consist of One COAT, Two Pairs of PANTS, One CAP to Match and a Pair of Shoes.

And the price of the whole outfit is

Only $5.00

If on receipt you do not consider them the greatest bargain you ever bought for $5.00 you can send back the outfit and we expressly agree to return your money.

Send for samples of the cloth and full description of the outfit, also for our new spring catalogue—all sent free on application.

THE HUB The World's Largest Clothing Store, CHICAGO, ILL.

Wabash Low Rate Harvest Excursions for 1895

Will be run from all stations on the Wabash Railroad on April 30th, May 21 and July 11th to the West, Northwest, South and Southwest.

For full particulars, apply to the nearest ticket agent of the Wabash lines or connecting lines or to

C. S. CRANE,
G. P. & T. A. Wabash R. R.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

THE AUBURN COURIER.

VOLUME XXV. AUBURN, DE KALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY. MAY 30. 1895. NUMBER 22

SAY : :

HOW MUCH DO YOU OWE?

Who holds your mortgage? How much interest are you paying? Do you owe a building loan association anything? If you do, how much interest are you paying them? Unless you are better posted than the majority of people who have such loans, you cannot tell. You think you are paying 6 per cent. Do you know (of course not) that you are paying at least 12 per cent. If you think not, just figure it out yourself. Now then, are you not paying 6 per cent interest and 6 per cent premium? Certainly. Well now don't you know that premium and interest are the same thing—its all interest. Can you afford to pay 12 per cent interest to a loan association when even your banks only charge 8 per cent and you think they are charging too much, and when do you expect to have your loan canceled or paid off in full? You have been told 72 or 78 months. Now then, we undertake to say that it will take you 100 months, if you will call on us we will show you so you will be satisfied that we are right. Now then, we are prepared to loan you money on monthly installment plan for 8 per cent, we charge you no membership fee and you do not have to make three or more payments in advance so that if on account of insufficient security or bad title your loan is rejected you will not lose one cent. You pay nothing unless your loan is granted. We are making farm loans at from 3 to 5 per cent with privilege of partial payments.

ANOTHER THING!

There is scarcely a day but what there is some traveling agent for some building loan association in Auburn soliciting business, selling stock upon which they charge you a membership fee of from 50 cents to $1.00 per share, which amount goes to the agent and you never get back this money thrown away. If you will call on us we will take your application for all the stock you want in the BEST (we can prove it) building loan association in the state the INDIANA MUTUAL OF INDIANAPOLIS, and charge you No MEMBERSHIP FEE AT ALL. This is certainly fair. If you have any investment stock in any association just write them a letter and ask them the withdrawal value of same, their reply will probably open your eyes. What would you say if you would deposit $8.00 per month in your bank for one year and wanted to withdraw the same and they would offer to pay you only about $80? The bank would only have to do this in one case to be compelled to retire from business. Now you pay ten dollars membership fee and 8 dollars for 12 months making 108 dollars, you lose the 10 dollars membership fee and 10 cents per share each month for expenses, making 12 dollars, or a total of 22 dollars loss upon which you would receive 6 per cent interest for average time on 96 dollars, making 2 dollars and 88 cts. from 22 dollars would leave you a loser of 19 dollars and 12 cents. In our association your stock is worth all you have paid in, with its interest added, so that upon withdrawal you do not get less than you paid. We want the people of Auburn to become familiar with this matter, and would like to have any that are interested to call and talk with us, we can give you some pointers.

We are still in the Real Estate, Insurance and R. R. Ticket business.

RICKEL & SPROTT

AUBURN INDIANA.

WAR TAXES.

Now that the present income tax has been declared unconstitutional it looks as if the income tax just after the war must also have been, and parties who paid that tax are likely to sue for a return of the money. If they do this it would cost Uncle Sam many millions Some parties in Auburn paid this tax Mr. Bowers then connected with the woolen mills remembers paying it on the income of the mill's business.

BUTLER ALUMNI.

Supt. Merica reports a fine meeting and banquet of the alumni meeting at Butler last night. A fine literary program had been prepared to be given in the M. E. church. The exercises were carried out in a manner most creditable to all the participants and as usual the good people of Butler showed their appreciation of school work by an overwhelming'y crowded house. The banquet of course was an attractive feature of the evening, and by the hearty applause received from the several hundred present, the toasts were all well received. The supper—well Butler never does anything by halves. Let us simply say that when Clerk-elect Long's time came for a toast, "he was" too full for utterance." Mr. Anderson now a conductor on the Wabash, but a graduate of several years ago, made a brilliant speech as did also Henry Dills, now at Auburn. Summer Otis, one of the first graduates, now a resident of Ohio, was toastmaster.

Travelers find a safe companion in DeWitt's Colic and Cholera Cure. A change in drinking water and diet, often causes severe and dangerous complaints. This medicine always cures them.

FINEST LUMBER

A. Lewis is to furnish the Opera House its lumber and this building is to be completed in the latest style. Mr. Lewis is just the man to pick out the lumber for it. His long experience in selecting and buying and selling lumber fits him especially for handling fine finishing lumber. This is one of his strong points He has the finest and best selected stock in this section and all who need something choice in this line should see his stock first. We might add that, besides furnishing the finishing lumber for the Opera House, he also furnishes the finishing lumber for S. C. Snyder's new residence and that of T. D. Buckley's and for the new church to be erected at Hope, well in south Jackson. He has all kinds of lumber in common use and if he had not he knows right where to get it at short notice and on best terms.

De Witt's Colic and Cholera Cure never disappoints, never fails to give immediate relief. It cures just as sure as you take it. For sale by all druggists.

CHEAP EXCURSIONS TO THE WEST

On May 21st and June 11th, The North-Western Line (Chicago & North-Western Railway) will sell excursion tickets at very low rates to a large number of points in the west and northwest. For full information apply to ticket agents of connecting lines, or address A. H. Waggener, T. P. A., 7 Jackson place Indianapolis, Ind. 19-23

Old Settlers.

The 20th of June is the date selected by the exculive committee of the Old Settlers' Association of DeKalb county. Gen. Blair, of Waterloo, is to deliver the address. All who came to the county as early as 1846, and all who have resided fifty years in Northern Indiana, are to be considered "pioneers," and all who have resided in the state forty years prior to any annual meeting either in this year or in the years to come, are to be considered "Old Settlers." The township presidents should in all cases, forward the obituary of any old settler who dies in his township, to the biographer of the society. A committee, W. H. McIntosh, E D. Hartman and F. W. Willis, has been chosen to prepare for the organization of a historical society for the county. They are to report at the old settlers' meeting.

Cured in Forty Minutes.

A lady at Tooleys La., was very sick with bilious colic when M. C. Tisler, a prominent merchant of the town gave her a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. He says she was well in forty minutes after taking the first dose. For sale by Robbins & McCord Druggists. 18-22

Joliet,

The Indianapolis Sentinel is responsible for this: The common council of Joliet, Ill., has passed an ordinance declaring that the name of the town shall be pronounced "Jo-li-et," with a long "o" and the accent on the first syllable Nevertheless a large portion of the American public will continue to call it "Jolly yet," with the accent on the "yet," and occasionally some hypereducated person will revel in "Zholyay." Joliet is destined to be a very pronounced city, no matter whether its common council likes it or not.

The United Society of Christian Endeavor

and the National Young People's Christian Union will hold their Fourteenth International Convention at Boston, July 10 to 14, 1895. The Wabash Railroad has reduced the rate to one first-class fare for the round trip from all stations to Boston for this occasion For maps of route and guide to Boston write to C. S. Crane Gen'l Pass'r and Ticket Agent, St. Louis, Mo. 17 2m

Old People.

Old people who require medicine to regulate the bowels and kidneys will find the true remedy in Electric Bitters. This medicine does not stimulate and contains no whiskey nor other intoxicant but acts as a tonic and alterative. It acts mild on the stomach and bowels, adding strength and giving tone to the organs, thereby aiding Nature in the performance of the functions. Electric Bitters is an excellent appetizer and aids digestion. Old People find it just exactly what they need. Price fifty cents per bottle at Robbin & McCord's Drug Store. 5 will be held in Boston, Mass., August 26th to 30th, 1895. For this occasion the Wabash Railroad will sell tickets from all stations to Boston at one fare for the round trip. Map of route and guide to Boston will be mailed on application to C. S. Crane Gen'l Pass'r and Ticket Agent St. Louis, Mo. 17-2m

THE 26TH TRIENNIAL CONCLAVE KNIGHTS TEMPLAR

What is

CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

UNITED HOSPITAL AND DISPENSARY, Boston, Mass.

ALLEN C. SMITH, Pres.,

The Centaur Company, 77 Murray Street, New York City.

LOTS OF CALLERS.

"Mr. Smith of Noble County" is the Observed of all Observers Just Now.

The most popular fellow in Northern Indiana last week, judging by the number who called on him, was "Tamarac" Smith. We hope no one will confound this name with Bismarck or Mehemet Ali. He may have been christened "Bill" or "Jim" or "G. Washington" Smith for all we know, but to us with our limited knowledge of him, he is just plain "Tamarac" Smith. His home is in Noble county and without caring to make oath to this we dare say he is one of the intelligent (?) jurors who helped to fine a man $875 for licking a drunken editor. But to begin at the beginning. For some time the people in various parts of Noble county have missed various things that simply disappeared as if the earth had swallowed them up. Whips, lap robes, harness, sleighs, buggies and everything stealable or hidable, came up missing with a vexatious certainty only equaled by its regularity. The losses were especially noticed whenever there was a protracted meeting or anything of that sort. People would come out of the church and find their horse standing where they left it but the sleigh or cutter or part or all of the harness gone. If not these, then the whip and robes would be gone. So things went on. Some one finally had a sack of chop feed stolen and as good luck was the sack had a hole in it, and the feed leaked out along the road the entire distance from the owner's barn to "Tamarac's house. And the cat was out of the bag at the same time the chop was. The strong arm of the law reached out Smithward and Tamarac was invited to Albion to answer to the charge of wholesale and retail stealing. People who had lost things called at Smith's house. They called at his barn. They found all sorts of things in all sorts of places. They even found a sleigh way up in the mow covered with hay. It is even supposed that many things are plowed under as a field was plowed and dragged one night as the things began to be found. So the Smiths had callers at all times of the day and way along in the night and it became quite a bore to Mrs. Smith at last, so much so that she grew genteelly impatient at times. Then when a new arrival appeared and asked if she had "my robe" or "my harness" etc. she would snap out "Go an' look fer it. That's the way the rest does." "Tamarac's" way of stealing buggies, could have been patented without infringing on any other patent. He would suddenly find himself in possession of an old buggy and this he would drive with to some other locality where he might chance on a rig that was hitched handy. He would see if it was better than the one he stole at the last place, and he would then "swap". He would take the rig to the next place, and so on till he got a good one, each time stealing one better than the last. Then he would take off the plate that had the maker's name and he was safe. No, not quite safe, for he grew bolder, and at last had two good rigs, and then he took the plates off of both and changed them. This, when the thing became public, helped the last victim to get back his rig. Then others got back theirs and at present "Tamarac" is in as little danger of having to pay an income tax as are our young friends, the Goulds and Vanderbilts. Several tons of whips, harness, etc. etc. have been "lifted" from their hiding places on the Smith manor, and the end is not yet. We would advise W. H. Rakestraw of this place who not long ago lost his harness, robes, etc. to go up and ask the regular question of old Marm "Tamarac" even if he does get the regular answer. "Go and look fer yerself. That's the way the others does." And all of the other acts of "Tamarac" and the great deeds of valor and thieving that he did and the hopes he cherished of one day being as rich and respectable on his stealings as Vanderbilt or Steve Elkins, behold, are they not written in the chronicles of the Noble County circuit Court?

MINERV CLUB.

The Minerva Club of Waterloo, enjoyed a very pleasant afternoon Tuesday at the home of F. N. Beidler. They were entertained by Mrs. Beidler, who is a member and Mrs. Mary Boyer who is an ex-member. The regular lesson was omitted, and the time given to a program and social enjoyment. The program consisted of roll call, responded to by a sentiment; a geography game, conducted by Mrs. Keep; a recitation by Mrs. Plum; charades, by Mrs. Willis; and conundrums by the club. Mrs. Barns of the L. L. C. of this place, at the request of the hostess gave a paper "Twilight Thoughts of the Past." A delightful lunch was served and was followed by two toasts with Mrs. Waterman as toast mistress. First, "Our Ho tesses" responded to by Mrs. Alda Bemenderfer which was ably done and was certainly appreciated by the guests. "The Minerva Club" by Mrs. Winslow, a very delightful history of the club and its work, also its influence for good of others. Mrs. M. B. Willis and Mrs. J. A. Barns were gue ts from Auburn.

T. F. Anthony, ex-postmaster of Promise City, Iowa, says: "I bought one bottle of 'Mystic Cure' for Rheumatism and two doses of it did me more good than all the medicine I ever took." Sold by Robbins & McCord, druggists, Auburn. 41tf

NO EXTREMES.

We insist that this country is too big for extreme ideas to prevail, no matter whether they are extreme eastern ideas or extreme western ideas. Wild talk about silver or gold is to be deplored Both sides have made erroneous statements that can only serve to get people excited. One of these is the continued complaint about the "demonetization of silver." They ought to stop long enough to remember that silver is full legal tender for debts, public and private. If they will do this, they will find less to complain of, Since silver was "demonetized" we have coined and used about 400 millions of silver dollars. But in the 80 years before that had coined only 8 millions.

On the other hand, the extreme view taken by extreme gold men, is erroneous. They tell of the terrible things that will happen if anything except gold is made the standard. We do not agree with hem in this. We believe that the use of both gold and silver is necessary to keep the one or the other from causing trouble. But after all, the "trouble" anticipated is not so great as many seem to believe. The two metals have always been used together, and no doubt will always be, for we do not believe any extreme legislation will prevail, and it is legislation alone that can make any extreme change. We believe that after all this wild talk becomes stale, the good sense of the people will secure us legislation proper for all sections of the country and for all interests of our varied industries. Let us cease this wild strife over a matter we cannot yet control.

THE PHONOGRAPH

THE MOST MARVELOUS INSTRUMENT IN THE WORLD.

Last evening the phonograph was exhibited at the M. E. church to a fair sized audience. Evidently however our people had not realized the true nature of the instrument to be used, or more would have been present. When we think of a phonograph we are apt to picture the common instrument used by traveling showmen, the one that only half a dozen can get to and by holding tubes to the ears listen to very nicely played tunes. Such a one is good enough for the half dozen, but no one else can hear at the same time. But the instrument used last evening was of the kind used in public entertainments that has a voice of its own and can be distinctly heard by the audience. It is wonderful. There would be a stirring air by some noted band, like Sousa's, then a solo by some famous singer; then a laughing song; then the crying of a child; then a tune on a piccolo or violin or a piano. Then there was the impressive and solemn reading of the 24th Psalm by a noted divine, and a whistling solo by a gifted whistler the tune being the popular "Mocking Bird." The reproduction of the sounds was in most cases nearly perfect. It was especially so with the whistling and piccolo. But there were some of the tones as of the voice in singing which were not so natural but seemed strained and sharp. But this defect does not take from this marvelous invention of Edison the credit of being the most wonderful invention of this or any other age. All of Edison's inventions are wonderful. Every one in Auburn should hear the next one that comes here.

Mrs. Sheets Dead.

News came up town this morning that Mrs Margaret Sheets was dead, she having breathed her last at about six this morning. As noted in the DAILY last evening, she had a stroke of paralysis, as a result of the injuries she had sustained by the fall, and that it affected her in such a way that it became certain she could live but a short time. Our readers will remember, we gave a brief account of this accident Thursday. She was hurt on Friday May 17. She went to clean a window, and in getting on a chair, put one foot on it, and then went to put up the other, when the chair tipped and she fell back and struck the foundation of the cistern, injuring her severely, especially about the back. This was no doubt the cause of the paralysis. The funeral will be on Monday, May 27. The friends gather at the residence at 10 a. m. and come to town, and at 11 a. m. the services will be at the M. E. church in Auburn, conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. K. Walts. The interment will be in Evergreen cemetery.

The Postal.

The Postal telegraph company, have made a report to Clerk Moody, as required by law. They give the number of miles of line in the several townships.

Richland	6.25
Town of Auburn	75
Union Tp.	5.25
Wilmington	5.00
Concord	1.50
Newville	3.00
Total in County	24.75

The values of their line, per mile, will be fixed by the state tax commission.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

SCHAAB & BRO.

DRY GOODS,

CLOTHING,

CARPETS.

We have the Largest Store in DeKalb County

We Sell

GOOD GOODS

Cheaper than any other Firm in DeKalb County,

We Invite You To Call.

SCHAAB & BRO.

BROWN, CULBERTSON & BOLAND

The leading Hardware and Agricultural Implement Firm in DeKalb Co.

SELLS

Eckhart Buggies,
Turnbull Wagons,
Oliver and Bryan Plows,
Bement Disc and Spring-tooth Harrows,
Bryan Spading Harrows,
Ohio, Albion and New Western Cultivators,
McCormick, Champion and Deering, Binders and Mowers.
Stoves, Tinware, Paints
OILS, Glass, etc., etc.

Come and See

North Side Public Square.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

JAMES A. BARNS, - - PUBLISHER.

AROUND THE WORLD.

INTELLIGENCE FROM ALL PARTS OF THE GLOBE.

News from Foreign Shores—Domestic Happenings—Personal Pointers—Labor Notes—Political Occurrences—Fires, Accidents, Crimes, Etc.

GRESHAM DEAD.

The Secretary of State Succumbs to Pneumonia.

Washington special: Secretary Gresham died at 1:12 o'clock Tuesday morning. No death could be more quiet, more calm, or more peaceful. For two hours preceding dissolution there had been no indication either of a pulse or a heart beat. He lay during that time with his head resting on the arm of his daughter, Mrs. Andrews, while his devoted wife sat by his side, his hands clasped in hers; his face so turned that his last conscious gaze should rest upon her. And so the minutes dragged slowly on until the end came. He was conscious to the last. He suffered greatly during the preceding forty-eight hours, after the pneumonic symptoms were complicated with his disease, and was only temporarily relieved by frequent hypodermic injections. But as the end approached his suffering disappeared and he passed away as quietly as a tired child sinking to a slumber in the arms of its mother.

AGAINST DEBS.

He and His Associates Must Serve Out Their Terms.

The supreme court of the United States, in an unanimous opinion read by Justice Brewer, denied the motion for a writ of habeas corpus filed by Debs and his associates, of the Railway Union, and they will have to serve the sentence imposed upon them by the court.

The cases, it will be remembered, arose in the United States court of the northern district of Illinois. Debs and others disobeyed the order of the court enjoining them from further interference with interstate commerce and the carrying of the United States mails. They were brought before the court for contempt and sentenced to from three to six months' imprisonment. The case was brought before the supreme court on a motion for leave to file a petition for writ of habeas corpus, which was fully argued by Debs' counsil on the one side, and Attorney General Olney on the other. The decision of the supreme court sustains the action of the court below.

Two Sisters Instantly Killed.

A frightful tragedy occurred near Chestnut Mound, Smith County, Tenn., as a result of which two young daughters of Sam McKinney are dead, while his baby is slightly wounded. McKinney had been out on his farm with a Winchester rifle, and, approaching the house, handed the gun to his 23-year-old son, Henry, requesting him to take it in the house. Approaching the front door, Henry decided to unload the gun, and, thinking he had removed all the loads, let the hammer fall, only to hear a report and feel the gun recoil in his hands. Through the door the bullet sped and through the bodies of the sisters, who were close together just inside the door. The elder was 8 years old, the other being a few years younger, and both were instantly killed, while a nine-month-old infant was also slightly injured.

Met Instant Death.

A singularly appalling tragedy sent thrills of horror through the hearts of thousands at Arsenal Island, a pleasure resort opposite the southern part of St. Louis, Mo. In the full view of the multitude, a young man, Tony Heafle by name, dropped from an ascending baloon several hundred feet down to the earth. His body was crushed to a shapeless mass. Heafle and a number of other young men and boys were engaged to hold the baloon while it was being filled with gas. When the signal was given, they all released their hold but Heafle. He clung to the bar or was caught in the rigging and was carried up a distance of from 400 to 600 feet, when he dropped.

Tram Cars Ran Away.

A terrible accident happened at Mine No. 4, Pratt Mines, near Birmingham, Ala., when a trip of four tram cars in some manner got loose and ran down the slope of the mine to the bottom and were wrecked. The miners and employes were going to work and Bill Fields, a driver, and Neal Brandie, a miner, and two mules were killed. Fields was killed instantly, every bone in his body being broken.

Supt. Byrnes Retired.

New York special: Chief of Police Thomas Byrnes sent an application to the police commissioners asking to be retired. The application was immediately acted upon and granted. He goes on the retired list with a pension of $3,000 a year.

Robbed a Sanctuary.

Father Barry, upon entering St. Ann's church, Youngstown, Ohio, the other morning, to celebrate mass, discovered burglars had entered the sacristy, scattered the priestly vestments on the floor, and stolen an elegant chalice and paten. In the sanctuary they stole two solid silver gold-lined ciboria.

Editor Brown Dead.

Eli W. Brown, editor of the Frankfort Crescent, and one of the best-known Democratic politicians in Indiana, is dead.

Conflagration at Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids (Mich.) special: Fire broke out in Greenley & Co.'s stable near the Morton house and completely gutted it. The fifty horses were saved, but all the cutters stored in the loft were destroyed. The strong wind carried burning embers two blocks away and ignited the Second Reformed Holland church which was totally destroyed, only the walls left standing. Besides the church and livery barn there were seven dwellings that suffered to some extent by the fire. St. Marks Episcopal church caught fire from flying embers, but the flames were quickly extinguished. The total loss will reach $50,000, with insurance $23,000, carried by seven companies.

REVIEW OF TRADE.

The Flight of Wheat Is Fully Analyzed.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

"If wheat has been so greatly injured by the snows and frosts in May that the sudden rise of twelve cents in two weeks is justified, the calamity will affect all these prospects. The markets do not believe it, for stocks do not collapse, iron, leather, and hides still rise, and no holders of wheat would sell at eighty cents, a lower price than had been known at this time of year for thirty years prior to 1893, if current reports were credited. Some injury has undoubtedly been sustained, but our own dispatches do not show that it is really serious. The fact is that relief from long anxiety and the abundance and cheapness of money for which industry and legitimate trade give as yet no adequate demand, have excited the speculative spirit beyond all restraint. The hot fever will have nothing to do with cold facts. The temper is to buy, regardless of visible requirements, in the faith that prices are sure to rise. Wild excitement in wheat, with sales in one day at Chicago alone of 300,000,000 bushels, about three times the wheat there is in the country, and a renewed frenzy in cotton, with sales in three days exceeding the whole visible stock in America, followed the furious rise in stocks, in oil, and in hides and leather, at once a recognition of real improvement in business, and a menace to its progress.

"The iron industry distinctly gains and the improvement is no longer confined to prices of materials. Better wages at and west of Pittsburg convince buyers that prices must rise, and there have been larger sales of finished products, with about $1 per ton better prices for structural forms and steel bars, while Bessemer pig has risen to $11.50 at Pittsburg and grey force to $10."

"Failures for the week have been 207 in the United States, against 183 last year and 23 in Canada against 28 last year."

A MADDENED HORSE

Spreads Death and Destruction in His Wake.

A shocking and perhaps fatal runaway accident occurred at Fort Wayne, Ind., while Ringling's circus parade was passing by. A horse was hitched in front of Kelley's grocery, where it had been left by Thomas Walsh, of the Green Turtle Tobacco company, who had hired the rig for the purpose of calling on his customers. The horse showed no symptoms of fright during the passing of the procession until the elephants appeared, when he began to rear and plunge. A sudden halt in the procession brought the huge beasts to a standstill, and one of them turned rapidly and stood directly facing the frightened horse, which jumped into the air, breaking the hitching strap, and then started out at a terrific rate down the street. The air was filled with the shrieks and screams of frightened women and children, which only served to more and more bewilder the animal. Just in front of Pfeiffer & Schlatter's hardware store, at the corner of Barr street, the horse ran onto the sidewalk and plunged wildly through the assembled throng, knocking down a dozen or more of men, women and children. Amid agonizing screams of pain, and cries of terror and dismay, the maddened animal plowed a passage through the crowd for a distance of fifty or sixty feet, when he ran off the sidewalk and into the street again, running into the rear end of a contractor's wagon, where he came to a stop long enough to be caught. People were knocked down, trampled upon and run over by the wheels, each cry of agony telling when the iron shod hoofs struck the prostrate form of woman or child. Over a score of persons were injured, three fatally.

UNDER A LOG

His Feet Were Pinioned While They Slowly Burned To a Crisp.

Gainesville (Fla.) special: Mr. John Malphurs, a wealthy orange grower who lives near here, was the victim of one of the most remarkable and horrible accidents on record. Mr. Malphurs had been to Starke, and was returning home at a late hour. Owing to the intense darkness he decided to camp for the night. Accordingly he unhitched his horse and built a fire under a fallen log which stood about a foot above the ground. When the fire began burning, he lay down, put his feet under the log and went to sleep. The fire burned rapidly and the log burned in two, part of it falling across Mr. Malphurs' feet. He was awakened and tried to release himself, but in vain, as the log was very large. Soon the fire reached his feet, and the wretched man was forced to lie there and see them consumed, until finally unconsciousness came. He was found early next morning with both feet entirely burned off and still unconscious. In this agony he had bitten and scratched himself in a frightful manner. He says that he tried to choke himself to death when he found he could not escape the fire. Physicians do not think he will recover.

Ex-Secretary Hugh McCulloch Dead.

Ex-Secretary Hugh McCulloch died at his country home near Washington, D. C. The cause of death was a general breaking down of the system, due to extreme age, aggravated by lung trouble. Mr. McCulloch was in a comatose state when death came. His two sons, one daughter and a grandson were at his bedside.

Hugh McCulloch, ex-Secretary of the United States Treasury, and one of the ablest financiers this country ever produced, was born at Kennebunk, Me., and moved to Fort Wayne, Ind., in 1833. He was President of the Bank of the State of Indiana when President Lincoln called him to accept the Treasury portfolio in his Cabinet, which position he filled in three different Cabinets—that of Lincoln's, Johnson's, and Arthur's. Since the inaugural of President Cleveland, Mr. McCulloch has lived a retired life at his country home "Holly Hill" in Prince George County, Maryland, a few miles distant from Washington, devoting himself to literary pursuits and to the care of large landed estates in Maryland and Virginia.

Head Cut Off.

George M. Williamson, an escaped inmate of the Gallipolis Epileptic Hospital, resident of Licking County, Ohio, aged about 40, was run over by a train at McArthur, Ohio, and instantly killed. His head was severed and an arm torn from its socket, both legs cut off and his heart and lungs torn out. The train was rounding a curve on a down grade when the engineer discovered the man sitting on the track between the rails, apparently recovering from a spasm. It was impossible to stop the train, and it passed over him.

Calls on Uncle Sam.

The United States has been asked to act as mediator between France and Venezuela, resulting in a complete termination of diplomatic relations between them. The French minister at Caracas was recently given his passports, whereupon France sent two warships to take away her minister and all the legation archives. At the same time France handed the Venezuelan minister at Paris his passports, and he departed. The request for the mediation of the United States is now made by the Venezuelan government.

Oscar Wilde Guilty.

London special: Oscar Wilde has been found guilty. The verdict of the jury was received with great surprise owing to the partial instructions rendered by Judge Wills and the general belief that people in high and influential places had determined he should be acquitted. The sentence imposed on Wilde was two years' imprisonment. Alfred Taylor, Wilde's associate, was also sentenced to two years' imprisonment. Both the prisoners' terms are to be worked out at hard labor.

Fifty Killed.

Constantinople special: Word has just reached this city of a disaster from an earthquake in the town of Paramythia, in the Province of Epiros, which is a part of Albania. Paramythia is a small town of about 5,000 inhabitants. The town is divided into the upper and lower town, and has an old castle garrisoned by Turks and the remains of ancient walls. It is a Greek Bishop's See. Nearly all the houses in the town have been destroyed, and 50 persons were killed and 150 injured by the earthquake.

A Baby Whirled to Death.

At Anderson, Ind., Esau Knight, the 5-year-old son of Prof. Knight, of the Lapel Schools, was playing horse with the 4-year-old son of Dr. Moore and ran into Woodward's planing mill. He had the light rope used for lines tied to his arms. It got caught in the belting, and, before anyone could get to him, had drawn him into the flywheel. He was taken around at a terrific rate, and every bone in his body was broken and his head reduced to a pulp.

A Live Ball League.

President Schmidt officially announces that the Western Inter-state league has not been abandoned. Fort Wayne, Terre Haute, and Bloomington are still playing under the national protection and managers are warned against tampering with these players. Other towns may be admitted or these may be merged into another league. Until such time, the league organization will be maintained.

A Father's Mistake.

A special from Lebanon, Ind., says: Thomas Irving, residing three miles west of here, upon hearing footsteps in an adjacent room, secured his revolver and, without saying a word, shot the supposed inturder, inflicting a fatal injury. Upon examination Irving discovered that he had killed his oldest son. He attempted to kill himself, but will recover from his injury. Irving is a wealthy farmer.

White Woman Assaulted.

Miss Cassilly, a 16-year-old girl, was criminally assaulted by an unknown colored man on North Market street, Springfield, Ohio, while returning home from a party. The rascal knocked her down with his fist, and her condition is serious. Two white men gave chase after the fellow on bicycles, but he managed to escape. Police are now scouring the city for him.

Bad Indians on the Warpath.

The Secretary of the Interior has requested the Secretary of War to send troops to Pender, Neb., to quell the trouble that has arisen over lands between the Omaha and Winnebago Indians and the Flournoy Land and Improvement Company. Secretary Smith's action is taken at the request of Indian Agent Beck, who says the Indians are thoroughly aroused.

Must Not Treat.

The Michigan House of Representatives has passed by a vote of 175 to 17 and gave immediate effect to the Wait "anti-treating" bill. It prohibits the purchase of spirituous, malt, brewed, fermented or vinious liquors for another by the drink, and sale thereof to a person to be given to another as a treat. This bill had already been passed by the Senate.

Eaten Up by Alligators.

While two young men were fishing in the Neches River, twenty-seven miles from Crockett, Texas, their canoe was attacked by alligators and broken up and the young men torn to pieces by the reptiles. The mother of one of the boys witnessed the tragedy from the bank.

Militia Encampment.

Gov. Matthews has announced that the Indiana militia encampment would be held at Fairview Park, a beautiful grove situated five miles north of Indianapolis. The encampment week will begin on Monday, July 22, and close on Sunday night, July 28.

Apachee Renegades.

Several miners are reported to have been killed by Apachees near Fort Bayard, New Mexico, on the Mescalero Indian reservation. The murders are believed to be chargeable to Apachee Kid and his band of renegades. The outbreak is not general.

A Mexican Town Destroyed.

A special from Chilpancingo, Mexico, says that the town of Contepec was completely destroyed by fire. Sixty-two buildings were burned, leaving the population homeless. Several persons were seriously injured trying to rescue household goods.

A Fire at Eaton.

Brandt, Carter & Co.'s saw mill, at Eaton, Ind., was destroyed by fire causing $5,000 loss, with no insurance. The mill was owned by R. L. Brandt, T. J. M. and Charles Carter.

Strike Ended.

The miners' strike of the Pittsburgh district is practically ended, and the strikers will go back to work at the operators' terms—60 cents per ton.

Whisky Peddlers Killed.

Two whisky peddlers were killed and two wounded by United States marshals, who caught them on the line of the Kickapoo reservation.

Looted by Pirates.

Moorish pirates attacked a ship that lay becalmed near Gibralter, overpowered her crew, killed the captain and looted the vessel.

THE MARKETS.

Chicago—Cattle, common to prime, $3.75 to $6.25; hogs, shipping grades, $3.00 to $5.25; sheep, fair to choice, $2.50 to $5.00; wheat, No. 2 red, 76c to 77c; corn, No. 2, 53c to 54c; oats, No. 2, 29c to 30c; rye, No. 2, 66c to 67c; butter, choice creamery, 16c to 18c; eggs, fresh, 11c to 13c; potatoes, car lots, per bushel, 45c to 60c; broom corn, per lb, common growth to fine brush, 4c to 7c.

Indianapolis—Cattle, shipping, $3.00 to $6.00; hogs, choice light, $3.00 to $4.75; sheep, common to prime, $2.00 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2, 66c to 68c; corn, No. 1 white, 51c to 52c; oats, No. 2 white, 33c to 33½c.

St. Louis—Cattle, $3.00 to $6.00; hogs, $4.00 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2 red, 79c to 80c; corn, No. 2, 52c to 53c; oats, No. 2, 29c to 30c; rye, No. 2, 67c to 69c.

Cincinnati—Cattle, $3.50 to $5.75; hogs, $3.00 to $4.75; sheep, $2.50 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2, 79c to 81c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 54c to 55c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 31c to 33c; rye, No. 2, 71c to 73c.

Detroit—Cattle, $2.50 to $6.00; hogs, $4.00 to $4.75; sheep, $2.00 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2 red, 79c to 81c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 53c to 55c; oats, No. 2 white, 34c to 35c; rye, 69c to 71c.

Toledo—Wheat, No. 2 red, 79c to 81c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 53c to 55c; oats, No. 2 white, 32c to 34c; rye, No. 2, 67c to 68c.

Buffalo—Cattle, $2.50 to $6.50; hogs, $3.00 to $5.00; sheep, $3.00 to $5.25; wheat, No. 1 hard, 85c to 86c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 58c to 60c; oats, No. 2 white, 35c to 37c.

Milwaukee—Wheat, No. 2 spring, 76c to 78c; corn, No. 3, 53c to 55c; oats, No. 2 white, 33c to 34c; barley, No. 2, 49c to 52c; rye, No. 1, 67c to 68c; pork, mess, $12.50 to $13.00.

New York—Cattle, $3.00 to $6.50; hogs, $4.00 to $5.25; sheep, $3.00 to $5.50; wheat, No. 2 red, 80c to 81c; corn, No. 2, 60c to 61c; oats, No. 2 white, 36c to 38c; butter, creamery, 12c to 18c; eggs, Western, 13c to 15c.

WHEAT GOES SOARING

GREAT TUMULT ON THE CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE.

All the Brokers Wild with Excitement and Fighting for July Options—Price Goes to 82 Cents While 250,000,000 Bushels Are Bought.

Record in Trading Smashed.

July wheat shot up to 82 cents Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade. As it rose and soared a thousand hands of yelling brokers were stretched to bring it back to earth. It was a long and exciting struggle, but just before the close of the session the furor quieted, the price fluttered awhile and then dropped to 78¾, or 1½ cents above the closing quotation of Wednesday.

But while the wheat was going up and coming down, the Chicago Board of Trade experienced the greatest day in its history. There may have been as much excitement on previous occasions, when big corners were run, but at no time was there such an amount of business transacted, and when the closing gong sounded the brokers dropped their arms, and were glad to escape to their offices. Over 250,000,000 bushels of wheat, it was estimated, were traded in. Margins were called for and put up with astonishing swiftness. The marble steps leading to the banks which do a margin business were blackened with the footprints of messenger boys, who carried checks and notices to and from the banks. At least $1,000,000 in margins was deposited. During the great swirl John C. Schwartz, an erstwhile plunger, was blown out of the market like a bit of chaff.

The tremendous boom went on. Everybody was buying, and most of all the farmers. The failure of Schwartz was an incident; the feature was the farmer.

SCENE IN THE WHEAT PIT WHEN THE MARKET WAS AT ITS HEIGHT

For several weeks now the farmer has persisted in buying wheat. He has calculated the damage done to the crops by the flies and chinch bugs at home, and, migrating to Chicago, he has taken from professional traders what they have been winning from him during the last three years. There were 500 of these farmers Thursday swarming about the Board of Trade. And they continued to buy wheat.

The paralyzing feature of the market occurred at the opening. Wheat sold Tuesday at 71½. It closed Wednesday at 77¼. But Thursday morning the first deals made were at 80 and 81 a bushel, a clear jump of 3¾. When the gong sounded at 9:30 o'clock the wheat pit was filled with 400 nervous brokers, who were waiting for the battle to begin. Before the sound had died away every man had his hands in the air, and was shouting like a demon. The noise rose as a babel of sound. Anticipating a lively session, the galleries were packed. Five hundred women were in one, and as many men in another. They leaned over the railing in their engerness to watch the pandemonium in the pit below. The excitement was so intense that the other pits were almost neglected. At least 1,500 members were on the floor, and their attention was centered in the wheat pit. While the struggle was on a small army of messenger boys was chasing in and out of the building. The 125 telegraph operators on the floor were crowded to death. Every little town in the country wanted to get into direct communication with the board.

The price went up to 82. That seemed to cap the climax. About ten minutes before the close every broker seemed to think it was a good time to take profits and began selling. Within three minutes the price dropped from 81½ to 78½. It rallied slightly, and closed for the day at 78¾.

It was a great day. All told a conservative estimate of the business transacted amounted to a quarter of a billion bushels. This is the liveliest market the board has experienced since 1891, when within two months wheat rose from 87 to $1.15 a bushel. The present rise has been under way since last April. In February wheat sold at 52 cents, May 13 it was at 64 cents. Thursday it was nearly 18 cents over that price.

Excitement in New York.

In New York the excitement at the opening of the wheat market Thursday exceeded anything seen in the present advance. It was a wild tumult of buying with almost a total disregard of price, so that July opened from 83 to 83½ cents at the same moment. This represented a rise of 3 to 3½ cents from the official close of Wednesday. After jumping up to 83⅞ cents, prices lost a cent, and then swung back again, advancing to 84¼ cents. Transactions went far above any day yet, amounting to 18,000,000 bushels before noon. Most of this great business was done during the first hour. The excitement at the opening was intensified by the reported covering of a big Chicago short. The bulls are killing the crop off as fast as possible. In the districts west, where wheat has escaped the ravages of chinch bugs, flies and army worms and the blight of frost, the bulls are talking drouth and the bears seem too far gone to set up any opposition.

GOLD AND SILVER OUTPUT.

Product of American Mines for 1894 Had Coining Value of $103,500,0 0.

The director of the mint estimates the production of gold by the mines of the United States during the calendar year 1894 to have been 1,910,800 fine ounces, of the coining value of $39,500,000; an increase over 1893 of $3,500,000, which is the largest amount produced in any year since 1878. The production of silver from the mines of the United States is estimated to have approximated in 1894 49,500,000 ounces, of the coining value of $64,000,000, showing a decrease as compared with 1893 of 10,500,000 ounces.

In the production of gold California leads, with an output of $13,570,000; Colorado is second with $9,491,000; Montana third with $3,651,000, and South Dakota fourth, $3,299,000.

Colorado heads the list in silver by an output of 23,281,400 fine ounces, of the coining value of $30,101,200; Montana second, with a production of 12,820,000 fine ounces, followed by Utah, with a production of 5,892,000 fine ounces, and Idaho, with 3,248,500.

At the average price of silver for the calendar year 1894 the commercial value of the silver product of the mines of the United States is $31,432,500.

MEETING IN MEMPHIS.

Opponents of the Free Coinage of Silver Hold a Convention.

An audience of 3,000 persons was in attendance at the big Auditorium in Memphis, Tenn., when W. J. Crawford, chairman of the committee of arrangements, called the "sound money and better banking facilities" convention to order. Delegates from all the Southern States were present to the number of about 600 and represented all ranks, from the politician to the farmer. In a short speech, which was unmistakable in its indorsement of the gold standard, Mr. Crawford welcomed the delegates to Memphis, and declared the convention ready for business.

THE MEMPHIS AUDITORIUM.

Ex-Congressman R. H. Clark, of Alabama, in a speech indorsing the policy of the administration in maintaining the credit of the country, nominated for permanent chairman Congressman Thomas C. Catchings, of Mississippi, who was unanimously elected. Mr. Catchings, in accepting, indorsed President Cleveland and Secretary Carlisle, and also took occasion to prophesy that the present silver craze would soon be stored away in the warehouses at Ocala, Fla., along with the plans that were formulated there a few years ago for a government loan on the products of the country. After the appointment of a committee on resolutions, one from each of the States represented, Secretary Carlisle was escorted to the stage by Congressman Josiah Patterson. Mr. Carlisle spoke for an hour and twenty-five minutes, and at the conclusion of his address an adjournment was taken until 8 o'clock at night.

The night session proved of equal interest to that of the afternoon. The report of the committee on resolutions was read by Judge U. M. Rose, of Little Rock, Ark., and was unanimously adopted. Congressman Josiah Patterson, in response to repeated calls, made a speech, in which he appealed to the people of the South not to break away from every tie that had hitherto bound them in the matter of commerce. He spoke of the commercial relations that had always existed between the Eastern States and the South and between the latter section and the States of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Iowa, and asked what was to be gained by breaking with these and joining their fortunes with those of Colorado, Nevada, Wyoming and Nebraska. Resolutions were adopted to have Congressman Patterson's speech published in pamphlet form, together with that of Secretary Carlisle, and to be distributed throughout the South by a committee of one from each of the Southern States that sent delegations to the convention.

The Comic Side of The News

Jack Frost struck New York below the grape belt.

The "new woman's bible" probably will have a postscript added to each chapter.

Reuben Rhodes, aged 21, of Vermicelli, O., was killed by his gun exploding. He was hunting.

Advices from the Northwest indicate that the Russian thistle has not been injured by the frost.

Having safely passed the crises of a dog show and a cat show, will New York now tackle a rat show?

As we understand it, Champion Corbett is now anxious to fight somebody over in Europe—and no one else.

That Ohio editor who wants to take 500 hens on subscription account evidently wants to break into our set.

Admiral Meade probably knows now that an ounce of silence is worth more than several pounds of apology.

It is announced that "Kate Field will pay a visit to Hawaii." Col. Kohlsaat will also pay for the same visit.

A close reading of the Cuban war news reveals the fact that the results depend entirely upon who controls the cable.

The Cincinnati undertakers have decided to call themselves "morticians." This looks like running phraseology into the ground.

A New York paper says that "the cat now rules the day." Then we hope Thomas will be content to work a twelve-hour turn and let us sleep at night.

The French Government has decided to ask Parliament for a special credit to erect a monument to the soldiers who fell during the last war between France and Germany.

Minnie Robinson, who sued the United States Mutual Accident Company at St. Louis, Mo., for insurance on her fiance's life, was given a verdict, the court deciding she had an insurable interest in his life.

Timothy McCarthy, aged 22 years, of Logansport, Ind., committed suicide. He attended a game of baseball in the afternoon and seemed in good spirits. His mind was deranged by a sunstroke four years ago and he was confined at Long Cliff insane hospital for a time.

JUDGE LYNCH'S WORK

HE HOLDS COURT AT DANVILLE, ILL.

Infuriated Mob of Farmers and Citizens Hang Two Ravishers—Jail Doors and Walls Wrecked with Battering Rams of Telegraph Poles and Iron.

End of Two Brutes.

Early Saturday morning a mob which, at Danville, Ill., had been in possession of Vermillion County's jail for several hours, succeeded in locating John Halls, Jr., and William Royce in their cells, took them outside and hanged them for assaulting Miss Laura Barnett. From midnight, when the crowd first made its appearance at the jail doors, until the victims were reached, it was the determined, desperate struggle of a frenzied mob to mete summary justice, battling against heavy oaken doors and iron bars, and occasionally halted by the grim stand of a little band of defenders of law and order under the command of Sheriff Thompson.

No amount of parleying on his part and no amount of plea from his wife could withstand the mob which had but the one object in view.

Vain Plea for Law and Order.

At 2 o'clock Sheriff Thompson sent for Judge Bookwalter, of the Circuit Court, who addressed the crowd from the jail corridor. He counseled them to peace and order, and for a minute, and but a minute only, his words were heeded. Then another desperate attempt was made to reach the cells where the two men were secreted. Finally Royce was located crouching and shivering with fear. A score of hands dragged him unceremoniously from his hiding place underneath the wooden bench which serves prisoners as their bed. Half dragged and half pushed he was hustled into the dining room and seated on the table. A rope was placed over his head, and while part of the mob kept close guard over him the others continued the search for Halls until he was discovered in another and more remote portion of the jail.

At 3:15 o'clock the mob secured both of the prisoners and started toward the bridge with ropes about their necks. They were hanged almost upon the scene of their crime. Citizens of Danville joined the infuriated farmers in their work of vengeance. The story of the crime had been the topic of discussion all day. Business was practically suspended and shopkeepers and their clerks gathered in knots on the street corners and discussed the affair with farmers who flocked to the city during the day. Shortly after nightfall ominous mutterings were heard and some openly counseled the more quiet of their neighbors to take summary vengeance on the perpetrators of the crime and not take the chances of the law's delay or the technicalities which might arise and eventually free the men.

As early as 10 o'clock the crowd congregated on the main street, and it only needed a venturesome leader to proceed to the jail at once. That leader was soon found. From whispered threats the cry arose for vengeance, swelling on the night air until it echoed and re-echoed from one end of Danville to the other. A rush was made for the jail, where, under fear of just such a proceeding, the guard had been re-enforced, but constituted only a handful of men to face a frenzied, bloodthirsty mob, wrought up to an indescribable pitch and bent only on having the lives of the two cowering men within. Clamoring at the jail doors, the mob was met by Sheriff Thompson, who denied admission and, retiring behind the doors, locked and double bolted them.

Rush for a Battering Ram.

This action of the sheriff only added fuel to the already blazing fire of indignation. A hurried search was made for some instrument with which to batter down the jail doors. Part of the crowd rushed away, returning in a few minutes with a hemlock telegraph pole, which willing hands grasped as a battering ram. The stout oaken doors of the jail were constructed to withstand any ordinary assaults, however, and the efforts of the mob proved futile until another party arrived with a steel rail.

Sheriff Thompson and his men warned the storming party to desist, but were met with hoots and jeers. The little band of defenders was powerless against the fast increasing mob, and when the furious blows, urged on with vengeful hearts, shivered the main door, they retreated behind the inner jail. The hallway was too narrow to permit effective work with the railroad iron, and a shorter piece was secured. With this the second door was attacked, and at 1:15 o'clock in the morning gave way before the impetuous mob which surged through the gap and demanded the keys of the cell in which the prisoners were confined.

Halls and Royce were thoroughly frightened and cowered in the darkest corner of their cells, shivering at the sound of the imprecations on the outside and the victorious acclamations of those who found themselves in possession of a hitherto impregnable fortress. They begged for mercy, but Sheriff Thompson was utterly unable in the face of the determined men thronging the corridor to afford them any relief. In fact, with him discretion had overcome valor, and he with his little band retreated still farther before the angry administrators of lynch law. But with their battering ram of railroad iron the mob quickly wrecked the interior of the jail, and the end was soon over.

Thursday evening about 7:30 o'clock Miss Laura Bennett and a friend, Miss Lillian Draper, were returning from an evening stroll. They were crossing the Vermillion river foot bridge when they were attacked by Halls and Royce. Miss Draper escaped and gave the alarm.

Halls and Royce were both well-known young men of Danville, and for several years had borne an unsavory reputation. They were arrested on complaint of Miss Draper, and further identification by John Downs, an old man who met violence at their hands while endeavoring to assist the girls.

Telegraphic Brevities.

The Merchants' National Bank of Seattle, Wash., failed.

The first filer on the Yankton land grant was a young woman.

In the debris of a fire at Gate City, Ala., the charred bones of two women were found.

In Coatepre Castles, State of Guerrero, Mex., fire destroyed sixty-two houses.

Hereafter foreigners will not be allowed to witness tests at the navy proving grounds.

At Detroit, Mich., the Imperial Tea Company building and contents burned. Loss, $18,000; insurance, $9,000.

Fever is ravaging the French troops composing the expeditionary force operating against the Hovas in Madagascar.

Minister Mariscal, of Mexico, will appoint an arbitrator to represent Mexico in the Mexico-Guatemala settlement.

A Paris firm has commenced suit against the Carnegie company of Pittsburg, claiming an infringement of patent.

William Connell, who killed Sheriff Dunham of Montgomery County, Ga., was riddled with bullets by a pursuing party.

NIAGARA FALLS EXCURSION!

Thursday, August 8, 1895.

—VIA THE—

Lake Erie & Western R. R.

"Natural Gas Route."

On Thursday, August 8, 1895, the Lake Erie & Western R.R. will run their popular annual excursion to Cleveland, Chautauqua Lake, Buffalo and Niagara Falls at following very low rates, viz.:

Peoria	$7 50	Fort Wayne	$5 00
Bloomington	7 00	Muncie	5 00
LaFayette	6 00	Connersville	5 00
Michigan City	6 00	Rushville	5 00
Indianapolis	5 00	New Castle	5 00
Tipton	5 00	Cambridge City	5 00
Lima	4 00	Fremont	4 00

Sandusky, $4 00.

With corresponding reductions from intermediate points.

In addition to the above, the purchasers of these tickets will be given privilege of special excursion side trips to Lewiston-on-the-Lake, including a steamboat ride on Lake Ontario, 25 cents. To Toronto and return by Lake from Lewiston $1.00; to Thousand Islands, $5.00. Tickets for the above side trips can be had when purchasing Niagara Falls ticket, or at any time on train.

Besides the above privileges with that of spending Sunday at the Falls, we will furnish all those who desire a side trip from Brockton Junction to Chautauqua Lake and return FREE OF CHARGE.

Tickets of admission to places of special interest at or near Niagara Falls, but outside the reservation, including toll over the International Bridge to the Canadian side, elevators to the water's edge at Whirlpool Rapids on the Canadian side, will be offered on train at a reduction from prices charged after reaching the Falls.

Do not miss this opportunity to spend Sunday at Niagara Falls. The excursion train will arrive at Niagara Falls 7.00 A. M. Friday, August 9, 1895, and will leave the Falls returning Sunday morning, August 11, at 6 o'clock, stopping at Cleveland Sunday afternoon, giving an opportunity to visit the magnificent monument of the late President Garfield, and many other interesting points.

Tickets will be good, however, to return on regular trains leaving the Falls Saturday, August 10, for those not desiring to remain over. Tickets will also be good returning on all regular trains up to and including Tuesday, August 13, 1895. SECURE YOUR TICKETS, ALSO CHAIR AND SLEEPING CAR ACCOMMODATIONS, early. Those desiring can secure accommodations in these cars while at the Falls. For further information call on any agent Lake Erie & Western R. R. or address.

C. F. DALY, Gen. Pass Agent, Indianapolis Ind.

•HORSEMEN•

SAVE YOUR STOCK BY USING THE CELEBRATED

Morris' English Stable Powder
For Loss of Appetite, Constipation, Rough Hair Hide Bound, and all Diseases of the Blood.
Price, 25c. per package.

Morris' English Stable Liniment
Cures Lameness, Cuts, Bruises, Scratches, Galls, Sweeney, Spavins, Splint, Curb, etc.
Price, 50c. per bottle.

Morris' English Worm Powder
Warranted to cure any case of Worms in Horses, Cattle, Sheep or Dogs, also Pin Worms in Colts.
Price, 50c. per box.

Craft's Distemper and Cough Cure
A Specific for Distemper, Coughs, Colds, Heaves, Pink Eye, and all Catarrhal diseases of horses.
Price, 50c. $1.00 per bottle.

Wells' Hoosier Poultry Powder
Makes Hens Lay, cures Cholera, Gapes and Roup, and keeps poultry healthy.
Price, 25c. per package.

Every remedy guaranteed satisfactory or money refunded. Our new book, "The Horse: His Diseases and Treatment," mailed free.

Wells Medicine Co., Lafayette, Ind.

For sale by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

BE A MAN

Ajax Tablets

have cured thousands and will cure you if you are suffering from Loss of Vigor, Impotence, Sterility, Seminal Weakness or any of the other effects of Self-Abuse or excesses of early life. We give positive Written Guarantee to effect a cure in each case or to refund money in case of failure. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Sent prepaid upon receipt of price. Send for free circular. Address

AJAX REMEDY CO.,
70 Dearborn Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

For sale by F. E. Davenport, Druggist, Auburn.

TOWER'S SURFACE.... CULTIVATOR

IS THE PIONEER OF ITS CLASS,

And as now perfected

Can not be equalled for Corn, Potatoes, Cabbage and Tobacco Culture.

IT IS A PERFECT ERADICATOR

Of Morning Glories, Cocklebburrs, Barn Grass and other noxious Weeds.

EQUALLY AS EFFICIENT

IN WET AS IN DRY SEASONS.

All the Agricultural Experiment Stations in the country have decided in favor of surface culture, and all of them who have tested it, have decided in favor of the Tower Hoe Cultivator for that purpose.

Manufactured by

J. D. TOWER & BRO.,
MENDOTA, ILL.

SUBSCRIBE

FOR THE COURIER.

HILDA

Charlotte M. Braeme

CHAPTER IX.—(Continued).

"You will be pleased to see so many beautiful flowers," said Lord Bayneham, feeling that he must break the silence, which had grown painful.

Hilda looked up at him; their eyes met, and he saw tears shining in hers. Then he saw, too, that her beautiful face had lost some of its bloom, and that she looked sad and sorrowful.

"You have never been to see us, Lord Bayneham," she said, in answer to his look, for he said no more. "I half expected you, for you seemed like an old friend."

There was a tone of reproach in her words. He could not withstand the lovely, innocent face and quivering lips.

She never forgot the startled look he bent upon her.

"Hush, Miss Hutton," he said, "you torture me. You ask me why I do not visit you. I will tell you. I never seek you because I am pledged to marry Barbara Earle."

He saw the lovely face grow pale and death-like, the dark, violet eyes become shaded and dim, the sweet lips quiver and then grow strangely still. He saw all this and would have given his whole life for power to have uttered one word, but honor bade him be silent.

"Hilda," he said, gently, "in years to come you will perhaps realize what it has cost me to tell you this. I never thought much of my future or my fate until I met you in the woods of Brynmar. It was all settled then."

She tried to say she wished him all happiness, but her trembling lips could utter no words. He saw Lady Hutton and Barbara Earle coming toward them.

Lady Hutton was utterly unobservant, but Barbara Earle's dark eyes saw the strange pallor upon the beautiful young face—saw that some keen, sharp pain had taken all brightness and happiness away. She saw, and her noble, womanly heart pitied the fair girl and wondered what her sorrow could be.

"Hilda," said Lady Hutton, "are you tired? If not, Lady Bayneham has asked us to dine with them. She is going to the opera, and we can form one party. What do you say, my dear?"

Hilda said something, but the words were so faint and indistinct that Lady Hutton did not hear them. Just then she caught sight of the girl's white face, and uttered a cry of surprise.

"What is the matter, Hilda?" she asked hurriedly; "you look quite ill."

Barbara Earle, whose keen instinct told her there was something wrong, interposed.

"You have been stooping over the flowers, Miss Hutton," she said; "the perfume and warmth together have been too much for you."

Lord Bayneham looked gratefully at his cousin.

"I will see about the carriage at once, if you like," he said to Lady Hutton. "I am sure my mother will be quite ready to return."

Barbara Earle walked by Hilda's side, and talked gayly to her until the faint color came again into the fair face, and the startled, frightened look vanished from the sweet, tender eyes.

CHAPTER X.

Lady Bayneham's dinner party was a very pleasant one.

Bertie Carlyon was there, and no one could be dull or listless in his presence. He had the happy faculty of brightening and amusing every one. He talked gay and agreeable nonsense. The Countess of Bayneham was in one of her most gracious moods. Barbara Earle had her own reasons for trying to make the party a pleasant one, and Lady Hutton never failed in being both agreeable and entertaining. No one noticed Hilda's silence and Claude's depression, except Barbara; nothing ever escaped her.

"Mr. Seaton wants Hilda to sit for her portrait," said Lady Hutton to her hostess. "I am quite willing, but I cannot decide as to her costume."

"The more simple the better," said Lady Bayneham, in a low voice. "Miss Hutton needs nothing in the way of ornament."

"But," persisted Lady Hutton, "I should like her to represent one of my favorite characters. I prefer fancy pictures to simple portraits. I am only puzzled upon which to decide."

"Take my advice," said the countess, "and let Miss Hutton appear as her own simple charming self. She will make a picture then; do not spoil it by disguising her as some one else. We are going to Mr. Seaton's to-morrow to see Lady Diana Foreclerc's portrait; will you join us?"

Lord Bayneham, who had overheard this conversation, loved the countess better at that moment than he had ever done before. He could see that she admired Hilda, and she had given him another opportunity of meeting her.

"Yet I must go away," he said to himself. "If I linger here I am lost. I may talk to her this evening, and to-morrow I will look upon her face for the last time for many years."

* * * * * * *

The next morning, when breakfast was over, Lady Bayneham said she had some shopping to do, so the carriage was ordered, and Barbara invited to join her; but Miss Earle said she had another engagement, and the countess drove away alone.

Barbara waited in the drawing room until her cousin came in. He looked careworn and tired, as though no sleep had visited him.

"I shall soon take that look from his face," thought Barbara, "though I trample upon my own heart in doing so."

"Claude," she said, gently, "if you have nothing better to do will you spend half an hour in the library with me?"

Poor Barbara! she saw a shadow cross his face, but he spoke kindly.

They went into the library. There was silence for some minutes; then Miss Earle, turning to Lord Bayneham, said:

"I want to talk to you, Claude, that is why I asked you to come here."

He waited wonderingly, for he saw her face was full of deep emotion.

"Answer me truly," she said, "what do you love best in the world?—speak truly."

"I always do," said Lord Bayneham, proudly; "but you startle me, Barbara."

"If you were to ask me whom I love best in the world," continued Miss Earle, "I should say my betrothed husband, Claude Bayneham. It is because I love you so well that I have asked you to come here."

Lord Bayneham did not know what reply to make. He was prepared to marry his cousin, to be true and kind, but he had nothing to say about love. The vision of a sweet young face, framed in bright golden hair, came between him and the noble woman by his side.

"Claude," continued Barbara, laying her hand gently upon his arm, "I will tell you whom you love best in the world. It is that fair young girl you met in Brynmar woods, Hilda Hutton. You love her as you never have—never can love another."

"I should never have said so," replied Lord Bayneham sorrowfully.

"I know it," said Barbara; "you would have married me and tried to forget her. I prefer making the sacrifice myself, Claude. It would be useless," she continued, "for me to affect that I do not love you. As long as I can remember, you have been all the world to me. The strength and depth of my love will be best proved by what I am going to do. Your welfare and happiness are dearer to me than my own; therefore, I release you from your promise—from all the ties that bind you to me; I give you your freedom. You are at full liberty to love and marry whom you will; and I do this because I love you and wish to see you happy."

"But, Barbara," remonstrated Lord Bayneham, "I would have never asked for this—I cannot consent."

Even as he spoke Barbara saw a half flutter of joy in his face, and her own grew paler.

"I know that," she said, "but do you think, Claude, I could marry you, knowing full well that you love another? It would be impossible," she continued, for he made no reply; "if you were to kneel and ask me to be your wife I would not. I do not blame you for loving her; she is a thousand times more fair than I; but, loving her, could you be so unjust as to offer to marry me?"

"I wish I were dead!" cried Lord Bayneham; "I wish I had died rather than have brought unhappiness to you, Barbara. I do love you, but in a different way."

"I shall be very unhappy for a little time," said Miss Earle sorrowfully, "but then I am a brave woman, and brave women have to live down sorrow. All my happiness will come from seeing yours."

"You are a noble woman, Barbara," said Lord Bayneham. "You are as noble as you are true."

He held both her hands in his, and, for the last time, his lips touched her brow, and Barbara grew deadly pale as he did so.

"Go now," she said gently, "and leave me to speak to Lady Bayneham."

Claude turned away; he could not have spoken another word. She watched him with eyes that grew dim with tears. How quietly he had taken his dismissal! He had nothing to say.

With joy and sorrow strangely mingled in his heart, Lord Bayneham did not then know the value of what he on that morning lost.

CHAPTER XI.

Deep in Lord Bayneham's heart there lingered a half feeling of regret for Barbara. Not that he loved her; he had never cared more for her than he did at this present time. Her true nobility of character struck him, as it had not done before. He could not quite forget her words—so true, so free from all affectation, so full of love for him. While they lingered that day in his ears he did not seek Hilda.

Barbara Earle was not one who did anything imperfectly. The rest of that day—the one on which she had given her lover his freedom—was spent in her own room. What it cost no one ever knew. Barbara shut herself up with her sorrow, and spoke not a word of it. The morning after, when she came down to breakfast, there was new beauty in her face, the beauty of calm, serene resolve; the storm had passed over, and all outward trace of it had disappeared.

"We are going to Mr. Seaton's to-day, aunt," she said to Lady Bayneham. "You said two o'clock, I think. Are we to call for Lady Hutton?"

"No," replied the countess, "we are to meet her at the studio. I hope Miss Hutton's portrait will be a success; she has an exquisite face; and, Barbara, remind me that we have to call at Storr & Mortimer's to see about the resetting of the diamonds. The Bayneham diamonds are considered among the finest in England; you must wear them on your wedding day."

Barbara smiled, and had Lady Bayneham watched her attentively she would have seen the firm lips quiver as they smiled. Claude rose hastily; his face flushed deeply. The countess, serenely unconscious, continued her remarks.

"I should like to have your portrait, Barbara. Mr. Seaton is one of the first of living artists; we will speak to him about it to-day. We shall be side by side then in the great gallery."

Barbara made no reply. She was thinking of the fair young face that would be next to that of the stately lady before her, while she, Barbara Earle, would never be portrayed as one of that race. Claude walked uneasily up and down the room, longing to make an end of the painful scene, but not knowing how. At last, to his intense delight, Lady Bayneham rose and quitted the room, still serenely unconscious of all wrong.

"This is intolerable," he cried; "Barbara, I cannot forgive myself for allowing you to go through such a scene. My mother must be told at once."

Barbara raised her clear, dark eyes to his face, and, though the warm tears shone brightly in them, she smiled and said bravely: "It cannot be helped; do not be vexed, Claude. I was wondering if diamonds looked well with golden hair. And that reminds me that time is precious. Take a cousin's advice, and see Miss Hutton to-day. We may still call at Storr & Mortimer's, you know."

"But, Barbara," said Claude gently, "I think more of you than you do of yourself. I cannot bear to think of love or happiness while you are——" He stopped abruptly, not knowing quite what to say.

"While I am unhappy, you mean, I suppose," said Barbara, half haughtily, yet with a smile of amusement. "How candid you are, Claude. Never fear for me. The past is all dead; its ghost will never haunt me. With all my heart I intend to help you; and when you marry Miss Hutton I shall stand by her side, for two reasons. One is, that the sight of your happiness will more than repay me for any pain I may suffer; and the second is, that no one shall say Barbara Earle fled like a love-sick girl. No one shall ever know the truth of this affair but you and I, Claude."

"The truth is," said her cousin, with a smile, "that you have dismissed me. Your reasons for so doing concern no one but yourself."

"I will speak to my aunt," said Barbara; "she will take it better from me than from you. And now, Claude, go. I can see impatience in every line of your face. I venture to predict, if you call you will find Miss Hutton at home."

For once Barbara was wrong. When Lord Bayneham reached Lady Hutton's, he found both ladies absent, and was obliged to wait until two o'clock, when he intended to be at Mr. Seaton's. Nor was Barbara more fortunate. She made several efforts to obtain an interview with the countess, but on that particular morning her ladyship was unusually engaged, and when they left home Lady Bayneham was still in happy ignorance. Barbara knew her aunt too well to attempt any communication of that kind in an open carriage. She knew what the storm of anger would be.

* * * * * * *

"I should be better satisfied," said Mr. Seaton, as the group of ladies stood round his easel, "if Miss Hutton had the same bloom upon her face that she had when I first saw her She looks pale—something like a drooping flower Late hours and much dancing do not improve our fair and fashionable ladies."

Lady Hutton looked anxiously at her ward; then for the first time she noted how changed was the fair young face. There could be no mistake about it. Hilda might laugh and sing, but that look could only come from sorrow—sorrow, too, that had taken deep root. What could it be? Surely the child could not have fallen in love—she, so innocent, so fresh and pure, so untouched by the world, so utterly unconscious of all passion. Yet nothing but love could have stolen the bloom from that lovely face, and yet have left greater beauty in its place. When Mr. Seaton spoke a deep flush covered Hilda's face, and her eyes fell.

While the ladies examined a wondrously executed sketch of a contemplated picture, Claude drew near to Hilda. Before he spoke to her he noted the flush that rose to her fair young face

"Hilda," he said, gently, "may I call and see you now?" Then he lowered his voice, and in a passionate whisper added, "say yes, my darling, for I am not to marry Barbara Earle."

With a heart beating high with triumph he noted the sudden and beautiful flush that lighted the young tender face, the light that shone in the clear, pure eyes, the trembling lip that could find no answer for him. He could say no more. Hilda understood all those few words implied.

"May I call this evening?" he asked, gently; but the "red ripe lips" never moved in reply. Mr. Seaton gazed at the changed face in wonder. The half sad look, the pallor, and the dim eyes, had disappeared as if by magic. It was a beautiful, radiant girl upon whom he gazed, whose features glowed with happiness. The artist knew something of the world and its ways, and he gave a shrewd, quick glance at Lord Bayneham; then, for him the mystery was solved.

When all details of time, costume, etc., were arranged, Lady Hutton and Hilda drove away. Lord Bayneham would not accept his mother's invitation to drive with her; he wanted to be alone with his newly found happiness.

Barbara Earle took her seat by Lady Bayneham's side, knowing the time for the real struggle had come at last.

(To be continued.)

Some English Justice.

Mr. Bradlaugh had hired a field in which to deliver a lecture in Devonport, as the public halls in the town had been forbidden to him. The Superintendent of the Police interfered to prevent the meeting, and finally arrested Mr. Bradlaugh and put him in prison. The next day Mr. Bradlaugh was brought before the magistrate, and as there was not even a pretext for the charge of assault trumped up against him, he was discharged. He then brought an action against the Superintendent of the Police for false imprisonment. The facts were notorious, and even the prejudiced jury which tried the case could not refuse a verdict for Mr. Bradlaugh; but it gave only a farthing of damages, and so compelled him to pay his own costs. Upon that ground Mr. Bradlaugh moved in the Court of Common Pleas for a new trial, as the damages were ridiculously insufficient.

Lord Chief Justice Erle, in giving judgment refusing a new trial, expressed the somewhat strange idea that it was a real blessing to a free thought lecturer to deprive him of his liberty without excuse. Upon the same ground a jury of farmers might think that a ducking in a horse pond was a real benefit to the misguided secretaries of the Laborers' Union. The Chief Justice said:

"There are opinions which are in law a crime. * * * If the plaintiff wanted to use his liberty for the purpose of disseminating opinions which were in reality of that pernicious description, and the defendant prevented him from doing that which might be a pernicious act to those who heard him, it might be that the jury thought the act of imprisonment was in reality not an injury, but on the contrary, an act which, in its real substantial result, was beneficial to the plaintiff, and so the nominal wrong would be abundantly compensated by the small sum given."—The Westminster Review.

Lord Randolph Was Angry.

At an entertainment once, where Lady Randolph Churchill was playing on the piano, says Kate Field's Washington, a tall youth was observed paying a languid and rather insolent attention to the music, standing close enough to the performer to have his comments easily overheard by her. "Lord Randy" was close at hand, too, and presently heard the vapid youth remark:

"Deuced fine music, you know, but it lacks weal soul—it lacks weal soul."

To the critic's astonishment a muscular young man, with a big mustache, whom he had not noticed before, whispered in his ear:

"For a shilling I'd wallop the life out of you!"

He hastened to withdraw, but without discovering the identity of the author of the menace. The next day, to his delight, he received an invitation to the Churchill's home, which he accepted with avidity. On entering the house he was met by his threatening neighbor of the night before, who, he at once discerned, must be Lord Randolph. He proceeded no further than the entrance-hall, for Churchill beckoned to the drawing-room, and out floated Lady Churchill.

"This fellow has come to apologize to you for his remarks of last night," hissed Lord Randolph. "Now," to the stranger, "down on your knees!"

Down went the dandy, lisping out the most abject plea for forgiveness. Then he was turned over to a footman to be put ignominiously out of the door, while the host followed his retreating figure with a roar of derisive laughter.

THESE MEN CONTROL A BILLION.

ONE billion! One thousand millions! 1,000,000,000! All dollars! Let the reader imagine that he is saving $1 every day of his life. Then let him take pencil and paper and figure out how long he would have to live to accumulate the sum mentioned in the opening paragraph. He will convince himself while doing this that the figures are so overwhelmingly stupendous as to be almost past comprehension—too large for the mind to grasp at one time. He will find amusement in calculating how much he could have saved from the beginning of creation or the birth of the Christian era, and then comparing his pigmy numerals with those used in expressing one billion. Yet there are men who can juggle with a billion as easily as Sandow tosses a tenpound cannon ball. They may not possess a billion dollars outright, perhaps, but they control that gigantic pile of wealth, own the greater part of it, and use and handle it as if it was every penny their own.

Two quiet Quakers and one quick-witted Jerseyman in an unostentatious manner reached out from Philadelphia and intrenched themselves firmly in certain industries in nearly all the big cities of the United States. The unexpected always happens, and it is for this reason that the financial experts of the country did not look toward staid Philadelphia for the birth of so gigantic a combination and so dazzling a monetary star as the "Kemble-Widener-Elkins" syndicate, now reduced by the death of its parent to the "Widener-Elkins" syndicate. The syndicate is not incorporated as a syndicate, but by membership in various corporations the individuals are able to reach over the whole country and even into England and control the amount of capital specified, if not more. The start was made in street railways and to-day it controls leading railroads in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Northern New Jersey, Pittsburg and Chicago.

It controls or has an interest in the gas works of Philadelphia, Chicago, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Atlanta, Ga., and thirty other cities and towns from Maine to Florida. It controls the Welsbach incandescent light, the electric storage battery, and a number of important electrical inventions that are coming into everyday use. It has a big interest through individual members in the Cramp Shipbuilding Company, capitalized at $30,000,000, which has had such a big share of Government work and recently constructed the great steamships St. Louis and St. Paul. It is represented in the directory of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company by two members out of a total of fifteen in the board—a rather good percentage. It is closely identified with the Standard Oil Company. It has expended $4,000,000 in real estate improvements in Philadelphia as a syndicate.

The above include the big things in which these men are interested and which they have helped to develop. In addition they are interested through Chris L. Magee, of Pittsburg, as individuals in a couple of ranches in one of the Dakotas; in the Little Wood River (Idaho), and on the Yukon River in Alaska, gold mining properties; in a $500,000 iron foundry in Philadelphia; in a $700,000 iron furnace at Lewiston, Pa.; last, but not least, and it will be some years before it develops, in a real estate scheme of great dimensions in and around Washington, D. C.

FOR ASHES OF THE DEAD.

A Columbarium that Will Hold One Thousand Urns.

A columbarium has just been finished near San Francisco at a cost of $22,000. A columbarium is a place where the ashes of those who have been cremated are filed away in pigeon holes, with a neat little placard on the outside of each giving the name of the departed and other facts for identification. The urn in which the ashes are sealed is an ornamental little piece of pottery or metal, and it may be taken out of the pigeon hole and dusted, or handed about from one to another of the relatives and friends of the departed upon the occasion of their visits to the "grave."

COLUMBARIUM AT SAN FRANCISCO.

More than 1,000 urns can be stored away in the columbarium, on whose possession the Californians are now priding themselves and which is the only one of the kind in the United States. It is a building twenty-eight feet square and forty-five feet high, built entirely of granite, with a dome roof of iron frame covered with terra cotta tiling. In the crown of the dome there is a skylight, through which a soft light falls into the interior of the building, where the urns will stand around in peaceful, mathematical array.

TRIMMING BRUIN'S CLAWS.

Animal Trainer Hagenbeck's Unusual Operation.

Animal Trainer Hagenbeck remarked to an interviewer the other day: "I expect I am the only man in the world who ever cut the claws of a Polar bear. The bear's nails had grown into his feet, and he was in great pain. We had vainly tried to get hold of the feet through the bars of the cage to cut the nails. At last I got him into a narrow cage with an iron barrel front, and turned it so that the animal stood on the bars. I went underneath with a pair of short pincers, and managed to pull the nails out. Then we gave him a footbath to cool the wounds, and in a day or two he was all right."

CUTTING THE BEAR'S NAILS.

Not a Foolish Habit.

The ostrich has always been considered sadly lacking in wisdom on account of its custom of hiding its head in the sand, leaving the body exposed to danger. But the supposedly foolish habit is in reality a wise provision of nature for the safety of the bird in a region where hiding places are scare. When a brood of young ostriches is warned by their guardian they instantly fade out of sight. Gauchos told me that they had surprised broods of more than a score, of which they were able to find no more than three or four, and yet those birds had no more shelter for hiding than was afforded by a dozen or so small bushes. Squatting motionless with his head in the sand the ostrich is so near in color like the sand and the scant herbage that grows there that even experienced hunters fail to see them. They readily learn the habits of their persecutors, and know when and how to seek safety. Here and there is found a ranch owner who will not permit ostrich hunting on his grounds. The birds quickly learn the lay of the land where they are safe and gather on it from surrounding districts in great bands, leaving the hunted grounds bare. And what is more remarkable still, the very birds that will flee for their lives when startled by a man on the hunted grounds will show not the least concern at the approach of a man when they are on safe ground. That they are readily domesticated may be infered from this. The young will remain about a ranch when they grow up, of course, and so their plumes may be obtained without killing them. But not many are kept so, because the old cocks are often ugly and will attack even men accustomed to feed them.

A Cormorant at Work.

Those who watch the cormorant's diving feats are usually so interested in the fortunes of the chase, as the handsome bird dashes after the fish, that not one visitor in twenty observes that, from the moment of its entering the water to its exit, its movements are absolutely different from those of the great penguins. The cormorant does not plunge headlong. It launches itself on the surface, and ducks like a grebe. Its wings are not used as propellers, but trail unresistingly level with its body, and the speed at which it courses through the water is wholly due to the swimming powers of its large webbed feet. These are set on quite at the end of the body, and work like a treadle or the floats of a sternwheel steamer. Yet the conditions of submarine motion are so favorable that the speed of the bird below the surface is three or four times greater than that gained by equally rapid movements of the feet when it has arisen and is swimming on the top.

The lustre of the feathers in the clear water, the cloud of brilliant bubbles which pour from the plumage, like the nebulous train of a comet, as the bird rushes through the water, and the sapphire light of the large blue eye make cormorant fishing one of the prettiest aquatic exercises.

Refreshing His Memory.

The witness, whose first name was Thomas, and who was the son of the plaintiff, testified to a certain important date, and on cross examination, having testified that he refreshed his memory as to the date by a memorandum made at the time, was asked to produce the paper, which he did. The paper was seized by the cross examiner and read aloud. It was as follows: "Tommy, do not forget. It was July 25." The value of Tommy's testimony was destroyed.

Boarding house mistress (at Sunday dinner)—"Mr. Jones, why do you not eat some chicken?" Mr. Jones (who has labored fifteen minutes trying to carve a leg)—"Thanks; I never work on Sunday."—Tammany Times.

AN ADIRONDACK HERMIT.

Bill Smith, Who Has Lived in Solitude for Forty-five Years.

A curious character is Bill Smith, a hermit, who has lived alone in the wildest part of the Adirondacks for the past forty-five years. He sees very few human beings and his only companions are his dogs, which he regards with extreme affection. Smith supports life by hunting and fishing. He has no desire to live in any other way and all efforts to draw him from his solitude have proved vain.

HERMIT BILL SMITH

In appearance Smith is most remarkable. He is fully six and a half feet tall and wonderfully strong. His hair and beard are white as the snow and most luxuriant. His beard reaches to his feet, while his hair falls down on his shoulders. He has neither shaved nor cut his hair for nineteen years.

Smith has taught himself to read and when not engaed in hunting spends his time in poring over the Bible, which he regards with great admiration. Originally Smith was married, and it was his wife's death which caused him to forswear the intercourse of men and live in solitude. He has three children, but they none of them have anything to do with their father. Smith built the log hut in which he dwells. He does all his own cooking and washing, such as it is. The hermit is satisfied with his life and all he wants is to be let alone.

BILL SMITH'S HOME.

Ruby Mining in Burmah.

A large quantity of the world's supply of rubies comes from the Burmah mines, which have been actively worked since the annexation of Burmah by the British government. The ruby district is about 26 miles long and 12 broad, and lies at elevations varying from 4,000 feet to 5,000 feet above the sea-level. Some of the mines have been worked by the natives from very remote periods; in fact old workings are found over an area of 66 square miles. It is in the lower clay beds of the river alluvia, and in similar deposits formed in gullies in the hillwash, that the rubies, spinels, and other gems are found. In the alluvia, square pits from two feet to nine feet across, ingeniously timbered with bamboo, are sunk to the ruby earth, which is drawn up by bamboo baskets. In the hillwash long open trenches are carried from the sides of a gully. Regular mines are opened in some places; in others the limestone is quarried.

To Increase the German Navy.

A society is reported to have been formed at Baden-Baden entitled the German Naval Union, having for its object the raising of voluntary contributions for the increase of the German navy. Branches of the union will be established in other parts of Germany as well as abroad.

PIPER HEIDSIECK PLUG TOBACCO

Consumers of chewing tobacco who are willing to pay a little more than the price charged for the ordinary trade tobaccos, will find this brand superior to all others.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

DR. MOTT'S PENNYROYAL PILLS

The only safe, sure and reliable Female Pill ever offered to Ladies, especially recommended to married Ladies. Beware of pills put up in tin boxes as they are dangerous. Ask for DR. MOTT'S PENNYROYAL PILLS and take no other. Send for circular. Price $1.00 per box, 6 boxes for $5.00. DR. MOTT'S CHEMICAL CO., - Cleveland, Ohio.

Fisher & Son, Auburn. Ind.

FITS!

Brace Up! Don't Lose Courage!!

Your disease is not incurable because your Physician has given you up, and you have not received any benefit from the medicine you have tried, is not any reason you cannot be cured. We can positively cure all kinds of Fits, Epileptic, Convulsion or Spasmodic. WE GUARANTEE A POSITIVE AND PERMANENT CURE IN ALL CASES. We have cured thousands, many cases of long standing, and given up by Doctors as incurable. In our "Allen's Fits Cure" you will find a medicine that has never failed to effect a speedy cure. We back our guarantee with an offer of $100 to any person we cannot cure. Highest Bank references furnished on application.

1 Qt. Bottle, $3.00. 2 Qt. $5.00.

ALLEN MEDICAL CO.,

Washington & Water Sts., BOSTON, MASS.

LADIES

Suffering from Retarded, Suppressed or Painful Menstruation and all irregularities of like nature, will find our FAMALE PILLS an infallible cure. They are entirely safe and can always be relied upon for speedy relief. We have yet to hear of a case where they have failed to produce the desired result. A box should be kept on hand at all times to provide for emergencies. Correspondence Confidential.

By mail, with full directions, securely sealed, $2.00 per box.

ALLEN MEDICAL CO.,

Washington & Water Sts., BOSTON, MASS.

Every Woman

Sometimes needs a reliable monthly regulating medicine.

Dr. PEAL'S PENNYROYAL PILLS,

Are prompt, safe and certain in result. The genuine (Dr. Peal's) never disappoint. Sent anywhere $1.00. Peal Medicine Co., Cleveland, O.

Sold by Fischler & Son., Auburn.

WE HAVE NO AGENTS

but ship from our factory at wholesale prices. Ship anywhere for examination; pay freight both ways if not satisfactory. 100 styles of Carriages. 90 styles of Harness. Send 4cts. for 112 page catalogue. ELKHART CARRIAGE AND HARNESS MFG. CO., W. B. Fendt, Sec'y, Elkhart, Ind.

No. 728½ $38.

Sex-ine Pills

RESTORE LOST VIGOR

Before and After Using.

New discovery. Will brace you up in a week. Sold with a WRITTEN GUARANTEE to Cure Nervous Debility, Loss of Sexual Power in either sex, nightly Emissions from any cause. If neglected, such troubles lead to consumption or insanity. $1.00 per box by mail, 6 boxes for $5.00. With every $5 order we give a written guarantee to cure or refund the money. Address PEAL MEDICINE CO., Cleveland, Ohio.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

RESTORED MANHOOD.

DR. MOTT'S NERVERINE PILLS

BEFORE AND AFTER USING.

The great remedy for nervous prostration and all nervous diseases of the generative organs of either sex, such as Nervous Prostration, Failing of Lost Manhood, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Youthful Errors, Mental Worry, excessive use of Tobacco or Opium, which lead to Consumption and Insanity. With every $5 order we give a written guarantee to cure or refund the money. Sold at $1.00 per box, 6 boxes for $5.00. DR. MOTT'S CHEMICAL COMPANY, Cleveland, Ohio.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES. OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same, in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.

OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

CLOTHING,

SHOES,

HATS,

GENTS' FURNISHING

GOODS.

The LARGEST and BEST assorted stock to be found in town, at the LOWEST PRICES. Follow the crowd and you will be right in it. It won't be hard to find the place.

THE

GLOBE

Clothing & Shoe Co.

GANDY BLOCK
North of Square, Auburn. Ind

An Artistic Job

Is what everybody wants. We handle shoes that were made by artistic workmen. They are neat and attractive. It's hardly necessary for us to say much more about our line of shoes, but ask you to call and inspect them. Prices right. Kiblinger Building.

Shull's Shoe Store.

JUST THINK OF IT!

McDOWELL & CARTER

Are selling the Best

BUGGIES
SURRIES
& ROAD WAGONS

Built in the County. The best trimmed, and for Style and Durability cannotbe equaled, and fully guaranteed to be just as represented. Satisfaction is what you get when you use W. H. Kiplinger Co. Buggies.

McDOWELL & CARTER,

SOUTH SIDE OF COURT SQUARE.

THE AUBURN COURIER.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY.

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, post-office as second-class matter.

THURSDAY,.....MAY 30, 1895.

Gresham Dead

Walter Q. Gresham, Secretary of State died at 1:18 Monday morning, after an illness of about three weeks. His disease was an acute form of pneumonia. His high character and varied public services will make him, always, a prominent figure in our history.

Willis On Statutes.

Bro. Willis, of the Waterloo Press, comes to the rescue of that swaybacked law of his, or rather the law he helped to make swaybacked, the changing of the school law so as to elect a superintendent in September instead of June. There was, as he well knows, not one reason that could be given for the change, except that it would give the new boards of township trustees a chance to elect republican superintendents in a few counties where the present incumbents are not of that party. There was no thought of doing a service to the schools, for if the change affected the schools in any way it would be to weaken them by electing green hands to this difficult position. The editor-statesman goes on to defend the attempt to amend a law that had been already amended, and seems to assert that the law will be pronounced constitutional, merely because the legislators "intended" to amend it in a constitutional way. But the U. S. income tax was pronounced unconstitutional although congress had "intended" to make it a sound law. His closing remarks are rather cute. He says the COURIER thinks, putting out of office a good man, a man of ability and experience is a calamity to the schools. So we do, and Bro. Willis don't deny it. The only reason he can give for a change is a political reason. As to his other remark, that if the COURIER's statement is true, in regard to the necessity of having a man in that office who is qualified to fill it, "we ought at once to begin to educate a man to take his place," we however, think a greater need is, to educate a few legislators so that they will know what they are doing. We need to keep up our standard of excellence in the office of superintendent, of course, but the standard in legislators, should be decidedly raised. As to what he says about there being others who are qualified, we agree there are a number who could in time, put on the harness, among them, Mr. Harrison, Mr. Keep, Mr. Teeters, Mr. Bonnell, Mr. Coe, Mr. F. M. Merica and Mr. Koeppe. But neary all of these would be inelgible under the new law which contemplates only republican superintendents. So we were nearly right after all.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Margaret Sheets was born in Wayne county, Ohio, June 27, 1824, and died at her home at Auburn, May 25, 1895 at the age of 70 years, 10 months and 28 days. At an early age, she united with the M. E. church, and always remained loyal to it, and a true christian. In August, 1846 she was married to Christian Sheets who died in 1882. About six weeks after their marriage, they moved to this county and built a cabin near where the later residence stands, and where they lived together 36 years. To them were born five children, four of whom survive her. Hulbert, in California, Sarah Hoffman, now at home, Martin, who lives near by, Maud Blankenship at Chicago. Amanda died in 1884. Mrs. Sheets was a woman of high character, and will be mourned by a wide circle of friends.

The family and relatives wish to thank the friends and neighbors who gave sympathy and assistance in her last illness.

TOWNSHIP GRADUATIONS.

In addition to the list of dates published on our first page, we now have two more:

Franklin graduating exercises are June 21; Alumni exercises, June 22.

CALL FOR COUNTY ORDERS.

All County Orders dated previous to Jan. 30, 1864 and up to number 405 series N are hereby called interest, to stop May 31, 1895.

D. W. FAIR, Co. Treas.
22-23

WHEAT is 61 to-day and oats 31, paid by L. J. Miller at Auburn.

Frank Parrett and Effie Fretz were married Monday evening by Rev. H. A. Croy, at the home of Frank Burns.

Rev. H. A. Croy is quite sick at this writing.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder
World's Fair Highest Medal and Diploma.

A PLEASANT TRIP.

The reporter returned last evening from a few day's visit with relatives at Antwerp, O. The trip was made on a bicycle and most thoroughly enjoyed. Friday evening, at the Opera House, we had the pleasure of witnessing the graduating exercises of the Antwerp High School and among the graduates was a cousin, Miss Bertha Snyder. The program was carried out as printed and one of the most impressive we have ever heard. On Saturday we took a ride out to the resevoir which was built fifty years ago, and furnished water for the Wabash canal which ran through Fort Wayne to Toledo. After the railroads were built the use of the canal was abandoned and for several years the 3,000 acres of good land which the reservoir contained was worthless as it was covered with water. Eight years ago last April, the citizens of Antwerp and vicinity, determined that they would put an end to that vast body of water, and blow out its banks. The state had heard of their intention and sent a company of the state militia to guard against it, but the party of between seven and eight hundred citizens made the militia boys feel small. The company had guards placed about the lower end of the reservoir, and as they were on duty, several citizens walked up to the banks and put in the powder, lit the fuse, and told the boys to run and they did so, forgetting they were sent to protect the property of the government. This however, ended the reservoir, as the water soon ran off. The government then sold the land for farming purposes and now the 3,000 acres which less than nine years ago was covered with water is all laid out in farms, with road running each direction, one mile apart. The soil is of the very best and the crops that are now growing there are wonderful. As we rode down through the center of that tract we cut off a bunch of clover that had already grown about twenty inches high. From the reservoir we returned to the city and in the evening witnessed another incident which we have never heard of in Auburn. A young couple were to be married that evening and in the afternoon the groom began to fill up with bug juice for the occasion. By eight o'clock all was ready and the ceremony was performed in the presence of a few friends. After the ceremony, rather than to remain at home with his wife, the groom again wandered back up town and with the happy thought of being a married man, proceeded, we are told, to treat the patrons of several different saloons, telling them he had just been married and had more money than anybody. Sunday came and we were compelled to return to our work but on the way home we stopped off and took supper with our former townsman, Will Olds and his estimable wife. Here we spent a couple of hours in a very delightful manner. Mr. and Mrs. Olds are enjoying all the pleasures farm life affords. Will has fourteen acres of corn to claim his attention besides the other work on a farm. He also has a contract of hauling gravel when he gets a spare day.

GAS THERE

Some people are inclined to not believe the reports about gas being abundant in the Pyle farm east of town. But there is abundance of evidence to be had, that there is something out there that causes explosions and other evidences of gas. Mr. Conrad Mann was in our office today and says he will make affidavit if need be, in regard to the explosions. In the winter of '86-'87 he and Phil Sibert were cutting wood for Mr. Pyle, and along in the night after they had gone to sleep, they were suddenly awakened by a loud explosion. Mann was seriously startled, but Sibert told him that was a common occurence, and they were used to it. Speaking of this matter reminds us that Mr. Pyle resents the insinuations of the Clipper that his farm was mortgaged and for sale. It is not true, and the farm could not be bought.

Table Talk

The chief aim of Table Talk, the American authority upon culinary and household topics is carried out as admirably as usual in its June number. The special departments are full of the newest and most useful hints for the kitchen, dining room, parlor and library, as well as for the inmates thereof. Besides these, there is another of Dr. H. H. Hanxhurst's valuable articles on "Infant Feeding," also a delightful description of Wells College, past and present, by Lucy Elliot Keeler. Those who do not know this magazine had better send to Table Talk Publishing Co, Philadelphia for a sample copy, which is offered to any of our readers, free.

Another Gross of

BUKBOARDS

To Be

Given Away

We thought we had enough for every boy in the county that wore short pants.

But our enormous trade in Children's Clothing makes it necessary for us to get another gross to give with every short pant at $2.00 and upwards. Remember, these wagons go with suit and not with furnishings. We have a large assortment of children's clothing at prices ranging from $1.00 a suit up to $7.50.

We Aim to Carry Everything You Need

in Children's Wear, and can make you prices that cannot be duplicated elsewhere. Come and see us for a nice velvet suit and Fauntleroy waists.

Buckboard with every $2.00 suit.

Buckboard with every $2.00 suit

G. H. Yesbera,

Auburn's Clothier

RUPTURE

Of Men, Women and Children permanently cured in 30 days, without pain or slightest inconvenience by the Fidelity Method. Every case guaranteed. Patient need not pay a dollar until completely cured. The truss discardeer. Over 8,000 cases cured in the last five years. consultation free.

J. B. CASEBEER, M. D.

Their authorized physician in Indiana and who will visit Auburn in April. Correspondence Solicited, Address

14 East Ohio Street, INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

COURT.

Friday's Daily.

Car August Fansen, who was booked here as "John Doe" gives his name to the COURIER reporter. He is a "tattooer" by profession, that is, he goes from one town to another, and for a fee, he will put a name, or a design of any sort required, on one's arm in India ink. His home, as far as he has any, is at Chicago. Lately, when he was on his way back to Chicago, from a trip to New York, he stopped over a day at Butler. There he did some work in tattooing, and as there was more to be done he returned last Saturday. Over Sunday he found two men there who got him to drinking. On Sunday, he was getting rather disorderly and the marshal gave him half an hour to leave, but later met Fansen, and arrested him, after some hard words. Fausen said he was so mad, at the way the marshal treated him, that he began breaking out the windows of the lockup. This is the way he got his hands so badly cut.

Charlie Jones and his wife were divorced yesterday and s he receives $1,500 alimony. He has already paid a part of this. Court has adjourned till next Monday, as Judge Penfield had expected to go to Lagrange to day, where he was to try a case, but after adjourning court here, he received a dispatch that the case had been settled. However, work will begin here on Monday, and the jury will convene that day.

Tuesday's Daily.

The jury was busy yesterday and to day. A. Martin, in jail for larceny, has had 16 days added to the 44 he has already been confined, and a fine of $1 with costs. Chas. McFarren, on a charge of assault and battery, gets $10, and both stand committed till paid. Phillips vs Kennedy, to set aside deed, went for plaintiff, but defendant will appeal. He gives bond $300 with F. Jackman. In Pinchin Est. vs Haskins, jury gave plaintiff $50. Douglas Kelley gets a verdict against Charles Koons, Steffen vs Hough, breach of promise Haugh did not appear. Eliza and May Willis were divorced as were also John and Susanna Smith, John A. and Frank Moore. The case of Brillhart vs Jackson school township—an order—it was settled in favor of plaintiff.

TO ANDERSON

W. B. Campbell returned to day from Anderson where he has been several days looking up a location. He succeeded in purchasing the Anderson Daily Herald. This is a live, wide-awake republican paper and in a town with 20,000 inhabitants. Mrs. Campbell has also been elected assistant superintendent of the public schools at that place. We congratulate the people of Anderson on having such worthy people as Mr. and Mrs. Campbell to come among them. And to the newspaper fraternity we can say they will find in Mr. Campbell a gentleman.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder
Awarded Gold Medal Midwinter Fair, San Francisco.

Money to Loan.

By F. L. Welsheimer. Best Building and Loan Association represented in Auburn. Money to loan in large or small sums on good security.

CORUNNA.

Fred Ward and wife visited near Angola last Sunday.

Isaac Reed has added to the appearance of his property by putting down a new sidewalk.

Ida Knauer and Minnie Weimer attended the graduating exercises at Avilla Saturday evening.

Some people who cast their bread upon the waters expect it to return to them all pie.

Rev. and Mrs. Sumwalt, of Orland, visited Mrs. S's mother Friday and Saturday. Also, Mrs. Blanche Cox was a guest there at the same time.

Lafe Miller of Auburn, was on our streets Thursday.

The prospect is good for wheat to reach the dollar mark yet, under this administration.

Mrs. Cheney and Mrs. Hawk and children were in Kendallville Thursday the guest of Mrs. Hawks' sister.

Rev. Bowman preached in South Milford, Sunday in place of Rev. Spekein, who was called away to preach a funeral

The Epworth League will give a social at Hartman's Hall on Saturday evening, June 8. All invited.

THE YORK WASHER

IS ON THE MARKET

This Machine has just been put on the market and is pronounced by all scientists the best and only successful washe made.

Wash Day Made Easy

This Machine saves the price of it in wear and tear of clothing in six months. It will wash perfect from a handkerchief to a bed quilt, and can be operated by a child. It adjusts itself to any different shape that the clothes may come in the Washer.

Another Great Advantage

You can wash any part of the garment separately. The Machine weighs less than ten pounds, and can be placed in any tub or box and when not in use can be hung up.

Mfgd and Sold By

R A YORK, INVENTOR,

AUBURN, IND.

THE PRINCESS STORE.

The stock of goods formerly owned by J. C. Henry at the Fair, has been sold to Rollins Bros., and the business will be continued at the old stand and will be known as the "Princess Store." A new and complete stock of goods has been purchased and will be sold at hard times prices.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE.

To all lands in DeKalb County, Indiana, at reasonable rates. I have the only set of Abstract Books in the County. Also Mortgages, Deeds and Notary Public Work of all kinds promptly attended to.

Inquire at Auditor or Surveyor's office, Auburn, or leave orders at Postoffice, Garrett.

J. P. Crimmins.
Abstractor and Notary Public.

I. O. BUCHTEL, Homœopathic Physician and Surgeon.

Special attention given to chronic and obscure cases and catarrhal diseases of the nose, throat and lungs; also to diseases peculiar to women and children.

Office and residence over Smith & Madden's marble works, Auburn, Ind. Office apart from residence and private. All calls attended to promptly, night or day.

A. F. Phillips, M. D. C. M.,

Fellow of Trinity Medical College, of TORONTO.

OFFICE in the Second Floor Front of the Kiblinger Building, Corner of Main and Seventh Street, AUBURN.

Calls answered promptly Be in Office till 11 p.m.

ROOMS at L. E. Gregg's on West Seventh Streets Auburn Ind. 18tf

Albert Robbins, Pres. J. C. Henry, V. P

FARMERS BANK.

Capital Stock.--
--$45,000.00.

—UNDER STATE SUPERVISION.—

Transacts a general banking business. Interest paid on time deposits by agreement. Collections receive careful attention. Business solicited.

A. C. ROBBINS, Cashier.

Notice of Insolvency.

In the Matter of the Will of Stephen K. Enzor, deceased | In the DeKalb Circuit Court. No. 350.

Notice is hereby given that upon petition filed in said Court by Harrison Enzor, Executor of said will setting up insufficiency of the estate of said decedent to pay the debts and liabilities thereof the Judge of said Court did, on the 21st day of May 1895, find said estate to be probably insolvent, and order the same to be settled accordingly. The creditors of said estate are therefore hereby notified of such insolvency, and required to file their claims against said estate for allowance.

Witness, the Clerk and seal of said Court, at Auburn, Indiana, this 21st day of May, 1895.

DANIEL D. MOODY, Clerk.
Baxter & Brown Attys. for Ex. 21-23

Notice of Sale of Real Estate.

Notice is hereby given, that I, ROXANA E. Knott Administratrix of the estate of Samuel M. Knott deceased, will offer for sale at public auction, to the highest bidder, at 10 o'clock a. m. on Saturday, June 22 1895,

at the door of the Court House in Auburn, DeKalb County State of Indiana, the following described real estate, belonging to the estate of said decedent, to-wit:

The West half (½) of the West half (½) of the South East Quarter (¼) of Section Sixteen (16) in township numbered thirty-three (33) North, of range twelve (12) East in DeKalb County, in the state of Indiana, for the purpose of paying the debts of said estate.

TERMS OF SALE:

One-third cash, one-third in nine (9) months and one-third in eighteen (18) months. Deferred payments to be evidenced by interest-bearing notes waiving relief and secured by mortgage upon the premises sold.

ROXANA E. KNOTT, Administratrix.
Baxter & Brown Attys. 21 24

Notice to Non-Residents.

State of Indiana, DeKalb County
In the Circuit Court, May Term, 1895

Alonzo Thorp, the unknown heirs of Alonzo Thorp deceased; Robert Smith, the unknown heirs of Robert Smith deceased; are hereby notified that an action has been commenced against them in said Court, by Joseph Leeson to Quiet title to certain Real Estate in DeKalb county, Indiana, and that the same will be heard and determined on the 22nd day of July 1895, being the 5th judicial day of the term of said Court, which commenced May 20, 1895.

Witness, The Clerk of said Court, this 20th day of May 1895.

DANIEL D. MOODY, Clerk.
L. J. Gengler & Chas. E. Emanuel Att'ys. 22-24

Remember the grand singing concert near Sedan Friday evening by Prof. Straub with 30 trained voices. It will be an unusually enjoyable affair.

J. A Boyle and Editor Highly were over from Butler yesterday.

- MILLINERY! -

HEADS AND HATS.

DID it ever strike you that Hats are the insignia of civilization? The extent of a nation's headway may be measured by the style of its headwear, and Barbarism and bare heads are as closely linked as Credit and Calamity. Barbarism is built on brawn—heads don't count: Civilization on brain—the head must be protected.

That's Where the Hat Comes on

We appeal for your patronage from this sort of a platform, and ask for nothing we don't think we deserve:

1. We Pay Cash. Wherever and whenever pitiless and inexorable necessity clamors for money, we are there with it. The manufacturer's necessities are our opportunities.

II. We Buy Cheap. The value of a lot of Hats to us depends not upon their "market value." We pay no more attention to "manufacturer's cost" than a cyclone pays to a rail fence.

III. We Sell for Cash. Under our rule no man carries aught but his own burden. Douglas Jerrold once said of the credit system: "Them as does pay—pays for them as doesn't." That way is not our principle—it's not our practice.

IV. We Sell Cheap. The saving we make, we give. We would rather sell a hundred men at 10 per cent profit than ten men at 25 per cent. On that rock we found our hopes for success; on that basis we make our bid for public favor.

Give us a Trial Order.

Goods not satisfactory may be returned

BISHOP & LACKEY.

You leave it to YOURSELF

To Purchase the

BEST GOODS

That are offered for the

LEAST MONEY

And to do this you should come to

Cowan Sisters'

and see the

New— SUMMER GOODS Just in

This Space belongs to D. A. HODGE, The JEWELER, Who cannot tell you of all the new and fashionable goods now in stock, but ask you to call at the store in Kiblinger Block, and investigate for yourself.

We have just received a large shipment of

Wall Paper

Making a complete assortment again. It is plain from the amount of paper we are selling that our prices are right. Call on us before you buy and save money.

OLDS BROS.

North of Court House.

Thursday's Daily.

The German Baptist's Meeting Decatur Illinois.

For this occasion the Wabash Railroad will sell tickets May 27th to June 3, inclusive, from all points to Decatur, Ill. at one fare for the round trip, good to return any time up to June 30. This is the only line running direct to the meeting grounds. Be sure and go via the Wabash in order to save delay and trouble in changing from one road to another, either before your arrival at Decatur or after. For time tables, printed matter and other information call on or write to any ticket agent of the Wabash or connecting line or C. S. Crane, Gen'l as e. & Tkt. Agt., St. Louis, Mo.

Friday's Daily:

Supt Merica and wife went over to Butler this afternoon to be present this evening at the Alumni meeting where he is to assist in the exercises.

Hon. M. F. Franks was a caller to-day. He reports wheat looking very bad on account of dry weather so early. And the recent frosts, he thinks, have greatly injured fruit. Grapes especially have suffered as the warm weather had made them grow very rapidly.

J. E. Rose is home after a three days work on an important case in court at Albion before Judge Adair.

Nellie Barns went up to Albion to day to be present at the graduation of her cousin Herb Martin, this evening.

R. W. Cobb has completed some improvements on his property. He has erected a new Monitor wind pump and placed a tank in his barn which furnishes water to his hydrant in the front yard, It is becoming quite a fashion among our citizens to erect wind pumps for the purpose of forcing water where it is wanted. It will probably be several years before Auburn will get water works and in the meantime those who erect mills may improve their lawns by plenty of water.

The Columbia City Mail says:—It is now stated that a clue has been discovered as to who the bandits were that held up the Lake Shore train at Kessler in August, 1893. Detectives had given up in despair, but recently events have come to light which give the detectives new hope.

There is no end to improvements on west Seventh street. Sam Gibson has just completed his lawn. Archie McIntyre and L. E. Gregg are filling in their yards with dirt, and S. J. Zimmerman is making some improvements. Let the good work continue.

A young married man recently wrote to a friend exultingly: "I haven't joined any secret political society, but I've been A PA since yesterday morning."

Main's circus will be in Auburn, June 17th, so we were informed by the Lake Shore operator who received word this morning, that they were coming.

Al Robbins, Geo. Schaab, Dr. Fitch and Geo. Grund were among Auburnites who went down to Fort Wayne this morning.

Will Campbell and lady drove to Fort Wayne last evening where they attended the show.

Home talent will speak, sing and play, which will be reproduced by the phonograph, even to the applause of the audience, at the M. E. church, Friday evening.

Rev. D. B. Keller left to day for Bryan, O.

TIMELY VERSE.

The little fly will soon be here,
For months he has been blind,
But his sight has got to be so clear
He will leave his "specs" behind.

Mrs. Wm. Stafford went up to Angola this afternoon.

Unclaimed letters remaining in the postoffice for the week ending May 5th. Mary Longe. W. B. Foster, J. James, T. E. Welch, H. P. Williams. Claimants will please call for letters in advertised list. Silas J. Brandon.

A daughter of J. L. Smith, who lives north of Garrett, died to-day. The funeral is Sunday at the home at 10 a. m.

Trustee Sherlock and wife, of Fairfield, called on us yesterday. A neighbor, Mrs. F. M. Dellenbaugh a daughter of the late David McNabb accompanied them.

John Skilling and Miss Curie were over last evening from Garrett and took a physical culture lesson with the class here.

Mrs. A. B. Richards returned last evening from her trip to the state Rebekahs meeting at Indianapolis.

Mr. Myers and Misses Edith and Queen Frederick were among Garrett people in the physical culture class last evening.

Mrs. A. D. Goetschius and her youngest son, reached here yesterday. Their home for many years has been at Twin Bridges, Montana. Mr. Goetschius himself did not come. They are visiting in the old neighborhood in Jackson township.

Just before noon to-day Geo. Swander brought his little boy up town badly hurt by the kick of a horse. Its head was cut open just above the right eye by a slanting kick that laid bare the bone of the skull at that point. It bled profusely and the little one suffered greatly. He took her to Dr. F. M. Hines' office and Dr. A. L. Hines came in to assist. They dressed the wound taking six stitches and although the child suffered greatly, it is not considered in danger as the skull was not broken.

Mrs. Peter Ditmar and her daughter Jessie, were among the Auburn friends who went up to Albion to the graduating exercises last week.

Saturday's Daily:

Smoke the K. & B. ten-cent cigar.

Those who are to bring us wood on subscription can deliver it to us at any time now.

AUBURN Summer Normal will begin July 8.

Boys knee pants 25 cents at the Princess store, formerly the Fair.

Notre Dame University celebrates its 50th year June 11, 12 and 13. Father Sorin, who died two years ago, founded the school in 1845.

Willis J. Eberly, one of the teachers of Grant township was a caller at this office to-day. He is a son of David Eberly who used to reside at Angola, but is now a citizen of Nebraska. He is a nephew of D. J. Eberly.

Daniel Thomas of Corunna was on our streets to day.

THERE WILL be at least three instructors in the Auburn Summer Normal and each will be a specialist in the branches he teaches.

Will Zeigler was in town to-day being here to attend the regular monthly examination of teachers. He is still working on his school chart for which he has his caveat for a patent.

Frank Walters and Ed Berry of St Joe were in town to-day on business. Mr. Walters call on his old friend of the COURIER both having been in the school work together.

FOR SALE: A good house and barn in south part of town. Call at this office.

Henry Spitler and wife of Cedarville will spend a few days with their sons, L. and Wm. Spitler.

A merchant from Hillsdale, will probably open a meat and fish market in the rear room in Kiblinger building.

You can have most any article of iron or brass manufactured at the Junction Foundry.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. A. Bindhammer came down from Chicago on the 3:10 Lake Shore train to visit her father T. J. Saxton.

Miss Jessie Coe came over from Butler at noon on the Wabash train and will remain over Sunday.

Jacob Dermott from east of the river was up here to-day. He came we suppose to attend to some matter connected with the great gravel road case in which he is one of the parties. The suit is "Leighty and others vs Dermott and others. Leighty and those who wanted the gravel road are on the one side, and and those who opposed the gravel road, are on the other.

Stone for the opera house foundation is still coming in at a lively rate. It will take a good deal. In the meantime, Mr. Henry is busy, with quite a force of men, making the foundations. G. W. Wernz is driving the piles, of which there will be a double row all around the building, and a cross row at the point where the business rooms of the front end terminate. The first floor will be occupied by business rooms, whenever they are needed, and all the rest of the building back of that will be occupied by the opera house, which with the intended arrangement, will give ample room for all entertainments. The foundations will be of piling, then plank, and concrete, then the stone wall, and above this, the brick.

Ladies gingham aprons ready made, for 15 cents at the Princess store, formerly the Fair.

On June 27 to 30 the second International Epworth League convention will be held at Chattanooga Tenn. and on Friday morning June 28 a sun rise prayer meeting will be held on Lookout mountain. This meeting will be made general and will be observed by most every chapter in the world. Arrangements have already been completed for the sunrise prayer meeting by the League of Auburn.

Robert A. Cochran and Lucinda Cochran, and Chas. F. Fell, and Mattie Ober have recently been licensed to marry.

The Commercial says they have a citizen who loaded his shotgun twelve years ago, in such haste to shoot a burglar in the house, that he rammed down a second load on one already in the gun, and has up to date never tried to shoot it off As they are having a good deal of burglar business there now, it is believed he will soon have use for both loads.

Rev. Geo. Healey is in charge of a large congregation at Anaconda, Montana, and is well pleased with his new home.

The wooden wedding, tin wedding, crystal wedding, silver wedding, golden wedding and diamond wedding have all been knocked out. Mr. and Mrs. Szathmary, of Zsombolga, Hungary, have just celebrated the hundredth anniversary of their marriage. The bride is 116 years of age and the groom one year older. The world salutes Mr. and Mrs. Szathmary. A century of wedded life certainly merits congratulation from the people of every land.

Thomas Hallam has a good deal of fruit on his two lots, where he lives at the end of West Seventh street, It includes strawberries, goose berries, currants, plums, pears, grapes and apples. But the wonder of all, is one of the plum trees, which though very small, is likely to have about a bushel of fruit. It is wonderful, how these small plum and small pear trees will bear.

In the examination to-day for teachers license there were 42 applicants as against 44 in April and 54 in March. For Common School Diplomas there were 276 sets of paper making in all 416 sets of papers to grade since March. Verily there is an abundance of work for a superintendent, and that of a kind requiring great care and careful attention.

Monday's Daily

John Coder came up from St. Joe, today, and is on his way to visit his son Frank, who resides at Norvell, Mich. Frank is station agent and operator at that place, for the Lake Shore.

Mrs. G. Fox and daughter Helen and sister Miss Celia Schorpf of Ft. Wayne were the guest over Sunday of Mrs. Carie Snyder and Mrs. Opha Brandon. They returned to Ft. Wayne this afternoon.

All diseases of the air passages especially catarrah and chronic, Bronchitis, as well as first stages of consumption can be cured. I am treating these diseases with great success by the use of the latest and most improved medicines and instruments. Dr. W H. Nusbaum, Auburn, Ind. 42tf

Norman Donaldson has moved into the Apple property in Gas Addition.

H. C Croy of Blakesley, Ohio called on his father H. A. Croy to-day. He will move to Missouri in a few days.

J. F. Shuman an Miss Blanche Jackman of Waterloo were guests at the Glazeir House Saturday.

Miss Ora Yeagy of Waterloo, was the guest of her cousin, Flora Bachtel, over Sunday.

Clint Potter, at Sheffer's meat market, bought an eight months old hog of John Pyle last week, that weighed 256 pounds. Pretty good chunk of a pig.

Geo. W. Draggoo and his daughter, Alice, were in town to-day. They speak of their severe loss of the barn and its contents by fire, and of the suffering of the injured horses. It was struck by lightning in one of our recent storms.

Mrs. Jame Rose and daughter Mae and Miss Mae Hamilton were at Chicago Saturday. Mrs. Judge Best accompained them to Chicago. From there she wil go to her home.

The world had about forgotten Napoleon Bonaparte, till the patent plate editors rescued him from impending oblivion.

Pleasant Lake reports highwaymen who are in the habit of holding up belated travelers.

Mr. Cobb starts on a century run tomorrow morning at 6, starting from the Swineford House. He goes to Wauseon via Waterloo and Bryan to measure the distance by cyclometer.

Kendallville Standard: N. Steinmate of Elkhart county, recently dug into a cave or cellar, which had not been opened for about 30 years. He found a jar of blackberries which had been in the place all these years and were still in good condition.

The advance man of the Walter A. Mains circus was in town to-day. The advertising car will be here Monday.

Mrs. Darby of Waterloo was the guest of Mrs. Mary Boyer Saturday.

Four young people from Butler drove over here Sunday and took dinner at the Swineford House. They were Herman Sargent, Jay Oberlin, Miss Dora Neidic and Miss Belle Lewis. While here they attended services at the M. E. church. Toward evening they drove to Waterloo to attend services there and from there returned to their homes.

The Spencerville correspondent to the St. Joe News says "Hon. S. S. Shutt is making another half mile of gravel road." A few men like Mr. Shutt would save the big lawsuit now in court and give us gravel roads. too.

Columbia City papers report their new gas well a failure. At least they suppose it is a failure for they went down only 800 feet.

The sermon to the G. A. R. Sunday forenoon at the Presbyterian church was one of the best for such an occasion, that we ever heard. It was full of sound doctrine, not only for vetsrans, but for everybody. Mr. Colvin's rendering of the "Ship of State" at the close, was very fine and the poem was a fitting conclusion of the sermon that preceeded it. The veterans seemed to enjoy the exerises to the utmost.

Tuesday's Daily.

NORMAL at Auburn.

FOR SALE OR TRADE: A 2 year old well bred colt. Inquire at the COURIER office.

The Eagle Manufacturing Co. at Auburn Junction are making all kinds of light and heavy castings.

INSURANCE AGENCY:—People desiring good insurance should remember that Geo. Lanning has an office at the Davis Harware store, and works some of the very best companies in the country. Good farm risks taken. Call on him. 32tf

FOR SALE: A good second hand buggy. W. C. Hartman 2dw

Mr. Wise, who conducts the lectures with the phonograph, was a guest of John Weaver, and the reporter had a brief talk with him on the outlook for crops this season. He has been in many parts of the west, and especially in Illinois, and says the recent severe frosts have done more damage in those parts than in Indiana. He says we are very fortunate that it is no worse here than it is. Our state has generally suffered less in loss of crops than any others of the great grain growing states, for many years.

Something New Under The Sun

Two new and wonderful remedies, just introduced into the United States. The great Scotch remedy, Infallible Scotch Cure, a great specific for rheumatism, gout, etc., in all the multiplied forms, and the not less wonderful Vitaline and Nervetone, for every form of nerve pains and nervous trouble, weakness and debility. These remedies are the "talk of Europe." Ask your druggist for it and accept no substitute. Prepared only by the Hall Medicine Company, Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Fischler & Son. 21-22

Tuesday's Daily.

FOR SALE: Desirable lot. with good house on South Main street, Auburn W. C. Hartman. 2d-1w

FOR SALE: A good, gentle horse, a mare, weight about 1,350. Call on me at corner of 5th and Railroad street. A. L. Frank. d&w

We direct the attention of our readers to the advertisement of of Simmons Liver Regulator on another page. We have used the medicine in our family, and are prepared to say, from experience, that for a torpid liver or a disordered stomach it is a good remedy. When traveling we usually carry some in our valise." —From the "Christian Visitor," Smithfield, N. C.

R. W. Cobb member of the C. R. C. A. has been appointed Local Centurion for this section, by the Century Road Club of America. The object and scope of this club has as its essential object the advancement of active road riding among cyclists and it has succeeded in its object despite the argument that cyclists require no other incentive to that end than the bicycle itself. The membership roll carries the names of a large number of riders who live in all parts of the United States as well as in Canada, England and France.

T. C. Elson, of Buchanan, Mich., is here visiting friends, including his son-in-law, Simp. Johnson. He is looking better than for years. He says Auburn is a fine town as he knows of.

Goshen Times: LaPorte has a bartender who is a philosopher. He says he has heard a good deal of rot about men getting into trouble and then claiming they were so drunk they had no knowledge of what happened. He says a man is sober enough to know what he is doing and be responsible for it as long as he can stand up or walk. In proof of this assertion he cites the important fact that they are always able to count their change correctly after they pay for a drink. He says "he has never yet seen one of them go into a dry goods store or a millinery shop to get a drink. They never make such a mistake as that, but always go straight to a saloon."

Geo. Werntz and his men are now busily engaged in raising the big iron trusses of the new part of the foundry. It will not be very long until this shop will be in first-class condition.

In addition to the fine, wide sidewalk around the Hebel block and Raut's, the walk is now to be carried north on that side along the entire block to the next street. This will include the Gugerli building, Rainier's meat market, Billy Miller's barber shop, F. J. Yeebers' and the Cook Ford building occupied by Cowan Sisters. Let the good work go on. Whenever there is a walk to be put in, it should be of the best. Auburn is far ahead on walks, and should keep ahead.

Alvin Goodwin, of Pleasant Lake was in town this afternoon. He is on his way Paulding to attend the bicycle races Thursday.

Dr. O. F. Rudolph, of Corunna, was here to-day on breiness. He talks seriously of moving to California in the hope to benefit his wife's health, which has been poor for some time.

The nickel social of the Lutherans will meet with Mrs. S. P. Imhoff on east Ninth street in Gas Addition on Friday of this week at 2:30 p. m. All the members are requested to be present.

Eli W. Brown, editor of the Franfort Crescent died last evening. He had been many years, owner and editor of the Post at Columbia City had been clerk of Whitley county, and in Cleveland's first term was postmaster at that place. A few years ago he went to Frankford and bought the Crescent. He has always been prominent in politics and in newspaper circles.

Frank Fisher, Waterloo's popular and efficient city marshal, was in town yesterday. He has been marshal there for several years, and at each returning spring has been elected by an increasing majority. This year, he ran ahead of his ticket more than ever, his majority being about 90. And his competitor was a good man, as strong a candidate as, perhaps, was to be had. We have talked with a number of people there, of both parties, and he seems to exactly fill the bill. He has been careful and painstaking with the streets, keeping them in fine shape, always. His management of the town's finances, as far as a marshal handles them, has been thorough. And there has never been a time when better order has been enforced, when the rough element is to be cared for, as it always must be in such a town. Altogether Marshal Fisher is solid with the people there, because he has done his duty His detective work has been a success, and the republicans, will not wait many years, before they call him to come up higher. For a year past, they have talked of making him a candidate for a county office, and if a republican is to be chosen, we know of no better choice.

Awarded Highest Honors—World's Fair,

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER

MOST PERFECT MADE.

A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant. 40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

FOR THE BLOOD

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

The Best Spring Medicine

Just now everybody is thinking about taking something for the blood. A Spring medicine as we speak of it. And it's a good thing to do, but you want to get the proper medicine. If you consult your physician he will tell you to

Take a GOOD LIVER MEDICINE

and that, because the liver has everything to do with the blood. If the liver is sluggish the system is clogged, the blood becomes impure, and the whole body suffers. Every medicine recommended for the blood is supposed to work on the liver. Then get at once the "KING OF LIVER MEDICINES,"

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

It does its work well, and tones up the whole system. It is "Better than Pills," and can be had in liquid or powder.

COFFEE 12½ Cts Per lb By using Aluminum Coffee Filterer will save its cost every 3 months in the year; always bright; no egg required to settle. Coffee is richer and stronger. Every big restaurant in the world makes their coffee on this principle. Is of more value than any other kithchen utensil. Price 75 cents prepaid. Money refunded if not satifactory. Agents can make from $3 to $15 per day selling this and other novelties. W. M. Woodworth, Kokomo, Ind.

A Reward of $500,

Will be paid for any case of Rheumatism which cannot be cured by Dr. Drummond Lightning Remedy. This offer is made in good faith by the proprietors, and there is no reasonable excuse for any one to suffer longer. Any ordinary case will be cured by one treatment, and it is poor economy to suffer when relief can be secured so certainly. The price of a month's treatment—two bottles—is $5, and that is the cost of a cure. Full particulars and testimonials of wonderful cures sent to any address. Drummond Medicine Co, 18 Maiden Lane, New York Agents Wanted. 22

HAVE YOU A PRETTY FACE? Pimples, Blotches, Freckles, Flesh Worms, Blackheads, Rough, Oily Skin, Cuts, Scars, Redness, Wounds, Bruises, Chapped Hands, Lips, Tan, Sunburn, etc? ORIENTAL ROSES OR BALM OF A THOUSAND FLOWERS is not a Paste, Powder, Rouge, Cosmetic or Lotion, but it is a perfect and harmless Complexion Restorer and Skin Beautifier. There's nothing like it! Price, 25 Cents. Box 437, Auburn, Ind.

FLOWING WELL

Auburn's flowing wells seem to keep getting better. We recently spoke of the fine one John Weaver had struck at his new shop on the south side of east 7th street. Now another gusher has been struck across on the north side of the street near by, I. O. Bachtel has just completed one at his residence, having driven down 96 feet. He gets a big, strong stream of soft water, most delicious for drinking. He has connected a pipe 1½ inches in diameter that carries the water to a tank in the mill. From this tank the engine gets its supply for steam, and a pipe also leads from it to another tank at the barn, for the use of the cattle and horses. But the well sends up much more than can be used atall these places, including the house. It will set others to driving down to the 100-foot veins.

TO DETROIT.

A grand excursion to Detroit and the lovely islands and waters there has been planned, and is being carried out. It takes place June 12, the special train starting from Millersberg and going up the new Wabash line through Ashley and Montpelier to Detroit. This excursion is in the interest of the new church at Ashley, the proceeds going to the purchase of a bell. Train time and rates are as follows:

Millersburg	5:50	Fare $2.25
Topeka	6:02	2.15
Eddy	6:10	2.15
Wolcottville	6:18	2.05
South Milford	6:28	2.05
Helmer	6:38	2.05
Ashley, ar.,	6:47
Ashley, leave,	6:52	2.00
Hamilton	7:07	2.00
Edon	7:21	2.00
Montpelier	7:35	2.00
N. Morenci	8:15	1.75
Arrive at Detroit	10 30

This will give all the rest of the day to sight seeing. The beautiful city park on Belle Isle, an island close by the upper part of the city to which boats run every 15 minutes, and ferry boats every 10 minutes across the river to Windsor, a city on the Canada side, and the constant stream of vessels to and from the great lakes, unite to make an attraction no other excursion can promise. Auburn people will be able to get to Montpelier on the 5:21 train at half fare, if they go in a party of ten. Then from Montpelier it is $2.00 for the round trip. All the rates given are for round trip

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

JAMES A. BARNS, - - PUBLISHER.

The "Mosquito reservation" probably is a mere figure of speech; we never saw a mosquito that was the least bit reserved.

Oscar Wilde once claimed that French and Greek were the only two languages he liked. We do not really blame him for disliking English sentences.

Some people are worrying because it is becoming so easy to get a divorce. They shouldn't; when it gets so easy that anybody and everybody can get a divorce there won't anybody want one.

A St. Louis policeman arrested a young woman artist who was sketching vegetables in a market stall. He said he suspected that she wanted to steal some radishes. Suppose she had been sketching the moon?

It takes a rich man to draw a check, a pretty girl to draw attention, a horse to draw a cart, a porous plaster to draw the skin, a toper to draw a cork, a free lunch to draw a crowd, and an advertisement in a newspaper to draw trade.

If aluminium is to be used in the yacht which is to contest with the English Valkyrie for the America's cup the owners may as well prepare themselves to hear the British press say something very severe about trick boats and skimming dishes.

The Chicago young man who sat upon a cannon firecracker and touched it off to see whether gunpowder would retain its explosive qualities for any length of time will be thoroughly competent to give lectures on this subject as soon as he is able to walk.

Andover, Mass., claims to have a compositor who can set type in Syriac, Arabic, Turkish, Hebrew, Coptic and all the languages of Europe. That's nothing; there are typesetting machines which, when they get cranky, sputter in all those languages simultaneously.

Russia was prepared, if necessary, to take the field against Japan with a large army. Having no immediate use for her soldiers for purposes of war it is not impossible the Czar may conclude to employ them in the eminently peaceful occupation of moving his southeastern frontier a little closer to British India.

Eight years ago there were only thirteen electric roads with about 100 cars in operation in the United States. Now there are 850 roads, with a total of 9,000 miles of track, 23,000 cars, and a capitalization of over $400,000,000. The figures show the rapid progress of electricity as a motive power, and we are only on the threshold of the achievements of this wonderful agency.

The Sioux City Journal is impressed by the difficulties in the way of harmonizing State, city, and town government systems. It says: "Just what to do with our cities, how to give them the necessary measure of self-government, and yet to guard against the license which would endanger their existence, how to obey the Constitutional command to have all laws of uniform application, yet to make them so elastic as to suit the village and the city alike—this is a problem in statesmanship worthy of the best talent and most brilliant genius."

Newspaper announcements of great medical discoveries are to be taken with some allowance. They are apt to outrun the thought of the discoverers. Thus Dr. Waldstein, an American physician in Germany, has made some interesting observations of the effect of pilocarpine on the lymphatic system, causing an increase in the white corpuscles of the blood. This indicates a practical application in certain diseases of the lymphatics, and in at least one case of lupus he has obtained gratifying results. In publishing his observations, Dr. Waldstein suggests that this stimulation of the lymphatics might have a similar antidotal influence in tuberculosis and possibly in other diseases, as cancer, and he recommends it to the attention of physicians. Mr. De Kay, our Consul at Berlin, who is a newspaper man, very properly sends home a report of Dr. Waldstein's observations, but it must be observed that it is not the Consul and still less is it Dr. Waldstein that announces "a cure for cancer and consumption." That is a conclusion jumped at by news editors whose knowledge of pathology is not profound. Pilocarpine may prove a valuable remedy, but its experimental use is only in the first stage, and it is not well to excite public expectations prematurely.

The 113th anniversary of the birth of Frederick Froebel, which was celebrated recently by advocates of the kindergarten system the world over, makes especially timely the discussion which has been taken up by Boston instructors concerning the moral influence of a system which seeks to present tasks as pleasures, rather than in the light of duties which must be accomplished. Now the objection is raised that this method, desirable as it seems, really tends to weaken the child's will and to enervate the moral fiber. A recent critic states the case thus: "I do not want to go back to the days of the New England primer and embroidered samplers; but I do say that the fact of their being obliged to do what was then considered an essential part of education, mistaken though it was, whether they liked it or not, had a certain fortifying and strengthening effect on the child's character, and did an important service that we are in great danger of disregarding at present. A kindergarten child is full of resource and ready at devising amusement for himself, but when put into school he is apt to lack concentration and application. Is it not possible to gain both? Could not the children play their games and model their clay without thinking quite so much about whether they like what they are doing or not? The primeval curse at the root of all society and institutions is that men and women think so much about what they do like or dislike, and so little about what they ought to like or dislike."

One of the newspapers of Columbus, Ohio, has been interviewing prominent citizens as to their idea of the progress the city will have made in 100 years from the present time. The answers received are doubtless of small account as prophecies, but it is interesting to note what faith Americans have in the destinies which are to be wrought out in the next century. The probable population of Columbus in 1995 is set by most of the guessers at 500,000, though some are inclined to venture a figure even as high as 1,000,000 souls. The area of the city proper will include from twelve to twenty square miles, and the taxable property, reckoned on the present basis, will not be les than $600,000,000. The ground for these large estimates of the probable growth of Columbus is the fact that the city is a railroad center, and as such is likely to increase rapidly in commercial importance. Passenger transportation, in this millennium of the prophets, will be by means of some aerial navigation, and the street railroads of to-day will be either entirely abandoned or in a state of hopeless bankruptcy on account of lack of patronage. One local patriot was moved to predict that the Ohio State University, which has its seat at Columbus, will, on this centennial anniversary, be numbering its students by the thousands.

Navigators on the Great Lakes are being furnished with a new set of charts which have been prepared under the direction of the Weather Bureau for the purpose of showing the principal currents on the lakes. This work was begun three years ago and has just been completed. The idea was first suggested by the fact, well known among lake navigators, that most of the wrecks which have occurred in recent years have been clustered about certain parts of the lakes which have come to be known as especially dangerous. As conditions of wind and coast have not fully accounted for these disasters, it was decided to investigate the main currents of the lakes to ascertain, if possible, what hidden causes of danger there might be in them and the undertows. Accordingly, the Weather Bureau instituted a series of tests by means of floating bottles which were thrown overboard at different points during the seasons of 1892, 1893, and 1894. The results obtained are indicated on the charts as follows: Lake Michigan shows a weak current close to the west shore moving northward from about Wind Point, near Racine, as far as Sturgeon Bay, and southward from Wind Point to the head of the lake. A little farther out in the lake is a broad southward current along the whole west shore. This current sweeps around the head of the lake, the weaker shore current merging with it, and northward on the east side of the lake. North of Muskegon this current is narrower and the velocity greater. When it reaches South Manitou Island it becomes narrower still, most if not all of it passing between the island and the mainland. Due east of Beaver Island it divides, a part continuing northeast towards the straits and a part passing north and northwest around the island and towards the west shore. To the west of the island the southward current along the west shore divides again, a part passing southeast and then east and uniting with the east shore current. So the group of islands of which Beaver Island is the principal one is the center of a swirl that passes entirely around them. The northward current on the east shore does not pass through the straits, or at least only under extraordinary circumstances, for only three of the bottles entered the straits and only one passed through.

Dumas' Suffering.

When Alexander Dumas, the younger, was just out of college, his father took him on a hunting trip. They put up at a farmhouse, and occupied two little bedrooms which opened into each other. In the middle of the night the son was awakened, and saw his father walking back and forth.

"What are you doing?" asked the boy.

"You see. I'm walking."

"You are sick?"

"Yes, I am in great pain; but I am used to it. I have it every night."

"Is there nothing to cure it?"

"It is incurable."

"But can't it be relieved?"

"No. When it takes me I get up and walk. If it is very bad I go to reading."

"And when it is insupportable?"

"I go to work."

It was true; and in later years his son often saw him in the night sitting at his desk writing with one hand and holding upon his stomach with the other.

"How can you work always?" some one asked him on such an occasion.

"I have nothing else to do," answered Dumas.

The Lawyer and the Witness.

The attorney thought the witness was a plumb born idiot and proceeded accordingly.

"Did you say your name was John Smith?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," answered the witness, politely.

"That's an odd name, isn't it?"

"I don't know as to that. I guess it's about as even as most of them."

"Um—how old are you?"

"Twenty-six, going on twenty-seven."

"You are going on twenty-seven, are you?"

"I guess so. Leastways, I ain't goin' away from it."

"Where do you live?"

"At home."

This nettled the lawyer.

"Well," he asked, "do you know what I would do if I were you?"

"Yes, sir," replied the witness so promptly that he lawyer almost lost his balance.

"What would I do?"

"I guess you'd make about as big a fool on the witness stand as you think I am," and the court quelled the consequent disturbance.

Sue—I am afraid papa was very angry when you asked him for me, wasn't he, Jack, love? Jack—Not at all. He asked me if I knew any more respectable young men who would be likely to marry your five sisters, if properly coaxed.—Tid-Bits.

A REVISIT TO LIBBY PRISON.

(Some time ago Chicago capitalists purchased and removed to that city "Libby Prison" of Richmond, Va., the old brick warehouse where so many Union prisoners were incarcerated during the civil war. It is used as a war museum and contains a large collection of very interesting relics.)

Chicago has raised her jeweled hand
And clasped her arm with an iron band;
As a saint may toy with a tyrant's crown,
After his throne has been toppled down;
As a slave may lift his broken chain,
To test, in might, its strength again.

"What is it they say, old comrades dear?
'No animosity harbored here;
No sectional feeling or party spite
In Libby Prison?' That's right, that's right,
'We have lit the fires of love and peace
'Tis time the blasts of war should cease!'

"Yes, lead me in. 'Tis the same low door
That open swung for us both before;
On a day like this, when the frost-cut leaves,
Drifting low on the smoky breeze,
Fell, dew-dyed, on the crimsoned breast
Of many a lad that lay at rest.

"And many a gallant fellow lay
White and cold, in his suit of gray,
Before we set out for this prison pen,
Jeered on and driven by Forrest's men,
As the settling smoke at evenfall
Fell o'er the dead—a flame-fringed pall!

"Well, how does it look? I plainly see,
With inner sight, how it used to be.
Here was the door and the post about there,
Where I cut my name with painful care,
When, as weak as any child, I lay
After my fever'd burned away.

"Just let me grope; I can surely find
The spots I have so well in mind.

LIBBY PRISON IN 1865.

Here are the stairs—but turned around—
They ran up this way from the ground,
When the traitor, Ross, up there would stand
To call the roll of our gaunt band.

"How queer it seems to be here alone—
I can almost fancy I hear the tone
Of a voice—long drowned in a minie's scream.
Now, out of my darkness faces gleam
Tinged and aglow with the campfire's light,
Or starved and dead in here at night.

"What wan, set looks. Not soldier fare,
Not open fields marked such despair.
Oh! why do those eyes from out the gloom
So sadly peer in this prison room?
Look, look, how they come from far and near—
Assembly call! The boys are here!

"The courtyard fills, they're trooping in
Dungeon and rat-hell, foul and dim;
Forward, advance! Old Libby feel
The clash of spectral arm and steel;
While I—a Samson blind—o'erthrow
This cursed wailing place of woe!

* * * * * * *

"Ah, yes! Ah, yes! I raved. I know
The war was over long ago.
But lead me out where I can feel

ITS SURROUNDINGS IN CHICAGO.

The airs of freedom round me steal.
Yes, lead me out where brothers stand
Who've dropped the gun to clasp the hand!"

AFTER THIRTY YEARS.

ELEVEN!

The mellow stroke rang out sweetly on the still night air of Rockland and a lonely watcher who counted them as seconds bringing nearer and nearer the saddest day of her existence, bent over her wretched sewing and stifled a sob and a tear.

There had been no Christmas joy in Mary Burton's life for over a quarter of a century, no pleasant birthday celebrations, no holiday reunions—only sorrow, bitterness and longing, culminating in a passion and agony of grief when Decoration Day came around.

As now. Twelve! Memorial morn had dawned, the day when vivid memory took her back over the scarlet path from Sumter to Richmond, to find its last step nearly three decades distant, and yet she had not forgotten one episode in which her brave husband had proven his heroism, only to fall at the threshhold of that golden peace which made blue and gray friends and brothers once again.

It had been struggle, privation and loneliness since that mournful moment. She had come to her dead husband's home after the war, to be near his grave, to console his aged mother, till she, too, died, and Mrs. Burton was alone in the world.

"The last look to-day!" she murmured brokenly, placing aside her sewing and gazing from the window past the moonlit meadow to where white monuments stood like sentinels on eternal guard. "The last flowers—the last good-bye! One grave! Oh, if it were only two—if the other but slept by her father's side, I could go in peace, since duty wills."

These were her musings, and they framed a poignant picture of anguish and unrest until morning had come.

Mrs. Burton had received an offer to accompany a wealthy family to Brazil as housekeeper. It would make her an exile, but it promised comfort and a permanent home.

She would carry away with her, however, something more than a widowed heart—the sorrowful distress of a bereaved mother, but bereaved so strangely, so terribly, that for thirty years doubt and anguish had lain incessantly over her soul like a hideous pall.

Hastening to hear her wounded, dying husband's last words, accompanied by their only child, little Myrtle, then one year old, the river boat on which they were passengers had been attacked, burned and sunk by guerrillas.

Mother and child were separated in the confusion of rescue, and when the terrible night had passed away, little Myrtle was nowhere to be found.

The frantic mother had haunted the vicinity for weeks, with others, seeking for traces of missing friends. What had become of her baby darling? She never knew. But as body after body was cast ashore, broken-heartedly she decided that her child had found a watery grave.

Mary Burton had given two to paradise on that eventful last night of the war, it seemed—Myrtle, the innocent, and John Burton, private in the Army of the West, but surely captain in the heavenly phalanx where valor and duty brought the meed deserved.

"Good-bye—my lost one, my cherished

DAWN OF MEMORIAL DAY.

one, dead in wild battle and dying so fearlessly—good-bye!"

Amid the solemn dirge echoes of the village band, Mary Burton placed her simple floral offering upon the mound of her dear hero.

Only a wreath of violets, but they were sparkling with the tear diamonds of a loyal woman's eyes, they were heavy with the kisses of lips pure and patient with prayer.

Then the bereaved one sank to the shelter of a flowering bush, watching the mourners at other graves, with a sympathy that lessened her own grief.

"The sexton said this was the grave," fell suddenly upon her hearing.

"Yes, here is the headstone," responded a gentle feminine voice. "Rodney, look! Oh, we have not come in vain. 'John Burton.'"

She to whom John Burton had been all in all arose to her feet, athrill, and peered through the shrubbery.

Who were these strangers? What their interest in the little mound so lonely and obscure?

"You are agitated, my dear. This may all be a mistake," interposed the first speaker. "We will seek out the lady the sexton told us of, Mrs. Burton. Then we will know, Myrtle."

Myrtle! At that moment the man's companion turned, and her face was plainly seen by the startled, breathless watcher.

Mrs. Burton's senses reeled. It seemed for a moment as if heaven had flashed one of its sweetest mysteries on her vision.

The dead beneath the sod lived again, in every familiar lineament of the strange woman's face, and she was "Myrtle!"

"Rodney," spoke she, her eyes resting pleasingly on her companion's face, "you will see this Mrs. Burton at once, will you not? Oh, my heart cannot tell me wrong! Think! think what to me it must be, after thirty years, to know that I have found at last—my mother!"

"My child! Myrtle! You have his face, his voice. I am she you seek!"

Heaven told the poor, tortured heart this as by an inspiration—the weeping, clinging Myrtle verified it with a strange story.

Carried along in the wave of refugees driven to flight by the guerrilla band, the child had found a home with a family in Louisiana.

Only a name on a locket, "Myrtle," linked her to an unfathomable past. She had grown to womanhood, had married Rodney West two weeks previously.

AT THE HERO'S GRAVE.

The day after their wedding the locket she had worn for years fell from its chain and was crushed under foot.

Attempting to reclasp it, Myrtle discovered a tiny folded paper between the cover plates.

The printed chronicle of the birth of "Myrtle, daughter of John and Mary Burton, of Rockland," placed there by the latter so many years before, it seemed a providential revelation to the motherless waif.

It had led them hither, to this—the happiest reunion of Memorial Day!

All day long those devoted spirits remained at the little mound, sanctified with a new tenderness.

They watched blue and gray walk, arms interlocked, among the cool shaded paths of the beautiful cemetery—blue, bright skies above them, dotted overhead, as the peaceful evening came on, with a whole heaven full of holy, tranquil shores of hope and eternal beauty

BAB ON DECORATION DAY.

A Southern Woman's Tribute to Heroes Both Blue and Gray.

It was just a bunch of white roses, but the ribbons that tied it together told its history—one was blue and the other was gray. It was to be placed on the grave of a boy who had fought for what he believed was right, and the gentlewoman who was to put it there believed that all animosity had passed by, and the Blue and the Gray might be firm friends. So the bunch she carried for her own boy's grave was tied up in this way, and in her hand was another one tied the same; it was to be laid upon the grave of the stranger. That stranger, whose name was even unknown to her, had died fighting like a brave man, and, therefore, deserved to be remembered and to have tribute shown to his courage. I think it a beautiful idea—this one of decorating the graves of all the soldiers, but I like it better when the custom is carried even further, and when not a grave in the cemetery is overlooked.

It seems to me a goodly and proper thing for the living to remember the dead, at least once a year, and it seems a kind and loving thing to mark this remembrance with sweet flowers. As a people, we are not very emotional, and if there is any way in which we can bring our kindness to the surface, it should be done, and so the encouragement of the day sacred to the memory of those who have gone before is worthy of much consideration. Decoration Day must essentially be one entirely free from any feeling but that of generosity and loving kindness. It doesn't make any difference which side a man fought on—he died for what he believed was right, and for that reason he deserves to be remembered by those who are living. Decoration Day ought to mean the union of the Gray and the Blue; there ought to be a flag for that purpose, for the colors blend so beautifully that the result is exactly the tint of heaven itself. I wonder, my friend, if you feel as I do. I wonder if you despise all the funeral trappings—if you wish more respect shown to yourself dead than you might possibly demand alive—and when the long years have gone by, you would not like somebody once a year to place a flower on your grave, to show that you were still in touch with humanity. No matter who it is; if it is the woman whose life was soiled, if it is the man whose death was shameful, or if it was the soldier who was fighting for his country, just remember that not one of them can defend themselves now, and that neither you nor I can judge them.

Start out to make God's acre beautiful; take the crimson roses of love, the white ones of innocence, the lavender heliotrope of devotion, the blue forget-me-nots of never dying memory, the lilies of purity, and strewing them all about here, there and everywhere, make the day one of absolute union—union of hearts, union of feeling and union of remembrance. That is what Decoration Day should be.

And all these soldiers who lie sleeping, those who fought not only on the battle ground of dispute, but in the greater one of life, will, when the trumpet call rings out its summons on the great judgment day, each stand before the Great Commander, ready to answer the questions put to him. And be sure he will not ask his neighbor, "Did you wear the blue or the gray?" But, instead, he will say: "Brother, we have fought the good fight, and may God, in his infinite mercy, judge us." BAB.

A Requiem.

Sleep, O soldier! low, lie low
'Neath the blossoms' scented snow!
Ne'er awake to earthly storm—
Song of peace, nor wars' alarm.

Rest, O soldier! clear and sweet
Waves and winds the words repeat;
While the stars above thee swinging,
Chant the chorus to their singing.

Joy, oh, great ones, silent-seeming!
Thou the mighty art and we the dreaming.
Restless sleepers! Voiceless, silent, we—
Thine the heavenly minstrelsy!

Thine the patriot's name and race;
Thine the hero's crown and place;
Thine the fadeless, star-wrought vision;
Thine the perfect hope's fruition!

Sleep, there, soldier! low, lie low
'Neath the blossoms' scented snow!
Ne'er awake to earthly storms—
Chant of peace, nor wars' alarms.
—Good Housekeeping.

Women of the G. A. R.

The important part that women are playing in the memorial and charitable work of the Grand Army of the Republic is always made manifest upon the occasion of Decoration Day services. Nearly every post has attached to it a woman's auxiliary, and no small part is entrusted to its charge. In looking after the wants and supplying the needs of the sick, nursing the suffering, investigating cases reported as deserving of charity, and in gathering flowers to decorate the graves of the dead, these noble women perform a service that adds to the credit of the order. They are worthy of all honor. Their influence is for good, and it is increasing all the time.

ADVANCE IN WAGES.

BITTER DOSE FOR CALAMITY-HOWLERS TO SWALLOW.

Workingmen Are Sharing in the Returning Prosperity—A Tremendous Nail in the Coffin of Protectionism—Tin Plate and Crockery Industries.

A Long List.

The following is a partial list of wage advances for the single month of April, 1895. Nearly all of these are in industries that are less protected than they were one or two years ago when wages were being reduced in them. Where the percentage of advance is not given it is because the reports usually said that the rates of 1893 or 1892 had been restored:

Firm and location.	Per cent. advance.
Pakachoag Worsted Mills, South Worcester, Mass.	15
Moses T. Stevens & Son, 3 mills in N. H.	15
Thomas Dolan & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.	15
Globe Iron Works, Cleveland, Ohio	15
Wholfender, Shore & Co., Cardington, Pa.	5
Washington Mills, Lawrence, Mass.	—
Bricklayers Co., Philadelphia, Pa.	—
Belding Bros. & Co., silk, Rockville, Conn.	5
Willimantic Linen Co., Willimantic, Conn.	5
American Linen Mills, Fall River, Mass.	—
Silk Ribbon Weavers, New York City	—

CALAMITY HOWLERS, TAKE NOTICE.

Worumbo Mills, Lisbon Falls, Me.	10
Fall River Mills, Fall River, Mass.	10
G. Cotton Co., North Grosvenordale, Conn.	10
E. W. Chapin & Co., Chaplinville, Mass.	10
U. S. Bunting Co., Lowell, Mass.	10
Lakeside M'f'g. Co., Leicester, Mass.	10
U. S. Cotton Co., Central Falls, R. I.	5 to 10
All Cotton Factories, Fall River, Mass.	12½
All Cotton Factories, New Bedford, Mass.	5
Quinebaug & Dan. Cos., all in Conn.	—
R. S. Stevens, Quinebaug, Conn.	15
Slater Woolen Co., Webster, Mass.	—
John Chase & Sons, Webster, Mass.	10
Vassalborough Mills, Augusta, Me.	10
Burke Holl. Co., Rowley, Mass.	10
Weybossett Woolen Mills, Olneyville, R. I.	—
Dyerville M'f'g. Co., Dyerville, R. I.	5
J. M. Stearns & Co., Williamsport, Pa.	1c yd
Wm. H. Grundy & Co., Bristol, Pa.	5
Linwood Mill, North Adams, Mass.	—
Woolen Cos. Mills, Westerly	10
Dodge Davis M'f'g. Co., Bristol, N. H.	20
Poland Paper Co., Mechanics Falls, Me.	12-20
Cocheco Cotton Mills, Dover, N. H.	5
Williamstown M'f'g., North Adams, Mass.	12
N. Pownal Co., North Adams, Mass.	12
Beaver and Eclipse Mills, N. Adams, Mass.	12
Merino Mills, Olneyville, R. I.	10
Tyson Chrome Works, Baltimore, Md.	10
Eddy Electric Co., Windsor, Conn.	10
Salmon Falls M'f'g. Co., Salmon Falls, N. H.	5
Jesse Eddy Woolen Mills, Falls River, Mass	10-15
S. K. Wilson Woolen Mill, Trenton, N. J.	10
Edwards M'f'g. Co., Augusta, Me.	10
Three Cotton Mills, Suncook, N. H.	10
A. L. Sayles & Sons, Pascoag, R. I. (off)	5
Norwalk Mills Co., Norwalk, Conn.	10
Stotts Mill, Lowell, Mass.	5
Paige Tube Co., Warren, Ohio	10
Minnesota Iron Co., Minneapolis	10
Tube and Boiler Works, Oil City, Pa.	10
Hamilton & Ludington, Iron Mt., Mich.	—
Nichols Mills, Tarkiln, R. I.	—
Morristown Woolen Co., Morristown, Pa.	10
Union Mills, Moosup, Conn.	—
Stirling Woolen Mills, Lowell, Mass.	—
Cloak makers, Cincinnati, Ohio	25

That the rising tide of prosperity did not stop in April is evident from the following list of wage advances during the first three days of May:

Firm and location.	Per cent.
Bell, Lewis, Yates Mining Co., Dubois, Pa., per ton	30-40
Helvetia Mining Co., Dubois, Pa., per ton	30-40
Minn. Iron Co., Minneapolis	10
Iron furnaces, Newcastle, Pa.	30
Sheridan's Woolen Mills, Seneca Falls	—
Foundries, Cleveland, Ohio	10
Farwell Worsted Mills, Central Falls, R. I.	½c yard
Mahoning Valley Works, Youngstown, Ohio	15c per day
Tomas Furnace, Niles, Ohio	15
Phoenix Iron Works, Meadville, Pa.	10
Cotton Mills, Springvale, Me.	6¼

Probably 250,000 workers are now getting better wages than six weeks ago, and probably 100,000 more are now on strikes for higher wages, with fair prospects for success. This is bad medicine for calamity howlers, but they will have to take it until they cease their croaking. Comparing April, 1895, with April, 1892—the banner McKinley year—we have here a list of fifty-eight recorded wage advances, two of which (those at Fall River and New Bedford, Mass.) affected nearly 50,000 workers, whereas in April, 1892, we find no wage advances recorded, but instead a long list of wage reductions. The Reform Club published a list of wage reductions in protected industries only, during the first two years under the McKinley tariff law. This list contains forty-eight instances of wage reductions in April, 1892. But for lack of space we would print it and the present list of wage advances in parallel columns. It is not, however, necessary, as neither of these lists will be disputed, even by the greatest friends of McKinleyism. They will try to account for wage reductions, in 1892, and for wage advances now, by the "unusual conditions" in each case, and will continue to assert that their theory is entirely sound, although, in both cases, the facts not only would not fit it, but were exactly the reverse from those promised.

Tin Plate and Crockery Industries.

The protectionists have no trouble in proving the benefits of protection and the evils of free trade. If an industry is prosperous it is because of protection; if it is not prosperous it is because of free trade. Page 221 of the American Economist of May 10, is devoted to showing how prosperous the tin plate industry is under protection; page 222 to showing how badly off our crockery industry is under free trade. It is true that the tin plate industry has been wonderfully prosperous since Wilson made a 45 per cent. reduction in the duty on tin plates—reduced from 2 1-5 to 1 1-5 cents per pound. It is also true that the crockery industry is not as prosperous as it should be—since Wilson reduced duties from 20 to 45 per cent., or an average of only about 35 per cent. But what is the inference to be drawn from the tin plate and crockery industries? Is it not that the crockery is not as prosperous as the tin plate industry, because the duty on crockery was not reduced as much as the duty on tin plate?

There is more in this theory than most protectionists are willing to admit. Thus the crockery industry has enjoyed high protection so long that it has become full of trusts that sustain prices, lower wages, hold factories idle, and discourage inventions and improvements. If the protection duty had been abolished or reduced sufficiently to smash the most of these combines (the present reduction has smashed several) and to compel a complete reorganization of the industry, it would soon begin on an independent basis and would not only prosper but, because it would turn out more goods at lower prices, would give employment to more labor than is now employed. The tin plate industry being a new one and having gotten its start not mainly because of protection but because of great improvements, had not time under McKinley duties, to get into solid petrified trusts that would make it one of the protected fossil industries. If the duty on tin plate be not reduced greatly during the next four years, it will have ceased to keep pace with its foreign competitors and will not, under ordinary circumstances, be more prosperous than the crockery industry now is.

Where Protection Ends.

The legitimate outcome of trying to protect all industries (and thereby protecting none), is shown in an editorial in the American Economist of May 10. Home and Farm, of Louisville, Ky., asks the very sensible and pertinent question: "Why should we protect sugar raisers against pauper labor and not protect the cotton planter against the pauper labor of Egypt, and the wheat grower against the pauper labor of Russia and India?"

To which the American Economist makes the following reply: "There is no reason why we should protect the sugar raiser from pauper labor and not protect the cotton planter. As a matter of fact, the wheat grower is protected and always has been under a policy of protection. The cotton planters of the South have never asked for protection; they have always claimed that they did not need it; but we believe that the time is not far distant when they will find that the increasing imports of foreign cottons are tending to cheapen the value of American grown cottons. . . . . We want no pauper products—no pauper prices—no pauper labor. Kentucky will be more prosperous with protection for all its industries, but nothing can be gained by narrow-minded local selfishness. Home and Farm should know this."

The Economist believes in "going it whole hog or none." It knows that duties on such articles as wheat, corn and cotton do not, and cannot, protect farmers. No duty on an article that is exported largely and imported not at all, or but slightly, can be protective, unless the producers of such an article can form a trust and maintain prices at home above those for export. This most manufacturers can do, and many of them have done but it is next to impossible for farmers to combine in this way. Consequently they get only bogus protection from their duties.

But supposing it were possible to protect all industries alike by protection; and supposing moreover, that the benefits of this protection were distributed evenly among all engaged in these industries—including even the factory hands who never receive any protection benefits, and never hear of them except at election time—what would be the final effect of protection? It would be that each industry would be protected at the expense of all other industries and what one would gain by protection would be lost by the time it had paid its share of protection to all other industries. It would be exactly like a game of poker in which each participant had lost exactly as much as he had won—not counting time as any value. It is impossible for everyone around a gaming table to win more than he loses. It is equally impossible for every industry to gain more than it loses by protection—unless we accept as true the idiotic statement that the foreigner pays our tariff taxes. There is nothing in protection when it is applied "all hands round." There is much in it, for those on the inside, when applied to certain industries. Let us not deceive ourselves about it!—Byron W. Holt.

Is Your Blood Pure

If it is, you will be strong, vigorous, full of life and ambition; you will have a good appetite and good digestion; strong nerves, sweet sleep.

But how few can say that their blood is pure! How many people are suffering daily from the consequences of impure blood, scrofula, salt rheum, rheumatism, catarrh, nervousness, sleeplessness, and

That Tired Feeling.

Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies, vitalizes and enriches the blood. Therefore, it is the medicine for you.

It will give you pure, rich, red blood and strong nerves.

It will overcome that tired feeling, create an appetite, give refreshing sleep and make you strong.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Is the Only True Blood Purifier

Prominently in the public eye to-day.

Hood's Pills the after-dinner pill and family cathartic. 25c

Interchangeable Heels.

An English firm has been granted letters patent for an invention whereby the heels to boots and shoes can be easily detached or reversed. The invention consists of steel, or any similar material, shaped as a lift, with flange and groove, by the first of which it is fixed in any part of the height of the heel at the option of the maker, while the upper portion of the heel is so constructed as to slide into position so that it is indistinguishable from an ordinary heel; but to insure absolute security a fine screw is inserted from the inside. The advantages claimed for it are that when the top piece becomes slightly worn down the wearer can reverse it to the other boot, and after these have been well worn they can be replaced by a new set at a very small cost.

WORKING GIRLS.

WILLING, ABLE, AND AMBITIOUS,

But Often Held Back by an Illness They do not Understand.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

A young and intelligent working-girl of Brooklyn, N.Y., graphically pictures the working-girl's life.

Day in and day out, month after month, she toils. She is the bread-winner of the family, and must work that others may live. Rain or shine, warm or cold, she must get to her place of employment sharp on time. With the sunshine and gladness all crushed out of her life, she goes on until she falls.

Oh! this pictures only one of thousands. Some work in cramped positions, but the great majority of working girls, so to speak, live on their feet.

Among the latter the symptoms of female diseases are early manifested by weak and aching backs, pains in the lower limbs and lower part of the stomach. The "monthly period" is irregular: with some profuse, with others a cessation. The sure symptom, leucorrhœa, is present, and with faintness, weakness, loss of appetite and sleep. She may be sure that a womb trouble assails her. She knows not where to go for aid.

Miss Mary Smylie, of 2078 Susquehanna Avenue, Kensington, Philadelphia, Pa., urges her fellow working-girls to have faith in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She says: "I am a working-girl, and must stand eleven hours every day. I have suffered terribly from painful menstruation and kidney trouble; and my head was so dizzy I could hardly see. I began to take your Lydia Pinkham's Compound some time ago. It was highly recommended to me by a friend. Now I feel like a different girl: no more aches and pains. I am praising it to every one. Our Druggist sells lots of it.

★ ASK YOUR DRUGGIST FOR ★

IMPERIAL GRANUM

IT IS ★ THE BEST ★ FOOD FOR INVALIDS

★ JOHN CARLE & SONS, New York. ★

FRIENDS' OATS

DAILY SALES 50,000 POUNDS. KILN DRIED. ALWAYS THE BEST.

SOLD ONLY IN 2 LB. PACKAGES.

FRIENDS' ROLLED OATS

NEWS OF OUR STATE.

A WEEK AMONG THE HUSTLING HOOSIERS.

What Our Neighbors Are Doing—Matters of General and Local Interest—Marriages and Deaths—Accidents and Crimes—Pointers About Our Own People.

Indiana Fairs.

The following is a list of dates, places and names of associations and secretaries:

July 29 to Aug. 2—Putnam county fair, Bainbridge, A. R. Allison.
July 30 to Aug. 2—Delaware district fair, Middletown, P. R. Hodson.
July 30 to Aug. 2—Ripley county fair, Osgood, W. C. Leslie.
Aug. 6 to 9—Wayne county fair, Hagerstown, J. M. Hartley.
Aug. 12 to 16—Howard county fair, Kokomo, O. L. Moulder.
Aug. 13 to 15—Grange Jubilee fair, Wirt Station, Thomas Watlington.
Aug. 13 to 16—Jefferson county fair, Madison, D. H. Demaree.
Aug. 13 to 16—Henry county fair, New Castle, A. D. Ogborn.
Aug. 19 to 23—Boone county fair, Lebanon, E. G. Darnell.
Aug. 19 to 23—Tipon county fair, Tipton, W R. Oglesby.
Aug. 19 to 24—Spencer county fair, Rockport, C. M. Partridge.
Aug. 20 to 23—Newton county fair, Morocco, A. E. Purkey.
Aug. 20 to 23—Maxinkuckee fair, Marmont, J. H. Koontz.
Aug. 20 to 23—Delaware county fair, Muncie, M. S. Claypool.
Aug. 20 to 24—Dearborn county fair, Lawrenceburg, J. S. Dorman.
Aug. 21 to 24—Warren country fair, West Lebanon, M. A. Judy.
Aug. 26 to 30—Hancock county fair, Greenfield, Elbert Tyner.
Aug. 26 to 30—Clinton county fair, Frankfort, Joseph Heavilon.
Aug. 26 to 30—Johnson county fair, Franklin, W. S. Young.
Aug. 26 to 30—Harrison county fair, Corydon, Amos Lemon.
Aug. 26 to 30—Bridgeton union fair, Bridgeton, F. M. Miller.
Aug. 26 to 31—Oakland City fair, Oakland City, R. C. Barber.
Aug. 27 to 31—Scott county fair, Scottsburg, Joseph H. Shea.
Aug. 27 to 31—Remington fair, Remington, Jasper Guy.
Aug. 27 to 31—Grant county fair, Marion, H. G. Hamaker.
Aug. 28 to 31—Paoli fair, Paoli. A. W. Bruner.
Sept. 2 to 6—District fair, Boswell, Wm. H. McKnight.
Sept. 2 to 7—Tippecanoe country fair, Lafayette, Wm. M. Blackstock.
Sept. 2 to 7—Spencer county fair, Chrisney, P. C. Jolly.
Sept. 3 to 6—Washington county fair, Salem, J. W. Morris.
Sept. 3 to 7—Shelby county fair, Shelbyville, E. E. Stroup.
Sept. 3 to 7—Pike county fair, Petersburg, W. A. Oliphant.
Sept. 3 to 7—Warren tri-county fair, Warren, G. Fleming.
Sept. 9 to 13—Montgomery county fair, Crawfordsville, W. W. Morgan.
Sept. 9 to 13—Vigo country fair, Terre Huate, W. H. Dungan.
Sept. 9 to 13—Daviess county fair, Washington, John Downey.
Sept. 9 to 13—Vermillion district fair, Covington, W. T. Ward.
Sept. 9 to 14—Gibson county fair, Princeton, W. B. Kight.
Sept. 10 to 13—Lake county fair, Crown Point, W. L. Allman.
Sept. 10 to 13—Kentland fair, Kentland, H. Strohme.
Sept. 10 to 13—Rush county fair, Rushville, W. L. King.
Sept. 10 to 14—Huntington county fair, Huntington, Adam L. Beck.
Sept. 11 to 14—District fair, Macy, Ira B. Hurst.
Sept. 16 to 20—Tri-State fair, Evansville, R. L. Akin.
Sept. 16 to 20—Cayuga fair, Cayuga, J. S. Groundyke.
Sept. 16 to 21—Indiana State fair, Indianapolis, Charles F. Kenedy.
Sept. 16 to 21—Dubois county fair, Huntingburg, D. Rentpholer.
Sept. 17 to 20—Lagrange county fair, Lagrange, L. M. Rowe.
Sept. 17 to 20—Agricultural and Industral fair, Plymouth, Chris Fisher.
Sept. 17 to 20—Wabash county fair, Wabash, W. E. Coate.
Sept. 17 to 20—Porter county fair, Valparaiso, E. S. Beach.
Sept. 17 to 21—Stark county fair, Knox, H. R. Koffel.
Sept. 23 to 27—Jay county fair, Portland, Geo. W. Bergeman.
Sept. 23 to 27—Flora fair, Flora, C. E. Nobes.
Sept. 23 to 28—Fort Wayne Driving Club meeting, Fort Wayne, H. C. Rockhill.
Sept. 24 to 27—LaPorte county fair, LaPorte, J. Vene Dorland.
Sept. 24 to 27—Fayette county fair, Connersville, W. F. Downes.
Sept. 24 to 27—Monroe county fair, Bloomington, C. R. Worrell.
Sept. 24 to 27—Bremen fair, Bremen, Henry H. Miller.
Sept. 24 to 28—Vermillion county fair, Newport, John Richardson.
Sept. 30 to Oct. 4—Eastern Indiana fair, Kendallville. J. S. C nogue.
Sept. 30 to Oct. 4—Northern Indiana and Southern Michigan fair, South Bend, Dixo W. Place.
O ct. 1 to 5—Bedford fair, Bedford, S. T. Zollman.
Oct. 1 to 4—Poplar Grove fair, Poplar Grove, A. D. Woods.
Oct 1 to 4—Randolph county fair, Winchester, D. E. Hoffman
Oct. 2 to 5—Fulton county fair, Rochester, Geo. V. Dawson.
Oct. 7 to 11—Northeastern Indiana fair, Waterloo. M Kiplinger.
Oct 8 to 11—Steuben county fair. Angola, H. L. Huston.
Oct. 8 to 11—Bourbon District fair, Bourbon, G. D. Estinger.
Oct. 14 to 19—Knox county fair, Vincennes, J. W. Emison.

Minor State News.

THE New Richmond bank has decided to discontinue its deposit department and has paid its depositors.

MRS. GEORGE FRESHOUR, of Marion, died in great agony at the home of her mother in Goshen, as a direct result of a large dose of patent headache cure bought in Marion a week ago.

ONE week ago the house of Mrs. Hewitt at Parker City was blown to pieces with dynamite. Since then, it is claimed, that 11,029 people have visited the scene. The injured women will recover.

EX-REPRESENTATIVE DR. L. S. NULL and James Bilderback was thrown from a buggy at New Haven, Allen county. Dr. Null was injured internally, and it is feared his injuries will prove fatal. Bilderback's skull is fractured and face badly lacerated.

WHILE digging a well on the place of D. H. Remly, in Montgomery county, the diggers found a block of wood, weighing several pounds, at the depth of sixty-five feet. The wood resembles walnut, but it is not, and no person has been found to tell what kind it is.

FRAUD orders have been issued against the following persons and corporations in Indiana debarring them from the use of the mails: Charles Adams and Ella Moore, of Mishawaka, Ind., for alleged fraudulent patent medicine circulars; the Central American Fur and Wool Company, Benjamin Bernard, manager, Indianapolis, for obtaining money under false pretenses. The firm advertises for hides, skins, &c., and then, it is alleged, does not pay for them.

PATENTS have been issued to the following residents of Indiana: Michael J. Cadden, assignor of one-half to R. M. Suratt, Terre Haute, cushioned horseshoe; Thomas C. Cadwgan, Anderson, assignor of one-half of three patents to the C. S. Kelley Company, Springfield, Ohio, machine for washing and preparing paper stock and beating engine for paper stock; Joseph H. Colvin, Richmond, snow or ice remover for railways; Edgar Henley and J. H. Luken, Richmond, veterinary device; Lucian R. Oaks, Bloomington, support for incubator thermometers; Britton Poulson, Fort Wayne, assignor to F. C. Austin, Chicago, Ill., reversible road roller.

THE Brandt, Carter & Co., sawmill at Eaton was buned. Loss, $5,000. No insurance.

THREE well-known Anderson women have formed a firm and are doing paper hanging, and doing it fully as well as the men. They have been asked to join the paper-hangers' union.

AT Vincennes, the sensational trial of the State against Mrs. George Jordan, for incendiarism, was decided by a verdict of guilty, giving her two years in the penitentiary. Mrs. Jordan was accused of setting fire to a flouring mill out of spite, and the testimony was very sensational. Mrs. Jordan was the wife of one of the most prominent merchants in the county, but was divorced three or four weeks ago.

AFTER THIRTY YEARS

THE BUCKEYE STATE CONTRIBUTES THE STORY OF A VETERAN'S SEARCH.

How Fred Taylor, a Member of the Gallant 189th N. Y. V. I. Finally Found What He Has Sought Since the War Closed.

(From the Ashtabula, Ohio, Beacon.)

Mr. Fred Taylor was born and brought up near Elmira, N. Y., and from there enlisted in the 189th regiment, N. Y. V. I., with which he went through the war, and saw much hard service. Owing to exposure and hardships during the service, Mr. Taylor contracted chronic diarrhoea, from which he has suffered now over thirty years, with absolutely no help from physicians. By nature he was a wonderfully vigorous man. Had he not been, his disease and the experiments of the doctors had killed him long ago. Laudanum was the only thing which afforded him relief. He had terrible headaches, his nerves were shattered, he could not sleep an hour a day on an average, and he was reduced to a skeleton. A year ago, he and his wife sought relief in a change of climate and removed to Geneva, Ohio; but the change in health came not. Finally, on the recommendation of F. J. Hoffner, the leading druggist of Geneva, who was cognizant of similar cases which Pink Pills had cured, Mr. Taylor was persuaded to try a box. "As a drownig man grasps a straw so I took the pills," says Mr. Taylor, "but with no more hope of rescue. But after thirty years of suffering and fruitless search for relief I at last found it in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The day after I took the first pills I commenced to feel better, and when I had taken the first box I was in fact a new man." That was two months ago. Mr. Taylor has since taken more of the pills and his progress is steady and he has the utmost confidence in them. He has regained full control of his nerves and sleeps as well as in his youth. Color is coming back to his parched veins and he is gaining flesh and strength rapidly. He is now able to do considerable outdoor work.

As he concluded narrating his sufferings, experience and cure to a Beacon reporter Mrs. Taylor, who has been his faithful helpmeet these many years, said she wished to add her testimony in favor of Pink Pills. "To the pills alone is due the credit of raising Mr. Taylor from a helpless invalid to the man he is to-day," said Mrs. Taylor. Both Mr. and Mrs. Taylor cannot find words to express the gratitude they feel or recommend too highly Pink Pills to suffering humanity. Any inquiries addressed to them at Geneva, Ohio, regarding Mr. Taylor's case they will cheerfully answer, as they are anxious that the whole world shall know what Pink Pills have done for them and that suffering humanity may be benefited thereby.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

Of High Value.

Impecunious aristocrats know the value of a good name, and are not averse to making a practical use of it. Not long ago, the following advertisement appeared in a French paper: "The owner of an historical name and belonging to a royal family, wishes, in consequence of pecuniary loss, to place his name at the disposal of a joint-stock company or some other great commercial or financial enterprise, in return for adequate remuneration." Another impecunious aristocrat thus makes his plea: "A nobleman, married to a lady who is a member of a royal family, desires to meet with an appointment for himself and wife in one and the same house. He would prefer the post of manager of some estate or of a manufacturing concern, though the couple would not object to the situation of tutor and governess in a German family." Still another is this: "A young, handsome German prince, of very ancient family, and related to several reigning houses and possessing no debts, desires to marry a lady of very good personal appearance, American most preferred, but who must have a dot worthy of the princely rank of the advertiser. Anonymous letters will not be answered."

An Armenian Custom.

A curious custom in Armenia is that of admitting a young man into a guild or corporation of artisans. On the completion of his son's apprenticeship, the father invites the masters of the craft to a feast, and when the toast of the day is about to be given, the candidate runs to the middle of the room and falls upon his knees. Approaching him, his own master inquires if he is persuaded that he can conscientiously call himself a master workman, and upon receiving a reply in the affirmative, boxes the youth's ears three times, and from that moment the lad becomes entitled to have his name enrolled on the strength of the craft and to set up in business on his own account should he care to do so.

New Use for a Watch.

A watch has been invented which measures distance by sound. The inventor, a French officer named Thouvenin, has called the instrument a phonotelemeter. To operate it a little button is pressed at the instant of the flash and again at the sound. In the meantime a needle traverses a dial, registering time to the one-tenth part of a second. The rest is a mere matter of calulation.

Sinful Waste of Wealth.

Millionaire Crouse's stables at Syracuse, which cost over a quarter of a million of dollars, have been sold at auction for $17,500. They were finished like a splendid club-house, but the owner died without making much use of them. It is thought that the purchasers will present the building to Syracuse University for its medical department.

Blind but Thievish.

A negro named Dillard died recently at Jefferson City, Mo., who, while a convict in the penitentiary lost both eyes in a quarry explosion. Notwithstanding his total blindness he could steal about as well as ever and was sent to the pen a second time. He was, moreover, a very expert oarsman and fisherman.

Hall's Catarrh Cure

Is taken internally. Price 75 cents.

WINDSOR CASTLE has been used as a royal residence for 784 years.

BETTER any spendthrift than a spendthrift of experience.

For the Dunkards' Convention at Decatur, Ill., May 28th to June 8th the Nickel Plate road offers a superb passenger service with magnificent sleeping cars, unexcelled diners, luxurious day coaches, and reduced excursion rates.

NEVER borrow if you can possibly avoid it.

EARN money before you spend it.

ADVENTURES WITH A BANDIT.

A Little Occurrence in New Mexico with a Rather Unexpected Finale.

"I had an adventure with Ramon Oritz, the notorious Mexican bandit, down in New Mexico in 1878," said a civil engineer to a Times-Star man. "Oritz and his bloodthirsty lieutenant, Manuel Grijalva, were the terrors of Arizona at that time, and robbing stages and murdering passengers were their daily sport. I left the camp of Argentine mine one morning by stage, having as fellow-passengers four heavily armed men who were escorting $20,000 worth of bullion to the railway. We had proceeded about ten miles when Oritz and his gang swooped down upon us. It was seldom, indeed, that they let so rich a prize slip through the mountains without making a try for it. The driver was expecting trouble and did not wait for a second command, but reigned up at once and sat on his box, looking as unconcerned as though waiting for a passenger. The captain of the guard turned to me and said: 'We are going to make a fight for it. The odds are against us. If you want to surrender be —— quick about it.' Before I could reply a volley of shot came crashing through the coach, slightly wounding two men. We returned the fire and dropped three of the robbers. They drew back a little but kept on shooting and we continued to make reply. In ten minutes one of the guards was dead, another disabled and every one of us had been touched. We had five dead robbers to our credit and felt encouraged to keep up the fight. Five minutes later the captain of the guard was killed and Oritz got a slug of metal in the shoulder that disabled him. His gang then drew off. The driver had sat unconcerned through it all. He now called out to know if he should proceed. 'Wait a minute,' replied one of the guard. He slipped a cartridge into his smoking revolver, stepped out of the stage and dropped the driver off the box. 'One of the gang,' he said laconically, as he mounted the box, took up the ribbons and flecked the lead horse with the long bullhide whip."

Novel Mouse Trap.

Mice are very knowing little animals, and are often too shrewd to be caught by even the best steel traps. To make a very effective mouse trap take a large jar—the kind used for jam and preserves—and tie over the top a piece of stiff brown paper. In the center of this cut a cross. Set the jar in a closet, and suspend by a string a piece of toasted cheese or bacon rind over the center. If the mice cannot easily reach the top of the jar a runway may be constructed by placing one end of a board on the edge of the jar and allowing the other end to rest on the floor. If there are any mice about the bait will attract them. Just as soon as the first mouse reaches the center of the paper lie will drop through into the jar, and the paper will fly back for the next comer.

The same kind of trap may be used for catching rats, only a barrel must be substituted for the jar. A rat will soon gnaw out of such a trap if not prevented. The best way to avoid this is to fill the barrel partly with water. This trap is a great favorite with country people. They lay a good sized stone or brick in the bottom of the barrel and pour in just enough water to come level with the top of this. The first rat which tumbles in, of course climbs on the brick to get out of the water. As soon as another victim arrives there is a fight for possession of the only dry spot. The noise attracts other rodents, so by morning a dozen or more may be swimming and squealing and fighting for dear life.

By the Spring Schedule effective May 19th on the Nickel Plate road an effort has been made to give a better and more convenient service to our patrons. The scheduled time of through trains has been shortened and local points have been effected advantageously.

WEST BOUND.

Fast express No. 5, which left New York 6 p. m. and Boston at 3 p. m. the day previous, leaves Buffalo at 6:35 a. m. and arrives at Chicago at 9 p. m., passing Erie and Cleveland during the forenoon, Bellevue at noon, at Fort Wayne at 4 o'clock. Western express No. 1 with through sleeping cars which left New York and Boston the evening previous, leaves Buffalo shortly after noon daily, and arrives in Cleveland at 7 p. m., taking passengers into Chicago at 7:25 a. m.

The Chicago mail, which departs from Cleveland week days at 6 a. m., makes local stops to Chicago, where it arrives at 7 p. m. in convenient time for evening entertainments.

EAST BOUND.

No. 6 leaves Chicago 1:30 p. m. daily, arriving at Fort Wayne 6:20 p. m., Cleveland 11:36 p. m., Buffalo 6:00 a. m., New York 6:30 p. m., Boston 9:00 p. m. next day.

No. 2 leaves Chicago 9:20 p. m. daily arriving at Cleveland 9:53, Buffalo 4:55 p. m., New York, 7:50 a. m., Boston 10:20 next morning.

Cleveland mail leaves Chicago 8:05 a. m. (daily except Sunday) reaches Knox at 11 a. m., Fort Wayne 1:50 p. m., making intermediate stops, arriving at Cleveland 9:00 p. m.

They Cure the Cause.

Most of the discomfort in life comes from the stomach. You'll admit that without argument. The proof is in your own stomach.

A great many seemingly different diseases come from the common cause—a disordered stomach. Coming from one cause, it is natural that they should all be cured by one medicine. Ripans Tabules not only cure the disease—they cure the cause.

They are good for dyspepsia, biliousness, headache, constipation, dizziness and all troubles of the stomach, liver and bowels. Druggists sell them.

A Good Head.

Sub-Editor—A correspondent sends us a full account of a cock-fight, with photographs of the steel spurs used, the cock-pit, spectators, birds in battle, etc., with every round described.

Great Editor—Glorious! Get it all in.

Sub-Editor (doubtfully)—But this is a family paper.

Great Editor—Y-e-s—I—know. Head it "A Brutal Sport—Where Were the Police?"—New York Weekly.

THE snipe has a nerve reaching down to the tip of his bill. It is the only bird th s provided, and this contrivance illustrates the beneficence of nature in enabling the snipe to detect the presence of its food in mud and water, where the creature's eye is of no use.

"THE outcome of some matrimonial ventures," says the Harlem Philosopher, "depends largely upon the income."

SAVE when you are young to spend when you are old.

AMBITION is the rope by which the mind hangs itself.

Take no Substitute for Royal Baking Powder. It is Absolutely Pure.

All others contain alum or ammonia.

Dying Out.

Now that chimneys are no longer cleansed by the old method, the organization of chimney sweeps is fast running down. The order of Chimney Sweepers is a very old one, having been formed over two centuries ago, and nearly one hundred years ago, in the United States, New York was headquarters, and the sweep either had credentials from the society in London or served an apprenticeship in New York. The cry, which is so made that few can tell its meaning, is, "Sweep, sweep, O! I'm a chimney sweep! I'm a New York sweep, O!" If any one made this cry who was not a member of the organization, he was summarily dealt with. The chimney sweeps at one time cleared on an average from $5 to $8 a day, and when they were not going their rounds, might be taken for prosperous business men. Changes were made in the construction of flues which materially reduced their income, and the days of the chimney sweep are very nearly over. What work there is is done by roofers, who hire non-professionals.

Nothing Succeeds Like Success.

The success achieved by men and things are not always based upon merit. But a success well merited and unprecedented in the annals of proprietary medicine, should these ever come to be written, is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a botanic medicine, discovered nearly half a century ago, and the leading remedy for and preventive of malarial, rheumatic and kidney complaints, dyspepsia, constipation and biliousness.

To Detect Poisons.

A new method of determining the presence of metallic poisons in the body after death is to pass a current of electricity through it, discomposing the torsion and depositing the metal on one of the electrodes. It is said that in cases of antimony, lead, copper, mercury, etc., this method will detect the presence of as small a quantity of the metal as one-thousandth of a grain.

Homeseekers' Excursion

To the West, Northwest and Southwest, May 21st and June 11th at low rates. Ask agents of the Nickel Plate road. Remember we offer a perfect passenger service with through sleeping cars between Chicago, Buffalo, New York and Boston.

THE peacock's spreading train is not the bird's tail, but a corona of feathers above the tail. The ture tail consists of eighteen feathers beneath the corona. The latter is provided with a curious set of muscles, by which it can be erected at will.

COMMENCING Sunday May 19th, the day coaches on all through trains of the Nickel Plate road will be attended by a colored porter whose services are placed at the disposal of the patrons of that line. The purpose of this additional equipment is to insure scrupulously clean cars en route.

ALTHOUGH a woman's age is undeniably her own, she does not own it.

WE think that Piso's Cure for Consumption is the only medicine for Coughs.—JENNIE PINCKARD, Springfield, Ill., Oct. 1, 1894.

UNCLE SAM pays about one hundred dollars a minute in interest on the national debt.

Excursion Rates

West, Northwest, and Southwest. Agents of the Nickel Plate are authorized to sell Homeseekers' Excursion tickets May 21st and June 11th. An unexcelled dining car service and palatial sleepers on through trains between Chicago, Buffalo, New York and Boston.

NATIONAL EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION MEETING.

Denver, Colo., July 5 to 12, 1895.

For this occasion the Wabash Railroad has made a rate of one fare for the round trip to Denver plus $2.00, added for membership fee.

For full particulars in regard to this meeting, time of trains, rates, route, etc., call upon or write to any representative of the Wabash R. R., or connecting lines, or

C. S. CRANE,
Gen'l Pass. & Tkt. Agt.,
Wabash R. R.,
St. Louis, Mo.

COLORED porters have been placed in charge of day coaches on through trains of the Nickel Plate road to insure perfectly clean cars en route.

IF a man has a great idea of himself, it is certain to be the only idea he ever will have.

GOT A BABY BOY NOW.

Happiness in a Southern Man's Home—Tells About the Red Flag of Danger at the Railroad Crossing—Warning to America's Men.

"For twenty-six years I have used tobacco in great quantities and of late years took to cigarette smoking," writes Mr. W. E. Simpson, of Lecompte, La. I want to go on record that tobacco has robbed me of many years of life and a great deal of happiness. I realize it now as I compare my feelings and my condition with that of a year ago, when I was a tobacco saturated cigarette fiend. Many and many a time did I try to quit smoking myself into eternity, but I could not put through a day without suffering extreme nervous torture, which would increase hour by hour till finally, to save myself as it seemed, from almost flying to pieces, I had to light the little, white pipe-stick and swallow the smoke. One day I read in my paper "Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away," just what I was doing. It came to me like the warning of the man who waves the red flag of danger at the railroad crossing, and said that No-To-Bac was an absolutely guaranteed relief from tobacco slavery. I did not believe it, but like a drowning man grasping at a straw, I commenced taking No-To-Bac. The effects were magical, it destroyed the nerve craving, and desire for cigarettes. Two boxes, would you believe it, made me well and strong. I have gained mentally, physically, in vigor and manhood, and with the brain free from the nicotine and a breath no longer befouled with tobacco smoke I am so happy to-day to write No-To-Bac did it all a year ago, so the cure is time-tested and tried, not only in my own case, but several of my friends who have also been cured.

We have a baby boy now. My wife and I feel that all this happiness started from the time when I first used No-To-Bac, and in evidence of our appreciation and in order that the memory of the happiness may be perpetuated in a living form, we want to name our baby boy after the man who wrote the line "Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away."

No-To-Bac is popular here and all our druggists sell it. Hardly a day passes but somebody asks me about No-To-Bac, so I don't want you to hesitate to use these lines in any way that you think will make known to suffering humanity the happiness that there is in No-To-Bac for the many men with nicotinized brains and weakened resolutions. If they will only make up their mind to save the waste of vital power—to say nothing of the money—now going up in smoke and out in tobacco spit.

DO NOT marry until you are able to support a wife.

Reduced Rates

Are authorized by the Nickel Plate road to the following conventions:

1. German Baptists, May 28th to June 8th, Decatur, Ill.
2. Commercial Travelers, May 31st to June 1st, Columbus, Ohio.
3. Knights of Honor, June 10th to 19th, New York City.
4. Epworth League, June 27th to 30th, Chattanooga, Tenn.

NEVER play at any game of chance.

LOW EXCURSION rates West May 21st and June 11th via the Nickel Plate road. Superb sleeping cars and sumptuous diners make travel on this popular line a luxury.

Mrs. Winslow's SOOTHING SYRUP for Children teething: softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

LOOK OUT FOR BREAKERS AHEAD

when pimples, eruptions, boils, and like manifestations of impure blood appear. They wouldn't appear if your blood were pure and your system in the right condition. They show you what you need—a good blood-purifier; that's what you get when you take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

It carries health with it. All Blood, Skin and Scalp Diseases, from a common Blotch, or Eruption, to the worst Scrofula, are cured by it. It invigorates the liver and rouses every organ into healthful action. In the most stubborn forms of Skin Diseases, such as Salt-rheum, Eczema, Tetter, Erysipelas, Boils and kindred ailments, and Scrofula, it is an unequaled remedy.

For Cure of Sprains, Bruises, ST. JACOBS OIL on the .. BASE BALL ..

Field is just what all players call it, "THE BEST."

SAPOLIO

IS LIKE A GOOD TEMPER, "IT SHEDS A BRIGHTNESS EVERYWHERE."

Consumption

was formerly pronounced incurable. Now it is not. In all of the early stages of the disease

Scott's Emulsion

TRADE MARK.

will effect a cure quicker than any other known specific. Scott's Emulsion promotes the making of healthy lung-tissue, relieves inflammation, overcomes the excessive waste of the disease and gives vital strength.

For Coughs, Colds, Weak Lungs, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Consumption, Scrofula, Anæmia, Loss of Flesh and Wasting Diseases of Children.

Buy only the genuine with our trade-mark on salmon-colored wrapper.

Send for pamphlet on Scott's Emulsion. FREE.

Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists. 50 cents and $1.

BEST IN THE WORLD.

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH

For durability and for cheapness this preparation is truly unrivalled.

THE RISING SUN STOVE POLISH in cakes for general blacking of a stove.

THE SUN PASTE POLISH for a quick after-dinner shine, applied and polished with a cloth.

Morse Bros., Props., Canton, Mass., U.S.A.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers, and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

Beecham's pills are for biliousness, sick headache, dizziness, dyspepsia, bad taste in the mouth, heartburn, torpid liver, foul breath, sallow skin, coated tongue, pimples, loss of appetite, etc., when caused by constipation; and constipation is the most frequent cause of all of them.

One of the most important things for everybody to learn is that constipation causes more than half the sickness in the world, especially of women; and it can all be prevented. Go by the book, free at your druggist's, or write B. F. Allen Co., 365 Canal St., New York. Pills, 10¢ and 25¢ a box.

Annual sales more than 6,000,000 boxes.

Burlington Route

SUMMER VACATION TOURS

Special Car Parties, Personally Conducted

To COLORADO AND THE YELLOWSTONE PARK

FIRST TOUR

Twenty Days; Cost $196.00

Leaving Chicago Wednesday, June 26

To the Yellowstone Park via Colorado, Marshall Pass, Glenwood Springs, Salt Lake City. Six days' tour of Yellowstone Park. Returning through the Black Hills, via the Custer Battlefield and Hot Springs, So. Dak.

SECOND TOUR

Seventeen Days; Cost $180.00

Leaving Chicago Wednesday, Aug. 7

To the Yellowstone Park by way of Kansas City, Mo., and Lincoln, Neb. Through the Black Hills via Hot Springs, Deadwood and Custer Battlefield. Six days' tour of Yellowstone Park. Returning via Minneapolis and Lake Minnetonka.

THIRD TOUR

Fourteen Days; Cost $153.00

Leaving Chicago Wednesday, Aug. 14

Through Scenic Colorado by way of Denver, Manitou, Pike's Peak, Colorado Springs, Royal Gorge, Marshall Pass—Around the Circle—Mount Ouray stage ride, Rico, Durango, Glenwood Springs and Leadville.

The cost of tickets for these Tours includes railroad transportation, sleeping-car fares, meals and lodging, carriage and side trips—everything save the incidental expenses.

THE SERVICE IN ALL RESPECTS WILL BE FIRST CLASS IN EVERY PARTICULAR.

Consult your nearest ticket agent in regard to these parties, or send for a descriptive pamphlet to

E. A. GRADY, Manager Burlington Route Tours, 211 Clark Street, Chicago, Ill.

LINENE REVERSIBLE

Raphael, Angelo, Rubens, Tasso

The "LINENE REVERSIBLE" are the Best and Most Economical Collars and Cuffs worn; they are made of fine cloth, both sides finished alike, and, being reversible, one collar is equal to two of any other kind. They fit well, wear well and look well. A box of Ten Collars or Five Pairs of Cuffs for Twenty-five Cents. A Sample Collar and Pair of Cuffs by mail for Six Cents. Name style and size. Address

REVERSIBLE COLLAR COMPANY,
77 FRANKLIN ST., NEW YORK. 27 KILBY ST., BOSTON.

LEWIS' 98 % LYE

Powdered and Perfumed.
(PATENTED.)

The strongest and purest Lye made. Unlike other Lye, it being a fine powder and packed in a can with removable lid, the contents are always ready for use. Will make the best perfumed Hard Soap in 20 minutes without boiling. It is the best for cleansing waste-pipes, disinfecting sinks, closets, washing bottles, pails, trees, etc.

PENNA. SALT M'F'G CO.
Gen. Agts., Phila., Pa.

WE SELL PRINTING OFFICE OUTFITS

at reasonable rates and upon liberal terms. WRITE FOR PARTICULARS. FORT WAYNE NEWSPAPER UNION, Fort Wayne, Ind.

PENSION JOHN W. MORRIS, Washington, D. C. Successfully Prosecutes Claims. Late Principal Examiner U. S. Pension Bureau. 3 yrs in last war, 15 adjudicating claims, atty since.

KIDDER'S PASTILLES Sure relief for ASTHMA. Price 25 cts. Sent by mail. Stowell & Co., Charlestown, Mass.

PATENTS Thomas P. Simpson, Washington, D. C. No att'y fee until Patent obtained. Write for Inventor's Guide.

F. W. N. U. - - - - No. 22-95

When Writing to Advertisers, say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

LYON'S SEVEN WONDERS

A SPECIFIC For all DERANGEMENTS of the STOMACH. PRICE $1.00

Manf by THE LYON MEDICINE CO. INDIANAPOLIS IND.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Disappearance of a Stomach Trouble.

Lyon Medicine Company:

DEAR SIRS—For fifteen years I was afflicted with stomach, heart and kidney troubles. I was induced to try LYON'S SEVEN WONDERS, and am more than pleased at the result. My stomach trouble has disappeared and my heart has resumed its normal action. I can cheerfully recommend it.

ALFRED PARISH.

ORLEANS, IND., July 25, 1894.

Hot Flashes and Headaches.

To the Lyon Medicine Company:

After using three boxes I am pleased to say my appetite has returned, the pains have entirely left my side, I no more experience hot flashes and my headaches have disappeared. I am free to say that had it not been for LYON'S SEVEN WONDERS I should not be alive to-day. MRS. LIZZIE JOHNSON.

ORLEANS, IND., July 26, 1894.

ROOT & COMPANY,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

GRADUATING DRESSES - - -

Commencement Day not far off. Has the Graduation Dress been considered? All the fabrics mentioned are suited for this special purpose There's a very complete assortment of both plain and fancy wears in silk and wool cream textures.

All Wool Cashmeres at	40 cents
" " Albratross at	38, 50 & 65 "
" " Challies at	35 "
" " Henriettas at	40 "
French Diagonals at	50 "
All Wool Crepes and Crepons	38, 50 to 90c
Silk and Wool Lansdowne	$1.00
Silk Warp Engalines	1.00

Silks for Graduation:

Figured India Silks	65c, 75c and $1 00
China Silks	40, 50 and 75 cts.
Habutai Silks	45 and 65 cts.
Taffetr Silks	$1 00.
Crepe de Chine	1.00.
All Silk Crepe and Crepons	60 and 75 cts.

FANS

All Silk, Cream and White, delicately painted by hand $1, $1.25, $1.50, $2. $2.50, $3

Kid Gloves for graduating:

Fine 4 B Glace	$1.00.
8-inch Suede Mousquetaires	$1.25 and $1.50.
16 " " "	2 00.
Cream Mitts, elbow length	75 cts.
" " " arm	$1 and $1 25.

Charming lines of LACES for Graduation.

SAMPLES MAILED AT ONCE UPON REQUEST

ROOT & COMPANY.

DEER PARK,

On the Crest of the Alleghenies.

To those contemplating a trip to the mountains in search of health and pleasure, Deer Park, on the crest of the Allegheny mountains, 3,000 feet above the sea level, offers such varied attractions as a delightful atmosphere during both day and night, pure water, smooth, winding roads through the mountains and valleys, and the most picturesque scenery in the Allegheny range. The hotel is equipped with all adjuncts conducive to the entertainment, pleasure and comfort of its guests.

The surrounding grounds, as well as the hotel, are lighted with electricity. Six miles distant, on the same mountain summit is Oakland, the twin resort of Deer Park and equally as well equipped for the entertainment and accommodations of its patrons. Both hotels are upon the main line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, have the advantages of its splendid Vestibuled Limited Express trains between the East and West. Season excursion tickets, good for return passage until October 31, will be placed on sale at greatly reduced rates at all principal ticket offices throughout the country. One-way tickets, reading from St. Lous, Louisville Cincinnati, Columbus, Chicago, and any point on the B & O system to Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia or New York, or vice versa, are good to stop off at either Deer Park, Mountain Lake Park or Oakland, and the time limit will be extended by agents at either resort upon application, to cover the period of the holder's visit.

The season at these popular resorts commences June 22nd.

For full information as to hotel rates, rooms, etc., address George D. DeShields, Manager Deer Park, or Oakland, Garrett County, Md. 29

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder

World's Fair Highest Medal and Diploma.

WE SAVE

you money, get you highest market price, and make you prompt and full returns on your

.. WOOL ..

Our experience of 29 years is worth something to you, our reliability also. Ask Chicago Bankers or Mercantile Houses about us. Sacks free to shippers. Write for "Wool Letter."

Silberman Brothers,

208-214 Michigan St.,

CHICAGO, ILL.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

B & O. EXCURSIONS.

On May 24 to June 3, inclusive, the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad will sell excursion tickets to Decatur, Ill., at rate of one fare for the round trip, on account of the German Baptist Meeting. Tickets will be good for return 30 days from date of sale.

On May 30th to June 4, inclusive, the B. & O. railroad will sell excursion tickets to Roanoke, Va, at very low rates, on account of the German Baptist Annual Conference. Tickets will be good for return 30 days from date of sale.

On June 2 to 7, inclusive, the B. & O. railroad will sell tickets to Hagerstown, Md., and return, at rate of a fare and a third for the round trip on the certificate plan, account of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, General Synod. Tickets will be good for return until June 18.

For further information call on or address any B. & O. Ticket Agent, or L. S Allen, Ass't Gen'l Pass'r Agent, Chicago Illinois.

LEWIS' 98 % LYE

POWDERED AND PERFUMED

(PATENTED)

The strongest and purest Lye made. Unlike other Lye, it being a fine powder and packed in a can with removable lid, the contents are always ready for use. Will make the best perfumed Hard Soap in 20 minutes without boiling. It is the best for cleansing waste pipes, disinfecting sinks, closets, washing bottles, paints, trees, etc.

PENNA. SALT M'F'G CO.

Gen. Agts., Phila., Pa.

WILCOX COMPOUND TANSY PILLS

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS. These only safe and always reliable Relief for Ladies. Accept no worthless and dangerous imitations. Save money and guard health by taking nothing but the only genuine and original Wilcox Compound Tansy Pills, in metal boxes bearing shield trade mark, price $2.00, all druggists. Send 4 cts. for Woman's Safe Guard, securely mailed.

WILCOX SPECIFIC CO.,

228 South Eighth Street, Phila., Pa.

COUNTY SCHOOLS.

Graduating and Alumni Association Meetings.

As far as determined the graduating exercises and alumni meetings of the county will be held as follows:

Butler town, graduation, May 22; alumni, May 23; Concord at St. Joe, graduation and alumni, May 31; Garrett, graduation, June 6; Ashley, June 8; Auburn, Common school, June 12; High school, June 14; alumni, June 15; Grant at Sedan, June 13.

LAWSUIT.

A queer suit in the circuit court now in session at Hodgenville, Ky., resulted in a hung jury. It was a suit over one-two hundredth part of an acre of land, which was valued at $5 per acre. Felix Ash and William Devers were the participants in the suit. The cost has already amounted to over $500, while the land is valued at 2½ cents.

PILES! PILES! PILES!

Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment will cure Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles when all other Ointments have failed. It absorbs the tumors allays the itching at once, acts as a poultice, gives instant relief. Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment is prepared only for Piles and itching of the private parts, and nothing else. Every box is warranted. Sold by druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of price, 50c. and $1.00 per box. WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Prop's, Cleveland, O. Sold on a guarantee by Matheny & Gerke.

Old Dr. Drummond,

After years of patient study and experiment, has given to the world a preparation which is an absolute and permanent cure for every form of Rheumatism. The price is $5, but it is two large bottles—enough for a month's treatment—and will relieve the worst case from the first dose. Sent by express to any address upon receipt of price, by the Drummond Medicine Co. 48 Maiden Lane, New York with full particulars and testimonials of wonderful cures. Agents Wanted. 22

Persons who are subject to diarrhœa will find a speedy cure in De Witt's Colic and Cholera Cure. Use no other. It is the best that can be made or that money can procure. It leaves the system in natural condition after its use.

BUCKLEN'S ARNICA SALVE.—The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Robbins & McCord. tf

English Spavin Liniment removes all hard, soft or calloused lumps and blemishes from horses, blood spavins, curbs, splints, sweeney, ring-bone, stifles, sprains, all swollen throats, coughs, etc. Save $50 by use of one bottle. Warranted the most wonderful blemish cure ever known. Sold by Robbins and McCord druggists Auburn. 34tf

We recomend De Witt's Colic and Cholera Cure because we believe it a safe and reliable remedy. It's good effects are shown at once in cases of Cholera Morbus and similar complaints.

Relief in One Day.

South American Nervine relieves the worst cases of nervous prostrations nervousness and nervous dyspepsia in a single day. No such relief and blessing has ever come to the invalids of this country. Its powers to cure the stomach are wonderful in the extreme. It always cures; it cannot fail. It radically cures all weakness of the stomach and never disappoints. Its effects are marvelous and surprising.—It gladdens the hearts of the suffering and brings immediate relief. It is a luxury to take and always safe. Trial bottles 15 cents. Sold by Robbins & McCord druggist Auburn Ind. 50tf

Rebecca Wilkinson, of Brownsvalley, Ind., says: I have been in a distressed condition for three years from Nervousness Weakness of the Stomach, Dyspepsia and Indigestion until my health was gone. I had been doctoring constantly with no relief. I bought one bottle of South American Nervine, which did me more good than any $50 worth of doctoring I ever did in my life. I would advise every weakly person to use this valuable and lovely remedy; a few bottles of it has cured me completely. I consider it the greatest medicine in the world." Warranted the most wonderful stomach and nerve cure ever known. Trial bottles 15 cents. Sold by Robbins and McCord druggists Auburn Ind. 34tf

A VALUABLE FIND.

After years of study and labor there has at last been discovered a sure and never-failing remedy. It has been tested on patients who have despaired of ever being cured, and the results have been in every case, wonderful. Groff's Rheumatic Cure is unequaled as a positive remedy in all cases of Chronic and Acute Inflammatory Rheumatism, Gout, Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia, especially Ovarian Neuralgia, Dysmenorrhœa and all kindred affections. It is also a valuable Blood Purifier, being especially useful in Eczema, Psoriasis, Scrofula, all Glandular Enlargements and diseases of the Liver and Kidneys. It is absolutely free from all narcotics. Severe attacks are relieved in from one to three days, and a positive cure effected in from five to eighteen days. For sale by Druggists. Manufactured and sold by THE GROFF MEDICINE CO., Chicago. 17tf

L. S. & M. S. R. R.

TIME TABLE—In Effect Nov. 18, 1894.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

Stations—	Mail	Exp'ss	Fre'gt
Fort Wayne, ... p	11 45 am	4 45 pm	6 40 am
New Era	12 14 pm	5 14	7 27
Auburn Junc.	12 25	5 25	7 43
Auburn	12 29	5 29	8 27
Waterloo	12 41	5 41	8 24
Summit	12 52	5 52	9 45
Steubenville	12 56	5 56	.....
Pleasant Lake	1 03	6 03	10 12
Angola	1 13	6 14	10 50
Jackson	1 25	6 35	4 30

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

Stations—	Freight	Exp'ss	Mail
Jackson ... dp	6 55 am	11 20 am	6 50 pm
Angola	12 25 pm	2 21 pm	8 41
Pleasant Lake	1 03	2 32	9 01
Steubenville	.....	2 40	9 07
Summit	1 25	2 44	9 11
Waterloo	2 30	3 00	9 24
Auburn	3 00	3 11	9 35
Auburn Junc.	3 14	3 14	9 38
New Era	4 05	3 24	9 50
Fort Wayne	5 25	3 55	10 25

For rates on tickets or freight to all points, call on or address E. T. DeLAPP, Agent at Auburn

DO not be deceived.

The following brands of White Lead are still made by the "Old Dutch" process of slow corrosion. They are standard, and always

Strictly Pure White Lead

The recommendation of

"Anchor,"	"Collier,"
"Eckstein,"	"Shipman,"
"Armstrong & McKelvy,"	"Southern,"
"Beymer-Bauman,"	"Red Seal,"
"Davis-Chambers,"	"Fahnestock,"

to you by your merchant is an evidence of his reliability, as he can sell you cheap ready-mixed paints and bogus White Lead and make a larger profit. Many short-sighted dealers do so.

FOR COLORS.—National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors, a one-pound can to a 25-pound keg of Lead and mix your own paints. Saves time and annoyance in matching shades, and insures the best paint that it is possible to put on wood.

Send us a postal card and get our book on paints and color-card, free; it will probably save you a good many dollars.

NATIONAL LEAD CO.

Chicago Branch,

State and Fifteenth Streets, Chicago.

For sale by John LDavis, Auburn, Ind

DR. WILLIAMS' KIDNEY PILLS

A remedy that has no equal in diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs, Have you neglected your kidneys? Have you overworked your nervous system and caused trouble with your kidneys and liver? Have you pains in the loins, side, back, loins and bladder? Have you a flabby appearance of the face, especially under the eyes? Too frequent desire to pass urine? No matter what the cause, we know Dr. Williams' Kidney Pills will cure you. Imparts new life to the diseased organs, tones up the whole system and makes a new man of you. Mailed on receipt of price, $1 00 per box.

WILLIAMS M'F'G CO., Props., Cleveland, O. Sold by FISCHLER & SON, Auburn. 1y30

When occasion demands its use, try De-Witt's Witch Hazel Salve. It is cooling to burns, stops pain instantly, cleanses, a perfect healer for scalds or skin eruptions. Always cures piles All druggists.

Relief in Six Hours.

Distressing Kidney and Bladder diseases relieved in six hours by the "New Great South American Kidney Cure." This new remedy is a great surprise on account of its exceeding promptness in relieving pain in the bladder, kidneys, back and every part of the urinary passages in male or female. It relieves retention of water and pain in passing it almost immediately. If you want quick relief and cure this is your remedy. Sold by Robbins and McCord druggists Auburn Ind. 34tf

The most pleasant little pills for regulating the bowels, are De Witt's Little Early Risers. Cure sick headache and constipation. Small pill. Small dose.

He Couldn't Drive Nails.

Jonas Swartz, Hartville, Ohio, relates an experience all the more wonderful because he is nearly seventy. He says: "I wouldn't take $100 for the good Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer has done me. I always worked hard and was careless about a little stomach trruble I had and sleeplessness, which I suppose accounts for the nervous trouble which struck me about four years ago. Limbs of my right side got so I couldn't control them; at times I couldn't hold a cup in my hand to drink from it, and in a crowd would unconsciously hit people with my jerking right arm. The Doctors called it nervous paralysis and said that, at my age, I couldn't be cured, I saw Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer advertised in the Repository and got a sample bottle of it, which I thought helped me, so bought a bottle. Think I have used three bottles, and they have made a steady man of me. I have not felt as well in the four years and am still improving. Why, for two years I couldn't drive a nail." Mr. Geidlinger, in whose store the interview took place, fully corroborated Mr. Swartz' statement, saying his cure was a surprise to all who knew of the case. We are authorized to say, this medicine for control and cure of all nerve troubles, is sold by F. E. Davenport and by all druggists. 18-22

Wide Reputations.

If King Solomon was alive he would now say: "Go to the traveling man learn his ways, and be wise." Mr. C. W. Battell, a Cincinnati traveling man representing the Queen City Printing Ink Co., after suffering intensely for two or three days with lameness of the shoulder, resulting from rheumatism, completely cured it with two applications of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. This remedy is gaining a wide reputation for its prompt cures of rheumatism, lame back, sprains, swellings and lameness. 50 cent bottles are for sale by Robbins & McCord Druggists. 18-22

A Clean Collar

One that you can keep clean all the time—a collar that does not wilt when you get over-heated; that does not fray on the edge, or tear out at the buttonholes, and can be cleaned by simply wiping off with a wet sponge or cloth. These collars and cuffs are made by covering linen collars or cuffs on both sides with waterproof "celluloid," thus giving strength and durability. They are the only waterproof goods so made, and every piece is stamped as follows:

TRADE CELLULOID MARK.

Ask for this, and refuse to take any imitation if you expect satisfaction If your dealer does not keep them, send direct to us, enclosing amount, and we will mail you sample. Collars 25 cts. each. Cuffs 50 cts. pair. State size, and whether stand-up or turned-down collar is wanted.

THE CELLULOID CO.,

427-429 Broadway,

New York.

Hugh McCulloch.

Hon. Hugh McCulloch died at his home near the city of Washington, Thursday night, or rather at 2 a. m., Friday morning. He had been quite sick for a time, and his son, Charles McCulloch and other friends from Ft. Wayne were with him when the end came. Mr. McCulloch was a prominent citizen and banker of Ft. Wayne, and many of our early citizens knew him.

He came from Maine to this state in early days, finally locating at Ft. Wayne where in 1835 he became cashier of the bank of the state band that was started there. From this time on, his prominence in banking circles grew. In 1863, he was made comptroller of the currency by President Lincoln. Early in 1865, he was made secretary of the treasury on the resignation of Mr. Fessenden. He served in this responsible office to the close of Johnson's administration, when he resigned. In 1870, he went to London and established the great banking house of Jay Cooke McCulloch & Co. The banking business of the firm had to close in 1873 by the failure of Jay Cooke in this country and the bank was a year later reorganized and continued to do business. Lately he has resided mostly in this country at a farm home in Maryland, a few miles out of Washington. He was over 80 He was also secretary of the treasury under President Arthur.

There is one medicine that will cure immediately. We refer to De Witt's Colic and Cholera Cure for all Summer Complaints. No delay, no disappointment, no failure. All druggists

The Ditch Question.

MR. EDITOR: Sir there appears to be some difficulty in working the ditch problem under U. S., or Federal money. But by resorting to the state currencies of Pennsylvania or New Jersey, we can arrive at some conclusion.

A gets 6 shilling per rod and B. gets 10 shilling per rod.

7s 6d = 7.5s 7.5 x $100 = 750s

750s divided by 2 = 375

375 divided by 6 = 62½ rd. A.

375 divided by 10 = 37½ rd. B.

N. B. I divide 750 by 2 because each get half of the money. Or this way:

10s — 6s = 4s = 48 cents

100 rd. x by .48 = $48

$90 — $48 = $42 $42 x 42 = $1764

100 rd. x 48 = $48

$45 x 4 = $180

$48 x $180 = $8640

$8640 plus $1764 = 10,404

Extract square root of 10,404 = 102

$102 plus $42 = $144

$144 divided by 200 = .72 A.

72 cents plus 48 cents = $1.20 B.

$45 divided by .72 = 62½ rd. A.

$45 divided by 1.20 = 37½ rd. B.

I find the difference in the prices paid per rod. I then multiply this by the number of rods and subtract it from the whole amount paid. I then multiply the number of rods by the difference in the price paid per rod by four times the amount of the one who got the least per rod and add it to the square. I then extract the square root of the sum and to this square root I add the number that was squared. This divided by two times the whole number of rods equals the price of the one who got the least per rod. Having this every other requirement can easily found.

H. A. WINSLOW.

Our Sympathy.

Persons who sympathize with the afflicted will rejoice with D. E. Carr of 1235 Harrison street, Kansas City. He is an old sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism, but has not heretofore been troubled in this climate. Last winer he went up into Wisconsin and in consequence has had another attack. It came upon me again very acute and severe," he said. "My joints swelled and became inflamd; sore to touch or almost to look at. Upon the urgent request of my mother-in-law I tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm to reduce the swelling and ease the pain, and to my agreeable surprise, it did both. I have used three fifty-cent bottles and believe it to be the finest thing for rheumatism, pains and swellings extant. For sale by Robbins & McCord Druggists. 18 22

The Art Of Breathing.

From Harper's Bazar.

It is perhaps one of the signs of the times, to those alert for indications, that the art of breathing has become more and more a subject of attention. Oculists as well as physiologists go deeply into its study in a way hardly to be touched upon here. Physicians have cured aggravated cases of insomnia by long drawn regular breaths, fever-stricken patients have been quieted, stubborn forms of indigestion made to disappear. A tendency to consumption may be entirely overcome, as some authority has within the last few years clearly demonstrated, by exercises in breathing. Seasickness, too, may be surmounted, and the victim of hypnotic influence taught to withstand the force of any energy directed against him.

There is a famous physician of Munich, who has written an extensive work upon the subject of breathing. He has, besides, formulated a system by which asthmatic patients are made to walk without losing breath, while sufferers from weaknesses of the heart are cured. At Meran, in the Austrian Tyrol, his patients (almost every royal house of Europe is represented) are put through a certain system of breathing and walking. The mountain paths are all marked off with stakes of different colors, each indicating the number of minutes in which a patient must walk the given distance, the breathing and walking being in time together. As the cure progresses the ascents are made steeper and steeper.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Westminster.

We have received invitations from Miss Hattie Dills, to attend the graduating exercises of this justly popular school. The graduating exercises, proper, are June 6, in the First Presbyterian church at Ft. Wayne. The members of the '95 class are, Miss Hattie Dills, Miss Alice Bellinger, Miss Clara Paul, Miss Minnie Frank, Miss Ethel Pierce, Miss Haidee Tyler and Miss Josephine Zartman. The baccalaureate sermon is June 2, by Rev. D. W. Moffat at the First Presbyterian church. June 4 is the reception at the Seminary; June 5, a luncheon to the Alumnæ is given by the present graduating class, and that evening is a reception to friends in the Seminary parlors The reception of '95 class is at the Seminary in the evening of June 6, after the graduating exercises. The school is doing an excellent work and stands deservedly high all over this part of the country.

Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phœbe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her, and she says it saved her life. Mr Thomas Eggers, 139 Florida St., San. Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching consumption. He tried without result, everything else, then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medecine in coughs and colds. Free trial bottles at Robbins & McCord's drugstore. Regular size 50c. and $1. 5

17 TO 9

This is not a baseball score. You can't guess what it is, so we will explain Last Friday Sherman Hollister picked up his spectacles to read his daily paper. The first thing he saw, he couldn't see anything. The letters blurred, looked dark, then disappeared and seemed generally trying to get off into the next county. Try which way he would it was all wrong. He put the paper off farther then way off, then he squinted, and then if he had not been one of the best natured fellows in town, we might have been forced to the painful duty of saying he swore. But the truth compels us to say he didn't—not as we know of. After supper, he tried to read again, and to his surprise, the glasses were all right. They had assumed their old-time condition. Here was a mystery with no one to clear it up. No one, did we say? Well, let it stand at that. But it is the duty of the DAILY COURIER to make these hidden things plain. John Smith, we call him that, chiefly because his name was Bill Jones, had chanced to spy Sherm's glasses lying on the register in the hotel office. It was but the work of a few minutes, when, presto change! The glasses were back in their place, but their No. 17 lenses were changed to No. 9. And thereby hangs this tale. And Sherm can laugh at a joke as well as the other fellows, even if it is on himself.

For whooping cough Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is excellent. By using it freely the disease is deprived of all dangerous consequences. There is no danger in giving the remedy to babies, as it contains nothing injurious. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Robbins & McCord Druggists 18-22

Rheumatism Cured in a Day.—Myst Cure" for Rheumatism and Neuralgia radically cures in 1 to 3 days. Its action upon the system is remarkable and mysterious. It removes at once the cause and the disease immediately disappears. The first dose greatly benefits. 75 cts. Sold by Robbins & McCord, druggists, Auburn. 41tf

NATIONAL EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION MEETING.

Denver, Colo., July 5 to 12, 1895.

For this occasion the Wabash Railroad has made a rate of one fare for the round trip to Denver plus $2.00, added for membership fee.

For full particulars in regard to this meeting, time of trains, rate, route, etc. call upon or write to any representative of the Wabash R. R., or connection lines, or C. S. Crane, Gen'l Pass. & Tkt. Ag't., Wabash R. R., St. Louis. Mo.

The Talk of Europe.

A worthy theme in Europe just now is discussing the marvelous cures by Vitalin and Nervetone, prepared by the Hall Medicine Company of Toledo, O, and for sale by all druggists. This wonderful remedy cures every form of nervous debility, nervous prostration, loss of nerve and brain power, mental depression, palpitation, sleeplessness, etc. also every form of nerve pain, headache, toothache and neuralgia, and is just such a brain feeder and strength restorer as thousands need. For sale by Fischler & Son. Accept no other. 21-22

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder

World's Fair Highest Award.

There is great danger in neglecting Colic, Cholera and similar complaints An absolutely prompt and safe cure is found in De Witt's Colic and Cholera cure. For sale by all druggists

Fatal Accident.

Yesterday while the procession of Ringling's circus was going through the streets at Fort Wayne, a horse that was hitched at the side of the street was frightened by the strange sight, and the noise and excitement. The horse was wild with fear, and when the elephants stopped in front of him, owing to some halt in the procession, he could not be controlled, and broke loose. He ran wildly along the street and then to the sidewalk which was densely packed with people. Into this solid mass he plunged and many were knocked down and trampled under foot. One elderly woman had her head crushed by the horses iron shoes, and others were badly injured. At last accounts the woman was alive with but slender hopes of recovery. She lives about four miles this side of the city on the Coldwater road. There were a number of the other accidents, that day. Soon after the accident, the husband of the injured lady sued the city and circus company together for $10,000 damage. His attorneys are J. M. Robinson and Colerick & France, while the circus is represented by Bell, Morris & Barrett. If the woman dies, it may have the effect of stopping street parades.

Tired, Weak, Nervous Could Not Sleep.

Prof. L. D. Edwards, of Preston, Idaho, says: "I was all run down, weak, nervous and irritable through overwork. I suffered from brain fatigue, mental depression, etc. I became so weak and nervous that I could not sleep, I would arise tired, discouraged and blue. I began taking and now everything is changed I sleep soundly, I feel bright, active and ambitious. I can do more in one day now than I used to do in a week. For this great good I give Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine the sole credit.

Dr. Miles' Nervine

It Cures."

Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold on a positive guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. All druggists sell it at $1, 6 bottles for $5, or it will be sent, prepaid, on receipt of price by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

For Sale by, Fischle & Son., Auburn.

THE HUB'S BOYS HEAD-TO-FOOT OUTFITS

THIS AND PREVENT THIS

THESE HEAD-TO-FOOT OUTFITS

Consist of One COAT, Two Pairs of PANTS, One CAP to Match and a Pair of Shoes.

And the price of the whole outfit is Only $5.00

If on receipt you do not consider them the greatest bargain you ever bought for $5.00 you can send back the outfit and we expressly agree to return your money.

Send for samples of the cloth and full description of the outfit, also for our new spring catalogue—all sent free on application.

THE HUB, The World's Largest Clothing Store, CHICAGO, ILL.

Wabash Low Rate Harvest Excursions for 1895

Will be run from all stations on the Wabash Railroad on April 30th, May 21 and July 11th to the West, Northwest South and Southwest.

For full particulars, apply to the nearest ticket agent of the Wabash lines or connecting lines or to

C. S. BRANE,

G. P. & T. A. Wabash R. R.

THE AUBURN COURIER.

VOLUME XXV. AUBURN, DE KALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY. JUNE 6. 1895. NUMBER 23

SAY : :

HOW MUCH DO YOU OWE?

Who holds your mortgage? How much interest are you paying? Do you owe a building loan association anything? If you do, how much interest are you paying them? Unless you are better posted than the majority of people who have such loans, you cannot tell. You think you are paying 6 per cent. Do you know (of course not) that you are paying at least 12 per cent. If you think not, just figure it out yourself. Now then, are you not paying 6 per cent interest and 6 per cent premium? Certainly. Well now don't you know that premium and interest are the same thing—its all interest. Can you afford to pay 12 per cent interest to a loan association when even, your banks only charge 8 per cent and you think they are charging too much, and when do you expect to have your loan canceled or paid off in full? You have been told 72 or 78 months. Now then, we undertake to say that it will take you 100 months, if you will call on us we will show you so you will be satisfied that we are right. Now then, we are prepared to loan you money on monthly installment plan for 8 per cent, we charge you no membership fee and you do not have to make three or more payments in advance so that if on account of insufficient security or bad title your loan is rejected you will not lose one cent. You pay nothing unless your loan is granted. We are making farm loans at from 3 to 5 per cent with privilege of partial payments.

ANOTHER THING!

There is scarcely a day but what there is some traveling agent for some building loan association in Auburn soliciting business, selling stock upon which they charge you a membership fee of from 50 cents to $1.00 per share, which amount goes to the agent and you never get back this money thrown away. If you will call on us we will take your application for all the stock you want in the BEST (we can prove it) building loan association in the state the INDIANA MUTUAL OF INDIANAPOLIS, and charge you NO MEMBERSHIP FEE AT ALL. This is certainly fair. If you have any investment stock in any association just write them a letter and ask them the withdrawal value of same, their reply will probably open your eyes. What would you say if you would deposit $8.00 per month in your bank for one year and wanted to withdraw the same and they would offer to pay you only about $80? The bank would only have to do this in one case to be compelled to retire from business. Now you pay ten dollars membership fee and 8 dollars for 12 months making 108 dollars, you lose the 10 dollars membership fee and 10 cents per share each month for expenses, making 12 dollars, or a total of 22 dollars loss upon which you would receive 6 per cent interest for average time on 96 dollars, making 2 dollars and 88 cts. from 22 dollars would leave you a loser of 19 dollars and 12 cents. In our association your stock is worth all you have paid in, with its interest added, so that upon withdrawal you do not get less than you paid. We want the people of Auburn to become familiar with this matter, and would like to have any that are interested to call and talk with us, we can give you some pointers.

We are still in the Real Estate, Insurance and R. R. Ticket business.

RICKEL & SPROTT

AUBURN INDIANA.

Thursday's Daily:

Shoulder Dislocated.

While leading buggies at the Lake Shore depot this morning Osia Maxwell had his left shoulder dislocated. He came down to Dr. Swarts' office where he was given anæsthetics and Dr. Swarts and son Willard, assisted by Dr. Sebring, set the dislocated bones. The accident was quite a painful one, and will probably lay Mr. Maxwell up for some time

Travelers find a safe companion in DeWitt's Colic and Cholera Cure. A change in drinking water and diet, often causes severe and dangerous complaints. This medicine always cures them.

De Witt's Colic and Cholera Cure never disappoints, never fails to give immediate relief. It cures just as sure as you take it. For sale by all druggists.

CHEAP EXCURSIONS TO THE WEST

On May 21st and June 11th, The North-Western Line (Chicago & North-Western Railway) will sell excursion tickets at very low rates to a large number of points in the west and northwest. For full information apply to ticket agents of connecting lines, or address A. H. Waggener, T. P. A., 7 Jackson place ndianapolis, Ind. 19-23

T. F. Anthony, ex-postmaster of Promise City, Iowa, says: "I bought one bottle of 'Mystic Cure' for Rheumatism and two doses of it did me more good than all the medicine I ever took." Sold by Robbins & McCord, druggists, Auburn. 41tf

Call For Town Orders.

Upon presentation I will pay all outstanding municipal Orders up to and including no 923 Dated May 11, 1894.

Also all Road Orders up to and including no 800 Dated April 16 1895. Interest will stop June 6 1895.

CHAS. H. G. JONES, Town Treas.

Reduced Rates to Cleaveland, Ohio.

For the convention of National Republican League Clubs, to be held in Cleveland. June 19-21, the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern R'y will sell excursion tickets June 18 and 19, at one fare for the round trip, good returning until June 22 inclusive. 23 24

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE.

Notice is here by given that the undersigned administrator of the estate of Margaret Sheets deceased, will sell at public sale, at the late residence of said decedent, one mile south of Auburn, in Jackson township, in the county of DeKalb and state of Indiana, on the personal property of the decedent, consisting of growing crops, household goods and other articles. Sale to commence at 9 o'clock a. m.

Saturday June 29, 1895.

TERMS.

All sums of five dollars and under cash; sums of over five dollars a credit of nine months will be given, by the purchaser giving his note with approved security, waiving relief from valuation and appraisement laws.

R. S. S. REED, Administrator.

J. E. & J. H. ROSE, Att'ys.

THE VALUE OF COINS

The value of gold coin is in its weight the value of silver coin is the government stamp on it. The value of Simmons Liver Regulator is the relief it gives from Biliousness and Sick Headache, A 25-cent package of powder has permanently cured many a one.

HAVE YOU A PRETTY FACE? Pimple, Blotches, Freckles, Flesh Worms, Blackheads, Scars, Redness, Rough, Oily Skin, Cuts Wounds, Bruises, Chapped Hands, Lips, Tan, Sunburn, etc? THOUSAND ROSES OR BALM OF A ORIENTAL FLOWERS, is not a Paste Powder, Rouge, Cosmetic or Lotion, but it is a perfect and harmless Complexion Restorer and Skin Beautifier. There's nothing like it! Price, 25 Cents, Box 437, Auburn, Ind.

On June 11 the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad will 30-day Excursion Tickets to points in Virginia on the Harper's Ferry & Valley Branch south of and including Winchester, at rate of one fare for the round trip. Excursion Tickets will also be sold to points in the West, South and Southwest at very low rates good for return 20 days from date of sale. 23

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Court of the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of Margaret Sheets, deceased, late of said County.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

ROBERT S. S. REED, Administrator.

May 29 1895. 23-24

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Court of the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, executor of the will of Daniel Salander deceased, late of said County.

Said will is supposed to be solvent.

HENRY J. SALANDER, Executor.

May 29, 1895. 23 25

On June 18 and 19 the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad will sell excursion tickets to Cleveland, Ohio, at rate of one fare for the round trip, account meeting of National Republican League Clubs. Tickets will be good for return until June 22, 1895. 23 24

JUST THINK OF IT!

McDOWELL & CARTER

Are selling the Best

BUGGIES

SURRIES

& ROAD WAGONS

Built in the County. The best trimmed, and for Style and Durability cannot be equaled, and fully guaranteed to be just as represented. Satisfaction is what you get when you use W. H. Kiplinger Co. Buggies.

McDOWELL & CARTER

SOUTH SIDE OF COURT SQUARE.

Barn Burned.

C. Dick, in Richland township lost his barn by fire yesterday noon. He was plowing in a field west of his house, and when he came to dinner did not take his team to the barn as usual, for he wanted to give them a feed of fresh grass. So he cut the grass and fed them, then ate his dinner. After dinner he went to the barn to feed them their grain, when he saw smoke coming out of the west end of the barn. He at once ran to the house and got a bucket of water and came back. But by this time the flames were ten or fifteen feet high and nothing could save the building. He only saved the horses and a road wagon. His farm wagon and all his farm machinery was lost together with about five tons of hay, fifty bushels of wheat and thirty bushels of oats. The building and contents were insured for $700, so that he will fortunately have something to help himself with, but the loss is hard enough at best. In fighting the fire and trying to save some of the property Mr. Dick was badly scorched. His face, ears, and hands were blistered so much that he had to come to town to day, and get Dr. Phillips to treat them. His hands were so blistered that it was necessary to bind them with cloths for a few days, till the pain was relieved.

It May Do as Much for You.

Mr. Fred Miller, of Irving, Ill, writes that he had a severe kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back, and also that his bladder was affected. He tried many so called kidney cures but without any good result. About a year ago he began the use of Electric Bitters and found relief at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to the cure of all kidney and liver troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price only 50 cents for large bottles at Robbins & McCord's drug store. 6

Dr. Drummond's Lightning.

Remedy for Rheumatism has received the unqualified endorsement of the medical efficient preparation. Its work is so speedy and miraculous that benefit is felt from the first dose. A treatment consists o. two bottles, and lasts a month. Price $5; sent by express on receipt of price, with full special instructions. One treatment will cure any ordinary case. Drummond Medicine Co., 48 Maiden Lane, New York. Agents wanted. 23 24

TO DETROIT.

A grand excursion to Detroit and the lovely islands and waters there has been planned, and is being carried out. It takes place June 12, the special train starting from Millersberg and going up the new Wabash line through Ashley and Montpelier to Detroit. This excursion is in the interest of the new church at Ashley, the proceeds going to the purchase of a bell. Train time and rates are as follows:

Millersburg	5:50	Fare $2.25
Topeka	6:02	2.15
Eddy	6:10	2.15
Wolcottville	6:18	2.05
South Milford	6:28	2.05
Helmer	6:38	2.05
Ashley, ar.,	6:47
Ashley, leave.	6:52	2.00
Hamilton	7:07	2.00
Edon	7:21	2.00
Montpelier	7:35	2.00
N. Morenci	8:15	1.75
Arrive at Detroit	10 30

This will give all the rest of the day to sight seeing. The beautiful city park on Belle Isle, an island close by the upper part of the city to which boats run every 15 minutes, and ferry boats every 10 minutes across the river to Windsor, a city on the Canada side, and the constant stream of vessels to and from the great lakes, unite to make an attraction no other excursion can promise, Auburn people will be able to get to Montpelier on the 5:21 train at half fare, if they go in a party of ten. Then from Montpelier it is $2.00 for the round trip. All the rates given are for round trip

PURDUE.

Purdue, Purdue, Rah, Rah! Rah, Rah!
Purdue, Purdue, Rah, Rah! Rah, Rah!
Hurrah! Hurrah!
Bulley for Old Purdue!

There! Wouldn't that have opened the ears, and distended the eyes of old Demosthenes, or Thucydides or Cantharides, or any other D's among ancients, or the d——d's and D. D's among Moderns? It is the "College Yell" of Purdue, a yell that all students soon learn and which, when a number of them "yell" it strikes a sort of half way terror into the innocent party that hears it for the first time so given. These thoughts were called up by an incident of last evening. We were at the meeting of the two Wabash trains at 7:35, and as the one on the south track started out westward, about half a dozen young men standing on the platforms of the two passenger coaches, gave this hair raising "yell." It was correctly, and rather forcibly done, as far as we can recollect, though we are indebted for the "translation" given above, to Mr Frank Walts, son of Rev. J. K. Walts of the M. E. church. He is a student of Purdue, in the sophomore class, we believe. We do not know how these students came to be on a west-bound train, when one would think they would be on the east bound. But there they were. Perhaps they were on their way across the continent to give the people of each chief station an idea of the superior excellence and efficacy of Old Purdue's "yell." It also reminds us that the boys are coming home. Frank Walts reached here this morning on the 5:21 train. Hamilton, of St. Joe, is expected home to-day, Charlie Hague graduates and Ira Thrush will remain with him. Graduating exercises proper, will be on Wednesday, though Monday and Tuesday will be fully taken by something. The bacclaureate is on Sunday. So about Thursday, we can look for the boys home, when, if we have not given a proper conception of the "yell", they can gather on the COURIER balcony and give a correct rendition.

Wednesday's Daily:

SUICIDE.

Waterloo had a sensation last evening when Fred Durst, an eccentric, but well known character at that place, took poison, from which he died this morning. Durst was a queer character, one of those unfortunates, who, while not a decided fool, was weak minded. His mental condition brought him into many troubles, as in the case, when he went to amuse a strange dog, by dancing for it, and the dog, not understanding his good intentions, bit him. He made a big ado about this, and came near having a suit over it, but we believe was talked out if it. At another, time, it is reported, he stole a goose. These things secured him the names of "Goosie" Durst, and "Ki yi" Durst. His daughter being married, he has for some time lived alone in one of Mrs. Winslow's houses. He was not, however, naturally a bad man. Yesterday he had become despondent, and concluded the best thing to do would be to die. So, he took some kind of poison. But before doing this, he put a note on the doorstep of his daughter's house, in which he said, he did not care to live longer. Life had become a burden, he could not get work, and the poor house stared him in the face. He did not want to go there. The daughter, on reading the note, became alarmed, and went to his room. She found, that the warning was only too true. He was already past help and after suffering till this morning death came to his relief.

In a Distressing Plight

Must be the great host who have lost nerve and brain power, are listless by day and sleepless by night, with distressing aches and pains, shattered nerves, lassitude, nerve prostration and debility, mental depression, and the thousand and one other nerve troubles to which so many are subject. But a specific has been found, the "talk of Europe" just now introduced in America by the Hall Medicine Co., Toledo, O., and for sale by druggists generally. Will cure the most obstinate, headache in an hour. It is called Vitaline and Nervetone. Fischler & Son sell it. 23-24

A Fine Chautauqua Lake Book.

Containing forty-eight pages of reading matter and illustrations of Lake Chautauqua and it charming resorts will be sent to any address on receipt of ten cents—silver or postage—by A. J. Smith, G. P. & T. A., L. S. & M. S. R'y Cleveland.

The Lake Shore is the best route to Chautauqua. Excursion tickets at reduced rates. 23-24

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

COUNTY SUPT.

MR. MERICA IS AGAIN CHOSEN TO THAT POSITION AND WILL SERVE TILL THE NEW LAW IS SETTLED

To-day is the day fixed by the old law for the election of county superintendent, and the trustees of the county thought best to avoid any trouble or expense, by making the election as provided for in the old law.

Both old and new trustees were in join session in the forenoon, as several questions had to be discussed and the superintendent felt that the new members would be benefited by the experience of the retiring board. This took all the forenoon. Afternoon the old board of trustees, which holds office till August was called to order in the auditor's office. All responded to their names.

TOWNSHIP	NAMES
Butler	W. H. Fair, rep
Concord	B. A. Woodcox, dem
Fairfield	R. H. Sherlock, d
Franklin	Wm. J. Whetsel, d
Grant	G. O. Denison, r
Jackson	J. J. Walter, d
Keyser	Fred Schulthees, d
Newville	Leslie Strong, r
Richland	M. E. Reynolds, r
Smithfield	James O. Blake, d
Stafford	Joseph Wilson, d
Troy	W. S. Morgan, r
Union	R. S. S. Reed, d
Wilmington	H. J. Crooks, r

The board selected J. J. Walter for chairman, and the vote was taken, and resulted:

C. M. Merica	9
Henry E. Coe	1
Blank	4

Mr. Merica was declared elected. The vote was to a certain extent on party lines, as the republican members were not willing to commit themselves to anyone, for that would be an admission of doubt as to the soundness of the new law. So four voted blank,

A resolution endorsing Mr. Merica's work, will appear to-morrow.

BANKED FLOWERS

The Gresham Funeral Train Goes through the Junction.

At 8:55 this forenoon the funeral train conveying the dead statesman to the final resting place at Oakwood cemetery, Chicago, passed through Auburn at the Junction, on a special B. & O. train. There were four coaches and a baggage car, and all were of the finest of the costly special cars of which the B. & O. has cause to be proud, for no road has better cars although she is very choice in using them at all times. There was a dining car, a sleeper, two palace cars, and the baggage car. In the last named was the casket, a fine, lovely one with no rough box to conceal it, but standing near enough to the open door to give a view of the interior of the car and the floral tributes. As the train approached the Junction it slowed up for the target and came to a stop. Then it went on through slowly but without stopping. This gave those gathered on the platform a chance to see everything except the interior of the coaches, and even in these could be recognized the familiar faces of cabinet officers and other well known statesmen including President Cleveland whose well known face was at once recognized. There was a military guard of honor from the U. S. Marines at Washington. There was no draping on any part of the train but the floral decorations were simply grand. At one end of the casket the flowers in various forms and devices, were piled high and wide partly concealing the casket.

There had been brief services at Washington, and there were appropriate services when the burial took place in Chicago. At the former city, the remains rested in the east room of the White House, and there all of the officials of our government and representatives of foreign governments attended to pay honors to one of the foremost statesmen of his age. The President rose from a sick bed to attend, and in spite of his physical condition accompanied his friends, remains to their last resting place. At Chicago the services were conducted by Rev. S. J. McPherson of the Second Presbyterian church. There was a large attendance of military including state troops, the U. S. forces from Ft. Sheridan near Chicago, including the 15th Infantry, and parts of the 5th Cavalry and 1st Artillery. There were 100 policemen and numerous clubs and all the chief city officers in line as well as members of the bar.

SCHAAB & BRO.

DRY GOODS,

CLOTHING,

CARPETS.

We have the Largest Store in DeKalb County

We Sell

GOOD GOODS

Cheaper than any other Firm in DeKalb County,

We Invite You To Call.

SCHAAB & BRO.

BROWN, CULBERTSON & BOLAND

The leading Hardware and Agricultural Implement Firm in DeKalb Co.

SELLS

Eckhart Buggies,
Turnbull Wagons,
Oliver and Bryan Plows,
Bement Disc and Spring-tooth Harrows,
Bryan Spading Harrows,
Ohio, Albion and New Western Cultivators,
McCormick, Champion and Deering, Binders and Mowers.
Stoves, Tinware, Paints
OILS, Glass, etc., etc.

Come and See

North Side Public Square.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

JAMES A. BARNS, - - PUBLISHER.

FROM EVERY CORNER

OF THE WORLD THIS FRESH NEWS WAS GLEANED.

Great Oil Plants Wiped Out by Forest Fires in Pennsylvania—An Army of Men Fighting Its Progress—A Sensation at Madrid—Train Held Up in Indiana.

FOREST FIRES

Raging in the Pennsylvania Oil Regions.

Bradford (Pa.) special: Forest fires are again raging in this vicinity and much property is being destroyed, although an army of men are fighting their progress. Five rigs, tanks, and boiler houses belonging to the Middlehead Oil Company were destroyed near Hunter Run, seventeen miles from Kane. A large quantity of logs and lumber were burned. Fires are raging at Chipmunk, Tally Ho, Cuffey and along the line of the Erie and Buffalo and Rochester and Pittsburgh Railways between this city and Johnsonburg.

The settlement of Coon Run, in Elk County, ten miles from Kane, is reported completely wiped out. There were twenty-five dwelling houses in the village. Before telegraph communication was shut off forty-six oil rigs were reported destroyed.

To the north, near the New York State line, forrest fires surround Knapps Creek. Communication is shut off and the damage cannot be ascertained.

Over in the Nealy district fires are fiercely raging, though about all the damage that can be done has been accomplished. Ball & Tate are reported to have lost two million feet of logs. On the Kinzua Creek the Penn Tanning Company's standing timber is burning.

A message from Knapp's Creek via Olean, N. Y., says: Fifty rigs, belonging to Curtis, Burns & Russell have been destroyed. The town is completely surrounded by fire, and should a fresh wind spring up the town will undoubtedly be destroyed.

Everything between Russell City and Coon Run has been wiped out, including all the rigs, tanks, etc., the pump station of the Standard Oil company and the Elk County Pipe Line company.

Sensation at Madrid.

Madrid special: Major Clavijo, an infantry officer, walked into the office of Gen. Primo Rivera, Captain General of Madrid, whom he saluted. As he dropped his hand, after touching his cap, Major Clavijo drew a revolver, and, without a moment's warning, fired two shots at the General, both of which took effect in the chest. Gen. Primo Rivera fell to the floor mortally wounded and his assailant attempted to fire again, but Gen. Aymerich, who was present, struck the assassin down with his saber and summoning the guards had him taken to prison. It is believed that Clavijo is insane. The last sacrament was at once administered to Gen. Primo Rivera, and all the cabinet ministers called to inquire as to his condition. Major Clavijo had been confined in the military hospital for some time with dementia.

A Train Ablaze.

A special from Shiloh, Ohio., says a car on Big Four train No. 66 caught fire from the engine between this place and Greenwich. It was loaded with horses, and before the fire was discovered and the train could be stopped, seven horses had been burned. The trainmen opened the doors of the car and the remaining fourteen were taken out, but in very bad shape, some having their ears burned off and eyes put out. Also, some were injured in jumping from the burning car. The horses were the property of a Mount Gilead shipper. Trains were delayed over two hours before the wreckage could be cleared away.

Train Held Up.

South Bend (Ind.) special: Freight train No. 11 on the Lake Shore was held up the other night between here and Mishawaka. The engineer was compelled at the point of a revolver to stop. Two men watched him until the gang went through the merchandise cars. Several cars were broken, and the stolen goods loaded into wagons. The gang got several hundred dollars worth of goods. Detective Frank Brobst brought five local characters to the city handcuffed. Brobst was in a box car with tramps in disguise of a tramp when the train was held up, and was an eye witness to nearly all the proceedings.

Willing to Meet the United States Half Way.

Ottawa (Ont.) special: Sir Charles Tupper, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, says he has reconsidered the matter, and is prepared to recommend to the government the abolition of license fees and all restrictions upon Americans fishing in Canadian waters, provided the United States authorities will take executive action with regard to restraints upon Canadian boatmen, farmers and others plying in the American water of the St. Lawrence or disposing of their farm products.

Gresham's Pension.

For three years Secretary Gresham has not drawn his $30 a month pension from the Chicago pension office. He has never surrendered it, but for some reason he had not made any call for it. There is an accumulation of $1,100 to his credit. The pension was granted him for wounds received at the battle of Atlanta. Under the laws of the department the accumulation is subject to the order of his wife and the pension of $30 a month will go to her.

A Lion Develops Hydrophobia.

A lion belonging to Sands & Ashley's circus and menagerie, which exhibited at Blanchester, Ohio, was shot and killed. It took seven bullets to end its life. It developed a case of hydrophobia and had to be killed.

Played with Matches.

The 4-year-old child of Oela Fansler was fatally burned at Peru, Ind., by its dress catching fire while playing with matches.

Assassinated.

James Keith was walking along a lonely road near Esculapian Springs, Ky., when he came upon the body of a man. He turned the body over and discovered that it was that of Major William Hardiman, 78 years old, and well known. He had been shot while walking along the road evidently by some one under cover of the woods. Who killed him is a matter of conjecture. It is said that he had a number of enemies, but as yet no clew has been secured that will lead to the identity of the murderer.

Dynamite Explosion.

A special from Huron, Ohio, says: The house of Joseph Faber at Slatecut, four miles west of this place, was demolished by an explosion of dynamite. Mrs. Faber was the only occupant of the house at the time, and she was blown through the side of the building and fatally injured. This place was shaken as by an earthquake.

Woman Killed.

A horse driven by Mrs. Kate Vawter, of Morgantown, Ind., became unmanageable and ran away. The buggy collided with a wagon loaded with railroad ties, and Mrs. Vawtor was thrown out, breaking her neck, back and limbs. Death was instantaneous.

FIRE BUGS

Have Reduced Their Work to a Science in New York City.

New York special: Morris Schoonholz, who was arrested recently on the charge of arson, has made a statement to the police which will probably result in the arrest of a dozen or more insurance adjusters. It is alleged that Schoonholz confessed to fireing at least a dozen houses in this city and Brooklyn by pre-arrangement for the insurance money. One fire in Yonkers was all prepared and ready, when it was prevented by accident. The fires that "panned out" were all set with benzine on the bladder plan. This plan is as simple as it is effective. The doomed store or flat is sprinkled with alcohol and a bladder filled with imflamable stuff is suspended from the ceiling. Then it is set on fire, and when the flames reach the bladder there is an explosion which destroys the property and every vestige of the manner in which the fire was set at the same time. A similar result is obtained by turning on all the gas and letting one jet burn. The explosive point is reached in due time. These are the flash fires that so long puzzled police and firemen. Morris Schoonholz was the expert who did the business, but he was himself the tool of a gang of fire insurance adjusters.

SPECULATION

Has Caused an Inflation in Prices the Past Week.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

"More far-reaching than any other change during the past week, if really warranted by facts, is the continued rise in prices of wheat and cotton. Real scarcity of either would affect all business. Happily there is still room to hope that accounts of injury are greatly exaggerated, although there has been some evidence during the week that both the great crops have suffered more than at first appeared. Other changes are almost all favorable and some highly encouraging. Labor troubles are clearly less threatening. Monetary conditions are satisfactory, and the substantial increase in the commercial demand is a good sign. Exchanges through clearing houses have been greatly inflated by speculation, and at this time last year were cut down by the coal strike, and toward the end of May, 1893, greatly reduced by bank failures.

"But for the week they exceed last year's by 19.0 per cent., and fall only 5.6 per cent. below those of 1893, while the daily average for May is 26.09 per cent. larger than last year, but 7.1 per cent. less than in 1893."

THE LOST COLIMA.

Only Twenty-six Persons Saved Out of a Crew of 213.

San Francisco special: The Pacific Mail Company has received the following telegram:

Manzanillo—The Colima foundered, going down astern and sinking entirely in ten minutes. There was no strong wind, only a heavy swell. The same swell caught the Mexican schooners Josefina and Albina, and the America schooner Hayes. The captains report heavy swells, and only entered here for safety. The saved were: Cabin—Albano, Thornton, Sutherland, Cushing, Ruiz, Gutierrez, Sarabia.

Saved, steerage—Boyd, Zaongone, Oriel, Hoss, Ramon, Soliz, Rolan and three more.

Saved, crew—Third Officer Hanson, Carpenter Richardson, Raymond, Morll. Have sent a steamer to look for the shipwrecked passengers. Until now twenty-six persons saved.

The steamer is a total loss.

The latest advices state that twenty-six persons are known to have been saved so far, leaving 187 unaccounted for.

Terrific Shock.

Parkersburg (W. Va.) special: Two hundred and fifty quarts of nitro-glycerine exploded aboard a large skiff on the Little Kanawa River. The boat and the man in charge were blown to atoms, and the city was shaken as though by an earthquake shock. The damage done by the wrecking of buildings, breaking of glass and the wreckage of boats and barges is estimated at $75,000. The business streets of the city were strewn with glass and wreckage. Numerous persons were cut and injured by falling glass and timbers. The greatest damage was done in South Parkersburgh where houses caved in, and the plastering fell off the walls and ceilings. Horses were frightened and ran away and bedlam generally broke loose in this city.

Cars on Fire.

A bad freight wreck occurred at Skelley's Station, Ohio, on the Pan-handle, occasioned by one freight train dashing into the rear end of another one. An engine and twelve freight and cattle cars were completely demolished and set on fire, and a number of valuable cattle and horses burned to death. The loss will aggregate $50,000. The track for a distance of thirty feet was torn up and the ties set on fire, which necessitates the building of a false track around the wreck. All passenger trains were delayed four hours. The engineer and fireman of the rear train jumped, but were badly injured. The wreck crews from Steubenville and Dennison were called out, and the Dennison Fire Department was brought to the scene to quench the flames.

Father and Babe Killed.

Attorney Thomas Tyre was working at the windows of his office, on the fifth floor of a large building at Lebanon, Ind. While thus engaged his attention was called to his baby, a pretty toddling, who was in a baby buggy below. The carriage was stopped underneath the window, and Mr. Tyre was looking down at it. He forgot that he was in a dangerous position. Suddenly, while trying to throw a kiss to the baby, he lost his balance and fell. He alighted in the baby buggy. His neck was broken, and he died instantly. The baby was crushed to death. The bodies of the father and his beloved babe were taken home and laid on one bed.

Great Britain Will Adhere Firmly to Gold.

A London cablegram says: "Sir William Vernon Harcourt, Chancellor of the Exchequer, has formally replied to the memorial forwarded by influential bankers and financiers, in terms emphasizing his previous strong remarks in favor of the gold standard. His reply concludes thus: "'You may rely upon it that Her Majesty's Government will give no countenance to any change in the fundamental principles of our monetary system, nor in any discussions in which they may be called upon to take part, will they admit any doubt as to their intention firmly to adhere to the single gold standard.'"

To War Again.

A dispatch from Shanghai to the Pall Mall Gazette says there are alarming rumors that a renewal of the fighting between Japan and China is imminent. The Japanese warships at Formosa have been cleared for action, and the French ships at Tamsui are ready for any emergency. In consequence of a rumor that Russia intends to intervene, all the available steamers have been ordered to Tien Tsin with cargoes of rice.

The London Globe prints a dispatch from Shanghai which says it is reported that fighting has occurred at Tamsui, on the northwest coast of Formosa.

Heroic Efforts to Save His Babies.

Brinka Vorwiski, 5 years old, and a younger sister, were playing upon a bridge crossing the hydraulic race at Dayton, Ohio, when a C., D. and I. passenger train approached. Their father, who is a cripple, ran to their rescue. He reached one child and had barely time to jump into the water, and thus save his own life and that of the babe. Bertha, the eldest girl, was caught under the wheels and both hands mangled when her body was hurled into the water. It is thought the girl cannot live.

Steamer Sunk.

Alpena (Mich.) special: During a heavy fog the Canadian steamer Jack, bound down with lumber, collided with the steel steamer Norman, of the Menominee line, opposite Middle Island. The Norman sank immediately The cook, wheelman and fireman were drowned. The barge Unsicken was near by and picked up the the balance of the crew. The Norman was valued at $200,000, insured for $175,000. The Jack is afloat, but badly damaged. The Norman sank in 300 feet of water.

Found the Hull of the Chicora.

St. Joseph (Mich.) special: The Chicora searching party, working north of this city, struck an object in fifty-five feet of water, which they think is the hull of the Chicora. The drag worked seven feet off the bottom so that it would have to be a large object before it would catch. There are no wrecks within six miles of it. A heavy sea compelled the searchers to stop work, but a start will be made as soon as the lake calms down.

Mrs. Gresham's Home.

Washington special: It is announce that Mrs. Gresham will not return to Washington, but will make her residence in Chicago hereafter with her children. All the effects of the late Secretary at the Arlington have been packed up, and will be shipped to Chicago. As Secretary Gresham had no real property here it is believed that his will will not be submitted for probate in Washington.

Good Time for Warships.

The telegrams received at the Navy Department showing the time of the arrival of the New York and Columbia at Southampton, England, make it appear that they made the trip across the Atlantic in ten and nine days respectively, and this without being pushed in any degree. This is said at the Navy Department to be the best passage on record for a man-of-war.

Tortured by a Robber.

At Kingston, N. Y., John Harrington, a tobacconist was terribly beaten and tortured by a burglar, who entered the room in which Harrington was sleeping. The thief obtained only $35 in cash, but made off with $2,600 in checks and money orders. He held lighted matches to Harrington's feet, beat him with a club and nearly strangled him.

Secretary of State Olney.

It can be stated on authority that the President has not up to this time indicated to any person what his views are respecting the appointment of a successor to the late Secretary Gresham. It is believed, however, that the prospects favor the tender of the position to Attorney General Olney.

A Woman Walked Out of a Window.

The dead body of Mrs. George Hamilton was found beneath her chamber window at the home of her son-in-law, Dr. Green Simmons, in Athens, Ky. Mrs. Hamilton occupied a room in the second story of the residence, and it is supposed that in a fit of somambulism she walked out of the window.

Apaches Renegades.

Several miners are reported to have been killed by Apachees near Fort Bayard, New Mexico, on the Mescalero Indian reservation. The murders are believed to be chargeable to Apachee Kid and his band of renegades. The outbreak is not general.

A Duel With Swords.

Paris special: A duel was fought by Prince Arsene Karageorgevitch and M. Dollfus. The weapons used were swords, and M. Dollfus was wounded. The duel grew out of an attack made upon the prince by the Evenment by M. Dollfus.

Died from Grief.

The citizens of Charleston, Ill., received a shock in the sudded death of Gen. G. M. Mitchell and his wife. Mitchell was working in a garden when he fell dead. Mrs. Mitchel was so overcome with grief that she died a few hours afterward.

Walter's Mistake.

Walter, the 15-year-old son of Vol Thompson of the Glades Precinct, McKinney, Ky., mistook wild parsnips for angelica and ate some of the herb, and died an hour later.

Uncle Sam Won't Mediate.

The report that the United States is to act as arbitrator between France and Venezuela in the matter of dismissal by Venezuela of the French Minister is denied.

Murder at Toledo.

At Toledo, Fred J. Neuhas, a decorative artist, shot and killed Henry Kier, a neighbor. The killing was the result of a long standing dispute over property.

Large Issue of Patents.

Nine hundred and eighty-seven patents were issued last week. This is the largest number, with two exceptions, in any week since 1891.

Don't Favor a Strike.

Columbus, (O.) special: The inter-state miners convention here passed a resolution declaring it unwise to order a strike at this time.

Parliament Nearing an End.

The London Times asserts that there is a growing belief in political circles that Parliament will be dissolved in June or July.

THE MARKETS.

Chicago—Cattle, common to prime, $3.75 to $6.25; hogs, shipping grades, $3.00 to $4.75; sheep, fair to choice, $2.50 to $5.25; wheat, No. 2 red, 77c to 78c; corn, No. 2, 51c to 52c; oats, No. 2, 28c to 29c; rye, No. 2, 65c to 66c; butter, choice creamery, 17c to 18c; eggs, fresh, 11c to 12c; potatoes, car lots, per bushel, 45c to 60c; broom corn, per lb, common growth to fine brush, 4c to 7c.

Indianapolis—Cattle, shipping, $3.00 to $6.00; hogs, choice light, $3.00 to $4.75; sheep, common to prime, $2.00 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2, 80c to 80½c; corn, No. 1 white, 55c to 55½c; oats, No. 2 white, 34c to 34½c.

St. Louis—Cattle, $3.00 to $6.00; hogs, $4.00 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2 red, 82c to 83c; corn, No. 2, 51c to 52c; oats, No. 2, 29c to 30c; rye, No. 2, 67c to 69c.

Cincinnati—Cattle, $3.50 to $6.00; hogs, $3.00 to $4.75; sheep, $2.50 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2, 84c to 85c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 53c to 54c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 31c to 32c; rye, No. 2, 72c to 74c.

Detroit—Cattle, $2.50 to $5.75; hogs, $4.00 to $4.75; sheep, $2.00 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2 red, 82c to 83c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 53c to 55c; oats, No. 2 white, 34c to 35c; rye, 66c to 68c.

Toledo—Wheat, No. 2 red, 82c to 83c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 54c to 55c; oats, No. 2 white, 32c to 34c; rye, No. 2, 67c to 69c.

Buffalo—Cattle, $2.50 to $6.50; hogs, $3.00 to $5.00; sheep, $3.00 to $5.00; wheat, No. 1 hard, 85c to 86c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 59c to 60c; oats, No. 2 white, 36c to 37c.

Milwaukee—Wheat, No. 2 spring, 77c to 78c; corn, No. 3, 52c to 53c; oats, No. 2 white, 32c to 33c; barley, No. 2, 50c to 52c; rye, No. 1, 66c to 68c; pork, mess, $12.50 to $13.00.

New York—Cattle, $3.00 to $6.50; hogs, $4.00 to $5.00; sheep, $3.00 to $5.00; wheat, No. 2 red, 81c to 82c; corn, No. 2, 57c to 58c; oats, No. 2 white, 36c to 37c; butter, creamery, 13c to 20c; eggs, Western, 12c to 14c.

BUSHNELL TO LEAD.

NOMINATED FOR GOVERNOR BY OHIO REPUBLICANS.

Gov. McKinley Pledged the Support of Ohio in the Next National Convention—Foraker Indorsed for Senator—Six Ballots Taken.

Met in Zanesville.

Zanesville correspondence:

Gen. Asa S. Bushnell for Governor, J. B. Foraker for United States Senator and William McKinley for President. This is the combination that won at the Republican State convention.

The convention was called to order promptly at 4 o'clock Tuesday by Col. Joseph C. Bonner, chairman of the State committee. A half hour previous the hall was packed to its full capacity of 5,000, and a larger number was unable to gain admittance. Senator Sherman was given a stirring ovation when he was escorted into the hall at 3:50 o'clock by Congressman Van Voorhis and Judge Crander. Ex-Secretary Foster, members of Congress, several candidates and others were cheered as they entered, so that Chairman Bonner had to rap for order previous to the prayer of Rev. Samuel G. Addison, of Toledo. Among the working delegates were Herman G. Dennison, son of the war Governor, and Harry Garfield, son of the martyred President. On the platform were Judges West, Lawrence, Baldwin and a large number of leading Republicans. When Judge West, who was the Republican candidate for Governor in 1877, was being escorted to the platform, Senator Sherman came down to greet him, and the scene occasioned a marked demonstration. While Chairman Bonner, who is a member of Governor McKinley's staff, was eloquently congratulating the Republicans on the result of the last Ohio election and forecasting another triumph for next November in a well-set introductory speech, ex-Gov. Foraker entered the hall and a very boisterous demonstration followed his appearance.

GEN. ASA S. BUSHNELL.

J. B. FORAKER.

After Chairman Bonner had made repeated efforts to secure order and proceed with his introductory remarks, ex-Gov.

CONVENTION HALL AT ZANESVILLE.

Foraker come to the front of the platform and asked that the deliberations of the convention be not longer disturbed, as there would be time for all to be heard.

Col. Bonner cut short his remarks and introduced to the demonstrative audience Senator John Sherman as the temporary chairman.

At the conclusion of the Senator's speech the twenty-one congressional districts were called for members of the committees and other positions, when it was found that there were bitter contests for seats, especially in the Toledo and Springfield districts. A committee on resolutions was appointed and afterward organized, with ex-Secretary Charles Foster as chairman. On motion of Gen. A. C. Hurst the convention then adjourned to 8 p. m.

CHARLES FOSTER.

The Balloting Begins.

On reassembling the temporary organization was made permanent. The contested delegations from the Toledo and Springfield districts were not unseated. The following names were presented to the convention for the nomination for Governor: J. W. Barger, J. Warren Keifer, J. H. Hoyt, George K. Nash, Robert M. Nevin, A. L. Harris and E. W. Poe. Gen. Bushnell's name was not presented by any speaker. There were 827 delegates in the convention, 414 being necessary for a choice. The first ballot resulted as follows:

Bushnell, 58; Barger, 86; Harris, 56; Hoyt, 176½; Keifer, 74; Nash, 168; Nevin, 60; Poe, 146½.

Chairman Sherman announced there was no nomination.

The third ballot for Governor resulted: Bushnell, 159; Barger, 86; Harris, 27; Hoyt, 165; Keifer, 40½; Nash, 199½; Nevin, 78; Poe, 84.

At the end of the third ballot it was announced that the name of E. W. Poe was withdrawn.

The fifth ballot for Governor, 414 being necessary for a choice, resulted:

Bushnell, 410; Harris, 5; Hoyt, 120; Keifer, 12; Nash, 279.

On the sixth ballot Gen. Asa S. Bushnell was nominated, receiving 509 votes; Nash, 201; Hoyt, 111; necessary for choice, 414.

The convention adjourned until 9 o'clock Wednesday morning, when the ticket was completed. Gen. A. W. Jones, of Youngstown, was nominated for lieutenant governor by acclamation, and W. D. Guilbert was named for State Auditor.

WITH MILITARY HONOR.

Secretary Gresham's Remains Temporarily Deposited in a Vault.

Without ostentation, as befitted his life among his people, but with the military and civic accompaniments which ran even foot with his achievements as soldier, jurist and statesman, the remains of Walter Q. Gresham, general in the Union armies, the judge of the Federal courts and Secretary of State of the United States, were temporarily laid to rest in Oakwoods cemetery, Chicago, Thursday afternoon amid the flower-strewn graves of his comrades in arms—graves decorated by the hands of men who had fought them on many a bloody field—and in the shadow of the monument just dedicated in honor of the valor of those who had given their lives for the Confederate cause.

LEAVING THE STATION.

It was a most remarkable juxtaposition. In the early hours of the day Federals and Confederates had joined in the unveiling of a monument to the 5,000 Confederates who had died in the military prison at Camp Douglas; the ex-Confederate Association had strewn on the graves of the Union soldiers buried there a mass of flowers brought from the ground over which they had fought less than a generation ago, and the Union veterans had placed upon the graves of their fallen comrades in the other cemeteries about the city the flowers which grow in our own latitude. Almost the echoes of the volley fired over the Confederate burying ground by the first regiment of State militia and of the bugle blare could be heard and "taps" were still sounding, and the smoke from their rifles was still floating over the field of peace, as the cortege of the dead Secretary of State filed in through the gates into the cemetery.

THE VAULT AT OAKWOODS.

It was a remarkably fitting climax to the remarkable ceremonies which had just closed that the remains of the man who claimed the allegiance of both the North and the South should be deposited there, the keystone to the arch of re-cemented friendship whose visible sign had just been unveiled there. For as a soldier he had won the respect of those who fought him; as a jurist he had gained the love of the common people, and as Secretary of State in a Democratic administration he had commanded the support of the people of the South as well as of the North.

The special funeral train arrived from Washington in the afternoon. The procession was formed, headed by the escort of honor, consisting of the troops of all arms from Fort Sheridan. These were followed by the honorary pall-bearers, and next came the funeral car with the active pall-bearers walking on either side. Next rode the members of the late Secretary's family and the Presidential party, and in the rear of the cortege brought up the members of the Loyal Legion, G. A. R. veterans, judges of the courts, State and municipal officers, civic societies and citizens. The entire line of march was crowded with people who respectfully bared their heads as the cortege passed. Arriving at the cemetery chapel, the casket was removed from the funeral car and borne within by eight sergeants of marines.

The services conducted by the Rev. S. J. McPherson, of the Second Presbyterian Church, were impressive but simple, consisting merely of scriptural readings. There was a hymn by the choir and prayer. The remains were temporarily deposited in the receiving vault of the cemetery. No salute was fired, the ceremonies concluded with "taps." The train had been held and the Presidential party returned to it and at once started on the return trip to Washington.

FAIRMON IS FIRST.

Officially Declared Winner of the Chicago Road Race.

Homer Fairmon, of the Chicago Cycling Club, was declared the winner of the road race from Chicago to Evanston and return, a distance of about twenty miles. Edwin Fry, who came in ahead of him, was disqualified, the judges having decided he had not covered the full course. Fairmon's time was 54:36. George Emerson, of the Englewood wheelmen, won second and the time prize, his time being 52:14. Reports say the race was woefully mismanaged.

HOMER FAIRMON, THE WINNER.

Frederick M. Richt, of the Brooklyn Bicycle Club, won the annual 25-mile road race over the Irving-Milburn course in New Jersey. The finish of this great Memorial Day event centered down to a sprint between him and the Paterson man, Standever, and Richt won handsomely in 1:14:30.

SANK BY THE SCORE.

COLIMA VICTIMS OVERTAKEN BY DEATH WHILE ASLEEP.

Latest Reports Swell the List of Lost to 16.—The Vessel's Boilers Burst Fifty Miles Off the Mexican Coast—Nineteen Were Saved.

Had 182 Persons on Board.

Only meager and unsatisfactory advices have been received regarding the foundering of the Pacific Mail steamer Colima at Manzanillo, Mexico. The officials of the Pacific Mail in San Francisco persisted in the statement that they had received no information of the wreck of the steamer, and they tried to discredit entirely the statements of the disaster. Several dispatches have been received by the Merchants' Exchange and by private shipping firms all confirming the tale of the ocean tragedy, and varying only in the minuteness of the information conveyed.

Capt. Pitts of the steamer San Juan telegraphed that he picked up a boat containing nineteen persons, fourteen of whom were passengers and five members of the crew of the Colima. The rescued boatload was taken to Manzanillo and the steamer San Juan started out again in search of other boats from the Colima, the presumption being that the balance of passengers and crew was afloat in other boats.

The Colima's Boiler Burst.

The latest intelligence regarding the disaster received was in cipher message to a San Francisco shipping firm containing the statement of Third Officer Hansen, who was in charge of the boat picked up. Hansen stated that about 11:15 at night as the Colima was about fifty miles from Manzanillo, and between that port and Punta St. Almo, an accident occurred to her machinery. Hansen had not time to investigate the trouble, but believed a boiler had burst. The Colima was put about, but began to sink rapidly.

A scene of wild confusion followed. One boat was lowered and most of the others swung out, but so far as Hansen knows the boat he commanded was the only one which got clear of the sinking ship. It quickly foundered, and to avoid the suction Hansen's boat quickly pulled clear, and the night being dark, it was impossible to tell whether the other boats got away from the ship or not.

If these boats only got clear away the calmness of the sea and the low, sandy beach twenty miles distant would enable them to make a safe landing in a few hours. As the passengers were all asleep Hansen fears very few escaped. One hundred and sixty passengers and crew are still unaccounted for.

The Colima was a single-screw propeller with iron hull. She was built in 1873 at Chester, Pa., by John Roach & Sons. Her tonnage was 2,909.64 gross, 2,143.85 net, her horsepower 1,100 and her speed eleven and one-half knots. This was her one hundred and twenty-ninth voyage to Panama. She carried about 2,000 tons of cargo and was valued at $103,000.

YOUTHFUL SOLDIERS.

Growing Movement to Establish Military Drill in the Schools.

The movement lately inaugurated to train boys in the public schools in military tactics is meeting with great success. The boys have named themselves the American Guard, and those of New York and Brooklyn on Memorial Day paraded to the number of 10,000.

All over the country the military drill movement is meeting with favor, and the schools in most of the cities, as well as in many of the smaller towns are getting into line in favor of the innovation. The question has become one of national importance, and has already been taken up in Congress, as well as in the Legislatures of most of the States. The Grand Army of the Republic is really behind the movement to give some soldierly discipline to the lads in the public schools throughout the country.

Although the national movement is a new one, military instruction in the public schools has long been practiced in some cities. In Boston the system has been thoroughly worked out, probably, and there the "Boston School Regiment" numbers about 1,500 uniformed boys. In New York and Brooklyn the movement is making rapid strides. The American Guard has been formed from the battalions of the public schools, and each battalion has its number and place in line. As in Boston, they turn out on special holidays, and have been the feature of more than one big parade of real soldiers. In Washington, Cincinnati, Columbus, Des Moines, Omaha and scores of other smaller cities and towns the idea is making headway.

MARCHING TO THEIR OWN MUSIC.

That military drill is popular among the schoolboys is evident to anyone who sees the lads at drill. They willingly give up part of their play hour to take part in it, and the competition for officers' positions is keen. One has but to look at the air of pride with which these youngsters wear their neat little uniforms to appreciate their feelings. In most of the schools only the larger companies are uniformed and equipped, and there are one or two companies composed of the smaller and untrained boys, which correspond to a drill squad, from which the ranks of the regular companies are recruited.

Notes of Current Events.

Two big claims against the Stanford estate have been compromised.

Frank Scott, dry goods merchant, failed at Leavenworth, Kan., for $23,800.

Frank Jones, of Chili, Ind., is in a dying condition from lockjaw caused by shooting himself in the hand.

A young socialist, charged with writing threatening letters to the King of Saxony, is under arrest at Dresden.

The body of the son of Pastor Davis, of Sodus Point, N. Y., was found in Sodus bay, as predicted by a fortune teller.

The Guatemalan Government has made reparation for its treatment of Argle, the American whom it ill-treated in prison.

Aquilla Roberts, 91 years old, died at Deputy, Ind. He was the oldest member of the Methodist Church in the State.

Seven men were killed and twelve injured in an explosion on the Turkish torpedo boat Destroyer, which is being built at Kiel.

NIAGARA FALLS EXCURSION!

Thursday, August 8, 1895.

—VIA THE—

Lake Erie & Western R. R.

"Natural Gas Route."

On Thursday, August 8, 1895, the Lake Erie & Western R.R. will run their popular annual excursion to Cleveland, Chautauqua Lake, Buffalo and Niagara Falls at following very low rates, viz.:

Peoria	$7 50	Fort Wayne	$5 00
Bloomington	7 00	Muncie	5 00
LaFayette	6 00	Connersville	5 00
Michigan City	6 00	Rushville	5 00
Indianapolis	5 00	New Castle	5 00
Tipton	5 00	Cambridge City	5 00
Lima	4 00	Fremont	4 00

Sandusky, $4 00.

With corresponding reductions from intermediate points.

In addition to the above, the purchasers of these tickets will be given privilege of special excursion side trips to Lewiston-on-the-Lake, including a steamboat ride on Lake Ontario, 25 cents. To Toronto and return by Lake from Lewiston $1.00; to Thousand Islands, $5.00. Tickets for the above side trips can be had when purchasing Niagara Falls ticket, or at any time on train.

Besides the above privileges with that of spending Sunday at the Falls, we will furnish all those who desire a side trip from Brockton Junction to Chautauqua Lake and return FREE OF CHARGE.

Tickets of admission to places of special interest at or near Niagara Falls, but outside the reservation, including toll over the International Bridge to the Canadian side, elevators to the water's edge at Whirlpool Rapids on the Canadian side, will be offered on train at a reduction from prices charged after reaching the Falls.

Do not miss this opportunity to spend Sunday at Niagara Falls. The excusion train will arrive at Niagara Falls 7.00 A. M. Friday, August 9, 1895, and will leave the Falls returning Sunday morning, August 11, at 6 o'clock, stopping at Cleveland Sunday afternoon, giving an opportunity to visit the magnificent monument of the late President Garfield, and many other interesting points.

Tickets will be good, however, to return on regular trains leaving the Falls Saturday, August 10, for those not desiring to remain over. Tickets will also be good returning on all regular trains up to and including Tuesday, August 13, 1895. SECURE YOUR TICKETS, ALSO CHAIR AND SLEEPING CAR ACCOMMODATIONS, early. Those desiring can secure accommodations in these cars while at the Falls. For further information call on any agent Lake Erie & Western R. R. or address.

C. F. DALY, Gen. Pass Agent, Indianapolis Ind.

·HORSEMEN·

SAVE YOUR STOCK BY USING THE CELEBRATED

Morris' English Stable Powder
For Loss of Appetite, Constipation, Rough Hair Hide Bound, and all Diseases of the Blood. Price, 25c. per package.

Morris' English Stable Liniment
Cures Lameness, Cuts, Bruises, Scratches, Galls, Sweeney, Spavins, Splint, Curb, etc. Price, 50c. per bottle.

Morris' English Worm Powder
Warranted to cure any case of Worms in Horses, Cattle, Sheep or Dogs, also Pin Worms in Colts. Price, 25c. per box.

Craft's Distemper and Cough Cure
A Specific for Distemper, Coughs, Colds, Heaves, Pink Eye, and all Catarrhal diseases of horses. Price, 50c. $1.00 per bottle.

Wells' Hoosier Poultry Powder
Makes Hens Lay, cures Cholera, Gapes and Roup, and keeps poultry healthy. Price, 25c. per package.

Every remedy guaranteed satisfactory or money refunded. Our new book, "The Horse: His Diseases and Treatment," mailed free.
Wells Medicine Co., Lafayette, Ind.

For sale by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

BE A MAN

Ajax Tablets

have cured thousands and will cure you if you are suffering from Loss of Vigor, Impotence, Sterility, Seminal Weakness or any of the other effects of Self-Abuse or excesses of early life. We give positive Written Guarantee to effect a cure in each case or to refund money in case of failure. Price $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Sent prepaid upon receipt of price. Send for free circular. Address

AJAX REMEDY CO.,
70 Dearborn Street, CHICAGO, ILL.
For sale by F. E. Davenport, Druggist, Auburn.

TOWER'S SURFACE.... CULTIVATOR

IS THE PIONEER OF ITS CLASS,

And as now perfected

Can not be equalled for Corn, Potatoes, Cabbage and Tobacco Culture.

IT IS A PERFECT ERADICATOR

Of Morning Glories, Cockleburrs, Barn Grass and other noxious Weeds.

EQUALLY AS EFFICIENT

IN WET AS IN DRY SEASONS.

All the Agricultural Experiment Stations in the country have decided in favor of surface culture, and all of them who have tested it, have decided in favor of the Tower Hoe Cultivator for that purpose.

Manufactured by

J. D. TOWER & BRO.,
MENDOTA, ILL.

SUBSCRIBE

FOR THE

COURIER.

CHAPTER XI.—(Continued).

"We will go at once to Storr & Mortimer's," said the countess to her niece; "it will take some time to choose the settings."

"Aunt," said Barbara, "do not go there. I might say I was too tired, or give other excuses—all would be equally false. Do not go there to-day, and promise not to ask me the reason until we reach home."

"What can you mean, Barbara?" asked her aunt, haughtily. "Have you some plan, some design of your own for the diamonds? You should have mentioned it before, my dear."

"I have no plan of my own," she replied, wearily. "I will explain when we reach home."

Although Lady Bayneham longed for an explanation, she was too well-bred to repeat her question. Barbara's face had grown strangely pale, and the countess gazed at her with surprise. They were not long in reaching Grosvenor Square.

"Come with me to my room, Barbara," said her aunt. "Let me hear what this mystery means."

Miss Earle followed Lady Bayneham quietly enough to her room. She closed the door with her own hands, and stood before it.

"Few words are always best, aunt," she said, with a feeble attempt at smiling. "I did not go to choose a setting for the Bayneham diamonds because I am not going to marry Claude."

"Not marry Claude!" gasped the countess. "Have you lost your senses, Barbara?"

"No—I have merely found them," said the young girl sadly. "Do not be angry, aunt. If Claude knelt here asking me for a year and a day, I should still refuse."

"May I ask," said Lady Bayneham, haughtily, "why Miss Earle declines an alliance with my son?"

"No, aunt," replied Barbara, proudly; "that is the one question you may not ask. I decline to answer it."

"Have you seen some one you like better?" interrupted Lady Bayneham. "Yet I need not ask. You are not a weak, vain girl, who thinks little of her plighted word."

Then Lady Bayneham's voice softened, and she threw one arm caressingly round her niece.

"Do you fear Claude does not love you?" she asked. "Believe me, Barbara——"

"Aunt," interrupted her niece, "do not seek to know my motives; our engagement was a great mistake. Let us be thankful for having discovered it in time. Believe me, dear aunt," she continued, earnestly, "if I married your son now, we should both be wretched for life."

"But, Barbara," cried Lady Bayneham, "why did you not discover this before?"

"I am perhaps to blame for that," she replied, gently, a sharp quiver of pain passing her face. "I have found it out now."

"What will the world say?" cried the countess. "Every arrangement made, even to the ordering of your jewels."

"They may even yet be worn," said Barbara, with a smile.

"Barbara," said Lady Bayneham, "are you jealous?"

"No," was the reply. "Try to believe me, dear aunt. I am thoroughly in earnest. Our engagement was a terrible mistake. I have found it out, and refuse to fulfill it. Your son is free. I have told him so, and nothing can change or alter my decision; it is made for life. My greatest grief is the sorrow I know it will cause you."

For once, Lady Bayneham had nothing to say; she was too angry for speech, too bewildered for remonstrance, too much annoyed to care for further conversation.

"You can leave me now, Barbara," said the countess, haughtily. "I can have no respect for any one who deliberately breaks a promise and draws down ridicule upon those who love her best. Have you considered in what a cruel position your conduct places Claude?"

"He will be strong enough to bear it," replied Barbara, dryly. "I have not remarked any change in his looks or his spirits; have you, aunt?"

Considering that Lady Bayneham had said that morning, in Barbara's presence, that her son had never looked better, she could make no reply.

"Let us be friends, aunt," said Barbara, gently, and there was a wistful tone in her voice. "Let us be friends, dear aunt. I have no one in the world but you."

Lady Bayneham was, however, too angry for any reply. "I can but hope and pray, Miss Earle, that you will soon return to your senses," she said. "Will you be kind enough to leave me now; the dressing bell has rung. I presume you did not hear it."

That was all the consolation Barbara Earle received in the greatest trouble of her life.

CHAPTER XII.

That evening fate was kind to Hilda Hutton. The agent for Brynmar came over purposely to consult with Lady Hutton as to some alterations making at the Hall. So it happened that when Lord Bayneham called in Park Gardens, he was told that Lady Hutton was engaged, but that Miss Hutton was in the drawing room.

"I will see her," he said, trying to look as though she were a substitute for Lady Hutton, and signally failing in the attempt.

When the drawing room doors were opened there was no one to be seen; but Claude's quick eye discerned the floating of a white dress in the dim light of the conservatory, and instinct told him to seek his love there. He walked so quietly, that she did not hear him; and he stood for a moment, lost, as an artist might have been, in delighted admiration at so fair a picture. The golden head and fair young face shone brightly in the dim mellow light. There was a dreamy smile on the sweet lips, as though pleasant dreams were with her. She was bending over some choice white lilies, and they were not so fair and pure as she, thought Claude. She did not look surprised when he uttered her name, and the smile deepened, as though the pleasant dream had come true.

"Mamma is engaged," she said in reply to Lord Bayneham's few words. "The agent is here from Brynmar. See, Lord Bayneham, he brought me these lilies himself all the way."

"It was very kind of him," said Claude; "I am not sorry Lady Hutton is engaged, for I came purposely to see you."

In some vague, distinct way, Hilda knew what was coming. Her simple, loving heart fluttered and beat so quickly that she could hardly breathe.

"Hilda," whispered the low voice at her side, "do forget those lilies for one moment, and look at me. Can you guess what I have to say?"

The shy, sweet eyes did not meet his own; the little hands still trembled amidst the white blossoms.

"I am jealous of those flowers," said Claude, impatiently, as he removed them. "I want all your attention for once, and for a few minutes; Hilda, do you remember that May morning in Brynmar wood?"

"I remember it well," replied a faint, half-frightened voice.

"Do you know," said Claude, eagerly, "I loved you then? It was the fairest, sweetest picture my eyes ever fell upon, as you stood in the woods, with the bluebells in your hand. I could hardly tear myself away. I longed there and then to kneel at your feet and offer you, as I do now, my life with my love. I have never thought of anything or any one since I saw you. Until I found you again my life was one long dream of misery, Hilda. There never was a love so strong, so deep, so true as mine. Is there any hope for me?"

There were a few minutes of unbroken silence, then a gentle, half-sad voice replied:

"How could you care for me when you were pledged to marry Miss Earle?"

He told her the whole story, how from childhood they had been trained to understand that at some future time they were to be married—how he always liked Barbara in a calm, kind, brotherly way, and when his mother suggested the time for the marriage had arrived, he had "no objection."

"I had not seen you then, Hilda," he continued. "When I did so, my heart awoke suddenly. I was like a man who had been buried in a deep sleep. I awoke to find myself passionately loving you, yet pledged to marry Barbara Earle. I was half mad for some time, but I had no idea of freeing myself. I thought I must bear my fate, and trample you out of my heart. But, Hilda, Barbara has dismissed me; she says our engagement was a foolish mistake, for which I shall not suffer. She refuses even to mention it again, and I am free—free to lay my heart at the feet of the only one I ever can love. Have you no word for me, Hilda?"

"Is she—is Barbara unhappy?" she asked, gently.

"Do not let that shadow stand between us," cried Lord Bayneham. "Hilda, if I was to pray as man has never prayed before, Miss Earle would not deign to listen to me. If she were here, she would plead for me. Oh, Hilda, can it be that I am mistaken—that you do not care for me?"

She turned her face to him, and he read his answer there.

"Your life shall be just as bright as the life of one of these flowers," said Claude; "no shadow, no storm shall come near you. I shall have but one care, and that will be your happiness; and in return for all my devotion, will you give me a little love, Hilda?"

"A little," she said, wondering if he knew how much that meant.

"You will be happy at Bayneham," he continued. "My mother is sure to love you very dearly, Hilda—she loves me so much. I have won my treasure now, and I am impatient to call it mine. When shall I see Lady Hutton? Before the spring blossoms come again, promise to be my wife, darling?"

But that Hilda would not do. In her gentle, child-like heart there was a gracious dignity—all her own. He had won enough; she would promise no more. He loved her but the more for the pretty coy words that fell so softly from her lips.

"I shall come to see Lady Hutton tomorrow," he said, half inquiringly.

"Not to-morrow," she replied, "mamma will be busy with the agent. Let me have that one day to realize my happiness and to dream."

"It shall be so," replied Claude.

In after years Hilda wondered what her fate would have been if he had seen Lady Hutton as he wished.

"Now, before I go," said Lord Bayneham, "grant me one favor. You gave me a bluebell that May morning; give me now one of those white lilies. I shall know then in the morning that my happiness is real, not a dream."

She gave him what he asked, and the time came when those two withered flowers were more precious to the young earl than all the world besides. As he was leaving the house he heard a bell ring violently, and half wondered who it could be ringing in such hot haste.

* * * * * * *

"Tell Lord Bayneham, as soon as he returns, that I wish to see him particularly I shall be in my own room."

So said Lady Bayneham, in her coldest voice, intended for Barbara's benefit. She had not vouchsafed one word to the young girl herself, choosing to consider her in a state of rebellion

Claude's face did not express any rapturous delight when the obedient domestic delivered her ladyship's message. He loved his mother dearly; he had the deepest respect and admiration for her beauty and talents, her grace and dignity—she was his complete ideal of a British peeress; but, if the truth must be told, the young earl held his mother in wholesome awe. He feared nothing upon earth; no danger ever awed him, no fear ever daunted him; but he could not face his lady mother when he had offended or displeased her.

"One more battle," he muttered to himself, "then all will be plane sailing." But Lady Bayneham's greeting astonished him.

"My dear boy," she cried, "my poor Claude—what does all this mean?"

"All what, mother?" he asked, briefly.

"Barbara's strange conduct," she replied. "She tells me she has given you your freedom. I asked no questions from her—I felt too angry. Tell me, have you accepted it?"

"I have," said Lord Bayneham, "and gladly, too. I am of Barbara's opinion—our engagement was a terrible mistake. She is a noble girl, and I love her as though she were my own sister; but I can never care more for her than I do now."

Lady Bayneham's face grew white with anger.

"It seems I am utterly ignored in the matter," she said bitterly.

"Not ignored, mother," replied Claude, gayly; "but you see, as the matter rested with Barbara and myself, we settled our own affairs."

"I never admire flippancy," was the haughty reply; "it is not in good taste from you to me, Claude."

"I beg your pardon, mother," he replied, earnestly. "I only meant to say it was a matter that concerns ourselves alone."

"Tell me one thing," cried Lady Bayneham—"has Barbara dismissed you? or have you ceased to love her?"

"Barbara dismissed me," he replied, with a strange smile.

"Then she is a false, faithless girl, and must be brought to reason," said the countess, indignantly.

"Hush, mother," said the earl. "She is the noblest and truest of women. She dismissed me because she saw that I had learned to love some one else truly and dearly. She would not stand between me and happiness. I should never have named my love; I should have married Barbara, and endured my life as I could. But she saw it, and set me free."

"It is just as I expected," was her ladyship's indignant comment—"a set of ridiculous, sentimental ideas. So you, my lord, have broken your faith, if not your word, with the 'noblest of women!' You fly in the very face of society; you set the world and all its laws at defiance—and for what?—for the love of some fair, foolish face, or, perhaps worse, I cannot tell."

"Be just, mother," said Lord Bayneham. "I have done all you say for love of the sweetest, loveliest and purest girl the world ever saw."

"Favor me with the name of your new love," said the countess contemptuously. "I have no wish to hear any absurd rhapsodies."

"The girl I love and have asked to be my wife, is Hilda Hutton, Lady Hutton's ward," he replied. "I beg you, mother, to say what you will of me, but spare her. I love her, and she will be my wife."

"Never with my consent," exclaimed the countess. "I forbid any such folly. I insist upon your returning to your allegiance—to Barbara, and forgetting this fair, foolish——"

"Hush," said Lord Bayneham, his face growing dark and stern—"not one word against her. There are limits to a man's patience, mother."

"And to his courtesy, it seems," retorted the lady. "I refuse to hear one word more. If I could believe you serious, Claude, my sorrow would be so great it would nearly kill me. When you have thought better of it, come to me again."

With a haughty gesture the countess thus dismissed her son.

(To be continued.)

POTTER PALMER'S PORTER.

Why There Are No More Tips for Taking Trunks Up Stairs.

This is the narrative of Potter Palmer and his chief porter, as told in a Chicago paper:

Mr. Palmer has what he considers an educated taste in horseflesh. He thinks he knows a trotter when he sees him, and has little doubt of his ability to judge of the aforesaid trotter when he sits behind him with ribbons in his hands.

Mr. Palmer some time ago bought a horse with an alleged ability to do a mile in 2:50, that struck him as being extremely desirable. He paid a good deal of money for the animal, and he was filled with delight when he thought of the easy and brash manner in which he would pass the various turnouts on the Lake Shore drive.

He asked Mrs. Palmer to come out with him to try the new horse, and, having nothing better to do, Mrs. Palmer consented. The wagon was yoked up and the driver attached.

One by one the speedy horses of the neighboring Armours and Trees and Healys were passed, and Mr. Palmer was just beginning to rejoice in his purchase when there came behind him the clatter and rattle of a badly constructed village cart.

"We will have to have one more run, my dear," said Potter Palmer.

"Just this once, love," said Mrs. Potter Palmer.

The clattering came nearer, and nearer, and nearer, and then presenter and presenter, and at last passinger and passinger, until it faded away in the distance far beyond anything Potter Palmer and his new horse could do, but as the vehicle went by Mr. Palmer recognized the driver.

It was his own head porter! The man who had thus brought him to open shame was the person who told the slaves how to pile the trunks around in the Palmer House.

He said nothing just then, but like the parrot in the story he thought a heap. Mrs. Palmer made such conversation as there was held in the rest of the trip, and Mr. Palmer got back to the hotel as soon as possible.

"How much does the head porter get a month?" he demanded.

"Fifty dollars," replied the manager.

"How can he buy trotting stock on $50 a month?" demanded Mr. Palmer.

"Oh, you forget his fees."

"What fees?"

"Why, his tips—the money people give the head porter when their luggage is brought for them."

"Hereafter," said Mr. Palmer, "no porter is to be permitted to collect fees. You see that he does what he is paid to do for what he is paid for it. And, by the way, find out what he will take for that horse he had out to-day."

No Leap Year for Eight Years.

We must go back far beyond your birthday to explain. Julius Caesar reformed the calendar, which, in his time, B. C. 45, was hopelessly tangled. He ordered that the year should consist of 365 and one-quarter days, and that every fourth year the quarter should make a full day, when the year should have 366 days. But the year really has 365 days, 5 hours, 49 minutes, eleven minutes short of a quarter of a day, and in A. D. 1582 Pope Gregory XIII. found that ten days too many had been "borrowed from the future." So he ordered that October 5, 1582, should become October 15, and that thereafter leap year should come every fourth year, except on centurial years, and only on every fourth centurial year. By this arrangement we add to each year eleven minutes, which we borrow from the future; we more than pay back what we have borrowed by having no leap year on ordinary centurial years, and we take back the overplus by having a leap year on the fourth centurial year. There will be no leap year from 1896 to 1904, eight years.

The warm climate of India often makes the ordinary precautions against the undue expansion of rails in a railway track quite useless. For instance, it is stated that on a portion of the Rajputana Railway several miles of the permanent way were laid with Belgian rails which were all right in the morning, but exhibited a serious change during the heat of the day, the rails deflecting in and out fully three inches in a length of twenty feet; yet the expansion plates used had been increased from one-fourth to one-half and even three-fourths of an inch, but to no purpose. Perhaps the numerous derailments recently reported may be attributed to the same cause.

GLIMPSE OF LONDON.

CHAPTER ON THE SCENES AND DOINGS IN A VAST CITY.

The Underground Railway, the Omnibus, the Bridges, and the Park System—"Refugees" in Busy Streets—Police Are Known as "Bobbies," Etc.

Sights in a Big Town.

